FRED KARNO'S COMPANIES.

Unprecedented and Instantaneous success of the Military Burlesque entitled:

"THE THIRSTY FIRST."

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS OPINIONS.

The Era, Feb. 3, 1906.—Brimful of bustle and excitement, there is no departure from so welcome a rule. . . . . With such a wealth of elaboration it was nothing less than remarkable that the fun—all performed in dumb show—should be kept going so briskly. . . . . The sketch was received with uproarious laughter, and forms a successful beginning to Mr. Karno's new enterprises.

Daily Telegraph, Feb. 6, 1906.—"The Thirsty First," which is the leading item in the Canterbury programme this week. . . . proves very good fooling.

Entr'acte, Feb. 10, 1906.—The name Karno has become quite a Hall mark of excellence in connection with Music Hall Burlesques. There are plenty of laughs in the new production, which is of the pantomimic order—not a word being spoken throughout the three scenes. The idea is a burlesque upon Tommy Atkins—the Tommy Atkins of the comic papers. The fun is kept going by an efficient company, and should be another "screamer."

South London Mail, Feb. 9, 1906.—"The Thirsty First" will bear favourable comparison with any of this "fun" merchant's previous efforts. . . . . For sheer merriment this production will long remain the funniest sketch seen on the variety stage.

Eastern Post, Feb. 17, 1906.—"Fred Karno's latest pantomimical production, "The Thirsty First," is really worth everybody going to see."

In active preparation.

The Late ALI ACHMED (ACHMED IBRAHIM).
NOTICE.
To Proprietors, Managers, Agents, and Friends. Many mistakes having occurred of late, I take this opportunity to notify all whom it may concern that my Uncle, the late Ali Achmed, afterwards known as Achmed Ibrahim, died in Preston, England, on the 24th of Jan., 1906, and was buried according to Mohammedan rites. To answer all inquiries asked from me of late, I beg to state that I am the original Ibrahim, and now the only one connected with the profession bearing that name. I also, through the medium of "The Era," wish to thank the many Directors, Agents, and Friends for their kind expressions of sympathy which they have expressed at my sad bereavement.
(Signed) MILUD BEN HADJ IBRAHIM,
The Original.

ANOTHER'S CRIME.

A poor beggar gets no sympathy from the passers by. The mysterious stranger. The crime in the cottage. Unseen witnesses. The child will know the truth. The day after the crime. The inquest. Chase of the supposed murderer by the mounted and foot police and crowds of people up and down streets, over roofs, through woods, over fields and rivers. Run down at last. Overwhelming evidence. The trial. Scene in court. The real murderer denounced, and is carried off after terrific struggles. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

ROBBERS ROBBED.

While a shopkeeper is busily occupied a lady is putting into a satchel all the jewels she can purloin. Two other women in the shop notice her actions and, following her, they succeed in snatching the bag from her lap. While they are examining their spoil in a park it is stolen from them. The thief is captured, and the two women are about to claim the jewels when they see the original thief and slink off, leaving her to make her claim good. The shopkeeper appears just too late to reclaim his property. About 230ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 0d.

DEATH PREFERABLE TO DISHONOR.

A well-to-do family meets with severe misfortune. The father meets with an accident. His wife is broken up by the shock, and the only daughter is left to struggle alone. A beautiful girl, she secures employment at a dressmaking establishment, but will not give in to her employer's dishonorable proposals, so he discharges her. She returns home to find her mother dead, and she then lights a charcoal fire in her room and commits suicide. The neighbours break in too late to save her. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

I'VE LOST MY EYEGLASS.

The morning coffee. Short-sighted gentleman loses his eyeglass. It is not to be found either on the table or the floor or under the carpet. No time to wait. The gentleman rushes off to keep an appointment, and his short-sightedness causes many amusing and somewhat painful collisions. Unable to bear anything further, he bribes a woman with a truck to give him a lift, and after some hard work she shoots him out at his destination. He arrives home at last, and when drinking his coffee discovers the missing eyeglass, which had fallen into the cup. His great joy at the recovery is laughable to behold. About 275ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

THE LOVE-LETTER.

Amusing attempts of a soldier to write a letter to his sweetheart. A novel blotter. His heart is hers. Now for dinner! The discovery in the dish. Trouble in the ranks. The spoilt repast. Splendid expressions. About 131ft. The Subject, £3 5s. 6d.

HALLO! SCISSORS GRINDER.

On the look-out for the grinder Missed him. Must be found somehow. The chase, helped by the neighbours. Collisions. The crowd takes up the pursuit. Captured. The crestfallen pursuers. Police help wanted. Very laughable. About 180ft. The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

LIFE ON BOARD SHIP.

Scenes in the daily life of the different class passengers. Through the Suez Canal. Scenes, views, and objects of interest along the banks. Sighting other vessels. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

WHEN THE MASTER'S AWAY.

Dressing for the theatre. Departure. The servants' jolly half hour. Making free with the master's good things. The "professor" at the piano. A lively dance. The lost necklace. The search. The return home of the master and mistress. Grand collapse of servants. Very amusing. About 180ft. The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

MISTRESS'S FINERY.

Lady of the house, dressing prior to going out, is being helped by her maid. Ready to depart. Instructions to the maid to tidy up. Directly her mistress's back is turned, maid proceeds to try on some of her clothes. Admiring herself in the mirror, she does not observe the master enter. He, in turn, does not recognise the maid in the mistress's cloak, and creeping up on tip-toe fondly kisses her. The wife, having forgotten something, at that moment appears on the scene, and does not believe the tale of mistaken identity. Dismisses the maid and furiously belabours her inoffensive little husband.

No. 996. THE TRAGEDY OF THE SAWMILL.

One of the finest melodramatic stories we have produced. The first scene depicts the work going on in large up-to-date saw-mills, machinery in full swing. Lunch whistle goes, and men prepare to depart. There enters the sweetheart of one of the workmen and her young sister. The foreman of the works, however, is also in love with the workman's sweetheart, and talks to the young workman to distract his attention while handing written offer of marriage to the girl. She repulses his attentions and thereby increases his jealousy, and anger for the young workman. Scene 2.—The foreman arranges to meet the girl in the open, and there again proposes marriage. She again refuses, and he endeavours to do her violence. The young lover comes on the scene, and fights the foreman. Foreman swears vengeance, and arranges with an accomplice to do him harm. Scene 3. Back in the workshop. The villain foreman and his accomplice strap the young man on the swiftly moving saw bench near circular saw. His sweetheart rushes in, and the foreman forces her hand on lever to start the machinery, then rushes off with her. Enter young sister, who cuts ropes of prisoner after vainly endeavouring to stop the machinery. Hero thrashes villain. Grand finale. Most exciting, and of fine quality.

Length 500ft. Price, £10 12s. 6d.

No. 989.

THE BEST LITTLE GIRL IN THE WORLD.

The little girl who is the heroine of this picture is an only child. A poor blind man greets her with a smile of recognition as she drops a coin into his hat and speaks a word of gentle sympathy. But a small boy has been before her and removed the crown of that hat, and artfully placing his own cap underneath, he succeeds in getting the coins intended for the blind beggar. The little girl in her anger shakes him, but he is poor and hungry, and he tells her how at home his father is dying. Only half believing him, she says she will go home with him and see these things for herself. One quick look round is enough to confirm the cruel truth of the urchin's story. All haste and anxiety, she drags the hungry boy to her father's house, and cajoles him to give her money to buy food and toys for the starving children. The scene in that squalid room when she arrives with her treasures is not easy to describe, while the small children, forgetful of everything but their new-found happiness, fall too eagerly on the welcome fare before them, "the best little girl in the world" slips quietly away and leaves them to their joy.

No. 1006. A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.

This is a very comical film. The opening shows the entrance hall to a gentleman's house, with a servant doing the usual morning dusting. The master of the house, a great sufferer from lumbago, is seen to slowly struggle downstairs in very great pain. While making frantic endeavours to reach the hall-stand, a gentleman caller arrives. He gives the poor man several good hard pokes and pushes, and shows him how to run upstairs. He then urges him to follow suit, and with pushing, kicking, and expostulating, he moves him gradually up the stairs in jerks. The sufferer, in his haste and agitation to lay hands on anything likely to assist him, seizes the grandfather clock on the top of the first landing. This valuable timepiece not being able to stand the weight of its owner, falls and slides down the stairs, bringing with it the man, lumbago and all. The excitement is so great for the patient that he forgets all about his lumbago, and rushes up and down stairs in double quick time. He is so overjoyed to find that he can do this successfully, that he continues this rapid mode of progression several times, and shakes his friend by the hand with hearty goodwill and thanks.

A GREAT DETECTIVE STORY IN SEVENTEEN THRILLING SCENES. The personality of Sir Conan Doyle's great character "Sherlock Holmes" is so striking, so realistic, that one scarcely realises the fact that the wonderful detective is only a hero of fiction, an imaginary personage evolved from the brain of a clever author. Mr. Gillette, the popular actor and playwright, strengthened the impression of realism by his splendid impersonation of Sherlock Holmes in the play of that name, and now the great detective is a familiar friend, admired by all, the idol of young and old, and his advent into the realm of Vitagraph drama will be warmly welcomed. To Touring Managers, and others.

FOR DISPOSAL, the Acting Rights of a strong Melodrama, by well-known novelist, part author of two successful plays. Sensational, modern, original, and suitable for touring. Small caste.
Address Box 2963, "The Era."

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. L. Andrews.—The boards of this house are occupied this week by Miss Grace Warner's company in The Scarlet Clue. Mr. George Gordon is capable as Michael Stanton; Mr. Reginald Brown is effective as Harry Esmond; Mr. J. E. Tomlinson is a decided success as Crazy Jim; and Mr. V. T. Raymond as Billy the Rotter, and Mr. Horace Moseley are deserving of special praise. The part of Sal Sacriet could not be in better hands, than those of Miss Grace Warner, her acting throughout being exceedingly powerful. Miss Grace Jones appears to much advantage as the heroine, Elsie Dane; and Miss Ellen Beverley as Miss Tabitha Esmond does full justice to her part.

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—The sensational drama A Path of Thorns is being presented here to large audiences. Mr. William Fazan acts powerfully as John Edmunds; Mr. Chris Mason is successful as Sam Hallett; and Miss Evelyn Shaw puts much humour into the part of Jane Adelaide. Miss Marion Ryder makes a capital Lucy; and among the other members of the company who deserve mention are Mr. Frank Gordon as Jim Price, the burglar; Mr. Harry F. Wright as Dr. Gaye, Mr. Gilbert Fenn as the Rev. Frank Selby, Miss Kitty Lofting and Miss Emil Leslie as the sisters of Sam Hallett, and Miss Muriel Dean as Edmunds' wife.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Valazzi gives a remarkable balancing, juggling, and leaping performance, and Mr. Jack Lorimer, the noted Scottish comedian, deservedly continues to increase in popularity. The Chevalier Cliquot contributes some sensational sword-swallowing feats, and Harris's Nippers are highly successful, particularly as boxers, in the sketch A Promising Pupil. Miss Edith Muir and Mr. Hubert Bartlett act very cleverly their respective parts in an extremely amusing comedietta A Bit of String, and Mr. Alix Lukos is heartily applauded for his life-like impersonation of a number of stage celebrities. Miss May Moodie plays skilfully on the piccolo; the Llewellyns are as cordially received as last week; Mr. Carl Howard, the "crazy conjurer," causes much laughter by his funny antics; Miss Nancy St. John dances and sings very acceptably; and a smart display is given by Francisco in his juggling speciality. Vernon's bioscope show includes a striking series of pictures entitled "A Tragedy of the Sea."

ABERTILLERY.—Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. A. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. George W. Ventom.—The boards here are occupied by Mr. Cecil Clayton's pantomime company in Cinderella. Miss Eva Rosslyn makes a smart Prince Charming, being ably seconded by Miss Annie Rose as Dandini. Miss Norah Waylett as Cinderella is charming, her songs being very pleasing; Mr. Herbert Colley is good as the Baron, as also is Mr. Reg. Kloof and Mr. Arthur Loman as the Ugly Sisters. Mr. A. Evremond as Pimples adds to the amusement of the house; speciality dances by the Sisters Clancy and the Cinderella troupe of acrobatic dancers are very pleasing.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The attraction provided here this week is Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company in The Temptress. Mr. Frederick Ross furnishes a powerful and artistic portrayal of Lucas Denbeigh; Mr. G. D. Darker displays undoubted ability as Philip Welford; Sir Oswald Fordyce is a good performance by Mr. James C. Ashworth; Mr. W. H. Hallatt submits a capital character-sketch as Pedro Gonzales; Mr. Oscar Power must be complimented upon his John Gregory; Mr. A. Carruthers is particularly amusing as Fitz Fluke; Mr. Tom E. Sinclair deserves praise for his Bob Tanner, and the little part of Rev. T. Finch is a praiseworthy performance by Mr. E. Apandle. Miss Blanche Steel gives an interesting assumption of Stella; Miss Mabel Scudamore is an able exponent of Marion Fordyce, and Miss L. Chambers is well placed as Rhoda Brown.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—An excellent bill is provided this week, headed by Barton and Ashley, who meet with a warm reception; Ray and Miles, comic jugglers, are very good, and another good turn is supplied by Tennyson and Wallis; Craig, Rose, and Craig must be complimented upon their turn; George Edney (actor-vocalist), Eva Dawn (comedienne), and the Hippodrome pictures are other attractions.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sonnes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—New scenery, new dresses, and costumes, and an attractive chorus are some of the features which enhance the performance of Kitty Grey, played by Mr. C. St. J. Denton's company. Miss Hilda Guiver is again a success as Kitty; a good portrayal of Lady Binfield is given by Miss Marie West; Messrs. H. Garden and R. Hyett are well-placed as Plantagenet and Sir John respectively; Mr. Lauri Lisle does well as Illyria; and Messrs. Stanley Ravenscroft and Allerton Turner are Comte and Ponbrichet; and Misses N. Lauraine and S. Page are capable as Mrs. Bright and Sadie.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr. Geo. Dance's premier company, with the favourite musical comedy, The Orchid, is here this week. Mr. Tommy Neldon as Meakin, the gardener, is extremely droll. Miss Dorothy Firmin sustains with much grace the part of Lady Violet Anstruther; honours also fall to Mr. Fern Pounds as Guy Scrymgeour, Mr. W. Griffin as Ronald Faussett, Mr Geo. Begg as Aubrey Chesterton, and Mr. E. Nainby is admirable as the fiery French Count. The amorous Caroline is excellently impersonated by Miss Madeline Maud, and Josephine is played by Miss Elsa Brull.

The Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—A feature in this week's bill is the first appearance of Miss Lottie Rhona, from New South Wales, animal trainer. Her troupe of Australian dogs and sheep perform some really wonderful tricks under her direction. Miss Amy Anderson and Co. appear in some amusing scenes from London life—The Banana Stall; Herbert Bettis, comedian, does well; Florrie is a clever child singer; Fanny Robina is a big favourite; the Franko Midgets are described as the smallest conjurers in the world. There are also good turns of a varied character by Ruby Dahl, in her latest novelty, The Merry Mannikins; Billy Bint, a capital comedian; Ara, Zebra, and Vora, in their novelty, "Indian Pastimes"; Marconi's Electric Wonders is a big sensation; and "A Trip to Oxo Land" is depicted on the Bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Max Goldberg's picturesque historical drama, Lady Godiva, under the direction of Mr. F. B. Woulfe, opened a week's engagement here on Monday. As Tom O'Coventry Mr. F. B. Woulfe is admirable, and his portrayal of the part stamps him as a resourceful and clever actor; Leofric in the hands of Mr. Ernest Lodge loses none of the force and dignity which are required; Mr. James Duncan is very good as Algar; Mr. Ernest Hamilton is seen to advantage as Unwolf Unwolfson; good service is rendered by Mr. Harry Benson as Robin Shacklebolt, and Mr. C. Lingham as Edgar the Nameless. The highest praise must be accorded Miss Josephine Colona, who in the title-rôle plays with charming grace; Miss Gwen Stewart is a winsome Lady Aldyth, and Miss Edith Loraine does well as Elfrida.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—The programme this week is headed by Miss Ada Fawn, burlesque actress; other turns are supplied by Mr. J. W. Ellison, comedian; Miss Violet Beatrice, Irish colleen; Mr. Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist; Mr. E. C. Clayton, with a varied and interesting series of pictures; Matt Wilkinson and company in a laughable sketch entitled The Registry Office; Mlle. Thelma, clay modeller; and the Ralston Bros., comedians.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—The Ticket-o'-Leave Man was presented here on Monday by Mr. Alan Wilkie and company before an appreciative audience. Mr. Wilkie as Robert Brierly brought out vividly the sterling qualities of a much-wronged man. He was well supported by Miss Ine Cameron in the part of the wife. Mr. George Lambton as Jim Dalton and Mr. Edwin Ling as Melter Moss, with Mr. Clifford Rogers as Hawkshaw the detective, held the interest of the audience. Miss Dorothy Barrington did ample justice to the part of Sam Willoughby, and Miss Barbara Pigot and Miss Lizzie Maddocks cleverly undertook the respective characters of Emily St. Evremond and Mrs. Willoughby.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Montague Beaudyn and Sidney Crowe's company is here in The Way of the World. Mr. Herbert Skardon is an interesting Cecil Montague; Miss Cissie Bellamy plays Kate Montague with sympathy and charm; the villainies of Captain Fred Slade are skilfully presented by Mr. Victor Gordon, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Clarence Temple as Matthew Malyon; Adela de la Roche is cleverly played by Miss Sidney Crowe; and the piece is efficiently lightened by the clever humours of Mr. Louis Scott as Horatio Bluff, Mr. Dick Seddon as Joe Sparrow, and Miss Violet Vivienne as Polly Bell.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Dorothy Howard and company are presenting here this week a musical version of East Lynne. In the character of Lady Isabel Miss Dorothy Oswald displays fine emotional acting; Mr. Herbert Barrs is capital in the part of Archibald Carlyle; and Captain Levison is admirably acted by Mr. Arthur E. Pringle. The musical numbers by Mr. Herbert Fuller and Miss Lillie Kennie are a great success.

Tivoli.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—At the top of the bill here this week are Lee and Kingston in a comedy act entitled Practical Joking. Baker and Balfe give a capital musical turn; Herbert Rule is a droll comedian; Bromley and Fontein submit a novel sketch; and Kribb and Cribb (comedians), the Two Errols in comedy tumbling, and Jack Hilton (comedian) complete the list.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—On Monday the management inaugurated a four weeks' season of drama, the first attraction being the sensational play Gipsy Jack, played by Mr. Henry Bedford and his company. Mr. Bedford himself appears as Gipsy Jack, a heavy task, which he carries through with the most successful results. The villainous character of Gerald Skinner is acted by Mr. Alec Alexander with unflinching coolness, and Mr. Cecil B. Churton as the curate, Francis Harvey, is well placed. Miss Mary Masters is the heroine, Dorothy Dexter, and with Miss Bessie Bedford as May Harvey secures the favourable verdict of the audience. Miss Frances Foley portrays Hagar, a Romany witch, with some effect. Nan, the secretly married wife of Skinner, is in the hands of Miss Ada Antley. The comic interest is brought to the fore by Mr. Sid Bedford (Joe Banks), Mr. J. H. Damer (Charley Bates), and Miss Jennie Riley (Jennie Huggins). Others in a long list of characters who sustain the interest in unfolding the plot are Mr. George W. Hewetson (Sir John Dexter) and Mr. Walter H. Domoney (Mr. Skinner, sen.).

T. HARRIS, Manager.

Telegraphic Address: "CLEANING, LONDON." Ring up, THREE NINE-TWO-THREE GERRARD.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schubert.—Originality always has its reward, and the first visit to Bath of Amber Austa in her eccentric coon songs and dances has gained for the clever artist a big reception nightly. King and Benson, the American entertainers, are great favourites, their duets and business gaining them genuine recalls; W. E. Haines is a "dandy" comedian, who renders his songs with the happiest results; Speedwell wins much applause for his marvellous painting act, Art in a Hurry; Charles Jerome specialises a pretty dusky song and dance, "Letty," with success; Davis and Davis, comedians, vocalise well, and tell stories smartly; the Smythsons create many a laugh in their sketch, A Tea House Flirtation; and Blanche Marion, comedienne and dancer, has admirers. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are showing "The Blind Man and His Child" and "Grandpapa and the Butterfly," both capital subjects.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Howes, jun.—The usual Lenten visit of Poole's Myriorama is being fulfilled this week. The variety turns announced are all good, and an additional attraction is the splendid animated pictures which are exhibited.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—The Plucky Nipper is here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Bonwin Carlton is effective; Mr. William Heilbronn plays a heavy part with deliberateness and force; Mr. Edward Stream as the hero of the piece is manly and vigorous; Mr. Edward Surrey gives a clever representation of a ne'er-do-well, and Miss Ethel Whiteley submits a quiet and unassuming study of Iris Fenwick.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards here are occupied by H. J. Byron's comedy, Our Boys, under the direction of Mr. M. Russell Rosse. Mr. Thomas Thorne gives an admirable impersonation of Middlewick and Mr. Norman Clark makes an excellent Sir Geoffrey Clampneys, whose son, Talbot, finds a clever exponent in Mr. R. Calvert Hawes; Mr. J. A. Bentham as Charles Middlewick leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Ethel Halle as Violet Melrose unites the natural gifts of a pleasing personality with gracefulness of manner; Miss Lily Cavenagh makes a charming Mary Melrose; Miss Rachel de Travis adds considerable humour to the piece in her interpretation of Clarissa Champneys, and Miss Edith Hesketh is a conspicuous success as Belinda.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company opened here on Monday with the comedy drama, At Cripple Creek, which met with a capital reception. Mr. Hilliard Vox was a manly representative of Joe Mayfield, and the villainous character of Martin Mason was realistically portrayed by Mr. Walter Thornton. A remarkably clever child actress—Baby Betty—impersonated Little Tatto, her songs and dances being enthusiastically received. Miss Ella Dixon was a charming representative of the part of Belle Gordon, and Miss Daisy Carlton was simply delightful as Maggie Mason. Mr. C. Douglas Carlile was the bully Manuel Alverez to the life, and a word of praise is due to Mr. Chas. D. Pitt for his capital impersonation of Wahketah. A finished character-sketch of Dynamite Ann was submitted by Miss Vera Fordyce, and other rôles were sustained by Messrs. Albert Rogers, Will Hook, Chas. Watson, Tom Sharp, A. Cooper, and A. Kennett.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edwin Leslie.—The Gotham Comedy Quartette head the bill here, and their success on Monday was undoubted. The Athos Troupe create quite a sensation with their acrobatic feats, and the Three Laurels appear to much advantage in their acrobatic speciality, Fun on a Ping-Pong Table. The D'Osta Trio command success with their marvellous ring act, and Mr. Harry Bedford is a humorous comedian with capital songs. Also appearing are Leighton and Mona, in their musical comedy act; Mr. Will Driscoll, comedian and dancer; Mr. Sam Lee, comedian and mimic; and the attractive Palace Pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The leading feature this week is Mr. Fred Karno's company in Moses and Son. Mr. Fred Kitchen as Perkins is the life and soul of the piece, and various rôles are charmingly interpreted by Miss Leah Morris, Miss Janet Reeve, Miss Kate Forster, and Miss Rose Abrahams, and Messrs. Herbert Landeck and Anthony Gordon are also capital in their parts. Mr. Russell Wallett (fresh from local pantomime triumphs) has made a big hit with his female impersonations; the Royal Six, dainty vocalists, also appear; and a welcome return visit is being paid by that smart ventriloquist, Mr. W. H. Clemart. Hector, wire walker, is also included in the attractive programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Farcical Tabloid company heads the bill, and is appearing with much success in the rollicking sketch, Kiss Your Father; or, the Irish Doctor. A great hit has been made by that clever character-actor, Mr. Barney Stuart, and the new pictures exhibited by the Alhambra Bioscope are a decided acquisition to the programme. Mephisto executes some wonderful contortionist feats, and Miss Grace Taylor, comedienne, sings "My Irish Molly" in good style. Also appearing are Mr. Harry Cotton, comedian; Miss Molly Doon, a charming comedienne; the Calcotts, clever musical artists and fine dancers; and Vincent, a clever acrobatic table expert.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. Charles Carle is presenting A Noble Brother here this week with a good sprinkling of burlesque dialogue. The famous character-actor in his impersonation of Jerry, the tramp, is full of fun and pathos. Miss Doris Brookes portrays Nana in a charming manner, and Miss Alice Ballard is a reasonable Mrs. Leigh; a trio of performers, Mr. Max Madden (Colonel Leigh), Mr. Arthur Gilroy (Henry Travers), and Mr. J. A. Wilson (Jack Elsworth) lend valuable aid.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Mr. Thomas Raceward's play, Sunday, received an enthusiastic welcome on Monday night from a crowded house, who followed with keen interest the many strong points incidental to the development of the plot. The title-rôle is impersonated with great skill by Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay, who plays a somewhat difficult and arduous part with a finish denoting a long familarity with the task. Colonel Brinthorpe has a clever and forcible exponent in Mr. Leonard Pagden, and Mr. Cecil Duncan does all that is possible with the very uphill character of Arthur Brinthorpe. The "boys" are capitally represented by Messrs. William Lockhart, Sydney Rennef, T. Norman Walter, and Arthur Vezin, who deservedly participate largely in the honours of the performance, and Mr. Ernest A. Douglas gives good support as Tom Oxley. Miss Rosalind Ross is in every respect an excellent Mrs. Naresby; Miss Juliet Hardinge is worthy of commendation for her effective portrayal of a Nun, and Mr. Ernest Harrison is efficient as Abbot.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. J. L. Shine and his very capable combination in the excellent sketch Hogmanay form an attractive feature. Mr. W. J. Churchill, comedian, is appearing with great success, and Mr. Henry Abdy's canine hippodrome is a capital specimen of animal training; the Arundels, speciality artists and boxers, give a good turn, and are well received, and a strong and comprehensive company also includes Miss Bessie Featherstone, an accomplished serio, Will Van Allen (the tramp musician), Mlle. Marvelle's troupe of performing cockatoos and macaws, Mr. Mack Ollive and Miss Daisy Baldry (in a taking siffleuse act), Miss Flo Warner (vocalist), and Mr. Bob Hutt (comedian).

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Aladdin consummates its gloriously successful three months' run to-night (Saturday), and that the pantomime has not outstayed its welcome may be mentioned from the fact that full houses have been conspicuous to the end. Last night Mr. Harry Tate received such a benefit that the popular motorist, golfer, and angler-in-farce had not the accommodation wherewith to place a quarter of his admirers, promising only from the tickets, which, on the day of issue, were at a premium already. Mr. Philip Rodway received the compliments of a full house at his benefit on Monday, as well as presents and other expressions of goodwill from his directors, his friends, artists, and the public.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Twixt Axe and Crown has been received with the utmost possible favour for the many dramatic delights it so truly affords. In the rôle of the Princess Elizabeth, Mrs. Russ Whytal has the crowded audiences at her beck, being graceful and appropriate in gesture, silvern of speech, and of a queenly presence. Miss Elsie Chester as Mary Tudor has moulded her efforts into an impressive and charming embodiment; Mr. F. Lumsden Hare leaves a most excellent impression as the Earl of Devonshire; Mr. Charles Combe portrays the Bishop in faultless style; Mr. J. J. Bartlett depicts the cunning and duplicity of Simon Renard with much art, and Miss Mabel Knowles, Mr. Alfred Fisher, and the rest of the cast represent their respective characters to the full

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The Great Awakening intervenes for one week, after which Romeo and Juliet, which has been playing here for three successive and successful weeks, will, to meet a popular demand, be restored to the bill. Meanwhile The Great Awakening has shown Miss Maud Hildyard to the fullest advantage as the reckless and unscrupulous Lola, and other powerful studies have been forthcoming from Mr. Charles Vivian as James Selby, Mr. Bernard Copping as Sir Henry and also Jack Merton, Mr. William Vaughan as Guy Rogan, Mr. Ernest G. Batley as Captain Harry Lambert, and Miss Nina Blake Adams as Molly Merton. The comic interludes have been well taken by Mr. Willie Scott and Miss Isa Bellington, and the piece is well staged.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—Blue Beard retires to-night (Saturday) after a popular run of three months. Every seat that it was available to book for this concluding performance has been taken long ago, and the proceedings promise to be of a particularly lively, gratifying, and enthusiastic nature. Last night, Miss Minnie Jeffs, the popular hero, was afforded the compliment of a benefit.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—The Female Swindler holds the stage here, played by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company, and patronised by the usual full houses that attend this successful drama on tour. Miss Grace E. Leslie continues to shine most radiantly in her graphic drawing of the titular rôle, Lu Valroy; Mr. Henry C. Cooper suggests the tenacity of Coulson, the detective, with admirable effect; Mr. Hugh Mewburn portrays the evil character of Geoffrey Warden in a most realistic fashion; Mr. Bernard Dunstan acts with much success as the receiver, Mikestein; Mr. Paul Beckett as the lover, Harold Travers, acquits himself well; and Miss Florrie Kelsey wins much favour for her graceful manner as May Andrews. Mr. Luke Forster scores in various guises, and Mr. W. Shaw as Dixon and Miss Amy Maitland as Mary Ann Mee are successful.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Bank of England pays a welcome visit here with Mr. Geoffrey de Mowbray's company. Mr. Chas. Lester gives a capital portrayal of the criminal investigator, Sherlock Holmes; Mr. Walter Bentley sustains the criminal rôle, Stephen Hartley, in a masterly manner; Mr. Harry T. Wood as Eric Dane is acclaimed for his manly acting; Miss May Richardson acts with rare feeling as Margaret Dare, and Miss Ada Collins is favourably received as Sylvia Barraclough; Miss Phyllis Orme keeps the house in a ferment of mirth and admiration as the American widow; Mr. Chas. Goff scores most decisively as Sprouts, and Miss V. Wood and Mr. Henry Compton give good support.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Proof is submitted here with perfect success by Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company. The play is well-staged and dressed, and the acting is all that it could be desired. Mr. Gerald Kennedy as the sorely-tried Pierre acts with fine emotion and wins keen sympathy; Mr. William Dexter receives the compliment of loud hisses for his life-like presentment of the arch villain, Lazare; Miss Lucy Prittie-Tydd, first as the victim Madeline, and later as Adrienne, the daughter, acts charmingly; and Mr. G. Garnet-Vayne as Victor, Mr. Terence Nerry as the Duke, Mr. Wilford Bailey as Chamboran, and Miss May Grimshaw as Valentine act in an acceptable manner.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The most popular turn of the bill is filled by an old favourite, Tom Costello, while the sketch Moving In, as presented by Herbert Darnley's company, is highly amusing. Gracie Graham is a fascinating comedienne, as is also Amy Young. Other popular turns are G. W. Foster, the Finneys, Hays and Suits, Rohda Bros. and Athas and Collins in a comedy-scena entitled For Four Bob. The bioscope depicts the life of a New York policeman.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Lelia Roze, who comes direct from the Prince's pantomime, is presenting her musical scena A Dressing-Room Dream. The Northern Troupe of International Dancers are smart; the Haytors well sustain their popularity; the Ashers, with The Earl and the Girl; Harry Grey, comedian; Cassie Walmer, sand dancer; Austin and Cowan, vocalists; Chas. Austin and George Formby, comedians, add to the mirth of the evening.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Sketches are in high favour this week. Tom Craven and Stephen Adeson's company is seen in The Lady in Red; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas have a smart sketch in My Birthday; Miss Hunt possesses a rich soprano voice. Kitty Glover and company are seen in Mistaken Identity, and Warden and Reed in an up-to-date duologue, Married or Photographed. May Moore Duprez, the Jolly Dutch Girl, is more rollicking than ever; the Tally-Ho Trio sing with effect. Amie Laurie, a clever comedienne; Anthony, in his smart illusions; the Three Seabournes, acrobats; Leslie Race, and the Barroscope complete the programme.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—In the strong bill here the principal item is Spessardy's performing bears and ponies. The Eight of Hearts, a troupe of dancers from the Prince's pantomime, meet with success; some clever dances are given by Viviana; Conway and Leland are amusing one-legged comedians; Fred Lincoln is full of humour; and Helene and Emilon are expert gymnasts.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Huntley.—Patrons of this place of amusement are this week enjoying the first visit of Mr. Esmond Bramley's Shakespearean company. The week's engagement opened on Monday with Richard the Third. The impersonation of the title-rôle was undertaken by Mr. Cyril Este, whose rendering was universally admitted to be excellent. Mr. Baliol Holloway was seen to advantage as Henry, Earl of Richmond, and George, Duke of Clarence; the Duke of Buckingham was cleverly portrayed by Mr. F. Owen Chambers, and an equally praiseworthy rendering was that of Sir Richard Catesby by Mr. A. L. Evans. As Lord Stanley Mr. C. Doyle proved himself a worthy exponent; Lady Anne, a most difficult rôle, was capably handled by Miss Millie Ford, and great praise is due to Miss Maude Garth for her delineation of Queen Elizabeth. Prince Edward and Prince Richard were in the capable hands of Miss May Beatrice and Miss Nightingale. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was played to a large audience, and on the remaining nights Twelfth Night, David Garrick, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and Romeo and Juliet were presented.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in The Worst Woman in London is drawing good audiences to this place of amusement. The company all round is a good one, including as it does Miss Florence Dalton as Frances Vere, "the worst woman in London." Miss Dalton is an actress with excellent dramatic gifts, and her forceful portrayal of the character has nightly gained her much applause. Mr. Wallace Campbell acts with dignity the part of the much-wronged hero, Jack Felton, and he is ably supported by Miss Effie Bartlett, whose representation of Ruth Milford possesses the sweetness that is necessary to the part. Vincent Lyle, the villainous accomplice of Francis Vere, is in the capable hands of Mr. Paul B. Sewers, and Mr. Leonard Booker plays the part of the ruined gambler, Philip Armstrong, with great success. Mr. H. H. Barrington as James Milford and Mr. H. W. Moule as Hugh Drayton are both good in their respective parts, and the lighter side of the drama is well sustained by Mr. Percy Dawsone as Bob Goldfinch and Miss Florence Lovell as Matilda Parker. The minor parts are also well filled, and the staging of the piece is excellent.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Drama has for this week given place to variety at Mr. Page's popular theatre, and an excellent company is appearing each evening, the two houses-a-night system, having been adopted. The star turn is given by Miss Daisy de Roy, who is an old favourite with Blackburn audiences. Her songs are as fresh and entertaining as ever, and she has been warmly received by her numerous admirers. J. W. Hall, a comedian who is also known in this town, scores a big success, and amongst other turns is an excellent acrobatic performance by the Cumberland Troupe.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The entertainment at the Palace this week is of the high standard which usually characterises the performance at this place of amusement. It is impossible to individualise, so even in merit are the respective artists. Donaldson Bros. and Ardel are here again with their amusing sketch, A Zoological Garden, and their fifteen minutes' turn proves to be as funny as ever. Narow Bros. are comic cyclists, who keep the audience divided between laughter at their eccentricities and admiration of the difficult feats they perform. George M. Schilling, an American athlete who has walked round the world, tells the story of his experiences in an entertaining manner. Tiller's Eight Mascots—who are deputising for Ben Albert, comedian, who is unable to appear through illness—sing and dance very prettily. The Bros. Ashley appear in their boxing act, Next, Please; Hick's Clerks entertain the audience with song and dance; Johnny Walker is an amusing comedian; and Violet Stockelle is a dainty comedienne. The picture entitled "The Train Wreckers," shown by Raymond's Biograph, is especially good.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Blackpool Amateur Operatic Society is in possession here this week with The Pirates of Penzance. The utmost credit is due to Mr. Shelford Walsh, under whose supervision the opera is produced.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Smith is the attraction here this week. The title-rôle is exceedingly well handled by Mr. Stephen T. Ewart. Mr. Russell Norrie submits a clever portrayal of the Earl of Oxted; Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway ably assumes the part of the Duke of Angleland; Mr. Charles Pilling Baird is suited as the Hon. Dudley Dysart; and Mr. H. Carter Blight makes a good Jack Berkeley. The fun is supplied by Mr. Fred Darrell as Herr Diedrich Anheuser. Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as the Duchess of Angleland, Miss Rosamond Rokeby as Lady Mary, and Miss Fyfe Alexandra as Ruth Anheuser likewise win favour.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Miss Florence St. John is the principal star here this week, and in My Milliner's Bill brings down the house nightly. No less successful is Jock Whiteford, the new Scotch comedian. His impersonation of an enthusiast at a football match is surely one of the funniest turns on the music hall stage. Bert Dansie, Barley and Barley, Revington and Gordyn, Beatrice Willey, Fancourt and Rubie, and Millie Howell are also here.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. George E. Good.—At the World's Mercy, a musical drama, presented by Mr. Carr Loates and a good all-round company, has met with a favourable reception here. Mr. Loates, the author of the piece, undertakes the chief rôle of Captain Frank Manley with success. Specialities and songs are introduced which tend to brighten up the drama.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL (LIMITED).—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil are this week presenting their drama, entitled Her Luck in London. A capable company is engaged for the production, Miss Mary Neil sustaining with much ability the character of Nellie Harborne.

GRAND THEATRE (LIMITED).—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The company engaged here is a strong one, and includes Miss Dolly Elsworthy's company in The Orange Girl, Miss Elsworthy portraying the character of Nell Gynne, with Mr. Frank Liston as Charles II. Other turns are Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian; the McKays, comedians, &c.; Bird and Arnold, in illustrated songs; Jenny Reeve, comedienne; T. E. Johnstone, actor-vocalist and comedian; Ruby and Laws, in a quick-change musical comedy sketch, Cora's Visitors; the Morton Trio, vocalists and comedians; Mark Leslie, coon impersonator; Zaro and Arno, comedy bar performers; Edward Ind, vocalist; Harris and Worth, talking and singing comedians, and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Wilson.—Miss Hettie Jeffries and company are here this week with The Curate. The part of Gilbert Westwood is in the capable hands of Mr. Whitmore Ledger; Mr. Arthur Mervyn gives a manly and refined rendering of the Rev. John Audley; Miss Hettie Jeffries gives a clever impersonation of Dick the Trumpeter; the character of Gregory Verner is ably sustained by Mr. Percy Conningsby; Miss Rosa Mervyn is a pleasing Mabel Verner; and Miss W. Stewart gives a capital performance as Katinka Vodsky. The humorous element is capably handled by Mr. Clifford Spencer as Simon Peter Muggs and Miss Agnese D'Aragon as Mrs. Muggs. The Bioscope between the acts is highly appreciated by the audience.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Old Heidelberg, with its fascinating atmosphere of German student life, forms the attraction this week, and, as presented by Mr. Mouillot's company, delighted a large audience on Monday. The part of Karl Heinrich is played by Mr. Robert Minster, who has a fine stage presence, and realised the character admirably; Miss Irene Lavington was very charming in the rôle of Kathie; of Mr. J. Nelson Ramsey's performance as Dr. Juttner it is impossible to speak in terms other than of praise, and Mr. Lionel Gadsden as Lutz contributed a clever character-study; mention should be made also of Mr. Willis Searle as Kellermann, Mr. Eric Phillips as the Staatsminster, and Mr. Wallace G. Court as the Saxonia student.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in the comic opera, The Little Michus, provides a special attraction here this week. The production has been eagerly anticipated, and a large audience on Monday night was completely captivated by the dramatic charm, the irresistible humour, and the magnificent staging of the opera. Full justice is done to André Messager's pretty music, and the acting all round is excellent. Much laughter greets the ludicrous situations contained in the plot, and Mr. Eric Thorne as the limping, bombastic General des Ifs, simply keeps the audience in an ecstasy of laughter. Mr. Leonard Mackay glides easily through his part of the fickle Aristide Vert; Mr. Arthur Royd is a picturesque and sufficiently dignified Gaston Rigaud; Mr. Jack Cannot's Bangolet is a very diverting effort; as Pierre Michu Mr. Eardley Turner is good, and Mr. Willie Warde, jun., as the funny Market Man makes the most of his opportunities; as the motherly Mme. Michu, Miss Elsie Cameron is excellently placed; there is a delightful buoyancy in the acting of Miss Iris Hoey as Blanche Marie, and Miss Mabel Green as Marie Blanche, the two graceful and charming sisters; and the exquisite dancing of Miss Ivy Louise in the part of Mlle. St. Cyr is a feature of the delightful opera, which is ably conducted by Mr. Harold Vicars.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The record run of Dick Whittington is announced to end with the present week, and benefits are the order nightly, extra turns being provided on each occasion by the smart and resourceful members of the company.

THE EMPIRE (Moss' Empires, Limited).—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—A programme full of merit is presented here this week. The Uessems furnish an acrobatic turn of a striking order, in which head-balancing is a leading feature of their equilibristic work; barefoot sand dancing is another novelty gracefully accomplished by that charming exponent of the art, "My Fancy"; the well-known comedian, Palles and Cussick, reappear with their customary success; a novel performance is submitted by Tina Clementa's wonderfully trained dogs and ponies; the Goltz Trio, on globes, do some clever juggling; The Cuckoo is an amusing sketch in which Charles Kitts and Rhoda Windrum appear successfully. There is much skill, energy, and daring displayed by the Riogoku Family of Japs in their wonderful risley performance; illustrated songs, "In Dreamland," and "The Homeland of my Heart," are pretty features submitted by Gracie Moore; in her musical sketch, The Slavey's At Home; Elsie Roby is clever and entertaining, and some excellent films are shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—Adeline Yohle, soprano, renders favourite English ballads with grace and charm, and the King's College Boys with individual vocalism and rousing chorus contribute successfully to an excellent evening's entertainment. On the trapeze, and in a performance as a contortionist, Alethea is charmingly easy and graceful. A very remarkable acrobatic and pedestal performance "à la Risley" is submitted by the smart and clever Dayton Family; Gray and Welford are capital comedians and funny in a smart boxing act; Rumbo Austin creates a lot of boisterous fun with his amateur acrobats; a fine turn is submitted by those clever acrobats and vaulters, the Bros. Huxter, and the films shown by Raymond's Bio-tableaux are very interesting.

BRIDLINGTON.—NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Henry Hague.—In connection with his ninth annual exhibition, the enterprising and popular manager of this favourite resort has secured some exceptionally good talent. Mr. Charles Allan's fine orchestra renders twice daily a well-selected programme of music which delights large audiences. The Olympian Quartette —Messrs. Cornish, Sampson, Slocum, and Slocum—have brought part singing to great perfection; Salida and Vone, American burlesque artists, are clever, their "rag time" dances being always encored; Billy Richardson is a smart stump orator; La Tosca gives a fine show of living studies of celebrated pictures.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. William Greet's company opened here on Monday with The Sign of the Cross. Mr. William P. Grant gave a highly successful impresonation of Marcus Superbus, and Miss Marie Leonhard made an earnest and charming Mercia. Mr. J. Boyd Pearson submitted an excellent portrayal of Nero; Mr. Frank Wood was very humorous as the bibulous Glabrio; Miss Alma Bolton as Berenice, and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia, merit warm praise; Miss Ivy Millais was sympathetic as Stephanus; Mr. Charles Aldred acted with convincing force as Tigellinus; Miss Nellie Bonsor presented a good enactment of the Empress; Mr. Harry Jones was effective as Philodemus; and the remaining characters were ably sustained. At Thursday's special London matinee Mr. Lewis Waller and his Imperial theatre company gave a performance of Brigadier Gerard.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. John Lawson is here this week with a triple bill, supplemented by variety turns. In The Monkey's Paw Mr. John Lawson is realistic as Mr. White, whose wife is ably represented by Miss Cissie Lawson, and Mr. E. S. Vincent is effective as the Old Soldier. In The King's Messenger Mr. John Lawson submits a very fine portrayal of Lord Draconsmere, and Mr. Bailey Cohen achieves distinct success as the villainous Milano. Miss Ethel Gordon Paull's acting as the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozier merits unstinted praise, and Miss Cissie Lawson is graceful as Lady Muriel. The Hebrew episode Humanity is presented with its accustomed success. Mr. John Lawson as Jarot Silvani and Mr. E. S. Vincent as John Cuthbert carrying off the chief honours. The variety turns are introduced by the Brothers Tarrant, amusing patterers; Miss Ethel Gordon Paull, an artistic soprano vocalist; the Sisters Velasco, Spanish dancers; and Miss Louis Belrose, vocalist. The programmes for the week also included The Bride for a Living, and Mr. Todd of London.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—An excellent company is here this week. Hulo Hodgson and Harry Lowther and company are very entertaining in the farcical comedy Barmaids; Spry and Austin (George and Florrie) are a capital pair of vaudeville artists; Binns and Binns, as vagabonds in comedy and music, are highly successful; Will Crackles sings and dances himself into great favour; Margaret Ashton, the American girl, is a charming vocalist; Rosie Bartlett is a refined singer; Culcitt makes a great hit in his travesty on Chang-Ling-Soo; Harley and Cole acquit themselves admirably in the song scena Let Bygones be Bygones; Florence Schubeth, burlesque artist, is well received; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. G. H. Elliott wins hearty applause for his coon songs and dancing; Vandinoff is a clever lightning picture painter in oil-colours; the Sisters Marion are pleasing juvenile duettists; the Sisters May are dainty vocalists and dancers; Jennie Johns is a vivacious soubrette; Rastus and Banks, coloured coons, contribute a very clever turn; Sam Morrison is a pleasing vocalist; Spencer and Marks, "the stage-struck waifs," are entertaining; Annie Brown sings in good style; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company is here this week with A Message from Mars. Mr. William H. Brougham gives a fine and very impressive impersonation of the Messenger; Mr. Cyril Austen Lee sustains the character of the selfish Horace Parker with complete success; Miss May Saker makes a graceful and charming Minnie Templar; Mrs. Edward Saker is admirably suited as Miss Parker; Mr. Bruce Lindley submits a capital study as the Tramp; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained, the play is well staged, and the mechanical effects are realistic.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. J. Sallmayer.—Beauté, who had lost 23¾lb. in twenty-four days, concluded his long fast here on Monday afternoon, when a great crowd assembled to see him eat his first meal after his prolonged trial. Beauté remained on view in his chamber until yesterday (Friday). The other attractions here include afternoon and evening displays of the Aquariograph animated pictures.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—There was a packed house here on Friday evening, the 10th inst., when Mr. Wilkie Bard had his well-deserved benefit. The pantomime went capitally, Mr. Wilkie Bard was, if possible, even more comical than ever in the title-rôle. Mother Goose, all the company did their level best to make the performance a record one, Little Tich came down from London and much amused with his comicalities, Miss Lil Hawthorne was greatly applauded for her song "Good-bye, little girl," Mr. Horace Mills amused with "I would, I would," and Happy Fanny Fields did a new turn, and seemed to beat her well-known record for vivacity. Most of the artists did new or extra turns, and the whole evening was very enjoyable. Mr. Wilkie Bard's reception was something to be remembered. Monday started the last week of the pantomime, which many consider to be the best ever produced at this theatre. Certainly the attendance throughout has been remarkable, and the artists, including Mr. Wilkie Bard, Happy Fanny Fields, Miss Lily Morris, Miss Nina Wood, Mr. Edward Lewis, Miss Kathryn Comber, Messrs. Rich and Rich, Miss Nellie Stratton, Miss Flora Gordon, Mr. Marriott Edgar, Mr. John Donald, Mr. Fred Conquest, Mr. Charles Wakeman, and the Bros. Griffiths have all worked very hard and successfully with their respective parts. The mounting is exceptionally fine, the costumes are both rich and tasteful, and the superb ballets, the speciality dances of the Tiller Superba Troupe, and the careful and experienced stage-management of Mr. Henry Turner have resulted in an artistic and financial success reflecting credit on all concerned. Miss Fanny Fields' well-deserved benefit is fixed for Friday the 16th inst.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The attraction this week is A Soldier's Revenge, the drama being liberally staged, and well played by Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's No. 1 company. Mr. Montague Beaudyn presents a fine powerful exposition of Ironhand; Miss Irene Munroe plays very effectively as Ruby Avondale; Mr. Robertson Foulis acts well and consistently as Sir Marsden Mardyke; and other important parts are satisfactorily taken by Miss Gloria Hill Mr. Harry Lloyd, Mr. Howard Hardy, Mr. Tom Robertson, and Mr. Edward Carter. The comic element is in the capable hands of Miss Annie Glunn, Miss Jane Massey, Mr. T. R. White, and Mr. Harry Momber.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The leading attraction here is Mr. John Tiller's excellent pantomime sketch Red Riding Hood, which is staged very effectively in eight scenes. The company is a highly-competent one, and pleasing songs, choruses, and expert dances are introduced ad lib. The variety company includes the Sivronis, capable burlesque artists; La Louberts, in a refined comedy act Uninvited; Tate and Tate, amusing eccentrics; Helen Martin, a pleasing vocalist; and Harry Vardon, a capital ventriloquist. The performance concludes with a new series of animated pictures projected by the Barrascope.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—A capital dramatic sketch entitled The Maniac, which is well staged, and carefully played by Mr. Sidney Bacon's company, is here. The Bara Troupe are skilled performers on a variety of instruments; Albert Le Fre presents successfully a novel mélange "That's what you see on the Halls"; Maggie Bowman and Tom Morton have a good comedy act introducing singing and clever dances; Fred Carr and Ada Rose present a laughable duo A Domestic Episode; the Revell Troupe appear in a successful absurdity Mischief, with a mechanical trap scene; Arabella Allen's ability in sketches from Dickens is greatly appreciated; and Jack Charman, vocalist, obtains considerable appreciation. The performance concludes with a display of Vernon's animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred. Watson.—The Hindoo's Revenge was produced here on Monday last to a good house by Messrs. Arthur Whittaker and Gifford Stacey's company. Particulars will be found in another column.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A hearty reception is accorded here to Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee. Mr. Frank Crimp is an excellent representative of Harry Vereker; Mr. Bertrand Gates makes much of the part of Boobhamba; Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is a handsome Bobby Warren; and Mr. Coop Edmunds is very good as Sir Peter Loftus. Mr. Lauri de Frece as Chambuddy Ram keeps the audience roaring with laughter, and Miss Gladys Guy is an able assistant in the fun as Peggy Sabine. Miss Marjorie Clarke as Lady Patricia received an encore for her charming singing, and Miss Winnie O'Connor makes a very pleasing Nanoya. Miss Essie Perrin as Angy is worthy of praise for her dancing. The beautiful scenery, King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—For the first time in Cardiff was presented on Monday night the new romantic play, The Midnight Wedding, admirably acted by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company. The important parts of Princess Astrea and Paul Valmar were skilfully interpreted by Miss Annie Saker and Mr. Alfred Paumier.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Mr. T. E. Dunville heads the list here, and is just as amusing and quaint as ever. The Sarnthaler Troupe of Tyrolean vocalists and dancers present their picturesque turn with much success; Abel and Welsh, the remarkable acrobats, gain applause for their clever performance; Arthur Gill, the original yokel, provides endless fun; and Mr. Ian Colquhoun sings a couple of gems from grand opera and national melody; Clown Barker and Miss Rozsika with their dogs, Marie Weston (singer, dancer, and banjoist), Dainez and his comedy circus, the Hoydas (in comedy acrobatics), and the American Bioscope, with its ever-acceptable and instructive pictures, complete the programme.

Carlisle.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Trustees of Mr. R. S. M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. George Dance's company is here this week in The Cingalee, which evoked great enthusiasm on the opening night. Mr. Kenneth Wynne has a capital voice which he uses most effectively in the numbers allotted to the Hon. Harry Vereker. Mr. Helier Le Maistre makes an imposing figure of Boobhamba, and his vocal efforts met with unqualified approval. A capital sketch of the irascible Sir Peter Loftus is contributed by Mr. G. J. Williams, who gets a lot of fun out of the part. The chief laughter provoker, however, is Mr. Johnny Osborne, who, in the part of Ram, finds ample opportunity to display his versatility as an eccentric comedian, his every appearance creating roars of laughter. Mr. Roy Sydney is quite a success as Bobby Warren. Miss Cissie Sephton gives a bright and attractive interpretation of Peggy Sabine; her duets with Ram are cleverly worked, and quite deserved the success they scored. Miss Emilie Mayhew as Lady Patricia acts in excellent style, and sings agreeably. The title-rôle is taken by Miss Nellie Wigley, a graceful and talented young actress, whose rendering of "My Cinnamon Tree" is one of the hits of the night. Miss Violet Holmes dances a pas seul cleverly. The chorus is strong and effective, and, as usual with Mr. Dance's companies, the dressing and staging are not the least admired portion of a thoroughly enjoyable performance.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Interest in the New Palace is quite maintained, and the capital programme submitted by the enterprising Signor Pepi this week is proving not a whit less attractive and successful than that of the opening nights. The New York Nippers, who top the bill with their popular sketch Bedtime, are a smart troupe of lads whose combination clog-dance met with hearty applause. Miss Mabel Hind contributed a bright Japanese turn; H. L. Bell and Lily Pearl's sketch A Bit of String is an amusing trifle, remarkably well put on; Bob Hamilton, a versatile comedian, delights the audience with his concertina solos; Florence Esdaile, a charming and clever vocalist, possesses a voice of wonderful compass, which she uses with fine effect in "The Soldiers' Chorus"; Lord, Murray, and Lord contribute a gymnastic turn of a novel and interesting character, their ball-punching bringing down the house; the Sisters Caselli are expert and agile dancers; and Sandford and Lyons provide the most popular turn of the night, their make-up and clever dancing and cross-talk being alike conspicuous for originality and crispness. Vernon's Bioscope, with new films, complete an enjoyable entertainment.

Algie's Hippodrome. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr C. Algie.—Abdullah's troupe of twelve Arabs, direct from the Alhambra, Paris, are creating quite a sensation here this week with their wonderful tumbling and pyramid balancing act; Rowland Hill, the curious comedian, soon gets on good terms with the audience, his funny songs and sayings keeping them convulsed with laughter; a novel and original musical act is supplied by Zanfretto and Napio, the musical knife-grinders; Miss Daisy Morrell scores a distinct success in a couple of ballads; and other excellent turns include Miss Fanny Humber, instrumentalist and dancer, Clive Watts, Miss Lil O'Gorman, Jack Rae, a clever tramp gymnast, Cinizelli, acrobatic comedian, and Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

Cheltenham.—Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Edward Marris's company in The Dandy Doctor is paying a return visit this week. Mr. Edmond Russell as the frisky millionaire and pseudo doctor Melchisadeck Brown, Mr. James Danvers as Colonel Pendrel, and Miss Norah Melton, a very clever comedienne, as Jane are chiefly responsible for the unflagging fun of the production. The real doctor is agreeably represented by Mr. Stanley S. Gordon; Miss May Yates as the Colonel's pretty daughter is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; Miss Rosie Chandler as Marie Murton does well, giving in the second act a remarkably smart and graceful acrobatic dance; Mr. Ben Rowe and Miss Holden submit an example of the genuine cake-walk.

Chesterfield. — Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is meeting with success here in the sensational drama, Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. Albert Ward, as George Maddison, makes a manly hero; Mr. Lionel d'Aragon is a success in the villainous character of Charles Devereux; Mr. Eric Campbell plays with force the part of Sir Geo. Lancaster; Miss Isla G. Vane gives a sympathetic rendering of the heroine Lucie; Miss Eugenie Magnus as Lady Lucretia Lancaster deserves great praise; Miss Barbara Gott as the Mother Superior gives a capable performance; the comic element is in the hands of Mr. Fred de Vere as Timothy Tuttutt and Miss Sybil Hammersley as Pattie Love-Joy.

Chorley (Lancs.).—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Clay.—Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company are here with A Royal Revenge, a capital musical romantic play, exceedingly well staged. Mr. J. H. Clyndes, in the dual characters of Estevan Alverez and Pedro de Castro, gives exceptionally good renderings; Mr. Herbert M. King capitally sustains the part of the King of Spain; and Mr. Arthur Chisholm artistically renders Manuel Mondega. As Azan Ben Musid and the Count Ulric Uzeda Mr. Fred Rivers is effective; Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon and Miss Celestine Brandon give excellent interpretations of Michael Sancha and Parquita Marcella respectively; Miss Enid Edoni successfully undertakes the part of Inez Alvarez; Miss Aimee Grattan gives a charming conception of Cora Casilda; and Miss Evelyn Derwent capably presents Mother Maria Teresa.

Clydebank.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan.—This week we are having a return visit of Frivolity presented by Mr. John Leopold's company. Mr. Watson Hume, a clever comedian, undertakes the part of Oliver Buckwheat in a manner that calls forth much applause. He is ably assisted in his funniosities by Mr. Barry Lupino as Sammy Vermiglio; Mr. John Leopold, jun., gives a smart impersonation of Daniel Teething; Mr. Wilfred Vaughan is highly entertaining as Jules Vermiglio; Mr. Tom Leopold does good work as Professor Fumble, and so does Mr. Willie Leopold as Tickle. Mr. Wm. Skelly is well suited as Nick; Miss Marie Ault makes a capable Madam Cobweb, and Lucy Buckwheat is smartly acted by Miss Amy Hall.

Colchester.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare Devil Dorothy is this week paying Colchester its fifth visit. On Monday a good house gave it a hearty welcome. In the title-rôle Miss Dorothy Desmonde sang charmingly and was repeatedly encored, and Mr. Cecil W. Parke as George Fielding also contributed to the success of the piece; Mr. Will Brereton as Silas Crimp and Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith were both welcome; Mr. Henry C. Ward and Mr. Alf. Stretton made a villainous couple, well worthy of the attention of the upper house; and Mr. Frank Howard as Featherstone Haugh and Miss Nora Caronne as Ruth were well placed; Miss Mabel Blake and Miss Ada Coral should be specially mentioned for their clever dancing.

The Hippodrome (late Grand Palace of Varieties).—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece.—This handsome and commodious pleasure house has now been acquired by the above gentlemen, and the first performances under their direction took place on Monday evening. A capital programme was gone through, and the local public appear to appreciate the manner in which they are catered for. The foremost turn was the renowned troupe of elephants bearing the name of the late Mr. Lockhart, and now under the direction of Captain Taylor. A comic acrobatic act, entitled Fun in a Café, by the Seven Wulfrunas was much applauded, as was the sand dancing of Frank Cumminger, the latter being an old local favourite; keen interest was manifested in the clever ball manipulating of Elie Raqlus, and an original ventriloquial sketch was given by Frederic Neiman; the Brothers Levett executed some clever vaulting and leaping; the Twin Sisters Melba acquitted themselves very creditably as duettists and dancers; and the humorous pictures on the Bioscope were much applauded.

Consett.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Geoffrey Fulton and company are presenting the modern drama The Poor must Live here this week Mr. Chas. O'Connor is very good as the Earl of Marswood, and as Donald Mr. Harold Macartney is a complete success. The part of Clifton Manville is presented ably by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton, and Sam Sully by Mr. Arthur Trail. Miss Molly Wynne is an effective Dick Sully and Miss Alice Buckland a winsome Moya Darling. Miss Margaret Thorne is an excellent Sal Darling, and as Hooker Holdsnitch Mr. Shaun Glenville is funny. Miss Violet Hammersley as Dorothy Murdock gives entire satisfaction, and as Olga D'Eyncourt Miss Olive Fulton is exceptionally clever.

Cork.—Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The star turn is Captain Gruber's elephant, horse, and pony. They give an interesting perfomance. Arthur Stacey scores with a song, and his dance in top boots; Florence Deighton possesses a good soprano, and uses it with effect. The Brothers Hersler are excellent comedy acrobats; Mdlle. Dora is a skilful player of the oboe; Vasey and Ramsey present an eccentric comedy act, which wins applause; Bertha Stuart, Scotch character vocalist, is a pleasing ballad vocalist; Morritt, magician, gives an exceptionally clever turn.

Coventry.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—The varied turns at this popular house are all well received. The Mackways, the eccentric knockabout comedians, give an amusing comedy act; a hearty welcome is accorded Michael Nolan, the Irish comedian; the Toreadors give an amusing burlesque act, entitled A Spanish Bull; Vernon and Voyce introduce a vocal scena, entitled Jack Sheppard; the Cecilian Quartette give successfully "The Wandering Savoyards"; Miss Lena Verdi scores with some capital impersonations of well-known musical artists; Miss Agnes Heizel is a good comedienne, the Biograph pictures, as usual, concluding.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The drama, entitled The Sins of Her Childhood, is exciting considerable interest at this house, and is being played by a capable company under the direction of Mr. J. A. Campbell. Miss Mary Fulton is seen to advantage as the repentant Mary Haysel; Mr. Gordon Robey performs creditably as Thomas Haysel, whose son Stephen is in the capable hands of Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes; Mr. Chas. Fancourt is responsible for the Rev. Alan Grey; while Mr. Fred Lloyd does justice to the part of Captain John Thornton. Miss Annie Megson is amusing as Eliza Muggins; little Edith supplies a good impersonation of Eric Dugdale, and Hannah Spry is embodied by little Dot Moss, whose specialities are much admired.

Cradley Heath.—Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—This week we have a very welcome visit of Miss Emma Litchfield's No. 1 London company under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland with an original drama, entitled A London Actress, written by Miss Emma Litchfield, who herself takes the part of Hilda Mannering in an easy and debonair manner that wins constant applause. She is ably supported by her manager, Mr. Stuart Cleveland, who as Moses Mendoza gives a clever interpretation of our old friend the Jew money-lending sharp. Mr. John C. Carlyle is entrusted with the part of Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford, and he fully justifies the selection for the character. Miss Maud Steeples plays the part of Phyllis Crawford with grace and feeling, and she is well looked after by Biddy Malone, a part well enacted by Miss Nellie Fern. The fun is in the hands of Mr. John Hitchins and Miss Millie Mayward, who as Pat Maloney and Rosie Blythe are well received. Mr. Arthur F. Dudley supplies a careful study as Lieutenant Kingstone, R.N., and Mr. Geo. H. Doyle gives a dignified rendering of Captain Mannering, R.N. Miss Theo Henries is well placed as Mrs. Skinner, and so is Miss Maud Saxby as Nellie.

Crewe.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—The first visit of Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid is giving great satisfaction here this week. Miss Constance Hamilton plays the part of Lady Violet Anstruther in charming style; Miss Maud Jay is a dainty Josephine Zaccary, Miss Hilda Vining a humorous Caroline Vokins, and the Zelie Rumbert of Miss Nancy Taylor is well sustained; Miss Kitty Smythe is an aristocratic Countess Anstruther, and Miss Beck a capable Thisbe. Mr. Colin Campbell, as Meakin, is both clever and amusing; as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, Mr. Ion Maxwell displays talent, and Mr. W. Garland is an admirable Dr. Faussett; Mr. R. Corray acts with distinction the rôle of Mr. Aubrey Chesterton, and Mr. T. A. Fisher scores a success as Comte Raoul de Cassignat; Mr. Berwick is successful as Zaccary, and the same may be said of Mr. H. Blezard as M. Deauville.

Croydon.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The week's attraction here is Mr. Louis Calvert's well-selected company in Dr. Wake's Patient. Mr. Arthur Willoughby does ample justice to the rôle of the Earl of St. Olbyn; Mr. Herbert plays with warmth and finish as Duff Wynterden; Mr. Alfred Phillips renders sterling services as the Bishop of Selby; Mr. Douglas Vigors acts with good judgment and tact as Dr. Forrester Wake; Mr. Alfred Wellesley submits an excellent character-sketch of Andrew Wake; and useful aid is given by Messrs. H. P. Owen, Cecil Yapp, Maurice Wilson, Henry Marton, and Thomas Pegg as Mr. Murdoch, Mr. Brown, Prescott, Antony, and the waiter. Miss Olive Terry is delightfully fresh and sincere as Lady Gerania Wyn-Charteret, Miss Ina Pelly distinguishes herself as the Countess of St. Olbyn, Miss Beatrice Webb is a charming Harriet Bronson, Miss Amy Fanchette just touches the right note as Mrs. Wake, Miss Lidia Rachel is capital as Mrs. Murdoch, Miss Dorothy Gordon does well as Janifer, and Miss Amy Townsend is a picturesque gipsy. Mr. Leonard Gautier deserves congratulations for his admirably-managed orchestra.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is here with the ever-green Lights o' London. Mr. Arthur Cornell gives a manly rendering of Harold Armytage; Mr. Herbert Morgan acts with ability as Squire Armytage; Mr. Riddell Robinson is powerful in the rôle of Clifford Armytage; Mr. Herbert Hollister is commendable as Seth Preene; Mr. Reginald Holmes scores as Cutts; Mr. George Wallace makes the most of Philosopher Jack, and Mr. W. E. Passmore is capital as Jarvis. Miss Jennie Burgoyne wins sympathy as Bess; Miss Violet Temple is invigorating as Mrs. Jarvis; Miss Gladys Murray deserves praise as Shakespere Jarvis, and Miss Lily O'Dempsey is appropriate as Hetty Preene. Smaller rôles are in capable hands, and the mounting is creditable.

Darwen. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robinson.—Mr. W. H. Kirby and company are appearing here this week in a musical comedy Somebody's Sweetheart. Mr. Kirby, who is a favourite with Darwen audiences, was accorded another hearty reception, and though he has been seen to better advantage, still he keeps the house in roars of laughter by his funny interpretation of the part of Valet. Stephen Leverton, a part rather on the heavy side, is admirably impersonated by Mr. Percy Maitland; Mr. E. H Bertram is good as Stanton Ashleigh, and sings in an able manner; Mr. G. P. Lester scores in the rôle of Lem Lee; as does also Mr. Hoyland Shea as Old Joe. Miss D. Reeve makes a charming Lulu and Miss Cordelia Knight portrays Fora in an able manner. The Three Gibson Girls are a trio of clever speciality dancers.

Derby.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 Company occupies the boards here this week with Florodora. The company is a capable one. As Tweedlepunch Mr. Gus Danby is a host in himself; Miss Gwladys Elvey makes a charming Dolores, her songs being well received. As Frank Abercoed, Mr. Edward Crosland is in every way praiseworthy; Cyrus Gilfain has a capable exponent in Mr. Edward Chester; and the Arthur Donegal of Mr. Harry Perry is a capable assumption. Miss Florence Hersee makes a delightful Angela; Miss Kate Leicester plays well as Lady Holyrood. Some admirable dances are introduced by the Misses Lilian Coe and Freda Fenn. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. J. G. Hahn.

Palace.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—An attractive star turn here this week is Hetty King, male impersonator. Her acceptable songs and smart style gained her an enthusiastic reception on Monday. Frank Bros., grotesque acrobats and equilibrists, are exceptionally clever; Frank Bertram and company appear in a mirth-provoking sketch, entitled The Chaperon; Kloof and Ramsay, musical novelty burlesques, merit special mention; Royal Temples, pleasing operatic vocalists, are cordially received; Kendrick and Laura are praiseworthy speciality singers and dancers; and Harry Walker is an entertaining comedian. The Palace bioscope contributes several interesting films to a capital all-round programme.

Dewsbury.—Theatre Royal.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. Wm. Greet's The Earl and the Girl company is here. As Jim Cheese Mr. Alfred Donohoe carries off chief honours, his performance being one of much merit; Miss Hylda Dugdale as Elphin is a sprightly dancer; Mr. Leslie Gaze as Dick Wargrave succeeds admirably; and Miss Beatrice Anderson also plays well as Mrs. Shimmering Black.

Hippodrome and Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon. — The artists engaged here this week include Tom Stuart, actor-vocalist; the Freans, comedians; Sheilah McLeod, comedienne; De Ora, a fine aerial gymnast; Revill Hall, potpourri songster; the Princellas, sketch artists; D. W. Watson, cornet and horn soloist; and the Weimars, in a musical turn. The Harriscope is still in evidence.

Doncaster.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company presented Napoleon the Great here on Monday. The title-rôle was skilfully sustained by Mr. Hugh Montgomery; Colonel Lavarennas was exceedingly well rendered by Mr. Henry Earlesmere, who was ably assisted by Mr. Phil Harper as Colonel Jules Meuron. Mr. Bartlett Garth was admirable as Paul Laczinska, and much stands to the credit of Mr. Frank M. Thorne as the result of his embodiment of Pierre Pomponnet. Mr. Wilson Brown was popularly acclaimed as Garboro. As Marie Walemska, Miss Leslie Warner was dainty; Miss Maud Russell made a great success of Madamoiselle Levine Marbœuf, and Miss Marie Harcourt evoked lively admiration as Marcelle Chaupin. Miss Florence Thorne gave an intelligent and acceptable rendering of Maro Dumont, and Miss Adelaide Cromer, as Lizette, was well placed.

Dover. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—This week Mr. Arthur Carlton is presenting, for the first time in Dover, Sutton Vane's drama The Span of Life. Mr. Sanderson Moffatt gives a notable performance as Richard Blunt. The heavy lead is skilfully handled by Mr. R. S. Trelawney as Dunstan Leech; Mr. Walter Dale is humorous as Nutty Brown; a powerful piece of acting is contributed by Mr. Edwin T. Kisby; Mr. J. Petersfell gives a fine sketch of the kindly Arab, Azrek, and Mr. Edward Sheen is good as Inspector Ferguson. Miss Phyllis Graham as Cecil Jeff loks well, and acts prettily; and Miss Mary Moffat is a charming little Cecil Blunt. A capital bit of character-acting is contributed by Miss Kitty Russell as Shrove Tuesday. Mrs. H. Russell takes full advantage of her opportunities as Mrs. Jeff, and Miss Phyllis Hamilton is responsible for a most capable rendering of the part of Kate Heathcote. In Act III. a clever three-bar act is introduced by the Almo Troupe of Acrobats, which is enthusiastically encored nightly.

The Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Empire Palace Co.; Manager, Mr. P. G. Wraith; Secretary, Mr. Chas. R. Stanfield.—Mlle. Carlotta de Monson and company is still here, this week playing a bright little comedietta, called Playing the Game. Later on in the evening another sketch is played by Mr. Carlisle and company, entitled A Noble Sacrifice, founded on an incident of the Boer war. Marie Joyce's latest song, "Only wait till to-night," is exceedingly popular; Bob Downs is humorous, and Dan Pedley, eccentric comedian, is a big success; Hettie Leaver is an excellent vocalist and dancer; and an amusing turn is contributed by Ward and Wylie.

Dublin.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—A crowded house on Monday night welcomed the return visit of The Freedom of Suzanne, presented in finished style by Miss Emma Hutchison and Percy Hutchison's company. Miss Beatrice Lindley achieves complete success by her portrayal of Suzanne Trevor, and much amusement is created by Mr. F. G. Thurstan's impersonation of Fitzroy Harding. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley, as Charles Trevor, is particularly good; and Lady Charlotte Trevor is ably represented by Miss Emily Patterson. Mr. William Mallalieu is excellent as Sir Horace Hatton, and Miss Charlotte Meade is effective as Miss Fanny Minching. Mr. R. Hawley West's Lord Datchet, Mr. Townsend Whitling's Captain Harry Cecil, and Mr. Archie Selwyn's Tony Heston are admirably enacted, and Miss Violet Ley's Lady Isabel Bury, Miss Annie Stalman's Mrs. Tustall, and Mrs. Mallalieu's Mrs. Putman also merit praise. Two in a Trap procedes, and is well received.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Monday night inaugurated the second week of the Hippodrome season, when a strong programme was presented to a full house. The principal feature is little Max Darewski, the boy pianist, whose delightful performance was deservedly encored. Another clever turn is provided by the Tokio Troupe of Japanese performers, and the musical extravaganza, Little Dick Whittington, is well received. Miss Clara Walters, trick pianist and danseuse, makes a decided hit, and the nautical sketch, The Little Stowaway, is excellently produced. Miss Alice Hollander is an accomplished contralto vocalist, and Harry Rogerson's original scena meets with success, as do also the Brothers Bright, gymnasts; Billie Tucker, ball puncher; and the animated pictures.

Empire.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Marsh.—The attraction here this week is the Empire Comedy Four, whose humorous vocalism is nightly applauded; Miss Olive Marston, comedienne, scores brilliantly with her latest successes; and O'Gust enhances his reputation as a mimic. The Three Missouris are favourably received, and the Sisters St. Julian are charming duettists and dancers; Brooks, Dale, and Blitz are acceptable comedy artistes; and Mezzetti and Mora are a diverting pair. Seeley and West are as popular as ever, and the Lashmars are capital speciality artistes; Bert Woodward does a good bicycle act, and the Empire pictures are up to the usual standard.

Tivoli.—General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The patrons of this establishment are well catered for this week. Topping the bill we have the Alexandroff Troupe of Russian singers and dancers, who meet with a cordial reception. Will Onda and company in his new novelty Motor Maniac causes much laughter, and Nash and Noel, versatile comedians and dancers, are a good turn. The Westwoods are a smart pair of comedy cyclists, and Lilian Rigby sings and dances in a pleasing manner; the Davenports, magicians and illusionists, score, and good comedians are found in Tom Yorke and George Prince. The Brothers Onda appear with success as comedy acrobats, and Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer, and the Wallys, comedy jugglers, complete the programme.

World's Fair.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—This week's company here includes:—Madam Hypa, thought reader; Percy Anderson, conjurer and ventriloquist; Alec Johnstone, comedian and dancer; Leopold Llama, American musician; Alfred Fudge, vocalist; Marcella, midget queen; and Eragraph, or living pictures.

Samuels' Exhibition Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The following are appearing here.—Tessie Vandean, comedienne; Two Sunbeams, International dancers; Harry Osborne, eccentric comedian; Sisters Grenville, vocalists and dancers; and Hyam Merry, comedian.

Dudley.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's principal company in La Poupée is being well received here this week. The piece is finely staged. A special feature is the excellent singing, especially that of Miss Dot Stephens, who acts the difficult part of Alesia in a charming and clever manner; of Mr. Wm. Everard as Launcelot, and of Mr. Walter Balfour as Father Maxime, another well-rendered character. Nothing better could be desired than the Loremois and Baron Chanterelle of Messrs. Arthur Dennis and Fuller Allen respectively. Miss Edith Hunter, as Madame Hilarius, is much appreciated, and Miss Doris Dickens prettily represents Henri.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy Acting-Manager, Mr. Rhodes Wells.—The principal attraction at this house is that of the Four Charles in a marvellous transformation and head-balancing act. Other enjoyable turns are given by Miss Elsie Earle in her latest successes; Arthur and Ashby in Phantasies of the Phiz; James Shingleton, singing collier; Grace Langley, comedienne and dancer; and Harry Le Roy, comedian and patterer.

Dundee.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—The Duchess of Dantzic is being played here for the first time. The company is a very excellent one, under the management of Mr. Geo. Dance. Miss May Glenn, a talented artist, admirably fills the difficult rôle of the Duchess; Mr. Gilbert Yorke gives a capital character-study of Napoleon; Miss Maggie White is a bewitching Renée de Saint Mezard; Miss Buena Bent as Lisette and the Misses Violet and Maisie Blyth as the sisters of Napoleon acquit themselves with grace and distinction. Mr. L. F. Griffiths assumes the difficult part of Francois Lefebyre, and is entirely successful; Mr. Arthur Paterson is well suited in the character of Papillon, and Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy acts with dignity in the part of Vicomte de Bethune.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Mr. J. H. Milburn is an old-established favourite here, and is again at the top of the bill. The Two Neros give a marvellous exhibition as contortionists; the Two Kays produce a pretty song scena An Eastern Maid; the Arleys, trick cyclists, are clever; and Bert Kemp shines as a lightning cartoonist; E. W. Selman returns with new songs, and the others include the Du Gros Trio, Grapho and Jackson, and the Bransbys. The pictures by Vernon's Bioscope complete an enjoyable evening.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—This week the Elster-Grime Opera Company is the attraction. On Monday the ever-popular Maritana was produced before a house crowded in every part. The Elster-Grime company is an excellent one in every respect. Mr. Payne Clark and Mr. F. S. Gilbert undertook the rôle of Don Cæsar de Bazan at the first and second houses respectively, and both gentlemen are to be congratulated on their artistic singing and capital acting; Mr. Michael Kemble made a fine appearance as Don Jose, his vocal efforts being received with much enthusiasm. Miss E. Lynham as Maritana gave a carefully-studied rendering; Miss Edmee de Dreux displayed a rich contralto voice, and acted well throughout as Lazarielo; Mr. Partridge and Mr. Gilbert King as the King of Spain displayed much ability. The week's bill includes La Fille de Madame Angot, Il Trovatore, Faust, Bohemian Girl, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

Empire Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. P. P. Bell, a local comedian, is a great attraction here this week; Chant and Chant are a lively pair; the Rushforths are in their second week, and again score with illustrated songs; the Moncktons, in a comedy sketch, A Woman's Curiosity, are very successful; and Seel and Lees introduce some smart acrobatic work; King Leo again presents his ventriloquial entertainment, and Alice Campbell, descriptive vocalist and skipping-rope dancer, displays much ability. A fine show of animated pictures completes a good bill.

Dunfermline. — Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Lessee and Manager Mr. W. E. Potts.—This week Mr. Charles Majilton and company are appearing in the spectacular musical comedy, entitled, The Trippers, which is full of laughable situations, and is greeted with hearty applause. Mr. Majilton as the Mystery is a decided success; Mr. Jim Bond is very good as the McChuckle, a Scotsman; Mr. Herbert Ashmore is well placed as Quintin Quibble; Mr. Fred Wilson makes a capable Algie; and Mr. Ben Storey does ample justice to the double part of Slamit and Bill Bloggins. Miss Nora Christie is an acceptable Alice; Miss Louie Stewart is a delightful Daisy; Miss Carrie Foy acquits herself with credit as Maud; Misses Maddie and Amy Majilton give a good account of themselves; and Miss Jenny Hughes is successful as Lavinia.

Eastbourne.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Creatore and his American band were billed to appear here on Wednesday evening. The vocalist was Madame Barili.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is appearing here in Under Two Flags. Much hard and trying work falls to the share of Miss Molly Pearson, who plays with much force and feeling, and is a most interesting Cigarette. Miss Lucy Carr is a satisfactory Lady Beatrice, and the same lady does excellent duty as Lavina, singing and dancing in bright style. Miss Mabel Ormonde does well as Princess Corona, and Miss Joan Stean helps as Countess Olga. Mr. Mark Blow repeats his successful rendering of the part of Louis Victor; Mr. Arthur Elwyn is an incisive and forceful Black Hawk, and Mr. Charles Brooke an equally efficient Lord Royellien. Mr. F. L. Lawrence is a capital Lord Rockingham, and Mr. C. Young Fixott as Rake is responsible for much merriment and some excellent singing and dancing. Mr. Sydney Richards is a happy and pleasing Captain Claude, Mr. Willie Osborne is an effective Ezra Baroni, and Mr. Theodore Hill is a good Barklie. A Sailor's Sweetheart is being staged during the latter part of the week.

The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—A pleasingly varied bill finds a place here this week. Miss Lily Langtry in her own smart inimitable style, whirls the audience into a hurricane of fun and frolic with her new and cleverly-rendered songs. Mr. Charles Vandyke and company stage their sketch Nicodemus in a most elaborate manner, and provide plenty of merriment. Mr. Charles Bignell is a successful comedian, with plenty of zest, and he secures the co-operation of the audience in his choruses; Valvero is a commendable lightning painter, and he has novel effects; Little Salvino is a particularly clever juvenile in his saxophone musical show; Avon and Crest are comedy artists who amuse in song, dance, patter, and legmania business; Miss Florence Hill sings and dances and pleases the audience; and Miss Lily Webster is applauded as a vocalist.

Ebbw Vale.—King's.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Responsible - Managers, Messrs. W. Devereux and E. T. Wood.—Mr. Hugh Dempsey's variety company is in possession for the week. The bill is topped by the Saxon Trio, Mr. Arthur Saxon giving a marvellous display of weight-lifting; Herman Maxim, the wrestler, submits a clever exhibition of the Græco-Roman style of wrestling; Mr. Hugh Dempsey contributes some well-rendered songs and a well-executed Hungarian top-boot dance; Mr. Walter Daw's Comedy company creates great amusement in the absurdity, A Warm Reception; and a series of excellent pictures are shown by M. Mellne's Bioscope.

Edinburgh.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Whitehead.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company began a week's engagement here last Monday in When it was Dark. We have not had the advantage of reading Mr. Guy Thorne's story, but the adaptation of the work by the Rev. Forbes Phillips is hardly a convincing drama. The prologue with the lurid figure of Satan chained to a rock savours somewhat of a pantomime opening, although it must be said that the strong writing of one or two of the succeeding scenes redeems the earlier portion of the play. The actors are all competent artists, and do their best to put life into rather unbending material. Mr. Leslie Carter, as Satan in the prologue, and Constantine Schuabe in the play, acts with power and ease, and delivers his lines with striking elocutionary ability. The Rev. Basil Gortre is played with finish and force by Mr. Rupert Lister, and the Sir Robert Llewellyn of Mr. H. Athol Forde is an admirable bit of work. Miss Margaret Damer, as Gertrude Hunt, contributes a graceful and pathetic sketch, and Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips acts with care as Katherine Moberly. Mr. Stanley Lathbury doubles in excellent style the parts of Lord Caistor and Ionides; Miss Florence Read is quiet and artistic as Anna, and Miss Ida plays well the small part of Margaret. The play is beautifully staged. The absence of the Rev. Forbes Phillips, owing to illness, on the Monday evening necessitated the reading of his speech by a deputy.

Royal Lyceum Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. G. T. Minshull.—The Gay Parisienne, which, in the matter of popularity, may be styled the Charley's Aunt of musical comedy, continues to fascinate large crowds of admirers. Mr. Charles Macdona once more sends the piece round, and the general excellence of his company is indicated by the cordiality with which the production is received. Miss Nellie Hodson is smart and chic in the familiar rôle of Julie Bon-Bon, with a sufficiently volatile adorer in the Pompier of Mr. Charles Sequin; Mr. Tom Conway develops the humour of Ebenezer Honeycombe in exuberant fashion, and Mrs. Honeycombe is well played by Madame Ilma Norina. Tom and Nora find interesting representatives in Mr. Lester Carry and Miss Lucia Collins. Mr. C. Adeson makes a characteristically fiery Major Fossdyke; Mr. Rudolph Kloss is quite at home as Amos Dingle; and Messrs. Graham Wentworth and Ernest Marriott are entertaining in the rôles of Algernon P. Ducie and Percy Tooting. Miss Gwennie Harcourt repeats her former success in her character part of Ruth, and Miss Ducie Sanderson is an admirable Gretchen, contributing a clever speciality dance.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and his company are here this week with Sir Francis Burnand's farcical play, The Cruise of the Saucy Sally, in which Mr. Brough keeps the audience thoroughly amused by his clever rendering of Captain Jocelyn. Mr. Percy Marshall also helps the fun along in the quaint character part of an ancient mariner, which he plays excellently. Miss Evelyn Ommundsen is charming and winsome as the wife; Miss Dorcas Crosbie is good as a proverbial kind of mother-in-law, and Miss Vera George makes an attractive husband-hunter. The cast in other respects is a creditable one, Mr. Henry Hampson, as a tippling waiter, being specially humorous. The little drama, At the Risin' of the Moon, put on as a curtain raiser, is well played by Mr. P. Marshall, Mr. Charles Groves, jun., Mr. Harold McNay, and Miss Dais Sapho, and East Lynne. On Monday and Tuesday the first-mentioned piece was the attraction. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott gives a realistic representation of Frank Wilson; Mr. W. H. Garbois as Ellis Jordan makes an excellent villain, being ably assisted by Mr. Weedon Ross as Julius Hartmann; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps deserves praise for his handling of Robert Dewhurst; Miss Ada Abbott cleverly brings out the good traits in the trying character of Bessie Dewhurst; Miss Kathleen Stewart is pleasing as Alice Wilton; and Miss Elsie Jones impersonates Little Frank in a praiseworthy manner. The humour of the piece is well sustained by Mr. Edward Keene as Ben Bradford, and Miss Marjorie Tennant as Margery Crib. Sapho was staged on Wednesday and Thursday and East Lynne on Friday.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company opened a fortnight's engagement here with an excellent production of The Huguenots. Mr. Joseph O'Mara sang with dramatic intensity the music of Raoul, and Mme. De Vere shared the honours as Valentine. Mr. Charles Magrath as San Bris and Mr. William Dever as De Nevers were of immense value to the cast. Miss Lucy Lever as Marguerite of Valois sang in cultured style, and as Urbano the page Miss E. Alvord was specially good in her solo, "Nobil Signor." Mr. Charles Manners' grand voice was heard to advantage in the part of Marcelle. The opera was mounted with that completeness that we now expect from the Moody-Manners Company. On Tuesday the novelty of this visit was given, Tschäikowsky's Eugene Onegin, with Mme. Fanny Moody, Mr. Charles Manners, Mr. Lewys James, and Mr. Wilson Pembroke in the leading parts. Performances of Trovatore, Tannhäuser, Carmen, Marriage of Figaro, and Maritana complete the week.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson commenced the second week of their engagement here with an exceedingly bright and lively performance of The Merry Wives of Windsor. The Falstaff of the cast was Mr. George R. Weir, and in appearance, voice, and bearing he gave an excellent idea of the amorous knight. Equally successful was Mr. Benson's impersonation of Dr. Caius, the fun being fast and furious while he was on the stage. The acting of Mrs. Benson as Mrs. Ford and of Miss Tita Brand as Mrs. Page was gay and spontaneous, while in appearance and style these ladies made an agreeable contrast. Miss Elinor Aickin was an amusing Mistress Quickly, and the part of Ann Page was attractively represented by Miss Katherine Boyce, the Robin of Miss Leah Hanman being also a good performance. The parts of Fenton and Pistol were cleverly doubled by Mr. George Buchanan. As Ford Mr. Cyril Keightley acted with cosiderable spirit, and as Page Mr. B. A. Pittar showed good elocutionary talent. Character was given to the parts of Shallow and Slender by Mr. Percy D. Owen and Mr. H. O. Nicholson respectively, other good assumptions being the Sir Hugh Evans of Mr. Clarence Derwent, the Host of Mr. Philip Sanders, the Bardolph of Mr. Harrison, and the Nym of Mr. Stanley Howlett. The other plays on the bill for this week are Much Ado About Nothing, The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, and A Midsummer Night's Dream

GRAND, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—Monday evening witnessed a most successful opening of the second week of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company's visit, when Wagner's Lohengrin was presented in a style of excellence and completeness worthy of high praise. Mr. Eugene Gossens held the bâton, and his augmented band and the chorus gave a fine response to his lead. But it was with the strong cast of the principals that the success of the performance was achieved. Despite slight indisposition, Mr. Charles Victor gave a very fine impersonation of Telramund, his acting and singing being marked with elegance and style. In the rôle of Henry the Fowler Mr. Arthur Winckworth was entirely reliable, and Mr. Frank Arthur as the Herald sang and acted in his accustomed able manner. The Ortrud of Miss Hanna Mara gave great pleasure, the fine voice and finished art of this singer being quite a feature. Miss Grace Nicoll was charming as Elsa, the "Dream" song being given with fine effect, her whole performance adding largely to her repute, and marking her as a future favourite in Glasgow. In the title-part Herr Julius Walther made the character an outstanding one alike dramatically and vocally. He was recalled at the close of each act—deservedly—as were the other principals named. On Tuesday Trovatore was staged; on Wednesday, owing to the requests of many patrons, Fidelio was given in place of Faust; and for the later evenings Rigoletto, Don Giovanni, Tannhäuser, and Maritana were the attractions.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—An alteration in bookings enables the management here to put on a very good production of East Lynne, with Miss Lillian Herries as the much-tried Lady Isabel. Mr. Stuart Willson gives a fine rendering of Archibald Carlyle, and Mr. J. Knox Orde duly emphasises the scheming villainy of Sir Francis Levison. Miss Lily Roselle is excellent as Barbara Hare and Miss Jenny Macintyre again brings out the humorous possibilities of Cornelia Carlyle in good style. Mr. T. J. Ashmore as the aristocratic Lord Mountsovern, Mr. Max Copland as the irascible Justice Hare, and little Miss Barker as Willie also deserve special mention.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here in the popular drama Her Second Time on Earth. Miss Hilda Beverley as Dora Grey is seen to great advantage, and acts with sincerity throughout. Other characters worthy of mention are those portrayed by Messrs. George Gaisford, Henry Lonsdale, William H. Porter, and Miss Dorothy Hildebrande, while the indispensable comic parts of the play are in the able hands of Miss Dora Hargreaves and Mr. Willie Reid.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Morton Powell's company in the clever new drama The Woman Who Gambles has moved down here from the Princess's, where it created a most favourable impression, and is proving equally successful with Govan playgoers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—A marvellous and thrilling sensation is provided in the turn of Volta, the human battery, who handles the deadly electric current in a marvellous manner. Julie Mackey comes provided with some new and taking songs, and also obliges with one or two of the old favourites; Wal Croft, the clever Scotch comedian, gives an enjoyable turn; Victor Newman contributes two striking impersonations, one of Tree as Svengali, and the other of Irving as Mathias, both wonderfully life-like; the Matweef-Hugoston Troupe of Russian Dancers and Acrobats give a clever turn; Driscoll and Beattie appear in a lively sketch; the Four Trees shine in song and dance; Walter Stanley, comedian, is well received; and Herr Grais with his trained baboons provide an exceedingly clever turn.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The principal turn this week is Joe Peterman's company in The Belle of the Orient. Then in the way of magical tricks Prince Fee Lung excites wonder and admiration, while Harry Gifford is a vocalist who gives effective sketches of character. Bessie Travis's ventriloquial dummies are cleverly manipulated; Ridwell is a good baritone vocalist; Johnny Gilmore is also an effective singer; Flem and Brock are a comical pair; the Greys give expression to some fine operatic duets, which are a pleasant variation from the usual variety turns; and the Ucques are graceful and daring in their gymnastic feats. The bioscope completes an interesting programme.

PAVILION, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The bill for this week is headed by Imro Fox, from the Royal pantomime, whose sleight-of-hand always excites wonder and admiration. Miss Lily Hope is a pleasing mimic; Trav and Rich are amusing comedians; the Four Jumels discourse pleasant music on various instruments; Mamie Iris is a nice little comedienne; Barrett and Knowles, also lately in the Royal pantomime, are loquacious and witty patter comedians; the principal turn is a sketch called The Phonograph Girl, in which more pantomimists from the theatres appear, including Miss Ida Gladstone as Lady Somerville, Miss Jeannie Christo, who makes a charming phonograph girl, and Mr. Arthur Dando as Crookleshanks; and the Brothers Martini are clever acrobats.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan.—A novel performance is that of Drowza, the mechanical talking head, a really wonderful bit of machinery. A decided hit is made by W. H. Rawlins and company in the capital sketch Mashing the Missus; the Brothers Ethairien are smart comedians; Mason and Bart in a triple bar act are very amusing; Holden's Mannikins prove a very attractive turn; the dancing of Jimmy Shields, one-leg comedian, is appreciated; Goggin and Davis are clever in their acrobatic absurdities; Fielding and Hull in An Officer's Flirtation are meritorious; and Minnie Fenton, Scotch comedienne is a good extra turn.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Richard Waldon and Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Harry Lamore the comedian on the loose wire, provides a most enjoyable and clever turn. Ted Young and Ada Twibell receive the welcome of old favourites, and have good catchy songs; Fred Earle's eccentric ditties are well received; Ailsa Douglas is a pleasing vocalist, with a taking manner; F. V. St. Clair, the well-known song writer, makes a hit with his latest topical songs; Harry Lawson's songs are much enjoyed; Alice Ormonde is a clever comedienne; Sylvesto, the lady contortionist, gives her speciality turn; tnd the Animated Pictures complete a good programme.

QUEEN'S.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. T. J. Colquhoun and B. M. Armstrong.—Tom Davies's Trio display wonderful skill in their cycling act; the Teiraz perform on the wire with skill and daring; Harry Glynn and company cause considerable amusement in their sketch After the Honeymoon; the Four Royal Welsh Singers prove highly acceptable; the Sisters Walmsley are clever in song and dance; Tom Lowan has some good songs; Evelyn Taylor's male impersonations are vigorously encored; and Eugene and Willie in comedy musical act and Louis Herno, coon impersonator, complete a good bill.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The variety turns at this hall are the same as at the Queen's, but in addition the management provide some interesting boxing contests each night, and the combination of athletics and variety talent seems highly popular.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee was here the first three nights of the week. Mr. Tom Payne handled the part of Chambhuddy Rham in a masterly manner, and, in conjunction with Miss Minnie Muir as Peggy Sabine, scored with some excellent songs and dances; Mr. A. Wortley Drewitt as Harry Vereker was prominent; Mr. F. Sutton as Boohamba filled the character with distinction and power; and Mr. Eric Fenton was well placed as the peppery Sir Peter Loftus. Mr. Scott Cullen as Bobby Warren gave a good portrayal; Miss Eva Stephens as Lady Patricia Vereker pleased with her acting and singing; and Miss Cyntha Norman as Angy Loftus contributed some clever dances. Miss Edith Harmer as Nanoya gave a delightful performance. Miss Maggie Morton's company appeared in The Temptress on Thursday and Friday.

GLOUCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. Frank Ayrton's company is here this week with the drama The Power of Gold. Mr. Charles Whitlock gives a thrilling embodiment of Hadji Zambra, a Malay doctor, and a powerful enactment of his accomplice Lady Brandon is presented by Miss Lilla Wilde. Paul Jutson is well played by Mr. Tom Ronald, and his brother Mark Harley is ably acted by Mr. Albert Sefton. Mr. Frank Ayrton proves himself a capital comedian as Sammy Smudge, and Miss Madge Seymour assists in the laughter-making with Mr. Ayrton in song and dance as Norah Donnelly. Miss Georgina V. France plays in clever style as Meg Judson, and Little Mabel impersonates a street arab successfully. Mr. Arthur Turton is prominent as Dr. Stephen Saunders, as is Miss Hettie Laytise as Sister Marie.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Jno. E. Tomlinson.—This week Mr. James Stephens and Repertoire company are presenting The Heart of London, Our Boys, and For Wife and Fortune. This excellent company opened to a good house on Monday with The Heart of London. In the part of Sherlock Holmes Mr. C. York plays powerfully, making his points in a quiet yet telling way; the part of Dr. Watson is admirably sustained by Mr. James Hart; Mr. Taliesyn G. Davies gives a clever study of Renton Bashford; Mr. James Stephens delights the house with his highly amusing portrayal of Jim Smash; and Miss Lucie Victor as Liza Plumpip is a general favourite. Miss Amy Lloyd Earle plays with grace an tenderness the part of Mary Bashford; Miss Mabel Lewis Cluer submits a charming portrayal of Kate Bradford; and Mr. Frank Landon is a capital Jack Bradford.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—This week the Pender Troupe are here scoring heavily in their pantomime absurdity, Hands up, or the Bold, Bad Highwayman; Little Violet is a clever juvenile actress, and the Sisters Desmond bright character duettists; Lillie Lassah, a diverting comedienne and dancer; Allsopp and Beckwith, in an original laughable burlesque, I'm Coming Upstairs, and George Bishop, a good comedian, are other attractions.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here this week with the well-known drama Driven from Home. Mrs. Frances Ruttledge shows her versatility by her able assumption of the rôles of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherley the younger; Mr. Felix Pitt is excellent as Anthony Raybrook; Mr. Hubert Humphreys capably depicts Walter Hatherleigh; and Mr. Jas. C. Harcourt provides a clever study as Willie.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company is here this week with Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Henry Rogers finely portrays the villainous Legree; Mr. J. Carr submits a capital piece of work as Uncle Tom; Mr. J. H. Renny ably fills the rôle of Phineas Fletcher; an excellent representative of Mr. St. Clair is found in Mr. Stanley Howard; and Mr. Leslie Beaufort acts well as George Harris. Miss Hettie Johnson is a satisfactory Eliza, and Little Eva is nicely played by Little Minnie. Miss Annie Watson is very amusing as Topsy, and all the other characters are in safe hands. The plantation festival, which takes place in Act IV., is a pleasing item, and the chorus singing is excellent.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Atroy, juggler and hoop manipulator, heads the bill here, and gives an interesting performance; Harry Wenburn, comedian, is well received; the Four Aces, and Midget, comedy artists, are applauded; Brothers Dean, dancers, are retained for another week, and provide capital entertainment; Viola, lady instrumentalist, gives some clever selections; Mystery Gauze, Indian female impersonator, does a good turn; and Ike Scott and Son, comedy artists, are very amusing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The principal turn here this wek is provided by Walton and Ella, with their marvellous animal performance ,and the exhibition is thoroughly appreciated. Arthur Gilbert, comedian; Sibb and Sibb, trapeze artists; Lilian Warren, singer of illustrated songs; Mdlle. Sylvia's local tableaux; George Penn, raconteur; and the Clayton Twins, assisted by Misses Wood and Willis, in their amusing sketch entitled Pepper and Salt, are all first-class turns.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The Orchid has made its second appearance here, presented in bright fashion by Mr. George Dance's company. Mr. Bertie Wright, who now takes the part of Meakin, is the life of the piece, his impersonation of the droll little gardener being greatly diverting. Miss Chrissie Ralland is quite satisfactory as Lady Violet, and sings sweetly, whilst the same remark applies to Miss Mamie Stuart, who appears as Josephine. Miss Florence Vie is responsible for quiet but effective humour as Caroline Vokins, and Miss Ruby Garman as Thisbe and Miss Elsa D'Usez as Zelie are also prominent among the ladies of the company. Mr. William Benson's burlesque of the duelling Frenchman, Comte Raoule, is an excellent piece of comedy acting, and Mr. Jack V. Fairley as Mr. Chesterton, Mr. Alfred Bennett as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, Mr. C. Stone as Dr. Faussett, and Mr. Harry T. Butler as Zaccary also contribute to the success of the piece.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Marie Loftus has not failed to please the Palace audiences, who have expressed their approval in no unmistakable fashion. Her songs are, without exception, smartly written, and, sung in Miss Loftus's inimitable style, were greatly entertaining. Kioto, a Japanese artist, has shown some quite original feats of equilibrium; Weiland, besides proving a clever juggler, has introduced good comedy work, including amusing stage effects; a gymnastic performance by Aeriel and Astarte was well received; and others appearing were Nellie Chandos (comedienne and dancer), the Two Rubies (dancers), Lee and Arden in a sketch, and Frank Boyce (comedian).

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The audiences have been most enthusiastic over the appearance of the Dandies, who give a refined act, including operatic selections, light comedy, and general vocal business. Daring acrobatic feats were presented by the Trantz Troupe, the lady members being especially notable; a capital sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure, was given by J. G. Grahame and Zerlina Harrington, the plot being of a more than ordinarily interesting character; Harry Wright's impromptu verses caused much fun; and other good turns were contributed by Yorick and Yorick (comedians and tumblers), Ferris and Farnley (patter comedians), and Peggy Fame (comedienne).

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robt. Perkins.—On the 9th inst. this hall reopened with Messrs. Fred Little and Fred D'Arcy's company in The Executioner's Daughter. The piece was well mounted. Miss Dorothy Riddell played artistically as Annette; Miss Amy Robson gave a vividly realistic picture of Felice; and Miss Beattie Moore drew the sympathy of the audience as Christiani. The comedy element was supplied by Miss May Rosine as Sally King and Mr. Willie Hicks as Tom Holmer. Mr. J. De Alberti cleverly and effectively depicted the villainous Felix; Mr. Duncan Bell played Roche with convincing earnestness; and Mr. Stevenson ably sustained Kretch, Mr. Roy Milton meriting praise for his conception of Paul Rovel.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Smith is being presented here this week by Mr. Walter Reynolds's powerful company. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart gives a clever assumption of Earle Godwyn Smith; Mr. Sydney Price is well placed as the Earl of Oxted; Mr. William Dunlop is a distinct success as the Duke of Angleland; and Mr. Rupert Stutfield plays his discriminating friend to perfection. The ladies are all charming. Miss Mary Relph as the Duchess of Angleland and Miss Ethel Milton as Lady Mary Hildergate sustain their respective rôles with credit, while a word of praise is due to Mrs. Alfred Davis, who is a most affable Mrs. Smith.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Good wholesome melodrama is being staged here this week by Messrs. Garrod and Northway, whose Prodigal Parson company is doing good business. As the Rev. Tom Godley, the hunted down and drunken parson, Mr. W. V. Garrod never fails to elicit sympathy; Mr. Alfred Northway is regarded with abhorrence as the hypocritical churchwarden, Enoch Jaggins; and an adequate amount of humour is infused into the story by Mr. Clarmont Gaskell, whose interpretation of Phil Drive, the parson's handy man, is a remarkable piece of comedy character acting. Miss Bertha Kingston displays emotion in the difficult part of Fern Godley, while Miss Gladys Conover is a charming blind child.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Charles Howard.—Following Veronique, we have Mr. Charles Frohman's company in the successful musical comedy, The Catch of the Season. As Angela Miss Maie Ash is distinctly successful, her singing and dancing being much appreciated. Mr. Frank Lincoln makes a most amusing Duke of Jermyns, his performance contributing largely towards the success of the piece. As the stammering Earl Mr. E. H. Kelly is admirable. As the page Bucket Master Grata is well placed. Miss A. Lethbridge as Angela's half-sister dances cleverly. The Eight Gibson Girls are very successful in their portion of the evening's entertainment.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Much interest is centred this week in the appearance of Madrali, the Terrible Turk, and his company of champion wrestlers. Lind, the Parisian Surprise, contributes a turn of much excellence; Selma Braatz, the lady juggler, is clever; Alec Aubrey in his gymnastic exhibition is far in advance of most members in this line; the Olive Trio in their musical sketch Auntie sing nicely; Mlle. De Vena in a club-swinging turn is capital; the Clarkes banjoists, contribute a pleasing selection; Pat Rafferty sings two songs; and a splendid picture is shown depicting train wreckers.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock.—Messrs. E. A'dell and Chabot's company opened a three nights' engagement on Monday with the drama, The Romany's Revenge. Miss Eva Elwes scored quite a success in her dual impersonation of the half-sisters, Lilian Hope and Elspie, the gipsy. As the gipsy boy, Zamet, Miss Ethel Ashleigh was pathetic; Mr. Evelyn A'dell was, on the whole, good, though once or twice he was a little too intense; Mr. G. Austin, as Archibald Heath, gave a fine character sketch; and as the despicable scoundrel Dave Renard, Mr. Harry C. Robinson was excellent. The comedy honours were shared by Miss Fannie Wallace as Polly Pluck, and Mr. David Hamilton as Bobbie Bloom. These two artists added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. As Warder Stone Mr. Chas. Leicester was well placed, and Mr. Alfred Harvey as Caleb Kral was also good. On Thursday evening Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company completed the week's bill of fare with Wilson Barrett's great drama, The Golden Ladder.

THE KURSAAL.—Manager and Musical Director, Mr. C. L. Naylor, M.A., Mus.Bac.; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. R. Yeulett.—On Saturday evening the Thespians gave an enjoyable entertainment with a black and white minstrel performance. In the first half of the programme the chief successes were made by Misses Violet Dixon and Ladas Ismay (dancers), Lilian Payne (contralto), A. Newman, Tom Coleman, Walt. Ogden, Ted Thomas, and Fred Carlton. Mr. Carlton's rendering of the popular "Wooden hut" fairly brought down the house. The entertainment concluded with Messrs. Robert Oglesby and A. E. Grimshaw's Spanish operetta, El Escribana.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—On Monday Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company appeared for the first time in Hastings in Wilson Barrett's play Lucky Durham. A very interesting souvenir of the play was presented to each lady of the audience by the touring management. Mr. Edmund Kennedy played the rôle of John Durham most convincingly; Miss Louise Gourlay played as Mrs. Durham with great delicacy and charm; Mr. Arthur Leigh as the Hon. Reginald gave a delightful character study; Mr. A. E. Walker as Mr. Vallerton, and Mr. Benson North as Lord Mountfallon materially strengthened the action of the play by their respective impersonations; Miss Gertrude Robins was a delightful Helen Vallerton, and Miss Florence Dulhunty as the Hon. Margaret was artistic and pleasing in her presentment of a difficult rôle. Miss Frances Wolviston was well placed as Lady Mountfallon, and played the rôle with the necessary hauteur and diplomacy. Mr. John Hartt made a successful Tasker.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Ewing.—A good company here includes Miss Edna Shelma, costume vocalist, who is much appreciated. The Sisters Valli are clever in their musical mélange; a skilful turn is given by the athletic Athlones; Mr. Frank Dunlo proves himself a superior comedian; a very amusing comedy sketch is given by Ross and Lewis; some interesting and up-to-date pictures are exhibited by the Hippodrome Bioscope; a marvellous lady illusionist and sleight-of-hand artist is seen in Mlle. Von Etta; Miss Belle Harcourt, comedienne, is well received; and a laughable sketch is introduced by Mr. and Mrs. Payte.

PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Messrs. Darey and Little's company is here this week with The Executioner's Daughter. Mr. Duncan Bell plays Roche very forcefully; Mr. Juan di Albuti is an ideal villain; Mr. V. R. C. Morris is noticeable as Paul Rovel; Mr. W. S. Stephenson plays Kretch very admirably; Mr. Willie Hicks is a commendable Tom Holmes; and Mr. Stapleton Roche is amusing as Ormonde. The title-rôle is played by Miss Ina Grant with much effectiveness; Miss May Rosine sustains the humorous rôle of Sally King with distinction; Miss Evelyn Robson gives a good rendering of Felice; and Miss Beattie Moore is pathetic as Christina

HEYWOOD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—The Babes in the Wood is the attraction this week. Miss Jessie Lindsay plays Robin Hood spiritedly, and Miss Lizzie Leraine is good as Robin's sweetheart. Miss Florry Anderson and Miss Gertrude Bingham as Allan and Helen sing and dance pleasingly. The parts of the Babes are made the most of by Lily Belle and Madge Bingham. Mr. Eddie Clay and Mr. Fred Fosco show how humorous pantomime robbers can be; Mr. Harry Lilly as the Baron and Mr. Phelps Leo as the Friar were commendable.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, The Provincial Theatres Co.; General-Manager, Mr. C. E. Bradley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Hawke.—Mr. Chas. March in The Gamester of Metz is paying a return visit. Mr. Walter H. Wilson displays skill in the part of Paul Baldot; Mr. Fred Aldworth as General De Monparasse is decidedly good; Mr. John B. Murray's Captain Badaire is an excellent rendering; Mr. W. G. Dudeney in Louis Badaire has a good part, to which he does full justice; Mr. Wilfrid Prothero as Ferdinand du Basson is excellent; and Mr. Victor Knight as Goliath is responsible for plenty of genuine comedy. The part of Lucia Baldot is sympathetically played by Miss Una Lane; Miss Cissy Haighton as Gwendolin Pearson ably assists Goliath in creating roars of laughter; and Miss Eva Lyndhurst as the Countess Baldot plays a blind old lady to perfection.

HOYLAND.—THE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—On Monday night Prof. Inman Hocking and his combination opened to a crowded house. Prof. Hocking, in his electric healing act, gave an interesting exhibition of the cure of paralysis, &c., and he also provided great amusement in a hypnotic scene. Sylvester and Sansome are good in the Maiden and the Tutor; the Kysayas, hair and teeth weight-lifting experts, perform some astounding feats; Bobbie Greives, ventriloquist, is excellent; and Gordon Vincent, comedian; Teddie May, actor-vocalist; Lily Gaston, male impersonator; and Miss Vinne Loftus, comedienne, also contribute.

HUDDERSFIELD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is playing The Girl from Kay's. Miss Beatrice Poole is an attractive Winnie Harborough; Miss Emily Taylor plays with simple directness as Norah; and Miss Mabel Dent is full of life as the maid Ellen. Mr. J. S. Durant is distinctly clever as Harry Gordon and Mr. Reginald Grey amusingly inane as Fitzthistle; Mr. Tom Seymour is pomposity itself as Joseph the hall porter; and Mr. H. C. Barry as Hoggenheimer brings to his aid a ripe experience and gift for comedy. The singing of "Under the Bamboo Tree" by a trio and chorus in Act II. is worthy of mention for the beautiful purity of tone produced by the members of the trio.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A fine bill is headed by the Musical Johnstons, whose xylophone playing is exceptionally skilful. In addition are Miss Mabelle May, comedienne and dancer; Kimberley Boys, comedians and dancers of originality; the Lyons Trio in their highly diverting pantomime sketch; Chas. Stevens, character vocalist; Mr. Frank Elliston and his company in the funny sketch Aunt Matilda; Alf Gibson, the quaint comedian with a peculiarly vibrant voice and original method; and the Hippodrome Pictures.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Sowing the Wind is being presented here by Mr. Leigh Lovel's capable company. Mr. Lovel proves himself a gifted actor in the character of Mr. Brabazon, a talented Rosamond is found in Miss Octavia Kenmore, Mr. Frederick Sargent is a manly Ned Annesley, and Mr. Henry Osman, as Mr. Watkin, is well suited; Mr. Arthur McCulloch's impersonation of Lord Petworth is all that can be desired; and Mr. J. Poole-Kirkwood, as Sir Richard Cursitor, is quite at home in the part; Miss Celia Gordon gives a creditable study of the Hon. Mrs. Fretwell, and Miss Ethel Savill, as Maud Fretwell, is equally successful.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. Chares Macdona's company in Are You a Mason? is paying a return visit. Mr. E. H. Paterson is a mirth-provoking Amos Bloodgood, Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is to be congratulated on his performance as Frank Perry, Mr. Allan Pollock is exceedingly good as George Fisher, and Mr. Richard Purdon, Mr. Percy Bell, and Mr. Howard L. Tracy are all deserving of praise. A meritorious performance is given by Miss Adelaide Grace as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood, Miss Mabel Young is admirable as Mrs. Perry, and the two sisters are charmingly presented by Miss Rita Ward and Miss Mabel Jowett.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Morton's, Ltd.; Resident Director, Mr. George Morton.—Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon's company is presenting The Branded Woman for the first time in Hull. Miss Rence Glendower in the title-rôle wins much applause. Mr. James Stillwell is seen to advantage as Philip Maurice, Mr. Paul E. Teulon plays in a convincing manner as Louis Duroc, and Mr. Edward Fryer ably depicts the villainous Baron Hauber. Miss Katherine Barnett acquits herself well as Marie, Miss Edith Wild, as Rudolph, is worthy of notice, and capital comedy is provided by Mr. Beckett Bould, as Dick Brown, and Miss Kitty McPherson as Jacqueline, the maid.

THE PALACE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Fred Karno's comedians present their exceedingly funny sketch, The Mumming Birds; James Stewart extracts a great amount of fun as a tramp at the piano; Daisy Mayer's songs and dances meet with favour, and other capable artists include David Poole, the Howards, Chris Richards, George Tacius, Bert Byrne, Morgan Sisters, and Herbert Shelley.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham.—A big favourite is J. W. Rowbyn, who has to respond with encores; Scottie's Waifs and Strays appear in a unique sketch, Lottie Siegenberg is smart in The Slavey at Home, Roma and Romani are favourite musical artists. Other artists who take well include Blind Henderson, Hughes and Elliott, George Barron, and Carlile and Walker.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Large audiences are this week witnessing The Toreador, which is being presented here by Mr. Chas. Macdona' company. Mr. Richard Telford, as Sammy Gigg, creates roars of laughter by his ludicrous antics; Mr. F. Hulme Sharp makes Sir Archibald Slackett a distinctly humorous individual; Mr. Chas. M. Heslop is a capital Augustus Trail; Mr. Tom May works hard and successfully as Pettifer; Mr. J. Colclough Fagan is an impressive Carajola; Nancy Staunton has a charming representative in Miss Alice Nixon; Miss Sadie Neville is a captivating Dora Selby; Miss Leah Howard makes a bright and vivacious Susan; Miss Florence Spurgeon displays fine vocal and histrionic powers as Donna Teresa; and Miss Avis Grahame achieves distinction as Mrs. Malten Hoppings.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Miss Lena Stanton's company is here in the pantomime entitled Robinson Crusoe. Miss Stanton is the Robinson Crusoe, her style and acting giving evident pleasure to the whole house; whilst Miss Minnie Melbah deserves great praise as Polly Perkins. Mr. George Melbah as Friday adequately interprets his part; as Sunny Jim Crusoe Little Keeno is much admired; Mr. Bruce Green plays with much freshness as the Dame; and Mr. Will Terry, who represents Little Willie Carlisle Atkins, is a quaint comedian. Spiff and Spoof are well embodied by Messrs. G. Bignell and R. Waller; Mr. Dennis Lyndon scores as King Kopp-em. The specialities introduced are: La Belle Esma, in a wire act; J. and Ginger, singing ventriloquist; the Orient troupe of lady acrobatic dancers, and the Musical Melbahs.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Knightall.—Duncan and Morton are a capable pair of comedians and dancers; Prof. Earle is a skilful illusionist; Tessie Vandean, serio, is retained from last week; Fred Burnaby sings high-class songs in a baritone voice; Fred Lawrence, vocal comedian, has a good reception; Ernie Dalton is applauded as a comedian and dancer; and Maudie Kendall, comedienne and dancer, completes the programme.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. C. E. Jennings.—Mr. William Maclaren and company are here in Claudian this week. Mr. Maclaren gives a fine study of the chief character, and he receives effective assistance from Miss Lily C. Bandmann, who renders the part of Almida with much charm and tenderness. The rather ungrateful part of Charlogalus the Tetrarch receives full justice at the hands of Mr. William Howard, while the blacksmith finds an efficient representative in Mr. George R. J. Austin. Others assisting in the success of the cast include Mr C. T. Chaloner, Mr. Weston Hubbard, Miss Gladys Frank Harvey, and Miss Dora Frank Harvey.

HIPPODROME (St. Nicholas-street).—Proprietor, Mr E. H. Bostock.—A striking turn in this week's programme was the appearance of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas in some studies of Dickens characters, which afforded much pleasure, and seemed to be highly appreciated by the audience. Selections from "Martin Chuzzlewit," and "Bleak House" were cleverly rendered, and afforded a pleasing feature of the bill of fare. Another attractive item was that of Morris Cronin and his troupe of jugglers, who accomplished some unique feats with great neatness and ease. Richard Corbin's performing dogs made a decided hit in their show, and the Ladderites deserved praise for their skill and dexterity. The Three Zaracs proved themselves clever artists in the triple-bar performance, while Shean, Fox, and Shean were responsible for a sketch entitled The Fighting Tramp.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—M elicit applause. Mdlle. de Rose, lady baritone, sings nicely; Mdlle. Angeline, lady juggler, is smart; and Rayne and Hope in a dialogue, "An Emperor's Divorce," is another attractive item. Mr. J. H. Hawtrey, character vocalist, and Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the bill.

LEAMINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Répertoire Company is appearing here with conspicuous artistic success this week. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was successfully undertaken. Mr. Maclaren in the rôle of Shylock gave a vigorous, impressive, and scholarly display, and Miss F. Glossop Harris was a sweet and womanly Portia; Mr. R. Wilson's Antonio, Mr. Francois Cellier's finished sketch of Bassanio, Miss Mona Limerick's dainty Nerissa, Mr. Stafford Dawson's diverting Gobbo, and other excellent portrayals went to make up a performance of much merit. On Tuesday Romeo and Juliet was given, with Mr. Maclaren and Miss Gertrude Gilbert in the title-parts. Hamlet, The Corsican Brothers, As You Like It, and The Three Musketeers are also billed for performance during the week.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—On the Love Path, by Mr. C. M. S. McLellan, is the attraction this week. The company sent out by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison is a very capable one. Mr. Hutchison is seen in his best form as the impulsive Arthur Taunton; Miss Lilias Earl does well as Charity Concannon, the Chicago beauty; the solicitor Gripleigh is finely played by Mr. George Mudie; and Mr. Frank Hill evokes continual amusement in the rôle of Peter Concannon; Mr. T. W. Rawson and Miss Hilda Honiss also do well. The amusing curtain raiser, His Landlady, with Mr. George Mudie, the author, in the principal rôle, is much enjoyed.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Pantomime has at last given way to more serious matter, and Ben-my-Chree is rendered twice nightly by Mr. Arnold Bell and his company. The part of Dan Mylrea is played by Mr. Bell with power and conviction. He is ably supported by Miss Frances Campbell as Mona. Mr. Frank Fountain's rendering of Davy Fayle is a welcome relief to this otherwise somewhat heavy play, and humorous help is furnished by Mr. John Henley, as Hommy Beg the ancient servant. Mr. Cuthbert Imrie makes an impressive bishop, and the other parts are ably filled by Mr. John Belton as Ewan Mylrea, Mr. Frank Carlile as the Deemster, and Mr. Frank C. Robson as the Governor of the Isle.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—That fine military drama, One of the Best, is to be seen here. The hero, Dudley Keppel, is presented in fine style by Mr. Frank Fenton; Miss Elsie Roberts makes a charming heroine, and Mr. Escott Robson, Mr. Lionel West, and Miss Ethel Roydale cleverly enact their parts; the military element is in the capable hands of Mr. Cyril Melton, Mr. E. S. Earle, and a capital company.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—Gus Elen, the famous coster star, takes the lead here and scores his usual big success; at the bottom are the Novellos, with a characteristic Eastern acrobatic show; McPhee and Hill are responsible for a finished gymnastic turn; the Stuart Quartet do some good dancing; Baker and Lynn and Lidden and Hayward each subscribe good things in the way of comic sketches; T. C. Callaghan and Frank Lynne lead the comedians in a smart and amusing style, and Florrie St. Clair, comedienne, also contributes pleasing items.

Tivoli.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Dr. Walford Bodie occupies the boards here for another week, and, as on his last visit, is drawing record houses. As a proof of his curative powers, a lad who was paralysed and well known in Leeds as a newsboy was brought upon the stage. He had been treated by Dr. Bodie on his last visit to Leeds, and still enjoyed the use of his once paralysed limb. Dr. Bodie is supported by a good allround variety company, among which are Signor Bandoni, the one-man band; Bella Skene, burlesque actress; Gipsy Nan and her thought-reading dog, and Nellie Lindsay, who delights with her singing.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Wrestling is again the feature here, some strenuous bouts having been witnessed between Tom McMerney and several doughty opponents. A capital variety company supports, of which Daisy Silcott, comedienne; Tom Parker, comedian; and Blake and Granby, comedy artists, are clever and popular entertainers.

Coliseum.—That popular entertainer, Carlton, fresh from his grand pantomime triumphs, is presenting a capital entertainment here, including the Four Kweeries, with a mystery show; the Howards, necromancers and thought readers; Fred Fowler and Katie May, local pantomime favourites; Lilian Payne, vocalist; Tom Brantford, mimic; Princess Leah, tight wire performer; Maud Edwards, a skilful lady ventriloquist; and Tom Dawson, blind comedian.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Crowded and fashionable audiences accord Mr. Martin Harvey nightly a cordial welcome on this his first visit to Leicester. The Only Way was selected for presentation on Monday, being followed on the last three nights by The Breed of the Treshams and a matinée performance of A Cigarette Maker's Romance. Mr. Martin Harvey as Sidney Carton created an impression that will long be remembered in Leicester; Mr. Charles Glenny is in every way excellent as Ernest Defarge; and as Charles Darnay Mr. P. Anstey is also to be highly complimented. Mr. Fred Wright, sen., is a success as Doctor Manette, and both Mr. P. Alexander as Mr. Lorry and Mr. Reeve Denbigh as Mr. Stryver are very good. Miss N. de Silva, in her original part of Mimi, acquits herself in a manner which leaves nothing whatever to be desired; and Miss Coleridge as Lucie Manette plays with decided ability. Praise should also be accorded to Miss Frances Ivor as The Vengeance, Miss Bessie Elder as a Citizeness, Mr. Charles Cameron as the President, and Mr. George Cooke as the Public Prosecutor.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. [illegible] R. Beaumont.—The boards are held here this week by Mr. Lingford Carson's company in A Modern Adventuress. Miss Kate Fronde as Violet Meredith is a conspicuous success; Miss Alice Defoe plays exceptionally well as Vivette Delby; Miss Ivy Chandos is both popular and amusing as Sally Hodges; Mr. Leonard Montgomery as the Yorkshireman, John Crompton, is well to the front with a good character-sketch; and Mr. Leonard Aardale is seen to considerable advantage as Pietro Donelli.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The principal attraction here this week is a return visit of Mr. A. C. Lilly and company in Drummed Out. At the other end of the bill is Arthur Lennard, who is the recipient of a most flattering reception. He is a very fine actor-vocalist, who has good songs which he well knows how to render. The Marlo and Dunham Trio give a clever and finished display on the horizontal bar; the Silvas, the firemen on the ladders, are seen to great advantage in their sensational balancing feats; the Sisters Aindon score with an enjoyable and pretty musical speciality; Terry and Bentley, in the comedy sketch The Hunt display versatility; Madame Alice Simmons is heard to considerable advantage; Lizzie Fletcher, vocalist, also entertains with success. The American bioscope is projecting the usual up-to-date pictures.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—A capital programme is presented here. Dickinson and Johnson prove popular in their ornamental swimming and tank performance; Bishop and Hanlon, knockabouts, create great merriment and score a success; the Sisters Lunelle, soubrettes and dancers, are always sure of a cordial welcome; Fred Harrison, the funny Chinaman, goes well with a good turn; Will Lytton, comedian, is well received; Joe Humphries is a capital vocal comedian; the Swift Trio of comedy cyclists are entertaining; and Ted Farrar, the Lancashire comedian and dancer, also appears.

LEIGH.—Ohmy's Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. King Ohmy; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Prince.—A good programme is submitted here this week. Miss Victoria Dagmar is a graceful and daring gymnast; Mons. Kavados in a juggling act is well received; Mr. Claude Ohmy goes through some clever tricks on the wire; the Rookbey's in a comic gymnastic act are very good; the Three Seymons give an entertaining performance as jugglers and acrobats; and the comic sketches by August and September are greatly appreciated. The Bioscope is entertaining with a series of pictures.

LEITH. — New Gaiety Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Two Little Drummer Boys is a production which appeals strongly to lovers of military drama, and its presentation by Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kimberley's touring company has drawn large houses this week to the Leith playhouse. The play is well acted by a capable cast, including Mr. Edward Bikker, who does well as General Kingsley, Mr. Andrew Money an excellent Captain Darrell, and Mr. Harry Lyndon a humorous Timothy Trimmer; with Miss B. Shirley as a very effective Alma Kingsley, Miss Edie Macklin, a lively Molly Meadows, and Miss M. Eversleigh, a sufficiently realistic drunken Meg. The name parts are pleasingly filled by Miss May Smart and Miss Eva Norman. Able support is also rendered by Mr. William Vane, Mr. Charles Gallier, Mr. Philip Redgrave, Mr. F. Imbert, Mr. Frank Hoyd, and Mr. Harry Greenburn, in the respective rôles of Captain Carsdale, Lieut. Kingsley, Major Kilkerran, Corporal O'Quirke, Jem Barker, and the Rev. John Rivers; and a drum and fife band, as well as occasional songs, add to the attractions of an enjoyable entertainment.

LICHFIELD.—St. James's Hall.—Mr. W. L. Dobell's company appeared here on Tuesday night in The Mockery of Marriage. Mr. S. Wardley, as Dick Kenyon, Mr. Conrad Heywood, Jack Stanley, Mr. A. Temple, Seth Pearce, and Mr. Dobell as Toby Wright were the principal members of the cast. Miss C. Brownpot was the Rose Vernham; Miss Norah Baker, Mary Ann Barnicoat; and Miss Maria Ellis, Alva Kenyon. The interpolated song by Miss Brownpot revealed an excellent voice of sympathetic quality. East Lynne was played on Wednesday night.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—The Two Hussars, presented by Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge, supplies a stirring series of military scenes, which rouse much enthusiasm.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—To another capital bill Howard and Harris supply a bright musical and medley act that is as genuinely funny as it is clever. Helen Charles sings charmingly and mimics faithfully, and Will Vay's Juveniles are a thorough success. Cyclo is a daring wheelman; Ted Saunders imitates R. G. Knowles and John Lawson interestingly. Frances Hasholl receives a great ovation for her illustrated songs, Walker and Lake sing and patter acceptably, and with Bosanquet's brilliant violin work, and Raymond's pretty Bio-Tableaux, there is, to use a hackneyed phrase, not a dull moment.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The dramatic season at the leading theatre was inaugurated on Monday evening with The Spring Chicken. Mr. George Gregory soon became popular, his every appearance on the stage provoking boundless merriment; Miss Irene Verona made an admirable Mrs. Girdle, delivering her lines with effect, and singing agreeably; as Rosalie, Miss Gertrude Glyn was vivacious and sweet; Mr. L. W. Harris afforded satisfaction as Gustave Babori; an exceedingly funny Felix was presented by Mr. C. D. Cleveland; Miss Gertrude Gilliam played carefully as Baroness Papouche, and Miss Rita Everard fitted the rôle of Dulcie Babori.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—The Still Alarm always proves popular in Liverpool, and its visit this week to the north end house has resulted in good business. The company presenting it is that of Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond. The former gentleman played his original part of Jack Manley in his usual capital style; Miss Maud Warburton was a sweet Elinore Fordham, Mr. Cecil Du Gue handled the rôle of John Bird with effect, Miss Hettie Zillwood was a merry Carrie Wilbur, and Mr. Fred Osmond was satisfactory as Doc Wilbur. Pleasing specialities were provided by the Brigade Quartet and the Lyric Comedy Four.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—An entertaining programme here is headed by Henry Roxbury and company in the musical mélange The Prince of Monte Carlo. The acting is good all-round, and the humour is delightful. The Black and White Zouaves, who bottom the bill, are exceedingly well received; Fred Curran delights the audience with his numbers; Annie Nelson, a Liverpool favourite of the concert platform, sings with artistic finish; Little Uno is good; Captain Ralston's naval act is well received; and Elton and Elma also contribute successfully.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Much public patronage has been bestowed upon The Little Bread Winner, presented at the popular Star during the week. Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is a particularly good one, and the scenery somewhat above the average. Mr. David Gordon holds the part of Richard Lawrence with every credit, Miss Maud Hastings as Margaret Daventry gives him good support, Mr. J. A. Campbell makes an admirable Lord Dorrington, the pathetic part of Meg is charmingly portrayed by little Emmie Thomas, Miss Lissa Young makes a delightful companion as Bobby Trott, Miss Maud Buchanan is graceful as Kate Cherry, and Mr. Allen Charles presents a laughable Charles Prior.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—Continuing their policy of introducing new plays to Liverpool, the management of this theatre have this week presented for the first time in this city Miss Lancashire, Ltd., which has been received with shouts of laughter. Miss Florence Baines and her company have had a most cordial reception. In the title-rôle that lady had a part which seemed to suit her to perfection; Miss Jennie Hallworth was a neat Eva Lancashire, Mr. Richard C. Hicks proved eminently amusing as the solicitor Fox, Mr. Payne Fleteher created great laughter as the fighting farmer Thompson; he was well supported by Miss Pattie Groves as the wife. Credit is also due to Mr. Horace Pollock for his humorous picture of the illiterate butler, and Mr. David Donaldson made the most of John Higgins.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Lessees, The Shakespeare Theatre Company, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—In consequence of the artists engaged here in the very successful pantomime Babes in the Wood having to leave for other engagements, the management are compelled to withdraw the production on the 24th inst. The pantomime could easily be run for several weeks longer, so great has been its popularity. On Tuesday the Bros. Egbert took a benefit, Mr. George Bastow had one on Friday, and a special performance of the pantomime was given on Thursday for the benefit of local charities.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Top of the bill here this week is R. A. Roberts with his clever sketch Dick Turpin, the smartness of his changes in character eliciting great applause and admiration; Miss Millie Lindon, after a brilliant season of pantomime at the Royal Court Theatre here, had a most cordial reception; Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq provoked much amusement with their Black Justice; Jennie Mackay sang with sweetness several Scotch songs; the Fitzroys are a good turn as society gymnasts; Gittis and their dog are amusing; Stephens and Rennior are smart duettists and dancers; Charles Lilburn shows much originality as a comedian; the Picquays have a novel entertainment, including an upside down sand dance; Mora and Lola present a novelty musical act; and Irving Jones, the funny little black man, gives an amusing turn.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Harry Ford, the popular comedian, is at the top of the bill here this week, while other excellent artists in the same line who also appear are Whit Cunliffe and Charles R. Whittle. The result of having such talent on the same programme has been that crowded audiences have proved the order of the week. And the rest of the bill is also excellent. Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs present a lovely illuminated scena, A Japanese Tea Garden by Night; the Musical Jees have an amusing sketch, The Scarecrow; Wyndham Waters, with their vocal comedy act, The Professor and the Pupil, are both clever and funny; the Donatos, the one-legged clowns, displayed surprising agility; Elver ton, the spinning marvel, was an item of interest; some smart work as baton swingers, banjo, song and dance artists was performed by the Two Dixons; and others who appeared were Levarni on the tight-wire, and Nina Elmo, comedienne.

New Parthenon.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Bert Williams, a smart novelty ventriloquist, heads the bill here this week, his show being an interesting one; as a comedian, Fred O'Malley provides an excellent turn; Billy Brown renders some taking songs, and this week has specially given "St. Patrick's Day"; as a comedienne and dancer, Millie Carson affords every satisfaction; the Two Sparks are expert lady drummers, and Dan Lyndon shines as a comedian. Brown's Bioscope has some admirable pictures.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Good business continues to be done here by Percy Boucher's stock company, the play selected this week being A Woman of the People, in seven tableaux. Mr. Boucher handled well the part of Remy, and was strongly supported by Mr. Harry Tresham (Bertrand), Mr. E. D. Allen (Dr. Appiani), Mr. Cecil Ravenswood (Dr. Barthiell), and Miss Beryl Ravenswood (Adele). Some fine pictures are shown by Brown's Bioscope.

Paddington Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The principal part of the programme here this week is taken up with the dramatic sketch, A Woman's Sin, played by Mr. W. L. Lee and company. Mr. F. S. Hulme, a talented actor-vocalist, makes a welcome reappearance, and Jake Euston, Creole speciality comedian and dancer, submits an acceptable turn.

Park Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Marks and Weisker's Scotch spectacle Highland Games and Dances is in big type here this week, and has proved attractive. The original Arleys with their gymnastic pot-pourri, introducing well-trained dogs, have afforded much pleasure; Alma Obrey, Australian character comedienne, provides an interesting turn; as an eccentric comedian, Mr. H. O. Wills is very funny; the male impersonations of Miss Thirza Hirst are a pleasing feature; the Harlem Bros. are able speciality artists, and Adderley Bros. are good as duettists and dancers.

Haymarket.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Heading the bill here this week is the sketch company of Ernest Montefiore presenting The Little Colonel. Rappo and Ella are smart equilibrists and acrobats, as Irish comedians and dancers Brindall and Cooper are a good turn, Harry Bent is a novel mimic and has a neat trifle "A peep into the music hall," Nellie Rose sings and dances well, and others who appear are Carlotta Lunn (comedienne and ballad vocalist) and George Hyam (comedian).

Westminster.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—A capital all-round entertainment is given here this week by Amann, comedian, and Rivilli, equilibrist, which has been loudly applauded; Oliver Conroy, eccentric character comedian, has won popularity; two Liverpool lads, Davies and Roberts, give an amusing entertainment as dancers, players on the tin whistle, spoons, and a street organ; some smart mimicry is shown by Fred Horsfall; Zano Bros. are clever comedians on the triple bar, the Bonanzas display much ability as hand-balancing acrobats and staircase performers, and Maude Kaye also appears.

Olympia.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—There is a particularly strong programme here this week. Foremost is the "Human Bullet" from the London Hippodrome, the act being watched with breathless interest; Miss Kellerman, who attempted to swim the English Channel, gives an interesting turn, showing many ways of entering the water; Hengler's water novelty, A Village Wedding, puts in a last week; some exceedingly smart work is done on the bicycle by A. D. Robbins; James Fawn and J. W. Rickaby are a couple of excellent comedians; the Wally Hoste Trio of acrobats, comedians, and jugglers provide a pleasing entertainment; Sinclair and Parr have a neat vocal entracte Keeping an Appointment, and others in the list are Ryan and Hall (acrobatic comedians), and Arthur Melrose (whistling comedian).

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Messrs. Chesney and Sanderson and Miss Bessie Elma's company in The Power and the Glory is here this week. Miss Elma is very good as Kate Goodluck, alias Muriel Criterion; Mr. A. Fitzmaurice as Harry Goodluck, a young sailor, is most successful, as also is Mr. Reginald Fox in the part of Harold Hartree. As Ferdinand Crayle, the swell mobsman, Mr. Richard Webb is well placed; Mr. Douglas Hitchings scores as Johnnie Dyce-Morris; Mr. Chas. F. Johnson as Forward of the gang puts in some excellent work; Miss Mary Lovett is a sympathetic Lizzie Medwin; Miss Fanny Olive as Lady Gwendoline wins approval; and Miss Flo Florence as Linda, a blind girl, is clever.

LONG EATON.—Lyceum Theatre.—Quite a big house received Mr. J. W. Morton's company in The Rajah of Ranjanpore, a racing and musical burlesque, with sparkling business. The Sisters Howard (Queenie and Amando) are clever singers and dancers. The situations are often amusing, centring on the doings of Ernest Travers, disguised as an artist, and an adventurer, both in love with Primrose, the daughter of a retired pickle merchant. Miss Nell Ascott takes this part with success; Mr. P. Piercy Watson is the real Rajah; Mr. James Sterling is the adventurer; and Mr. Henry Sinclair scores as the showman.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Hall Caine's drama The Christian is being played here by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's capable company. Mr. Alfred Goddard displays ability and power as the Hon. John Storm, and Miss Laura Walker's impersonation of Glory Quayle leaves little to be desired. Mr. Colin Johnston does well as Archdeacon Wealthy, and Mr. Harry Colbeck makes a favourable impression as Father Lamplugh. In the rôle of Lord Robert Ure Mr. Percy Twyman is good, as is Mr. Duncan Yarrow as Horatio Drake. Mr. Jack Hames shines as Mr. Lorimer, and Mr. Charles Stafford is a capable Brother Paul. Miss Florence Radcliffe is clever as Polly Love, and Mrs. Callander has an excellent exponent in Miss Violet Vivian.

LOWESTOFT. — Marina.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—A Wrecker of Men is being admirably performed here this week by Mr. C. Watson Mill's company. As the burglar, Jim Murley, Mr. Mill presents a careful study, and is most effective throughout; Mr. Gilson Brooke is suitably placed as Railton, and Mr. Milner Noble submits a capital rendering as Pharosophus. Guise Strange finds a good exponent in Mr. Percy Horton; and others worthy of mention are Messrs. N. Carter Slaughter (the Hon. Reggie Verincourt), Henry Rutland, and Alfred Maurice. Miss Rosalind Tate submits a capital piece of acting as Risca Mallison, and Miss Cissie Podmore is thoroughly efficient as Doris Melville. A fine character-sketch is presented by Miss Beatrice Reynolds in the rôle of Marion Isaacs. The Sorrows of Satan is announced for the latter end of the week.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Evan Roland and company are playing here this week in The Guilty Man. Mr. Alfred D. Adams as James Redman submits a sound performance. Mr. Harold B. Lewis finds ample scope to display his undoubted abilities as George Seymour; Mr. Edmund O'Grady as Esau Hebron is successful; Mr. Leonard Anthony as General Seymour gives a dignified portrayal; Mr. Hill Cremer as Sir Lawrence is well received; Mr. Evan Roland as Paddy Crowe is humorous; and in, conjunction with Miss Sybil Haughton as Sukie, makes a laughable couple; Miss Lily Lewis as Aubrey Priestley is charming; and Miss Muriel Inglis as Nell Radford is fully equal to all demands.

MAIDENHEAD.—Town Hall.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—W. F. Jury's Imperial Bioscope company, here for a week, is delighting crowded houses. The pictures are wonderfully clear and free from flickering, and the subjects are varied and well selected. Mr. James W. Hortin sings illustrated songs most acceptably; and Musical Ritter has an amusing way of demonstrating his thorough command of several musical instruments.

MANCHESTER.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—That very charming sentimental play, Sweet and Twenty, is being given here this week by Messrs. Glenister and Wood-Ingram's company, by arrangement with Messrs. A. and S. Gatti and Charles Frohman. The pretty story it unfolds gives the cast opportunities for unusually delicate acting, and the performance, as a whole, is both enjoyable and refined. The part of Joan Trevelyan is played with gracious tenderness by Miss Ethel Weyburn, and some fine work is put in by Messrs. Stephen Wentworth and Lionel Glenister as the Brothers, and Mr. Drelincourt Odlum as the Rev. James Floyd; while the minor rôles are filled satisfactorily by Miss Dorothy Carrington, Miss Isabel Grey, Miss Zeta Russell, Mr. J. W. Wood-Ingram, and Mr. Gus Wheatman. A comedietta precedes.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character, as presented here on Monday by Mr. Douglas Bruce's company, proved a very interesting and absorbing drama. The principal characters in a well-balanced company are rendered with great success by Miss Marie McAulay, Mr. Frank Adair, Mr. Wingold Lawrence, Mr. Henry Herne, and Miss Ada Marius; while others deserving of commendation are Miss Ethel Bracewell, Miss Madge Maynard, and Messrs. Albert H. Clarke and C. Hammond Asquin. The magnificent staging and numerous properties are on an elaborate scale, notably the Carlton Hotel scene, which alone contributes much to the success of the piece. The play had a good reception, arousing great interest and amusement.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company, in the original version of East Lynne, is the attraction here this week. The drawing powers of this lachrymose play seem unabated, and if tears are induced, laughter also reigns, by virtue of the recurrent witticisms of the famous P.C. Bullock, which personage, represented by Mr. Lloyd Townrow, does much toward producing something like a balance of interest. The principal parts are in the hands of Mr. Alfred Beaumont (Archibald Carlyle), Mr. Eric Mayne (Francis Levison), and Miss Julie Kennard (Lady Isabel); but among the remainder of the cast, Misses Ethel Hardacre, Violet Thorold, and A. Byron are deserving of particular praise. The performance is, however, good throughout.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A very good programme here comprises Man v. Motor, in which Davies and Gledhill astonish the audience; Horace Sade, speciality dancer; the Three Clarions in a musical sketch; Arthur Slater, whistler; the Ringlings, American eccentrics; Ernesto, smart juggler and equilibrist; Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator, in The Synagogue; and Fred Casburn, comedian, who, however, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth, played by Mr. Fredk. Melville's company, is the week's sensation here. The principal characters are ably portrayed by Miss Beatrice Horner, in the title-rôle, and Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merriman; while a large proportion of comic element is supplied by Mr. Tubby Edlin, Mr. Henry Williams, Mr. Stuart Roberts, and Miss Nellie Jackson. Miss Margaret Watson does well as an Italian girl. The play is well staged and attractive.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Mr. Coleman Davies and company are here this week in an interesting and amusing comedy-drama, Money Makes the Man. Mr. Coleman Davies has a fine part as Podophylin, and he is capitally supported by Mr. Terry Davies, Mr. S. Forth, Miss Ada Gower, and the various members of a capable cast. The week's programme includes three performances of No Escape, by R. C. Davies.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—A short, but sensational item is provided here this week by Wizard Stone and Irene Stone, who, in "The Globe of Life," an immense steel cage, defy the laws of gravitation on bicycles and a motor-cycle, the latter going at a rate of forty miles an hour. Malcolm Scott, "the woman who knows," gives popular samples of his sarcastic patter; Cullen and Carthy, comedians, sing, talk, and dance well; the Brothers Zampah, one-legged equilibrists, give an exceedingly smart show; Leo Tell, the mimic, amply sustains his unique reputation as a reproducer of animal and other sounds; the Carina Sisters contribute a fine musical turn; Hettie Chattell sings her character songs in clever and acceptable style; and Kent and Keith are smart duologue artists. The Palace pictures show a sensational series, called "The Train Wreckers."

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Collins.—A big attraction here this week is Mrs. Brown Potter and company in Mary, Queen of Scots; and the Murder of Rizzio, a dramatic historical episode presented in an excellent manner and well received. May Edouin and Fred Edwards are seen to great advantage in A Bachelor's Dream, Miss Edouin being particularly clever; Sable Fern, "the dandy cowboy," sings, "Iona, of Arizona," in a very pleasing style; and much applause is gained by Stewart and Morgan for their harmonious rendering of popular Irish melodies. Fyne and Hurley are exceedingly funny, and create no end of laughter with their Coster and Dude incident and burlesque boxing; W. H. Downs, the coloured tenor, sings well; the Sisters Finney are seen in an artistic aquatic exhibition; Drawee, Frisco, and Hambo are amusing comedy jugglers; Sam Soda improvises in a creditable way; and an incident in the life of Sherlock Holmes is vividly depicted on the bioscope.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The big turns here this week are provided by Richard Sawade's lions, dogs, bears, and tigers, who go through a thrilling performance; and Tarro Myaki, who is demonstrating nightly his claims to be considered the champion jiu-jitsu wrestler of the world. This capital programme is made up also of the Five Bollatzer Sisters, in a unique act; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Findon, in A Desperate Remedy; the Bohemians, instrumentalists; the Mannons, in Uncle Yank; Sable Fern, the dandy cowboy; Amann and Hartley, in The Naughty Professor; and two vocal items by the choir; all of which are highly pleasing. The bioscope reproduces a recent important football match.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Fanny Wentworth, the well-known society entertainer, is here this week, and is very successful in her original sketches at the piano. Another popular turn is that of Daisy Jerome, a talented comedienne, who sings three songs in her usual effective manner, and is ably assisted by the Little American Belle. Florence and Lilian contribute a delightfully artistic musical act; Fred Herbert, topical vocalist, makes a hit; and Fred Carey, comedian, is extremely funny. Other enjoyable items are those of Les Valdos, in clever knockabout act; the twin sisters Edwards (Clara and Lucia), vocalists and dancers; Alec Kennedy, actor-vocalist; and Raymond's vivagraph. Nellie Randall did not appear on the night of our visit.

King's, Longsight.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls and company are to be seen here this week in a highly-amusing sketch entitled The Battle of the Belles, which causes much laughter. De Henau uses his toes instead of his fingers in a surprising fashion; Arthur Holland is a good vocal comedian with pleasing style; Violet Thorne, a promising juvenile, has a sweet voice; Aladina introduces some highly-trained cockatoos; Harry Thurston successfully impersonates several music-hall artists; the Five Saxonias give an enjoyable musical act; Francis Manners sings "In the good old days," and J. C. Laurie is a funny comedian.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Henry Carlton and company offer here this week an amusing absurdity entitled One Night Only, and are received with evident satisfaction. Witty Watty Walton is also here, and causes much laughter with his Casey at the Goal and newer quips. Moto, eccentric musical comedian, plays cleverly; Mozzetto is a smart juggler; McCann does some good roller-skate dancing; La Petite Voltaire sings prettily; Wallace Whitney and Clifton and Gibson contribute amusing patter and songs; and Beattie Foster presents low-comedy characters satisfactorily. "A Spanish Bull Fight" is shown on the bioscope.

Hippodrome (Hulme). — Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Clement Trio, in a novel trapeze act, head the bill here this week, and are well received; Dawson Dowick sings and patters very amusingly; and some exceptionally clever business is done by Marstro and Oretta, eccentric equilibrists and tumblers. The quaint humour of Harry Nelson, comedian, provokes much laughter, and Oakdene introduces a clever and original ventriloquial scena. Other good turns are provided by the Andreassen Bros.; Phillips and Merritt, comedy duo; Dobito and Buxton, vocalists; and the Lorrisons, comedy couple. The pictures are excellent.

MANSFIELD. — Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Morella and Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—The Throne of Terror is being presented here by Mr. Wm. J. Miller and company. In the character of Robespierre Mr. Wm. J. Miller displays his powers as an actor to the fullest extent; Mr. W. Williams as the spy is good; Capt. Eugene de Lisle is well played by Mr. Roy Milton; Mr. A. W. Thompson as Comte de Roquefort plays his part admirably; Victorine D'Almonte has an admirable exponent in Miss Augusta Tullock; Miss Katherine Maude Davies impersonates Marguerite de Roquefort with much feeling.

Victoria Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Fox.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company occupied the boards here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. On Monday, when The Merchant of Venice was given, the character of Antonio was in the capable hands of Mr. G. F. Hannam-Clark; Mr. Frank Darch as Bassanio played with power; and Mr. Arthur Phillips as Shylock played with great intensity. Miss May Webb made an artistic Portia; Miss Katherine Reynolds was effective as Nerissa; Jessica was capably presented by Miss Christine Laws; and Mr. F. Manning Sproston made an admirable Lorenzo. Gratiano, in the hands of Mr. John Cairns, caused great amusement.

MARGATE.—The Hippodrome.—Sole proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Crowded houses are again the order at this popular place of amusement. The Brothers Venola are a clever pair of gymnasts; J. C. Crawley proves himself an exceptionally smart vocal and instrumental mimic; whilst a pleasing feature in the programme is My Mountain Maid, a capital little scena, excellently written, composed, and acted by Miss Vi Caryle. As a droll comedian, Chas. Sloman causes much amusement; Mahatma delights the audiences in her novel and mystic entertainment. Roars of laughter are caused by Keith and Merson in their acrobatic hunting absurdity, The Meet. The Hippodrome pictures are again both instructive and amusing.

Hall-by-the-Sea.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—The "Chas. W." Poole Myriorama is here this week. Some capital variety turns are given during the evening by the following artists: Daisy Graham, with her collection of trained birds; Little Dorretta, song and acrobatic dance artist; Harry Stewart, American protean change artist; Kitty Woodford, comedienne; the Avondale Quartette; Leonard and Mac, eccentric side-walk patterers; Cecil F. Couper, descriptive vocalist; Kitty Woodford's Canine Circus, and a series by an efficient, all-round company. Mr. Stanley Cooke again undertakes the rôle of Lord Fancourt Babberly, and proves as diverting as of yore; the Stephen Spettigue of Mr. Walter Beaumont is an excellent character, and Mr. S. B. Keston lends valuable assistance as Sir Francis Chesney; Mr. Hastings Lynn as Jack Chesney and Mr. Richard B. Mason as Charley Wykeham keep the fun going merrily, and Mr. Sydney Compton is of valuable assistance as Brasset. Miss Ruth Suffield, Miss Marion Ripley, and Miss Dorothy Deacon are all reponsible for charming impersonations. The farce is preceded by a one-act play, entitled Fourchette and Co.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. Charles Frohman presents Mr. Huntley Wright here this week in the farce The Mountain Climber. Mr. Huntley Wright as Montague Sibsey, posing in the eyes of an adoring wife and family as a famous Alpine climber, is irresistibly amusing; Mr. R. W. Staveley is exceedingly clever as Samuel Midgham; the Dr. Charles Midgham of Mr. Montague Elphinstone is a truthful impersonation of the faithful lover; Mr. Eric Maturin interprets the part of Arthur Lydbrook with praiseworthy success; Mr. T. McCausland Stewart and Mr. J. Sebastian Smith as Sidney Ketton and Watson Frimley act in an able manner; Mr. Algernon Newark and Mr. Scott Craven supply good studies of Swiss guides. Miss Kate Mills is very happy as Mrs. Montague Sibsey, and Miss Christine McGill and Miss Dora Barton as Alice and Betty are excellent. The Little Father of the Wilderness, which precedes the chief piece, gives Mr. Wright an opportunity of showing in the part of Père Marlotte (a Jesuit priest) that he is quite as clever an exponent of sentiment as of comedy.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—A version of Sapho by Mr. Birkett Winning occupies the boards here this week. Miss Annie Bell in the title-rôle acts with great power and feeling; Mr. Pringle Roberts gives a talented rendering of the part of Jean Gausin; Mr. Francis Serle as Cesaire le Fenat is excellent; Mr. H. Langford as Eugene Flamant plays with praiseworthy ability, and Mr. Archie Helsby as Caoudal and Mr. Laurence Kingsley as Paul Dechelette give finished portrayals. Mr. Chas. M. Daly and Miss Florence Graham as Father Legrand and Machaume respectively are responsible for a good deal of fun. A word of praise is due to little Miss Doris Graham, who acts naturally as the child Joseph.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Miss Nettie Ware and Millar Anderson's company in the sensational drama, entitled When Woman Hates, is fulfilling a week's engagement at the popular Byker house. Mr. Jerrold Heather is a finished and clever representative of Fred Rokeby, and a commendable impersonation of the villainous Godfrey Lawton is forthcoming from Mr. Millar Anderson; Mr. Charles Herbrantre is brought into prominence by an earnest rendition of Sir Henry Rokeby, and the Irish humour of Pat O'Brien as played by Mr. Frank Litchfield is acceptable. Miss Dorothy Lupone creates a favourable impression as Nell Rokeby; Miss Mabel Mannering sustains with skill the rôle of Cora Daintry, and Miss Maud Townsend contributes an excellent study as Marie Rokeby; Miss Eleanor Papera as Sally Potts and Miss Helen Richmond as the daughter cause infinite amusement.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—After his success in the Royal pantomime, Dan Rolyat prolongs his stay in Newcastle for another week, and his engagement at the Empire has proved vastly popular. His first effort is an amusing number, entitled "Sufficient," intermingled with some extraordinary tumbling feats, and then he describes in his quaint style his adventures as a football referee, which resulted in a well-deserved encore. The Aurora Troupe display wonderful daring and ability as trick cyclists; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, proves his versatility with an acceptable concoction; "Il Trovatore" and "Violets" are the selections La Tostia skilfully renders on the mandoline; Terley, plastic figure performer, is an act that deserves success if only for its novelty; Sybil St. Elmo sings with much charm and expression; Katie Butler warbles a low comedy song. Fred E. Terry (comedian) at once claims attention, the Rinaldos (comic balancers) hit the popular fancy, and the Bioscope reappears on the programme with an extremely funny picture.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Large audiences here this week have greeted George Robey, who returns after a brief absence, and proves vastly amusing in old and new favourite songs. A distinctly meritorious act is given by the Aeolians (six in number) whose vocalism is exceedingly enjoyable; Mulvey and Miriam meet with a rousing reception in their studio speciality, and an excellent ventriloquial act is submitted by Richardson Taylor; Lily Flexmore's dancing exhibition elicits loud applause, and the Donovans, sentimental vocalists, score a well-deserved success; the Passports are a notable turn, Dave O'Toole is a clever comedian, and the Barrascope is the concluding item.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Beerbohm Tree's company is here with Oliver Twist. Mr. Wm. Mackintosh plays Fagin with remarkable power, and a wealth of unobtrusive power; Mr. Cecil A. Collins acts Bill Sikes with ability; and Miss Hutin Britton's Nancy has a note of pathos which specially appeals. The Mr. Grimwig of Mr. Clifford Bower is truly humorous; Mr. Miller Davis gives a good study of Giles; and Miss Hilda Dick is a sweet Rose Maylie. Mr. Harvey Bratan as Harry Maylie is attractive, Mr. Ashton Pearce does well as Monks, and Miss Gertrude Lang is a pathetic little figure as Oliver Twist. Other characters are excellently played by Messrs. Tom Macfarlane, Edgar J. Coyne, Christmas Gorse Max Montesole, Ben Lewin, Somers Bellamy, Miss Edith King, Miss Elsie Carter, Miss Betha, and others.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Heading the bill here are the Sleodes, who provide a most laughable turn; the Kellinos pay a welcome return visit, and are applauded in their thrilling performance. Payne's Little Vagabonds are a smart troupe; the Cape Girls are expert dancers; and Kyoto does some wonderfully clever conjuring feats, while May Geraldine sings a taking song. Howe and Asdie, in their sketch, Up in a Balloon, get through some clever knockabout work; and Esdale Bros. present a turn that is appreciated

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. George Dance's company, under the management of Mr. J. Alban Newton, has furnished a delightful entertainment in the merry musical piece Lady Madcap, in which Miss Vera Vere makes a spirited Lady Betty. Miss Kathleen Romayne is a pleasing and piquant Gwenny Holden, Miss Peggy Primrose gains well-deserved applause for her acting and dancing in the part of Susan, Miss M. Johnstone is a charming Mrs. Layton. Mr. Alex Chentrens makes a hit in the part of Count de St. Hubert; Mr. Bay Russell in the part of Bill Stratford is a most amusing scoundrel, whilst Mr. Fred Payne as his pal, Posh Jenkins, is a comical scoundrel. The R.A. Hussar officers are well represented by Mr. Lyall Grant, Mr. Fred C. Leister, Mr. Robert Cranny, and Mr. E. Whitelock; Lord Framlingham finds a good representative in Mr. Louis Du Cane; Mr. Vincent Erne causes much amusement as Corporal Ham, and Mr. H. V. Surrey is highly successful as Oroya Brown.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—John Grun Marx, "the king of all strong men," displays abnormal strength in weight-lifting, the Motramos are paying a return visit in their pleasing and comical musical act, Musical Silvo gives an expert performance upon novel instruments, Rosie Walters is successful in her song "Fishing." Beatty and Blanche are tuneful duettists and capable dancers, Ida Kathrena presents a doll scena with effect, Nina Carlton is a pleasing comedienne, Ada Maude makes an imposing appearance as a descriptive vocalist, and the Palace pictures are new and interesting.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The boards here this week are occupied by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company with The Silver King. As Wilfred Denver Mr. Herbert Ford gives an excellent portrayal of the character; Miss Daisy Scudamore is an artistic Nellie Denver; Mr. Edward J. George scores his usual success with his capital impersonation of Jaikes; and Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is clever as The Spider; Mr. Arthur Wright gives a satisfactory interpretation of Elijah Coombe, Mr. James L. Power achieves much success as Henry Cooket, Mr. W. Thompson makes the most of Cripps, Mr. E. Arnold Palmer is a capable Geoffrey Ware, and Mr. Byron Pedley is well placed as Samuel Baxter. Miss Amy Manfree displays much ability as Cissy, Miss Amy Wood proves equal to the demands of Tabitha Durden, Master Jack Evans plays prettily as Ned, and the remaining parts are all in capable hands.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The company engaged here includes the Four Juggling Geraldos, who introduce a clever act, Mr. Ben Hur, described as the "ideal athlete," performs some marvellous feats, and Miss Emma Don and her black and white Comedy Quartette meet with a cordial reception; Mlle. Henrietta in her vocal and musical entertainment is much admired; Miss Ada Whittoh (male impersonator) is clever, Mr. J. E. Wilkes (vocal comedian) goes well, and the Bio-photoscope continues.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Lester Wright.—A large audience assembled here on Monday to witness the performance of Her One Great Sin, by Miss Blanche St. Albans' and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company. The company shows no weaknesses, and the drama is beautifully staged. As Grace Warhurst, Miss Blanche St. Albans plays in a skilful manner; Mr. Sam Arthur scores a success as Reuben Warhurst. In the character of Squire Thornhill, Mr. J. Leicester Jackson proves himself a villain of the deepest dye; Mr. Fred Hodson, in the character of Jerry Jumble, causes much merriment; much credit is due to Miss Nellie Lambert as Nancy Winpenny; Mr. Chas. E. Lambert and Miss Louie Walton give clever character-studies of the parts of Dan and Bet Hundle; Miss Maudie Lambert, as little Grace, proves herself a talented child actress; and as Charlie, a flower seller, Miss Phyllis Damian is all that can be desired.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company is here this week in I Defy the World. Mr. Lewis Gilbert admirably performs the part of Leon Darville, whilst Mr. Charles Conway ably embodies Laroche; Mr. Dunlop Stewart and Mr. Dalston J. Bosher ably assist in their representations, and Mr. Charles M. Julian is amusing as the Cockney tourist; Miss Maud Malvern acts well as the faithless wife, and Miss G. Coats is a pleasing Fanchette.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—The Eight Zinlians give a clever Risley performance; Mlle. Lucretia is a pleasing dancer; the Maples are good duettists, whilst Curtis and Vanity are entertaining as comedy duettists; Mlle. Lumière, assisted by Mr. D. J. Birteno, gives a capital turn with electrical effects; Fred Clements is a successful humorist, and the Grigson Trio create much fun in their absurdity, The Dummy; George Helm and Emmie Cozens also render a humorous sketch, entitled The Doctor and the Patient. The Hippo Bioscope continues attractive.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—What the Butler Saw pays its first visit here, and the rattling comedy went merrily along on Monday night to the accompaniment of hearty laughter. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink is the very essence of humour, and continually provokes his audience to unrestrained hilarity. Miss Ada Blanche is a host in herself, and the character of Mrs. Barrington gives every chance to her comedy talent, which the house is not slow to recognise; Mr. Charles Fawcett contributes an irresistibly droll sketch of the volatile, slippery, and easy-going Jack Barrington; Mr. Reddick Anderson aptly assumes the well-bred and aristocratic mannerisms of Sir Charles Foden, and the irascible General Dunlop is capitally depicted by Mr. George Ascott; Mr. Harry H. Rignold is well suited as the Jew, Weinstein, and Mr. George Beale plays easily as Sidney Clifford. Miss Grace Richardson makes a winsome and graceful Nora, and Miss Marie Daltra scores in the trying part of Miss Foden.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—At Duty's Call, a thrilling episode of the Soudan, is well presented by Mr. John Gerant's company. In the part of Harold Allison, so long played by him, Mr. Gerant acts with intensity and vigour; and as Captain Allison, Mr. Frank V. Fenn submits a careful study; the General Gordon of Mr. Ernest St. John is sharply defined, effective, and convincing; Mr. Eric V. Rees ably portrays the slave Hassan, and Mr. J. F. Lewis makes an admirable Abdallah. Miss Marie Menzies is tender and charming as Dora Drummond; Miss Georgina Hamilton is sufficiently forcible in her rendering of Salema, Mr. Harry Ugar gives a humorous portrayal of Terry O'Halloran, and Jack Spencer becomes a lively character in the hands of Mr. Gywn Richardson. A bright and merry lady's maid is seen in Miss Harlington, and the little drummer boy is capitally played by Mr. Ivan Mavis.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edgar O. Waller.—Following on the lines of Mr. Macnaghten's London houses, two performances nightly are now given, and the inauguration on Monday last proved a great success. Fred Southern and Co. appeared in a small piece, entitled Only a Trooper, which found instant favour. Mr. Southern was well supported by Misses Gipsy Alexander, Ada Frank, and Messrs. Percy Emery, Frank Delmere, Courtney Robinson, and C. H. Handon. Hearty laughter was obtained in the comedy sketch The Private Hotel; specialities were also introduced by the Delomes, Kit Keen (comedian), Tony Iveson (a smart performer on the piano), Sisters Rene (duettists), Geo. Victor (vocalist), and Raymond's Bio-tableaux of animated pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Chung Ling Soo is drawing immense houses nightly, and the dexterity of his unique conjuring tricks is the delight and wonderment of all; Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten is always sure of a welcome, the youngsters fairly revelling in their singing and comical patter; the Edgar Forrest Sketch Combination provides several merry moments, and laughter is abundantly provided by Terry and Lambert, the American humorists; a gymnastic display by the Paxton Trio calls forth high praise for its neatness and finish; the Dumond Minstrels are accorded hearty applause for their singing and instrumental turn; the Sisters Mariano submit some daring and clever trapeze feats, and an acrobatic item by the O'Learys proves a smart performance.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—For the first three nights of this week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company presented The Christian, and was accorded a good reception. Mr. Alfred Goddard's vigorous portrayal of John Storm makes an excellent impression; Glory Quayle is delineated in a meritorious manner by Miss Laura Walker; Lord Robert Ure is capably presented by Mr. Percy Twyman; Mr. Harry Colbeck makes an impressive Father Lamplugh; Mr. Duncan Jarrow is good as Horatio Drake, and a capital Polly Love is found in Miss Florence Radcliffe. The piece is excellently staged. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday Mr. Chas. Macdona's company with Three Little Maids occupied the boards.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hulse.—The attraction for the week is Alfred Sutro's successful play, The Walls of Jericho, represented by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, under the direction of Messrs. Dauncey and Leveaux, which received a hearty welcome at the hands of a good house. Mr. Herbert Bunston as Jack Frobisher, the man who "made his pile" in Queensland, has a good part, of which he makes the most; and his chum, Hanky Bannister, as played by Mr. G. A. Brandram, is a capital study of the man who has "struck ile"; the excellent acting of Miss Florence Jackson and Miss Molly Carton as Lady Althea Frobisher and Lady Lucy Debenham, adds greatly to the success of the play; and Miss Lydia Busch, as Lady Westerby, is well to the fore. The company all round is an admirable one, and the minor parts are ably filled by Messrs. Hamilton, Percy, Baleine, Heywood, Gibbon, Walters, Fletcher, and Norris; and Mesdames Edwin, Cuthbert, O'Neill, Frances, and Emden.

COLISEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. J. Ball.—The patrons of this theatre are being entertained with Miss Mary Austin's company in The Cotton Spinner, an old favourite here. The Rayograph displayed a good assortment of pictures for half-an-hour before the play began. The scenery and dresses for the production are pretty, and the drama is well acted. As the Lancashire Cotton Spinner (John Prescott), Mr. John S. Haydon acted in a fine style, and Mr. Edwin F. Fysher ably portrays the part of the aristocratic Lord Northbury, Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds acting Arthur Northbury, his son, in a capable manner. Miss Mary Austin plays with her usual care as Mary Prescott, and is a great success; Miss Enid Ross and Miss Bella Power as Constance Harrington and Lady Charlotte Needy are very good, and the other parts are all in capable hands. The piece is produced under the direction of Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Howgate.—The bill here is headed by Haley's Prize Juveniles, among whom are Dot and Spot, the smallest duettists appearing in public, the latter had to respond to repeated calls; Lily Lonsdale sang well, and her efforts were thoroughly appreciated; Starr and Leslie did a good turn of singing and club swinging. Baroni and Kemp gave a skilful quick-change performance. The Steinway Quartette were very good in "Songs of the Sea"; C. Diamond and Miss Beatrice gave a musical turn with the harp and saxophone; Ernie Myers, with his patter, caused roars of laughter, and the Cabiacs, in a good acrobatic performance, and Miss Violet Morgan, mimic, also appeared.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Miss Edie Gray and her white coons top the bill and sing various humorous selections in a pleasing manner; Hill and Lane appear in an acrobatic sketch, "Home Lessons"; a novel turn is given by Ford and Barras, the dancing of the former being exceptionally good. A dancing competition is taking place nightly, prizes being given by the management. Grace Merton (vocalist), Will Souls (laughing comedian), Loudoun Cameron (who does a good sleight-of-hand show), and the Sisters Russell (Ida and Lil) also appear. The Dottoscope was very good as usual with a new series of animated pictures.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company, in Mr. Hopkinson, is proving a great attraction here this week. Miss Helen Russell makes an interesting Lady Tyra; Miss Blanka Stewart is a handsome and attractive Duchess; and Miss Frances Davie is admirably suited as Eliza Dibbs. Mr. Edward Vaughan is very effective as Lord Gawthorpe; Mr. Charles Esdaile is the aristocratic Duke to the life; Mr. George Desmond is just the easy and well-bred Mr. Dursingham that the part demands; Mr. Cecil Burt contributes a capital sketch of character as the Earl of Addleton; and Mr. Edward Rigby fairly convulses the house with his droll impersonation of Samuel Hopkinson. The Impossible Trio makes an interesting curtain-raiser, and is also well performed. A violin solo by Miss Evelyn Tyser is introduced, and met with marked favour from the house.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—A great attraction is provided by Jack Cromo's burlesque Dainty Dolly Varden. As Sir Rotter de Rot Mr. Clarence Ibbotson proves himself a capable and versatile artist, while Messrs. Carl and Carr are a fund of amusement as Johnny Stout and Billy Green. Mr. Jack Cromo gives a humorous and finished representation of Dame Varden, Miss Edna Cragge sings and acts delightfully as Boy Blue, and Miss Flo Melville is admirable as Tom Tucker. Miss Amy Randolph presents an effective portrayal of Dolly Varden, while Miss Lilla Kedwards is graceful and winsome as Marjory Daw. Some clever and picturesque dances are contributed by the Four Sydney Girls. The scenery, which is above the average, is pretty and effective.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A return visit before disbanding of Mr. Savile's pantomime The Sleeping Beauty is evidently a very welcome one to local playgoers, as it loses none of its vitality by further acquaintance. The exponents of the different characters repeat excellent work. Miss Ethel Wilson as the Prince has a pleasing manner, and delights her appreciative listeners, while Miss Marie Adair acts with grace and vivacity as the Princess. Superlatively good are the trio of comedians—Mr. Peter D. Bermingham as Jake M'Craw, Mr. Willie Garvey as Belinda Butterscotch, and Mr. George Hestor as Count Crankiwitz. Mr. Dan O'Connor is unflagging in his efforts as King Henpeckina, and Mr. Arthur Ferriss is brisk and racy as Prince Tommy. Miss Alma Evelyne wins golden opinions for her vocalisation and deportment as Queen Henpeckina; Miss Florence Lister submits a clever portrayal of Furiana, and sings extremely well; Miss Kitty Jones is a decided success as Benevolentia, and renders her songs in brilliant style; and bright and vivacious impersonations are furnished by Miss Ettie Cinders as Ladida and Miss Annie Wright as Pipette.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—This week the programme here includes Read and Wright (Tom and Elsie), comedy top-boot dancers; Walter Gunn, vocal comedian; Halma, juggler; Lily Wright, comedienne and dancer; Jack Macormack, Scotch comedian; Funny West, comedian; and Prof. McArthur, magician.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Charles Edwardes presents Alexander Loftus and company in The New Barmaid here this week, and the popularity of this musical comedy is drawing excellent houses. Mr. Joseph Montague in his original character of Bertie White, as played by him over two thousand times, and Miss Elsie Ellinger in the title-rôle, are the outstanding features of a most enjoyable representation. Dances are given by Miss Lottie Stone's Trio, and the cake-walk is presented by Miss Violet Osmund and Mr. Frank Melroyd.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—The attraction here this week is the reappearance of Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in The Country Girl, which is again proving very popular. Miss Eileen Guilbert is charming and capable as Marjorie; and as Nan, Miss Florence Burdette gives a clever and artistic impersonation. Miss Madge Campbell makes a vivacious Sophie; and Miss Vera Vizard is successful as the Princess of Bhong. Miss Broughton as Lady Anchester, and Miss Florence Brewster as Mrs. St. Quintin make the most of their opportunities; Mr. Johnny Clegg acquits himself admirably as Barry; and as Sir Joseph Verity, Mr. W. O. Billington is clever and amusing. Mr. W. Besley Beltram is well placed as Douglas Verity; and Mr. J. Mansell Stringer is successful as Geoffrey Chaloner. Mr. Bernard Vaughan gives a dignified impersonation of the Rajah of Bhong; and Mr. A. W. Metcalf does well as Lord Anchester.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Langdon Lee.—Musical comedy is always a draw at Plymouth, and The Earl and the Girl forms no exception to the rule. Mr. William Stephens, in the low-comedy part of Jim Cheese, keeps the ball of fun merrily rolling, while Mr. Percy Carr's appearance as Dick Wargrave is no less acceptable on account of his fine rendering of the songs falling to his lot. Miss Aimee Grey as Elphin Haye plays "Zanibar" in first-class fashion, while Daisy Fallowfield in the hands of Miss Florence Imeson comes in for tumultuous applause for the "Sammy" song. Miss Dot Carey as Liza, the dog-trainer's sweetheart, makes a fitting counterpart in the low-comedy business, and Miss Gladys Fontaine as the Strong Lady in pursuit of Wargrave is responsible for some hearty laughter

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—The Octoroon is being staged here this week. Mr. Edward Lloyd plays Salem Scudder in satisfactory fashion; Mr. Richard Bosco is quite at home as Wah-no-tee, the Indian chief; and Mr. Gordon McLeod as the villain Jacob McClosky secures the applause generally accorded a good exponent of the part. Miss Irina Farington as Zoe, the Octoroon, soon wins the sympathies of the audience; and Miss Evy Durell is an excellent Mrs. Peyton.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. W. H. Michell.—Under the Czar is the attraction here. Mr. B. H. Ross as Nicholas Yercloff takes part in some exciting situations in creditable fashion; and is ably supported by Miss Kathleen Cavanagh as Sonia Gregorvitch; the villain (Major Koresby) is capably presented by Mr. W. H. Riley. The humorous element is supplied by Messrs. Brien and Weston and the Misses Riley and Murray.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—One performance alone, that of Paul Cinquevalli, more than compensates for the time and money expended in a visit to the Palace. This accomplished artist performs feats of juggling with billiard balls, cues, glasses, and a steel cannon-ball with a dexterity and rapidity that are positively astounding; Bliss and Bliss have some very good patter and byplay, and Harry Maxim (comedian) gives a couple of songs in racy style; Horton and Linder perform some amusing yet clever feats on the parallel bars, and Boyd and Gilfain submit an attractive musical number. The remaining turns of the Three Sisters Chester, La Danseuse, and Vernon's pictures quite justify their inclusion in a high-class programme.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company is here in the Irish musical costume play, The Wearin' o' the Green. Chief interest in centred in Mr. Chalmers Mackey's admirable assumption of Barney O'Hea. Norah M'Grath is delightfully portrayed by Mrs. Chalmers Mackey; Mr. Charles Homer displays undoubted ability as Shamus M'Dermott; Mr. David McFarlane takes every advantage of his opportunities as Connor Marrin; Miss Nina Flensburg capably impersonates Biddy McGinn. On Friday The Colleen Bawn was successfully staged.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. George Edwardes' well-selected company is here this week, playing to crowded houses that bright and lively musical play Lady Madcap. Miss Marie Studholme makes a delightful Lady Betty Claridge, her dancing and unbounded vivacity quite captivating the audience. Miss Mabel Russell is a graceful and very smart Susan; Miss Nina Sevening makes an imposing Gwennie Holden; and Miss Ethel Griffies plays Mrs. Layton excellently. Mr. Arthur Longley, as Oroya Brown ("Trooper Smith") is clever and highly amusing; and Corporal Ham is portrayed with admirable drollery by Mr. E. Statham Staples. Mr. Ernest Mahar's impersonation of Count de St. Hubert is a fine piece of impulsive acting; Mr. Robert Hale takes the part of Bill Stratford very ably; and Pooh Jenkins is well undertaken by Mr. Oliver J. Round. The scenery and appointments are excellent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The exciting drama An Abandoned Woman is this week being played by Mr. Harry Foxwell and company. Miss Doris Gilham, in the rôle of Ninian Malvoisin, acts with great success; Mrs. Harry Foxwell is very pleasing and consistent in her impersonation of Eleanor Dean; Mr. J. Butler is seen to advantage as Philippe Malvoisin; Mr. Wolston Foster is admirable as Captain Herbert Seaton; Mr. Harry Foxwell is a typical Irishman in his portrayal of Paddy Boyle L99; and Sammy Sharp is taken in excellent manner by Mr. Fred Park. The remaining parts are all creditably played.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The Moran and Marreece Quartette head the bill here for the week, and give a capital show, their electrical musical lightning transformation gaining them plenty of applause; Harry Bancroft, actor vocalist, is in good form with several taking songs; the Ten Dixie Girls, in a romantic scena entitled The Silver Coon, sing and dance themselves into popular favour, and win an enthusiastic recall; Emmie Ames, descriptive comedienne, does well, and is cordially received; Sam Altus, with his eccentric comedy juggling, creates plenty of merriment; Fields and Lewis, burlesque artists, are amusing; Victor Travers, eccentric comedian, is exceedingly droll; Gena Manon, soubrette, favours the audience with some capital selections; Howard and Collinson cause plenty of laughter in their absurdity The Porter and the Parcel; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope, with some pictures of more than usual excellence, completes the programme.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—This week Mr. E. Lockwood's company is presenting Sergeant Brue here for the first time, and the popular musical comedy has met with a cordial reception. Mr. Arthur Reynolds displays genuine humorous ability in the title-rôle. Michael Brue has an excellent representative in Mr. E. Percy Rogers, and Miss Lilian Middleton is a truly charming Aurora Brue. Mr. Arthur Stroud acquits himself well as Gerald Treherne; Inspector Gorringe is smartly embodied by Mr. Clarence Napier; Mr. Henry Chichester is quaintly diverting as Mr. Crank; and Mr. Chas. McLagan's droll impersonation of Crookie Scrubbs creates much merriment. Miss Midge Clark acts and sings with very pleasing effect as Lady Bickenhall. A special word of praise is due to the chorus, and the music is spiritedly interpreted by the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Norman Latham.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield are presenting here this week a new drama entitled Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Miss Marie Dagmar gave a powerful impersonation of Elinor D'Arville; Mr. Fred C. Somerfield in the difficult rôle of Will Maynard showed great dramatic ability; Miss Amy Connaughton was seen to advantage in the part of Florette de Vere; Mr. Jackson Hayes as Geoffrey Langdon deserves great praise for his sympathetic rendering of that part; Mr. T. G. Vane as Leonard Vimbart and Mr. Ford Elvin as Peter Miles created much merriment; and Miss Muriel Alleyne as Lilly Lorrimer won the entire sympathy of the house. Others who contributed to the success of the performance were Miss Maude Grayson as Phœbe and Mr. Chas. E. Warne as James.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—The chief attraction in this week's enjoyable entertainment is the new eccentric sketch, Casey's Court, which is received with hearty laughter and applause. Walter Curtis scores a great success with his comic songs and patter; Menotti gives a skilful and daring cycling display on a wire; James De Voye's educated horse Billy exhibits almost human intelligence; the Cavalottis are versatile and tuneful instrumentalists; Mlle. Haydee's Lilliputians afford much merriment; and other good turns are provided by Lade Henderson (character vocalist), Vera Mayne (Canadian statuesque comedienne), and the Falcons in a strong act. Amusing bioscope pictures complete the programme.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Boothman.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton have brought an excellent company here this week in When a Man Hates. Mr. Arthur Hinson himself clearly and powerfully impersonates the villainous Pietro Danelli; Mr. Gerald Byrne as the half-witted Paul takes his part perfectly, and wins pity and sympathy from all; Mr. Travis Green as Detective Smart is truly smart and clever; Mr. Graham Arthurs ably fills the rôle of Lawrence Hastings; and Mr. Frank Bruneil is decidedly funny as Peter Simple. The part of Sir Rupert Treherne is safe in the hands of Mr. Pleon Gains. Olga Gwynne is depicted with refinement of style by Miss Leila Zillwood; Miss Lydia Andre as Letty is dainty and pleasing; and Miss Florence Zellwood does well as Dolly Dimple.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—At this place of amusement during the past week Mr. A. Hamilton Warden's company has been appearing successfully in the effective four-act drama, A Woman's Past. Powerfully played, and elaborately staged, the show has also capable acting to commend it. Miss Maisie Hanbury fulfils the rôle of Bessie in distinctly clever style; and Mr. Oswald Cray enacts the character of odious Uriah Craven in capital fashion. Mr. Stanley Carlton does well as David Heath; and Mr. E. Victor adds greatly to the success of the production by his impersonation of Jack Crawford.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Messrs. Beardmore, Power, and Byrne's powerful company is here this week in Man's Enemy. Mr. Augustine Knight as Harry Stanton gives a highly-finished portrayal, and Mr. John Power as Tom Drake gives a powerful display. Miss Daisy Halling is most successful as Sarah Drake; Miss Amy Rudd as Polly Harris is very clever and amusing; and Miss N. Cowling as Grace Lisle is also thoroughly capable, her songs being charmingly rendered. Mr. H. Payne Warburton as General Stanton also displays great ability and Mr. J. Newton-Cowling gives a clever impersonation as Isaac Barrett.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush is being presented this week in admirable style by Messrs. Durward, Lely, and William Mollison's company. The character of Lachlan Campbell is played in the most powerful and impressive manner by Mr. William Mollison; Mr. Kendal Chalmers is excellent as Tammas Mitchell; Mr. F. M. Paget is a typical Scotch laird; Mr. Archie W. Chappell plays the part of Lord Hay with spirit and manliness; Mr. Allen Thomas acts with much dry humour as Doctor Maclure; Mr. Durward Lely, as the Free Kirk Minister, plays with much ability; Mr. Alec F. Thompson is exceedingly amusing as Wee Posty, the mail carrier; Miss Alice Francis is graceful as Kate Carnegie; Miss Evelyn McNay plays very sympathetically as Flora Campbell; Miss Josephine Woodward, as Margaret Home, and Miss Edith Blair-Staples, as Annie, sustain their parts well; and the two juvenile characters are cleverly impersonated by Miss Martha Stewart and Miss Jennie Fitzgerald.

ROCHDALE. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Coal King is the attraction here this week. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland submits a powerful impersonation of the straightforward and manly Tom Roberts; Mr. Robert Shiells in the title-rôle is well placed; Mr. Joseph Millane cleverly portrays the unscrupulous Walter Harford; and Mr. Wilfred Graham is all that could be desired as Dick Shirley. The humorous element is entrusted to Mr. Charles R. Stone as Jim Williams and Miss Hetty Cornwallis as Araminta Green, both creating much amusement. Miss Joan Wellman depicts with telling effect the part of Mad Ann, and Miss Gertrude Valentine charmingly enacts the rôle of Grace Shirley.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee.—The Pichel troupe of Risley acrobats perform some wonderfully clever feats; Marie Blythe, comedienne, is

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—A most enjoyable programme is headed by Joe O'Gorman with his songs and witty patter; Julian Mack, comedian, is very amusing; the Five Whiteleys are exceedingly smart acrobats and wire walkers; the McClaine Trio, in song and dance, are funny; Bijou Russell is a very expert sand dancer; Emie White's kaleidoscope, &c., dances are very pretty. Other good turns are by Guy Ryder, whistling comedian; Maud Esmond, comedienne, Reg Bolton, eccentric comedian; and Fred Land, comedian.

Royal Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Percy Honri, the concertinist, scores heavily with his dream fantasy Concordia; much laughter follows the antics of Esmond, Verona, and Esmond in their absurdity, As You Were! Harry Taft, whistling comedian, is much applauded; Bert and Dora, duettists, Charles Russell, lunatic comedian, Edna, whistling girl, Gilbert Bros., good tight-rope performers, Lillie Mayfield, good dancer, the original Celtics, in musical comedy, and the Mimosa Trio, charming song and dance artists, also appear and please greatly.

Scarborough. — People's Palace and Aquarium.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The management here is providing a strong programme this week, headed by "The Demon Chef," which is a clever and novel show, fowls, rabbits, &c., being produced in the most mysterious manner. The Dunvilles have made an excellent impression with their musical comedy act, and received well-deserved applause; Poole and Poole have many novel features in their turn, including table-dancing; the singing and dancing of Daisy Davenport are clever and refined; Charles Carole, white coon vocalist, has a well-trained voice, and in "The Lily of the Nile" is a great success; Cambo, the musical man monkey, keeps up his reputation by giving a good musical treat; R. C. Note is a popular comedian; Alex. Milne, ventriloquist, is very smart; Vernon's Bioscope shows excellent pictures, amongst them being "The Train Wreckers," &c.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Sarony and Co.; Lessee, Mr. G. Zalva.—Mr. R. Silvester's variety and animated picture entertainment concludes this week, and is an entire change from the popular programme submitted last week. Prince Ishmael an Eastern magician, assisted by Madame Valerie, heads the bills, and performs some very mysterious and highly entertaining tricks, including the Hindoo Basket Mystery, and many other Eastern illusions; Madame Roza has a clever troupe of fifteen performing dogs; W. H. Smart, on a return visit here, is a clever comedian, and his style is highly finished; Kitty Leine, a serio and top boot dancer, is very nimble, and sings a capital song. The management are again making a speciality of animated pictures, and the stage effects materially assist in enhancing a first-rate variety entertainment.

Seacombe.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Councillor James Kiernan.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week, with the Two Little Vagabonds. Mr. Henry Hare acquits himself well as George Thornton; Captain Darville is done justice to by Mr. Sidney Vautier; and John Scath is carefully embodied by Mr. Dunstan Haye; Mr. John F. Traynor plays strongly as Bill Muggins, alias the Gaffer; Mr. Ernest K. Nelson, and Mr. Fred Archer score as Dido Bunce, and the Cough Drop. Mr. W. T. Harris puts as much dignity as ever into his part of the Footman; and Sister Randall is excellently played by Miss Muriel Clay; Miss Grace Heywood wins universal sympathy by her clever rendering of Marion Thornton; and Miss F. Russell Spiers gives complete satisfaction as Barbara Scarth; Miss Marie Pritchard takes full advantage of the comic possibilities in the rôle of Biddy Mullins; Miss Freda Ettrick has a good grasp of the character of Dicky; and Miss Helen Grenville retains her power of moving the more sensitive auditors to tears by her well-known pathetic rendering of Wally.

Seaham Harbour.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. Charles H. Phelps's company is paying a return visit with One Woman's Wickedness and The Ticket of Leave Man (Friday night). In the first-named piece, Mr. Alfred Geo. Fry submits a capital study of Philip Beaufort; the scheming Paul Rogue is powerfully drawn by Mr. Bernard Webb; Jem Crags, a convict, affords ample scope for the abilities of Mr. C. H. Phelps; Mr. Frank Bellwood does well as John Fossett; Algernon is sketched with much originality by Mr. Harry Tilbury; Mr. Hylton Warde is highly amusing as Limpy Larry; Janet Raymond's cruelty is thoughtfully depicted by Miss Belle Tilbury; Lilian finds a charming exponent in Miss Amy Dalby; Jenny is successfully played by Miss Arline T. George; and as Aunt Crasy, Miss Florence Lloyd does well.

Sheerness.—The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton.—The performances here still maintain their usual standard of excellence. Gus Garrick, who occupies the premier position of the bill, creates lively humour with his up-to-date songs and smart patter; Princa Yarta, lightning painter, submits a clever turn, and is liberally applauded; Parker and Barr, speciality comedians, who are deputising for Andrews and Head, meet with well-deserved recognition; the negro eccentricities of Will English keep the house in a continual roar of laughter; Mr. Dan Filmer, comedian and dancer, is also well received; Miss Mabel Carlton, comedienne, and Miss Lily Stewart, serio and dancer, also successfully contribute; Ruffell's Bioscope pictures still remain an indispensable feature of the bill.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. P. Reymond.—A capital all-round bill presented here for this week includes a welcome return visit of those evergreen favourites, Miss Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, and Mr. Jack Foley, eccentric comedian, fresh from their recent pantomime successes; the Audleys, comedy sketch artists, in the laughable act Only an Actor, are eminently successful; Steeley and Dowton, duettists and dancers, are also well received; Mr. Will Denvil, comedian and dancer, and Miss Rosie Lemaine, serio and dancer, are likewise deserving of praise.

Sheffield. — Lyceum Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The amusing comedy The Duffer, was played on Monday for the first time in Sheffield by Mr. Louis Calvert's company under the direction of Mr. William Gifford. The piece was carefully mounted and well played by Miss Margaret Montrose as Lady Amelia, Miss Mabel Taylor as Miss Hillier, Miss Nellie Griffen, Miss Florence Adale, Mr. Whitford Kane, Mr. F. Pennington-Gush, Mr. Kingsford Pearce, Mr. L. Lorel, and Mr. E. H. Wynne, who, in the title-rôle, kept the house in a state of continual merriment.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The popular and success domestic and sensational drama The 10.30 Down Express is again being played to well-pleased audiences by Mr. Horace Stanley's company. Mr. Charles Burdon is a manly and energetic Jack O'Malley, Mr. George Arthur proves a success as James Inderwick, a lady well known to Sheffield playgoers is excellent as Peggy, Miss Elsie Capell does well in the part of Bessie Leigh, and the other characters have all capable representatives. The railway scene is managed in a realistic manner.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, the Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The Empire still maintains its high prestige as the favourite resort of all lovers of bright, artistic, and healthy amusement. The star turn this week is the famous and undefeated wrestler Hackenschmidt, and, naturally, big business has been the rule. What may be termed the legitimate part of the programme has been contributed by the following clever and well-known performers:—The Arthur Lloyd company in a farcical sketch, Drew and Alders, the talented and original comedians and tumblers, Colby and May, the Darrells, Mr. Ted Cowan, Mr. Harry Brown, Roze and Calvert, the New Macs in a funny act, and Miss Gwennie Hasto, the graceful dancer.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Engaged here are Prof. Pallister's Animated Pictures, Mr. Edward Ranier's company, the Sisters Bretton, the Guyons, Veronique, Miss Edna Latonne, and Miss Alice Maud's company in a good dramatic sketch.

Shrewsbury.—Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark's talented company was here the first three nights of the week with Blue Bell in Fairyland. Mr. Lawrence Emery was a smart Dickey, Mr. David Cruickshank a dignified and capable Mr. Joplin, Messrs. H. C. Morton and E. Cossart, a pair of droll and clever comedians, as Will and Wont. Mr. Shirley Lea was clever as Policeman 1c; Mr. Percy Farrimond as the singing collier fairly brought down the house with his finely-rendered songs; Mr. Stanley Crisp was an agile cat; Miss Minnie Blanchard was a sweet fairy and danced gracefully; Miss Jessie Blanchard was a jovial Mrs. Hearty; Misses Connie Emerald and Marie Edmonds were a winsome pair as Blue Bell's sisters; Mr. Harry Pleon, jun., was clever and entertaining as First Bootblack, and the important title-rôle was most effectively and artistically played by Miss Gladys Cooper. Mr. Fred Fallen was a picturesque Sleepy King; Mr. Shirley Lea was good as the Reigning King; Miss Muriel Juin looked well and sang sweetly as the Reigning Queen; Miss Rubie Carter was a most accomplished dancer as Will o' the Wisp; Miss Connie Emerald was quaintly pleasing in her songs and dances; and Miss Marie Edmonds also danced and sang effectively.

Southampton. — Grand Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton.—This week, Mr. Frank Curzon's company is attracting good audiences with The White Chrysanthmum. Many old favourites are included in the cast, and the comedy is well received. Mr. F. W. Ford is excellent as the Admiral; Mr. Davy Burnaby is exceedingly funny as Lieut. Belmont; Mr. F. Pope Stamper sings and acts admirably as Lieut. Armitage; fun, fast and furious, reigns while Mr. O. E. Lennon (Sin Chong), and Mr Harry Paulton, jun. (Private Perks), occupy the stage; Miss Ruth Lincoln is highly successful in the title-rôle; and Miss Isabelle Dillon captivates the house with her portrayal of Cornelia Vanderdecken; Miss Maud Harvey (Betty Kenyon) also scores.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—A novelty in the programme is the production of an original scena, A Day in Birdland, by Chas. Mildare, a notice of which appears in another column. The Hartley Wonders are marvellous jumpers, and win applause; the Society Quartette of vocalists, dancers, and comedians also find much favour; G. W. Hunter, the droll raconteur, and Will H. Fox, "Paddywhiski at the Piano," both do well; and the captial all-round bill is further contributed to by Maggie Walsh, the Paolias (gymnasts, &c.), and Chas. Ray, (comedian).

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; District-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Aldin.—A strong attraction here is the London idol, Miss Vesta Tilley, who this week makes her first appearance here. This talented little lady sings four songs at each performance, and then the audience clamour for more. She is an artist to her finger tips, and to say she scores a success is putting it very mildly. for the vast audiences nightly give her a rousing reception. A very strong show is given by the Willfords, head and hand balancers; Fred Gilbert scores with his ladder act; and others who do well are Frank Hartley, schoolboy juggler; Wal Robbins, a study in black and white; Gracie Bard, comedienne; and Claude Ginnett's Rejected Remounts

Southend-on-Sea.—Empire Theatre.—Sole Owners, The Southend Theatre Co. (1905), Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. H. F. Maltby, is producing his romantic costume play, entitled The Youngest of Three. The costumes are pretty and the scenery is good. Mr. H. F. Maltby is eminently suited as George Wendover, Gerald is cleverly played by Mr. W. H. Hargreaves, and Mr. A. E. Wyn Weaver as Philip Rodford is capable; and Samuel Johns is effectively impersonated by Mr. Ralph Hutton; Mr. Ernest Noble gives every satisfaction as Paul and Joshua Pynne. Miss Mabel Mellor as Annie Dulley is exceptionally good; Florence is pleasingly taken by Miss Mara Maltby; Miss Beatrice Marsdene is responsible for a clever characterisation of Lucy; and Jane is ably taken by Miss Nancy York.

Southport.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is this week presenting Mr. R. C. Carton's amusing comedy, Public Opinion, which was played for the first time at this theatre. Foremost in the able cast is Mr. George Giddens, in his original part of Horace Wibsey, with irresistible humour. As Lady Diana Caldershaw Miss Emma Hutchison shows a thorough grasp of the rôle of the society lady, which she portrayed with excellent effect. Mr. Ernest Ruston played particularly well as Spencer Traughton; Mr. William Hargreaves depicted the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley with a fine appreciation of the character; and the same may be said of Mr. George Mallet as Sir Babington Mulley. Miss Lilian Hallows made a vivacious Pansy Bligh; Miss Mary Mallalieu did well as Phyllis Dagenham; Mr. Harold West was extremely humorous as Viscount Poffley; and Mr. Templar Powell gave a clever representation of Lord Percy Kilgour. The play was preceded by a comedietta, entitled The Stratagem.

Pier Pavilion.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—A good programme is being submitted here this week to appreciative audiences. The items include Bennett and Martell, in their absurdity, The Shipwreck; Billy Richardson, stump orator; the Strads, musical sketch artists; Adie and Agiven, in the Antics of a Road Repairer; W. H. Morgan, quaint comedian; Maidee Scott, comedienne; Rean and Relbut, vaudeville entertainers; Kid Johnson, refined athletic and club manipulator; and the Bio-Tableaux.

South Shields.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The Love that Women Desire is being played by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. The heroine, Sybil Thornburn, has a pleasing and artistic representative in Miss Lydia Donovan; Mr. David G. Noble gives a breezy and manly exposition of the persecuted hero, Philip Carnaby; the Squire Abingdon is in the capable and experienced hands of Mr. J. O. Stewart; the villain, Richard Abingdon, is strikingly interpreted by Mr. C. Quinton Fulford; Frank Hardy is powerfully handled by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace; Miss Alice N. Livesey, as Madge Abingdon, contributes a commendable exposition. The comedy element is amply supplied by Miss Maud Stuart, as Pattie Swift, ably assisted by Messrs. John Hignett and Arthur Rich, as Dennis O'Rourke and P.C. Sowerberry; Maraquinha, the Indian Queen, is well performed by Miss Clarissa Bamford.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The Lukishima Troupe of Japanese artists in a typical eastern entertainment, display extraordinary dexterity and skill as acrobats; Morton and Elliot are old favourites; Virto appears with wonted success in his clever musical act, assisted by Irene and Venito; the Two Bostons, of bull-fighting fame, are favourably appreciated; Nina Gordon is a pleasing mimic; the bill also includes Fred Bronte, Lily Esplin, Silly Billy Elliott, and the American Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. R. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—A capital bill of fare is provided this week including Dandy George, and his dog Rosie, in a clever turn; Cassilli and James, banjo experts, are capital in various imitations; Flo Hilton, male impersonator, is applauded; Frazer and Haley, refined duettists and dancers, score successfully. Other able contributions are by the Slinging Singer, Cliff and Kean, singing and dancing act; Mueller and Coyne, comedy duo, and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

Stafford.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr James Elphinstone.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walters' juvenile pantomime company is here for the week with Cinderella. Prince Charming is capably rendered by Miss G. McQueen, and Marie Hardacre is good as Dandini. The Fairy Godmother is prettily portrayed by Miss Kitty Chester; Miss Kitty Rafferty is a charming Cinderella; the Baron of Mr. A. M. Benson is humorous; and Messrs. Moon and Morris give an acceptable impersonation of the Ugly Sisters.

St. Helens. — Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Laughter Land is being played here by the Craggs' company of comedians. Mr. Harry Rousby causes much laughter as Marlow; Mr. H. B. Lewis is an excellent Professor Sylvanus; Mr. G. Westmacott is successful as Sir Vincent, as is Mr. C. Edwards as Trentham. Miss Louise Millward leaves nothing to be desired as Clothilda, and Clarisse has a competent representative in Miss Amy Hastings. The Cragg Family astonish all with their graceful and marvellous business.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, W. Sley, and F. Willmot; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—A capital bill of fare is submitted here this week, consisting of Rebla, a clever and funny juggler; Sandy and Carl, comedians; the Brothers Bellong, smart gymnasts; Mr. Charles Williams, "the Scotch Nigger"; Allis and Cassati, versatile artists; the Royal Zerbinis, entertaining in a musical scena; Mr. Herbert Maden, a good character vocalist; and the Hayes Brothers, two diminutive comedians, who have made a great hit.

Stockport. — New Theatre Royal. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Village Blacksmith, which Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is presenting here this week, is brimful of exciting incident and situations. Mr. Sam Livesey as John Strong, the village blacksmith, gives a manly impersonation of the part, and as Capt. Leo Mr. Joseph Carter acts the villain admirably. Billy Twigg has a pleasing and able representative in Mr. Geo. V. Campbell, and Mr. Edwin Maydew fills the part of Lucas Marlow most effectively. Miss Laura Hansen acts with charming grace as Kate Strong, and Miss Cassie Edwards gives a sympathetic impersonation of Ruth Perkins. Mr. Thomas E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins and Mrs. T. C. Livesey as Sal Parkins are both excellent, and a special word of praise is due to little Miss Bertha Hanbury for her admirable acting as Harry Strong.

Empire, Ltd. — Acting-Manager, Mr. William Black.—The New York Comedy Four, who are the chief attraction here this week, are appropriately styled the "humorously harmonious"; Princess Pauline, comedienne, is an artist of real ability; Winona and King are smart rifle experts; Robins and Collier are clever and amusing in their sketch, The Lady and the Porter; and Sid Bandon, character comedian, is successful; whilst Merton and Ryder, vocal speciality artists, the Charnleys, duettists and dancers, and Elsie Claire, ballad vocalist, are favourably received.

Stoke. — Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller. The Borghetti Troupe of acrobats head the bill here this week. The Wilsonia cycle treadle is quite novel, the race between the Bros. Hughes being an interesting item. The Three Henres are smart jugglers, the Bros. Harrison are amusing comedians and dancers, the Sisters Tinsley provide a capital turn, the Two Whites in their comedy act are excellent, Nina May is a good ballad vocalist, and Fred Hallam is deserving of much credit as a comedian. The pictures are capital.

Stourbridge. — Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cassidy, with their excellent company, are this week playing In Holy (?) Russia. Mrs. J. R. Cassidy submitted an admirable portrayal of Renee Rubinoff; Mr. Arthur Stratton as Colonel Richard Forrest proved a capital exponent of the part; and of Mr. J. Rice Cassidy as Micky Nolan was most acceptable. Miss Beatrice Western gave a praiseworthy performance as Catski Lavotski; while others who contributed to a successful performance were Messrs. Tom G. Warry, Louis Norman, Carl Rovinelli, Joe Cuthbertson, and Miss Alicia Stratton.

Sutton-in-Ashfield.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Captain Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.— Mr. Gus. Lemaine's Aladdin Co., is here this week. Miss Marie Harding is a pretty and princely Aladdin; Mr. R. Williams as Abanazar, Mr. Arthur Collins as the Emperor and Miss Florrie Gibson as the Princess are all distinctly good. The specialities include Leon and Leoni, in a musical act, Robert Williams, sword expert, and Ethardo, comedy juggler.

Swindon.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Ernest Carpenter's pantomime Goody Two-Shoes terminated its successful run on Saturday last with two record houses, and was followed on Monday by that popular musical comedy Sergeant Brue, presented by Mr. E. Lockwood's company, under the general management of Mr. Thomas McKenzie. The piece was handsomely staged under Mr. Harold Godwin's direction, and went with a capital swing under the baton of Mr. Edwin Thornton. It would be difficult to speak too highly of Mr. J. Harold Carson's admirable impersonation of the Sergeant, while Mr. Albert James worked with untiring energy and skill as the notorious Crookie Scrubbs, their endless supply of rich humour keeping the house in roars of hearty laughter. Mr. Frank Wilson acquitted himself capitally as Michael Brue, his vocal efforts meeting with considerable approval, while Mr. Fred Laceby was particularly amusing as the magistrate, Mr. Cranks. The fine work of Miss Reydon Dallas as Lady Bickenhall was natural and pleasing, and Miss Gertie Fawcett was delightful as Aurora Brue; these clever artists rendered their songs excellently, and both were deservedly encored. Of the minor parts, Miss Amy Vivash as Daisy and Mr. Harold Godwin as Inspector Gorringe did well.

Torquay.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee, Mr. R. Smerdon; Secretary, Mr. A. Pearse.—Mr. John A. Thomson's No. 1 Company in the pantomime Dick Whittington opened to an appreciative house on Monday. Miss Ida Kessenly made a captivating Dick, and the singing and dancing of Miss Ella Wilmer were much applauded. The Princess of Miss Ella Rose was very good, and the performances of the comedians were specially noteworthy, each doing well in his particular line of business. Mr. Harry Harcourt was the Dame, Mr. Ross Warren, Fitzwarren; Mr. Fred Anderson, Pimple; Mr. Edwin Idle, Jack, and Mr. Syd Morrell, Capt. Bunting. Mention must be made of the exceedingly clever turn by Mlle. Florence on the rolling ball, which she manipulates with great ease and ability.

Tunbridge Wells. — Opera House. — Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. A. B. Cross's company in The Manxman is here this week. Mr. Cross gives a powerful interpretation of Pete; and Miss Minnie Watersford proves an irresistible heroine; Miss Nancy Mitchell gives a humorous study of Nancy; and Miss Mona Spearing is successful as the aunt, Miss Christian; Mr. Sydney Kearnes gives a well-portrayed study of the Dempster, Philip Christian, and the comedy of the piece, especially in the last act, is well sustained by Mr. G Marriott, jun, as Ross, Mr. E. Cartell as Morty, and Mr. F. J. Pitt as the Professor; while favourable mention should also be made of Mr. Wilson Roberts as the Doctor, Mr. A. J. Moss as the Postman, Mr. W. Horgan as the Constable, Mr. H. E. Marton as Jorrique, and Miss K. Livesey as Bella Kelly. For the week-end, Mr. Arthur St. John's company is appearing in The Taming of the Shrew, supported by Miss Ida St. John and a strong company.

Wakefield.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in the drama The Midnight Mail, is paying a return visit this week. Mr. George Harvard gives a capital impersonation as the engine-driver, Harry Steyne; Mr. Fred G. Evison is good as Billy Brewer; Mr. L. P. Wentworth acquits himself well as Hassan Padisha; Mr. Dobell Lyle as Donald Craig and Mr. Austin Mortimer as Leonard Royle respectively are effective. The part of Mary Steyne is portrayed with skill by Miss Grace Lester; Miss Mildred successfully fills the rôle of Nancy Steyne; and Miss Hilda Merrilees is a charming Lady Phyllis Eustace.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The Seven Savonas have been a great attraction with their new musical scene The Palace of Orpheus, their excellent musical abilities, coupled with their magnificent show, receiving much approbation. The same artists, as the Elliotts, also give a clever exhibition of cycling feats. Miss Bessie Willow, comedienne, recently principal boy in the theatre here, sings in good style; the Sisters Hula are a couple of smart duettists and dancers; Juan and McQue, comedians, are responsible for a funny act; the Two Leons, duettists; Mlle. Melita, dancer; and Mitzi, juggler, complete the bill.

Walsall.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.,; Joint-Managers, Moss Empires' Co., Ltd., and the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Unthan, the armless wonder, who heads the bill here this week, gives a marvellous performance with his feet; Robb Gilmore, comedian; Sylvester, contortionist; the Folkestones, in their screaming pantomimic absurdity, Swimming the Channel; Lennie and Hast, in a fantasy, The Sea Nymph; Nellie Dunbar, comedienne; Duncan's Collie Dogs, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

Grand Theatre. — Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company is proving a great attraction here this week with Passion's Power. Mr. William Clayton is very successful as Prince Kandos; Mr. Frank Radcliffe makes a lively General Zuran; Mr. Walter Roberts is very good as Rudolph Laski; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan does well as Michel Laski; Miss Ruth Shepperd well sustains the part of Zorah Varno; and Miss Stella Carmichael makes a delightful Countess Delaunay. The comedy element is well sustained by Miss Lowe Dare as Lucie and Mr. Ernest Dare.

Walthamstow.—Palace.— Managing-Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—To judge from the state of business at this house during the present week, the interest in wrestling as a stage amusement shows no sign of abatement. The welcome accorded to Mr. Yukio Tani, the Japanese exponent of the art, on Monday night was of the warmest description, and when he met an opponent who kept him busy for over nine minutes the enthusiasm was great. The Sisters Hall are pleasing vocalists; Little Cliff, who is not a stranger here, once more proves himself a miniature comedian of rare ability, while his dancing is so neat and clever as to evoke loud applause; the Anartos, musical comedians, contribute some funny patter, and play various instruments with much skill; Miss Venie Clements gives some capital reproductions of the manner in which different classes of song are sung, finishing with her artistic impersonation of "baby" singing to her "dolly"; Miss Dora Martini is one of the most graceful gymnasts we have seen for a long time; Datas again astonishes everyone by his marvellous memory for dates; Pete and Juno, two coloured gentlemen, patter and sing merrily, and do some very clever quick-step dancing; Mrs. Clement Scott's company appears in Mr. Cecil Raleigh's bio-drama, The Diamond Express. Mrs. Bennett plays with considerable power as the heroine, and she is well supported by Mr. Frank E. Petley, Mr. Harry Crane, and Mr. Francis Charnier.

Warrington.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. Potter is to be congratulated upon securing for the numerous patrons of the Royal Court Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid. Mr. Harry Walsh as Meakin is always amusing and entertaining; as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour Mr. Sinclair Holden hits off exactly the inanity of the young exquisite. Mr. J. F. Val plays capitally as Zaccary, and an exceedingly clever leg-mania dance is loudly applauded. Mr. Charles Seymour makes an excellent representative of the orchid-loving statesman, and Mr. Vyvyan Wakeman serves as Dr. Ronald Faussett. Mr. George Asaf submits a clever burlesque of a fire-eating Frenchman in Comte Raoul de Cassignat, whose seconds are ably played by Messrs. Hunter and Hallam. Miss Margory Moore is a dainty and winsome Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Trilby Collier as Josephine Zaccary gives an animated performance, using a pleasing voice with good effect; Miss Morris renders Thisbe, the private secretary, in light fashion; and Miss Susie Brand acts charmingly and looks handsome as Zelie Rumbert. Miss Phil Grimpel happily plays Caroline Vokins. The Countess Anstruther is well played by Miss Helen Dunscombe.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—The Three Romas head the bill here this week, and their exposition of Roman gladiators is a rich treat; Henri Bekker is an exceptionally smart conjurer; Gracie Lawn is a refined comedienne; and Gilroy and Gross are good dancers and witty comedians. The Four Mill Lads surprise all with their charming vocalisation. Other turns are Andy Higginson, comedian; the Sisters Poole, duettists; and the Royal Bioscope Pictures.

Wednesbury.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby.—On Monday evening, Mr. F. G. Kimberley's company in the sensational melodrama A Sister's Sin opened here to an appreciative audience. Mr. Kimberley's descriptive portrayal of Lary Murphy, proves highly commendable; and as Harold Raymond, Mr. William Vane submits a capital rendering; Mr. Ernest Fare does well as George Oakley; a good impersonation of Ikey Moses, the Jew, is given by Mr. Ernest Frere; Mr. Harold Lyndon, in the comedy part of Theophilus Hope, is loudly applauded; Billy Smart is artistically impersonated by Mr. G. E. Liddle; Miss Lottie Addison proves a great favourite as Minnie Hastings; the rival lovers, Floss Perks and Nell Stubbs are characteristically rendered by Miss Edie Macklin and Miss Alice Granville respectively; Miss Violet Langley, as Charzel, the gipsy, is a decided success; and as Redempta, Miss Violet Langley is all that could be desired; Mrs. Will Cranston's songs, "Il Bacio" and "Dear Heart" are received with enthusiasm; and Mr. Will Cranston displays great ability in his rendering of "Moonbeams."

West Hartlepool.—Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—The annual visit of the Moody-Manners Opera company is one that gives general satisfaction. Faust was given on Monday by this exceptionally talented combination. Mr. George Neilson, in the rôle of Mephistopheles, sang the numbers allotted to him in a style that gained for him every possible mark of appreciation. As Marguerite, Miss Ethel Cadman, who possesses a charming soprano voice of extensive range and purity, was repeatedly recalled for her efforts. The rôle of Faust had a capable exponent in Mr. Charles Carter; Miss Rosina Benyon was conspicuously successful as Siebel, and Mr. Marshall Vincent gave a capital rendering of the rôle of Valentine. Wagner had a creditable exponent in Mr. G. Gorst, and Miss M. Godwin was especially effective as Martha. The repertoire for the week includes Tannhauser, Carmen, Bohemian Girl, Traviata, and Maritana.

Palace.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The Balsamos, in a comedy gymnastic act, evoke applause; Frank Coyle, comedian, is gaining a host of admirers, a conspicuous hit is made by Cadie and Seymour, the Albert and Edmund's Comedy Troupe work hard and successfully in their sketch The First Mrs. Banbury, Smaun Sing Hpoo, the miniature man and ring performer, creates something like a sensation with his appearance and performance, and others who contribute to a strong programme are Myles and May, Les Henri, and the Bioscope.

Empress.—Proprietors, Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—D'Arc's Marionettes hold the place of honour here this week. The clever and lifelike manipulations in imitation of a number of celebrities of the halls cause wonder and merriment. The Gladenbecks in their clever hand-balancing and ring speciality act are on a return visit, as are also the chic and graceful Maggie Rimmer and the sweet-voiced Martine in illustrated song. The act by Carney and Armstrong, The Pro. and the Baggageman, is provocative of much merriment, and turns are contributed by Charles Cranston, comedian; Marions and his cats, and the Bioscope pictures.

West Stanley.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatres Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is here this week with The Drama of Life. Mr. George M. Newell as Harry Beech depicts the conscience-stricken man to perfection; Miss Kate Hallam as Sylvia Beech is winning and pathetic; Mr. E. M. Hamilton as Walter Beech is a capable actor; Miss Cissie Carter does capital work as Billy; the part of Lady Jane is in the able hands of Miss Florence French; Miss Nellie Birchenough gives a forcible delineation of the hag; Mr. Harwood Roberts as Sir Dobson Wilde is responsible for laughter.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Raws; Managing-Director, Mr. D. Williams.—Mr. E. Oswald Brooks's fine drama, The Trail of the Serpent, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Henry P. Kenn as Sir Gerald Kingston, a retired officer, plays his part exceedingly well; the younger Kingston is in the able hands of Mr. Hobson Asche; Mr. Wilfred Cheetham as Ralph Hammond is creditable; Miss Ethel Stuart as Rachael, the gipsy girl, is a pleasing actress; Miss Gladys Newcombe and Miss Marjorie May, as Rose Wilson and Ethel Maynard, are two smart and winning performers; and Mr. Booth Conway as Gipsy Jake, Mr. Geo. Harris as Ben Chucks, and Mr. T. E. Dudley as Bully Tom, ably play their respective parts.

Whitehaven.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—A return visit is being paid here by Mr. Morton Powell's company, in the domestic drama, Honour Thy Father. Mr. D. B. Watson is well cast as Jack Halyard; and Mr. Clavering Craig still sustains his old part as Duncan Bly. As Gabriel Garth, Mr. J. W. Evelyn works hard; and Miss Mabel Coleman as Lillian Garth and Miss Winnie Donovan as Mercy Merry are both good in their respective characters.

Wigan.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. Worswick.—Leah Kleschna is being presented this week to Wigan playgoers by a strong and well-balanced company. Mr. George Ingleton as the cunning and scheming Kleschna fills the part with subtlety and natural force. Mr. Percy Rhodes gives a fine impersonation of Paul Sylvaine, and Mr. Cyril Rawdon is very good as Schram. Mr. Pat Newall makes a capital Raoul Berton, and Miss Pearla Gardner takes the part of Leah Kleschna fairly well, but she does not give rein to the undoubted talents she possesses. Others who contribute to the great success of the performance include Mr. Leslie Lees, Mr. Gissing Walters, Miss Ido Vinnall, Miss Mary Barton, and Miss Lilian Loche.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Drector, Mr. John Worswick.—Alec Hurley and company, in the Costers' Beano, &c., create some amusement; the Five Digby Girls, vocalists and dancers, meet with a good reception; and other acceptable turns are provided by Dent and Harris, comedy sketch; Chas. Somers, comedian; the Raymond Trio, instrumentalists and dancers; Alice Digby, comedienne and dancer; the Katos, comical kidgets; George Fairdurn, comedian; Tom Carron, comedian and dancer; Marie Gros, comedienne; and Kelly and Bush, comedians, patterers, and dancers.

Wolverhampton. — Grand Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—The Girl from Japan is the attraction here this week. Mr. George Hudson fills the part of Lord Allenbury in capital style; Mr. Charles Lupton does well as Sir Mulberry Flinnington; Mr. Percy Baverstock is a successful General Baugh; Mr. Ernest Spalding is effective as Rev. John Smith; and Mr. W. H. Moore is a versatile and efficient Horatio Binks. As Violet Miss Dorothy Glenton is chic and possesses a good voice; Miss Mabel Kerridge is a smart and sprightly Polly Perkins; Miss Jeannie Holmes is efficient as Lady Flippington; and Miss Josephine Ellis displays excellent dancing abilities in the part of Maud. The play

DEATH OF THE HON. G. COPPIN.

News of the death of the Hon. George Selth Coppin, said to have been the oldest theatre manager in the world, comes from Melbourne. The deceased, who passed away on Tuesday last, was born on April 8, 1818, in the village of Steyning, in Sussex. A stage-struck lad, he wandered about the villages and hamlets of the South of England as a strolling player in barns and "fit-ups," until, destitute and thrown on his own resources, he worked his way out to Sydney, where he arrived in March, 1843. His early experiences in Australia were far from rosy, and he spent a wandering life between Sydney and the two chief towns of Tasmania. It was in Launceston that he first organised his own theatrical company, and in 1854, while on a visit to his native land in search of dramatic talent, he met that eccentric genius, Gustavus Vaughan Brooke, who was playing at Birmingham, and arranged a tour in the principal cities of Australia and New Zealand.

It was at the old Queen's Theatre, Melbourne, on February 26, 1855, that Brooke made his first appearance before the Australian public, playing Othello to the Desdemona of Miss Fanny Cathcart, the Emilia of Mrs. Charles Young and the Iago of the late Mr. Richard Younge. Having built a theatre at Adelaide in 1846 and acquired a large fortune, Mr. Coppin lost it in copper mining. Then he went through the Bankruptcy Court, and after a turn at the gold diggings, he took up the management of the Great Malop-street playhouse in Geelong, on very slender capital, in 1852. Good luck awaited him there, so that in two years, on returned to Adelaide, he surprised his creditors by inviting them all to a dinner and paying every penny of his debts. While in England during 1854 he performed several "starring" engagements as a comedian in town and country. Returning to Australia, he was elected to the Legislative Council for the South-Western Province in 1858; in 1874 he was returned for the important constituency of East Melbourne, and he left his name on the Statute Book as the founder of the Post Office Savings Bank. In 1889 he entered the Upper House for Melbourne Province.

In the year 1854 Mr. Coppin became manager of the Olympic, a new theatre in Melbourne. It was opened in 1855 with The Lady of Lyons, with Coppin as Colonel Damas to the Claude Melnotte of Brooke. He subsequently turned the theatre, which was locally known as the "Iron Pot," into a bathing establishment, where people could obtain a Turkish bath—a novelty at that time. But the experiment proved a failure.

Mr. Coppin, in addition to being a good Bob Acres and Tony Lumpkin, appeared in many comic and character parts when Brooke was the "star." Friends have computed that the ill-fated tragedian was the possessor of £50,000 when, in conjunction with the veteran who has just passed away, he bought the lease of the Theatre Royal at Melbourne and the freehold of Cremorne Gardens, Richmond, about two miles from the city. In addition, the partners had a place called Astley's Amphitheatre. Subsequently the partnership was dissolved, but in 1864, when the Australian manager was in England after fulfilling a lengthy engagement throughout the United States with the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, he saw Brooke, and induced him to undertake another two years' engagement in the Colonies. That was never fulfilled, for on January 11, 1866, the steamship London foundered in the Bay of Biscay, and the unfortunate actor was drowned.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

On Wednesday evening the students of the Guildhall School gave a concert in the theatre of the Institution, a large audience being present. The first number in the programme was a duet, two pianos, Andante with Variations (Schumann). This was interpreted by Miss Ethel Fowler and Miss Katie Deslandes in a careful and intelligent manner. Miss Alice Stroud displayed a voice of fine quality in two songs by Finden, "Far across the desert sands" and "Allah, be with us," the former song proving the most attractive. A violin solo of special interest was given by Mr. A. Tschaikov, who gave ample evidence of most careful training in "La Folia—Variations," by Corelli-Léonard; and Mr. Frederic S. Simmons was also successful in his piano solo of Schumann's Finale to Sonata, Op. 22. A somewhat commonplace song of Adams, entitled "Roses," was well rendered by Mr. A. W. Jay. A clever recitation of "The Trumpeter's Betrothed," with music by Thomé, was given by Miss Ethel Major (pupil of Mr. Allen Beaumont); and Mr. F. J. Massey played a composition of his own, A Capriccio in D flat for Pianoforte, which was bright and effective, and revealed great promise for the young composer, who played his work admirably, being warmly applauded by the audience at the close. In Cowen's song, "Love me if I live," Miss Nellie Hickman's efforts were slightly marred by uncertain intonation. Leslie's setting to the poem of E. A. Poë's "Annabelle Lee" was delightfully sung by Mr. Bernard Turner, the (tenor) prize-winner of 1901. Other clever instrumental items were the solo violin Andante from Concerto in B minor by Saint-Saëns, ably performed by Miss Mabel Constance James, and the solo pianoforte "Hexentanz" by McDowell, skilfully played by Miss Emmeline Forster. A song of Dell'Acqua's, entitled "Villanelle," was given with ample vocal power by Miss Nellie Brown; and the concert concluded with a duet for two pianos, Grand duo Concertant by Lazare, the executants being Miss Ettie Hale and Mr. Francis W. Sutton. Miss Jenny Hyman performed the duties of accompanist. All the lady performers were under the charge of the lady superintendent, Mrs. Charles P. Smith.

A pianoforte recital was given at the Guildhall School of Music on Wednesday afternoon by the pupils of Mr. John Francis Barnett, and in more than one instance the young performers did ample justice to their able professor. The programme commenced with a careful rendering of Schumann's duet for two pianos, Andante and Variations, Op. 46, by Miss Frances Cox and Mr. Wallis Bandey. A composition by Mr. J. F. Barnett, entitled "Musical Landscapes—'Wild Flowers,' 'The Forge,'" proved very attractive in the hands of Miss Florence Haskoll. Miss Jessie Attwell revealed due appreciation of the beauties of Chopin in her playing of the composer's Fantasie in F minor; and Miss Frances Cox was much applauded for her performance of Kreisleriana, Op. 16, Nos. 2 and 8 (Schumann). Miss Dora Beeson played Mendelssohn's "Variations Sérieuses" with intelligence; and Mr. Walter Lawrence was awarded hearty marks of approval for his able rendering of Chopin's Fantasie—Impromptu and "St. Agnes Eve" by J. F. Barnett. Mr. Wallis Bandey gave a painstaking performance of Brahms's Sonata in F minor—Scherzo, Intermezzo, and Finale; and Master Mitia Levin was recalled several times to the platform after his spirited performance of Liszt's Rhapsody, No. 2, the only fault that could be found being a certain heaviness of touch unusual in so young a player. Other students of merit were Alice Edwards, who gave Impromptu in G flat by Chopin, Dora Beeson, and Jessie Attwell.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS GLADYS WALTON.

Miss Gladys Walton is the daughter of the late Mr. George Walton, who for a long time toured his own musical company in South Africa, and of Flora Hastings; and the niece of Alfred Hemming (of Douglas), of Witty Watty Walton, and of Fred Walton, so has naturally been connected with the profession from childhood. Indeed, at the early age of ten, she stage-managed and played the title-rôle in a production of Hamlet to an admiring audience of school fellows; but, alas! a stern schoolmistress, not approving of such "ungodly ideas," the performance concluded abruptly.

Miss Walton started her professional career proper in 1900 by playing Bella (and understudying Minnie) with Morell and Mouillot's Message from Mars company, remaining with it for two years. An engagement as Olive Skinner, in The Silver King, with Messrs. Polini and Melford, followed. She next went to South Africa with Messrs. Sass and Nelson's Comedy Company, playing ingenues and small parts, and understudying lead, in such pieces as If I Were King, Mice and Men, Old Heidelberg, Monsieur Beaucaire, A Royal Family, A Royal Rival, Country Mouse, The Manœuvres of Jane, &c.

On the termination of the season, by arrangement with Mr. Sass, certain members formed a company to tour the smaller towns, going as far north as Umtali, and within two days of the Victoria Falls. She was engaged to play lead, among her parts being Muriel Mannering, in The Second in Command; Mrs. Tudway, in Lord and Lady Algy; Minnie Gilfillian, in Sweet Lavender; and May Edwards, in The Ticket-of-Leave Man. The company naturally encountered many difficulties and curious adventures, on one occasion, at Middleburg, playing in a little tin theatre in the midst of a soldiers' camp, and being driven to and fro in an ambulance waggon. Mr. Sass, returning to South Africa, Miss Walton rejoined him, and played, among other parts, Fisher, in Admirable Crichton; Charlotte Parratt, in Quality Street; Tiffin, in Sweet Nell of Old Drury; Jannifer, in Dr. Wake's Patient; Keziah, in Lady Huntworth's Experiment; and various parts in some of the old comedies.

When the Sass and Nelson company finally left South Africa, Miss Walton was retained by Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler to join Mr. Wm. Haviland's company, with whom she had a very comfortable five months' tour, playing Theodosia, in Resurrection; Sophie Chaponiere, in Leah Kleschna; and Carolina Wilhelmina Amelia Skeggs, in The Vicar of Wakefield. The tour finishing, she returned home last January. Although she went for only six months she remained abroad three years.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, March 12,
the Japanese Opera, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

Mr. Mouillot has done well in arranging a visit of this popular opera, and, interpreted as it is by artists of excellence, it is as enjoyable as ever. The many taking numbers are received with all the accustomed applause, and the quaint dialogue, pretty scenes and dresses, and charming chorus, have lost none of their attractive powers. Miss Bessie Allayne is a delightful O Mimosa San, and sings very sweetly; Miss Violet Kenyon is a bright and clever exponent of O Juliette Diamante; Miss Florrie Saunders is a charming representative of the typical English girl, Molly Seymour; and Miss Aubrey Ashton deserves much praise for her graceful impersonation of the Lady Constance. A word of praise is due to Miss Elsie Brocklebank, Miss Marie Gilbert, Miss Ruby Latham, Miss Daisy Brown, Miss Daisy Irvine, and Miss Maude Lloyd, for the interpretation of their respective parts. Reginald Fairfax, in the capable hands of Mr. Cyril Thompson, is a very popular person, and his popularity is shared by Mr. S. Lockridge as Dick Cunningham, Mr. Hyton Hoare as Arthur Cuddy, and Mr. Stephen Hall as George Grindstone. Miss Blanche Brown is a brisk and pleasing Tom Stanley; Mr. Edgar Ward is an impressive Captain Katana; Mr. G. D. Phillips is good as Takemine; Mr. Lionel Braham is capital as Marquis Imari; and Mr. Edward Carlton scores heavily with his amusing performance of Wun-Hi.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for THE ERA by Messrs. Hughes and Young, Patent Agents, 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters:—

THE ENGLISH DRAMA SOCIETY.

Dramatic societies have generally done well when they have refrained from producing new plays but have based their efforts on the work of professional authors and actors. One could not have better evidence of this than in the two plays presented on Sunday evening by the English Drama Society at the King's Hall, Covent Garden. One was Henrik Ibsen's Ghosts, a morbid, though skilfully-written play, skilfully acted; while the other, The Vision, was a very poor thing which the author, the Hon. Eleanour Norton, daringly described as "a morality."

The following was the cast of
"GHOSTS."

Mrs. Alving .....MISS MADGE MACINTOSH
Oswald Alving .....MR. ARTHUR GOODSALL
Pastor Manders .....MR. LUMSDEN HARE
Engstrand .....MR. ARTHUR CURTIS
Regina Engstrand .....MISS ISABEL ROLAND

For the general peace of mankind it is perhaps as well that people are too much taken up with their everyday affairs to spend much time ruminating in those gloomy retrospects which are ever associated with hereditary taints. There is scarcely a family vault in which may not be imagined a ghost of this kind. It is a terrible picture that Ibsen draws in his play, and it is difficult to see what purpose is served by the story it tells.

The piece was superbly acted. Miss Madge MacIntosh, in the part of the woman whose life is made up of ghostly fancies, played with such a dramatic forcefulness and naturalness that her Mrs. Alving seemed a convincing reality. Very appropriately did her appearance coincide with what the author must have intended his creation to be. The tired, careworn look of the eyes, the expression which indicated a foreboding the voice dared not utter, and the signs of a tormented soul were fully manifested by Miss MacIntosh's interpretation of the part. An admirable piece of character-drawing was furnished by Mr. Arthur Curtis in the rôle of the hypocritical Engstrand, and his imitation of the voice that sounded like an accumulation of long-drawn sobs was sustained with excellent effect. As Pastor Manders, Mr. Lumsden Hare showed us a supersanctimonious clergyman, his portrayal of the rôle being correctly conceived. Mr. Arthur Goodsall had some heavy work in the chraacter of Oswald Alving, but he realised the tragedy of the part, and in magnificent style threw himself into the intense passion of the unhappy son who, through being damned at birth, feels that life has no further charms for him. Miss Isabel Roland gave a pleasing performance of Regina.

It is not necessary to waste many words on
"THE VISION,"
A Morality by the Hon. Eleanour Norton.
Characters.

Innocence .....MISS ISABEL ROLAND
Wisdom .....MISS INA ROYAL
Passion .....MR. ESME PERCY
Pleasure .....MISS MABILIA DANIELL

It is little less than a sacrilege to place The Vision in the same category with our grand and dignified Old English Morality plays. The Hon. Miss Norton's work is sadly lacking in simplicity and sincerity, and the construction and writing give evidence of slipshod treatment and a mind inadequately equipped to deal with such a subject. We will content ourselves with giving the lady's own synopsis of the play, as printed on the programme: "Innocence, whilst Wisdom is absent, is tempted by Passion, but Heaven answered her prayer for help, in which she sees herself an outcast of Pleasure and deserted by Passion. She is awakened by the chanting of Angels, and sees Wisdom, who is returned in true loveliness."

The part of Innocence was played with true maidenly modesty and thoughtfulness by Miss Isabel Roland, and Miss Ina Royal acted with earnestness and dignity in the rôle of Wisdom. Mr. Esmè Percy was gay, gallant, and persuasive as Passion; and Miss Mabilia Daniell, as Pleasure, ably indicated the baser joys of an earthly existence.

Both the plays were produced under the direction of Mr. Nugent Monck.

PLAYERS IN THE PROVINCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Mr. Robert Castleton's letter has broken a dream I had. I dreamed that a great man entered London, a Mr. Crœsus; and a number of provincial actors, hearing of this, gathered together, and as one body fell on their knees and prayed aloud: "Great one, hear our prayer! Oh, rescue us! Oh, rescue us! Oh, rescue us! Rescue us from the Theatre Royal cinder-heap. We are actors, and for years have tried to be artistic, and against all odds. Though we have spent years at our work we are still young men; but why should we be doomed to spend our live where art is not? Oh, great one! we have tried to be artistic, we have persuaded ourselves that a tinfoiled cigar-box was a golden casket. We have striven to depict, with due appreciation, a poet's work—amid the aroma of fried fish and chips. We have pointed to our 'vast estates' in front of a scene that waggled like dirty drapery. We have declined to shriek up to steam forge-hammers and railway trains, but have made our points effective by artistic methods. We have posed as wealthy men in palaces, where the furniture suggested a marine store; we have, for art's sake, used perhaps a sigh to gain some pretty effect. Meanwhile, rude boys have thrown stones on the corrugated roof of the 'Temple of Thespis.' Great one! for art's sake have we borne these things. A great London actor once said: 'Wherever you are be artistic.' Would he were with us at the T. R. Tripe Emporium. Oh, great one! 'tis hard to say 'Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer by —— "Pies, all hot' (this, of course, being an interruption by a boy plying his trade in the 4d. fauteuils). We have tried to be artistic. We can be artistic. Why then, should we be condemned to vent our art amid smoke and smell, draught and dirt, ills and ignorance? Oh, rescue us! Oh, rescue us! Oh, rescue us!"

And lo! the prayer was heard, and this great one—this Mr. Crœsus—picked out some provincial actors and took them to London, and hired a theatre for them, and, being of great wealth, commissioned a well-known dramatist to write a play for them; and no actor had part written specially to suit him, and everything was done to help them. The scenery was solid, the doors did not wave like fairies' wings, and the drawing-room carpet had no holes in it. No pitfalls at deportment's door.

And the first night arrived, and with it a large and fashionable audience. And lo and behold! the play was a success, and the actors also. That young actor who smoked a pipe and wore a cap in the daytime played the part of a young nobleman, and lo! he looked and spoke as one. His clothes did fit him, and strange, he did not appear to be ill at ease in them. And the actor who played the aristocratic old man looked and spoke and moved as an aristocrat. And even in the drawing-room scene—provincial actors though they were—they did not knock the furniture over. And the London audience was amazed, and when the performance was over little crowds gathered together and spoke of their astonishment, and one person said: "Who are the Johnnies?" and the reply was: "They are not Johnnies, they are actors." And a number of West End managers, hearing this, speedily engaged more provincial actors, and took them to London.

At this I awoke. It was a dream!—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES CARTE.

Theatre Royal, Wednesbury.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at Spring Gardens.

THEATRES COMMITTEE.

The Council proceeded to the appointment of the several committees for the ensuing year. The Theatres and Music Halls Committee, consisting of twelve members, was appointed as follows:—Lord Monkswell, Sir William J. Bell, Sir Algernon E. West, Lieut.-Colonel Rotton, and Messrs. Jocelyn Brandon, T. Davies, H. J. Greenwood, I. H. Mitchell, B. S. Straus, D. S. Waterlow, Howell J. Williams, and W. B. Yates.

THEATRE SCHOOLS.

The Education Committee reported that a school had been opened at the Aldwych Theatre for the instruction of the children engaged at the theatre, and they found that the room set apart for the children is on the top floor, access being gained thereto by ascending a fire-resisting staircase from the street. The room is in good condition and repair, is about 18ft. long, 15ft. broad, and 10ft. 6in. high, and is efficiently heated by means of a radiator and hot-water pipes. There are twenty-five boys and girls on the register, whose ages range from ten to thirteen years. As regards the instruction given, the school is inefficient owing to the circumstances in which it is carried on, and, in order to make the school efficient, it will be necessary to employ another teacher. The committee recommended—

> That the managers of the Aldwych Theatre school be required to render efficient, by obtaining the services of an additional teacher, the school which is being conducted by them for the instruction of children engaged at the theatre, by removing the coloured muranese glass and substituting clear glass therefor, and by providing four additional electric lights in the schoolroom.

The committee further reported that at the Drury Lane Theatre a school is held for the instruction of the children engaged in the pantomime. The room set apart for the children's instruction is at the top of the building, access to which is gained by ascending a fire-resisting staircase having a separate entrance from the street. The room is 21ft. 6in. long, 16ft. 6in. wide, and 9ft. high to the wall-plate, with an open roof in addition. As regards the instruction given, the committee understood that the school is inefficient owing to the circumstances in which it is carried on, and that in order to make the school efficient it will be necessary to employ another teacher. They recommended—

> That the managers of the Drury Lane Theatre school be required to render efficient, by obtaining the services of an additional teacher, the school which is being conducted by them at the theatre, for the instruction of children engaged in the pantomime.

Agreed to.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee, in their report, recommended that no objection be taken to the proposed arrangements with regard to the provision of granolithic steps at the Putney Hippodrome, and the proposed arrangements for ventilating and heating the premises, provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with: (1) That the district surveyor be satisfied as to the construction of the steps; (2) that the ducts and shafts be constructed in fire-resisting materials, and that the openings to them be protected by wire gauze, to prevent paper, rubbish, &c., being thrust into them; (3) that the radiators in the parts of the premises to which the public have access be protected by wire guards, strongly stayed and securely fixed in position; (4) that the tables next the radiators in the dressing-rooms be constructed of hard wood; (5) that the electrical arrangements in connection with the exhaust fans be to the satisfaction of the Council; and (6) that the regulations of the Council with regard to heating, &c., be complied with.

The committee also recommended that no objection be taken to the construction of a heating chamber in the stage basement, and the provision of four radiators on the stage, of the Royalty Theatre, Dean-street, provided the regulations of the Council with regard to heating be complied with.

Approved.

"PARIS IN LONDON."

On the reception of the report of the Improvements Committee, Mr. F. Dolman asked the chairman whether, in view of the contradictory reports circulated in the newspapers, he could give any definite information regarding what is known as the "Paris in London Scheme" and the Aldwych site

Mr. Hubbard, in reply, said that his committee hoped to be able to present a full report at the next meeting.

VOTES OF THANKS.

The committee reported that they had passed votes of thanks to their chairman, Mr. Walter B. Yates, and to their vice-chairman, Mr. H. J. Greenwood, for their services during the past year.

ON the 2nd inst. there died, at the age of eighty-eight, James John Hasker, the oldest actor in Australia. He was pantaloon in old-time Christmas pantomimes, old man in many a first-class production, notably in the Charles Matthews season.

NEXT day, the 3rd, Daniel (Dan) Fitzgerald, one of the Fitzgerald Brothers, circus proprietors, died in Melbourne at the age of forty-six. He was popular with persons of all ages and classes. Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, his brother, barrister and ex-M.P., was with him when he died, and the profession is turning out in large numbers for his funeral at Waverly this morning. The other brother and partner is at present in India.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 12,
the Drama, by G. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled
"THE ENGLISH ROSE."

After some weeks of comedy, musical and otherwise, Mr. Mulholland has determined to devote a portion of the present season to melodrama, evidently in the belief that a change is good for his patrons. He could not have put forward a more excellent type of drama than The English Rose, which, according to the programme, had quite a long run at the Adelphi Theatre, and has been played over 3,000 times in the Colonies and America. Needless to say, a crowded house witnessed the play on Monday evening, and the charmingly-told story, as interpreted by Mr. J. M. East's very capable company, met with every sign of popularity. Mr. W. S. Hartford gave a sound and dignified representation of the Knight of Ballyvenny. Harry O'Mailley, the hero, was played with energy and sympathy by Mr. Horace Hunter; and Mr. Laurence Leyton distinguished himself by an evenly balanced impersonation of Father Michael. Mr. Frank Harrison rendered yeoman service as the irascible Sir Philip Kingston; and Shaun Daly was in the capable hands of Mr. Edward Boddy. Mr. Oscar Adye enacted the villainous and scheming Captain Macdonnal in his usual gentlemanly style. Sergeant O'Reilly was a truly amusing police officer, as undertaken by Mr. George Delaforce; and Mr. Edward S. Coleman, as the car-driver Nicholas Dickenson, acted very humorously and caused hearty laughter. Randel O'Mara was carefully and judiciously handled by Mr. C. F. Collings. Miss Marie Wright, a great favourite in Hammersmith, scored very effectively as Patsie Blake. Miss Eily Malyon's Ethel Kingston was an emphatic success, and her acting showed what rapid progress she has made in her profession. Louisa Fergesson was vivaciously impersonated by Miss Nellie Sheffield, and Miss East Robertson obtained much commendation for her sympathetic rendering of Bridget O'Mara.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 12,
the Comedy, in Four Acts, by I. Zangwill,

Despite the cold a good house assembled on Monday to welcome the appearance of Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's chief company in Mr. I. Zangwill's comedy, and followed with genuine interest the pathetic progress of the "slavey" heroine, from the squalid lodging-house to the high life opened to her by the sudden acquisition of fortune. As the sensitive and gifted Lancelot Mr. Harold Standing worthily followed the lead of the original exponent of the rôle, and made all his points without effort, well seconded by Mr. J. Cranstoun Nevill, who, as his old student companion, Peter, supplied the relief needed by the cheery reading of his part. Miss Margaret Fareleigh, in the title-rôle, was excellent all through, and succeeded in investing the difficult character with agreeable sentiment. The gradual improvements in appearance and manners, wrought by her love for the musicianly lodger, were so artistically brought about, that her final emergence into society seemed by no means improbable. The Rev. Samuel Smedge of Mr. Dudley Stuart was a neat bit of acting, and his unctuousness was much appreciated. The Mrs. Leadbatter of Miss Ruth Hazlewood was a familiar portrait of the London lodging-house harpy, and her giggling and would-be refined daughter, Rosie, was well acted by Miss Pauline Emeric. Herr Brahmson, the alien music publisher, was broadly outlined by Mr. Wm. Collard, and the minor parts were well filled. The performance was a consistent success, the curtain having to be raised more than once after each act. For the last three days of the week She Stoops to Conquer, with Mr. David James and Miss Muriel Godfrey-Turner in the principal parts, was announced.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 12,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE LIFE OF A SHOWMAN."

Mr. George Testo Sante has been here this week with his company in the above-named exciting drama, which proved much to the taste of the large audience assembled on Monday night. The play which, as its name implies, is written round the principal character, provides Mr. Sante, as the showman, with many opportunities for the display of his histrionic ability, as well as his muscular powers. As a good example of the former special mention may be made of the scene with Marais in the second act; while Mr. Sante's physical endurance was well evidenced in the circus scene, when he defied the efforts of two horses to break from his grip. Mr. Logan Darra submitted a careful portrayal of Hendrick Marais, and soon earned the hearty detestation of the house. Mr. Edward Warden was very successful as the Rev. Cyril Arliss, a parson of the muscular Christian type; and Mr. Charles Osborne showed considerable skill as Sir Noel Hartland, afterwards Stickers, the bill poster. Mr. Fred Vaughan gave a strong representation of Ned Chuckers, and a good deal of amusement was caused by Mr. Frank Sante as the "Human Lathe," and by various other "freaks," &c., comically played by Messrs. Arnold Price, Gus Porter, Charles Sam, Will Henderson, and R. Lever, and Miss May Neilson. Miss Amy McNeil was responsible for a convincing and sympathetic rendering of Agatha Winter; the child Lynette was brightly played by Miss May Warden; and Marais's son, Dickie, found a capable exponent in Master Harry Warden.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 12,
the Farce, in Three Acts,
by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Mr. W. W. Jacobs' amusing stories, founded on "down the river" life, have made him a very popular author, and therefore, as might be expected, a good audience were present at this theatre on Monday evening, when Mr. Cyril Maude's company appeared in that clever farce, Beauty and the Barge. Everybody was delighted with the excellence of the whole production. The company is a particularly well-chosen one, and the mounting of the play admirable. The scene on the river bank with the fully-rigged barge is a well-arranged set, and was the cause of general admiration. Mr. Harry Ashford appears as Captain Barley, and he gives a most finished and breezy delineation of this amusing old salt, whose geniality and affability carry him through his various encounters with the opposite sex with such success. It is a character drawn in Mr. Jacobs' best style, and splendidly realised by Mr. Ashford. Another character which strikes one is that of Tom Codd, as played by Mr. Charles Goold, whose make-up is a real study, and deserving of commendation. That quaint old man, John Dibbs, the gardener, is neatly sketched by Mr. J. Wheatman. The voluble and peppery Major Smedley is skilfully portrayed by Mr. Walter Pemberton, who is careful not to overdo the part. Mr. Percy Marmont is decidedly good as Herbert Manners; and Mr. Percival Knight gives a manly rendering of Lieutenant Seton Boyne. Miss May Fairclough makes a most delightful Ethel Smedley, her brightness and simple charm being quite invigorating. Miss Mary Pemberton is a charming Lucy Dallas, and one wishes she had more opportunities. Miss Ethel Stalman is seen to advantage as Mrs. Smedley; and Miss Mary Griffiths plays the pompous Mrs. Baldwin in a diverting fashion. That elegant person, Mrs. Porter, is hit off excellently by Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite; while Mrs. Porter's diminutive but assertive husband, George, is depicted in a most humorous fashion by Mr. G. Caffrey. Mr. F. Harvey makes a hit as Augustus, the third hand of the Heart and Hand. Ted and Bill are well represented by Messrs. Fred Lake and Fred Paul; and Messrs. Flinders, Fairclough, and Richford complete an excellent cast. That clever little play by Arthur Morrison and H. C. Sergeant, That Brute Simmons, precedes the farce, and Miss Harriet French and Messrs. J. Wheatman and Fred Lake appear in it with great success.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Tuesday, March 13,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by J. W. Whitbread,
"LORD EDWARD; OR, '98."

An accident to the fireproof curtain, to which reference is made in another column, prevented the representation here on Monday of Mr. J. W. Whitbread's drama, Lord Edward; or, '98; but on Tuesday everything had been put right, and a large audience enjoyed the piece. Full of dramatic situations, it was followed with intense interest. As Lord Edward Fitzgerald, Mr. Ernest E. Norris has a part well suited to his powers, and scores a distinct success. He has a rousing reception on his first appearance in the play, and, as "one of the noblest figures in Irish history," he repeatedly works up the audience to a state of great enthusiasm. Mr. Alfred Harding as Francis Maagan, a barrister-at-law, "the informer," a character so indispensable in an Irish drama, completely identifies himself with the part. Mr. Wellesley Smith as the rollicking dare-devil Thady is responsible for a capital piece of character acting. His success is shared by Miss Georgie De Lara as Katie Malone, whose arch coquetry and vivacious fun is conspicuously successful. As Francis Higgins, an attorney-at-law, nicknamed "The Shamade," Mr. Howard Templeton is sufficiently hard and callous. As Lord Edward's faithful adherent, Neilson, Mr. Edwin Bennett makes the most of his part. The other male characters of the piece are all well sustained. Miss Kathleen Russell is a majestic Pamela, and plays throughout with dramatic power. Little Florrie Green must be complimented on her impersonation of little Teddy; Miss Alice Spry gives importance to the rôle of Madame de Sillery; and Miss Gladys King as Lady Louisa Connolly, Miss Olive Duncan as Mrs. Moore, and Miss Clara Moore as Miss Moore, are excellent. The play is carefully staged, and the dresses and uniforms are very effective.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 12,
the Play, in Five Acts, by C. M. S. McLellan,
entitled
"LEAH KLESCHNA."

Lovers of the drama have not failed to appreciate the appetising fare that is provided for them this week with a visit of Mr. Chas. Froh man's company, in the well-known sucessful play, Leah Kleschna. Mr. Robert Pateman as Kleschna gives a powerful interpretation of the burglar, bringing out the traits of his character very forcibly, especially his tyrannous nature. Miss Haidee Wright plays Leah very sympathetically and convincingly, depicting the various phases of a trying part in a manner that evidences great histrionic ability. Schram is well played by Mr. E. H. Brooke, his dogged devotion to Leah, in spite of his snarls and sneers, being ably represented. A clever performance of the dissipated Raoul Berton is given by Mr. Cyril Harcourt, and his impersonation of the drunken man is very successful. The Paul Sylvaine of Mr. Graeme Campbell is an excellent performance; his quiet, determined manner is very impressive, and unqualified praise must be given for a well-thought-out study. Mr. Roland Daniel deserves great praise for his humorous and clever character study of Valentin Farre, a French journalist; and he is ably assisted in his efforts to create amusement by Miss Dorothy Sidney as Sophie. The small part of General Berton is creditably undertaken by Mr. Kenneth Rivington; Miss Ethel Marryat and Miss Haidee Hemsley, as Madame Berton and Clare Berton, in their respective parts, play smartly; and the smaller but indispensable characters of Johann, Anton Pfaff, Reichmann, Baptiste, Frieda, and Charlotte, are successfully undertaken by Messrs. G. Fairburn, Wm. Wilson, M. M. Loomis, J. Harding, and Misses Cecile Leith and Alice Davis.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 12
the Drama, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

A rare dramatic treat is provided this week at the above theatre, where a powerful company, under the supervision and direction of Mr. Arthur Collins, is presenting the famous drama, The Prodigal Son, which attained such a success at the Drury Lane Theatre. An excellent company has been engaged, and the representation is illustrated by magnificent scenery. A leading feature of the play is the presentation, by Miss Lily Hall Caine of the sweet-natured and innocent Thora. Thoroughly grasping the character, Miss Caine quickly wins the sympathy of the audience by her pathetic impersonation, notably in the scene where Thora—goaded beyond endurance by the neglect of her husband and her sister's cruel taunts—loses her self-restraint and breaks into a passionate outburst which proves too much for her highly-strung temperament, and causes her death. This is an intensely affecting scene, and moves many of the audience to tears. Miss Caine also undertakes the part of Thora's daughter Eline, and gives a very natural representation of a young girl. Another notable performance is that of Miss Alma Murray, who plays the part of the mother, Anna, with zest and sincerity, and acquits herself artistically. Miss Cecil Cromwell is admirably placed as the passionate and selfish Helga Neilsen, and gains much applause for a spirited rendering. Warm praise must also be given to Miss Nimi Renouf for an excellent portrayal of the blunt, outspoken Margaret Neilsen. A polished and convincing performance of the weak-minded prodigal, Oscar, is given by Mr. Norman Partriege, who faithfully portrays the varying emotions of the part with considerable skill. Mr. Henry Renouf contributes a capital embodiment of Magnus, giving altogether a very powerful delineation. In the rôle of Stephen, Mr. Henry George acts with a dignity that fully impresses the audience, and Mr. Frank Collins, who is also responsible for the stage management, gives an excellent delineation of Oscar Neilsen. The part of Doctor Olsen is creditably sustained by Mr. Howard Russell and Mr. Herbert Hewetson is eminently satisfactory as Neil Finsen. Valuable support was also given by Mr. Phillips as the Sheriff, Mr. Fred Grove as the Pastor, Mr. Bryan Daly as Director of the Casino, Mr. P. Gromer as Eric Ainasson, and Miss Fisher as Mme. Pandher.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH END.

On Monday, March 12, a Dramatic Episode in One Act, by W. Lestocq, entitled
"A BAD PENNY,"
and the Farcical Comedy, by Charles Selby,
entitled
"A FEARFUL TRAGEDY IN SEVEN DIALS."

Variety is the keynote of the programme at the Crouch End Opera House this week. Firstly, the dramatic episode entitled A Bad Penny is well played by a small, but talented company. Miss Minnie Grey enacts the part of May Hyde in her usual bright and winning fashion, Mr. T. Thorpe Tracey (as Richard Hyde) presents an interesting picture of a besotted old vagabond, and as Charles Hyde, Mr. Fred Castleman gives a capital and intelligent study of the well-bred country gentleman. Mr. A. P. Kage as Harry Goodwin makes a manly and attractive young lover. A Fearful Tragedy in Seven Dials, though showing signs of age, does not, however, fail to amuse, and the efforts of Mr. Thorpe Tracey (as Timothy Slumpington) and Mr. A. P. Kage (as Muggleton Mulligatawney) are highly appreciated. Mr. Fred Castleman's James Twigley is excellent, and Miss Minnie Grey again does good service as Mrs. Slumpington.

Between the two pieces Violet Harvey, who possesses a tuneful voice, pleases the audience with "Rosie Brown," and other ditties; Angelo, the Lightning Painter, produces in a marvellously short space of time speaking likenesses of well-known personages; and clever Kitty Beresford dances and sings, her repertoire including "The Ladies' Parasol," "The Motor Car," and "You never can tell," all of which are received with much applause. The Jalvans are Oriental entertainers, who spin tops and juggle in a disconcerting and wonderful manner. He of the sterner sex indulges in quaint singing and dancing whilst performing his business. The Ongars, who dance the Gollywog, Dutch, Spanish, and Russian dances, receive an ovation which is well deserved. They are perfect masters of the terpsichorean art. Almon, the clever hand-balancer, is well received, and Walter James, a fine baritone, gives "The Toilers" in pleasing fashion.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

Another welcome visit was paid by the Kendals to the Kennington Theatre this week. On Monday night Still Waters Run Deep held the boards; and on Tuesday Dick Hope was given. Mr. Kendal's clever and finished piece of work in the title-rôle is the most excellent feature of the play, his acting as the poor inebriate, who for a year masters his craving for drink for the sake of the woman he loves, and on the last day nobly breaks the contract so as to leave her free to marry another being powerfully dramatic. Mrs. Kendal is charmingly sweet and natural as Marjorie Lyall, and wins all hearts by her sympathetic portrayal. John Hemming finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Bassett Roe, an actor of great experience and capability. Gilbert, John Hemming's younger brother, was taken in the necessary juvenile manner, and was a creditable effort on the part of Mr. Percy Crawford. Mr. Ernest Hendrie is lightly humorous as Reginald Lillithwaite; and Jephson, a servant, is made the most of by Mr. W M. Rutherfurd. Clara Hope is neatly portrayed by Miss Jessie Moore; and Henrietta Turtle, a lady of the woman's rights type, is made sufficiently assertive by Mrs. A. B. Tapping. Miss Marie Lohr look pretty and acts well as Gwendoline Giles. The scene of Marjorie's Garden in Acts I. and III. is very beautiful, and aroused general admiration.

FULHAM THEATRE.

On Monday, March 12,
the Play, adapted by George Fleming from Rudyard Kipling's Novel, entitled
"THE LIGHT THAT FAILED."

This week there is a particular attraction at the Fulham Theatre in the shape of a visit from Mr. Forbes Robertson's company, in The Light that Failed and Mice and Men. The first-named piece, played on Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday, was received with great favour by crowded houses. In itself The Light that Failed is not an exhilarating piece; there is too decided an air of gloom and misfortune about it for that; but, at any rate, it serves well enough to provide Mr. Forbes Robertson with the opportunity of displaying some uncommonly fine acting. He takes, of course, his original part of Dick Helder. With numberless subtle little touches, the approach of the dreaded darkness is most skilfully foreshadowed, and the way is prepared for the terrible scene when he first becomes fully conscious of his fate. In this, as in all his work, Mr. Forbes Robertson shows all that thoughtful attention to detail, and all that thoroughness and finish by which his work is always marked. In the scenes with Maisie, too, the unselfishness, love, and tenderness of the character were wonderfully brought out. The part of Torpenhow, the faithful friend, could not be in better hands than those of Mr. Ian Robertson. Mr. Charles Weir was a fine representative of "Nilghai"; and the other knights of the pen were well played by Messrs. V. Steel, Frank Bickley, J. H. Beaumont, and W. Pilling. Mr. Herbert Dansey gave a capital sketch of the vivacious Cassavetti; and Mr. J. H. Ryley contributed a careful study of the garrulous Beeton. Miss Gertrude Elliott played Maisie with her usual charm. In the earlier scenes, this character—that of an artist so enamoured of her own work and ambition as to be deaf to the voice of love—is not an engaging one; but in the later scenes, the artist gives way to the woman, and as this change takes place Miss Elliott rises splendidly to the occasion, and the pathos of the closing scenes made a deep impression on the house. The Bessie Brooke of Miss Auriol Lee was a clever study of a less sympathetic character. Miss Gertrude Bibby acted with much grace and tenderness as the Red-haired Girl; and Miss Minnie Griffin was quite satisfactory as Mrs. Haines; Miss Dorothy Paget played the part of a model, and Miss Esme Hubbard was bright and lively as the French Bonne. As a prelude to The Light that Failed, Miss Clara Alexandra entertained the house with some weird negro songs and amusing stories, of which the most effective seemed to be the Negro Sermon and the account of the horse race. These sketches were something of a novelty, and being very cleverly done, met with considerable favour.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, March 12,
the Play, by Alfred Sutro, entitled
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company is appearing this week at the Coronet in the great Garrick success, The Walls of Jericho, a play which caused a great sensation in London by its daring and scathing attack on the manners and methods of "the smart set." All the scenes evolving the gradual but overwhelming revolt of the sturdy man from Queensland, Jack Frobisher, against the insincerity and vice of the society in which he moves, until at the final blast of truth the walls of this insecure edifice crumble to the ground, are eagerly followed by a rapt audience. Mr. Edward A. Warburton gives a powerful and virile impersonation of "fighting Jack" Frobisher, of Queensland, reduced to nerveless inanity by society cant and humbug, gradually reasserting his dominant faculties, and he acts with force and conviction. Mr. Alfred S. Barber is excellent as the good-natured miner "Mad Jim," alias Hankey Bannister, who, having "struck lucky," is anxious to marry and assume a proud position in society. Miss Amy Ravenscroft is entirely charming as Lady Alethea, and aptly depicts the butterfly nature of the woman who is yet capable of "rising from the ashes of her dead self to higher and to nobler things." Miss Nona Wynne is delightful as the irresistibly attractive ingénue, Lady Lucy, whose girlish inexperience so humorously peeps out between the lines of her set speeches. Mr. Cecil Brooking renders invaluable aid as the pompous, money-grabbing, self-seeking, impecunious Marquis of Steventon, and very funny is his fruitless attempt to pulverise the rebellious Jack Frobisher. Lady Westerby has a very graceful and sympathetic exponent in Miss Helen Haye, and Miss Jean Harkness, Miss Mary Weigall, and Miss May Brooke all cleverly portray types of society in the "smart set." Mr. A. W. Tyrer essays the thankless part of Harry Dallas very creditably; and Mr. V. Willox Cadogan scores as the irrepressible bore, Bertram Hannaford. Other small parts are satisfactorily rendered. Mr. A. H. Leveaux undertakes the stage management, and Mr. Ernest F. Mehrer assists Mr. Edward Lytton at the front of the house.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 12,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by Hall Caine,
entitled
"THE ETERNAL CITY."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is appearing at the Kingston playhouse this week in this fine production, which created such a favourable impression upon the occasion of its first appearance in the riverside town some time ago. The company appearing this week is a thoroughly capable one all round, all the principal parts especially being well filled. Chief honours are earned and awarded to Miss Marie Polini, who plays the part of Donna Roma with distinct success. Miss Polini appeared at the Royal County a few weeks ago in Oliver Twist, taking a part of a very different character, and her Kingston friends that she made on that occasion have not been slow to show their appreciation of her fine acting in a much more serious rôle. Mr. E. Stanton Sharpe is cast for the part of the Baron Bonelli, which fits him admirably; and Mr. Henry Deas makes a high-souled and earnest David Rossi. A fine piece of acting is also submitted by Mr. George Cartwright as the sculptor's assistant, Bruno Rocco. Valuable assistance is given by Mr. J. Fortescue as Pope Pius XI.; by Mr. L. St. G. Lowther as the Commendator, Angelelli; by Mr. Court as General Morra; by Mr. Herbert Legerton as the spy, Charles Menghelli; and by Mr. E. Stidwell, who makes an admirable Felice. Other parts are equally well placed, and the staging and dressing of the production is all that can be desired. The play is being produced under the direction of Mr. D. Lewin Mannering.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 12,
Auber's Opera, in Three Acts, entitled
"FRA DIAVOLO."

Every success has attended Mr. Turner's season here this year, and immense enthusiasm has been shown by the audience at each of the many and varied performances given. In Fra Diavolo Mr. J. W. Turner played the title-rôle with great skill, and with his exceedingly fine voice supplied an interpretation worthy of warm praise. Mr. Charles Le Sueur puts some good work into his impersonation of Lorenzo, and met with distinct approval. Mr. John Ridding infused a large amount of drollery into his delineation of Lord Allcash; Mr. Sidney Clifford embodied the part of Giacomo capably; Mr. Richard Cummings put considerable humour into his portrayal of Beppo, and scored a great success; whilst the part of Matteo was well represented by Mr. George Ridding. Miss Marie Burnett rendered a good account of herself as Lady Allcash. Miss Kitty Brownless's interpretation of Zerlina met with a hearty reception, and her music was sung in an artistic and finished manner. The exceptionally good chorus and orchestra did capital work under the able direction of Mr. T. Lawton. Other operas upon this week's programme were The Lily of Killarney, The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Il Trovatore, and Maritana

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, March 12,
the Play, by W. G. Wills, entitled
"A ROYAL DIVORCE."

Mr. Clarence Sounes is introducing for the first time at Poplar A Royal Divorce, with company, scenery, dresses, and effects, as played lately at the Scala Theatre. The piece is attracting large audiences nightly. The remarkable performance of Miss Edith Cole as the Empress Josephine is greeted with the utmost enthusiasm. In all her scenes Miss Cole has perfect control over her emotions, and no point of the actress's powerful impersonation is lost upon the audience. Miss Cole is ably supported by Mr. Frank Lister, who submits a clever delineation of Napoleon. He handles the character with firmness throughout. Talleyrand is cunningly played by Mr. F. Joynsen-Powell; and the part of the Marquis de Beaumont is well looked after by Mr. G. W. Cockburn. Mr. George Howard is acceptable as General Augereau, and Mr. St. George-Frere is well placed as Marshal Murat. A humorous portrayal of the Genappe innkeeper, Grimaud, comes from Mr. T. P. Haynes, whose efforts are well appreciated. Miss Clara Earle is delightfully sweet as Stephanie, and Miss Irma Foldi is a taking Blanche d'Hervas. Marie Louise receives an impressive delineation from Miss Elizabeth Watson, and Master Herbert Hollom appears as the little King of Rome.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 12,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"EAST LYNNE."

By special arrangement with Mr. Arthur Leigh and Mr. J. Pitt Hardacre, the adaptation from Mrs. Henry Wood's popular novel, "East Lynne," known as the Bullock Version, is being presented at the Pavilion this week, and is meeting with considerable success. As Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, Miss Katherine Clarke evinced much artistic skill, and invested the character with an amount of emotional power, which had its due effect upon the audience. Mr. Fred Victor played with true feeling, and gave a very consistent rendering of Archibald Carlyle, being manly and unaffected throughout; while Mr. H. D. Brame contributed excellent support as Lord Mountsevern. A sound and natural impersonation of the scoundrel, Francis Levison, is given by Mr. Frank Harding, who is perfectly cool and easy in the part, the suggestion of the man's absolute selfishness being depicted with remarkable effect. Mr. Harry Barford is diverting, and creates unbounded amusement by his quaint and humorous representation of Bullock; and Mr. Alfred Holles gained appreciation for his portrayal of Lawyer Dill. Mr. Charles Langley appeared to advantage as Justice Hare; and Mr. Fred Boustead, who must be warmly congratulated for his efforts, distinguished himself as Richard Hare, his talents meeting with due recognition. An admirable exponent of Barbara Hare was found in Miss Cissy Farrell; and Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem, whose work is always well done, was the recipient of hearty applause for her homely rendition of Cornelia Carlyle. Miss Daisy McNiel was natural as Little Willie, and displayed exceptional intelligence and point; while Miss Kitty Cardigan was smart as the French maid, Susanne. Miss Clarice Shirley was successful as the faithful Joyce; and Miss Milly Murray was a capable Wilson. The revival was capitally staged and mounted.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 12,
the Play, by Walter Melville, entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

The four-act play by Mr. Walter Melville, entitled A Girl's Cross Roads, which has obtained such world-wide reputation, both for the sensational nature of the story, and for the moral lesson taught, is meeting with an enthusiastic reception at the Dalston Theatre this week. Originally produced at the Standard, Bishopsgate, the piece is now once more being played near its old home. The presentation at the Dalston is good all round. Miss Beaumont Collins sustains the trying character of Barbara Wade, whose career illustrates one undesirable cross-road which a girl can take. Barbara's failing is drink, and nothing could be more wierdly effective than the scene in the last act, where, while indulging in a mournful rendering of the ditty, "do not forget me," she passes away to her account. The stage effects lend an additional sense of terror to this scene. Nellie Meadows, a farmer's daughter, who takes the wayward cross-road, is cleverly impersonated by Miss Nannie Meade. The "correct" road is travelled by a young schoolmistress, Constance Cornell, capably represented by Miss Elsie Saxile. John Meadows, an old farmer, who eventually brings his daughter's career of wanton gaiety to a close by shooting her, finds an effective representative in Mr. Charles Franmore, whose parental troubles secure much sympathy. Mr. Frank R. Robertson, the hero of the piece, Jack Livingstone, is powerful and pathetic. Toby Turvey, Livingstone's servant, as played by Mr. Fred Ingram, is amusing; and the same may be said of Miss Lena Delphine's rendering of Tilly Vane. The evil genius of the play is Cuthbert Lumley, and Mr. Roy Fortescue does all that is necessary to render the character effective. Mr. Courtney Bellenden is Dr. Weston, Jack Livingstone's friend; and Mr. John Brookes provides a sketch of colonial character of the undesirable type as Luke Ramsden, from Australia. The cast also includes Mr. David Borone, Mr. George Wilson, Mr. Harold Vernon, Mr. W. Johnson, Mr. Bert Hedges, Miss E. Crossley, Miss Nellie Butts, Miss Kate Walton, Miss Gibbons, and Miss Nellie Noble. The piece is well staged.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 12,
the Drama, in Five Acts,
by Henry Pettitt and George R. Sims, entitled
"MASTER AND MAN."

Mr. Ashley Page and Miss Marion Denvil are again here with their strong company in the above domestic drama. They have become quite favourites with the Rotherhithe audiences. The play from beginning to end is full of incident, and is followed with keen interest. Mr. Ashley Page takes the part of the hero, Jack Walton, a young engineer, and acts in manly style. Robert Carlton, an ironmaster, the villain of the play, is exceedingly well played by Mr. S. Mafer Jones. Mr. John Sargeant presents a powerful sketch of Humpy Logan, and great credit is due to him for the manner in which he sustains the part. Mr. Tom Tayler give a fine rendering of the rôle of Jim Barleigh. Mr. Johnny Chippendale is comical, and gives life to the play in the part of Tom Honeywood. Mr. C. A. Chandler is well suited as Crispin St. Jones, and causes much laughter. Miss Marion Denvil makes a charming Hester Thornbury, and acts with great power. Miss Matsie Everett adds much to the fun in the part of Letty Lightfoot. Miss Maud Harris shows herself to be a clever child actress in the part of Little Johnny, Hester's child. The remaining characters are well up to the standard. The scenery is good, especially in the fourth act, scene 2, the interior of the ironworks.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 12,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

This essentially American musical composition is making a decidedly favourable impression at the Stratford Borough Theatre this week. What story there is is frequently lost in the flood of turn and incident; but this is of little consequence when the fun and movement are vigorously maintained, and with its tuneful music, lively interpolated items, and beautiful mounting and dressing, the piece has all the elements which make for success. Pride of place in Mr. George Musgrave's excellent company is easily earned by Mr. Edwin Adeler, who as the volatile Hans Wagner provokes unlimited mirth by his droll doings and sayings. Mr. Stuart Alexander acts and sings in manly and pleasing style in the name part; and Mr. G. Villiers Arnold is a buoyant and breezy exponent of Lieutenant John Wagner. Mr. Lawrence Wensley plays with a most effective dry humour as Arthur de Willoughby Rossmoss; and Mr. Alfred Selby contributes some neat and exceedingly clever dancing as the nimble and alert François. Miss Nelly Cozens is a charming Mrs. Madison Crocker, and her fine vocal efforts afford much pleasure. Miss Mildred Baker wins great favour as Edith Adams; and Miss Nell Emerald makes a piquant and chic Sidonie. Nellie Wagner has a graceful exponent in Miss Mabel Osborn; and Miss Meg Hamylton is a popular Jimmie. The large and well-trained chorus render the concerted numbers with admirable precision, and the augmented orchestra is under the able guidance of Mr. J. A. Robertson.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

Monday, March 12, the Comic Opera, in Three Acts, entitled

It is not a matter of surprise that the above popular comic opera is attracting excellent audiences on its first visit to Peckham. The name of Mr. George Dance, under whose direction the company is presented, is a sufficient guarantee that the fullest justice is done to the production. The opera is received with much enthusiasm, many of the numbers being redemanded. Miss Rita Leonhart makes a vivacious and pretty Veronique, singing her various charming items in excellent style. Mr. Roland Bottomley is a stalwart and tuneful hero as Florestan de Vallancourt. Both Miss Leonhart and Mr. Bottomley are heard to much advantage in the two vocal gems of the opera, "The Swing Song" and "Dear little donkey." Mr. Ivan Berlyn, who has appeared at Peckham both as Quilp and "the Man Bird," in Because I Love You, shows his versatility by a clever rendering of the widely different part of the eccentric Mons. Loustot. Mr. Ellis Holland extracts a good deal of fun out of the part of the middle-aged flirt Coquenard. Miss Florence Lee both acts and sings charmingly in the rôle of Madame Coquenard. Miss Pattie O'Hanlon is seen to much advantage as Aunt Benoit, showing considerable comedy power, and scoring well with her pretty ballad in the third act. Mr. Tom Shelford materially helps the humorous aspect of the piece as the groom Seraphin. Miss Neste Laurel is good as Denise. There is a large and efficient chorus, the orchestra being under the able bâton of Mr. Leonard Leslie. Mr. Harry B. Earle is the business-manager. The scenery is very effective, especially the view of the sylvan glade in the second act, with the river winding its way among the apple trees.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 12,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by George Daventry,
"THE INDIAN MUTINY."

The habitués of the Grand are certainly enjoying a great amount of variety in the dramas that are being presented to them week by week. The current attraction is Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company in the above drama. Picturesque, stirring, and well mounted, The Indian Mutiny makes a strong bid for public approval, which is certainly forthcoming. Mr. George Steel as Lieutenant Manley acts well and with a humorous touch that is very effective. Mr. Cyril Harrison, as Captain Manley, is also to be commended on a good performance. The part of Major Ingleby is sustained with success by Mr. John Davidson, who also deserves a word for his efficient stage-management. Mr. George Scally, as Terry O'Brien, is amusing in a poor part; Miss Kate Bruce, as Mrs. Ingleby, portrays that singular lady with good effect; Miss Lillie Grey, as her daughter, is bright and vivacious in a part of limited opportunity; and Miss J. Melrose Millet, as Ghuznah, impersonates the Indian girl cleverly. Mr. J. S. Shedden, as Abul Khan, is dignified and impressive; Mr. Ernest Keand, as Ra Goonga, gives one of the best performances of the evening.

"CONSCIENCE AND CRIME."

A New and Original Romantic Drama, in Four Acts, by Alfred Stafford, Produced at the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood, on Monday, March 12.

This new romantic drama by Mr. Alfred Stafford has a clearly-told story, and is full of stirring incidents. Briefly, the plot is as follows:—Belle Redvers, a wealthy young lady, and Tom Cranleigh, her cousin, are left a fortune by their uncle on condition that they marry each other within a stipulated period. Belle Redvers loves Tom, but his affection is given to Mary Hazelcroft, who returns his love. Mark Wolfton, a ne'er-do-well, endeavours to marry Mary, who has a modest fortune, which is the real attraction to him, he being pressed for ready money to meet the demands of Bill Markham and his associate, Nobby Rutter. Mary, determined that Tom shall not lose the fortune left conditionally, decides to marry Mark Wolfton, although she has no love for him. Simeon Wolfton, Mark's father, an avaricious, miserly old man, discovers that someone has forged his name to several cheques, and on his son's wedding day finds that he is the criminal. Throwing all affection for his son to the winds, he allows the Bank to prosecute, and at the same time alters his will so that Mark shall not receive a penny of his money. In order to destroy this new will the son attacks his father, stunning him as Tom enters to announce the death of Mary's father. Tom is accused of the crime, and circumstances point to his guilt. Bill Markham, who in reality is the son of old Money Marrs (Tom and Belle's uncle), has, conscience-stricken, turned over a new leaf, and endeavours in every way to atone for the past; whilst Frank Wolfton progresses rapidly in his career of crime, even turning up a couple of years later at the head of a gang of freebooters in South Africa. They attack the homestead where Mary and Belle are residing, they having left England after the miserable events of two years previously. They are accompanied by the now reformed "Bill Markham" and a senile old gentleman called "Daddles." He is really old Simeon Wolfton, with his memory a complete blank, as the result of his son's murderous attack in England. The military approach at the end of the act, and, in order to escape falling into their hands, Mark Wolfton actually kills his father, who obstructs his path, having suddenly regained his reason. A year later we find the leading characters back in England, and under the impression that Mark Wolfton was killed in his wild attempt to escape the law in South Africa. They are soon undeceived, he being in hiding at the Old Mill. Agatha, the former housekeeper to Simeon and the mother of Mark Wolfton, is killed while endeavouring to save him from being captured. The missing will made by Old Money Marrs, together with that signed by Simeon Wolfton, is brought to light by Nobby Rutter, who had three years previously purloined them whilst on a futile burglarious expedition at the Old Mill. The last will gives a satisfactory adjustment of money matters, and the piece ends with the sensational death of Mark Wolfton. There is a strong vein of comedy threaded through the drama, which materially aids the plot, whilst relieving the heavier parts of the drama.

Several incidental musical numbers greatly added to the undoubted success of the first performance. The characters are well sustained all round. Mr. J. Chippendale gives a fine portrayal of the eccentric and miserly old man, Simeon Wolfton; Mr. W. R. Winning supplies a vigorous rendering of the arch villain; Mr. R. F. Stacey portrays a typical hero; whilst Mr. Myron-Howard is highly effective as the conscience-stricken Bill Markham. Miss Lily Prescott is charming as Mary, who sacrifices her own love in the vain hope of serving her friend Belle Redvers and the man she loves; Miss Mildred Clay is a bright and winsome Belle Redvers; and a striking and realistic performance is that of Miss Maud Elliott as the gipsy housekeeper, Agatha Lee. The comedy element is capitally sustained by Miss Elsie Mesner, who introduces several humorous songs, and Mr. John A. Stimson, who is really funny in his rendering of the nondescript Nobby Rutter. Messrs. Murray and Stafford have provided most effective and elaborate scenery, which has been especially constructed and admirably painted, under the supervision of their stage-manager, Mr. John A. Stimson. The entire production has been under the personal direction of the author, Mr. Alfred Stafford. Judging by the crowded audience and the way the new drama was received there is every prospect of a long and prosperous run for Conscience and Crime.

On Monday, March 12, the Musical Play by Seymour Hicks, composed by Herbert E. Baines, entitled "THE TALK OF THE TOWN."

Mr. William Greet's company is this week presenting at the Alexandra The Talk of the Town The piece is handsomely mounted and dressed, many of the dresses worn being those used in the original production at the Lyric. Mr. William Cromwell, who plays Jerry Snipe, is a hard-working and clever comedian, and his work is the mainstay of the production. Another excellent performance is the Mrs. Snipe of Miss Louie Tinsley, which is a most finished and artistic little sketch of character. Mr. Arthur Harold plays and sings easily and naturally as Lieut. Reggie Drummond, and Miss Joan Keddie is a dainty and delightful Ellaline. A good deal of fun of a somewhat extravagant sort is provided by Mr. Tom Graves and Mr. A. G. Melford as the brothers English. Miss Evelyn d'Alroy is a charming June who makes the most of her chances; and the remaining parts in a long cast are filled with varying success by the ladies and gentlemen to whom they are allotted.

PRESENTATION.—The conclusion of the pantomime of Cinderella at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle, on Saturday, was marked by the presentation to Mr. F. Teale Lingham of a solid silver tea and coffee service, a gold hunter stop-watch and chain, and a purse of gold, gifts from the directors, proprietors, and staff of the theatre and many friends in Newcastle as an appreciation of his courteous and successful management of the theatre. The presentation was made by Mr. Herbert Ralland, who said that had the testimonial been open to Mr. Lingham's theatrical friends in the United Kingdom he would have had to have a barrow on the stage to carry the tokens of their esteem. In returning thanks, Mr. Lingham said the gifts testified in no small measure to the numerous friends in front and behind the curtain who had combined to make his position there that night one of the most memorable events associated with his many years of management of the Theatre Royal, with which and the staff he hoped to be associated for many years to come.

"THE HINDOO'S REVENGE."

Drama, in Four Acts, by S. Lewis-Ransom and H. A. Saintsbury, Produced at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, on Monday, March 12.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This play, originally called The Hands of Sin, and now rewritten and revised, deals with the adventures of two half-brothers, one of whom, Captain Stephen Glenister, while engaged in an engineering expedition to the northern frontier of India, had associated himself with a Hindoo maiden, Zephan, through whom some important documents and plans had been sold to Russian officials, and in these transactions he had passed himself off as his half-brother Bruce. Stephen appears to have returned to England without having notified Zephan, who meditates revenge. His mode of life has run him into debt, and among his creditors is Dr. Murphy, who has returned at the same time to England.

The first act opens in Bruce Glenister's chambers in St. James's-street, where General Strong acquaints him of the discovery he has made that someone has been giving information to the enemy as to the frontier forts, &c., and that there will be trouble, as he and Bruce and Stephen were the only persons by whom the deed could have been done. Shortly after, Dr. Murphy comes in, and demands £500, the amount of I.O.U.'s he holds from Stephen, who proposes a scheme by which they can obtain the money, and more, by defrauding Bruce, a proposal which the doctor will not entertain. Bruce generously offers to settle the debt, and writes out a cheque, but the doctor tears up the cheque, preferring to keep the I.O.U.'s. Stephen, wishing to get some papers that are locked up in Bruce's desk, drugs his wine with an Indian decoction intended to simulate death. Bruce becomes unconscious, and the doctor, coming in, pronounces him dead. Kumar, Zephan's brother, who had come to get satisfaction from Bruce Glenister, arrives, and finds that Bruce is only under the effect of the drug which his sister had given Stephen, and the Hindoo restores Bruce by means of an antidote. Stephen steals the papers, and throws the whole blame on Bruce, who determines to remain disguised until he can clear himself. He pretends to be an undertaker, and measures Kumar, who has taken his place, for a coffin, and afterwards both Kumar and Bruce disappear. Diana Strong, an up-to-date young lady with a fondness for amateur detective work, determines to unravel the mysterious disappearance of the body and the pseudo-undertaker, and with the Doctor as her lieutenant has some amusing adventures, during which the Doctor and she fall in love with each other. Stephen has some interviews with the Russian Count Polskoff as to the disposing of the further documents, and Kumar dogs Stephen's footsteps, keeping him in sight until Zephan arrives. Stephen persuades Sylvia, Bruce's sweetheart, to go with him to an old granary, where he says Bruce is to be found, and tries to get Kumar to throw the girl into the river, but he refuses, and Stephen shoots him. He transfers the job to Bruce, who is disguised as a tramp, but, Zephan appearing, Stephen rouses her jealousy, and she is going to kill Sylvia when Bruce is discovered, and Zephan is made to believe that Bruce killed Kumar. She is about to wreak vengeance on Bruce when the tables are turned by the appearance of Diana and the Doctor.

In the last act, which takes place in a private room at the Columbia Hotel, Bruce impersonates a Russian Count with whom Stephen's treacherous negotiations were conducted, and by this means obtains from Stephen certain documents for which he hands him £5000 in forged notes which had previously belonged to Stephen. The real Count then enters, and Stephen realises that he is outwitted. Zephan, while pretending to be friendly, induces him to drink, and administers a drug by which he will remain inanimate for two years, hearing and seeing everything, but being unable to breathe or move, till death eventually ensues.

This play went very well for a first performance, and kept the audience engrossed in the story. Mr. Cyril W. Mackay is an excellent Captain Bruce Glenister, undertaking the several disguises very cleverly. The villainous Captain Stephen Glenister is a finished performance by Mr. Elliott Ball. Mr. Arthur Willerby makes an amusing Irish doctor. Mr. Clive Ross is a fine old stern General Strong. Miss Lilyan Lait plays the part of the independent and spirited young lady (Diana Strong) with charming grace. Miss Ethyle Murray carefully portrays the Hindoo Zephan. Mr. E. H. Dobell is successful as Kumar Nana. Miss Daisy Snowden is well suited to the character of Sylvia. Mr. Frank Ridley (as Warren Bruce), Mr. Hamilton Travers (as Count Polskoff), and Mr. C. W. Hamons (as Peterson) give adequate support.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As an impression seems to exist that the Scots marriage law is out of date, will you allow me to state that whilst my unpretentious little play United States, reviewed in your columns last week, is intended solely to amuse, it is an actual fact that the declaration of marriage before witnesses to this day forms a legal and binding ceremony in Scotland.

It is only some five or six years ago since my father married a respectable but impecunious couple by Scots law at his own residence one Sunday morning. That marriage was in every sense legal and satisfactory to everyone concerned, although in his capacity of Justice of the Peace he was the only person besides the young couple present at the ceremony.

Several years ago I made use of one of the most interesting cases I have ever come across in this connection as a basis for a little one-act play, A Fragment, in which Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird appeared in Glasgow upon its first production. It was well received, both by Press and public, which would have been impossible in that critical city (nor would I have dared to present it) had there been the slightest question as to Scots law. The actual case is so peculiar as showing what may occur in Scotland that I venture to relate it:

A Scottish gentleman contracted a Scots marriage by declaration before witnesses in Venice. He and his wife always believed themselves to be legally married, but when, years later, the question of their heir's succession to a large estate arose, it was contended, and rightly, that a Scots marriage is null and void unless contracted upon Scotch soil. A clever counsel, however, discovered that at the time of the marriage the gentleman was in Venice upon Government Service, and for that reason took his soil along with him. Therefore, though actually in Venice, he was legally in Scotland, so the marriage held.—Yours truly,

CHARLES HANNAN.

A NOTABLE WEDDING.

Many of the most eminent members of the dramatic profession were present at the marriage of Mr. Irving James Albery and Miss Gertrude Arthur Jones, which was solemnised at St. George's, Hanover-square, on Monday. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. James Albery, a popular playwright, and Mrs. Albery, better known to a legion of admirers as Miss Mary Moore, and the bride is the third daughter of the famous dramatist. Within the church the chancel was decorated with two tall palms and with groups of white and green foliage at either side of the entrance, while on the altar were clusters of white lilies. Mr. Bronson Albery officiated as best man, and the bride was given away by her father. Miss Gertrude Arthur Jones looked charming in a Josephine dress in white mousseline de soie, the skirt falling in long, straight folds from a girdle of cloth of silver, placed high, in modern imitation of the Empire style. It was finished with a raised embroidery of leaves and bows, and had tapering lines of single pearls between the wreaths of leaves. The white silk muslin yoke was sewn with silver. A tulle veil, embroidered at the hem, was worn over an Empire diadem of real orange blossom, and the bride carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies. Her court train of white velvet was suspended from both shoulders, and was carried by her little brother, Master Oliver Arthur Jones, who wore a page's suit of white cloth, with a collar of Irish crochet. The four bridesmaids were Miss Jean Pearson, Miss Freda Watson, Miss Constance Faber, and Miss Haidee Helmsley, who were dressed in pale green ninon de soie, the skirts being finished with several full flounces above a deep bias band of soft satin. The bodices were full, and had boleros of Irish lace and waistbands of soft satin drawn through dull gold buckles studded with pale green, the yokes being of gauged net and Irish crochet. They wore hats of Irish crochet with wreaths of shamrocks round the crowns, the stiff round brims edged with pale green satin and with veils of pale green gauze falling on the hair at the back. Each wore a jewelled brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a sheaf of white lilies, tied with pale green ribbon.

The Venerable Archdeacon Sinclair was the officiating clergyman, assisted by the Rev. David Anderson, vicar of St. George's, Hanover-square, and the Rev. E. Grose Hodge gave the address. The choir sang "The voice that breathed o'er Eden" as the bride passed up the aisle, and later the 67th Psalm was chanted. After the address the hymn "O perfect Love" was given by the choir, with Lady Arthur Hill's setting, a boy chorister singing the solo part. The Benediction, pronounced by the Archdeacon of London, was followed by Stainer's sevenfold Amen. While the register was being signed the organist played the "Lohengrin" bridal music, and as the bride and bridegroom left the church the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March rang out.

Miss Mary Moore, who was present at the ceremony, wore a Princesse dress of fine white embroidered cloth, over which was a short braided and embroidered bolero. A Russian sable collar with long ends was worn, and a broad-brimmed, round crowned, white horse-hair hat, on which was a wreath of small pink roses, blue flowers, green leaves, and little bows of bright cornflower-blue velvet. A shower bouquet of pink picotees was carried. Mrs. Henry Arthur Jones wore a cream-coloured cloth dress, embroidered deeply round the hem with a raised design in silk, and the bodice was also embroidered. A three-cornered hat of Tuscan straw, embroidered in gold, was trimmed with white ostrich tips, and a bouquet of pink carnations was carried. Among those also present were Miss Winifred Emery, who was in dark purple, with a black velvet coat and grey furs. Her high-crowned, wide-brimmed hat was of leaf-green straw and satin, and was trimmed with purple ostrich feathers and soft satin ribbons, also purple. Miss Vane Featherston, dressed in brown, wearing a brown fur and cream-coloured lace cape, and a pretty hat to correspond, was a distinguished figure of the gathering, among which was also Mr. George Grossmith, who brought a daughter.

The presents, both numerous and handsome, were on view at a reception held after the ceremony by Mrs. Henry Arthur Jones, at 38, Portland-place. Mrs. James Albery gave the future residence and furniture, as well as a cheque, to the bride, Mrs. Henry Arthur Jones the household linen, and Mr. Henry Arthur Jones some fine antique furniture. The bridegroom's present to the bride consisted of jewellery and a set of sables, and the bride reciprocated with a fitted dressing-case and a jewelled pin. From Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham came a massive double silver inkstand, from Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft a silver rose bowl, and from Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Robertson entrée dishes. Among other theatrical notabilities invited to the reception were Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. and Miss Kendal, Mr. George Grossmith and Miss Grossmith, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Esmond, Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault (Miss Irene Vanbrugh), Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier (Miss Violet Vanbrugh), Mr. and Mrs. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, Mr. and Mrs. Pinero, and Mr. and Mrs. Weedon Grossmith. Mr. and Mrs. Irving Albery later in the day left for the Continent. The bride's travelling dress was of pale pastel blue cloth made in Second Empire style, and embroidered in black, cream colour and moss green, with large roses. The bodice had a collar edged with green, and drawn through a round dull gold buckle and a yoke of cream-coloured net. The hat of blue chip, the shade of the gown, had a thick ruche of blue tulle round the crown and blue ostrich feathers falling over at the back. The set of Russian sables given to her by the bridegroom completed the costume.

A fairly large audience assembled to witness this production on Monday, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester. The main outlines of the story may be briefly told. Constantine Schwabe, a Jew millionaire, has conceived the idea of destroying Christianity by bribing an eminent archæologist, Sir Robert Llewellyn, who owes him a large sum of money, to go to Jerusalem for the purpose of forging some documents, which are to be found in a tomb, stated by the documents to be that in which Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus hid the body of Christ, who had therefore never risen from the dead. Schwabe's object arises from sheer wickedness, and the desire to be "master of the world." The link between this abnormal conception and current Christianity is one Gertrude Hunt, a modern Magdalen, who is the mistress of Llewellyn, and whose interests are taken in hand by the Rev. Basile Gortre, an earnest young curate, and his affianced wife, Helena Byars, the daughter of his vicar. During Sir Robert's absence the struggle in this woman between good and evil shows a decided tendency towards good, though Schwabe exerts his Satanic influence, and the archæologist, on his return, makes a strenuous endeavour to keep her in his hands. In the meantime, the plot against the idea of Resurrection has succeeded, with harrowing results. All Christendom is thrown into chaos; men and women lose their heads, and make a rapid descent to the level of the beasts; industries are stopped, famine threatens, and the rule of a hitherto unimagined anarchy is imminent. Suspicion arises in the mind of the curate, and, with a sure instinct, he commissions a particularly anguished young journalist, Harold Spence by name, to trace the so-called discovery to its source in the Holy Land. Gertrude Hunt also he makes aware of his suspicions, and suggests, with a nice delicacy, that she shall return to the arms of Sir Robert Llewellyn, for the purpose of cajoling him in his ecstacy to make a clean breast of his share in the fraud. This is done, and Spence, the journalist, is simultaneously successful in acquiring proofs from the hand of a Greek accomplice named Ionides. The sequel, of course, is the discomfiture of Schwabe, and the restoration of order. The difficult part of Gertrude Hunt found a clever exponent in Miss V. St. Lawrence. Allowing for the fact that this accomplished lady was frequently handicapped by the highly-coloured sentiment of her part, there were many moments in her acting when she held the audience under a spell of silence, and many others when she showed her ability to bring out character in her lines. In the last scene, in which she dies, she touched a really high level, which must have been much more impressive in a play worthy of the effort. Mr. H. K. Ayliff gave dignity and telling emphasis to the part of Schawbe. An effective impersonation of the Rev. Basile Gortre was given by Mr. T. A. Shannon, who supplied a natural delineation governed by a quality of restraint, which added manliness and conviction to his utterances. As Helena Byars Mrs. Morton Powell gave a lively and sincere performance. Mr. Geoffrey Chate as Harold Spence gave a harrowing depiction of the impressionable young journalist. Of the remainder, Mr. Frederick Biron acted quietly and well as the editorial Mr. Ommaney; and Mr. Henry J. Butler gave a good idea of the Rev. Mr. Byars. Mr. Arthur Lenville as the Hon. Charlie Gayfly and Miss Ethel Rainforth as Gracie Goldere are not necessary to the action, but their scene at the opening of the second act deserves mention as a rather clever and entertaining "music hall-y" interlude. In response to the demand of the audience Mr. Guy Thorne appeared at the fall of the curtain, and announced that he thought the play reproduced some of his ideas in "a rather remarkable manner." The scenery provided by Mr. Morton Powell is excellent.

This romantic costume play of the Regency period opens at the home of the Dulley's, Rose Cottage, Upleigh. Anne and Florence Dulley (sisters) are discussing the love affairs of their early youth, and are priding themselves upon the care they have bestowed upon their younger sister, Lucy, and their success in preventing her from becoming enamoured of any ineligible person. They possess an Elizabethan settee of beautiful design which, on account of its rarity, has been much hunted after by curio-hunters. Gerald Wendover visits the house for the purpose of seeing it, and obtaining permission from the two sisters, Anne and Florence, to sketch the settee, he is disturbed during their absence by the entrance of Lucy. Gerald, having recently returned from London, is immediately struck by the ingenuous, simple nature of the girl, and is soon interesting her with descriptions of London life as he had seen it. The act ends with a promise made by Gerald that he will call again.

In the second act, after a lapse of two months, Gerald is informing his father that he had gained the hand of Lucy. This declaration results in a stormy scene between father and son. The elder Wendover, a fine type of an old English gentleman, is hurt at being ignored by his son in this affair, and also on account of what he considers a lowering of their social dignity in the proposed alliance. A friend, Phillip Radford, joins Mr. Wendover in imploring Gerald to give up the match, but his plea has no effect. Threats and entreaties alike proving fruitless, Mr. Wendover, sen., and Radford determine to call upon the Dulleys on their way to the Meet and inform them that the match must be broken off.

Gerald, overhearing the decision, rides furiously across country, and arriving before his father at the house of the Dulleys, prevails upon Lucy to elope with him that afternoon.

In Act III. we find Gerald and Lucy in the parlour of The Bowl of Punch, Pendlebury. Everything had thus far favoured their elopement, but an accident to their chaise causes them to take shelter at the inn. No other conveyance being forthcoming, and a storm having come on, they are compelled to make the best of their surroundings. Unfortunately the storm causes the followers of the chaise also to take refuge at the same inn, the result being that the runaways are detected. A heated and stormy scene takes place between father and son, which would have culminated in blows but for the intervention of Lucy, who, to save further trouble, determines to return home, while arrangements are made for Gerald to be sent to India with Philip Radford, who is returning thence after the expiration of his holiday.

In Act IV. we find Lucy and her sisters regretting the non-arrival of news from India. Mr. Wendover, sen., is announced, and immediately states that he has received word that his son is dead. He expresses his regrets at having parted the two young lives, and proclaims his intention of making Lucy his heiress. While expressing mutual sorrow Radford enters, and soon tells how the news received by Wendover is false. Gerald, who had been taken as dead with fever by an Indian servant, had happily recovered, and was at that moment in Rose Cottage. Happy reunion, and curtain.

The piece, on the whole, was excellently played by Mr. Maltby's company. Mr H. F. Maltby deserves especial commendation as George Wendover; Mr. W. H. Hargreaves gives a manly delineaton of the character of Gerald; Mr. A. E. Wyn Weaver is excellent as Philip Radford; Mr. Ralph Hutton gives a fine interpretation of the bucolic Samuel Johns; Mr. Ernest Noble, as Paul and Joshua Pynne, provides the necessary fun in capital style; Miss Mabel Mellor, as Anne Dulley, submits a good character-study of the jilted woman; Miss Mara Maltby pathetically portrays the feelings of Florence Dulley. Too much praise cannot be allotted to Miss Beatrice Marsdene for her sympathetic rendering of Lucy, the part throughout being well played. Miss Nancy York also does capital work as Jane.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham's revival of The Candidate will be the theatrical event of the week, and the audience at Wyndham's Theatre on Wednesday is sure to be a brilliant and representative one. Sir Charles will repeat his superb performance of Lord Lancelot Oldacre, and an interesting engagement is that of Mr. Rutland Barrington for the part of Barnabas Goodeve. Miss Helen Ferrers will play Lady Osterley, and the cast will be completed by Mr. Dennis Eadie, Mr. Yorke Stephens, Mr. Edmund Maurice, Mr. Bertram Steer, Miss Sybil Carlisle, Miss June Van Buskirk, and Miss Lilias Waldegrave.

Mr. Arthur Collins' sojourn in the Engadine, when he had Mr. Hall Caine for a near neighbour, has resulted, as it was hoped, in another autumn drama from the same pen as that which provided the attraction at Drury-lane last year. Mr. Caine has this time selected his novel of "The Bondman" for dramatic treatment, and the action of one act will take place in the sulphur mines in Sicily, where a spectacle of an extraordinary kind is promised. Mr. Hall Caine and Mr. Collins both propose to visit Sicily in search of "local colour," so that the realism invariably associated with Drury-lane production is assured.

Mr. Cyril Maude, who has been credited with the intention of visiting America, is earnest in his desire to contradict the report, which has no truth whatever. She Stoops to Conquer finishes at the Waldorf on Friday, and on the following day The Heir-at-Law, which is to be revived on Tuesday afternoon next, will be placed in the evening bill. Shore Acres, the drama by James Hearne, which attained such phenomenal success in America, will be Mr. Maude's next production at the Waldorf, the handsome theatre which he seems to have placed in an impregnable position in public favour.

A souvenir worthy of the production and of the theatre was presented by Mr. Beerbohm Tree at the fiftieth performance of Nero at His Majesty's on the 9th inst. The souvenir takes the form of a book of pictures drawn by Mr. Charles A. Buchel of the chief personages in the play, the delicate tints of the illustrations giving marked effect to the characteristics of each. Mr. Tree begins the series, and is pictured in Nero's most impressive aspect; Mrs. Tree is drawn as a soulful and intense Agrippina; and the classic features of Miss Constance Collier are made very attractive in the pictorial presentment of Poppæa. Mr. Basil Gill as Otho and Mr. C. W. Somerset as Tigellinus are both well-defined portraits; and Miss Dorothea Baird is given a sweetly engaging expression as Acte, well in keeping with the original. Excellent drawings also are those of Miss Phyllis Embury and Mr. Esme Percy as Octavia and Britannicus, and Mr. Lyn Harding as Burrus, Mr. Robert Farquharson as Anicetus, and Mr. J. Fisher White as Seneca are also realistically reproduced.

Mr. Tree, in a prefatory note, acknowledges his indebtedness in the production of the play to Mr. Percy Macquoid, who assisted in designing and overlooking the costumes; to Mr. Coleridge Taylor for the care bestowed on the music; and to Mr. Comyns Carr for distinguished assistance in regard to the staging. A genealogical table showing the Roman Emperor's descent from Caius Julius is also supplied, and an interesting essay on "Nero and his Ancestry," written by Mr. Tree, and reproductions of contemporary coins add to the value of the work. The name of Carl Hentschel and Co., who produced and published the brochure, ensures an artistic souvenir, which is certain to be preserved among many cherished collections.

Mr. J. L. Toole's birthday on Monday was marked by the customary expressions of goodwill from many friends, who sent flowers and other presents innumerable. Mr. Toole, who still resides at Brighton, is enjoying as good health as may reasonably be expected, and was greatly rejoiced at the many tokens of esteem which he received. The age of the veteran comedian has given rise to some perplexing statements on the part of our contemporaries, one sprightly "halfpenny" giving seventy-four, while another, more staid and elderly, put it at seventy-five. Still another year, of course, should be added, Mr. Toole having now reached the ripe age of seventy-six. Despite his infirmities, he still indulges in his little joke. Recently a theatrical gentleman who is famed for, and boasts about, his vast appetite dined with him and ate plentifully. After the last course the aged comedian signalled to a waiter, to whom he whispered (pointing to a large palm that decorated the centre of the table), "Take it away —he'll eat it!"

Telegrams of congratulation were sent by Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, Mr. G. Farquhar, Mr. and Mrs. Manning, Mr. B. Brodie, Miss Brough, Mr. T. Craven, Mr. E. H. Kelly, Mr. Frank Lincoln, Mr. H. Westland, and the Dickens Fellowship Dramatic Club, of which Mr. Toole is president. Flowers were sent by Mr. George Shelton and Mrs. Cecil Beryl, among many others, and numerous letters testified to the esteem in which Mr. Toole is held by playgoers all over the country, a communication from the Glasgow Artists, bearing the signatures of the president, the vice-presidents, and some sixty others. A large coloured photograph of Mr. Toole was a present from Mr. Addison, and tokens of affection took the shape of shawls, trinkets, and other gifts.

Mr. Walter Stephens, in pursuit of his project for the establishment of a subsidised theatre, addressed the following letter to the Chancellor of the Exchequer:—"12, Haymarket, London, W., March 10, 1906.—Dear Sir,—I beg to write and ask, as the mover in a scheme to found a national répertoire theatre in London, whether you can advise and recommend His Majesty's Government to grant an annual subsidy, in connection therewith, of the sum of £50,000, provided I and my friends and also members of the public guarantee a proportion of the funds, and who would be interested in its permanent establishment. I need hardly add that the necessity of such a theatre in our midst is of vital and national importance not only in the interests of our great dramatic art, but also in the moral welfare and artistic education of the people, who, I am assured, would be ready and eager to aid so important a scheme, which seeks the support already accorded by His Majesty's Government to its sister arts!—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, Walter Stephens."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer sent the following reply:—"Treasury Chambers, Whitehall, S.W., March 12, 1906.—Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 10th inst., I am desired by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to say that, regard being had to the large number of objects of much more pressing national importance for which funds are required, the Government would not, in his opinion, be justified in asking Parliament to subsidise a scheme for a National Repertory Theatre at the expense of the taxpayer.—Yours faithfully, John Bradbury."

Miss Topsy Sinden is a welcome importation into the cast of The Beauty of Bath, which will be produced at the Aldwych Theatre on Monday. The scene of the new piece is laid in London, and a company of no less than eighty persons will combine in its presentation.

"His House in Order," which this afternoon attains its fiftieth performance at the St. James's, is to be produced in America in the autumn under the management of Mr. Charles Frohman, the theatre chosen being the Empire, New York. The rôle of Hilary Jesson, the part in which Mr. George Alexander has made a success so pronounced, will be played by Mr. John Drew, whose artistic work in London in association with Miss Ada Rehan will be well remembered.

Miss Ellen Terry's dramatic jubilee on April 28 will be the occasion of a national celebration, for the organisation of which a committee, comprising the names most eminent in the profession, has been got together. Up to the present the executive includes Mr. George Alexander, Mr. William Archer, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. H. Granville Barker, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, Mr. E. Distin-Maddick, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson, Mr. Charles Frohman, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Carl Hentschel, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. J. Loveday, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Otho Stuart, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. J. E. Vedrenne, Mr. James Welch, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Sir Charles Wyndham.

The Touring Managers Association have decided to form themselves into a club, to be known as the Touring Managers Club. Convenient premises have been secured in those of the old Savage Club, in the Adelphi, and all theatrical proprietors, acting-managers, and people interested in matters dramatic will be admitted as members. Mr. J. Bannister Howard is the treasurer, and will be pleased to supply any particulars.

Mr. Percy Fitzgerald's "Sir Henry Irving: a Biography," will be published on Monday by T. Fisher Unwin. It is based upon a biography which was published many years ago with the approval and encouragement of the great actor, who revised and corrected all the earlier sheets. This has now been rewritten and brought down to his death. There are thirty-six illustrations, including portraits of Sir Henry in his most famous rôles.

Visiting Leicester for the first time this week, Mr. Martin Harvey has met with gratifying success. From the Opera House numbers of disappointed playgoers have been turned away nightly, whilst those who have watched the favourite actor's several performances have given him rousing receptions. With Miss de Silva and company he will on Monday inaugurate the dramatic season at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, Hamlet being presented on Tuesday.

Mr. Harvey has just decided to change the name of his re-written Eugene Aram play After All to that of Eugene Aram; or, After All. This piece, owing to its marked success wherever performed, will in future take a prominent place in the répertoire. The Rapparee Trooper, B. M. Dix and E. G. Sutherland's light comedy, will be produced by Mr. Harvey at the Newcastle Royal during the week commencing April 23.

"The Dairy Maids," whose début is due at the Apollo Theatre on the 14th of next month, will be found by some inscrutable means to be reminiscent both of Charley's Aunt and Much Ado About Nothing. The reconciliation of the themes of two pieces which have so little in common does not appear on the surface to be an easy one, but as no less than six writers have been engaged in the task, much may be expected. The book is written by Mr. A. M. Thompson and Mr. Robert Courtneidge, Mr. Paul Rubens and Mr. A. Wimperis have provided the lyrics, and Mr. Paul Rubens and Mr. F. Tours are responsible for the music. The action of the new play, which is in two acts and three scenes, is divided between a dairy farm, a naval mess-room, and the gymnasium of a girls' school.—Mr. Popple—of Ippleton makes his exit from the Apollo this evening, only to open at the Shaftesbury on Monday.

On Saturday evening last the curtain was rung down on The Queen of Hearts pantomime, the most successful, perhaps, that Mr. Robert Arthur has had at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool. The packed audience were most enthusiastic, and presents of magnificent boxes and bouquets of flowers were made to Miss Millie Lindon, Miss Maud Darling, Miss Gwen Howard, and Miss Olga Audre. Many floral offerings were also thrown on to the stage. In response to a strong demand, Mr. Robert Arthur came forward, and, in the course of a few words, thanked the public for their cordial appreciation of his finished pantomime, and the artists and staff for their work in having made it a success.

The paragraph which appeared last week regarding the presentation to Mr. F. L. Arthur, manager of the Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, contained a printer's error which conveyed the impression that that gentleman had relinquished his position. Mr. Arthur is still manager, and one of Messrs. Carson and Kendall's most respected servants.

We regret to learn that Miss Thirza Norman (Mrs. J. H. Leigh) has been compelled, under the advice of her doctor, to take a complete rest for some months, owing to nervous breakdown.

Miss Irene Moncrieff, who plays Nance in Mr. Charles Carey's After the Ball company, met with an accident to her leg while performing at the Lyceum Theatre, Newport, and in consequence has to return to London for a short rest.

Mr. F. R. Benson and his principal company will conclude on Saturday, the 17th, an enormously successful fortnight at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow. On the following Monday they open at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh. The schools of Glasgow have been enthusiastic in their attendance at the various performances, more particularly patronising As You Like It and Julius Cæsar.

Miss May Florance, after a short rest, has now resumed her part of Ruth Gay in After the Ball. During her indisposition the character was ably undertaken by Miss Roze Alma. Miss Florence Smithers has now taken up the part of Nancy, the sixty-year-old baby, in this musical comedy. This infant, it may be said, is not in the least like the "Little Stranger" London has so warmly welcomed, and Miss Smithers's appearance in the rôle of a baby is irresistibly humorous, especially when, in the last act, the precocious youngster pairs off with an overfed colonel in the person of Mr. Victor Widdicombe. The piece is going remarkably well on tour.

Miss Maidie Scott has been engaged by Mr. J. F. Elliston as principal boy in pantomime for 1906-7. If Miss Scott is as successful as she was in Aladdin this season, Mr. Elliston will have no cause for regret.

Messrs. Northway and Garrod have just added to their extensive plant of printing for The Prodigal Parson an attractive advertisement, in the shape of sixty photo. frames. In Manchester a week ago, thirty-four situations from the play were photographed by Mr. Percy Guttenberg, and are striking examples of up-to-date photography.

Mrs. J. E. Thurlow, who has experienced a large share of ill-fortune since the death of her husband, is now recovering from a severe attack of influenza, and hopes shortly to be ready for an engagement.

The amateur actor is seldom overburdened with modesty, but for cool assurance the following extract from a letter, addressed to Mr. W. Payne Seddon, by the secretary of a dramatic society in Armagh, would be hard to surpass:—"Dear Sir,—Pray forgive me for troubling you, but I feel sure that the proposition I am about to make to you will appeal to your business instincts, and you will forgive my trespass on your time. You may perhaps remember my writing you some time ago, re scenery, for Our Boys, to which you were good enough to reply quoting terms. Unfortunately, having to pay full copyright fee (£5 5s.), we were unable to afford to purchase your set-piece. We made drawing-room sets ourselves, which suited first-rate, and were cheap. As to the piece itself, we have never played any that has proved such a success as Our Boys has proved to be. The piece was played before a great number of the people who are consistent supporters of your companies, and they are unanimous in declaring the production equal to anything that has ever been produced here. During the past few years we have made short tours to some of the Ulster towns with some of our best pieces. We have determined to extend our field of operations, and we believe we have got the play best suited for that purpose. We are fully aware that in opening up new places we have got to risk something to make a name, and we therefore beg to submit the following proposition to you, viz.:—That you run the piece through some or all of your towns, same as any other of your companies, taking a certain portion of the profits, or paying a round sum for the tour; our object is not so much to make money as a love for the trip so long as we are insured against loss. Of course, in making a proposition of this kind you naturally want a guarantee that the performance is not in any way inferior to any of your productions; in fact, you don't want anything amateur. I can assure you I would never dream of making such a proposal were our efforts not equal to any professional production. In conclusion, allow me to observe that I think Our Boys would pay to tour with again. Should you not feel inclined to take any risks we will endeavour to go as far afield as our means will allow."

Mr. Seddon's reply is one in which humour and sarcasm are nicely blended. It reads as follows:—"Dear Sir,—I thank you for your proposition and compliments to my business instinct, which I am carefully considering. Meanwhile, your kind reply to the following questions would greatly assist me to arrive at a conclusion. (1) Would not such a performance as you describe give my patrons a distaste for professional companies? (2) As no man is a prophet in his own country would it not be more profitable to commence in South Africa or the States, and work your way home? (3) Can you suggest any assurance company which would insure you against loss (or accident), as you suggest? (4) Would it not be cheaper to go fishing?—Yours faithfully, W. Payne Seddon."

Mr. Robert Dodson, the venerable chairman of the Strand Board of Guardians, died on the 8th inst., in his eighty-fourth year. Mr. Dodson will be remembered in the profession as the father of that clever young actor, Mr. Alfred Kendrick.

The New Grand Theatre, Mansfield, the building of which is being greatly accelerated, is situate on the main electric tram route in Main-street, in the centre of the town. The proscenium opening will be 28ft.; stage depth, 40ft.; width, 60ft., and 40ft. to flies. Large dock doors will open direct from stage to side street, and the biggest productions travelling can be accommodated. The theatre, which will be lit by electricity and duplicated by gas, will be opened in August, and will be booked in conjunction with the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield.

"Cinderella," at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, finished up last Saturday with such a send-off as has seldom been vouchsafed to any other pantomime in the history of the theatre. The public gathered outside the theatre at an early hour in the afternoon, a drenching and continuous rainfall notwithstanding, and when the doors opened speedily filled the house to overflowing, their enthusiasm increasing, until at the end they absolutely refused to quit the theatre till the producer and manager of the house, Mr. J. F. Graham, had favoured them with a speech. Floral tributes were bestowed on the lady artists, and presents given to the gentlemen.

Mr. John Hastings Batson, an actor of long standing and wide experience, met with an accident on the 13th inst., from which he providentially escaped with comparatively little injury. He was engaged last week at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, and after playing a game of billiards at a neighbouring hotel on the evening referred to, was about to leave the house by way of a dark passage, at the end of which he mistook a door for the one he had entered by. It unfortunately opened on to the steps of a cellar, down which Mr. Batson fell a distance of over 18ft. The severity of the fall was modified by the fact that he came down on his back, but he sustained a terrible shock, and is still in the doctor's hands.

The Council of the Actors' Association regret that an error appeared in the report recently issued to members, to the effect that Mr. Malcolm Morris had retired from practice. This, however, is not the case. Mr. Morris was obliged to resign his appointment as consulting surgeon to the Association owing to the pressure of other engagements.

Mr. H. B. Irving with praiseworthy industry has finished his translation of Jeunesse, and will produce it at the Lyric on Saturday, March 31. Mr. Irving, by the courtesy of Mr. Tree, who has released her from her engagement at His Majesty's, is enabled to have the inestimable assistance of his wife, and Miss Dorothea Baird will consequently form one of the cast. The company will be completed by Mr. Leslie Faber, Mr. W. T. Lovell, Mr. D. McCarthy, and Miss Marion Terry.

Miss Edith Cole and the Scala Theatre Company, with Mr. W. W. Kelly's A Royal Divorce, will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, next week. The suburban tour of this production opened with a capital week's business at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, where all previous records for the play were outdistanced.

The morality play Everyman was revived at the Coronet Theatre on Thursday afternoon, under the direction of Mr. William Poel, who was responsible for the original production by the Elizabethan Stage Society three years ago. Mr. Poel is to be complimented on the way he staged the piece, which was well cast, the acting all round rendering the play very impressive.

The New Stage Club will produce at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, on April 5, a translation by Lady Barclay of La Révolte, the play by Villiers de l'Isle Adam, first given at the Paris Vaudeville in 1870. The Fool of the World, by Arthur Symons, will also be in the programme.

Dickie Clare, the popular comedian, who at Easter finishes an eight months' successful tour with Mr. Fredk. Melville's Between Two Women company, has secured the sole rights of a new farcical comedy, by Fred Locke, author of The Trip to the Highlands. Mr. Clare's new venture is called Lucky Liza, and will be produced early in May.

Mr. Lewis Waller gave a reading of Julius Cæsar at the Imperial Theatre on Monday afternoon, before a large audience of members of the British Empire Shakespeare Society. Standing at a desk placed on a green-carpeted daïs amid a Gothic interior, Mr. Waller read all the male parts, and Miss Evelyn Millard and Miss Madge McIntosh, who were seated in chairs, were responsible for the lines of Portia and Calpurnia respectively. Mr. Acton Bond read the stage directions, and the crowd of Romans was represented by ladies and gentlemen, seated with their backs to the audience. The reading, which was given in modern dress, was highly successful, and great satisfaction was expressed.

Miss Laura Hansen was presented with a handsome bouquet by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Livesey on the 9th inst., the last night of her playing Kate Strong in The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Livesey kindly released her to allow her to be present at the first performance of The School for Husbands at the Scala Theatre, where she is engaged by Miss Jessie Millward to understudy her as Lady Belinda Manners.

An interesting event in connection with the Playgoers' Club will take place on Sunday evening, March 25, for which date the Ladies' Concert is announced. The evening will be divided into two parts, the first of which will be passed at the Waldorf Theatre, kindly lent for the occasion by Messrs. Shubert, where many well-known artists will entertain the members at a grand concert; whilst later in the evening the club will return the compliment by entertaining their friends at supper at the Hotel Cecil.

Mr. A. J. Harding, at very short notice, owing to the indisposition of Mr. David James, appeared with gratifying success as Benjamin Goldfinch in A Pair of Spectacles at the New Theatre, Cambridge, last Thursday and Friday evenings.

Mr. W. B. Redfern, of the New Theatre, Cambridge, was so satisfied with Mr. Russell Rosse's production of She Stoops to Conquer last Saturday, that he at once arranged with Mr. Rosse to play an entire week of old English comedy in the full May term next. Miss Muriel Godfrey-Turner, who created a most favourable impression by her rendition of Kate Hardcastle, will play the principal lady rôles, which will include Lady Teazle and Pauline Deschappelles.

Pending the production of Geoffrey Stirling in the autumn, Mr. Henry Doughty is negotiating for the rights of a well-known farcical comedy, which he purposes touring during the summer months.

Mr. Geo. R. Sims' new play For Life—and After, dramatised from his recently published novel of the same name, is to be produced by Hardie and Von Leer at Easter. The plot deals with the conviction, and its consequences, of an innocent woman upon a charge of murder, and recalls a cause célèbre upon which, after a lapse of many years, public opinion is still sharply divided. The company will include a number of well-known artists.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has no cause to regret having taken over the Crystal Palace Theatre. Since the start business has been very gratifying, large audiences being the general rule. The attraction next week will be The Geisha and The Greek Slave. Mr. Howard has practically completed his autumn bookings.

Manuel Garcia, the famous teacher of singing, inventor of the laryngoscope, and one of the most remarkable figures in contemporary musical circles, is a hundred and one to-day, and enters upon his 102nd year in the full possession of his health and faculties. Last year a banquet and the presentation of his portrait, painted by Sargent, marked his hundredth birthday, but this year the veteran virtuso will receive the congratulations of his many friends in the country, far away from disturbing influences. Mr. Garcia's interest in teaching is as keen as ever, and even now he gives an occasional lesson.

"A Queen of Villainy" is the distinctive title of a drama by Ridgewood Barrie, which has already been produced under the still more impressive name of A She Devil, and will have its first London representation at the Greenwich Theatre on Monday. The lady upon whom such high rank is conferred is known as Cora Granville, and will be played by Miss Edith Blande.

Mrs. Lewis Waller, who is in Algiers, suffering from acute nervous breakdown, was represented by counsel on Tuesday when her action against J. E. Hutton, Ltd., in reference to a motor-car which was ordered by her from them for her own use in a tour, was mentioned to Mr. Justice Ridley. Counsel said he had an affidavit from a doctor in Algiers which stated that the plaintiff was not in a fit condition to undertake a journey to England. He applied that the case stand out of the list till next sittings. His lordship allowed the case to stand out, but, on the application of opposing counsel, said the case should not be placed at the bottom of the list.

Creatore, the wonderful young musical conductor whose band has created little short of a sensation at the Queen's Hall, will continue his recitals on Monday and the four succeeding evenings, matinées being given on Wednesday and Friday. Creatore is only thirty-four years of age, and several years ago was celebrated as the greatest solo performer in Italy on his chosen musical instrument. For some years he was a teacher of several bands and orchestras in his native city, Naples, and the surrounding villages. In 1900 he went to America, where his name has become a household word among the highest musical circles.

The Shaftesbury Livery Stables in Lisle-street, Leicester-square (close to Hippodrome), have been most successful in catering for the various places of entertainment requiring horses for their equine effects. These stables have supplied all the horses for the performance of The Charioteers at the Coliseum for the last sixteen weeks, and have been highly complimented on the same. We understand horses for theatrical and other purposes can be obtained at Lisle-street Stables at any hour of the day, and competent attendants are also available at all times.

Mr. Norman V. Norman will shortly produce the play adapted by Messrs. Freeman Wills and Frederick Langbridge (authors of The Only Way, &c.) from Stanley Weyman's powerful romance "Count Hannibal." The action is laid in the reign of Charles IX. of France, and part of it during the Massacre of St. Bartholomew. Miss Beatrice Wilson will play the leading part, Clotilde de Vrillac, and Mr. Norman the Count Hannibal de Tavannes.

Mr. Astley Weaver is the latest successful entertainer to precede a West End success. After an appearance at the Comedy Theatre in front of The Alabaster Staircase, Mr. Frohman has retained his clever and up-to-date musical monologue as a prelude to All-of-a-Sudden Peggy. All Mr. Weaver's songs and sketches are from his own pen, and enthusiastic curtain recalls have been accorded him at the Duke of York's.

Miss Theresa Osborne has been engaged by Mr. Ernest Norris for the leading part in Tommy Atkins for tour.

Mr. Charles Frohman is credited with the intention of having two more playhouses built in New York, one to be called the Barrie Theatre, in honour of the English novelist and playwright, whose works are so successful in America as elsewhere. Mr. Frohman's admiration for Mr. Barrie is shared by many, but few could afford to give such striking expression to it.

A Committee meeting of the Actors' Orphanage Fund was held at 18, Russell-street, Covent-garden, on Wednesday last, when the following members were present:—Mr. E. S. Cox-Sinclair (in the chair), Mr. Cyril Maude (president), Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Mrs. Edward Compton, Mrs. E. S. Willard, Miss May Warley, Mrs. Mangles, Mrs. Fred Wright, Mrs. Gay, Mr. C. C. Cruikshanks, and Mr. E. H. Bull (secretary). The annual meeting of the Fund will be held on Friday, May 18, at the Garrick Theatre, by the kind permission of Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Cyril Maude taking the chair. The garden party will be given as usual at the Royal Botanic Gardens on Friday, July 6.

Mr. Alfred Goddard has been specially re-engaged by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow to play his old part of Lieut. Charles Clive in the successful drama A Sailor's Sweetheart.—Mr. Frederick Victor has been engaged to play Mr. Lewis Waller's part in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner on tour.

At the Elephant and Castle Theatre on Monday, shortly before the time for commencing the performance, the fusing of the electric light resulted in partial darkness. The large audience was somewhat alarmed, but any possible chance of a panic was averted by the excellently trained staff, and also by the coolness of the orchestra, who continued playing with unabated vigour, notwithstanding the fact that their lamps were affected by the accident. It soon transpired that the difficulty was concerned with that modern bugbear of most stage-managers, the fireproof curtain, which resisted all efforts made to raise it. A few breezy words from Mr. E. E. Norris, the general manager, soon put the audience in possession of the facts, and on his advice they reluctantly left the theatre. On Tuesday night the refractory curtain gave in, and Mr. J. W. Whitbread's eminently successful drama. Lord Edward, or '98, was presented.

Miss Edna May, who arrived in London on Tuesday, was specially honoured by President Roosevelt before her departure from America. The President invited her to White House, gave her his best wishes and a signed picture of himself, and added, with becoming gallantry, that it was not often that such an attractive lady came to see him in the rain. Mrs. Roosevelt, too, paid a visit to the theatre, and presented the charming actress with a bouquet of violets and lilies. On her arrival Miss May started at once on rehearsals for The Belle of Mayfair, which is shortly to be produced by Mr. Charles Frohman at the Vaudeville.

Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison played the title-rôle in the translation by Professor Gilbert Murray of The Electra of Euripides, revived at the Court Theatre on Tuesday evening, and gave a performance replete with grace and artistic resource. Miss Edyth Olive resumed her former part of Clytemnestra, and Mr. J. H. Barnes that of the old man, Agamemnon's servant. Mr. Henry Ainley took up the character of Orestes, and gave a masterly rendering of the rôle.

At the Anglo-French Association's "L'Entente Cordiale At Home" at the Grafton Galleries, on Saturday afternoon, Miss Fogerty spoke on the subject of "Rogues and Vagabonds," in allusion to the mediæval bands of troubadours and strolling players. The Rev. H. Russell Wakefield, rector of Marylebone, occupied the chair, and in the discussion which followed said he had been struck by the difference which there was between the "rogue and vagabond" of the reign of Queen Elizabeth and the actor and actress of the present day. It appeared to be the main duty of the actress now that sooner or later she should become a member of the peerage. It was an excellent ambition, no doubt, but he was not quite sure whether he would not, if he had to choose, rather be one of the strolling players. He personally was so much indebted to the dramatic profession for all the lightening, and broadening, and sometimes the instructing of life which it accomplished, that he should be very sorry if they considered that there was anything so great and grand as their work itself.

Mr. Blake Adams, who made such a hit as Captain Barley in Beauty and the Barge on tour, is an actor born and bred. Of Scotch family, his very first recollections are of life "on the road," accompanying his father, Mr. Adam Alexander, and his mother on their different tours, and going to school in any town where a stock season gave them the opportunity of staying some time. He received his principal education at Banchory, in Scotland, and, after playing all the usual child parts, was put into an architect's office, with instructions to forget the footlights and devote himself to his new profession. He did his best, but there are some men "cut out" to be actors—men, however, who have never been stage-struck after the manner of the young amateur—and Blake Adams is one of them. So, after spoiling many sheets of drawing-paper, he determined to walk out of the front door of the office and find his way to the stage-door of a theatre.

Mr. Adams confesses to having had a great belief in his own importance at one period of his career. It was before he had entered his teens, when he was very proud of being engaged by the well-known actor, J. G. Taylor—his godfather, by the way—to play a good part in a piece that was produced at York. The piece was a success, and Master Blake was so proud of his share of the applause that he hurried away from the theatre as quickly as he could to boast of his triumph at home. He well remembers saying to himself, as he ran along, "I'm an actor! Everybody knows me! I'm going to be rich and famous!" On reaching a toll-bridge he was rudely wakened from his dream, for the bridge-keeper sternly demanded a halfpenny. The boy's lodgings were only a few seconds' walk from the opposite side—he could see the lights in the windows—and he mentioned this fact to the man, for he had not a farthing in his pocket. Still being refused, he proceeded to give the bridge-keeper a vivid, highly-coloured description of his recent success, but it was all of no avail. The diminutive Garrick had to take a long tramp to find a free bridge, and confessed, on reaching home thoroughly tired out, that a halfpenny in hand would have been of more value than any amount of praise and applause in the distance.

Mr. Blake Adams tried his luck, not long ago, on the music-hall stage, appearing in a sketch of his own called The Last Pitch. In this he was assisted by his wife, professionally known as Miss Mona Robins, a charming actress, who made her début, before she went on the regular stage, as a dramatic reciter in Edinburgh. She is also Scotch, and their one little son is nicknamed "Church-and-Stage" Adams, as one of his grandfathers was a minister and the other is an actor. Mr. Blake Adams has played so many parts that he has never had the patience to make a complete list of them. His forte is character and comedy, and Mr. Cyril Maude, at the time when he engaged him for Captain Barley, was quite right in saying that such a clever, versatile, and cultured actor ought to be seen in London far more frequently.

"A JUDGE'S MEMORY."

A Comedy in Three Acts, by Brandon Thomas, Produced at Terry's Theatre,
on Tuesday, March 13.

Mr. Frazer ..... MR. JAMES WELCH
Lord Harrowfield ..... MR. JAMES FERNANDEZ
Capt. McNeil Frazer .. MR. THALBERG CORBETT
Hon. Trevor Tattenhall ..... MR. SAM SOTHERN
Mr. Nash ..... MR. G. F. TULLY
Mr. Warburton ..... MR. FRANK DENTON
Young ..... MR. JOHN W. DEVERELL
Kirk ..... MR. GORDON TOMKINS
Dugald ..... MR. LEOPOLD PROFEIT
James ..... MR. M. FLORANCE
Lady Harrowfield ..... MISS WALLIS
Marjorie Brabazon ..... MISS BEATRICE TERRY
Lady Judith O'Hara .... MISS MARGARET BUSSE
Jones ..... MISS ETHEL HOLLINGSHEAD
Mrs. Frazer ..... MRS. E. H. BROOKE

It is always dangerous to dabble in a language which one does not know thoroughly; but a certain Scotch word may illustrate our description of Mr. Brandon Thomas's play. That word is "daiker"; and we understand that it means to dally along, to stroll, perhaps to wander. A Judge's Memory undoubtedly "daikers." It might almost be said to "daiker" dreadfully; but, after all, we are not all possessed with the desire for rapid motion which is the craze of the present period, and, judging from the cordial reception which the piece had at Terry's Theatre on Tuesday evening, there are many to whom a more devious and deliberate method of progression is quite pleasant, and who are by no means in a hurry to arrive at a destination or a dénouement, especially when walking in company with so genial and kindly a companion as Mr. Brandon Thomas. From the outset, this disposition to "daikering" is obvious. The hero of the piece, Mr. Charles Frazer, is a confirmed "daikerer." He has full scope for the indulgence of his habit in the first act, the scene of which is a solicitor's office. Here, Frazer, with a certain amiable prolixity, tells the story of his life. He and his brother Jim, the descendants of a great Scotch family, fell into poverty when children, and were adopted by a benevolent costermonger. Jim organised a burglary; and Charles, who was caught in possession of the "swag," bore the blame of his brother's crime, and was sentenced to six years' imprisonment. Jim went to Singapore, became rich, and, dying, left to Charles a large fortune. Grief at Charles's sentence killed his wife, who expired after giving birth to a boy. This child was brought up in ignorance of his parentage, and was sent into the Army, eventually becoming Captain Neil McNeil Frazer, of the Scots Guards.

This is the situation when the "daikering"—we cannot call it "action"—of the play commences. Charles Frazer has rebuilt the home of his ancestors, Invermuichty Castle, and yearns to see his soldier son. They meet at the office of a friendly solicitor; and it transpires through the cheery confidences of Lady Judith O'Hara, an impulsive Irish girl, that Captain Frazer is in love with Marjorie Brabazon, the granddaughter of Lord and Lady Harrowfield. Now, his lordship was formerly Mr. Justice Hoggett; and it was he who sentenced Charles to his six years' "stretch." It is evident that if the identity of the wealthy Mr. Frazer with the ex-convict be discovered a great obstacle will be placed in the way of the union of Marjorie and the Captain. As a side-issue, we have the loves of Lady Judith and the Hon. Trevor Tattenhall, whom his father wishes to wed Marjorie. Lady Judith suggests that he shall propose to the young lady, obtain her refusal, and thus satisfy his parent. After this and other digressions, we return to the plot. Lady Harrowfield, who happened to be in Court when Charles was tried and sentenced, never forgets a face; and, after some hesitation, she ends by identifying Frazer, who can only throw himself on her mercy. His pathetic appeal for the happiness of the two young people softens the stony heart of her ladyship, and she brings herself, after an effort, to consent to the alliance.

The leading part of Charles Frazer is one well calculated to employ the peculiar powers of Mr. James Welch. Frazer retains the mispronunciations of his "coster" days, and endeavours, unsuccessfully, to cover and cloak them by using phrases from the Scotch language, lessons in which he takes from his valet, Dugald. He is a humble, loving, diffident personage; and Mr. Welch, with a white wig agreeably curled, a bent-in foot suggestive of gout, and a generally apologetic air, presents a picture which remains in the memory. The entire absence of self-esteem in the little Cockney, his passionate affection for his splendid son, and his unfailing kindliness are admirably indicated by Mr. Welch, whose make-up is particularly neat and judicious. He acts with real earnestness and intensity at the climax, when Frazer begs Lady Harrowfield to have mercy on the lovers. Mr. James Fernandez's Lord Harrowfield is a capital conception, the shrewd, genial, portloving ex-Judge being depicted in the rich and mellow tones of an old family portrait. Mr. Thalberg Corbett, as Captain Frazer, is a manly, well-bred, and stalwart specimen of an English officer in a "crack" regiment; and he acts with a quiet force and well-controlled energy which make his embodiment very effective. Mr. Sam Sothern as the Hon. Trevor Tattenhall gives us one of those impeccable performances of inanely aristocratic parts which have made him so popular with London playgoers, and do him so much artistic credit; and Mr. G. F. Tully is every inch a solicitor as Mr. Nash, Mr. Frank Denton doing useful work carefully as Mr. Warburton, and Mr. John W. Deverell being bright and intelligent as Young. Mr. Gordon Tomkins is a stately butler; and Mr. Leopold Profeit, by his exceHent imitation of the Scotch accent, his spirited rendering of a song which is introduced in the second act, and his nimble step-dancing, does much to embellish the easy deliberation of the play. Mr. M. Florance is efficient as James; and Miss Wallis, as the Gorgonian Lady Harrowfield, hard as nails and stiff as steel, bears herself with all the grim dignity required. Her only opportunity for earnest work is in the last act, when Lady Harrowfield wavers between justice and mercy; and it need hardly be said that of this opportunity Miss Wallis, like the ripe and accomplished actress that she is, takes the fullest advantage. Miss Beatrice Terry's delicate refinement, polished grace, and gentle breeding make her a very acceptable exponent of the character of Marjorie Barbazon; and Miss Margaret Bussé rattles off Lady Judith O'Hara's merry nonsense with a fire and fluency which are both animating and diverting. Miss Ethel Hollingshead is commendable as Jones; and Mrs. E. H. Brooke, whose appearance was greeted with warm encouragement, makes an amiable Mrs. Frazer. There was a hearty call for Mr. Brandon Thomas at the conclusion of the performance on Tuesday; and A Judge's Memory appeared to please the majority of those present.

"THE SCHOOL FOR HUSBANDS."

A Comedy, in Four Acts, by Stanislaus Stange, Played for the first time in London at the Scala Theatre on Saturday, March 10.

Betty ..... MISS FRANCES WELSTEAD
Roger ..... MR. J. W. MACDONALD
Captain Lovel ..... MR. ARTHUR HOLMES-GORE
Lord Drinkwell ..... MR. J. T. MCCALLUM
Lord Playmore ..... MR. GEORGE UNWIN
Sir John Manners ..... MR. FRANK COOPER
Lady Manners ..... JESSIE MILLWARD
Clarissa Huntleigh ..... MISS DOROTHY MINTO
Prince Assam ..... MR. PHILIP CUNINGHAM
Lady Airish ..... MISS MONA K. ORAM
Lady Speakill ..... MISS DOLORES DRUMMOND
Lady Tattle ..... MISS MAUD LESLIE
Lord Foppington ..... MR. T. WIGNEY-PERCYVAL
Jocko ..... HAZEL WEEKS
Warrant Officer ..... MR. CYRIL WOLSELEY
Constable ..... MR. STEPHEN LANGTON

It was fortunate for Mr. Stanislaus Stange, the author of The School for Husbands, that the piece was played for the first time in London under the protection of such an old favourite as Miss Jessie Millward. It does not matter in the least whether Mr. Stange's chronology and local colour be correct or incorrect, or how much or how little he may have "conveyed" from Wycherley or Congreve into his piece; what does matter is that he has fallen between two stools. The idea of The School for Husbands is decidedly good. But it is treated in the wrong way. The essence of the Restoration Comedy—as Macaulay remarked, and reams of sophistry will not impair the truth of the observation—was its heartlessness. It was addressed to "the town"; and everybody knows what "the town" in the time of Charles II. was. The School for Husbands has the shallowness of the Restoration Comedy without its polish, and its artificiality without its art. It is bedizened with a number of old ornaments taken from the masterpieces of Restoration—familiar catch phrases, odd tricks of speech and affectations; but it is no more like Restoration Comedy than the imitation Chelsea sold in the cheap dealers' shops is like the "real old-time article."

There is no reason why, when an author puts his characters into knee-breeches and panniers, he should Wycherly-ise them as well. Men and women were much the same in the reign of Charles II. as they are at the present day; it was only a fashion and convention to represent them as all shallow and vicious. Mr. Stange would have done much better to have treated his theme naturally and sentimentally, in the modern English or American manner. Moderns like more heart in the treatment of marital relations. Lady Manners, in The School for Husbands, is "neither one thing nor the other"; neither the loving, tender, humorously clever wife of modern comedy, nor a brilliant half-callous "sparkler" of the Millamant class. Now and then she gives hints of real love for her husband; but on the whole the author's treatment of the character is superficial. And it is fatal to be superficial unless you can put plenty of polish on the surface.

But the subsidiary inventions—the errors of identity, the fop carried off by bailiffs in mistake for the jealous husband, the scuttlings behind screens and in and out of doors, are vivacious and various, if sometimes almost childish in their simplicity; and as we have said, the root idea is a good one. Lady Manners is devoted to her husband, Sir John, who neglects her for the society of drunkards and gamblers. She learns that a relative in India has left her £300,000. This gives her a free hand; and she resolves to teach Sir John that "what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." She dashes out into the wildest extravagance; and, of course, Sir John—who knows nothing about the legacy—imagines his wife is ruining him by her expenditure. He becomes jealous, too, at the admiration she excites in the breasts of various gallants; and a somewhat trivial incident connected with a certain snuff-box, which Lady Manners has promised to present to the man she most admires, gives Sir John an excuse for much indignation and a duel. Lady Manners lets things come to the point of an "execution on the house"; and then she explains to her husband the lesson she has been teaching him. He professes repentance, and promises reform; and they "kiss and forgive."

Miss Jessie Millward's forte is, and always has been, sweet sincerity; and she did all she could to correct Mr. Stange's mistake by putting nice touches of feeling into her reading of the rôle of Lady Manners. But it was uphill work; and when she got amongst the author's "imitation Congreve" she really had no alternative than to fall back upon her technique, which, as everyone knows, is that of a ripe and accomplished actress. There is a scene in the piece in which, developed sentimentally, sincerely, and with delicacy and deliberation, Miss Millward would have made the best in the play—the explanation in the last act, in which the wife enjoys her triumph. Miss Millward's attitude, seated at her mirror with her back to her embarrassed husband, with an occasional roguish side glance, suggested possibilities of delightful comedy. But the dénouement was brought about mechanically, and the author did not give the actress a chance. It was the same with that fine actor, Mr. Frank Cooper. Let him have force and feeling to depict, and there is no actor who can do better. But what could Mr. Cooper make of a personage like Sir John Manners, a vapourer without dignity and a gallant without wit or grace? Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, who had to look a model of military beauty in a light-brown wig and regimentals, fulfilled that part of his contract capitally, and acted throughout with a moderation and ease which were highly acceptable. Mr. J. T. McCallum and Mr. George Unwin were excellent in every way as two roysterers. Miss Dorothy Minto was delightfully arch and simple as a gay young lady who is made love to by an ultra-elocutionary Indian Prince. His stately style was done full justice to by Mr. Philip Cuningham, who presented a fine appearance, and spoke his lines with sonorous solemnity. Mr. T. Wigney-Percyval gave a highly finished and carefully elaborated representation of Lord Foppington, quaint, ornate, and fantastic; Miss Mona K. Oram and Miss Maud Leslie took great pains with the parts of Lady Airish and Lady Tattle; and Miss Dolores Drummond did what was possible with the rôle of Lady Speakill. All the artists, however, were more or less handicapped by the defects of the play, which is not likely to have a long run—in London at any rate.

AT the Irish concert to be given at the Crystal Palace this evening, Henry Austin will recite "An Irish Wake," by Robert Buchanan, to which he has had special music for pianoforte and organ set by Hubert Bath. The composer will accompany the reciter.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The second bi-monthly meeting of the members of the Actors' Association was held on Thursday, the 8th inst. Among those present were Messrs. F. G. Bayly, F. Rawson Buckley, F. Clive, C. F. Collings, Burton Cooke, Herbert Dickeson, Henry Doughty, A. E. Drinkwater, F. G. Dunn, Clarence Hague, Robert Milsted, F. Morland, Simon D. Ord, Edmond T. Sayers, A. M. Seaton, C. Aubrey Smith, Adnam Sprange, and Wallace Stranack, and Mesdames Gladys Ffolliott, Eleanor Gilbart, Agnes Imlay, Marjorie F. Lind, Phyllis Manners, Doris Regan, Kathleen Russell, Mary E. Smith, Eugenie Vernie, and M. Davies Webster, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, secretary.

Mr. A. E. Drinkwater was elected chairman upon the proposition of Mr. Adnam Sprange, seconded by Mr. C. Aubrey Smith. The secretary read the minutes of the first bi-monthly meeting, which were confirmed.

The secretary read his letter to Mr. Quinton McPherson, of Feb. 13, '06, and also an extract from a letter from Mr. McPherson, Feb. 18, '06, as follows: "I much regret the Council have been unable to approve of the propositions passed by the members at the bi-monthly meeting in January, but I shall endeavour in my new position as councillor to bring these matters to their notice in perhaps a more favourable light."

Mr. F. Rawson Buckley proposed, and Mr. Frank G. Bayly seconded, the proposition that, in view of the excessive expenditure in postage, notices to the members be advertised in The Era and Stage, instead of circularising. It was agreed this course be recommended to the Council.

Miss Gladys Ffolliott proposed, and Mr. A. M. Seaton seconded, the proposition that candidates for membership must be personally known to the proposers and seconders. This was agreed to as a recommendation to the Council.

It was proposed by Mr. Robert Milsted, seconded by Miss Gladys Ffolliott, and agreed as a recommendation to the Council, that a time limit of eight minutes be fixed at future annual general meetings for the making of speeches.

Mr. F G. Bayly asked why ordinary members who were desirous of speaking at the annual general meeting were cried down by members of the Council. It was suggested that it was a question of time, and that perhaps the adoption of a time limit for speeches would mend matters.

Mr. C. F. Collings asked for information in connection with insurance, and was told by the secretary that the insurance company made it a condition that only those members were covered who had paid their subscriptions for the current year.

Mr. C. Aubrey Smith proposed, and Mr. Frank G. Bayly seconded the proposition that acting-managers, on a salary list, having no financial interest in a company, and not being actors, be admitted to membership. This was put to the meeting, and, on the first count, it was declared the voting was equal. On the second count it was declared that the proposition was lost.

Mr. Simon D. Ord proposed that any member of the Council, as soon as he become an acting-manager, or manager of his own company, should cease to be a member of the Council. After some discussion, this proposition was withdrawn.

A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

A meeting of the "special" committee of the Association took place on the 8th inst., when there were present Messrs. Clarence Blakiston, C. Hayden Coffin, C. Aubrey Smith, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Mr. C. Aubrey Smith was elected chairman of the committee for the ensuing year. A question as to copyright in professional photographs was discussed, and certain directions given. Suggestions were made as to payment for rehearsals, and a scheme was drawn up for the consideration of the Council.

The finance and general purposes committee met on Saturday last, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), William Devereux, A. E. George, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Miss Vera Leslie's scheme for reduction of the subscription to the Association was considered. Miss Leslie being present, a portion of the scheme was withdrawn, and ultimately it was agreed that the remainder should be presented to the members at the next bi-monthly meeting, for discussion. A question of finance was settled, and the secretary received instructions.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday last, when there were present:—Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, W. Graham Browne, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Quinton McPherson, Algernon Syms, Spencer Trevor, Fredk. Volpe, and Hubert Willis, Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Kate Bishop, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Saba Raleigh, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). A member attended before the Council, and having stated the nature of claim, the hon. solicitors were requested to apply for payment of salary in lieu of notice. Proceedings taken by the hon. solicitors to enforce paymcnt of a member's claim for damages for breach of contract were approved. A case of alleged insanitation in a provincial theatre was discussed, and the secretary reported that he had sent a copy of the plan of the premises to the hon. medical officer of health. A case of alleged bogus management was considered, and the secretary was directed to file the papers for future reference. The hon. solicitors reported that they had advised members on points submitted. The reports of the "special" committee and the finance and general purposes committee were received. Camilla Dalberg, Florence St. John, Daisy Humphreys, and Harold Weston were nominated for election to the Association. A former member was nominated for reinstatement.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 12, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Fredk. Melville, entitled
"BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

This drama of Mr. Frederick Melville's is one that appeals strongly to the masses, and Marylebone playgoesrs turned up in full force to Mr. William Bailey's comfortable theatre this week. A telling representation of the Rev. Philip Carton was given by Mr. Hugh Metcalfe, who portrayed the manly parson in vigorous, lifelike style; whilst Mr. C. W. Standing enacted Harry Millard in similar fashion, his elocution being clear and his bearing excellent. Mr. Arthur B. Murray was full of resource as the Earl of Millard, and quickly secured the sympathy of the house; Mr. Louis Hector as the rascally James Durwood made the most of his opportunities, and triumphed accordingly; Mr. J. W. Walters did well as Jacques Spado, Mr. George R. Montford gave a highly creditable performance as Major Strangeways, and Mr. Dickie Clare's ample comedy powers found full scope in the character of Jack Pringle. The important rôle of Carmende Savereux was sustained by Miss Winifred Pearson in a most convincing way, and the success she achieved was quite deserved. Miss Lulu Bowes attracted much attention and sympathy as the blind boy, Miss Lilian Earle displayed high spirits and vivacity as the lively Pollie Popp, and Miss Marjorie Murray was the recipient of much careful attention and kindly encouragement by reason of her tender womanly rendering of Violet Thornton.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, MARCH 15.—The production of this play was announced some days earlier, but had to be postponed on account of Frau Bertens' indisposition. It met with a very cordial reception, the applause increasing from act to act. It is surely the most human of all the Greek master's works, while it is absolutely modern in many of its phases. Herr Vollmoeller has translated and adapted the play in excellent manner; the verses are sonorous and fluent, and the points well preserved. The third act was unquestionably the finest, producing a profound impression, which was considerably aided by the introduction of Mendelssohn's music. Frau Bertens gave a most convincing impersonation of the title-rôle—the sister whose love for her brother makes light of death. Herr Everth, Herr Lettinger, and others also gave good renderings of their respective parts, and the mounting was thoroughly in keeping.

THE Moscow Artistic Theatre company are doing excellent business at the Berliner. The performances are well-rounded, and, no matter how little the hearer understands of the language, he cannot fail to grasp the meaning and be moved by it. There is something very fascinating in the acting of these Russians, and it is no wonder the theatre is filled nightly, while our own actors may learn much from them. Tschechow's drama Uncle Wanja was given with much success last week. It has been done here in German, and was at the time detailed in your columns. New to Berlin was the four-act play Three Sisters—by the same author—which was given on Saturday, and received with cordiality. The chief attraction, however, remains Gorki's Nachtasyl, which is so well known to Berlin audiences through its long run at the Kleines, that all the points can be followed and appreciated without difficulty. The interpretation, too, is a very fine one, the rôles of the actor, Luka, the Baron, Wassillisja, and Nastja being exceptionally well rendered by MM. Artem, Moskwin, Katschloff, and Mesdames Muratowa and Tschechow-Knipper respectively.

AT the Royal Schauspielhaus, Brachvogel's tragedy Narziss was revived after a long interval last week. This was chiefly due to the fact of the work having first seen the light at that theatre fifty years ago, so that the occasion was a jubilee such as Berliners delight in. It is a one-rôle piece, the name part affording brilliant opportunities for any actor, and all the remaining characters being mere padding. The rôle of poor Narziss Rameau has been played by every actor of note upon the German stage, including Barnay and Sonnenthal. Herr Heine gave it this time, with all the characteristics which have gained him a high place among his compeers and in public estimation. The performance was admirable all round, but I fancy the attempt to make the piece popular again would be fruitless.

OUR Royal Opera is still in search of a tenor, and a number of artists have been singing on approval. One of the most successful is Herr Herold—hailing from the Court Opera at Copenhagen—who sang the part of Don José in Carmen on Monday evening. His voice is a robust yet very sweet one; he can sing loudly, without shouting, which is a thing a German tenor can rarely do, and his acting is equally satisfactory. Besides Herr Herold, only Fräulein Destinn, who sang the name-part, is deserving of mention. Her conception of this rôle has greatly improved since last I heard it, and her singing is a genuine treat. The remainder of the cast was—for an Imperial opera house—about as bad as it could be, and again one is tempted to ask when the weeding-out that is so necessary will begin.

AT the New Royal Opera, Rossini's ever-popular Barber of Seville was put in the bill on Sunday, the conductor being Richard Strauss. Frau Erika Wedekind, from Dresden, sang the part of Rosina with much success, although her voice is not what it used to be. Herr Tittmann-Lischnewsky, of Cologne, made a hit as Figaro; his voice is beautiful, but it needs more training, and his acting is that of an amateur. The remaining parts were satisfactorily sustained.

MAXIM GORKI is residing in our midst, being the recipient of as many honours as he will permit. His health leaves much to be desired, and he eludes all the gentle suasions of the interviewer. One evening last week Herr Gorki witnessed the performance of his Nachtasyl in German at the Kleines. As soon as the audience espied him, he was treated to a storm of applause, which he acknowledged from his box with evident pleasure. The Russian dramatist has allowed himself to be prevailed upon—under very advantageous conditions—to give a series of readings from his own and other Russian works, the first of these taking place last Saturday afternoon in the Deutsches Theatre. Herr Gorki wore his native peasant's "kittel," and was greeted by the crowded house as a hero. His reading is not particularly expressive or impressive; but it was followed by close attention, and gained him cordial applause.

HERR BEER-HOFMANN'S interesting play Der Graf von Charolais met with an enthusiastic reception at the Deutsches on Thursday evening. The play, it may be remembered, was produced at the Neues a year or two ago, under the management of Herr Reinhardt, the present lessee of the Deutsches. It was, for the chief part, the original cast, and again Herr Kayssler delighted his audience by his most sympathetic impersonation of the name-part; while the Desirée of Fräulein Hoeflich is as excellent a piece of acting as ever.

SIGNORA FRANCESCA PREVOSTI is with us once more, giving a season at the Theatre des Westens. The popular cantatrice met with a genuinely hearty welcome on her appearance in Traviata, her Violetta being perhaps the most successful rôle in her somewhat limited repertory. The star was satisfactorily supported, and, under Kapellmeister Büchel's conductorship, all went smoothly.

THE Opera House has been very frequently honoured lately by their Imperial Majesties' attendance. On one occasion Der Roland von Berlin was put in the bill by the Kaiser's wish, the work having otherwise passed into the things that were. The 200th performance of Die Meistersinger—a remarkably fine one, as might be imagined—was also attended by their Majesties, as well as Das Mädchen von Navarra and Lortzing's Zar und Zimmermann.

HERR KADELBURG'S latest farce, Der Weg zur Hoelle, has reached its seventy-fifth well-nigh consecutive performance at the Lustspielhaus, and there is every reason to believe it will run for another seventy-five nights. A similar piece, of which I hear capital things, is Philip Berges' Das Letzte Mittel. This was produced with tremendous success at the Schauspielhaus in Hamburg, and is to come on here before long.

"CASANOVA," a new three-act operetta by Herr Kapeller, words by Herren Tandler and Sterk, will be produced at the Central Theatre to-night, under the conductorship of the composer.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 15.—When it became known that MM. Capus and Descaves were collaborating on a play, the news caused some excitement in the theatrical world. A finer combination than Descaves, the great thinker, and Capus, the delightful mondain philosopher, could not well be imagined. We were, however, disappointed. Their joint effort gave us a clever piece, but it is not the kind of work we expected from two such talented men. Moreover, despite the very strong cast, comprising Mme. Jane Hading and Coquelin aîné, the new piece was not well interpreted. The scene of the first act is laid at the house of Marescot, an ex-communard, and now a bookbinder. Marescot has a son, Lazare, imbued with anarchistic ideas, who curses fate that made him poor, with no other prospects in life than to become a small employee, and marry, perhaps, little Céline, his cousin. He is ambitious. He would like to lead a brilliant existence, and secure the love of that handsome woman, who, of late, has been several times to his father's shop. Suddenly luck begins to smile on Lazare. Montferran, the millionaire, the socialist deputy, pays a visit to the old communard Marescot. The truth is that Montferran is anxious to get up a strike fund, and in order to raise the money organises theatrical performances in the populous quarters of the capital. Marescot is an influential man in his district; and Montferran, who wants him to use his influence on his behalf at the coming elections, flatters the old man and engages Lazare as his secretary. Lazare is delighted, but little Cécile is sad, for she foresees trouble. Montferran has a mistress, Julia Dorfeuil, an actress, who is to play the principal rôles in the performances he is organising. He does not love Julia, but entered into that liaison without thinking of the consequences. And the consequences are serious, for his wife has gone to shop with one of her aunts, and wants to apply for a divorce. Lazare then makes the startling discovery that the beautiful woman to whom he has lost his heart is Montferran's wife, who resumed her maiden name when she left her husband; and he hears that she consented to stay legal proceedings till after the elections so as not to interfere with her husband's prospects. Lazare is jealous of Montferran, and his jealousy soon blossoms into hatred. On the night of the theatrical performance in aid of the strike fund Montferran offers a supper to Marescot and to the artists who appeared in the piece. Montferran is not pleased with the way the public received him. The audience had no sympathy with the Socialist millionaire, and taunted him with his wealth and his motor. Everybody is out of temper. Julia makes fun of old Marescot, who takes up his hat to go home, whereupon Montferran begs Lazare to remonstrate with his father, and ask him to stop. Lazare, who has gone to fetch his father's overcoat, gives a sarcastic reply, and a violent discussion breaks out between Montferran and his secretary. A revolver drops from the overcoat Lazare is holding; and the young man picks it up and points it at his employer. At that moment Marescot rushes in and seizes his son's wrist. We hear a shot. Was it an accident? All we know is that Montferran is wounded and that Lazare is arrested.

Montferran's wound is not dangerous. He was hit in the arm, and the bullet can be easily extracted. To Montferran this attempt to murder him is a lucky windfall. His wife, the beautiful Marcelle, has come to nurse him, and forgives him. Moreover, he can now pose as a victim of an anarchist plot, which will increase his position in the political world. Bizot, the examining magistrate who has charge of the case, has his doubts about the matter, and scents a mystery; and his suspicions are confirmed by Cécile, who informs him that Lazare is madly in love with Mme. Montferran. "I do not believe a word of it," says Montferran; but when his wife tells him that Lazare made her an ardent declaration he becomes alarmed. If a word is breathed in Court about this love affair he will be covered with ridicule. And, thanks to his wonderful powers of persuasion, he succeeds in convincing the examining magistrate that it is a political affair. He also makes Lazare's counsel share the same view, and even Lazare prefers to pose as an anarchist than as a disappointed lover. When the case comes on for trial, Montferran pleads so strongly for Lazare, "the victim of poisonous literature," that the jury acquits him, and Montferran is cheered by the mob for so generously forgiving the man who attempted his life. As to the latter, this affair has taught him a lesson, and he will marry the pretty Cécile, and become a bookbinder like his father. The interpretation, as I said before, was not good. Mme Hading positively radiated beauty, but she failed to impress us in any way as the suffering wife of the socialist deputy. M. Coquelin was still more unsatisfactory. That artist of late has taken to "declaiming" every word he utters, a habit by which he will ruin any play wherein he is called upon to play the leading part. M. Jean Coquelin is adopting the same tactics as his father, and his constant striving after effect seriously interferes with his work. M. Vincent, as Lazare, was excellent, and the rôle suited him to the ground. Special praise is also due to Mlle. Miéris and Mlle. Sergy.

Paris cu le bon Juge is the title of a two-act operette by MM. Robert de Flers and G. A. de Caillavet, just produced at the Theatre des Capucines. It is the story of the shepherd awarding the prize to one of the three goddesses; but the new version is that Venus is anxious to secure it, not as the Goddess of Beauty, but on account of her virtue. For whilst Juna and Minerva try to bribe Paris by not resisting him, Venus is prude, and keeps him at a distance. And it is only after Paris promises to award the apple to her that Venus consents to show him the same favours as her Olympian sisters. Minerva and Juna are astounded at this result, and come to the conclusion that they are behind the times. Venus alone is up to date.

PRESENTATIONS.—Mr. Carl Fredericks, at the termination of the Midland Syndicate's pantomime Cinderella, was presented by Mr. Herbert Barrs, the general-manager, with a handsome dressing-case and a massive silver-mounted walking-stick from the comedians. Mlle. Cordelia (Mrs. Carl Fredericks) was also the recipient of a handsome diamond brooch from Mrs. Herbert Barrs. Mr. Fredericks was re-engaged to stage-manage Mr. Barrs' 1906-7 production.

PRESENTATIONS.—At the termination of Messrs. Little and Darcy's pantomime, The Forty Thieves, Mr. Will White, F.O.S., the general-manager, was presented with a portmanteau by the Daunton Shaw troupe; silver clock and calendar by the Three Sisters Silcott; silver-mounted umbrella by Messrs. Malone and Conley; silver-mounted cigar-case by Mr. Frank Stebbing, of the Three Henriques; silver-mounted pipe by Mr. and Mrs. George Rapley; and case of brushes by Mr. James Ferguson.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth or Death or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

The charge for a notice of Marriage, not exceeding forty words, is Two Shillings and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

BIRTHS.

Marsh.—On March 8, the wife of G. Alexander Marsh (Miss Carrie Baillie), a son.

MARRIAGES.

Albery—Jones.—March 12, at St. George's, Hanover-square, Irving James Albery, son of the late James Albery and Mrs. Albery (Miss Mary Moore), to Gertrude Arthur Jones, daughter of Henry Arthur Jones.

Breen-Meadows.—March 8, 1906, at Liverpool, Tom Breen, son of the late Frank Breen, to Connie Meadows (Wood), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wood.

Lawrence—Fisher.—On Feb. 25, at Trinity Church, Bootle, Liverpool, by the Rev. James Bodel, Ernest, second son of Joseph Lawrence, London, to Clara Ethel, eldest daughter of G. Gregory Fisher, Barrister-at-law, London.

Approaching Marriage.

Mead—Hay.—An announcement recently made of the approaching marriage of Mr. Charles Mead with Mrs. S. E. Hay is of interest to the profession, Mr. Mead being the erstwhile well-known athelete and many years captain of the Reigate and Red Hill Cycle Club, whilst Mrs. Hay is the well-known clever impersonator of Sybella in "Claudian," having been for a long time associated with Mr. William Maclaren's company. It was while on tour that the happy couple met, and the friendship then established has matured into purely a love match of the good old-fashioned order. The wedding is fixed to take place at 12.30 on the 24th inst., at the Parish Church of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar-square, and is by special licence. About 300 invitations have been issued, and a reception at 1.30 till 5 takes place at the "Alexandra" Room, Trocadero Restaurant, after the ceremony. The happy couple leave Victoria by the 9 p.m. train for the Riviera, and on returning home will establish themselves at the Marlborough, 710, Holloway-road, N., which house Mr. Mead has recently purchased, and where old friends of both may rely upon a hearty welcome and the hand-grasp of true friendship.

DEATHS.

Broome.—Willie Broome, age 4 years, the beloved son of Walter Broome, Stage-Manager, Hippodrome, Sheerness.

Cartwright.—March 6, at Wolverhampton, John (Jack) Cartwright, aged 67 years, for 42 years head waiter at the old and new Empire. R.I.P.

Coppin.—March 12, at Melbourne, George Selth Coppin, theatrical manager, in his eighty-eighth year.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

HOCKEY.

The return match of the Ugliest Woman on Earth v. Between Two Women was played at Glasgow on the 22nd ult., when the "Uglies" again won by 11 goals—Tubby Edlin, 9; Davenport, 1; Cross, 1—to none. The following were the teams:—

"Uglies."—Miss Margaret Watson, Miss Nellie Jackson, Miss Rita Milman, P. Darien, L. Cancellor, W. Wallace, A. Davenport, F. Cross, J. Edwards, W. Besley, and T. Edlin.

"Between Two Women."—Miss Marjorie Murray, Miss Lulu Bowes, Miss Lilian Earle, H. Metcalfe, L. Hector, C. W. Standing, C. Wallis, N. Graham, A. Boxall, R. Clare, and G. R. Montford.

"WHEN WOMAN HATES" CO. HOCKEY CLUB.—Miss Mannering's team versus Mr. Anderson's team: Won by the former by seven goals to three. For the winners Mr. Jerrold Heather scored four goals, Miss Mabel Mannering two, and Miss Maud Townsend one. For the losers Mr. Millar Anderson scored two goals and Mr. Chas. H. Hughes one.

MISSES CECILIA FOWLER'S AND WINIFRED BRADLEY'S LADIES' XI. v. J. LEONARD'S GENTLEMEN'S XI.

Played near Henbury, on Saturday, March 6. The following were the teams:—

Misses Fowler and Bradley's XI.: Miss Fowler (captain), goal; Miss Rosie Davis and Miss Alice Gibbs, backs; Miss Lillie Belding, Miss Lucy Norris, and Miss Nellie Bailey, half-backs; Miss Gracie Leonard, Miss Minnie Leonard, Miss Winifred Bradley, Miss Kit Montgomery, and Miss Amy Bernard, forwards.

J. Leonard's XI.: M. Leonard, goal; E. Bowman and S. Coombes, backs; F. Worth, B. Davis, and A. Cameron, half-backs; J. Leonard (captain), T. Always, B. Green, A. Lucas, and A. Thompson, forwards.

Referee, Miss May Fisher. Result: Misses Fowler and Bradley's XI., nil; J. Leonard's XI., 3 goals. S. Coombes, A. Cameron, and F. Worth scored for the gentlemen's eleven.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice for Middlesbrough you say I play the part of Esther Coventry charmingly. May I, in justice to the lady playing the part, and also to avoid what, from a mistake of identity, might in future cause business inconvenience to both of us, state that my engagement in Miss Elsie Roberts's One of the Best company terminated after March 3?—Yours faithfully, MARGARET DAVIES WEBSTER, 38, Flandersmansions, Bedford Park, W., March 10, 1906.

MR. G. G. JEFFERSON has resigned his post as acting manager for Mr. Robertson at the Theatre Royal, Jarrow, in order to assist his father, Mr. Arthur Jefferson, at the Metropole, Glasgow, Agency. Mr. Jerold E. Reed has been appointed acting-manager in Mr. Jefferson's place.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

SATURDAY, MARCH 17, 1906.

THE STAGE AND POLITICS.

The rather sudden withdrawal of Captain MARSHALL'S comedy, The Alabaster Staircase, from the stage of the Comedy Theatre raises the question whether the drama in England will ever become a vehicle for the discussion of social and political questions. In France the play of politics is forbidden; but the play dealing with the defects and abuses of the social system flourishes exceedingly. They have pieces written to expose the weaknesses of every part of society, pieces which are sermons—sometimes medical sermons—in disguise. And the success of these plays at the Paris theatres proves that the French playgoer is ready to take his higher education in dramatic form; just as the failure of Captain MARSHALL'S comedy suggests the reluctance of the English public to mix up politics with amusement. In novels, a "purpose" is not so much objected to. Many of CHARLES READE'S works were, obviously and avowedly, attacks on social abuses; and his "purpose" was boldly declared by him from the commencement. We may be met by the remark that It's Never Too Late to Mend was presented with vast success on the stage; but that its "drawing power" depended on its strong situations, and not on its social sermonising, is proved by the lasting popularity of the drama long after the "solitary system," the "crank," and the "punishment jacket" had been abandoned in our prisons. The nearest approach to downright political playwriting which we remember was when the late Mr. WILLS wrote his Charles I., and someone else put on a Cromwell drama at a rival theatre. Passages in the Puritan play were loudly applauded by one section of the audience, while another part made a vigorous attempt to hoot down the democratic sentiments.

Captain MARSHALL'S play "took away the breath" of the most experienced playgoer. It was an open attack on party politics, on the system of government by two cliques drawn either from the aristocracy or the plutocracy, on inefficient officials, and on one-sided and meanly interested opinions on vitally important social subjects. But, admirably written as the dialogue was, a certain uneasiness was noticeable in the audience as the tendency of the pit and gallery to applaud the very "advanced" sentiments of the converted Premier was observed. Curiously enough, while the principal character was attacking the party system on the stage, it was the spirit of the system which was working dead against the success of the play in the auditorium. For the essence of party is antagonism. That is why the discussion of politics is tabooed in society; with a pugnacious race like our own it inevitably leads to combat. We cannot conduct an election without exaggeration, unfairness, and one-sided speeches. And in most of our politics there is the sort of unreality which is created when both sides feel that the whole thing is a farce, played ostensibly for the benefit of the country, but really for that of the actors who sustain the principal parts. The weaker our convictions, the noisier we are in the expression of our prejudices. Consequently, when a body of people gathered together in a theatre for an evening's enjoyment, in a frank and honest frame of mind, are confronted with a question of politics, they feel very uncomfortable. Like boys caught bathing, they are taken off their guard before they have had time to put on their opinions.

It is different, of course, when a play of social satire is presented to a picked audience at what may be called a semi-private theatre. The "house" is usually one in spirit with the author, and only goes to have its opinions cleverly echoed in dramatic form. Widowers' Houses, for instance, had an enthusiastic reception at the Royalty because it was played to an audience quite in harmony with Mr. SHAW'S views. Besides, its theme was then almost outside the pale of practical politics, and its hopeless pessimism prevented it from offence. It will be remembered that the young man who begins by being indignant at the dowry of his proposed bride being derived from the rents of the worst class of "slum" property, alters his tone entirely when he discovers that part of his own comfortable income springs from the same source. The only person who has preached advanced views frankly and freely is Mr. CECIL RALEIGH, whose Great Millionaire was a protest against the despotic power of capital, and contained passages of sternly socialistic spirit. In fact, the piece was one of the most remarkable combinations of clever construction and high thought that have ever been put on the Drury Lane stage. We do not believe, however, that its sentiments would have saved it from failure if its dramatic and sensational qualities had been less effective.

The time may come when large social questions, as distinguished from mere party cries, may be dealt with on the stage; but it will only be when some great wave of hope and feeling comes along, and when politics are carried by it up to a much higher level than in the past. And then we may have a drama dealing with deep realities, not in the bitterly ironical and paradoxical spirit of Mr. SHAW, but with the full heart which comes of Hope and sympathy with human aspirations. But it must always be remembered that in Art the artistic interest inevitably dominates. It is useless for a drama to be deep, or intellectual, or philanthropic, or full of noble inspirations, if it is not as good as a drama as it is as an argument or a demonstration. The difficulty of reconciling the two elements is very great; and the artist who succeeds in doing so may claim to be a master of his craft. The Alabaster Staircase failed quite as much because of Captain MARSHALL'S inexpertness in handling his theme as on account of the extraordinary sermon which was preached to the equally extraordinary Cabinet by Mr. HARE in the character of Sir John Abbotsford.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A MEETING of the working staff members of the late Dramatic and Musical Fund was held on Sunday evening in the Freemasons' Arms, Long Acre, to consider what should be done with regard to £500, referred to by Mr. Tree, president of the fund, at the Heads of Departments' dinner on April 2 last, and, also, by Mr. Edward Terry in his letter to The Era in August last. The fact, also, that the promised balance-sheet has not yet been made public, as was promised by Mr. Terry in the letter referred to, is arousing some comment. The late committee of the fund have received no further communications from the solicitors or accountants entrusted with the winding up of the affairs of the fund.

MR. H. G. HATCH, formerly master carpenter of the Princess, Glasgow, and late of the Ealing Theatre, is now in charge of the stage department of the Holborn Empire. Mr. Mills, of Manchester, is electrician in charge. A new experiment in supplying electric light is being tested at this handsome variety house. A light and power installation has been put in, and worked under a system which shows some very astonishing results in the way of economy. The system has already proved satisfactory in several provincial theatres.

A PRELIMINARY meeting of the representatives appointed to constitute the Sports Committee was held on Thursday evening at 29, Wellington-street, Strand. Mr. J. Cullen presided. Amongst those present were Mr. A. Palmer, master carpenter the Comedy Theatre; Mr. T. J. Sheridan, electrician, Waldorf Theatre; Mr. A. E. Wood, Shaftesbury Theatre; Mr G. W. Wilton, property master, the Vaudeville Theatre; Mr. T. Morgan, property master, the Comedy Theatre; Mr. P. Thomas, Alhambra; Mr. P. Sheridan, the Crown Theatre; Mr. H. Porter, Wyndham's Theatre; Mr. G. Hughes, Mr. C. Thorogood, and Mr. W. Johnson.

IT was decided to invite Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, Mr. H. R. Kimpton, and Mr. Lionel Belmore to join the committee. Mr. G. H. Dyball was appointed hon. treasurer and Mr. W. Johnson hon. secretary. It was proposed that the sports take place on a Tuesday in June. Several interesting suggestions with regard to the distribution of the possible balance to be derived from the sports were deferred to the next meeting, which will take place on Thursday next at six o'clock.

THE staff of the Victoria Theatre, Kettering, held their annual dinner on Friday night last at the house of the popular manager, Mr. H. C. Fowkes, when about forty sat down to a good spread. A most enjoyable evening was spent in harmony, Mr. W. Fowkes presiding at the piano, and Mr. Flemming taking the chair. The evening concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to the manager, who in reply complimented the staff on the interest they took in their work.

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the failure of The Alabaster Staircase to attract the public to the Comedy Theatre has given Mr. John Hare's many admirers an opportunity of seeing him once more in his inimitable impersonation of Benjamin Goldfinch in A Pair of Spectacles. The piece is too well known for any comment on its qualities to be required at this date. It is one of those comedies which appeal to everyone's experience; and the trustful and generous Benjamin, and the "hard-as-nails" Gregory, are persons who are met by the man of the world every day of his life. The pleasure of seeing them on the stage, their points raised to the highest power by graphic caricature, may be tasted by "the very humblest" intellect, and even "the ranks of Tuscany"—i.e., the advanced and sophisticated playgoers and critics—can "scarce forbear to smile" at the innocent humours of the work, which goes as merrily as ever. Often as we have seen Mr. Hare in the part of Benjamin Goldfinch, we have never known him to play it better than he did at the Comedy on Wednesday. If anything, he has improved his treatment of the softer and more sentimental passages, which he treats with even more tenderness and pathos than he did when A Pair of Spectacles was produced at the Garrick Theatre in the February of 1890. It will be remembered that Mr. Hare, after this notable production, had the honour of appearing in the piece before the King and Queen—then Prince and Princess of Wales—at Sandringham, and was presented by the Prince with a silver cigar-box, bearing in the lower right-hand corner the head of a hare looking through a pair of gold spectacles. In the 1890 cast Mr. Hare was supported by Mr. Charles Groves and Miss Kate Rorke, who were happily available for the present revival. Mr. Groves's Uncle Gregory has long been established in the warm favour of the playgoing public; and none would wish for the slightest alteration in this irresistibly amusing embodiment. The part fits Mr. Groves like a glove; he feels the humour of it deeply; he dresses it with a solicitude which is itself humorous—the badly-cut coat, carelessly worn and creased after a railway journey, is full of character—and in tone, in accent, and in gesture the creation is absolutely complete. Miss Kate Rorke plays Mrs. Goldfinch with a mixture of sensibility and common sense that makes her depiction of the wife entirely agreeable and unimpeachable. Mr. Ivo Dawson deserves special praise for his very neat, smooth, and well-restrained representation of Percy. He hits off the cowed quietude of the young man very cleverly. Mr. A. E. Matthews's Dick is an unimpeachable sample of comfortably-conditioned, well-bred youth; Mr. Evelyn Vernon plays Lorimer with remarkable tact and skill; and Mr. J. H. Brewer supplies a very effective and elaborate character-study of the fawning, canting shoemaker, Bartholomew. Miss Minnie Mather, despite certain little mannerisms, puts much pleasing sentiment into her performance as Lucy Lorimer. A Pair of Spectacles was preceded by the episode, in one act, by Albert E. Drinkwater, entitled

"AFTERTHOUGHTS."

Margaret Deane-Nichol
MISS BEATRICE FORBES-ROBERTSON

The piece is accurately described on the programme. All our readers may not remember the story. Mr. and Mrs. Deane-Nichol, recently married, are living at Henley. Mr. Deane-Nichol is a barrister. The lady wants to have her own way in everything; objects to her husband running up to town alone; and even refuses to comply with his request to close and fasten the French windows of her morning-room to guard against the entry of tramps and thieves. It is mentioned in conversation that a friend of the husband's, who is fond of "slumming," is in the habit of going about disguised as a wastrel. The wife, left alone in her room, receives a visit from a real criminal, whom she takes to be this friend, and treats with every courtesy and kindness, offering him whisky and cigars. Mike Toddy, as the burglar is called, discovers that the master of the house is the counsel who "restored" him "to his friends and his relations" on a certain occasion when he appeared in the dock, and had a very narrow escape; so he goes off quietly and peaceably. The wife is so scared by her little adventure that she determines in future to take her husband's advice—especially about French windows. The performance was made notable by Mr. Gilbert Hare's effective and picturesque rendering of the part of Mike Toddy. His make-up and attire were very artistic; and he acted with characteristic intensity and grotesque earnestness. Mr. Evelyn Vernon played Philip Deane-Nichol easily and well; Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson was animated, arch, and expressive as the wife; and Mr. Forbes Dawson of course spoke his few lines well as Hodges. The little piece was warmly applauded.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The directors of the Palace Theatre have arranged for Mr. Alfred Butt to make a short tour of some of the most important cities in the United States, with a view to satisfying himself as to the English value of some of the turns which have been lately strongly recommended from the other side. Mr. Butt sailed on Wednesday for New York, leaving the management of the theatre temporarily in the hands of Mr. Fitzroy Gardner.

Miss Carrie Moore, who "created" the part of Millicent in The Blue Moon at the Lyric when that musical comedy was produced on Aug. 28 last, will, before she appears in the new musical play by Mr. Robert Courtneidge and Mr. A. M. Thompson, try her fortune as a comedienne at the Palace, where she will open on Monday.

Mr. Arthur Wimperis, who shares with Mr. Paul Rubens the pleasing responsibility of writing the lyrics for The Dairy Maids, to be produced early in April, is author of many of the best items in the capital répertoire of the Follies. Mr. Wimperis is as skilful with a pencil as with a pen, having met with considerable success as a caricaturist. He is one of the many young men connected with the profession who did good service in South Africa during the late war.

Mr. B. P. Lucas, who is the proprietor of the Hastings Hippodrome, has recently acquired the Empire, Bristol, which was opened under the auspices of the Newson Smith Syndicate on Nov. 6, 1893. Mr. Lucas, who is the managing director of the Bedford, Camden Town, will open the house on the two-houses-a-night principle on Easter Monday, April 16. Mr. A. F. Lovesey, the general-manager of the Bedford, will journey down to the Western city to assist at the inauguartion of Mr. Lucas's latest enterprise. The bookings will be in the hands of Mr. Harry Day. The Bristol Empire was reopened by Mr. Tom Barrasford in April, 1901.

Mr. Joe Elvin is leaving town for a short tour, and will return to his beloved London with a new sketch, Trespassers, Beware, by Wal Pink, the author of so many of the droll concoctions in which Mr. Elvin figures so successfully.

Mr. Tom Edwards, the clever ventriloquist, who tops a varied and interesting bill at Hackney Empire next week, is the son of J. Edwards, a well-known steeplechase jockey and successful trainer, and was born twenty-six years ago. Tom intended following in his father's footsteps, but didn't. He started stockbroking in Birmingham instead, but found it too dull. He then joined a circus, and has been in turn a circus performer, pierrot, and smoking-concert and drawing-room entertainer. He has always, however, been a ventriloquist, and intends shortly to enlighten the public by publishing his book, "Ventriloquism in Theory and Practice; its Acquirement and Adaptation."

The jolly fraternity of the Water Rats will have its annual ball at the Trocadero on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. The reception will be at 11 p.m., dancing begins half an hour later, supper will be served at 1.30 a.m., and carriages may be ordered for 5 a.m. The Vaudeville Club will join in the festivities. Mr. A. Bond Sayers, the conductor of the London Pavilion band, will direct a special orchestra, and everybody will have a high old time.

The Variety Artists' Federation is exhibiting all the energy of youth, and the promotion and strengthening of the new society are being discussed in every town of importance where variety theatres are among the places of entertainment. Over a hundred meetings were held on Friday, when the objects and aims of the newest music-hall organisation were discussed.

"Miniature Marie," we regret to hear, is lying seriously ill at 7, Arundel-street, Piccadilly-circus, suffering from appendicitis. At first it was thought a dangerous operation would have to be performed, but her physician has dispensed with that extreme measure, and the patient is progressing as well as can be expected. She has unfortunately had to cancel all her engagements.

We are given to understand that a new syndicate is about to be formed for the purpose of acquiring four or five music halls. The managing-director of the new enterprise will probably be Mr. Jesse Sparrow, who has lately resigned his position of manager to the Camberwell and Walham Green music halls.

Joan of Arc was the heroine of the play of that name produced at the old Queen's Theatre, Long Acre, on April 10, 1871, and the subject was treated as a scenic monologue in 1891 at the old Oxford by Mr. C. R. Brighten, the then manager, who secured Mr. Frank Lindo to recite the proem. Miss Harriet Vernon then appeared as the inspired village girl of Domrémy, and looked simply magnificent as the leader of the French troops that besieged Orleans. Round the historic figure of the Maid of Orleans Mr. William Glenney, author of The Orange Girl and The City of Shadows, has written a sketch for Mr. George de Laclaire, and there is also talk of another production at a West End hall founded on the same theme.

Mr. Edward Swanborough is now happily recovering from a serious illness, and went out for a short time yesterday. He hopes to get back to his duties at the Chelsea Palace on the 26th inst., when he may be sure he will have a warm welcome from his many friends.

"The Lady in Red" is repeating at Birmingham the success it scored at the Lyceum last week, and Mr. Tom Craven has received offers from all quarters, even from America, for the popular sketch, so cleverly written by Mr. Frank Dix and so excellently played by Mr. Craven and company, who preserve the excellent traditions of farce acting that obtain in the West End.

The late manager of the London, Collins's, and the Cambridge (Mr. Chas. Hector) is to be testimonialised. The list was opened last Saturday by Mr. A. Barnett, of 34, Compton-terrace, Islington. Among the subscribers are Marie Lloyd, £2 2s.; Joe Elvin, £2 2s.; and a guinea each from Harry Randall, Wal Pink, Arthur Rigby, Jack de Frece, Paul Pelham, May Henderson, Will Evans, and Clarke and Hamilton.

Although the costumes in Naughty Nero, at the Oxford, are necessarily more grotesque than picturesque there are two at least that are pretty enough to hold their own, even when compared to dresses in a serious production. Miss Ruby Celeste appears in one, copied from the robes worn by Mrs. Tree, of deep red silk, with yards and yards of train, and angel sleeves of chiffon of the same colour. When Agrippineapple is thrown into the river from a Roman County Council steamboat she makes a quick change into a smart little Parisian bathing-suit of pale blue, and prepares for her final departure from the scene of action by donning a toque, boa, and muff of white fur. Acteress looks very pretty in a clinging dress of striped silk gauze, with touches of silver. Poppæa, or Poppy—from Lancashire—has her white muslin frock decorated with poppies and wears a wreath of the same flowers. Mr. Arthur Roberts's appearance is a triumph of detail, from the wreath of vivid green parsley "jewelled" with tiny carrots to the tip of the golden boots. Naughty Nero rarely discards his white silk hat, and his costume of gold brocade is studded with giant emeralds.

The South Coast Hippodrome Syndicate, Ltd., was registered on March 1 with a capital of £1,000 in £1 shares. Its object is to carry on the business of music-hall and theatre proprietors, caterers for public entertainment, etc. There is to be no initial public issue. The first directors (to number not more than seven) are to be appointed by the signatories. Registered office: Norwich House, Southampton-street, Holborn, W.C.

Happy Fanny Fields, the very clever exponent of Gretchen in the Bristol pantomime Mother Goose, lately paid a visit to Eastville Workhouse, and, after kindly expressions of interest in the treatment of the old people, left £5 for extra tea, &c. A vote of thanks was in due course accorded to Miss Fanny Fields.

A site has been acquired in the centre of Merthyr for the purposes of a palace of varieties, and the building will be begun immediately plans have been finally passed. It is expected that the opening will take place in August next under the management of Mr. T. N. Sylvester, who is already managing other establishments at Maidstone and Coventry. There will be two performances each night.

Mr. George Andrews, who has been appointed by Mr. Oswald Stoll as the acting-manager of the Leicester Palace Theatre, entered upon his duties last week. Mr. Andrews has had much experience in matters professional, which should fit him for the position he has undertaken. He was manager on tour for Sousa's Band, and has been some little time with Mr. Stoll.

Patrons of the Wolverhampton Empire Palace will in future miss one of the features of the local music hall. "Jack," the shrewd and genial waiter, was more than an interesting personality; he was an institution. Honoured by everyone, and popular with all, it is hard to realise that no more will he be seen in the position he occupied for forty-two years. After about a fortnight's illness he succumbed to kidney disease on Tuesday.

The Brothers Egbert took their benefit at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on Tuesday, when a house packed in every part, gave further testimony to their great popularity in Liverpool. Both the Everton and Liverpool Football Club teams and directors were present, also the Liverpool Order of Blue Pigeons. The following artists kindly gave their services for this night only:—Mmes. Millie Lindon and Alma Obrey, Messrs. Harry Ford and James Fawn. Messrs. Egbert, who presented each of the ladies with a beautiful bouquet, submitted a new speciality, which brought down the house. Altogether it was a great night for them. They will appear in Edinburgh in pantomime next year.

Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady on Tuesday heard a motion by Mr. Easton, a debenture-holder, against the Brighton Coliseum, Ltd., for judgment in default of defence. The plaintiff held all the debentures of the company, amounting to £1,500. These were issued subject to a first mortgage of £12,000, which covered all the assets except a few loose chattels and the equity of redemption, which were said to be of little value. The receiver had entered into a contract with the mortgagees, under which the latter agreed to pay plaintiff £290 for his rights. His Lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff, and sanctioned the sale.

Mr. Charles S. Kitts and Miss Rhoda Windrum produced last Monday week at the Empire, Birmingham, their new sketch, entitled The Cuckoo, which met with an enthusiastic reception. The lady and gentleman mentioned were well supported by the three members of their company.

An original scena, A Day in Birdland, written and composed by the late George Le Brunn, was successfully produced at the Palace, Southampton, on Monday, by Chas. Mildare, assisted by Miss Edna Werner. The scene is laid at a country hostelry, the Thrush, a charming rural landscape setting off the background. Here, Mr. Mildare, with gun, and accompanied by his prize English setter dog, "Sentinel," arrives to meet his lady love, who is late in keeping her appointment. To while away the time, Mr. Mildare sings a trio of pretty songs, "Dear little skylark," "The mocking bird is mocking me," and "You know, little girl, that I am waiting," in addition to imitating with marvellous accuracy the skylark, mocking bird, nightingale, parrot, canary, thrush, &c.. He keeps up a running accompaniment with the parrot until the lady (Miss Edna Werner), charmingly costumed, arrives, and the pair walk off for a country ramble. The scena is a distinct novelty, and was received with enthusiastic applause.

After the benefit performance at the Empire, Old Market-street, Bristol, on Friday evening, when Mr. Frank Weston, the manager, was the recipient of a handsome illuminated address and other testimonials of the esteem in which he is held, Mr. Weston was entertained at a complimentary supper at the Crown and Dove Hotel, Bridewell-street. Mr. David Crombie (chairman of the Presentation Committee), was a most genial chairman, and the company, which was large and enthusiastic, included a number of ladies and the members of the Presentation Committee, Mr. Horace Livermore, Mr. F. J. Welchman, and Mr. Geo. Gascoigne.

The address presented to Mr. Weston was as follows:—"To Frank Weston, Esq., manager of the Bristol Empire. We, the undersigned, on behalf of your many Bristol friends, artists, and staff, being desirous of marking our appreciation of the splendid business ability, unfailing courtesy, and kindness of heart which you invariably display in the important position which you hold, take this opportunity to present you with a token of our respect and regard. We therefore ask you to accept this address and the accompanying purse of gold as an expression of our good wishes to you in your future life, and we sincerely hope you will be spared for many years to enjoy good health and happiness.—Yours faithfully, David Crombie (Chairman), Percy Condick (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer)."

The usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the York Hotel, York-road. Mr. Pat Carey (president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. Frank Heath (hon. treasurer), W. Waimatta, Tom Carney, W. Brisco, W. West, J. Mulcaster, and R. T. Baines (secretary). A draft of the annual balance-sheet which was submitted showed that the society was in a satisfactory financial position, the income having steadily increased during the past few years. It was resolved that the balance-sheet should be printed and circulated amongst the members. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Miss Florrie Gallimore, the original singer of the late Mr. George Le Brunn's last song, "Remember me to mother, dear," is still singing that tuneful number at all her provincial engagements, with the greatest possible success; and the trade sales of the song, which is published in the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "Sixpenny Successes" series, are exceedingly large.

The Monte Carlo Publishing Co., of Berners-street, have this week accepted for publication two songs, written and composed by George Arthurs and Kenneth Lyle, entitled "Good-bye, my pretty Flo" (a mock-sentimental ballad) and "Sad, sad, solemn-looking eyes," which latter is being exploited on the halls by Mr. Milner Verren.

What promises to be one of the most startling tabloid dramas ever conceived will be produced at the London Hippodrome on Monday, when The Flood—described as a miniature Johnstown disaster, which took place in 1901—will be produced by its inventor, Mr. Frank Parker. The Flood will not contain such appalling episodes as the latter, but it will be realistic enough to satisfy the greediest appetite for sensation.

In the midst of a rural mountain scene of lightness and festivity a terrible storm arises, and all that was bright and happy is plunged into Stygian darkness. In one fell catastrophe the whole village—human beings, horses, cottages, everything—is swept away by a deluge of real water through the bursting of a dam on the top of a mountain. Such a scene of indescribable terror has never been placed upon any stage. The "flood" is realised by the flow of 300,000 gallons of water from the Hippodrome tank. The book has been written by Arthur Shirley, with music by Clarence C. Corri.

The cast is as follows:—Harry Darvill, Mr. Hal Forde; Wilkins, Mr. Bert Gilbert; Zambarro, Mr. Cecil Morton York; Peter Peel, Mr. J. Windham Guise; Rosie Tynge, Miss Simeta Marsden; Lucie Gray, Miss Aimee Roberts.

The Putney Hippodrome (Limited) has been registered with a capital £27,000. The first directors are G. R. Thurlow and F. W. Gunner.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten, who is globe-trotting, has just left Port Said on his journey to the East, and reports himself to be wonderfully well. He desires, through our columns, to be kindly remembered to the profession, and hopes that on his return the barring clause will be settled.

One of the most attractive turns at the Lyceum during the week has been that of Mlle. Ghita Corri, who has been appearing in her new and original vocal scena entitled Waiting. In this scena Mlle. Corri takes the character of an English girl dressed in the costume of the period (1770), singing Millard's charming song with the above title, which is enthusiastically applauded. Even greater is her success when in the costume of a Spanish cigarette-maker she sings the florid air "Carmena."

The generosity and the camaraderie of music-hall artists are revealed in the eloquent figures of the subscription list of the Music Hall Home Fund, which up to the present time amounts to over seventeen hundred shillings. There are still many indefatigable collectors getting their cards filled. The amounts will be thankfully received and duly announced in subsequent issues of the paper by the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, at The Era offices.

Miss Josie Collins, who made a successful début at the London Pavilion on Monday evening, is only seventeen years of age, and is the elder daughter of Miss Lottie Collins, who used to delight the frequenters of the popular Piccadilly house in the eighties. The daughter has an excellent preceptor in her mother and her stepfather, Mr. J. W. Tate, the well-known composer, who has collaborated in so many successful music-hall numbers with Mr. J. P. Harrington. The débutante, who is decidedly pretty, has two excellent songs in "My Tiny Firefly" and "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you."

Dancing of the Taglioni school has not been popular at the variety theatres for some years—principally for lack of clever exponents. It is refreshing, therefore, for any lover of ballet in its most artistic form to watch Espinosa and Neilson at the London Pavilion in the revival of an ancient pas de deux. It is a marked success. The British public are probably tiring of the graceless attitudes of the cake-walk.

Mr. Thomas Barrasford, lessee of the Lyceum and a large number of provincial music halls, is arranging to give a series of special performances in each of his establishments in aid of those dependent on the men who have been killed in the Courrière disaster. The first performance will be given at the Paris Alhambra during next week, and is intended to relieve the immediate wants of the wives and families. The towns in which concerts are to be arranged under Mr. Barrasford's direction are Brighton, Leeds, Glasgow, Liverpool, Newcastle, and London.

Miss Margaret Ashton has this week been appearing at Brighton, where she has met with extremely cordial receptions. The popular American soprano has introduced Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford's new song "Redbreast," which is proving a very great success. Miss Ashton leaves England next week for a three-weeks' sea-voyage by order of her medical adviser.

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £5 from Mr. Geo. Bell as part proceeds of the Charity Carnival at Sunderland; also the sum of £2 11s. 8d. as the result of Mr. Fred Miller's efforts with his pence box collections at the Canterbury during the last month. Mr. Wilkie Bard has also collected the following amounts at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol: J. M. Chute, £2 2s.; Fred Griffiths, £1 1s.; Wilkie Bard, 10s. 6d.; Rich and Rich, 10s.; Arnott Edgar, 5s.; Gertrude Bawn, 1s.; Arthur Bawn, 1s; and Mr. F. Dunlop has forwarded 2s. The president and committee thank these ladies and gentlemen for their kind efforts on behalf of the fund, which is in very straitened circumstances.

At the last meeting the committee investigated 32 applications for relief, and granted assistance in 31 instances.

Mr. R. H. Douglass is undoubtedly one of England's premier monologists, and has a most original system of working. He keeps a complete diary, and by a close study of it never repeats the same monologue twice at any particular hall. Among the happy sketches of which Mr. Douglass is the author and performer may be mentioned "A Pantomime in Ten Minutes," "Merry Margate," "Where to go," "A Comic Opera Rehearsal," "How to Write a Song," "In Court," "Popping the Question," "Geography made Easy," and 410 others equally amusing. Coming of an old theatrical family, his earliest recollections are of the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch. He played juvenile parts in several Adelphi dramas and other pieces until a dozen years ago, when he introduced a one-man act at the halls. Since then he has travelled extensively, having visited Australia and South Africa quite recently. Mr. Douglass has gained success in pantomime, having played in and produced half-a-dozen shows for Mr. Robert Arthur.

Few singers of her sex have achieved the triumphs in modern variety accorded to Josephine Sabel. She scored a great triumph in Paris partly because she knows how to sing "coon" songs in French. She conceived the idea of doing so last spring while at the Ambassadeurs, on the Champs-Elysées. Now, translating "coon" songs into French is no easy task, despite the fact that Miss Sabel is as much at home in that language as in English. To make it a success, she had to call to her assistance the veteran leader at the Ambassadeurs, and together they put into colloquial Parisian quite a number of songs. The results were far beyond her expectations, as the numbers made a hit from the start. Miss Sabel is booked for three hundred weeks ahead, which will carry her well through 1909.

Mr. George Robey, who has proved such a success in the Royal Court (Liverpool) pantomime Queen of Hearts, had a benefit on the evening of the 9th inst., when, at the fall of the curtain, a handsome rose bowl was presented to him by the council of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala Committee in recognition of his pantomime stay in the city. It may be mentioned that the medical and theatrical charities have greatly benefited by Mr. Robey's action, a football match, which he inaugurated, alone bringing in £405, the whole of the printing, advertising, and other expenses of the event—a somewhat large sum—being defrayed by the popular comedian. Liverpool will not soon forget him.

Mr. W. W. Rutherford, M.P., in the presence of the audience, handed Mr. Robey the gift, other gentlemen present being Mr. Lewis Peake (chairman of the Gala Committee), Mr. Tom Bush (treasurer), and Mr. T. S. Ashmole (secretary). Mrs. Robey, who appeared with her husband in a laughable sketch, received from the council a beautifully mounted umbrella.

On Saturday the following artists left Southampton on the "Walmer Castle" to fulfil engagements in Johannesburg and Cape Town:—Meier and Mora, Claire Romaine, Edgar Romaine, Douglas and Ford, and Mountford and Walsh. Amongst the artists who arrived home on the same day were Frank Coyne, Carrie Joy, Morcashani, the Alaskas, Mudge and Morton, and Papinta.

Little Thomas, the well-known corner-man of the Mohawk-Moore and Burgess Minstrels, holds his annual Bohemian concert on Monday evening at Stanley Hall, Junction-road, N. The veteran will be supported by a host of well-known artists, including some of his old comrades.

Mr. Charles E. Colby, who appeared some years ago at the Tivoli and other London halls in a ventriloquial entertainment, that was much brightened by the performance of Miss Allie Way (recently deceased), has taken a new partner, Miss Lily E. May, and the pair are appearing with considerable success on the Moss tour.

Chirgwin is such a popular favourite at the Palace that one is not in the least surprised to hear that Mr. Alfred Butt has lengthened his present engagement to a period of nine weeks. The famous White-eyed Kaffir's solo on his one-stringed fiddle is now much enhanced in tone and artistic expression by a funnel attachment, similar to that of the Stroh violin.

The native choir from Jamaica, consisting of ten coloured ladies and gentlemen, who were specially brought from the West Indies by Sir Alfred L. Jones, K.C.M.G., finished their engagement at the Pier Pavilion, New Brighton, on Saturday to record business. Next week the choir appear at Port Sunlight, in the immense auditorium belonging to Mr. W. H. Lever, M.P., after which the combination is booked at West Kirby, Hoylake, Aintree, Liverpool, Birkenhead, Ilfracombe, Tynemouth, Blackpool, and many other places.

The numerous friends of Miss Maud Mortimer will be pleased to hear she is rapidly recovering from her recent operation. She finds it impossible to reply to all kind enquirers, but assures them she is none the less grateful.

The practice of giving extra turn matinées at the halls was first introduced by Mr. Fred Baugh at the Foresters' some three years ago. The idea has since taken root with other managements.

How loops are sometimes looped was described by a lady looper to Mr. Justice Darling in the Court of King's Bench on Tuesday. She essayed the feat and fell, being badly injured. Alleging that Madame Madeline Barber, who employed her, had been guilty of negligence, she brought an action against her to recover damages.

In summing-up, Mr. Justice Darling said that in this highly civilised country we allowed girls to engage in such dangerous performances as "looping the loop." Occasionally they fractured their skulls, and then one was told it was a necessary feature of this engaging performance. It was not the defendant's fault that this sort of thing was permitted; she was not, so far as they knew, a member of the County Council or of the Home Office, but an entertainer, who was not responsible for accidents, unless she failed to take proper precautions. If she did fail, she was responsible civilly, and if people allowed this kind of risky entertainment and did not take proper precautions they might be held responsible criminally. The jury found that the apparatus was defective, and assessed the damages at £250.

Zarmah, who is appearing this week at the Empire, York, with his zoological statuary of wild animals, has secured a long engagement abroad, and has only two vacant dates previous to leaving England on April 10.—Mr. Henry Carlton, comedian, who is at present fulfilling his third engagement with Mr. Wm. B. Broadhead, Manchester, has received a tempting offer for a short tour in New Zealand, and will probably leave for Wellington at the end of February, next year.—Ferris and Farnley open at the Hippodrome, Huddersfield, on Monday, and return to town on April 2 at the Middlesex.

Dr. Walford Bodie, who is repeating his former triumphs at the Tivoli, Leeds, is now in his second week, and creating a furore nightly, the large building being packed to the doors nightly. His marvellous electrical experiments are the wonder of all beholders. On Wednesday afternoon at the matinée about 200 medical students came in force, armed with sticks, with the intention of upsetting the programme, but the Doctor, who is nothing if not up to date, was prepared for them, having arranged for a large number of plain-clothes police. When the students commenced shouting on the Doctor making his appearance, the inspector and his men charged them. They offered a stout resistance, but in about seven minutes all the ringleaders and others were ejected from the building. Dr. Bodie then proceeded with his demonstration, introducing over fifty cases cured by him last year.

A recent number of the New York Music Trades Review contains the following item of news:—"Francis, Day, and Hunter, the Anglo-American publishing house, have completed the removal of their offices from 3-5, East 28th Street to 15, West 30th Street, New York, where they will occupy the entire third floor. The new premises are admirable in every way, in point of location being just off Broadway, and are cosy and comfortable and inviting. The furnishings and decorations are in excellent taste, and the American branch of this old-established English house is now prepared in every way for handling their growing business à la mode. The roomy, well-lighted private office of Frederick Day, general manager, is a welcome change to his former quarters, and he is now enabled to arrange his various branches on a systematic working basis. Sam Gross will manage the professional department; William Francis, jun., the printing department; and F. C. Collinge, the band and orchestra department. The firm will represent Francis, Day, and Hunter's English catalogue, excepting such numbers as are now controlled under preceding contracts. Their own publications already include meritorious issues, and they will publish the Orchestral Journal for high-class music only, the 'Shoo-fly' goods being excluded."

So impressed was Mr. Thomas Barrasford with the excellence of the dancing of the winners of the Street-dancing Competition at the Lyceum last week, that he engaged the first three competitors to appear at that house during this week. The latest additions to the variety stage are a Covent Garden porter named George Cairns, Tom Lynch, and a little girl named Eva Holmes. Dancing to the strains of a barrel-organ, all three made a successful professional début.

Mr. Frank Lynne, who opened at Proctor's Theatre, New York, on March 5, made an instantaneous success with his quaint comedy songs. He has already been inundated with offers to remain in the States, but, owing to his English bookings, he will be compelled to return here in April. He is, however, busy booking return dates for next year through his American agent, Mr. H. B. Marinelli.

Mr. George Gray desires to warn both music hall and theatrical proprietors and managers against an unscrupulous person who is using his name for the purpose of obtaining tickets.

The Fisher Pocket Opera Company, appearing at the Empress, Brixton, this week, has given the greatest delight to Brixtonian lovers of high-class music. The performance is a distinct change from the sameness which often prevails at the best of our variety theatres. The Opera Company has been re-booked for the Moss-Stoll tour next year, and fulfils two special weeks with this management at the Coliseum, Glasgow, opening on Monday next.

Mr. Lyndon Greenwood, the new manager of the Islington Empire, has had a varied experience in the theatrical world. While in his teens he was bitten with stage fever, and salved his ambition by "fretting" for many hours on the boards. Then he became a manager, and in 1899 went in that capacity with Mr. W. J. Holloway (known as the Irving of South Africa) to that country on tour. On returning to England he secured an engagement with Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, and directed her provincial tours for two years. His first experience in the halls was as acting-manager of the popular establishment in Upper-street. In this capacity he remained about a fortnight, and was then promoted by Mr. Walter Gibbons. The entrance to the Islington Empire has been recently refurnished.

Mr. Ryder Slone and Boy Glen have returned from Australia, per Britannia, after a seventeen weeks' successful engagement in Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide. Both artists were very successful, public and press being loud in praise. Mr. Slone makes the gratifying statement that Australians are very interested in the Old Country, the doings in the music-hall world especially. The popular comedian was, among other things, interviewed by a local paper on the barring clause. He had an interesting voyage out, the cutting up of a 40ft. whale by the propeller of the Ortova in the Red Sea being not the least exciting He also had the unique experience of seeing a bush fire and witnessing one of the greatest racing sights in the world—the Melbourne Cup.

A special matinée was given at the Holloway Empire on Thursday in aid of the Great Northern Central Hospital. The hon. secretary, Mr. H. Glenton-Kerr, in a short speech, said that the upkeep of the hospital amounted to £16,000 a year, and that, as only £1,600 had been subscribed during last year, it was necessary to arrange for a special matinée to wipe off some of the debt of last year. The proceeds of the performance were about £200. Among those who contributed to the entertainment were the Stavordale Quartette of instrumentalists, Mr. George Mozart, Mr. Phil Ray, and Mr. Harry Tomps (comedians), Miss Marie Collins, Rezene and Robini, Mr. W. W. Donovan (cornet solo), Mr. Charles Warner, Datas, the human encyclopædia, the one and only Chirgwin, Madge and Dolly McCalla (clever juveniles), Mr. R. H. Douglas, Mr. Mike Whallen, the original Sisters McNulty, Bonnie Goodwin and her piccaninnies, Professor Fuller's wonder "Astarte," Miss Mary Price-Owen (a charming elocutionist), Miss Rosie St. John and company in a scene from Shakespeare, and Miss Victoria Addison and company in the one-act play Mingled Threads. The Bioscope showed some special up-to-date pictures.

At the meeting of the International Artists' Lodge on Sunday at the Hotel Provence, Leicester-square, a letter was received from the London solicitor of the Lodge with reference to an appeal case. This matter was detailed by the President, and a discussion ensued thereon. The case was compared with others, the President putting an instance before the meeting:—Two members of the I.A.L. had a contract with a Continental theatre, and the agent who made that contract instructed the artists not to scratch out anything contained in it, as the manager was a decent man, and there would be no trouble with him. Some time later the artists received an offer for a South African engagement, and wrote to the Continental manager asking for a postponement of their contract. They received a communication from the agent saying that the manager was quite willing to grant a postponement if the artists would accept a later date at about half the salary and pay the agent about 10 per cent. on the original contract and 10 per cent. on the second contract. This the artists did not agree to, and wrote to the management, saying that they would fulfil their original date. Whereupon they received a wire from the management saying that their contract was cancelled, the real reason being that the manager had heard that a similar act was playing in an opposition house. Thus the artists lost their South African engagement (four to five months) and also the Continental one. Artists should be warned not to accept the cautions of agents, and to scratch out every objectionable clause, especially paragraph 7.

A member then related a case he had had with the same manager when he was forced to arbitrate with the latter, as he (the artist) had shown his contract to the agent, who had informed the manager that the artist was publishing it. In another instance the artist's engagement was cancelled after three days. The speaker then suggested that the Lodge should strongly reprehend such actions.

The President replied that the best weapon was publicity, and pointed out the danger incurred by performers in not striking out the two weeks' cancellation clause, explaining at the same time the obvious reasons why this clause is inserted by the managers. He also declared that the artist had not published his contract by showing it to the agent. The exigencies of his business demanded that he should show it to the agent so that the latter should know where and when the artist was engaged, in order to prevent useless offers from the same or too distant managers. At the same time he declared that an indiscriminate use of information imparted to the agent by artists could be regarded as a breach of faith.

Various other members related their experiences with regard to the cancellation clause, and a guest present remarked that often the artists themselves were at fault for the trouble they got into as they were not sufficiently alert and observant. The artists should try to be good business men as well as good artists. The President then explained in detail the construction and meaning of a contract. Questions were asked thereon, and the meeting then closed.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

The leading attraction at the Islington Empire this week is the farcical absurdity, The Bloomsbury Burglars, played by Mr. Lew Lake and company. The comic burglar is a well-known stage character, and no one is inclined to treat him very seriously. In the sketch just mentioned there are a couple of these gentry, and their doings on the occasion of their visit to a Bloomsbury flat are of such a comical character that the audience never cease laughing all the time that Jerry and his companion have possession of the stage. The sketch concludes in sensational fashion with a terrific fight on the house-tops between the two burglars and the police, two or three of whom are rendered hors de combat ere the desperadoes are captured.

Mr. George D'Albert is again seen at the hall with which he was at one time so closely associated as a leading member of the Mohawk Minstrels. Since that period Mr. D'Albert has developed into a versatile comedian, who is always well received at the variety theatres. He opens with a comic song, "She hasn't been the same girl since," and then assuming a frock-coat and a serious air, Mr. D'Albert sings a ballad, "The truth or a lie?" each verse of which tells a story that shows how in many cases a lie is quite excusable. Mr. D'Albert renders the song in such a style as to thoroughly impress the audience, and he is recalled with the utmost enthusiasm. The couple known as the Schaffers give a musical entertainment which presents some novel features. Made up as a clown, the gentleman plays a solo on the ocarina, and with the assistance of his lady partner extracts music from a number of disks which rapidly rotate and present the appearance of large sunflowers. Melodies on other strange instruments are also played, and finally the couple, with bells attached to head, arms, and legs, give a duet. Mr. Edwin Brett and Miss Emmeline Orford are seen in their bright little vaudeville, The Two Love Birds. In this they represent a city man and his wife, who plays the part of his lady typist. The sketch is enlivened by the introduction of songs; and in one of these they embody first a rollicking schoolboy and girl, then the same two young people when they have reached years of discretion, and finally they appear as an old grey-haired married couple who are "sweethearts still." That charming comedienne, Miss Amy Clevere, is one of the most attractive turns in the bill. She sings "I can't come out" in her usual fascinating style, and this is followed by her dainty song and dance, "My little Lulu." Miss Clevere is the nightly recipient of a most cordial welcome. Mr. Will Musgrove scores as a comedian with a couple of telling songs. Dressed as a big boy, he is specially successful with his ditty, "It's a good job I had mother with me." Mr. Will Goodwin continues to win applause with his popular song, "If those lips could only speak," in which the pathetic note is effectively touched. The Three Sisters Silcott sing with eminently satisfactory results, "Kiss me good-bye," and also do well with a vigorous song and dance of the coon type. Cline and Clark, black and white comedy artists, give an attractive exhibition of their abilities as singers and dancers; and a domestic subject, "The New Maid," a series of highly amusing pictures, is shown on the bioscope. Mr. Lyndon Greenwood, who has recently been appointed the manager here, is well qualified for the appointment by reason of his previous experience in connection with the management of theatrical companies. The orchestra is under the charge of Mr. A. Petersen, and the distinguishing feature of the overture, "Salut d'Amour," this week is a well-played 'cello solo.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

A bill of the usual excellence was submitted for the delectation of the patrons of this popular hall on the night of our visit, and the very large audience present gave voice to their entire satisfaction with the good fare set before them by loudly applauding each turn as it appeared. The unique feature of this week's programme is the appearance of the Russian giant, Machnow, who, from the height of his 9ft. 2½ins., gazes down on the audience with a benevolent expression on his countenance, and some little time is taken up by Machnow's walk round all parts of the house, where he is preceded by the popular and courteous manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen. Many of the audience appear to take pleasure in shaking hands with the giant, whose great height, handsome uniform, and quaint military salute make him a very striking figure.

Miss Madge Carlyle is a very charming vocalist, and sings her song, entitled "Just Idle Dreams," in very pleasing fashion. A gentleman and two ladies, billed as Alma, Abdullah, and La Superbe, present an entertainment of great beauty and brilliancy, entitled "In Electra's Bower," which consists of a pretty little story told in pantomime, of some excellent dancing by the three artists named, and of some of the most prominent features of the flying ballet. The stage is a picture of gorgeous coloring in electric lights. This turn is an unqualified success. Miss Ethel Ra Leslie next appears, and looks very pretty in her handsome dress of the powder period. She has a clear, sweet voice, and sings pleasantly—her rendering of "When Love Dies" is enthusiastically received. A bright little entertainment is contributed by Geoffreys and Benson, whose rehearsal of Romeo and Juliet for private theatricals evokes loud laughter. The gentleman wounds his wife's feelings by telling her that she cannot act. She retires, vowing revenge, and presently returns in the character of an Irish maid-of-all-work (with a dirty make-up), who so upsets her employer's sense of comfort and decorum that he is very glad to find that it is only his wife, who has assumed the character to prove her histrionic gifts. This trifle is admirably acted by both artists, and is called "Spoofed."

The Violas—or White Mahatmas—give a wonderful second-sight act; a clever equilibristic turn is provided by the Maningos, who are billed as the Pocket Equilibrists; Miss Josephine Sabel has a well-deserved popularity, and her reception is most flattering. She sings in her own inimitable style "A Gal from Dixie" and "A Bit of Blarney." The remarkably clever quartette of gymnasts the Four Skandias, are also on the programme. The performance concludes with some new and interesting pictures on the bioscope, those relating to Victor Hugo's story "Les Misérables" being good enough to make one wish for more. Those illustrating the football match between Woolwich Arsenal and Manchester United are received with enthusiasm. The pictures conclude with a comic series, entitled "That awful Mother-in-law." We must not omit a word of praise to the fine orchestra, so ably directed by Mr. Louis La Rondelle.

ROYAL ALBERT.

It must be a task of no little difficulty to cater for an audience mainly composed of working folk, for the programme must be good and the charge for admission moderate, the money at their disposal for amusement being very limited. That Mr. Charles Relf, the experienced proprietor of the comfortable and commodious Canning Town hall, accomplishes this is proved by the liberal patronage so long accorded the Royal Albert, and the satisfaction that is everywhere expressed. An item in the bill that always secures favour is the dramatic sketch; and an excellent specimen is The Soldier's Wife, the playlet for the current week, admirably presented by Mr. J. P. Dryden and his specially selected company, including the popular actor Mr. Algernon Syms. The names of the characters and their interpreters are not given on the programme; but the head of the combination gave an effective and finished portrayal of the second villain, Mr. Algernon Syms making a gallant and in every way satisfactory hero, Fred Lonsdale. The lady who represented "the soldier's wife" acted with sincerity and conviction; and all the other parts were ably undertaken, the comic rôle of the Irish sergeant being humorously played, and a very popular personage with the audience. The sketch, which was adequately staged, evidently gave entire satisfaction, the principals all being recalled at its conclusion.

Especially appreciated was the laughable interlude submitted by Lister, Dido, and Lister, a hard-working trio who impersonate a schoolmaster and his two incorrigible pupils. Absurdly funny are the replies given by the boys to questions in geography, arithmetic, &c., put them by their stern and spectacled tutor; the chastisement suffered by one of them especially making for mirth. One of the trio, in appearance and manner calling to mind a comedian of the front rank, is an eccentric of decided smartness and ability; and all three are to be commended for the brightness and humour of their turn, which concludes with an harmonious and loudly applauded rendering of "Excelsior." Singing and dancing of an acceptable nature are contributed by Stuart and Stuart, the gentleman of the duo being an expert acrobatic dancer, his lady partner, an accomplished and enthusiastic little lady, distinguishing herself by her rendering of a tuneful coon song and some clean high kicking, and an attractive and arduous exhibition of the "light fantastic." Miss Lillie Dresden was listened to with pleasure in her singing of the ballad "Always" and another pretty number, but was handicapped by a severe cold, which prevented her from giving a third selection, an attempt at which called forth sympathetic applause from the audience.

The New Recruit, the comedy gymnastic act of the Two Mezzettis, was responsible for some of the loudest laughter heard during the evening. Admiration was frequently expressed at the clean and expert manner in which the taller of the twain executed many difficult feats on the triple bars; and his partner, every whit as clever as a gymnast, supplied the comedy relief as the "new recruit," which, in this case, was real fun. Screams of merriment were the result of his many unsuccessful efforts to enter the "canteen"; and his antics throughout were always droll and unforced. The happily associated and ingenious couple were loudly acclaimed at the conclusion of their entertaining and skilful turn. An engaging and smart little comedienne, Miss Sadie Seymour, warbled in a bright and telling manner of "Polly Maloney," and also won appreciation for her song in praise of the "Work-girl." Her third selection, "The swellest swell coon in town," was accompanied by a dance of much dexterity and attractiveness, and pleased greatly. Other turns in Mr. Relf's varied programme are Syd Herman, the popular Hebrew comedian, in song and story; Frank Keegan and company, in their clever knockabout cycle act "Everyday Cyclists"; the Redferns (Ruby and Elsie), expert lady banjoists, vocalists, and dancers; Frank Ricksman, with the marvellous sound-magnifying "Columbia" cylinder graphophone; and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope. No more orderly audience could be found within the walls of a variety theatre than that under the watchful eye of the genial and tactful chairman, Mr. Walter Leaver; and the orchestra, under the careful direction of Mr. R. A. Howell, acquit themselves admirably

THE SOUTH LONDON.

The vast auditorium of the old-established hall in the London-road was chock-full on the occasion of a visit this week, when a huge audience was to be found deep in the enjoyment of the entertainment. There is certainly plenty to engage the attention in the programme presented by Mr. Frank Weeks, who, it is well to recall, was associated with the earliest days of the hall since the application there of the two-houses-a-night system. A whole show in itself might be presented by Boswell's Stage Circus, in which educated ponies, dogs, and donkeys figure in an extraordinary way. After a game of see-saw, indulged in by some pretty little ponies, a handsome chestnut is put through a liberty act, the graceful evolutions of which are heartily applauded. The introduction of a revolving table, on which a dog performs a hurdle act, is the cause of mirthful excitement, boys from the audience being invited to try their skill. Their frantic efforts to maintain their equilibrium on the swiftly careering surface are very droll, and the excitement is increased when the velocity of the movement sends them spinning to the ground. They are only saved from violent contact with the stage by a rope attached to their waist, but the boys, probably influenced by the prospect of money prizes for the most successful attempt, seem to enjoy the sensation, and the satisfaction it gives to the audience is unmistakable. A one-wheel omnibus and the vagaries of a cantankerous donkey also afford food for merriment, in which the whole audience continuously indulge.

One Billy Farrell, a coloured comedian who claims the distinction of having created the "cake-walk," is certainly, despite his stalwart figure, sufficiently light upon his feet for all purposes, as is agreeably evident in the neat dance with which he supplements his singing of a song of "Stella." Dryly humorous anecdotes, with many eccentricities of delivery, follow, and there is further cause for laughter in the refrain, "You don't need nothing for yer nerves," which is appropriately fitted to the words of a clever song. The first view of the funny features of Mr. Phil Ray is the signal for laughter, which is uncontrollable during his delivery of his stock of quaint patter. "Only seventeen," sung in his inimitable style, is Mr. Ray's one and only complete number, but his snatches of song, his mock recitations, and his indignation towards the cachinnating "Carrie" produce their customary effects.

New successes are introduced by Miss Daisy James, who sings "The shades of night began to fall," in which the embarrassments due to the dimness of eventide are amusingly detailed. "Don't take the trouble to call" is a song in which love's young dream is blighted by the ambiguous wording of a note which, innocent enough in itself, suggests indelicacy to the faithful swain. The refrain is set to a pretty tune, in which the audience were constrained to join heartily, and Miss James rendered the song with all her customary archness and vivacity. The Brontes are responsible for a great access of laughter in the duologue A Saucy Maid, in which a quaint slavey exacts a proposal of marriage from her young master by impersonating a music-hall star with whom he is in love. Mr. Bronte acts well as a smart young officer, and his partner does a neat transformation from a slavey to a serio. Dancing forms the feature of Forest and King's entertainment, some pretty evolutions being performed by a dainty maiden, while her companion evolves humour out of a series of acrobatic actions which are cleverly executed. Miss Bertha Winder, the youthful champion lady clog-dancer, gives finished specimens of her art; the melodious contralto of Miss Violet Elliott is heard in a cultivated rendering of "The Deathless Army"; and contributions to the programme are also made by Mr. Will Musgrave, comedian, and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, which reveals a funny picture of A Tramp's Dream.

MR. FRANK GERALD has almost entirely recovered from his recent accident, which occurred during his performance in Captain Starlight with his famous mare Wiapera. This week he has been gaily riding her as Dick Turpin, in The King's Highway.

DR. WALFORD BODIE
AND THE LEEDS STUDENTS.

THE DOCTOR TRIUMPHS.
REMARKABLE CURES.
A £1,000 CHALLENGE.

Dr. Bodie, the bloodless surgeon, had a very hearty reception at both "houses" last night at the Leeds Tivoli Music Hall, after the Majuba-like proceedings of the afternoon.

In his introductory remarks he said he had been warned that there was likely to be a demonstration that afternoon, the students having apparently been annoyed at the ejection of some of their number from the hall on the previous Wednesday afternoon for unseemly behaviour. The doctor expressed the opinion that the facts regarding the disturbance had been exaggerated. The outbreak, he said, was confined to one corner, and the young men, armed with sticks, were forcibly ejected by the police, whom he publicly complimented on the way in which they discharged their duties in the face of odds. Attempts were made, he understood from his manager and members of the staff, to insult the inspector and the men under his charge, and if the police did use the students a little bit roughly, they had been compelled to do so in self-defence.

MIGHT HAVE CAUSED PANIC.

He looked on the conduct of the students as a very serious offence in a packed hall. Had he not been able to keep cool the result might have been a serious panic, attended by loss of life. Their offence he considered as serious as that of a man shouting "Fire!" He hoped the magistrates would make an example of the ringleaders, and that no distinction would be made between these young "bloods" and persons in a lower scale socially. The disturbance lasted, he said, only a very few minutes, and afterwards the audience gave him a splendid reception. Furthermore, some of the students coming to blame stayed to praise after witnessing the performance, and behind the scenes shook hands with Dr. Bodie for his excellent work in curing paralysis.

£1,000 CHALLENGE.

Dr. Bodie's challenge of a thousand pounds, to be given to the Infirmary if a medical man or any other person can prove that he has not been successful in many instances in curing cases of paralysis sent away as incurable from the Infirmary and other institutions, is still open, but up to the present no one has come forward. The truth is that Dr. Bodie has living witnesses of his skill in Leeds to-day.

In response to a telephonic communication, a representative of the "Yorkshire Evening News" personally interrogated some of Dr. Bodie's "cures" between the two shows last night, and received ample confirmation of the genuineness of the art of bloodless surgery in the case of paralysed people. The cases investigated were operated upon by Dr. Bodie on his first visit to the Tivoli last year, and the patients in their gratitude were not slow (writes our representative) last night to point out how lasting the cures had been.

SOME CURES.

A little girl named Annie England, of Abbey-street, Kirkstall-road, skipped about the wings with the irons in her hand, as though she had never known what it was to be a cripple. She was paralysed for two years, and sent away from the Infirmary and the Dispensary as incurable. Dr. Bodie's treatment has restored her to health.

A remarkable cure was that of David Markson, of Stamford-street, ten years of age. He slept in his irons for three years, and had to stand to take his meals. He attended the Leeds Infirmary for three years. Coming under the influence of Dr. Bodie, little Markson had the joy last Guy Fawkes Day of throwing his crutches on the bonfire.

A girl named Schneider, living with her parents in Bell-street, another out-patient at Leeds Infirmary, was cured by Dr. Bodie, and her former supports were chopped up to make "piggies" for her brother.

A well-known newspaper lad named Edward Jackson, living in Ward's Fold, had a paralysed hand for years, but at the local Infirmary and the Women and Children's Hospital nothing effective could be done for him. Thanks to Dr. Bodie, he lifted in my presence last night a 56lb. weight with three fingers of the hand that was formerly paralysed.

Alice Maud Townsley, aged 14, of Mercy-street, Wellington-lane, wore double irons, and attended the Infirmary for seven years. She needs no irons now.

To see Violet Hurley, of Pemberton-street, Dewsbury-road, skip across the stage with a girl's rope, it seemed hard to realise that she had been paralysed for four years. But so she told me, and there was a world of gratitude in her eyes as she looked up at Dr. Bodie. She had also attended Leeds Infirmary.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

The last case investigated was perhaps the most remarkable. It was that of a young man named Arthur Pollard, of Kelsall-avenue, 20 years of age, who had been paralysed from birth in the vocal and other chords. Last Thursday night he underwent treatment at the hands of Dr. Bodie, and so successful was it that he ejaculated quite clearly, "Are we downhearted?" With the exception of a little nervous twitching at the mouth at starting, Pollard's articulation is now perfect.

These were but a sample of the cases I saw around me.—Extract from the Leeds Evening News, March 15, 1906.

LA BELLE ATALANTA, having finished an exceptionally prosperous tour of forty weeks in the United States, will arrive in Liverpool on Saturday, opening shortly at the London Pavilion.

THE PARAGON.

We have heard a good deal of the absurdities of woman's suffrage as exhibited recently outside the Prime Minister's residence, but it seems to be left to the George Power company to give us a demonstration of the practical application of this much-debated system. Here we see one result of woman's suffrage from the point of view of the household. We are introduced to a lady who rules her husband in much the same way that naughty children are ruled. This husband attends to the washing while his masterful spouse, dressed in the latest style, watches on, and indulges in caustic comments and occasional chastisement. Another female friend takes the hint, and endeavours to treat her husband in similar fashion. The little sketch is most farcical, and is played in the liveliest possible manner. Mr. Mike Whallen, who is described as the pacha of many tales, is immensely droll with his Irishisms, and he is as popular as ever with his funny anecdotes. Another prominent feature of the programme is the turn of Mr. Harry Lauder, who, as usual, with his whimsical Scots patter and singing, provokes intense merriment. He first entertains the house with his song, "I love a lassie," the chorus of which is heartily followed by the gallery. Upon his second appearance he gives us an idea of what it means to be "fou." Tightly clutching a property rooster and an umbrella, he staggers about the stage, and then proceeds to explain his condition in a highly comical recital of adventures among bibulous pals. Finally, he falls back helpless upon a couch, amid a perfect outburst of laughter and applause.

Sterling and Love have a remarkably original and clever act. The gentleman is an accomplished instrumentalist, and the lady possesses a capital voice. Apparently—on the stage at least—they are man and wife—and a curious domestic situation arises owing to the former objecting to his wife's vocalism, and the lady disliking his brass music. But the quarrel is of the pleasantest description, and the act, which is the outcome, is a most delightful one. The lady renders in enchanting style several ditties, her "I love you dearly" and "Soldier boys" being specially praiseworthy. As to the gentleman, in his performances on the post-horn, cornet, and drum he displays considerable skill. That athletic couple, Kelly and Gillette, give an excellent account of themselves both on the springing billiard-table and off. Particularly smart is the double somersaulting in the air by the "tramp," but, really, there is not a dull moment all the time these admirable grotesque gymnasts are upon the stage. Little Cliff makes himself a great favourite with his quaint rendering of "Good-bye, Mr. W.," and his wonderful dancing brings him unlimited applause. Nothing but commendation can be bestowed upon his terpsichorean efforts, which are quite of the nature of feats. Rita and Roma submit a humorous entertainment, which is keenly appreciated. Their duets go exceedingly well, especially that entitled "Mr. Montague." Miss Lucy Weston is a sweet singer and dainty dancer, and the Lurins (Frank and Alice) provide an agreeable show in their "Abode of Love" item. Charming Miss Victoria Monks entrances everybody with her exquisite vocalisation of "There is only one I love" and "Ain't yer gwine to say a-doo?" Both the melodies are of the catchy order, and this, combined with Miss Monks' distinctive characterisation, make them exceptionally attractive.

The Redferns excel as banjoists, vocalists, and dancers. Very acceptable is their instrumentalisation and singing of "If I'm to be your Cherokee." Farcical comedy is a line of business in which the Three Prestons distinguish themselves. The act is full of ridiculous antics and sayings, and very energetic they are in bringing out the amusing points in the turn. To say that the Prestons are uproariously funny is to give but a slight idea of their mirth-compelling qualities. Two more instrumentalists enter the field in the persons of the Leslie Brothers. First we are treated to a smart performance on a cornet and another instrument of the horn order, then some absurd fingering of the pianoforte, afterwards a string of amusingly executed harmonies on the bassoon, the oboe, the trombone, and a number of tin cans, and finally ending in a few lines from the "Battle of the Boyne," played simply by the application of the hands to the face. The Leslie Brothers are astonishingly clever people. Yukio Tani is here once more, and the youth of the East End once more cherish ideas of becoming learned in the science of Japanese wrestling. The conditions under which Mr. Tani issues his challenges are sufficiently well known as not to require recapitulation by us. Three bouts are announced, and the result in each is the same—so far as the actual victory is concerned. Mr. Tani's first and second opponents are defeated in less than two minutes, the third contestant showing better form, and keeping the battle up for six and a half minutes before being vanquished. A series of fine pictures depicting the Sultan of Morocco and his Army are shown by means of Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

FORESTERS'.

Mr. Lew Lake is still going strong with his "colossal comedy company of cunning conspirators and crafty coppers" in the sketch, entitled The Bloomsbury Burglars. Mr. Lake himself plays the part of Nobbler, in which his delightful farcical qualities find ample opportunities. Mr. Bob Morris is also extremely comical as the window-cleaner; and the absurd dignity of the flunkey is capitally sustained by Mr. Ernest Webb. Miss Kitty Wilmore is an amusing schemer in the rôle of Miss Edith Arlington, and the quieter character of the artist has an able interpreter in Mr. Harry Lavers. The sketch is crowded with quips and cranks and laughable antics, and is certain to hold the stage for some time to come. The Brothers Redmond submit a smart acrobatic act, which contains not a little of the funny element. The little scene, in which one tells the other, "Willie, come here," is extremely mirth-provoking, and the various feats of the lively couple are hugely appreciated, especially their knockabout business, which can always be relied upon to suit an East End audience. Miss Dorothy Veld, a comedienne of distinct merit, sings in most pleasing style her coon song, "Good night, Evangeline," and creates an excellent impression in the house.

When one witnesses what is called "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" cinematographically presented, one wonders why Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's famous work was not dealt with in this way before. However, the idea based, we presume, on the famous detective tales, has now been taken up by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux Company. The story we get is that of a millionaire's child being kidnapped by bandits, the tracing of that child by a detective, the capture of the latter by the pirates, and the saving of his life by the child itself. The pictures are most interesting and well-defined, and the film, which is a long one, should find great favour with music-hall habitués. We think, if it could be done, some very attractive scenes could be arranged more on the precise lines of Conan Doyle's life of Sherlock Holmes, a short résumé of the plot being given on the programme. Miss Florrie Beck, the talented comedienne and dancer, has a "way wid her," as the Irish would say, that at once makes things easy between her and her audience. She treats us to an enchanting bit of vocalism with her song "The way of the world," and her dancing compels one's admiration. Another lady who combines charm of manner and appearance with a capital voice is Miss Rose Elliott, whose interpretation of two songs, "Just the same" and "What's the good of worrying father?" forms an agreeable feature of the programme.

Mr. Edward Sillward and company are seen in their sketch, entitled Satan. From the name one might imagine that the lord of the lower regions figured prominently in the playlet. But that is not so. Satan is the nickname of a man-monkey, who in saving the life of a girl meets with his own death. The end is very pathetic, the character of the intelligent animal being played with a realistic touch by Mr. Sillward. This gentleman stands pre-eminent as an imitator of that animal which is the nearest approach to man in appearance, and whatever he does in this direction is always well done. Other sketch artists are Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene and company, who are presenting their dramatic trifle, His Birthday. A father and mother are waiting in expectation the arrival of their son, in honour of whose birthday they have prepared a banquet and arranged to entertain a party of friends. Suddenly a knock is heard at the door, and a clergyman enters to tell of the news of the death of the youth. The different parts are played in sympathetic manner, and the little piece holds one's attention from beginning to end. The whimsical George Brookes comes on the stage to sing his well-known and extremely popular "Fireman" song, and he makes a hit too with his second number, "Every day in the week," in which he humorously details various things that go on during each of the seven days.

THE GRANVILLE.

At the Granville Theatre of Varieties, Walham Green, a good all-round variety show is provided this week, with no particular "star" attraction, though such names as Arthur Rigby, Billy Williams, and Park's Eton Boys are safe to draw a good house. The Goldman, Holles company present the only sketch of the evening in their well-known musical mélange The Little Charwoman. The King is coming to a certain playhouse, when the dire news arrives that Miss Dolittle, the leading lady, has had a motor-car accident, and cannot appear. Hastily the manager and his factotum telephone all the place to try to secure a substitute, but there is not one available. Then Eliza Jenkins, "the little charwoman," steps into the breach, and offers to do the part, and so well does he acquit herself as flower girl, Dutch girl, a belle Americaine, and paper boy, that she is promptly engaged at a big salary as the "star" of the company. All work well, and with zest and ability, to make the sketch a popular success. Goodfellow and Gregson are a droll pair, and the man, with his quaint methods and up-to-date wheezes, and the girl, with her dainty dancing and bright, pert manner, gain a great success. Mr. Fred Elton comes out with flying colours in his musical sketch On Board an Ocean Liner. His songs, "There's only one way to go," sings with the words transposed to another tune, "How I sat on a tack" and "A visit to a music hall" are rendered with any amount of "go," and his turn is much appreciated. Mr. Will Poluski, jun., proves himself a droll comedian and dancer in his songs, "Hi-ti-ti iddy i" and a parody on one of Eugene Stratton's coon songs. The animated pictures by Vernon's Bioscope deal chiefly with the affairs of our friends across the Channel, and very amusing they are. "An Affair of Honour," "How Baby Caught Cold," "The Gaieties of Divorce," and "The Misadventures of a Hat" are all laughably illustrated.

Mr. Billy Williams is a comedian whose bright, breezy manner at once appeals to his audience, and his songs, "Johnny, put your trousers on," "I wouldn't wear another wooden leg for you," and "All coats look alike to me" meet with a rattling reception, and repeated encores greet his efforts. Miss Chummie la Mara sings in fine voice "Hurrah for the boys in blue" and "If the girl loves the fellow and the fellow loves the girl." Park's Eton Boys are a remarkably well-trained and sweet-voiced quintet, and their united rendering of "Excelsior" and the individual contributions of "Gweneviere," "Sweet Eileen," "Beware," and "The girl and the lazy coon" are most artistic and finished performances. Mr. Will Johnson, in "I know the way," and more especially in his song and patter descriptive of wooing and wedding, is immensely droll, and contrives to tickle the fancy of the audience throughout. Miss Lola Patey sings very prettily "Hush, don't wake the baby," and a yodelling song. Mr. Arthur Rigby gains many a laugh by his quaint disquisition on woman's rights, and in his ever-popular skit "The march of the married men" he causes roars of laughter and applause. Mr. Tatten Hall is a very capable comedian, and in his songs "How I went a-hunting" and "Bertie of Bond-street," who feels fearfully wicked when he's "once had a small lemonade," in which he has the valuable assistance of a young lady as barmaid is exceedingly droll and smart. Miss Alice Maple is a capital exponent of the calisthenic art, Pueblo and Cropp, are clever creole speciality artists, and Lachie Thompson's top-weights also do good service.

MARIE LOFTUS.

PHENOMENAL SUCCESS AT GRIMSBY.

Marie Loftus has appeared before Grimsby audiences before, but successful as she has been, she is proving even more popular this week at the Palace. For fully half-an-hour she remains on the platform, and everyone regrets when she leaves at the end of that time. She sings the old favourite, "He kissed me once, how ashamed I was," the story of a country wench's excursion to London, and the very funny song, "Imagination goes a long way." But her principal piece is the sketch, "Singers past and present," which explains itself. In cumbrous crinoline she sings an old-time song, in very juvenile costume she impersonates a child. In a smart frock of stars and stripes she gives a Yankee song, and in a staring costume of green and red she sings of Old Ireland. Her burlesque of a music hall nutshell drama is very funny. She comes on as the heroine, but, suddenly turns, and appears as the villain, with frock coat and top hat. As the dialogue becomes animated, the rapid changes effected by simply turning towards one side of the stage or the other become very amusing. At the conclusion she fell on the floor engaged in a fearful struggle to the death with herself. Her Indian song is very picturesque. She comes in from the back of the stage on a canoe, and sings and dances, and her assistant presents a lively Indian dance.—Grimsby Telegraph.

THE chief attractions this week in Hanley are Maarali at the Grand, and The Catch of the Season at the Theatre Royal. As one of the local managers wittily observed: "The Catch of the Season at one place, and the catch-as-catch-can of the season at the other."

MR. PETER CONROY, who was for nine years musical director at the Canterbury, has been appointed by Messrs. Abrahams to a similar position at the Queen's, Poplar, when it re-opens its doors at Easter. Mr. Conroy, by accepting office under the Abrahams régime, renews a very pleasant association that terminated nineteen years ago. His wide experience as a composer and conductor will be a guarantee of orchestral efficiency at the Queen's.

MR. PAT DOHERTY is by way of taking a trip to Boston and New York by a White Star liner on May 11 next, from Liverpool. The Irish M.P., like a true Irishman, is proud of being born on St. Patrick's Day, and one way he has of celebrating the anniversary is to send a cheque for the Music Hall Home Fund.

THE M.H.A.R. ASSOCIATION.

At the 454th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A., Mr. Charles Coborn occupied the chair, and those present included Mr. George Gray, Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. Bob Leonard, Mr. H. Griff, Mr. Charles Pastor, Mr. Harry Blake, Mr. Arthur Reece, Mr. Fred Russell, Mr. Jeff Vendome, and Mr. Charles McConnell, and Mr. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, some discussion rose on Rule 49 and its application to a certain case. The correspondence was then taken, and a letter read from Mr. Clemart, from Belfast, protesting against the retention of Mr. George Gray's cheque. The reading of the letter did not reveal any recognition of Mr. Gray's constant efforts to champion the cause of the artist, and to assist in the promotion of schemes intended for his benefit. The question arose of a change of agency at Maidstone and Coventry, and to the meeting were submitted the names of two gentlemen who would be willing to accept office if asked to do so. The sum received during the week was £59 6s. 6d.

The discussion concerning the retention or return of Mr. George Gray's cheque for £1000 was then resumed. It will be remembered that the question was considered at the meeting of the Association on Tuesday, Feb. 27, when Mr. Gray pointed out that, in view of the plebiscite taken on his scheme and the 600 favourable replies, he was of opinion that the matter was one for the Association as a body—in other words, that it should be dealt with at a general meeting. Mr. Gray urged a similar argument on Tuesday, when it was again pointed out to him that the question had been left with the executive committee. He asked for the reasons why the cheque was to be returned, and if his schemes for the philanthropic betterment of the Association were impracticable and impossible, how was it that several of them had been adopted by the Variety Artists' Federation? He complained of a certain statement which characterised his scheme as a mere electioneering circular.

Mr. Harry Blake said that the scheme as such was not impracticable, but it was so for them. Supposing that they were to use the £1000, and at the end of three years £500 was absorbed, there was no way shown of how to pay it back. As a matter of fact, it was out of the question for them to borrow any money.

Mr. Frank Gerald thought that 600 votes was a sufficiently strong mandate for the Association to take up Mr. Gray's scheme. The Variety Artists' Federation had adopted its main points, and that association was to be affiliated to every music-hall society in existence. With that hope before them, he thought that to refuse the cheque would be both unbusinesslike and most ungenerous, and would throw a doubt upon the genuineness of Mr. Gray's offer. He pleaded for the retention of the cheque a little longer.

Mr. Fred Russell thought that the adoption of Mr. Gray's scheme by the Association would make of it a Trades Union, and it might jeopardise the railway concession. It would be much better for a new society to take it up. At the same time he felt—and the members of that committee were almost entirely with him—that Mr. Gray was actuated solely by a desire to benefit that Association.

Eventually Mr. Harry Blake moved, and Mr. Bob Leonard seconded, the following resolution as amended by Mr. Fred Russell:—"That Mr. George Gray's cheque be returned to him with very hearty thanks for his generous offer, the committee being of opinion that it would be easier, safer, and better, for financial and administrative reasons, to carry out the majority of the proposals put forward in Mr. Gray's scheme through the medium of an independent society, such as the new Variety Artists' Federation." The resolution was carried.

A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the business of the meeting.

THE BARRING CLAUSE.

THE MOSS EMPIRES' REJOINDER.

The following is the official rejoinder of the Moss Empires and Associated Stoll Companies to the Variety Artists' Federation, which reached that body on Thursday:—

Re Paragraph 1.

Your mere statement that no sacrifice would be involved we cannot accept. It is not consistent with our knowledge of this business or your own views, as expressed in various parts of this discussion. To ask us to revert to methods in dealing with our artists which have worked so successfully in the evolution of the music halls from "pot-houses to palaces" is simply to ask us to maintain the barring clause in accordance with experience of our needs.

An indispensable condition of the development of the "palace" was the birth of the barring clause, and this condition cannot be abandoned without reversion to the "pot-house." Your desire to revert to such methods is forgetful of the salaries to artists that then prevailed. Even in the time of fairly developed "pot-houses" a programme of ten turns could be obtained for £31 that would now cost £262. These are actual figures. The older members amongst you will know this to be true. The younger members and those hailing from other countries may need the enlightenment to enable them to think twice before striving to pull down the "palace" for the "pot-house," even though the former should contain that dreadful barring clause.

Your assertion "that you are fully conversant that the barring clause is directed not so much against artists as against rival proprietors" indicates a very shallow view of the matter. Our barring clause is directed against neither artists nor rival proprietors, but is dictated by the public to ensure the sufficiency of exclusiveness and attractiveness in our programmes that will maintain a sufficiency of public patronage to keep our houses reasonably—not excessively—remunerative.

Your assertion that, by booking years ahead and then barring, we seek to make it impossible for the smaller proprietors to secure sufficiently attractive items to keep their halls open merely amounts to saying that you wish the attractive artists "played out" as quickly as possible by appearing more often in one town, and thus have the whole profession brought down to the level of those whom you, not very generously, imply are unattractive, which would starve the "palaces" through lack of attractiveness, either down to the erstwhile "pot-houses" or to utter extinction, so that even a worse condition than the dreaded "ousting of the smaller proprietor" might ensue—namely, the ousting of both the smaller and the larger. But the absurdity of the contention of any oustings in the operation of the present general conditions is shown in the fact that more artists are now finding employment at larger salaries than ever before.

An interesting commentary on the suggested iniquity of "syndicates booking years ahead" are the communications from both artists and agents, almost amounting to personal insults, when their desires for "return tours," or "full tours," or "tours in 1908, 1909, and 1910" are not complied with. Also when artists boldly advertise, as a great feather in their cap, that they have been booked for "three tours."

In reference to your "further observations on Paragraph 1," we regret "it is difficult" to follow our reasoning. It would be easy if you took a comprehensive view of both sides of the question. The fact that some performers suffer hardship and apply to your relief funds, from various causes, does not prove the barring clause responsible.

The closings of smaller halls, which you call "a calamity to the general body of the profession" are strangely few in places where we have theatres, and any such have been rather due to the great increase in artists' salaries than to other causes. To demonstrate how an artist may apply for relief, yet not be hampered by a barring clause, though "he wants work, he is willing to work, and he can have work," we cite an actual case of a comic singer, who, though in applying for an engagement stated that his wife and himself were on the point of starvation, refused an offer of £7 (greater than a "star's" salary in "pot-house" days) for the following week. He had the grace to write a more dignified letter a week or two afterwards expressing regret at not having accepted this offer.

It is regrettable that the week's work at Bolton in January, 1907, cannot be accepted owing to a barring clause, but no doubt between now and then the artist will arrange to play that week elsewhere, especially if he looks for his "offers" outside the radius barred instead of inside. Manchester is here instanced as unduly severe in its barring effects, yet instead of only the three or four halls instead of one—which earlier in this paragraph you reckon the ideal state of the relaxed barring clause—there are a dozen, though there used to be only two.

We fear it is you who misrepresent the figures. When we named 1,800 out of your 10,000 as the number barred by us, taking it for granted that you had some knowledge of the operation of the barring question, we thought you would know that we had stated the case against, not in favour of, ourselves. Any alteration of those figures must be to reduce, not increase, them. Artists on our tour at any given time may be barred, but that does not affect them, for they are actually working. Artists going over the tour take six months, more or less, to do it. Then they are free to go anywhere unless they hold a return contract. But 75 per cent. of those who are rebooked play the tour again in about a year—some less, some more—which makes the next tour start about six months later than the end of the prior tour, so that the bar affects them really no more than you admit it ought to in your relaxation proposal. It is, therefore, only the balance of about 25 per cent. of a year's bookings—that is, about 450 artists—who come under a more stringent bar, and these obviously have no need to do so unless it suits them at the time that they make the contract. To turn round a year later, and find or think they could have done better if they had not signed that contract, after having improved their position by the kudos of having it in their possession, is a course of conduct that is not considered reasonable by some artists at least, and certainly by all ordinary people.

As to the interval between the tours, those that are fortunate enough to be under the bar of the Adney Payne Syndicate are fortunate enough to be in possession of Adney Payne contracts, whilst those who are not have hundreds of places to go to without infringing our contracts. Artists might be instanced not able to give us more than nine weeks out of two years, but who, nevertheless, were not booked at any houses barred by our contracts.

Despite all the iniquities of the barring clause that have been flaunted before them, artists and agents for them are more anxious than ever to book ahead, and they know well that to book ahead there must be a barring clause, otherwise a manager can have no object whatever in so ensuring them future work; and they know, moreover, that if managers should not book ahead, thousands of artists would be left scrambling for engagements at short notice, with salaries reduced to dry-bread rates by competition among themselves; that they would have to live from hand to mouth, with nothing to look forward to, no savings from good times to tide over bad, no relief funds to apply to—truly a reversion to the "pot-house" days. Some artists vainly think that the competition amongst managers might save them from this outcome of not booking ahead, but no amount of competition among "pot-houses" had that effect until it took the form of booking ahead and barring. Then artists demanded higher pay for the exclusiveness of their services, managers paid it because such exclusiveness made the artists attractive, and then variety business began to sprout up out of the mud. It is from knowledge of inevitable reversion to such a state of things that managers with insight do not choose to take advantage of the great drop in salaries that would result were they to cease to book ahead. Much as they wish salaries lower, they do not wish them so low as freedom to perform anywhere kept them in days gone by, because standard requirements of "palace" and "pot-house" are different. It is true, as you remind us, we are "not by a very long way the only syndicate applying the barring clause," which only proves the truth of its necessity in general experience. But if, as you say, all the syndicates and larger and smaller tours bar artists, and yet are supplied with artists whilst still "the greater proportion" of artists are periodically thrown out of work, does not that merely prove the tumble down of salaries that would result from no booking ahead, and therefore no barring, or partial booking ahead and partial barring? for would not these "periodically out-of-works" then always be in competition (to take any salary offering) with the present in-works that could not then have been booked ahead? The revival of "pot-houses" would not help matters, for that would only regulate salaries (and, incidentally, performances) to the "pot-house" level. Your mere denial that the relaxation of the barring clause would result in the ousting of one section of the profession by the other section is not a disproof. It would either oust one section or reduce the whole, with the exception of an exceptionally talented few, to a state of precariousness they little dream of; whilst even that favoured few would find their popularity and prosperity short-lived unless they voluntarily barred themselves from premature return engagements, which several in our experience have had the good sense to do when, in an emergency, they were asked by us to return too soon.

Re Paragraph 2.

The amount of salaries paid to artists, the general cry against the increases raised by managers, and our individual experience all stigmatise as absurd the contention that the position of the artist has suffered deterioration. That every artist cannot have all he wants because there are other interests than his own in the variety world is no sign or proof of deterioration in his position. It is common in any calling.

Your arguments throughout are a plea for the few artists, but not for the many. If some artists could work more turns, and is prevented by his other engagements, some other artist gets the work. If one artist cannot accept an engagement that is offered, another artist can. If an artist cannot afford to bar himself from the prohibited radius (we know of ten miles, not of twenty) of large centres, or continuing open if the barring clause prevents artists from apearing in them?" The use is that, though the barred artists may not, the unbarred artists may appear in them. Here, again, you make it quite clear that you want some artists to get all the work and other artists to get none.

Re Paragraph 4.

There is nothing in the nature of a threat in stating a condition of a contract before it is entered into, as there is no compulsion on any artist to enter into any contract with any manager for a date ahead, and it is only in contracts for dates ahead that a barring clause can have effect. You misinterpret our attitude if you interpret it as in any way threatening. Our whole point is that you are mistaken in your view of the barring clause as a detriment instead of a help to the general prosperity of artists, agents, and managers, taken as a body, interested in the maintenance of variety business as a great industry above and beyond such level as that upon which individual interests may clash.

From this paragraph it is clear that you deprecate booking ahead. In your admission of the necessity of a modified barring clause you imply a necessity of booking ahead. In applications from artists generally and their agents angry letters almost demand engagements ahead! This contradictory position points indubitably to the fact that every special case must be decided as it arises, the two sides to each contract regulating it by their needs and judgment.

You say you cannot take our advice not to book ahead if you suffer from doing so, because other artists will take the engagements if you (or Brown) do not! Again you make it quite clear that you begrudge to some artists, desirous of them, engagements that you want yourselves, provided that you keep the power to take all the other work also.

Re Paragraph 5.

We believe our contention to be sound. It has been further dealt with above, in reply to your "palace" and "pot-house" paragraph. Our profits have not been reduced by any tightening of the barring clause. The barring clause has not been tightened. Our dividends would not be increased by allowing artists engaged ahead to appear at other houses running in the same town, whilst to do so would deprive of engagements other artists who now appear at those houses.

The artists, you say, has to sign an engagement ahead if he wants to work at all. But he at least has time to see that the salary is satisfactory. What if it were for an immediate date, and half-a-dozen other turns were tapping at the door for the engagement? What would be his condition then?

The concluding sentence of this paragraph of yours only indicates that you are really contending that the variety stage profession is overcrowded.

Re Paragraph 6.

Artists will certainly follow our advice not to enter in future into contracts which are a hardship, but they will not for that reason decline to enter into our contracts. This is proved by the eagerness with which our contracts are being solicited. Though it may be a difficult matter to satisfy everyone, it is a study of this management to give as much all-round satisfaction as possible. So much so that the acrimonious spirit displayed by you in this paragraph is not reflected in the conduct of the individual artists towards us.

Re Paragraph 7.

Your various references to law and legal proceedings indicate the same familiarity with exceptional cases and disregard of general principles that characterise your views upon the barring clause.

We contend that the granting of your request would not have the effect that you desire; that this effect can only be obtained by driving large numbers of artists out of the profession; that when such artists are driven out the business will starve for want of fresh talent; that, in fact, your expectations have grown beyond the scope of even the resources of the highly evolved "palaces" if you think that the artists on whom the management depend to keep them open can appear against them without doing them harm.

It is obviously untrue to say that this important matter has been treated by us in a casual manner. Whatever you desired to place on record, there are at least now on record some considerations on this subject that should give artists food for reflection that the barring clause cannot be trifled with, even though is be an occasional harship, lest such interference strike at a real cause of the material improvement in variety theatres, and bring about a wish that "well enough" had been let alone.

Let each artist, as each manager, consider what he is signing, and, when he has signed, stand by it.

For the rest, let every artist devot time and thought to his performance when he is off, as well as when he is on, the stage, and a good many who now pretend to suffer from the barring clause will soon find themselves on that eminence which you agree can be reached in spite of it, and from which its terrors may be looked upon with equanimity.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—This morning, after I had read your paper of last week, I went to my broker about some music hall shares of mine. He said, "I've been trying to sell, and I may be able to do so by negotiation. You know what that means. But dealers won't make newspaper prices. There's no demand; I can't sell my own shares." "Well," I said, "and no wonder. Have you read the correspondence concerning the barring clause?" Then the cat came out of the bag, for he replied: "Of course I have. There's a letter of mine, which I would not have written if there were a market. And you, and other shareholders, are so far to blame that you have been led by the nose to suit interests that batten upon you. Part of last year's diminished dividend at a certain hall was paid (£2,000 of it) from reserve fund; and the year before, by way of encouragement to shareholders, the directors of the same hall voted £500 as a solatium for the miseries of their management. This sort of dead-take-in will go on and prosper as long as shareholders put up with systematic clique combinations, aiming at, and securing, a feathering of nests from which the addled eggs are distributed." The correspondence of The Era is, to say the least of it, very instructive—especially so for shareholders. All of them who read can understand the trenchant reply of Mr. W. H. McCarthy. The case of the artists is, from every point of view but one, conclusive. Its language is as admirable as the facts and reasoning from them is convincing to everybody but directors. In this case, as in most others, how well it has been said that eloquence is in the audience. The utterance of the artists, if it had been accompanied by Apollo on his lyre, would not get a hand from any combination of proprietors. In February of last year, Mr. G. Bernard Shaw exposed in an able article of the Grand Review how theatres were worked, and his criticism also fits the bedecked bodies nourished at music halls at the expense of shareholders.—Yours faithfully,

A MUSIC HALL SHAREHOLDER.

THE Five Vernons, zylophone experts, arrive home from America in the middle of April. They write us from Denver, Colorado, that they have enjoyed their trip immensely. They have had some interesting experiences, and some exciting bear hunting amongst the Rocky Mountains in the neighbourhood of Denver which they will never forget. They played seven weeks in New York, also the Orpheum Circuit, the latter being a very comfortable engagement for English performers, and one which took them out to beautiful California. On this circuit they were with Arthur Prince and Miss Ida René.

ALLY SLOPER visited the Kilburn Empire and Theatre Royal on Friday, the 7th inst., to make a public presentation to Mr. Dave Hyman, the manager. There was a crowded and enthusiastic attendance.

MISS DOLLY HARMER has just secured from the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., a new song, entitled "Quality Corner," of which she intends making a big feature during her forthcoming engagements.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., has published a song, "I'm not going to say goodbye." This has an ear-haunting refrain, and should create a veritable furore. It has already been secured by the Misses Gladys Mavius, Ella Retford, and Nina Moore.

TERRIERS' DINNER AND BALL.

The above function, which took place on Sunday last at The Horns, Kennington, proved to be one of the most successful events ever given by this deservedly popular fraternity. At ten o'clock 144 Terriers, ladies, and friends sat down to dinner with Terrier H. Cory Woodrow in the chair, supported by President Jesse Sparrow. The tables were beautifully decorated, and with the charming colouring of the ladies' dresses the hall presented a very attractive appearance. After grace had been said the company did ample justice to the following menu, especially those who had been travelling all day, some Terriers coming two and three hundred miles rather than miss the affair:—

Consommé Julienne.
Mock Turtle.
Boiled Turbot. Sauce Hollandaise.
Roast Sirloin of Beef.
Horseradish.
Peas. Beans. Spinach.
Surrey Chicken en Casserole.
Chips. Salade.
Terriers' Pudding.
Bombe Glacé.
Dessert.

During the dinner the Chairman received and read the following telegrams:—From Cork: "Sorry absent; wish all present enjoy themselves. —George Preston." From Cardiff: "Hope the supper's good and the ball better. A howling time for all.—Barkingly yours, Abel, Welsh, Sarnthaler." From Littlehampton: "Success to the Terriers. Hope you have good gathering. Bow-wow.—Douglas White."

The health of "The King" having been drunk, the Chairman proposed prosperity to the Association, the toast being responded to by the President and the Secretary. Mr. Fred Neiman responded for "The Ladies," Mr. Frank Nilen for "The Visitors," and Messrs. Fred Ginnett, C. C. Bartram, Douglas Stuart, and Mr. Hoyle (L. and S.W.R.) replied respectively for the kindred Associations, The Rats, the Artisten Loge, and the M.H.A.R.A.

After the dinner the hall was cleared, and a photograph taken, then the company settled down to dancing. Mr. Leon Bassett's fine orchestra furnished an attractive programme of nineteen items, the proceedings not terminating till a very early hour. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gage, Mr. and Mrs. Neiman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lester, Mrs. Dan Leno and son, Mrs. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hutt, Mr. and Miss Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Conlin, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Messrs. Frank Weeks, G. P. R. Burgess, Griff, B. Whiteley, Leon Bassett, W. S. Bassett, Tom Packer, H. Searle, H. Busbridge, Sam Stockton, J. Traynor, Burt Shepard, R. Brinkley, Charles Pastor, Bros. Obo, W. Croxson, H. Adams, Joe Laurence, Spot, J. F. Lidle, F. Gee, L. Du Voison, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Aarons, Rupert Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Webb, Harry Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Benn, Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson, Mr. and Miss Ringham, Mr. and Mrs. C. Gardener, Mr. and Mrs. Baker, Miss Elsie Baker, Miss Flossie Gardener, Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Cook, Mrs. Dixon, Miss Ada Norman, Jack Moore, Charles Jerome, E. Johnson, Alec Davidson. Mr. Charles Garden ably officiated as M.C.; whilst Messrs. T. Packer, Will Johnson, B. Hutt, M. Ringham, and H. C. Woodrow lent valuable assistance as stewards. The catering was in the expert hands of Mr. F. Köhl.

MR. F. T. STUDD'S CONCERT.

Four hours of solid amusement were provided in the palatial King's Hall of the Holborn Restaurant on Monday, when Mr. F. T. Studd took his annual complimentary Bohemian concert, and was accorded most satisfactory support. Well-known names figured in a programme of more than a hundred items, among them being Little Thomas, the veteran Mohawk minstrel, who had a hearty welcome. He dilated in verse upon the virtues and vagaries of "Woman," and also sang "Some of Each," a concoction of genuinely comic rhymes, which created loud laughter, and won an enthusiastic demand for an encore. Mr. Walter Howard, son of another famous minstrel, lately dead, played a selection of airs on the banjo which gave great pleasure. Mr. Studd, himself a ventriloquist of considerable skill, was loudly acclaimed when he appeared midway in the programme in company with his old lady and gentleman, with whom he carried on one of those amusing disputes to which ventriloquial puppets are prone. Mr. Studd made his lady figure sing a song, in which he used a falsetto with great taste, the old gentleman also revealing the possession of a good tenor voice. Mr. Studd, who was heartily recalled, thanked the audience for patronising him so well on the occasion of his second big concert. The excellence of the artists who had appeared so far was undeniable, and he thought they were in for a very good evening, a prediction which, we may add, was thoroughly realised.

The programme was begun by the I.D.K. Minstrels, who gave a popular selection, and among the earlier turns was Mr. Clifton Barrett, who tendered a droll musical sketch called "Electionitis." Mr. Ronald Bagnall also performed at the piano, illustrating a love song with a number of popular choruses, well connected by "patter." Miss Eva Routledge sang a ballad in a rich contralto, and Miss May Haddan was heard with manifest pleasure in a song which revealed the possession of a cultivated soprano. The style of Mr. Harry Ford was neatly copied by Mr. Fred Wilson in "The Railway Porter"; Mr. Hickman Smith used a rich and mellow baritone voice with advantage in "Peg Away"; and Mr. Walter Fullerton caused roars of laughter in his description of a "Seaside Boarding House." Miss Dorothy Payn, who has an admirable delivery, told some funny stories, and gained great commendation for her imitations of animals, which, however, seemed to us to be a little overdone. Mr. Charles Conway gave imitations of widely-divergent characters under a felt hat, and revealed no little dramatic power in a representation of Svengali, from "Trilby," and in that of Fagin, from "Oliver Twist." Pictures from Dickens were also drawn by Mr. Reginald Prince, who gave an admirable impersonation of Uriah Heep from "David Copperfield," but was not quite so impressive as the burglarious Bill Sikes. A humorist of unmistakable ability was forthcoming in the person of Mr. George O'Hagan, who has a voice of far-reaching power and a style of uncommon drollery. He was irresistibly funny in "Poor Old Man," a song in which much depends on its rendering, and succeeded in making the audience very merry throughout. Miss Marie Westcott gave "The Magic Month of May" in cultured style; loud applause awaited Miss Edith Trew's singing of "Il bacio"; and Miss Gertrude Macaulay also won hearty commendation in a tuneful ballad. A travesty of a village concert was supplied by Mr. Chas. Lennox; a ventriloquial performance was submitted by Mr. Alan Stainer; Miss Norman Grant, a talented comedienne, secured unbounded applause for a clever act; Mr. Max Templeton was equally successful in a lightning sketch; the Grosvenor Orchestra gave a fine musical selection; and contributions to the programme were also made by Mr. Henry Stockwell, Miss Jessie Jolly, Miss Carmen Morena, Mr. Marco Delmar, Mr. Joseph Blascheck, Miss C. Lewisohn, the Stanford Quartet, and Mr. Herbert J. Collings. The chair was well and ably filled throughout the evening by Mr. T. Harrison Roberts, and the concert, part of the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the Illustrated Bits fund for the Balaclava heroes, was a gratifying success.

CHAT WITH MR. ALFRED CRUIKSHANK.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Mr. Alfred Cruikshank, who commenced his music-hall career some eight years ago, is a remarkably versatile artist. His act at present consists of jokes, comic songs, and pathetic ballads, and he plays his own accompaniment on the 'cello and banjo. He also composes most of his songs and melodies, nearly every one of which has attained considerable popularity. He has been rebooked wherever he has once appeared, and always holds a star position at the different halls in which he is announced to perform. Several offers for South Africa, Australia, and America have been made to him, but at the moment his home prospects are far too inviting for him to entertain proposals to leave England. He is booked "solid" up to the end of April, 1907, holding contracts for the best halls in London and the provinces, including a three months' engagement at the London Hippodrome, where he opens on Dec. 17.

Mr. Cruikshank tells us that he owes much of his success on the variety stage to his early training in the circuses. He was practically born and bred in the business. His father, the late Mr. W. C. Cruikshank, was a well-known circus jester, who worked most of the circuses in the last generation, including the celebrated Hengler's and Newsome's. The subject of this sketch was born in 1875, in Dundee, while his father was actually appearing at Newsome's Circus. His earliest appearance was as a child in a pantomime of Cinderella. In those days all the children of the members of a circus company used to take part in the productions for the purpose of gaining experience. Mr. Cruikshank's first act of any importance was a wire-walking one, which he did in connection with his two brothers, the trio forming the Cruikshank Family. Commencing by practising on a wire fixed across two chairs about a couple of feet from the ground, Mr. Cruikshank gradually became proficient in the art, which he performed, along with juggling tricks, till about sixteen or seventeen years of age. Having sustained several unfortunate injuries from falls—particularly a rather serious one in East London nearly twenty years ago—he left his line of business, for which, by the way he had no real liking, and determined to make a name as musical jester, as his father had done. Eventually he relinquished the wire and seceded from his brothers, who then became known as Zalva and Alva. His father had retired some years previously, and was keeping the Angel Gardens, Norwich, once a famous pleasure resort and gala ground.

Mr. Cruikshank's first start as a musical jester was made with George Ginnett's Circus, which he joined at a little town in Wales about fourteen years ago. He stayed with this circus two or three seasons, "tenting"; but, being ambitious, he moved from one management to another, and gradually attained the highest position it was possible to reach in his line as an all-round clown.

In regard to touring circus life, Mr. Cruikshank says: "You must be prepared to rough it a little; but it is a healthy vocation, and it certainly affords the sort of training to make a good artist. When 'tenting' you are invariably up at three and four o'clock in the morning, according to the distance you have to travel. Of course, as Miss Vesta Victoria sings, 'It's all right in the summertime—in the summertime it's lovely.' And this brings me to a rather amusing episode of our circus adventures. We found that one of the drawbacks of travelling without a caravan was the difficulty of securing suitable lodgings in the various places where we stopped, and one season my father decided to run his own caravan. During the time we were performing at Astley's Circus he bought a living waggon, a little prehistoric, perhaps, but suitable for our purpose none the less. Next he purchased a horse at the Elephant and Castle sale rooms. Now, every circus horse has a name, and as soon as our animal made its advent in the stables all the boys nicknamed it 'Narrow,' a title most appropriate to its appearance. One morning, with this trusty steed and the waggon, we started upon what proved to be a most eventful journey. We were loudly cheered upon our departure by the circus company, who no doubt envied our courage in setting forth upon a trip of forty miles borne not too swiftly along by the now notorious 'Narrow.' We had got about ten miles out of London when 'Narrow' went lame through a sand crack, spavin, greasy heel, or some other complication usually found in horses knocked down for seven pounds. As we passed through the villages small boys indulged in impertinent remarks. I tried to persuade father to abandon the journey, but he said that 'Narrow' would be all right when he got warmed to his work. By this time we were eighteen miles from London My mother was preparing dinner as we were going along, and we were to pull up at the roadside for our meal after ascending a steep hill which we perceived in front of us. We had never tested 'Narrow's' abilities as a hill-climber, so father put him at it pretty hard, while I ran behind to scotch up the wheel in case the animal stopped. Half-way up the incline 'Narrow' gave up work for that day, and commenced to jib and back furiously. The waggon was suddenly overturned on the hill, and when I rushed up to render what assistance I could there was a rare conglomeration of eatables which had been prepared for our dinner, household articles and smashed crockery piled around the two victims—my father and mother—inside the caravan. Luckily we were near a village, and procured assistance. Mother went to London by train, and father and I brought the wreckage back and sold it for one-fourth of its value. 'Narrow' was taken to the place from whence he came and sold for three pounds ten. After this experience we decided that it was better to take the lodgings offered in the villages and towns."

"FOR LIFE—AND AFTER."

BY GEORGE R. SIMS. LONDON: CHATTO AND WINDUS.

To the general public, Mr. George R. Sims is no doubt better known as a journalist and dramatist than as a novelist; but his fertile invention and ready pen have also been very successfully employed in this department of literature, as several works of fiction testify. His latest novel, "For Life—and After," is marked by all those qualities which one naturally expects to find in the author of such popular plays as The Lights o' London, The Romany Rye, and a score of others. An interesting and dramatic story is told with the skill of an experienced craftsman; and all the leading characters are carefully drawn and life-like. The novel opens with a murder committed at a riverside cottage at Henley. Strong circumstantial evidence points to a woman as the person guilty of the crime. She is tried, convicted, and sentenced to death; but there are circumstances in the case which have such weight with the authorities that the woman, Marion Grey, escapes the extreme penalty of the law, the sentence being commuted to penal servitude for life. After fifteen years of prison life the woman is set free, and the rest of the story relates principally to her efforts, with the assistance of a shrewd detective, to prove her innocence. It will be seen that the plot of the story recalls to mind one of the most painful and dramatic cases ever heard in a Court of law. In a book by "Dagonet" it would be curious if there was not a strong flavour of the humorous, and in the characters of Mr. and Mrs. Grimper, the proprietors of a puppet-show, there is a suggestion of the Jarvises in The Lights o' London. The following is a picture of the Grimpers at home:—

"When Grimper had finished his second cup of tea, he sat back in his easy-chair and watched his wife as she took the puppets of the Punch and Judy show from a box by her side, and, deftly removing their old garments, clothed them in the new, which she had at last found an opportunity of finishing.

"'There, Joe!' exclaimed Tilda; 'I think the family will look all the better for the change.'

"Joe Grimper looked at the array of puppets waiting for their new clothes, and exclaimed, with a grin—

"'It's a big family to clothe, Tilda; thank goodness it doesn't eat.'

"'What do you think of Joey?' said Mrs. Grimper, holding that ill-used comrade of Mr. Punch's up for Mr. Grimper's inspection.

"'Think of him? He won't know himself. He'll give himself airs, and want his part written up.'

"Mrs. Grimper laughed. 'Well, Joe,' she said, 'it was time they had new clothes. They were all right in the winter, but the sunshine has begun to show 'em up dreadful. They'd ha' looked shabby at a meeting of the unemployed, and we've got a Primrose League garden-party booked next week. They do look nice, Joe, don't they? I'm quite proud of 'em.'

"'So am I, my dear.'

"Joe Grimper rose and took the newly-dressed puppets up one by one, and expressed his admiration at his wife's skill. Joe always had the idea that his wife looked upon the puppets as her babies. Their happy married life had not been blessed with children, and Joe sometimes fancied that his loving, tender-hearted wife's maternal instinct, denied its natural outlet, had solaced itself in her affection for these little creatures of paint and wood, who had been associated with their joys and sorrows through the whole of their married life."

A QUESTION OF TITLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I see by The Era that a song is published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter entitled "Firefly." I used this title for a song I wrote and composed nearly twelve months ago, and Mr. J. F. Graham, of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, had it with a view to placing same in his pantomime, 1905-06. So if there is such a thing as retaining the right of a title of a song, that right belongs to me.—Yours faithfully,

F. WARDEN-REED.

Birmingham, March 15.

MR. WALTER MUNROE has once again scored with a typical Irish ditty, "Bridget MacCarthy," which he is singing nightly. This song, published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., should appeal to all lovers of Irish melody, which is generally "Moorish."

THE Alhambra will augment the present attractions of Parisiana on Monday by two bright new scenes of the Parisian boulevards as they exist to-day. Imitations of the boulevards are to be found at Brussels and Vienna; but the boulevard and the boulevardier are essentially Parisian, and Mr. Charles Wilson reveals a close acquaintance with them in these "extra editions." On the same evening Mr. Charles Urban, restless and indefatigable in his pursuit of novel subjects, will change the "Urbanora" programme to "In a Burmah teak forest," showing the marvellous feats performed by elephants before H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

MR. THOMAS BARRASFORD has offered the use of the Lyceum on a Sunday evening for the purpose of a conference between proprietors, managers, and artists, concerning the barring clause.

IT is Mr. Cecil—not Cyril—Kingsley who plays so capably the part of Billie in Madame Lingerie at the Palace. The music of this bright production is from the pens of Messrs. James Glover, Otto Cantor, and others.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, FEB. 6, 1906.—Messrs. Brough and Flemming inaugurated their 1906 season at the Criterion with Quality Street. Miss Beatrice Day gave a charming portraiture of the old maid, Susan Throssell; Miss Winifred Fraser was a bright, attractive Phœbe; and Mr. Robert Brough's Captain Brown was breezy without being boisterously obtrusive Miss Bessie Major was Patty, rustic, and redolent of hay-fields; Mr. Edgar Payne was the Irish recruiting sergeant; Mr. Carter Pickford a sufficiently conceited Ensign Blades; and Master J. Papps a fine specimen of the species "bad boy." Smaller but well-acted parts fell to Misses Emma Temple, Kate Gair, Mary Milward, and Gordon Lee. The manager is Mr. Allan Hamilton. The new scenery was by Mr. Harry Whaite.

THE Meynell and Gunn Strand Comedy Company, in its last week, experimented with There and Back, scoring an instant success. Mr. J. J. Dallas had a congenial part as Henry Lewson, and the sterling English comedian scored all through the piece. The marvellous mendacity and wondrous resourcefulness of the cornered excursionist created intense amusement. Miss Florence Lloyd—albeit, provided with a not over-prominent part—as Marie Antoinette Smith made herself the centre of every scene she appeared in. Miss Maud Chetwynd was delightfully full of life as Mrs. Lewson; and Miss Florence Redfern made an almost ingenue part of Mrs. Waring. A clever bit of character acting was Miss Norah Delaney's servant Jane; and in quite another direction Mr. Tom Cannam made a fine part of Robert, the Scotch waiter. Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu as William Waring, Mr. Johnson Weir as Uncle Grinling, and Mr. Gregar McMahon as Jock McCrae, were all equally good. The company goes next to Queensland, vid the Hunter River District.

MR. CHARLES HOLLOWAY concluded his Criterion season with a revival of The Two Little Vagabonds, in which Miss Beatrice Holloway repeated her previous success as Dick. To-morrow the company leaves for New Zealand.

"VERONIQUE" is Mr. J. C. Williamson's latest and greatest success. Crowded audiences applaud the pretty musical comedy. Miss Florence Young, Mr. George Lauri, Miss Blanche Thomas, Mr. Haigh Jackson, Mr. W. S. Percy, and the rest of the company are all well received.

"SINBAD THE SAILOR" is running to splendid business, and Mr. Anderson will keep it on the Royal stage until the 16th, after which it will give place to La Fille Du Tambour Major. Apropos this opera, I met in Sydney yesterday Miss Minnie Hope, the Claudine of the original Australian production in 1881.

THE TIVOLI has a new sensation in the bicycle turn of Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, certainly the best of its kind ever engaged by Mr. Harry Rickards. The result is wonderful business, in spite of the hot weather. Mlle. Ada Cerito, another importation, gripped public favour with both hands, her songs being loudly cheered. The Sisters Warner also had a favourable reception; and the Jackson Family repeated their wonted successes. Baby Watson is a veritable mite—a real baby, with old-fashioned quaintness. The Scottish Meisters, Leeds and Lemar, Post Mason, Olive Lenton, and the Cathedral Choir are all here.

THE URBANORA BIOSCOPE.—Mr. Rickards's venture at the Queen's Hall is going well, Miss Hilda Lane's capital singing, and Messrs. Rochefort and Hart's songs, adding to the attractiveness of the show.

MELBOURNE, FEB. 6, '06.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson). — There are no signs of falling off in the attendances which nightly assemble to witness the production of the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, Utopia, Limited. On Saturday evening another excellent audience heartily enjoyed the quaint humour and fascinating music of the piece. Next Saturday evening Patience will be revived for a short season.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—The stirring story of Western life, Sunday, drew an immense audience to this theatre on Saturday evening. Sunday is the character in which Miss Tittell Brune first captivated the hearts of Melbourne playgoers, and, in consequence, the audience were most demonstrative in their applause when this clever little lady made her re-appearance in the part. Her acting throughout was delightfully fresh and natural. Of the four foster-parents, Mr. J. B. Atholwood's Davy stands out, being especially good, and showing careful attention to detail, both as regards dialect and costume. Mr. Dudley was well placed as Lively; while Mr. Harcourt and Mr. Hastings were seen to advantage in the characters of Towser and Jacky. Miss Vaughan invested the part of Mrs. Naresby with a quiet dignity and sweetness which won all hearts. Miss Ferguson as the nun was again on the side of the angels. The brothers, Colonel and Arthur Brinthorpe, were ably portrayed by Messrs. Redgrave and Mervale. Sunday will run for two weeks only, La Tosca being in active preparation.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—The already strong programme presented to patrons of this theatre was further strengthened on Saturday evening by the Eight English Primroses, who provided the sensation of the evening, entitled "Danse des jambes en l'air." There is nothing at all objectionable about the performance, which was loudly applauded. Mr. Arthur Albert appeared in two new songs; Grimmins and Gore gave a laughable sketch; while the numerous other artists contributed interesting numbers.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

At Messrs. Hancock's Winter Gardens, Plymouth, this week, a boxing contest is nightly in progress, which is proving most attractive in the garrison town.

Oxford May Fair takes place on May 3 in the Cattle Market-place. Among the attractions will be John Jennings's steam gallopers and those of James Jennings, Buckland's steam circus, and Dolloway's roundabouts. There are plenty of swings, cokernut sheets, shooting saloons, and throwing games, but not many side-shows.

The fairs ahead for next week are Gomersal Feast, Upper Ottery, Okehampton, Retford, Clitheroe, Heywood (Lancs.), Leigh (Dorset), and Odiham; in Scotland, Dumfries and Galashiels; and in Wales, Corwen.

With Gomersal, the Yorkshire round of spring fixtures commences. The population itself is some 16,000, but it is in the heart of a teeming industrial district, and is within five miles of Bradford. It is admirably served by the London and North-Western Railway, and, granting fine weather, gives an excellent start to the Yorkshire round. Okehampton is twenty-five miles from Exeter, has a population of 3,000, and is situated on the London and South-Western Railway. It enjoys privileges under several old charters, one being granted by James I., another by Charles II.; but it is now incorporated under the Municipal Acts. General markets are held every Saturday, and great markets once a month.

Retford, a market town in Notts., has a station on the Great Northern and Great Central systems. There are 4,000 inhabitants, and a large outlying agricultural district, whose busy workers frequent Retford for market and pleasure purposes. There are considerable paper mills, iron foundries, and rubber works. The market day is Saturday, and the market inspector is Mr. R. Gibson, the Town Hall. Clitheroe, a municipal borough and market town in Lancashire, is a centre of the now flourishing cotton industry, and there are also paper mills and limestone quarries. It is twenty-five miles from Manchester, and is well served by the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway. The market day is Saturday, and the superintendent of markets, to whom all applications for ground should be made, is Mr. R. Hartley.

A capital spring fair round, under the management of Mr. Wm. Mitchell, begins at Heywood Mid-Lent fair, dated for the 23rd, with the following fixtures:—Castleton, on the 30th to April 3; Accrington, April 5-10; Tyldesley, April 20-24; St. Helens, May 4-15; Ashton-in-Makerfield and Wigan Carnival to finish the round.

Showmen should make a note of John Collins's advertisement with regard to his spring fair round, the big Easter fair fixture at Queen's-road, Manchester, and the numerous fairs on his list.

It is with the greatest possible satisfaction that we inform our readers of the settlement by friendly negotiations of the matters in dispute between the Corporation of Pontefract and the Showmen's Guild. It will be remembered that the Corporation sought powers of a very comprehensive character, under which the business of showmen would have been subjected to restrictions and limitations at the option of the local authority. Amongst other things, they might fix the hours during which the fair might remain open, and by building clauses, vexatiously interfere with the erection of booths or stalls, and they sought powers to impose a penalty of £20, and a daily penalty not exceeding £5, against anyone exhibiting a show or portable entertainment on any land within the borough without the licence of the Corporation. These matters cut at the very root of the liberties and business privileges of travelling showmen, and it was determined to oppose the Bill with all the forces at the command of the Showmen's Guild.

Following the usual procedure, negotiations were opened with the Corporation, and at the same time the right of appeal to Parliament was safeguarded by the lodging of the necessary petition against the Bill. It is only fair to the Corporation of Pontefract to state that, through its courteous town clerk (Mr. W. Haddock), every disposition was shown to understand the showmen's case against the Bill, and the Guild executive officials dealing with the matter had every confidence that a workable understanding would be arrived at.

At a conference, in which the Parliamentary agent, F. Millar, Esq., T. Watson Wright, Esq. (Guild solicitor), and the Rev. T. Horne, took part, the various clauses affecting the show business in the Pontefract Bill were thoroughly discussed and a decision arrived at, which was communicated through the town clerk to the Parliamentary Committee of the Corporation of Pontefract. The following is the official reply:—

BOROUGH OF PONTEFRACT.
Town Clerk's Office, Pontefract.
March 12, 1906.

Pontefract Corporation Bill.

Dear Sir,—Referring to your letter of the 2nd inst., my Council are willing to accept the amendments suggested on behalf of your clients, and I hereby undertake to give effect to the same.—Yours faithfully,

W. Haddock.

T. Watson Wright, Esq., Solicitor, Leicester.

The petition against the Bill, signed by George Sanger (president), W. Clark (vice-president), and T. Hurst (secretary of the Showmen's Guild), will now be withdrawn, and, as we have before intimated, all parties concerned are to be congratulated on the settlement of the matters in dispute, and that great credit is due to the officials, both of the Corporation and the Guild.

The shows and roundabouts at Bury fair were of the usual high-class character, headed by Colonel Clark's electric Coliseum of varieties and animated photography; Haydon's temple of mystery and magic, the second sight experts; Braham's trained birds and lady conjurer, White's and Vesti's novelty booths, and the fine art galleries of Messrs. W. Wright and R. Warwick. There were also the motor-cars of John Green, W. Mitchell, jun., and J. Conolley; the overboat sets of W. Shuttleworth, R. Starkie, and Mrs. J. Cornwell; the miniature horses of Messrs. J. Sharpe, J. D. Humphrey, and J. Starkie. The flying ostrich sets of Mrs. Holden and Ben Mitchell; steam yachts by Wm. Mitchell, sen., and Mrs. Holden; H. Williams's steam railway; and whirling-the-whirl sets, by Messrs. E. Holland and F. Harrison; park swings by W. Shuttleworth. The Winchester ranges and rifle saloons were provided by Messrs. George Cornwell, H. Williams, J. D. Humphrey, J. Sharpe, Mrs. Cottam, and Mrs. John Cornwell. Cokers, throwing games, doll frames, &c., were furnished by Messrs. Forshaw, Jewell, Deeks, C. Horton, E. Horton, J. White, Crick, Lorenzo, Slater, Shorrocks, Boss Jones, Lynch, Finn, Redfern, Marsh, Street, and others.

The South Shore Fairground, Blackpool, was the theme of an animated discussion at a recent meeting of the Corporation of "Showland-by-the-Sea." The Building Plans Committee, in their report, had approved of some show and stall erections on the fairground. Councillor Dickinson, in moving that the resolution be referred back to the committee, said the erections of tea-houses and stalls, and a "haunted cabin" were nothing more nor less than about two dozen wooden buildings. The extension of the fair ground, he said, was highly detrimental to the interest of South Shore and the town generally, and there had been numerous complaints from residents in the neighbourhood. The people who were developing the fair ground, he continued, had no interest in the welfare of the town, and did not care a penny what happened. Alderman Ward seconded the referring back of the plans, and Alderman Howarth protested that, if a large ratepayer wished to put up a wooden building, even for a greenhouse, the Building Plans Committee objected to it.

Alderman Fish, as a resident of South Shore, expressed pleasure at the proposed improvements, and said he was surprised that anyone should object to them. Councillor Eaves strongly criticised the attitude of those opposed to the improvement, and classed them as interested parties. The fair ground was a boon to the town, and more especially to the tramways. A few years ago the place was a disgrace, but now it had been transformed, and even the borough surveyor had admitted enjoying himself down there with his children.

Councillor Hampson thought that if they lent their assistance to the scheme, instead of harassing it, the fair ground would grow into a sort of Earl's Court. The Mayor observed that no Sunday trading would be allowed. Alderman Heap regretted that the proposal did not provide a proper permanent solution to the building difficulty. Councillor Bamber said he had visited the fair ground, and enjoyed it thoroughly. He had ridden on the "razzle-dazzle," and he added, amidst a roar of laughter, "I believe I went on twice, because I had a free pass." The amendment to refer the matter back was defeated by a large majority.

We print the County Council regulations affecting the open-air amusements of the people on the open spaces under the control of the Council. Without venturing on any detailed comment, we feel that the question of prohibiting living-vans is one of paramount importance, and that all the rest of the restrictions must stand or fall on this main issue.

GAMES AND RECREATIONS AT BANK HOLIDAY TIMES

AT

Blackheath, Hampstead Heath, and Wormwood Scrubs.

The Council has made arrangements that, under the regulations set out below, the following facilities for public enjoyment may be provided at certain open spaces at holiday times, viz.:—

(a) Roundabouts on Wormwood Scrubs and Blackheath. [Only such persons as are able to satisfy the chief officer of the Parks Department that they own one or more roundabouts will be allowed to participate in the allotment of licences for roundabouts.]
(b) Swings, cocoanut shies, and shows on Hampstead Heath, Wormwood Scrubs, and Blackheath.
(c) Refreshment tents, vans, stalls, and barrows on Hampstead Heath, Wormwood Scrubs, and Blackheath (see No. 12).
(d) Ponies and asses on Wormwood Scrubs.

1.—Persons who may desire to occupy sites at holiday times at the open spaces on which the amusements, etc., set out above are allowed, are required to make application for the necessary licence on or before 1st January in each year.

2.—The licences shall be revocable at any time at the pleasure of the Council, and shall extend to the following days only:—Good Friday and Saturday following, Easter Monday, Whit Monday, August Bank-holiday, and Boxing Day.

3.—All applicants shall be required to pay the licence fee at the time of making application.

4.—In the event of there being more applicants as regards any place than there are sites to allot, allotment shall be by ballot, and the fees paid shall be returned to those applicants who have not been successful in the ballot.

5.—All persons who may receive licences for any shows will be required to submit to the chief officer of the Parks Department for approval any advertisements or pictures which they desire to exhibit in connection with their shows.

6.—The fee payable for a licence in each case is as follows:—

Steam roundabout	£10 0 0
The charge for use of a steam roundabout is not to exceed 2d. for each person for a period of five minutes.
Set of swings (six boats)	£1 10 0
Set of swings (nine boats) ..	2 0 0
The charge for the use of a swing is not to exceed 1d. for each person for a period of five minutes.
Cock-shy space, about ten yards in width	£1 0 0
Refreshment tent	1 10 0
Refreshment van or stall, exceeding 7ft. by 3ft.	1 0 0
Show, for 25 square yards	1 0 0
.. each extra square yard ..	0 0 6
The area to be occupied by any one show, other than a wild beast show, must not exceed 100 square yards.
Ponies or asses .. .. each	£0 10 0
Refreshment barrows or small stall	free.
Skipping-rope and board	0 10 0

7.—Persons who may desire to take refreshment barrows not having more than two wheels on to Hampstead Heath, Wormwood Scrubs, or Blackheath must apply for a space to be allotted and must obtain a licence, for which no charge will be made. Dimensions of barrows or stalls must be given in the application.

8.—Persons who may receive licences for shows will be required to cover with sheets the sites allotted to them. [This order relates to shows such as bottle-breaking, etc., from which the refuse is to be collected in sheets so as not to prove a source of danger to the public.]

9.—The position of each stand shall be marked on a plan and numbered, and the numbers shall be attached to the licences for the year.

10.—The use of living vans is prohibited.

11.—No gutting, cleaning, washing, or cooking of fish is allowed.

12.—No tea or coffee stalls are allowed at Wormwood Scrubs.

13.—No person will be allowed more than one licence of the same kind.

14.—The licences shall apply only to the place for which they are issued.

15.—No licence shall be transferable. Any licence which is used by any other person than the one to whom it is issued will be cancelled.

16.—Vans, carts, and barrows of every description must be kept within the area indicated in the licence.

17.—Any licence for the use of a steam whistle, organ, or like instrument is granted only on the understanding that the licensee agrees to discontinue the use of such instrument if called upon by the chief officer of the Parks Department so to do.

G. L. Gomme,
Clerk of the Council.

County Hall, Spring-gardens, S.W.,
31*st October*, 1905.

The lad James, who was so seriously hurt in the circus accident at Abertillery last week, succumbed to his injuries, and at the inquest the jury returned a verdict of accidental death, no blame being attached to anyone. The funeral took place on Monday last. Two beautiful wreaths were sent—one from the proprietor, Alexandra, and one from the artists, a sympathetic act, which was much appreciated. A representative of the circus attended the funeral.

At Jennings' Theatre, Redditch, this week, the following plays have been performed: My Sweetheart, Called Back, Leah, the Forsaken, The Factory Girl, In the Silent Night, and Dick Whittington.

Horse sales during the month are fixed for the following dates:—March 21, sale of twelve cart horses and colts, at Haselton, Andoversford; March 22, horse sale at Cheltenham; March 23, sale of twelve horses at Ipsley Court, Redditch; March 21, 22, and 23, sale of 600 horses at Wrexham; March 29, sale of 250 horses at Worcester Cattle Market.

Among coming events are flower shows at Cookhill, Astwood Bank, on Aug. 8, at Winchcombe on Aug. 15, at Northleach on Aug. 23, and the Oxfordshire Agricultural Show at Henley-on-Thames on May 16 and 17.

The whole body of travelling show people will hear with profound regret of the death at Ystalafera, Wales, on Sunday last, of Mrs. Henry Scard, the wife of the well-known proprietor of Wadbrook's Electrograph, and daughter of the founder of the show. Mrs. Scard has been in failing health for some time past; but it was not anticipated that her complaint was beyond the reach of medical skill, particularly as the patient was in the prime of life, and had always enjoyed, until a year ago, the best of health. Our sincerest condolences to Mr. Scard and his family in their time of sad bereavement.

Wisbech, a very important fixture on the East Anglian round, had a very large aggregation of shows and machine novelties. George Kemp's theatre of cinématograph varieties, and similar concerns by Messrs. G. T. Tuby and E. Farrer, Prince Samouda with temple of magic, Harry Hughes with Olympian games, Westrop with fine art show, and Mrs. Hughes' Academy Royal constituted the exhibition list. G. T. Tuby's two sets—the switchback gondolas and the motor-cars—P. Collins, Ltd., combined set, Waddington's big boats, and Mrs. Wyatt's park swings made up the machine novelties. The shooting concerns were provided by Messrs. Cheeseman, R. Holmes, Cooper, Westrop, and Parkins. The cokers and throwing games were by Mrs. Roberts and other caterers.

In the Daily Mail, under date March 10, we are informed that a tax of £5 on all travelling vans used as dwellings is proposed by the Tonbridge Rural Council. We are also told that the Council is seeking the assistance of other local authorities with a view to restricting the number of these itinerant residences. The movement is also said to have received considerable support in the County of Kent.

The attention of the Showmen's Guild has been drawn to this paragraph by a London showman, who says "that the movement must be very strongly opposed by van-dwellers, not only because of the injustice of the proposed tax, but also because it would give them the right to refuse to tax them if they thought fit, which seems to me to be the object of these enemies of van-dwellers." Whilst we are not disposed to attach very serious importance to the taxation proposals of an insignificant rural council, our correspondent may rest assured that the further progress of this movement will be vigilantly watched and keenly opposed by the Executive of the Guild.

Subscriptions to the Showmen's Guild, 1906, include those of George Polkey, Ltd. (Birmingham), £2 2s.; J. Hardman, Esq. (Preston), £1 1s.; Lorenzo Crick, Esq., 5s.

EALING HIPPODROME.

This week, as usual, a full budget of fun and melody is presented to the patrons of the Ealing Hippodrome. The audience here is always an appreciative one, and on the night of our visit Mr. Harry Maynard had been but a few moments upon the stage ere smiles, rapidly developing into laughter, came from all parts of the house. The artist's first number, "When men are all gone what dreadful things will happen," caused much merriment, the ladies being particularly interested. A second song, "John Bull has a handy card to play," was given by Mr. Maynard in naval uniform, and he certainly made a handsome son of the sea. Edmond T. Sayers and company, in their farcical episode, A Glass of Port, exploit some amusing situations. Two husbands exchanging mutual confidences, unwittingly betray to their better-halves, carefully hidden behind a screen, secrets which had better have been concealed. The briskly played Episode evokes considerable merriment. A military sketch never fails to elicit the sympathetic attention of an English audience, and Mr. George Leyton's scena, The Boys of the Chelsea School, is both musical and martial. Trooper John Ford lends most able support, and a distant chorus by twenty-four boys is exceptionally well rendered. The appearance of the veteran trooper, now in his seventy-third year, but showing still the upright figure of the soldier, is the signal for loud and continuous applause, and copies of the song, sold for his benefit, find many purchasers among the audience.

The Sisters Leigh, vocalists and speciality dancers, submit a neat skipping-rope and tambourine dance, and their pas de trois is most spirited and effective. The Goldini Trio, announced as marvellous "carpet spinners and pot pourri acrobats," are responsible for some remarkable manipulation of what seems to be most unpromising material. Pieces of carpet, silk curtains, flags—all were laid under contribution by the lady and gentleman of the troupe, who also showed how cleverly twenty or thirty salvers could be kept spinning at one time. The youngest member of the trio displayed skill and grace in her pot pourri of acrobatics.

Mr. Charles Chard is always on good terms with the front of the house, the amusing way in which he apologises for everything he touches, or fancies he touches, being really funny. His song, "I have no reason to complain, I am a shareholder in the earth," is a mirth-provoking number, and well merits the hearty recall the artist invariably receives. Gladys Mavius failed to appear, but was replaced by Miss Gertie Gitana, a young lady gifted with a most charming personality and vocal talent, her voice being flexible and of extensive range. She is a capital Tyrolean singer and an excellent dancer.

The Britisher, a story of the late Filipino insurrection, is written by Leonard Mortimer, who himself fills the rôle of Pensive Pete. The playlet, which has been but recently reviewed in these columns, proves a most attractive feature of the entertainment. The exciting incidents are well depicted, the distant clatter of a cavalry regiment being highly realistic. The only scene is a beautiful picture by Messrs. Ryan and Charles Douglass, which forms a fine background to the varying episodes. Donna Inez Marcellino rescues Pete from impending death, and implores him to lead her Filipinos, but, failing to shake his fidelity, gives him unconditional liberty. The band, under the direction of Mr. W. Neale, adds materially to the success of the programme.

Mr. Charles F. Reed has been appointed by Mr. Walter Gibbons to succeed Mr. Harry Bawn in the general-management of the Gibbons circuit. Mr. Reed has had considerable business experience in the offices of Mr. Richard Warner, and is well known to the profession.

Carr and Rose open on Monday at the South London after six months' provincial tour with Catching the Catch of the Season, written by Mr. Walter Gilbert.—After a successful run of eleven weeks at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, the Burnells are appearing at the Empire, Liverpool.—Miss Queenie May, after her successful tour, opens at the Chelsea Palace on Monday, March 19.

Miss Lucy Weston on Monday produced at the Canterbury a quaint parody on "Comin' thro' the rye," from a milkmaid's point of view, which has been specially written for her by Mr. John P. Harrington.

"THE TROUBLES OF TUFFIN."

Farcical Extravaganza, in Two Acts and Eleven Scenes, written by Arthur Shirley, music by Walter Slaughter, lyrics by Roland Carse, dances by Will Bishop, produced at the Coliseum On Monday, March 12.

Geoffrey Tuffin	Mr. M. R. Morand
Mrs. Tuffin	Miss Millicent Marsden
Cormic	Miss Clarissa Talbot
Percy	Mr. Charles Trevor
Lewis & Margaret Ann	Mary and Ted Hopkins
Turnova and Gounda	Cheek and Jowl
Head Porter	Harry Gardner
Second Porter	F. Zeitz
Old Woman	L. Dawe
Cabby	J. Lomas
Sneak Thief	A. Black
The Inevitable Small Boy	Master Greig
Stage Manager at Eldorado	William Morgan
Call Boy at the Eldorado	A. White

Mr. Arthur Shirley, for his hundredth play, has very ingeniously provided the framework of a capital variety show at the Coliseum, and when the fun in The Troubles of Tuffin has been worked up a bit it should be a bright and exhilarating production. Geoffrey Tuffin is a country squire whose notions of sport apparently coincide with those of Nathaniel Winkle, who on a certain historic occasion was cautioned by Sam Weller as to his shooting or he would fill "that 'ere bag with one shot." Tuffin, at his country villa at Hockley-in-the-Hole, hears of the escape of a wild animal from a travelling menagerie. With his future son-in-law, Percy, he starts to shoot the beast. Instead of doing so he succeeds in killing a man, or imagines that he has. From this moment he is a prey to terror, and makes a hurried departure (in disguise) from his fancied pursuers. We meet him in the next scene, the booking-office of the North-East South-Western line, where he meets a theatrical manager in search of a lost pantomimic and acrobatic troupe, the Turnovas. Happy thought! He, with his family and friends, will pretend to be the missing artists. He actually rehearses at the Eldorado, and in the last scene appears as Nero in Mr. Chris. Davis's parody of Mr. Tree's production at His Majesty's. The part is played by Mr. M. R. Morand, a capital comedian, whose comic display of terror in the scene at the railway station is a quaint incident in the extravaganza. His performance in the travesty which concludes the excellent entertainment has likewise much improved, and he has become quite a persona grata at the beautiful house in St. Martin's-lane. And while speaking of his droll conception of the universal genius of the Roman Empire, we must not omit to praise the charm and sly humour of Miss Millie Hylton's Poppœa.

As we have said, The Troubles of Tuffin quite fulfils its purpose as the framework of a variety show, and at the railway station we have some boisterous fun of the harlequinade variety, followed by a really capitally-written concerted number, "A porter's lot is not a happy one," to which quite a Gilbertian touch is given by Mr. Roland Carse, the lyric writer of the establishment. The melody, by Mr. Walter Slaughter, is also exceedingly catchy. Another variety turn in the Railway Station scene that makes a great hit is that submitted by Miss Belle Davis and her Pick-Chicks, whose display of buck-dancing is wonderfully clever. In the troupe is a diminutive mulatto comedian who is a perfect marvel as a bâton twister, and gains a most enthusiastic reception.

The cast of The Troubles of Tuffin has in Miss Millicent Marsden, who plays the rôle of Mrs. Tuffin, a capital actress and a charming singer, and her chances might be increased with advantage. Lewis and Margaret Ann, as the Welsh servants, have an original interlude of patter, in which they impersonate a comic courting couple, who are continually jangling. The turn, which is decidedly fresh and amusing, is concluded by the twain singing in praise of "the girls from Cardiff, Newport, and Swansea," to the famous tune of the "March of the Men of Harlech"; and the porters are most effectively played by Harry Gardner, F. Zeitz, and L. Dawe. A. White is an alert and clever acrobatic call-boy; Mr. William Morgan is duly fussy and splenetic as the stage-manager at the Eldorado; Mr. Charles Trevor is a characteristic Percy; and Miss Clarissa Talbot a fascinating Cormic.

A bright, particular star of the "varieties" is Mr. George Lashwood, who has just returned from a triumphant engagement in Birmingham. Mr. Lashwood has a special setting in which to sing his now celebrated song "My latch-key." As the intending Benedict, he enters the door of a luxuriously furnished apartment accompanied by a few friends, who with him have enjoyed the last night of his bachelorhood. Mr. Lashwood gives an excellent interpretation of the lament over the reveller's dumb friend, who may be said to be as true as steel. In a second number, "My best girl," Mr. Lashwood appears with a chorus of ladies, and his success is shared by a pretty little maiden, who impersonates the heroine of the song, and does a very charming cake-walk, which adds much to the delight with which the selection is received. Mr. Lashwood has undoubtedly made a hit.

The ten Loonies are responsible for the most laughable interlude in the entertainment, and their indescribably funny entertainment, which is chock-full of extravagant buffoonery, goes with a roar. Never were acrobatics and music more happily allied.

Mr. William Morgan, who created the part of the stage-manager at the Eldorado in The Troubles of Tuffin at the London Coliseum, was unable to appear on Tuesday through indisposition, and the ever-ready Mr. Marshall Moore, the Coliseum stage-director, took up the part at a few minutes' notice, and played it quite satisfactorily.

Miss Vesta Victoria is again making a great hit in the States, and the editions issued by Mr. Fred Day in New York of the popular lady's songs—notably Leigh and Pether's "Waiting at the Church" and Murray and Everard's "It's al right in the summer time"—are commanding extensive sales.

It is definitely settled that Miss Blanche Ring will sing "Is your mother in, Molly Malone?" in the musical play entitled His Majesty, about to be produced "across the pond." The song, which is published by Mr. Day, is already familiar to British audiences, thanks to the roguish drollery of Mr. Walter Munroe.

A meeting took place on March 5, in New York, of the principal American music publishers, Mr. Fred Day, of the Anglo-American publishing house of Francis, Day, and Hunter, being present. The object of the meeting was to discuss the fixing of a standard price for music.

Duncan and Morton have just concluded a ten-weeks' successful pantomime tour with Herbert Barrs' Cinderella, and are re-engaged at a big increase for 1906-7.

Mrs. George Thursby, of Thursby and Alexander, has undergone two operations—one very serious—but is progressing favourably. She is lying at the Cancer Hospital, Fulham-road.

Miss Gertie Gitana (known a year or two ago as Little Gitana, of "Dolly at Home" fame) is introducing to London audiences a new entertainment. She is due to appear on Monday at the Lyceum and Holborn Empire.

"THE PHANTOM FOOTPAD."

Sketch, written by Mark Melford, produced for the first time at the Bedford on Monday, March 12.

Father Quayle	Mr. Mark Melford
Sir George Corrie, Bart.	Mr. Benjeman
Lady Mercy	Mrs. Mark Melford
Roy	"Jackeydawra"

Mr. Mark Melford, who has happily recovered from his recent gun accident, has a fertile imagination, as has been proved again and again both in his theatrical farces and his music-hall sketches. In its day Turned Up, one of the most successful farcical comedies produced during the latter part of the nineteenth century, made thousands laugh; and we have had on the variety stage no more successful sketch than that really droll concoction entitled Between the Turns. It may, therefore, be truly said that Mr. Melford is an exceptional author, and he also possesses an exceptional talent for realising his own comic creations. He is responsible for nearly a half-hundred music-hall playlets, and so prolific is he in ideas, that it is fair to presume that one day he will produce his hundredth work.

His latest novelty, The Phantom Footpad, has been rejoicing the hearts of the good folks of Camden Town at that popular hall near the Cobden statue, which is known as the Bedford. In the piece named the clever author presents a psychological problem with quaint possibilities. The plot, briefly told, is as follows:—An absent-minded Roman Catholic priest, named Father Quayle, returning home late at night, is hustled in the darkness by a passing stranger. Immediately missing his watch from his pocket, the good father recalls the rumour of a reputed footpad, hurries back, and, overtaking the retreating man, claps his pipe-case to his head and demands the watch. In evident terror the supposed robber hands out the timepiece, and decamps. The Rev. Father arrives safely home, chuckling with satisfaction, only to find his own watch safe in his writing desk. The comic significance of this amusing error is deepened by the fact that the innocent, but terrorised, victim of the priest's imagination is discovered to be Sir George Corrie, who is engaged to Lady Mercy, the good father's ward. A very strange coincidence is that Mr. Melford's seemingly improbable story has been plagiarised by fact, and that a similar incident occurred in Chicago.

The sketch is exceedingly well acted, and should win a success wherever it is presented. Mr. Melford himself appears as the priest, Father Quayle, and acts in that airy, insouciant, quiet, but most effective style that has secured for him such an excellent reputation as a comedian. Aggressive humour is only too successful on the variety stage; but Mr. Melford is one of the brilliant exceptions, and his restrained method and clever accentuation by facial expression and pantomime of comic business are factors in his artistic equipment which never fail in their effect. Mrs. Melford makes a pretty and interesting ward as Lady Mercy, though she might be afforded greater opportunity. Mr. Benjeman as Sir George Corrie gives able support as the baronet who is taken for the footpad, and serves as an admirable foil to Mr. Melford. "Jackeydawra" is the fanciful name given to the young lady who plays the domestic Roy, and who displayed a considerable command of humour.

Among the most successful turns at the Bedford is Miss Katie Lawrence, a very popular artist with the North-West Londoners, who are delighted with her excellently written song, that is enriched with some telling political verses. Miss Lawrence meets with an ovation. Dolly and Madge McCalla, the two clever juveniles who have recently made such a hit as the Babes in the pantomime at the Camden Theatre, are meeting with hearty receptions nightly in their capital numbers "Carrie, from Camden Town," and "The Bamboo Bungalow." They are charming little girls, and dance very daintily. The Philippi Brothers present an amusing act, entitled Shunting; Miss Diana Hope and company are seen to advantage in The Doctor, and the programme also includes Mr. Gus Hindell and Ruffell's Bioscope, the latter a much-appreciated feature of Mr. B. P. Lucas's capital programme. Other turns announced are Flo Luck, Sisters Bartholomew, Will Percival, and the Arizonas. On Monday evening a remarkable performance was given by the Craytors, a combination of force representatives which gives excellent effect to the admirably illustrated adventures of an inebriated reveller before and behind the curtain of a music hall.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

KIMBERLEY, Feb. 19, '06.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire opera company finished up here on Saturday, entraining on Sunday at 1.30 a.m. for Bloemfontein, where they open the new theatre on Monday with The Mikado. During the week, Pinafore, The Pirates of Penzance, Princess Ida, The Gondoliers, and Patience have been staged, these popular works having been presented on a scale of magnificence and completeness hitherto unknown on the Diamond Fields. The houses, while not so large as the merits of the company deserved, have been extremely enthusiastic, double and triple encores having to be given. Mr. Fred Billington, who for twenty-five years has been playing "Barrington" parts with this company, has added fresh laurels to his reputation by his admirable work, his Pooh Bah and Wilfred Shadbolt being especially noteworthy performances. Mr. C. H. Workman, in Grossmith rôles, has evinced wonderful versatility and cleverness in his work, and is entitled to a very high place indeed in his profession. Mr. Albert Kavanagh, who has already visited these shores on two previous occasions, is another capable artist whose performances it is always a pleasure to witness. Mr. Pacie Ripple, well known in Australia and America, put in some good work in his various tenor parts, though obviously "off-colour." Mr. Reginald White and Mr. Leicester Tunks are also deserving of high commendation, being well worthy of their places in the present strong combination. Of the ladies, Miss Jessie Rose is facile princeps, her sweet singing and vivacious acting having made her a primo favourite here, as well as at home. Miss Nancie Freyne, the primâ donna, also scored, though greatly handicapped by reason of a cold. Miss Theresa Rassam handled the contralto parts with considerable cleverness, using her voice with fine effect. Miss Mabel Graham's work, too, is not without merit, her singing being particularly charming. As for the chorus, it would be impossible to praise their work too highly, which, with Mr. François Cellier conducting, will long afford pleasant recollections to the people of Kimberley

Hicks's Clerks will appear in their new production, A Day at the Seaside, on Monday next, at the Standard, Pimlico.—The Haverleys (American song illustrators) have just returned to town after a successful thirteen weeks' provincial tour, and commence their London engagements at the Surrey.—The Stuart Quartette, in their smart costumes and expert dances, are winning a gratifying success on the Moss tour.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅞; Canterbury, 1¼; Empire (15s. paid), 1¼; ditto (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pav. Ord., 4; ditto Pref., 4⅛; London Coliseum, 1; Metropolitan, ⅞; Moss Empire, 3⅜; ditto Pref., 3⅜; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 10s. 6d.; Tivoli, 5⅛; Varieties Consolidated Theatres, 15s.

"PROS." FROM THE PROVINCES.

The threatened invasion of London by variety artists from the country was accomplished at the Lyceum on Wednesday, when Mr. Thomas Barrasford redeemed his promise to give "latent talent" a chance to manifest itself in the sight of a town audience by devoting an afternoon to the endeavours of fifty artists new to the metropolis. The music-hall public was numerously represented in all parts of the house, and for full four hours, during which the entertainment was continued, were ever ready with appreciation and applause, that stimulant to artistic impulse which is of such importance in the making or marring of a performer. Some of the débutants failed to realise that what might be new in the provinces is often far from fresh in London, and to that illusion was in many cases due the destruction of long-cherished hopes and aspirations. There were frequent occasions when the selection submitted was of so indifferent a nature that the performer was subjected to the process of what is colloquially termed "guying," and, whenever that happened, the unceremonious descent of the curtain ruthlessly cut off any further effort. The experienced variety-goer could call to mind the appearance within the radius of many worse "turns" than some of those who faced the audience on Wednesday afternoon, but no great heights of talent were reached, and the position of London's stars remains as firmly fixed as ever.

First mention in the review of the entertainment is due to those of the higher order of merit, among whom may worthily be classed a young couple called Stirling and Cashem, who sang a duet accompanying themselves on the mandoline, and afterwards indulged in an interchange of topical conundrums. Both the young lady and her partner sing and dance well, but in the latter department the gentleman excels, and a specimen of the clog-dance with which he carried off the Championship honours was accorded an ovation. Favour was also won by Jack and May Mackenzie, who presented a sketch in which sentiment and comedy are agreeably combined. The little piece is in two scenes, and deals with marriage for love or riches. An impecunious brewer's clerk mistakes a young lady for an heiress and is himself taken for a millionaire. The pair get married, and the error is duly revealed, to the violent indignation of the lady, who proves a veritable Tartar; but affection ultimately prevails, and they agree to make the best of the match. The playlet was spiritedly acted, and the hard-working performers were heartily recalled. A praiseworthy feature of the afternoon was the intrepid trapeze performance of the Donnas Trio, one of whom sits on a chair balanced on the bar, meanwhile supporting one of his colleagues on the shoulder and another on his foot. Their novel tricks with a ladder on the trapeze are similarly marvellous, and the daring feats well deserved the praise accorded. The Cecilias played the xylophone and other instruments expertly; Miss Pattie Doole gave an artistic violin solo, which was rightly rewarded; and Mamie Cannon tendered imitations which revealed conspicuous talent. A meritorious performance at the piano was given by Rubenstein, and a quartet, whose name we were unable to catch, combined fun and melody, singing several concerted pieces tunefully. A hand-balancer, to whom was allotted the number belonging to another turn, did some skilful walking on his hands, going briskly up a flight of stairs by those means, and up to the back of a chair. He was heartily recalled, and in response did the world's record hand-jump, which consisted of a series of four springs from a height of about twelve feet. Miss Beatie Benson proved to be a dainty little singer and dancer, and won well-merited approval. A promising performance was also that of Miss Violet Alwynne, who appeared as a lady Hamlet, giving signs of elocutionary ability and no little dramatic skill in the Ghost scene, and afterwards recited a fisher-girl's description of a shipwreck off Swansea. Miss Nelly Doherty, who sang "Dreaming" in a powerful mezzo-soprano, with clear articulation, also figured among the favourites. An acrobatic performance of real excellence was given by Jules and Ferond; the Belmont troupe of cyclists appeared to advantage; and Miss Louie Luck, who has a good voice and vivacious style, was also entertaining.

Curious results were obtained by a gentleman named Quicko, who essayed to do a quick-change performance, appearing first in the character of John Bull, in which he sang a song, afterwards changing to that of a workman. He might have done very well but for an awkward accident with his costume, by which part of his attire as John Bull remained attached to his leg when it ought to have been removed. Mr. James Day elicited interest by stating that he was a postman from Birmingham, and offered a modest challenge of £1,000 to anyone who could perform his box-trick. After divesting himself of a pair of handcuffs and a "straight-jacket" behind a screen, he entered a wooden tube shaped like a pillar-box, the door of which was duly fastened. The curtain of the screen was quickly drawn, but an unfortunate hitch in the modus operandi militated against its complete success. A humorous view of "The Lifeboat," pictorially illustrated on a screen, was taken by the audience, who refused to give the reciter a hearing; and two young gentlemen who looked as if they intended to be knockabout comedians, had barely time to assert in song that they were "mashers and dashers" ere the gag was applied. Mr. Henry Nordblom and company appeared in a sketch of which the rendering of "Will o' the Wisp" was the only thing distinguishable; Monti Santos, a black-faced juggler who dealt deftly with hat, sponges, and umbrella, owed it manifestly to nervousness that he was not more successful; Mr. Box Rigby displayed some humour in a song with the refrain "He does keep looking at you"; and after some other turns, many of which appeared unannounced, the long afternoon was brought to a close. The experiment was an interesting one, and, besides serving as a partial solution of a question which has lately come into prominence, afforded fine sport to many of those present.

HARRY REYNOLDS' MINSTREL QUINTETTE

AT HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Especially enjoyable was the entertainment submitted by Harry Reynolds' American Minstrel Quintette, a smart troupe of "niggers" that speedily became favourites. One of the darkies gave a pleasing rendering of a pretty ballad, "When the fields are white with daisies," and the "bones" of the combination created loud laughter for a really funny rendering of the song "My Brother Joe," the laughing chorus being decidedly infectious. Numerous conundrums and humorous remarks also afforded amusement to the audience, who were especially lavish in their appreciation of the harmonious rendering by the quintette of a medley of old-time coon and other songs. Altogether a most successful interlude, and a pleasing variation from the usual music-hall turn.—The Era, March 10, 1906.

MR. ERNEST SHAND has just accepted from Messrs. John P Harrington and Jas. W. Tate a specially-written new comedy song, with the whimsical title, "Rum, ti, tum, and a tiddly um," which he will produce immediately at the Syndicate halls.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

LATENT TALENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Re the article appearing in your last week's issue anent "latent talent," your correspondent, who writes concerning so many foreign acts which are engaged at our music halls week after week, has certainly hit the right mark, and this is undoubtedly the vital point why so many of our English performers find it such an uphill struggle to get a living. With all due respect to Continental and foreign artists, why should they (the foreigners) be encouraged and brought to England to earn handsome salaries, whilst hundreds of really talented and clever English artists are not allowed the ghost of a chance to show their abilities, and to earn a fair living? Surely "English performers"—our own flesh and blood—should come first, and not be left out in the cold. At one of our leading provincial halls recently, out of a company of ten acts, eight out of the ten were Continental acts, the only two English performers on the bill being a comic singer and a serio-comic. One would not grumble at, say, one, or at the most two, acts on a programme being foreign turns, but when they monopolise practically the whole of the programme, surely the time has come for English artists to wake up and endeavour to try and remedy this state of affairs.

As one instance, what would our unemployed do, and say, were the London County Council to engage foreign drivers and conductors on our new electric tramcars? The whole nation would cry "Shame," and one dreads to think what the consequences would be; and if the music-hall-going public only knew how so many of our English artists are being ousted owing to so many foreign artists taking the bread out of the mouths of the English artists (keeping some of them month after month in a semi-state of starvation), I am sure they would not flock to our music halls like they do if they knew the real state of affairs. In every walk of life an Englishman is nearly always given first preference by an employer, and an English music-hall performer should be given the same chance.—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

DAVE WALLACE, Comedian.

324, Albany-road,
Camberwell, S.E., March 5, 1906.

SIR,—We have followed with interest the present discussion anent the lack of opportunity offered to variety aspirants to show what they can do with a view to engagements. Without entering into the merits or demerits of the question (and perhaps there is something to be said on both sides), we wish, respectfully, to draw the attention of the profession to the following proposition. After mature deliberation we have decided to give nine special "trial turn" performances in the following towns, viz.:—Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds, Glasgow, Nottingham, Birmingham, Cardiff (or Bristol), Dublin, and London, commencing the week after next in Liverpool, and continuing, one or two performances per week, until that list of towns is exhausted. To those performances we will invite managers, agents, and pressmen. The public will be admitted, and all the proceeds, after, of course, deducting expenses, will be handed to the professional charities. Those who desire to appear at these performances should at once apply to us for full particulars of dates and conditions. We also solicit the aid of a few experienced artists so that "bumper" houses may help on the charity funds. But the performances are primarily intended for the many who say they possess talent but cannot get a chance.

At those nine performances competent judges will pick out the best turns. Invitations will then be given to them to a grand "trial" matinée, to be held in London at the beginning of September in this year—provided, of course, they are not then in the happy condition of being fully booked as the result of their provincial trials. A London appearance, well advertised, is thus assured to the best talent.

Surely this covers the whole field! Here is a chance for the aspirant with talent, and a chance to add to the funds of our charities.

Yours faithfully,

DONALD'S AGENCY.

89, Victoria-street, Liverpool, March 14.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I noticed a letter in last week's issue signed by Charles Elton. I should like this gentleman to come to the Foresters and point out to me the "burly and pompous" manager who came up to him and asked him for a brandy and soda and a cigar.

I take it for granted that his letter refers to the Foresters' Thursday afternoon's matinée, where extra turns are put on, as no other hall in the East End has a matinée on Thursday.

I am certain if the curtain was rung down on the gentleman it was because his turn was unsuitable. The audience here are always exceedingly kind to any extra turn who shows any little sign of being an artist.—I am, yours faithfully,

FREDERIC BAUGH

FOOTBALL.

H. BELDING'S XI. v. EARLY CLOSERS' XI.

Played near Bristol on March 7. After the match an enjoyable smoking concert was arranged, the following contributing to the programme:—Miss Lillie Belding, Miss Ethel Bowman (violin solos), Harry Edwards (cornet solos), Alf. Mattock ('cello solos), Percy Hewlett (piccolo and oboe solos), Leonard Hamlin (harp solos), Harry Hare (piano solos, and selections on his Monarch gramophone), Ernie Belding, Syd. Carter, George Hedges, Jack Lewis, Sam Coombes, Tommy Bryan, and Harry Slade. Harry Hare presided at the piano. During the evening the Bijou Orchestra played selections from The Blue Moon, The Little Michus, and Il Trovatore. In the match the following were the teams:—

H. Belding's XI.: H. Belding (captain), goal; A. Hamlin and J. Lewis (backs); H. Slade, S. Carter, and A. Mattock, half-backs; E. Belding, H. Edwards, P. Hewlett, J. Aubrey, and P. Reardon, forwards.

Early Closers' XI.: E. Russell, goal; G. Hedges (captain) and W. Austin, backs; F. Hedges, W. Osborne, and H. Turner, half-backs; A. Rossiter, T. Bryan, S. Coombes, F. Jennings, and L. Hamlin, forwards.

Referee, J. Leonard. Linesmen, T. Willis and F. Thorne. Result: H. Belding's XI., nil; Early Closers' XI., 1 goal. T. Bryan scored for Bristol Early Closers.

MISS DAISY DORMER presented Messrs. Lawrance and Mellor's highly-popular song, "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you," published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., at the Palace Theatre, on Monday. Park's Eton Boys have been phenomenally successful with the same tuneful number.

DON JUAN CAICEDO, who has been scoring his customary success in Cuba, has just concluded an eight weeks' engagement there. He could not remain any longer, for Messrs. Thompson and Dundy, proprietors of the New York Hippodrome, cabled to him to return at once for the opening at Chicago of the Hippodrome company. He opened on Saturday, Feb. 24, and his wonderful wire act caused intense excitement, and created quite a furore.

ANOTHER'S CRIME.
A poor beggar gets no sympathy from the passers by. The mysterious stranger. The crime in the cottage. Unseen witnesses. The child will know the truth. The day after the crime. The inquest. Chase of the supposed murderer by the mounted and foot police and crowds of people up and down streets, over roofs, through woods, over fields and rivers. Run down at last. Overwhelming evidence. The trial. Scene in court. The real murderer denounced, and is carried off after terrific struggles. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

ROBBERS ROBBED.
While a shopkeeper is busily occupied a lady is putting into a satchel all the jewels she can purloin. Two other women in the shop notice her actions and, following her, they succeed in snatching the bag from her lap. While they are examining their spoil in a park it is stolen from them. The thief is captured, and the two women are about to claim the jewels when they see the original thief and slink off, leaving her to make her claim good. The shopkeeper appears just too late to reclaim his property. About 230ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 0d.

DEATH PREFERABLE TO DISHONOUR.
A well-to-do family meets with severe misfortune. The father meets with an accident. His wife is broken up by the shock, and the only daughter is left to struggle alone. A beautiful girl, she secures employment at a dressmaking establishment, but will not give in to her employer's dishonorable proposals, so he discharges her. She returns home to find her mother dead, and she then lights a charcoal fire in her room and commits suicide. The neighbours break in too late to save her. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

I'VE LOST MY EYEGLASS.
The morning coffee. Short-sighted gentleman loses his eyeglass. It is not to be found either on the table or the floor or under the carpet. No time to wait. The gentleman rushes off to keep an appointment, and his short-sightedness causes many amusing and somewhat painful collisions. Unable to bear anything further, he bribes a woman with a truck to give him a lift, and after some hard work she shoots him out at his destination. He arrives home at last, and when drinking his coffee discovers the missing eyeglass, which had fallen into the cup. His great joy at the recovery is laughable to behold. About 275ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

THE LOVE-LETTER.
Amusing attempts of a soldier to write a letter to his sweetheart. A novel blotter. His heart is hers. Now for dinner! The discovery in the dish. Trouble in the ranks. The spoilt repast. Splendid expressions. About 131ft. The Subject, £3 5s. 6d.

TERRIBLE ANGUISH.
Barrister is called to the Law Courts by an urgent telephone message. During his absence burglars enter his house, and while his wife is telephoning to him for help she is murdered by the robbers. Her little boy is also killed. The husband arrives home, and his mind almost gives way when he hears of the deaths of his wife and child. Heartrending scenes. About 245ft. The Subject, £6 2s. 6d.

PIERROT, HARLEQUIN, and COLUMBINE.
A picture story of love, desertion, and revenge. Introduces pretty love scenes and the duel—charming colouring. About 245ft. The Subject, £6 2s. 6d. Colouring extra, nett, 12s. 6d.

HE'S GOT THEM ON.
Jovial workman takes his week's pay and goes home, puts his money in a bag and places it in a pair of trousers in a drawer. His wife comes in. She wants money, but he informs her he has none to give. He goes out. She wants to raise some money, and tries to sell her lamp to an old clo' man, but he will not buy anything but clothing, and she sells her husband's precious trousers. Her husband arrives home, and she tells him what she has done. He is terribly angry and rushes out to find the old clo' man. It will make you laugh to accompany him in his search for the lost trousers, and to see the way he pursues and examines all the light-coloured garments he comes across. About 360ft. £9 0s. 0d.

A CHARMING COMEDIENNE'S TESTIMONY TO PHONOZONE

MISS LILY STEWART, the well-known artist, was suffering from hoarseness, caused by having to scream in parts. After trying one bottle of PHONOZONE she wrote for a further supply, saying: "Please send me on a bottle of your medicine, Phonozone, as I find it very favourable for my voice."—Signed, LILY STEWART.
PHONOZONE is a refined and delicate tincture, having a marvellously restorative effect on the voice.

No. 996. THE TRAGEDY OF THE SAWMILL.

One of the finest melodramatic stories we have produced. The first scene depicts the work going on in large up-to-date saw-mills, machinery in full swing. Lunch whistle goes, and men prepare to depart. There enters the sweetheart of one of the workmen and her young sister. The foreman of the works, however, is also in love with the workman's sweetheart, and talks to the young workman to distract his attention while handing written offer of marriage to the girl. She repulses his attentions and thereby increases his jealousy, and anger for the young workman. Scene 2.—The foreman arranges to meet the girl in the open, and there again proposes marriage. She again refuses, and he endeavours to do her violence. The young lover comes on the scene, and fights the foreman. Foreman swears vengeance, and arranges with an accomplice to do him harm. Scene 3. Back in the workshop. The villain foreman and his accomplice strap the young man on the swiftly moving saw bench near circular saw. His sweetheart rushes in, and the foreman forces her hand on lever to start the machinery, then rushes off with her. Enter young sister, who cuts ropes of prisoner after vainly endeavouring to stop the machinery. Hero thrashes villain. Grand finale. Most exciting, and of fine quality.

Length 500ft. Price, £10 12s. 6d.

No. 989.

THE BEST LITTLE GIRL IN THE WORLD.

The little girl who is the heroine of this picture is an only child. A poor blind man greets her with a smile of recognition as she drops a coin into his hat and speaks a word of gentle sympathy. But a small boy has been before her and removed the crown of that hat, and artfully placing his own cap underneath, he succeeds in getting the coins intended for the blind beggar. The little girl in her anger shakes him, but he is poor and hungry, and he tells her how at home his father is dying. Only half believing him, she says she will go home with him and see these things for herself. One quick look round is enough to confirm the cruel truth of the urchin's story. All haste and anxiety, she drags the hungry boy to her father's house, and cajoles him to give her money to buy food and toys for the starving children. The scene in that squalid room when she arrives with her treasures is not easy to describe, while the small children, forgetful of everything but their new-found happiness, fall too eagerly on the welcome fare before them, "the best little girl in the world" slips quietly away and leaves them to their joy.

Length 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

No. 1006. A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.

This is a very comical film. The opening shows the entrance hall to a gentleman's house, with a servant doing the usual morning dusting. The master of the house, a great sufferer from lumbago, is seen to slowly struggle downstairs in very great pain. While making frantic endeavours to reach the hall-stand, a gentleman caller arrives. He gives the poor man several good hard pokes and pushes, and shows him how to run upstairs. He then urges him to follow suit, and with pushing, kicking, and expostulating, he moves him gradually up the stairs in jerks. The sufferer, in his haste and agitation to lay hands on anything likely to assist him, seizes the grandfather clock on the top of the first landing. This valuable timepiece not being able to stand the weight of its owner, falls and slides down the stairs, bringing with it the man, lumbago and all. The excitement is so great for the patient that he forgets all about his lumbago, and rushes up and down stairs in double quick time. He is so overjoyed to find that he can do this successfully, that he continues this rapid mode of progression several times, and shakes his friend by the hand with hearty goodwill and thanks.

Length 125ft. Price, £3 2s. 6d.

GRAND VITAGRAPH DRAMA.

Do not confuse the following subject with one of similar title announced last week.

THE MODERN OLIVER TWIST;

OR, THE LIFE OF A PICKPOCKET.

Based on the Dramatic Masterpiece of Literature by the Immortal Charles Dickens.

BRIEF SYNOPSIS:

HOMELESS!—Oliver Twist is picked up by the "Artful Dodger."

THE THIEVES' DEN!—Old Fagin welcomes Oliver and teaches him the new game of "find the watch." Oliver and the boys go out picking pockets on the streets. They are chased by the police, and Oliver is caught, but is befriended by the man whose watch was stolen.

OLIVER FINDS A HOME.—Kind-hearted Mr. Brownlow rescues Oliver from Old Fagin's clutches.

RECAPTURED.—Bill Sikes drags Oliver back to Fagin's den.

THE ROBBERY!—The thieves plot to rob Mr. Brownlow's house. At midnight they put Oliver through a small window, and by threats are forcing him to unfasten the door, when the household is aroused, and in the darkness Oliver is shot.

RETRIBUTION.—Bill Sikes and Toby Cracket are seen telling Old Fagin about their ill luck. Fagin says Nancy has betrayed them. She returns and is killed by Bill Sikes. The police smash in the doors and windows and capture the thieves, forming a sensational and dramatic finish to a splendidly realistic and powerful story.

Dear Mr. Harris,—Many thanks for skirt just to hand. I am more than delighted with it. Your process has the happy knack of turning old things into new, as it looks just the same as it did when it came home from the dressmaker's.

Faithfully Yours,
Georgie Wright (Mrs. Leclerq).

Dear Mr. Harris,—I have much pleasure in stating that the work you did for me last autumn was satisfactory in every way, and I was more than pleased, as I did not anticipate the goods would look so nice. Anything that may require cleaning or dyeing this spring from either of the places under my control I should certainly entrust to you, as I am sure that the best possible results will be obtained.

Yours faithfully,

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—When it was Dark is presented here this week by Mr. Walter Maxwell's company. All the principals play with force and skill, and, thanks mainly to their efforts, the drama proves highly successful. Mr. H. Athol Forde makes an admirable Sir Robert Llewellyn, and Miss Margaret Damer is notably good as Gertrude Hunt, playing brightly and vivaciously at the start, and with marked dramatic power in the two last acts. Mr. Leslie Carter gives a telling portraiture of the evil genius of the piece, Constantine Schwabe; and Mr. Rupert Leslie makes a bold and manly Basil Gortre. Miss Hope Mayne acts with sympathetic charm as Helena. Other parts effectively filled are those of the Rev. Ambrose Byars by Mr. Frank Melrose, Hamilton Hill by Mr. Humphrey Warden, Lord Caistor by Mr. Stanley Lathbury, and Katherine Moberby by Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—One of the most interesting items on the programme this week is the amateur dancing competition, which has proved extremely amusing and attractive. The Arleys are clever as cyclists, and the Fordyces are heartily applauded as dancers, Miss Cissie Carlette is an accomplished mimic, and the Sisters Judge provide a capital turn with their performing cockatoos. Among the other artists who are specially well received are Mr. Bert Kemp (cartoonist), the Du Gros Trio (comedy gymnasts), the Two Neros (gymnasts), and Grapho and Jackson in a scene, entitled In a Restaurant. The Bioscope pictures are as usual fresh and interesting.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Arnold Bell's company opened here on Monday with his répertoire company in Ben Ma Chree. Mr. Arnold Bell gave a powerful impersonation of Dan Mylrea; Evan Mylrea was a very praiseworthy performance by Mr. John Belton; Mr. Cuthbert Imrie was good as the Bishop; and Mr. F. C. Robson must be complimented on his Davy Fayle. Mr. Frank Carlile was well cast as Mr. Harcourt; and Miss Lilian Earle proved herself a capable artist as Mona. Called Back, The Shaughraun, The Octoroon, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man are in the week's programme.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmott, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—A smart bill is presented here this week, including the Arleys, with a particularly smart set of dogs; the Sisters Poole, Houdoun-Cameron company, George Hyman, Nellie Rose, W. H. Downs (ballad vocalist), and Maxford and O'Neill.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company is giving a capital interpretation of The Indian Mutiny. Mr. Geo. Steel as Lieut. Manley is clever; and Mr. Cyril Harrison submits a capital portrayal of Captain Manley; whilst as Terry Mr. Geo. Scully is amusing. Mr. Villiers Stanley's Nebu Singh is a finely-played rôle; and Mr. J. S. Shedden as Abul is good. Miss Lily Grey gives a talented portrayal of Kate; Miss Kate Bruce is clever as Mrs. Ingleby; and Miss Melrose Millett as Ghuzenah is capable.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Leah Kleschna is the attraction here this week. Mr. Geo. Ingleton presents as Kleschna a strong, daring, and definite personality, and Miss Pearle Gardner as his daughter Leah a deeply impressive characterisation. Mr. Percy Rhodes interprets the part of Paul Sylvaine with great ability and discretion; as Raoul Berton Mr. Pat Newhall gives a careful picture of an unmitigated scoundrel; and excellent impersonations are given of other characters more or less important by Messrs. Cyril Rawdon, Leslie Lees, Gissing Walters, W. Wilson, Geo. Fairbairn, and Misses Mary Barton, Lilian Locke, Ida Vinnall, Ethel Lorimer, and Alice Davis.

The Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Included in a varied programme is Mozzetto, a clever juggler; the Andreassens, whose vagaries of a nautical kind are comical in the extreme; Oliver Conroy, who scores with patter and song; J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist; Pueblo and Cropp, Creole speciality artists; Kendrick and Laura, with songs and dances; the Four Maisanos, musical eccentrics; James De Voye's educated horse Billy; Mlle. De Rose, lady baritone; and the bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Mr. Geoffrey De Mowbray's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here with Max Goldberg's drama, The Bank of England. Mr. Charles H. Lester is to be commended for his natural rendering of the part of Sherlock Holmes; Mr. Henry Compton gives a forcible interpretation of the scheming Stephen Hartley, Mr. Harry T. Wood is a success as Eric Dane, Mr. Charles Ninian is good as Gordon Isaacs; and excellent service is rendered by Mr. Harry Harrald as Sir Sidney Barraclough, Mr. F. Ernstone as Godfrey Dane, Mr. Percy Braithwaite as the Hon. Bertie Burlington, and Mr. Charles Goff in the comedy part of Tommy Sprouts. Miss Ellen Mosley as Margaret Dane gives a pleasing performance, Miss Ada Collins as Sylvia Barraclough fulfils the requirements of the part in a satisfactory manner, Miss Phyllis Orme is vivacious as the irrepressible American widow, Aminta J. Beane, and Miss V. Wood is good as Lucy Lockett.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—The "bill of fare" provided here includes Mr. Ben Hur, an ideal athlete and weight-lifter; Miss Maidie Scott (a pleasing comedienne), the Three Royal Temples (vocalists of a high order), the Two Whites (American comedy artists), Mr. Fred Hallam (comedian), Speedwell (in a smart show as a lightning portrait painter), Mr. Bert Williams (a good ventriloquist), and Mr. E. C. Clayton's pictures shown by the Attergraph.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. William J. Miller's company is appearing here this week in the French romantic play, The Throne of Terror. The rôle of Captain Eugene is played by Mr. Roy Multon in a capable manner, his sweetheart—Marguerite de Roquefort—finding a most sympathetic exponent in Miss Katherine Maude Davis. Mr. W. J. Miller gives a powerful rendering of Maximillian Robespierre, and Mr. W. J. Thompson is responsible for a well-studied piece of acting as Comte de Roquefort. Miss Rose Salisbury as Victoria D'Almonte gives a clever and effective portrayal. Some amusing scenes are contributed by Mr. Bert Ellis as Joujou and Miss Russell as Peppietta.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in that popular play The Village Blacksmith is paying a return visit this week. The title-rôle is forcibly and admirably portrayed by Mr. Sam Livesey, who, as John Strong, makes a typical blacksmith; while Miss Laura Hansen as Kate Strong plays her part very commendably. Considerable ability is shown by Mr. Joseph Carter as Captain Leo, the evil genius of the play; Mr. George V. Campbell is highly amusing as Billy Twigg; Mr. Edwin Mayden is efficient as Lucas Marlow; Mr. Thos. E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins, and Mrs. T. C. Livesey as Sal Parkins, work hard, and are worthy of praise; Miss Cassie Edwards is seen to advantage as Ruth Parkins. Special mention must be made of Miss Bertha Hanbury, who, as Harry Strong, the blacksmith's child, displays remarkable ability and intelligence.

Public Hall.—Manager, Mr. G. E. Hoey.—Mr. Jasper Redfern opened here on Tuesday with a capital animated picture and variety entertainment, including the Seven Musical Savonas, the Six Cycling Elliotts; the Monckton, in their comedy musical act; the Lavelles, in their comedy acrobatic act; the Royal Raynors, demon contortionists; and Miss Amy Bellwood, comedienne and dancer.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. W. H. Kirby's company in Somebody's Sweetheart is here. Mr. E. H. Bertram sings well and plays breezily as Stanton Ashleigh, Mr. Percy Maitland is sufficiently scheming as Stephen Lever ton, Miss Dorah Condor represents Freddie Ashleigh with much skill, and Mr. Geo. P. Lester as Lem Lee and Mr. Hyland Shea as Old Joe give good character-studies. Miss Dot Reeve is an attractive Lulu, Miss Cordelia Knight does well as Zora, and the humour of Martin Blabbs is tellingly displayed by Mr. W. H. Kirby.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and company are here this week in the thrilling drama A Wrecker of Men. Mr. Henry Rutland is very good in the dual parts of Isaacs, a money-lending Jew, and Karnciphus, a mummy; others calling for special mention being Mr. C. Watson Mill as Jim Murley and Mr. Gilson Brooke as Railton. Miss Rosalind Tate as the Serpent Woman, Risca Mallison, carries through her heartless schemes with unflinching coolness; Miss Cissie Podmore shows much ability in her handling of Doris Melville; as an eccentric servant maid, Miss Kittie Melville creates much hilarity. Others who deserve cordial recognition are Mr. Milner Noble (Pharosaphus), Mr. Percy Horton (Guise Strange), Mr. N. Carter Slaughter (Reggie Verincourt), and Mr. Alfred Maurice (Eric Melville).

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schubert.—The current programme includes Bosanquet, the accomplished violin virtuoso, and Hyam C. Travers, the well-known comedian. Alethea, the flexible and graceful contortionist gymnast, is loudly applauded; the Hartley Wonders perform jumping feats in and out of barrels with wonderful sureness; Maggie Walsh, the original singing Mill Girl, is accorded a warm reception; Baroux and Bion secure approbation for their eccentric acrobatic and comic boxing interlude; Ruby Bijou scores in her various styles of dancing; Frank Boyce, character comedian, has a success in his song "England." Raymond's Bio-tableaux are also included in the bill.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—The Curate is here this week. Mr. Arthur Mervyn as the Rev. John Audley gives a neat, clear, and crisp rendering of the part; Mr. Percy Conningsby plays the old farmer correctly, and Messrs. F. Stuart and C. Spencer do justice to their parts. Miss Hettie Jeffries deserves warm commendation for her admirably-studied and executed study of the boy trumpeter; Miss Agnese D'Aragon plays Mrs. Muggs with considerable skill, and Miss Rosa Mervyn is quiet, ladylike, and effective as Mabel Verner.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The first visit of The Three Little Maids to this town was welcomed by a good house on Monday. Three more charming little maids could not be desired than Miss Vera Valling (Ada), Miss Cora Lingard (Hilda), and Miss Edith Colley (Edna), each artist playing her part with unusual freshness and delicacy. Miss Kate Graham-Beck excellently sustained the rôle of Lady St. Malory; Mr. Charles A. Stevenson was the life of the piece as Lord Cheyne; and Mr. Ewart Drake as Cupid the caddy provoked continuous merriment. Mr. Garnet Wilson made a good Bryan Molyneux; and Mr. Wilfred Heath's fine voice was well suited to the part of Monsieur de L'Orme. Mr. Charles Leverton submitted a painstaking impersonation of the Vicar of St. Malory.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday with Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox's comedy in three acts, The Freedom of Suzanne, which met with a good reception. Miss Beatrice Lindley—a charming actress—interpreted the rôle of Suzanne Trevor in a delightful manner. As Charles Trevor, Mr. Herbert J. Bentley was in every sense successful, his fine acting being deservedly admired. Clever character-sketches of the irritating mother-in-law, Lady Charlotte Trevor, and Miss Fanny Minching were presented by Miss Emily Patterson and Miss Charlotte Mead; and much praise must be accorded Miss Violet Ley for her capital impersonation of Lady Isabel Bury; and Mr. F. G. Thurstans was very humorous as Fitzroy Harding, and must be commended for his unexaggerated impersonation. Miss Annie Stalmon's acting as Mrs. Tunstall was all that could possibly be desired; and other rôles were efficiently sustained by Messrs. Wm. Mallalieu, R. Harley West, Townsend Whitling, S. Selwyn, and Bruce Smith. The comedietta Two in a Trap makes a clever curtain-raiser.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edwin Leslie.—The chief attraction at this popular hall is the musical comedy extravaganza in three scenes, entitled The Belle of the Orient, provided by Mr. Joe Peterman and his accomplished company. Miss Jessie Wilton made a charming Ruth Verney; and Mr. Joe Peterman was successful as Ike Novinski. Donaldson Bros. and Sidell produced their zoological comedy with the happiest results, the fun being fast and furious; and Shawlene whistled cleverly. One of the finest gymnastic acts seen here for a long time is provided by the Bros. Bright; and Mr. Frank Seeley, comedian, takes well. Miss Winifred Ward (male impersonator), Eugene and Willie (musical acrobatic clowns), the Sisters Melba (vocalists), and the Palace pictures are also included in the programme.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Bella and Bijou, the accomplished comedy duo, head the bill, and have been most successful with their attractive act. The Empire Comedy Four appear to advantage in their vocal and humorous performance, and a sensation has been caused by Prince Fee Lung, the clever Chinese magician. The Matweef Hugistona, Russian vocalists, dancers, and acrobats, have made a big hit; and Goggin and Davis, a funny couple, appear in their mirth-provoking act. The fine baritone voice of Mr. Geo. Ridgewell has been heard to much advantage; and other appearing are Miss Babs Lloyd (comedienne and dancer), the Dashmars Flen and Brok, and Mr. Harry Clifford (comedian).

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alexandroff Troupe are the chief attraction here, and these accomplished Russian singers and dancers have made a big hit. Will Onda and Company provide much merriment with their capital novelty, Motor Maniac; and Diana Hope and Company provide a capital entertainment in their society episode, Her Good Name. The Davenports execute some startling feats, and deserve their title of "lightning magicians," and Miss Lilian Rigby is a fascinating comedienne. Mr. George Prince's comic songs have been hugely enjoyed; and others appearing with success are the Bros. Onda (acrobatic comedians), the Westwoods (clever comedy cyclists), the Sisters Edwards (vocalists, dancers, &c.), and the attractive Alhambra Bioscope with some new pictures.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—The boards here are occupied by Miss Mary Austin and company with The Cotton Spinner. Mr. John S. Haydon depicts the character of the bluff old cotton spinner in an admirable manner; Miss Mary Austin is eminently satisfactory as Mary Prescott, her acting possessing both finish and charm; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds is good as Arthur Northbury, and the same remark applies to Miss Enid Ross as Constance Harrington. Miss Bella Power and Mr. Ernest C. Edwards are amusing as Lady Charlotte and the Major.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in Mr. Hall Caine's play The Christian is attracting large audiences. Miss Grace Chalmers is the Glory Quayle, and acquits herself admirably; Mr. Frank Tennant gives a consistent and incisive rendering of the Hon. John Storm; Lord Robert Ure is powerfully acted by Mr. Renand Lockwood; Mr. Charles Hill is well suited as Parson Quayle, and Mr. Stanley Radcliffe is an excellent Father Lamplugh; Mr. Charles E. Dering is a good Archdeacon Wealthy, and the Faro King is well represented by Mr. Bert Conway. Miss Vashti Wellbourne as Polly Love is worthy of special commendation; Miss Molly Hayden is an admirable Mrs. Callender, and Miss May Weir is efficient as Aggie Jones.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The reappearance of Mr. Wilkie Bard after a somewhat prolonged absence has been hailed with satisfaction. Hill and Whittaker, musical speciality artists, in a really clever entertainment, have made a big hit; and Mr. Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian, is well received; Landford and Lyons, two rollicking variety artists, are great favourites; and prominent turns are also contributed by Miss Nellie Stratton (serio), the Bohemians (comedy instrumentalists), the Boston Twins (comedians), Miss Lizzie Kirk (comedienne and dancer), Mr. Frank Leon (clog dancer), and Miss Nellie Ray (comedienne).

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Martin Harvey's visit was well calculated to sustain the tide of prosperity that has set in here, his inauguration this week of the spring season being truly auspicious. On Monday a crowded house and a great ovation awaited the popular actor in After All, which was seen here on the former visit. On Tuesday interest quickened in the first appearance here of Mr. Harvey as Hamlet, which part he declaimed with matchless voice, perfect elocution, and fine erudition. Miss N. de Silva revealed sweet and gentle traits in the character of Ophelia; and Mr. Charles Glenney as Claudius, Mr. Percy Anstey as Horatio, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., as Polonius, Mr. Geo. Cooke as Rosencrantz, Mr. Leonard Craske as Laertes, and Miss Frances Ivor as Gertrude are entitled to praise. A Cigarette-Maker's Romance was down for Thursday evening.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Lady Midcap, in the delightful and vivacious personality of Miss Marie Studholme, figures here on a return visit, which has been eminently successful. Miss Studholme, whose dainty ways and merry capers are enthusiastically applauded, is again well supported. Mr. J. Robert Hale could not be surpassed in the "stoney" rôle, Bill Stratford; while his ally, Posh Jenkins, is cleverly represented by Mr. Oliver J. Round. Mr. Arthur Longley does exceedingly well as Trooper Smith; Mr. E. Statham Staples clothes the rôle of Corporal Ham with infinite drollery; Mr. Ernest Mahar as the volatile Comte acts with excellent spirit; and Mesdames Nina Sevening, Mabel Russell, and Ethel Griffies possess all the graces and fascinations of their sex as Gwennie Holden, Susan, and Mrs. Layton respectively; while the other rôles are also in good hands.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Romeo and Juliet having been restored to the bill, thus making four weeks in all, Mr. Milton Rosmer and Miss Edith Turner have resumed their parts, and, supported by the clever company already mentioned, continue to meet with gratifying success.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—The Scarlet Clue, furnished by Miss Grace Warner and company, has been followed with much interest here. Miss Warner, in her enthralling portrayal of Scarlet Sal being the centre of attraction. Mr. Geo. Gordon is highly successful as Michael Stanton; Mr. J. Leighton Leigh doubles the rôles of the twin brothers, Harry and Jack Esmond, in a clever manner; and Mr. Jack Clarence as Sir Desmond Lisle, Mr. Horace Moseley as Croker, Mr. Raymond as Billy (with songs), and Mr. J. E. Tomlinson as Crazy Jim display much ability. Miss Grace Jones wins admiration as Elsie Dane, Miss Kathleen Cranston shines as Mother Scrooge, and Miss Esther Dean as Musette; Miss Phyllis Massey as the boy Reggie and Edith Rutland as Little Polly act commendably.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—Under the Czar, the new Anglo-Russian drama by Mr. Fred Jarman, is represented here by the author's company. Mr. Gerald Smythe as Captain Johnson leaves no doubt as to his ability; Mr. Bertram H. Rose acts the rôle of Nicholas Yeroslaff with much skill; Mr. W. H. Riley appears as Zakhai Koresky in a praiseworthy fashion; Mr. C. P. Amalia satisfactorily realises the character of Count Nesseldorf; and Mr. Hugh Romsay as Michael Granoviski, Mr. Louis Weston as Paul Ignat, Mr. Lawrence Brien as Alexis Petroff, Mr. R. Tarrant as Victor Kleff, and Mr. F. Diamond as Anton increase the attractiveness of the piece. Miss Kathleen Cavanagh as the Russian girl, Sonia, obtains much sympathy, and Miss Linda Riley as Siomka and Miss Lucy Murray as Zara are much admired.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Silver Cross, in which appears Mr. F. A. Marston and company, is giving much satisfaction here with its musical and other attractions. Mr. Marston submits a clever character-sketch of the old salt, Ben Adams; Messrs. H. King and Henry Dawson represent virtue and vice successfully in the respective characters of Arthur and Philip Frewin; Miss Ada Hender as the widow plays with much perception; Miss Evelyn Francis as Sunshine acts in a most agreeable style, while her songs give general delight; and Mr. Sid Bazley, who was awarded the compliment of a benefit last night, acts and sings with excellent humour as Tomkyns Quinton.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Florodora, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, is drawing all Aston and its environs with its seemingly inexhaustible attractions. Mr. Gus Danby represents Tweedlepunch at his very best, and his reception is commensurate with his performance, which is clever throughout. Mr. Edward Crosland fits the rôle of Frank Abercoed admirably, his fine singing and acting securing rich applause; Miss Florence Hersee as Angela sends the audience into raptures with her charming presence and exquisite acting and singing; Miss Gwladys Elvey appears with the greatest success as Dolores; and Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood and Mr. Harold Perry as Captain Arthur Donegal do full justice to their parts. Mr. Edward Chester scores as Gilfain.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Vesta Tilley is certainly the greatest draw Birmingham can have, her songs being repeatedly encored. A more enhusiastic reception no artist could desire. Park's Eton Boys are entertaining; the Riogoku Family of Japs are seen in an exceedingly smart tumbling act; Gracie Moore sings "In Dreamland" in an artistic manner; Tom Owen supplies a volume of Welsh humour; and Arthur Sutcliffe and Ryan and Hall add to the mirth of the programme. The Picquays have a novel entertainment; and the Bioscope depicts "The Missing Legacy."

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—George Robey had a big reception here on Monday. His songs "I knew I had made a mistake," "Be a man," and "I have just been elected Mayor" were loudly encored, especially the last-mentioned song; Reed and Lerne are clever eccentrics; Nellie Dunbar is a dainty comedienne; the dancing of the Six Lancashire Lasses is decidedly smart; Frank Sylvo adds humour to his juggling act; some excellent vocal selections are rendered by the Lyric Quartette; and some capital baritone songs sung by Harrison Brockbank. The Brothers Webb, musical clowns, deserve the applause they receive; and Cliff and Kean are well received.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Dr. Walford Bodie is attracting crowded houses here, his bloodless surgery being certainly little short of a miracle, while his electrical entertainment is highly amusing. Bella Skene is seen to advantage in a vocal scena; Helen Henri renders her operatic selections in an artistic manner; Curtis Leo has a magical act which is full of mystery; and Signor Bandoni, the one-man band, and Little Dolly Robson conclude a smart programme.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—A visit from Tarro Myaki, the champion wrestler of Japan, is the big attraction here. His offer of £1000 to anyone who can defeat him seems perfectly safe. Venie Clements does some clever impersonations; the Wally Hoste Trio of acrobats, comedians, and jugglers are far above the average; Arthur Melrose is a clever whistler; and Dan Gregory keeps the audience amused.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. John H. Tomkinson's No. 1 Royal Gipsy Children. The variety turns include the Musical Keiths, who give a novel and refined entertainment on numerous instruments; next in importance is the Lizzette Troupe of lady acrobats, whose tumbling feats are loudly applauded; Mr. Bert Allex, dwarf comedian, sings some catchy songs, and his eccentric performances causes much merriment; the lady trombone soloist, Miss Annie Knowles, is favourably received; and Miss Evie Lynn, dancer, scores a distinct success. La Petite Carlina, the quick-change artist, is deserving of praise.

BLACKBURN.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—There is excellent dramatic fare provided for patrons of this theatre by Mr. Frank Bertram's company in Martin Harvey's play, The Breed of the Treshams. The part of the Rat is assigned to Mr. Henry Belding, whose acting in this many-sided character gains unstinted applause. Mr. Hamilton Deane as Clement Hungerford plays the part of that ungrateful villain with much cleverness; Viscount Dorsington is presented with sufficient dignity by Mr. Oswald Lingard, and as Sir Henry Curmen Mr. Geo. Traill is good. The Hon. Francis Tresham is portrayed by Mr. Cecil Klein, who makes a manly hero. He is sympathetically supported by Miss Florence Tressilian in the part of Margaret Hungerford, Miss Kathleen Morgan (Olive Bagshaw) and Miss Belle Donaldson (Helena Pierrefont) also act well. Last but not least is the clever acting of Miss Celectine Bertram as Batty.

New Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Messrs. Griffin and Drake's capital pantomime, Cinderella, is there this week. As principal boy Mlle. du Roche is excellent, her singing and acting both being good; Miss Ivy Down is a sweet Cinderella. Specialities are given by the Sisters Le Graham, vocalists and dancers; Marlowe, juggler, and several other good artists.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The star turn at the Palace this week is Swaun Sinq Hpoo, a miniature man from British Burmah. This little dark-skinned gentleman is twenty-three years of age, but only stands 34 inches in height. There are several other excellent turns, including Agnese and Arthur Lynch in illustrated songs, the Balsamos in a comedy gymnastic act, Helen Charles in her refined drawing-room entertainment, Rumbo Austin and his comical navvies, Sadie Seymour (descriptive vocalist), W. B. Raby (comedian), and Roywood's Biograph.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal (Limited).—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston.—Miss Mary Austin and E. Vivian Edmonds's company is this week presenting The Golden Ladder. The play is capitally staged, and enacted by a capable company. The parts of the Rev. Frank Thornhill and Lilian Grant are well presented by Mr. Harry Cullinford and Miss Eva Moss, Mr. Joseph Rowlands as Samuel Packaby, Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby, and Mr. Harry Belford as Jim Dixon are also notable successes.

Grand Theatre (Limited).—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A good variety company here comprises the Canary Troupe in their comic juggling act Fun in the Kitchen; George Reeves, comedian; Miss Madge Elliott, coon soubrette and dancer; Master J. Bunting, bone soloist; Rosie Archer, lady mimic; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden, in their farce Two to One; Cullen and Carthy, comedians; Lily Langtry, charming comedienne; Van Allen, tramp musician; Bert Dansie, character vocalist; Monte Walker, comedian; the Original Zaros, male and female acrobats and tumblers; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Muncaster Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Wilson.—Miss Florence Baines and company are here this week in Miss Lancashire, Limited, which is received with screams of laughter from start to finish. The principal creator of mirth is Miss Baines in the character of Mary Ellen Thompson, a Lancashire lass, a part which suits her admirably. Miss Baines is a comedienne of exceptional ability, her broad Lancashire dialect being cleverly assumed. Mr. David Donaldson as John Higgins gives a skilful rendering, and the parts of Bertha and Harry are in the capable hands of Miss Mabel Clinton and Mr. Patrick Evans respectively. Miss Jennie Hallworth gives a refined performance of Eva Lancashire, and Mr. Horace Pollock is good as the Butler.

BOSCOMBE.—Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—An excellent programme is, as usual, provided at this house this week. Mlle. Von-etta heads the bill with an original turn, "La Mysterie Indescribable," for which she wins much applause; Michael Nolan, the prince of Irish comedians, gives three of his Irish character songs in his own inimitable style; Clive and Clarke, black and white comedy artists, in their dancing act, have a great reception; a charming comedienne is Flo Cecil. Frank Hartley, the schoolboy juggler, is very smart; and others who do well are the Two Eltons (comedy bar performers) and Fred Gilbert (equilibrist). The Hippodrome animated pictures, always sure of a warm welcome, include this week the Sultan of Morocco and his army.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. C. M. S. McLellan's comedy, On the Love Path, is affording ample material for hearty enjoyment here, and on Monday night a large audience warmly greeted Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's excellent company in an admirable representation of the piece. In his acting as the susceptible Arthur Frederick Adolphus Taunton, Mr. Percy Hutchison is both humorous and convincing; John Gripleigh is a main factor in the love complications, and Mr. George Mudie handles the part well. Mr. Frank Elliott makes a satisfactory Gerald Marvel; Mr. Frank Hill is humorous as the Chicago millionaire, Concannon; Mr. T. W. Rawson's dramatic part of Denbigh Thrayle is filled with a marked degree of excellence, and with charming grace and repose Miss Lilias Earle represent his divorced wife, Charity. Mary Concannon is brightly represented by Miss Margaret Marshall, and Miss Hilda Harriss is charming as the artless Norah. His Landlady is the curtain-raiser.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The record run of Dick Whittington came to an end on Saturday evening, when the house was packed from floor to ceiling. Good humour was combined with the spirit of abandon, flowers literally rained upon the principal artists, and a perfect storm of applause greeted the appearance of Mr. Laidler, who, in a telling speech, returned his thanks to the audience for the unprecedented support which had been accorded Dick Whittington. On Monday night the regular dramatic season was commenced with a return visit of A Modern Adventuress. An excellent representation was given by the capable company, in which some changes are noticeable. Mr. Leonard Aardal, however, is retained for the part of the sculptor, Pieblo Donelli, a very artistic effort, and Miss Kate Froude again fills with skill and power the title-rôle. The excellence of Miss Alice Defoe's acting in the part of Vivette Delby is still a feature of the performance. The character of the Yorkshireman, John Crompton, is in the excellent hands of Mr. Leonard Montgomery; Mr. Louis Edmonde gives a good performance in the part of Harry Delby; Mr. Frank Wilton represents the Banker well, and Miss Ivy Chandos is prominent in the humorous rôle of Sally Hodges.

The Empire (Moss' Empires, Limited).—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Ahmed Madrali, the Terrible Turk, and a troupe of International wrestlers, head the bill here this week, and form a very strong attraction; W. H. Fox in his humorous scena, Paddywhisky at the Piano, is as diverting as ever; the Gittis, who introduce a cleverly-trained dog, give a novel and funny entertainment; the Fitzroys, society gymnasts, are graceful and expert on the trapeze and climbing rope; with banjo accompaniment the Three Slater Sisters dance themselves into the good graces of the audience; Irving Jones, a coloured comedian, is original and quaint; McPhee and Hill elicit great applause for a sensational bar performance; Fred Lincoln, in quaint get up, contributes an acceptable song; good dancing and amusing patter by Stephen and Rennoir find favour, and Collins and Rice are entertaining in a sketch, The Survival of the Fittest.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—Carlton, the clever and humorous card manipulator, is a special favourite here, and his reappearance is hailed with delight; Ted Saunders supplies some clever mimicry; Lambert and Glover in one of their capital duologues are successful; the Darrell Trio contribute an instrumental entertainment of considerable skill and merit; in a comedy scena, Life in the Slums, Will Vay's Juveniles (a smart quartette) entertain with good comedy, vocalism, and dancing; Arthur Aldridge is a tenor vocalist of merit; some clever ornamental swimming is gone through in a tank performance by Dickinson and Johnson; and Lily Marney, who is a very popular comedienne here, is paying a welcome return visit.

BRIGHTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday with Mr. Hopkinson. Mr. Edward Rigby's Samuel Hopkinson was a clever character-study; Mr. Charles Esdale's Duke of Braceborough and Mr. Cecil Burt's Earl of Addleton were admirably enacted; Mr. Edward Vaughan was well suited as Lord Gawthorpe; Mr. George Desmond's Hon. Otho Dursingham was capitally played; Miss Helen Russell made a charming Lady Tyra Ingglesby; Miss Frances Davie was highly effective as Eliza Dibbs, Miss Blanka Stewart achieved great success as the Duchess of Braceborough, and the remaining characters were satisfactorily sustained. Mr. Hopkinson was preceded by The Impossible Trio. At Thursday's special London matinée, Mr. James Welch and company from Terry's Theatre gave a performance of A Judge's Memory.

Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. George Testo Sante and company are here this week with The Life of a Showman. Mr. Sante as the showman, Brien Leader, displays capital acting and feats of physical strength; Mr. Logan Darra is forcible as the villainous Hendrick Marais; Miss Amy McNeil makes a sympathetic Agatha Winter; Mr. Charles Osborne undertakes the parts of Sir Noel Hartland and Stickers with skill; Mr. Edward Warden is a manly Rev. Cyril Arlis, and much amusement is afforded by Mr. Frank Sante as Tommy Authere, Miss May Neilson as Angelina Mutton, and Mr. E. Turner as Ben Tic Tac.

Alhambra.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—A very attractive programme is sustained here this week. Herr Charles Prinz, with his highly-trained troupe of performing lions, submits an excellent and astonishing turn, in which he is assisted by Mlle. Marcella; the Eight Mascottes are admirable dancers and vocalists; Will Musgrave's comic songs gain him very enthusiastic applause; Marion Hall and company are amusing in the comedy sketch A Guilty Pair; Billy Hobbs is a capital coon vocalist and clever dancer; the Three Sisters Hayden are completely successful in their harmonious character songs; the Daintons are pleasing comedy artists juggler; the Three Sisters May are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Nina Elmo, comedienne, is entertaining; Madge Roberts is an accomplished vocalist, and animated pictures, projected by the Barrascope, conclude the entertainment.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Paul Cinquevalli heads the programme, his very clever juggling act obtaining full appreciation. A smart sketch, The Fight in the Forge, is presented in excellent style by G. Wordley Hulse and company; Arthur Croxon scores with his "One-man Village Concert"; Horton and Linden have a good grotesque gymnastic act; Jock Walker sings Scotch songs in approved style; Percy Curry, comedian, amuses; Gus Gauntlet, character comedian, is appreciated; Eva Nelson is a pleasing character comedienne, and the Three Sisters Nelson are acceptable instrumentalists and dancers. The performance concludes with a good display of Vernon's animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LIMITED.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kimberley's company had a good reception by a full house on Monday, when they commenced a week's engagement with A Sister's Sin. Mr. Kimberley as Larry Murphy, with the assistance of Miss Marion Armitage as Floss Perks and Miss Alice Granville as Nell Stubbs, keeps the house in excellent humour; Mrs. Kimberley forcibly portrays Minnie Hastings; Harold Raymond and George Oakley are respectively well played by Mr. Wm. Vane and Mr. Ernest Fare. Miss Elsie May (the child soprano) as Jack became an immediate favourite with her singing and clever acting; Mr. Horace Austin as Theophilus Hope is a most amusing dude; Miss Augusta Tullock as the revengeful gipsy, Charzel, submits a fine performance; Miss Violet Langley as Redempta and Miss Dorothy Vivian as May Raymond give good support.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A sensational drama, The Sailors of the King, is the attraction here this week, played by Mr. Chas. Harrington's company. Mr. Henry Douglas ably represents Dick Drake, Mr. F. Vernon Travers is seen to advantage as Orrel Drake, and Mr. Charles Harrington makes a capital Admiral Drake. Mr. Fred Owen as Harris Wilkinstein and Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Barnet Fair are very humorous; Miss Maude Digby presents a well-studied impersonation of Rebecca Crosby, Miss Hero Hathaway is clever as Penelope Penn, Miss Maude Tremayne is an excellent Daisy Dent, and Miss Sylvia Stella an acceptable Felecia Phrynne.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culcen; General-Manager, Mr. Jas. E. Culcen.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company is attracting good houses here this week with Geoffrey Langdon's Wife.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The excellent programme provided here this week is headed by Emlyn-Jones and Co., whose delightful vocal efforts win rounds of applause; Maggie Grimshaw is a clever juvenile male impersonator, Bert Kemble, a smart, swell comedian, and Lord, Murray, and Lord, in a gymnastic mélange, exhibit some clever boxing; Caselli and James are well received for their banjo performance, the Four Charles, in a juggling combination, introduce a remarkably quick change; Mark Merry, as a simple fool, proves himself a clever comedian; the Emilions, in a comic acrobat act, are worthy of praise, and a clever picture, "The Train Wreckers," is projected by Urbanora.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Walter.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's La Poupée company is attracting large audiences here. Mr. Fred Seymour gives an unique performance of the arduous rôle of Hilarius; the unsophisticated Launcelot is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Wm. Everard; Mr. Walter Balfour as Father Maxime is warmly applauded, especially for his "Jovial Monk am I"; an entirely charming Alesia is Miss Dot Stephens, who plays her difficult rôle with dash and finish; Miss Edith Hunter is bright and pleasing as Mme. Hilarius. Other characters are creditably played by Mr. Arthur Dennis (Loremois), Mr. Fuller Allen (the Baron), Mr. W. J. O'Sullivan (Balthazar), and Miss Doris Dickens (Henri).

BURY (Lancs).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Coal King is being played here this week by Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland represents Tom Roberts, the mine manager: an admirable character, admirably played; Mr. Joseph Millane as Walter Harford, the villain, acts very forcibly; the part of Sir Reginald Harford is capitally undertaken by Mr. Robin Shiells; Mr. Harry Braynes is humorous as Jim Williams; Miss Gertrude Valentine gives a charming impersonation of Grace Shirley, and Mad Ann is in the competent hands of Miss Joan Wellman.

OLYMPIA CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Culling has provided a good entertainment here this week including the Dayton Troupe of acrobats, Mlle. Melda (a musical turn), Miss Verdi (a very pretty mimic), Derenda and Green (humorous jugglers), Elton and Elma (knockabout bar performers), Vasey and Ramsey (speciality dancers), Lil Hartley (vocalist), and Alex. Kendall (comedian).

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—Good turns are given here this week by Henry Carlton (comedian), Hallam and Stanton (in a musical sketch), Wallace Whitney (comedian), Moto (musical eccentric), Dobito and Buxton (vocalists), McCann (roller skate dancer), and the usual Bioscope pictures.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The first vacation piece was presented here on Monday night, when Mr. Andrew Melville's company in Driven from Home was hugely appreciated by a large audience. The piece is of the sensational order, and was thoroughly well played. Miss Francis Ruttledge must be complimented on the success she achieved in the parts of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh; the following also gave most careful renderings of their parts, viz., Messrs. Felix Pitt, Morley Carrol, Herbert Cecil, Harry Cornwell, Ernest Outtrim, Alic Macmillan, and Misses Florence Nelson, Doris Lorraine, Evelyn Marrable, Amy Williams, Florence Wilson, and Muriel Alleyne.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Doing good business at the Royal this week is the delightful comedy, Public Opinion, played for the first time in Cardiff by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Mr. George Giddens appears in the part of Horace Wibsey with his usual success; Miss Emma Hutchison's portrayal of Lady Diana is received with much enthusiasm; Miss Lilian Hallows enacts Penay Bligh in a charming manner; Mr. Ernest Ruston as Spencer Traughton causes much merriment; Mr. Harold West is no less successful in his clever interpretation of Viscount Pomfey; Lord Percy has a smart exponent in Mr. Templar Powell; and Mr. Wm. Hargreaves as Mr. Justice Mulley and Mr. George Mallett as Sir Babington Mulley, are responsible for a great deal of laughter. The Stratagem is a smartly-written and well-played curtain-raiser.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's company is appearing here in The Ruby Ring. Mr. A. B. Tapping as the French valet, Alphonse, presents a carefully-studied delineation; Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Charles Lynton also gives a portrayal that displays much ability; and as Reginald Clethorpe Mr. Charles Leveson-Lane scores an instantaneous success. Miss Alice Farleigh's Helen Neville shows the work of an accomplished artist; while Miss Clarisse Selwynne as Jane Clethorpe gives a portrayal that lacks nothing as a finished interpretation.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—An exceptionally good programme includes "The Fire Maiden," La Berat, who does some delightful serpentine work. The popular Cruikshank is well received; the Wolkowsky Troupe of Russian Dancers provide an excellent entertainment; Brett and Orford are old favourites; the Ten Genis are particularly smart in their Risley exhibition; and capital turns are given by Alf. Chester; the Sisters Klos, in a skilful gymnastic performance; Helen Ford, a pleasing ballad vocalist; Eugen Joly, cornet player; and the Bioscope.

CARLISLE.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of Mr. R. S. M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. Walter Reynolds's successful play Mr. Smith was introduced to a Carlisle audience for the first time on Monday. Earle Godwyn Smith has a clever exponent in Mr. Stephen T. Ewart; Mr. Russell Norrie gives a satisfactory representation of the Earl of Oxted; Mr. H. Carter Bligh makes the most of his opportunities as Jack Berkeley; as the Duke of Angleland Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway is particularly well placed; Mr. Fred Darrell contributes an amusing and clever sketch of the brewer millionaire; Miss Fyfe Alexander piquantly plays the part of Ruth Anheuser; as the Duchess Miss Elspeth Dudgeon acts with dignity and refinement; and Miss Rosamond Rokeby makes a delightful Lady Mary, her intelligent appreciation of a charming character creating sympathy and approbation. Miss Daisy England's Mrs. Smith is an exceptionally fine performance, and the ripe experience of this talented actress finds ample opportunities.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—A strong programme has been provided for this week. Chief interest centres in the performance of Austin and Cowan, in a vocal act as uncommon as it is pleasing. Mons. Slippere, the blind pianist, is always a welcome item; Little Gantz is the chief laughter-maker; the Cumberlands give a good display of gymnastic cycling; Mlle. Roza's canine hippodrome is a popular turn; Miss Ailsa Douglas sings several ballads successfully; and Miss Madge May gives satisfaction as a comedienne. The Bros. Ashley, in a bustling knockabout sketch entitled Next, Please, are a prominent feature; and Vernon's bioscope completes the attractions.

ALGIE'S HIPPODROME. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. B. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr C. Algie.—A capital programme is submitted here this week. Mendel, the blind pianist, is on a return visit, and is still as popular as ever, his beautiful playing delighting large audiences. So great was the success of Abdullah's Arabs last week that Mr. Algie has retained them for this, and their enthusiastic reception nightly speaks for the excellent impression they have made. George Penn is a smart comedian; the Sisters Hula, vocalists and dancers, make a hit; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payte, society entertainers, contribute a smart sketch; Fred Curran has few equals as a singer of parodies; a taking and interesting item is the one submitted by Miss Raffin and her troupe of educated monkeys. The clever feats performed by these animals point to the very acme of training. Some excellent pictures are shown by Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Mr. Hy. Masterman.—The Woman Who Gambles, played by Mr. Morton Powell's company, under the direction of Mr. Walter P. Carr, enlists much interest and attention. Miss Ada Roscoe is seen to great advantage as the Countess Steinbach; Mr. Edward E. Ashby's portrayal of Count Steinbach is a complete success, and he wins much applause; the villainies of Baron Gratzlow lose none of their repulsiveness in the hands of Mr. Horatio Sinclair; Mr. Beresford Lovett scores as Lieut. Ctzarteryski; Miss Violet Sims is successful as Cora; and Miss Marie Rumuz plays well as Stella Melakorf. Much fun and humour are contributed by Mr. Charles Calvert as the Hon. Bertie Bray, Mr. Fred Prior as Peter Peteroff, and Miss Florrie Hall as Mlle. Zila. The stage-manager, Mr. Ernest H. Clarke, does full justice to the part of Chief of the Police; and Mr. C. H. Hurst is worthy of praise as M. Marinavitch.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Here we have Claudian, produced by Mr. William Maclaren. The bulk of the work devolves upon Mr. Maclaren in the title-rôle and Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida; these artists acquit themselves admirably, and receive adequate support from a well-chosen company.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—A capital variety company is appearing here, headed by the Brothers Poluski, who always get a good reception here. Billy Farrell is another attraction; while others in the bill are Charles Jackson, Dale and Vale, Lottie Govell, Geo. Goodfellow, Jennie Gregson, and Jack Crawley; the Erascope has some fresh views.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Donne.—At the top of the bill here is the one and only Joe Elvin, who is making a big hit as the New Boy in Obedient Billy. Miss Lillie Lassah creates considerable enthusiasm with "Hear the pipers calling, Jenny mine"; George Gilbey ranks as one of the quaintest comic singers engaged here for some time past; the Three Sisters Leigh prove very attractive. Maude Vera, coon artist; Harry Melville, descriptive vocalist; and Hill and Lane, in Home Lessons, complete the variety artists. A capital concluding item is provided in pictures by the Edisonograph.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and Miss Octavia Kenmore's company on Monday opened a week's engagement in Sowing the Wind. Miss Kenmore gives a very acceptable study of the part of Rosamund; Mr. Lovel's Mr. Brabazon is a sound and dignified piece of acting; Mr. Watkin is impersonated with great success by Mr. Henry Osman; Mr. Frederick Sargent is the very embodiment of gallant, impulsive, ingenuous youth as Ned Annesley; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood as Sir Richard Cursitor is a convincing horsey buck of the period; Mr. Arthur McCulloch as Lord Petworth presents a good picture of an elderly roué of the 'thirties; Miss Ethel Savill has a deliciously fatuous giggle as the country miss, Maud Fretwell; and Miss Celia Gordon does well as the Hon. Mrs. Fretwell. Minor parts are ably filled by Miss Mary Maine (Bridget), Mr. Clement Talbot (Deakin), Mr. Arnold West (Glossop), and Mr. Frank Webber (Webb).

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's powerful company in When a Man Hates is here this week. Mr. Arthur Hinton as Pietro Danelli gives a highly-finished portrayal; Mr. Travis Green plays Detective Smart very successfully, Mr. Gerald Byrne excellently embodies Paul, Mr. Graham Arthur is capital as Laurence Hasting, Sir Rupert Treherne is wisely entrusted to Mr. Pleon Gaine. As Peter Pimple Mr. Frank Bruneil is irresistibly droll, and is cleverly supported by Miss Florence Lillwood; Miss Lelia Lilwood is a graceful Olga Gynne, Miss Lydia Andre sympathetically presents Letty, the white angel.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan.—Mr. Sidney Dench's company was here the first three nights of the week with the drama The Rich and Poor of London. Mr. Walter Foster does good work as Mark Stanley; Mr. Robert Hall displays histrionic abilities as Dr. Leonard Morton; Miss Dora Dench wins much applause with her fine acting as May Braithwaite; Mr. Sidney Dench, a smart comedian, scores as Spider Jack; Miss Lillian Burns does well as Polly Philpot; and Miss Emily Woodleigh is worthy of mention as Auntie Shrimp. Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company appeared on Thursday and Friday in The Swiss Express.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company played Under Two Flags on the first three nights of the week, and on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday presented the naval drama, A Sailor's Sweetheart. On Monday night Mr. Mark Blow made a hit in the rôle of Louis Victor, a part he played with consummate skill. He was admirably seconded by the dashing Cigarette of Miss Molly Pearson, a study which eminently suited this charming actress. The difficult character of the Silver Pheasant was most gracefully undertaken by Miss Mabel Ormonde; Miss Ida Ernest was a sprightly maid, Mr. Arthur Elwyn was well placed as the Black Hawk, and Mr. C. Young Fixott made ample use of his opportunities as Rake.

THE HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece.—The programme this week is well balanced, and is attracting full houses. The Pasquali Brothers give an exceptionally fine exhibition of expert balancing and tumbling, and the equestrian sketch introducing Claude Ginnett's "Rejected Remounts" is very funny indeed. Natalia and Diana are a couple of clever aerial gymnasts, and Chas. Sloman is a creditable comedian; Clara Walters (a trick pianist of ability), Vi Carlyle (in a dainty little song scena), and Lilian Boanas (a ballad singer of merit) are also in the bill.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company are appearing here this week in the farcical comedy The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Harry Hampson is a really excellent Dick Whorties, whilst as Joseph Carbury Mr. Percy Marshall is very funny. Mr. Lawrence Brough as Le Baron de Longueville is an ideal Frenchman, his difficulties with the English language being highly enjoyable; and as Toby Krockitt Mr. Herold McNay is clever. Mr. Charles Groves, jun., gives entire satisfaction as John Humbert; Miss Daisy Cooke is a winsome and attractive Lady of Ostend, and as Jane Miss Vera George is excellent. Miss Dorcas Corsbie as Matilda Carbury is a typical mother-in-law, and Miss Edith Ormonde is a pretty Millie Grace. Miss Moyra Creegan as Dorothy Whorties acquits herself with commendable ability. At the Risin' of the Moon is an acceptable curtain-raiser. The Cruise of the Saucy Sally was billed for Friday night, when the performance was under distinguished patronage.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Secretary, Mr. T. W. Welford.—Messrs. Cooper and Edison's No. 1 variety company is here this week with the following talented artists; Madame Louie, thought-reader and clairvoyant; Sabino, musical marvel, and his little black coon; Mr. J. Hastings, female impersonator; and Mons. Grigolo, comedy boy juggler. The entertainment concludes with a highly interesting cinematograph show.

CORK.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—Diabutsu, Japanese wrestler, proves himself a clever exponent of Ju-Jitsu wrestling, and challenges any man to stand up before him for 10 minutes. Lil O'Gorman, vocalist and dancer, supplies an acceptable turn; Leighton and Mona, tramp and soubrette, are humorous; Charlie Dillon, character-vocalist, sings some good songs; Bertha Stuart, over from last week, continues to please in her songs; Leslie Murray, magician, performs a number of tricks with dexterity; Marie Winsome gains appreciation as a male impersonator; Erine Plummer, ball puncher, gives a capital exhibition, and the Three Celtics submit a laughable musical comedy act.

COVENTRY.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—In a nautical scena, entitled The Skipper's Birthday, a number of talented artists contribute some capital songs and dances, also a sword and cutlass exhibition. Miss Millie Payne is a favourite comedienne; the Frantz Troupe of acrobats accomplish some clever tricks; the English Quartette are well received; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Courtney appear in their farcical sketch The New Doctor; Paul Pelham gives a dramatic monologue, The End; G. W. Kenway scores with some clever imitations of music-hall artists; the Sisters Charnley are duettists and dancers; Mr. Charles Mitchello is a clever comedian; and Edney and Wade are vocalists and dancers.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Hall Caine's play The Christian is proving a welcome attraction at this house. It is being presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. The cast is a particularly strong one, including Miss Grace Murille in an excellent rendering of Glory Quayle. She is ably supported by Mr. Alfred Goddard as John Storm. Mr. Percy Twyman makes a polished and well-bred villain as Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Duncan Yarrow is seen to advantage as Horatio Drake; Miss Florence Radcliffe shows capability as Polly Love; and a number of other characters are suitably represented. What might have been a serious accident happened on Monday, when one-half of the side scenery fell on three members of the company, but, fortunately, they were not injured.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. F. H. Neville and company are here this week with A Queen's Vengeance. Mr. F. H. Neville himself takes the part of Sir Rupert Warriner in a pleasing manner; Mrs. Walter Bentley is very good as Eleanor Queen of England; and Mr. R. Nelme Grasswell enacts the part of Henry II. of England in a masterly manner. Mr. Gifforde Reynolds as Gilbert Ormonde has a part well suited to him, and gives several capital songs. We are impressed by Miss Annie Lea's dancing in Act II., and by Miss Mildred Monteath's acting as Mistress Clifford—Fair Rosamund. As her faithful attendant Janet Jessop Miss Flora Clinton excels herself. Mr. Arthur Bell fully justifies his selection for the character of Sir Martin Clifford. Mr. Alf Russell makes a capital Bibeau, and Mr. F. Moore shows to advantage as Geoffrey Tunner.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company, in The 10.30 Down Express, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Charles Burdon acts well the part of Jack O'Malley; and Mr. George Arthur is quite capable as the villainous James Inderwick. Mr. Alric Burton portrays with effect the rôle of Cuthbert Leigh; and Mr. Horace Stanley gives an excellent representation of Sam Wagstaffe. Mr. Claud Haviland as Huntley Mason is an ideal detective; and Mr. Tom Royden as Seth Coombes proves an able accomplice to the villain. Mr. Arthur E. Francis worthily represents the character of Bletherly Baggs; Miss Elsie Capell is an accomplished Bessie Leigh, and displays considerable talent; Miss Kate Kilpack gives a clever impersonation of Peggy Potts; and Miss Evelyn M. Walton is lifelike as Letitia Leigh. Miss Clara Santley as Olive Coombes claims recognition.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is paying a welcome return visit with A Royal Divorce. The scenery, dresses, and effects call for special mention. Mr. Frank Lister gives a carefully-studied rendering of Napoleon; Mr. F. Joynsen-Powell smartly plays the part of Talleyrand; Mr. George W. Cockburn cleverly enacts the rôle of Marquis de Beaumont; Mr. George Howard is well placed as General Augereau; Mr. St. George Frere is great as Marshal Murat; and Mr. T. P. Haynes is amusing as Grimaud. Miss Edith Cole acts with judgment and artistic skill as the Empress Josephine; Miss Clara Earle makes a winsome Stephanie; Miss Irma Foldi is charming as Blanche d'Hervas; Miss Elizabeth Watson is effective as Marie Louise; and the remaining rôles are in capable hands.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—The boards here are occupied by Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy. Mr. Walter Boyce is good as General Garston; Mr. Cecil W. Parke is praiseworthy as Captain George Fielding; Mr. Henry C. Ward is rightly placed as Captain Edward Dudley; Mr. Alf. Stretton is accurate as Hawkins; Mr. Frank Howard is seen to advantage as Featherstone Haugh; Mr. W. George Hearson deserves a word of praise as Smith; Miss Norah Caronne is first rate as Ruth Montrose; and Miss Dorothy Desmonde is bright and attractive in the title-rôle. Miss Nellie Harcourt may be warmly congratulated upon her excellent singing, dancing, and acting as Judith; and Mr. Will Brereton keeps the house agog with merriment as Silas Crump. Misses Mabel Blake and Ada Coral give a clever mirror illusion dance.

PUBLIC HALL. — On Monday and Tuesday Mr. Albert Chevalier and company presented a variety entertainment which won approval. Mr. Chevalier was ably supported by Miss Ethel Walker, Miss Winifred Ingham, Mr. Harry Brett, Mr. Arthur Brankston, Mr. Alfred H. West, and Master Bertie Baxter.

DARLINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell. — Mr. George Dance's company, in The Girl from Kay's, is presented here. Miss Lily Edmonds as Winnie Harborough merits praise for her delineation; Mr. J. W. Hooper as Max Hoggenheimer causes roars of laughter; Miss Irene Vere, a graceful dancer, sings well in her part of Ellen; Miss Maud Leonard is energetic in the part of Mrs. Chalmers; Mr. Hart as Frank is funny; Mr. H. Jennings as the page boy acts ably; Mr. Austin Herbert as Archie Pembridge is excellent; and Mr. E. Forde as McChalmers is most enjoyable.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robinson.—Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company is here this week with a military drama entitled The Two Hussars. Mr. J. Stuart is good as Colonel Manners; Mr. F. J. Webb gives an excellent rendering of the heavy part of Capt. Paul Villiers; Mr. Benge, who undertakes the rôle of Harry Alford, soon wins the sympathy of the audience. Miss Sadie Smith makes a manly Will; Miss Lallah Price is funny as Mollie; whilst Miss Danvers-Smith's acting leaves little to be desired.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. George Dance's company is presenting here this week the popular musical comedy Lady Madcap. Miss Vera Vere plays the title-rôle with both vigour and vivacity; Mr. H. V. Surrey as Oroya Brown, or Trooper Smith as he is known, is delightfully droll; Mr. Ray Russell as Stratford, the bogus millionaire, acquits himself in first-class style; and Mr. Fred Payne plays Posh Jenkins with unequivocal success. Count de St. Hubert is charmingly accounted for by Mr. Alex Chentrens, whose vocal efforts are as novel as they are acceptable. Mr. Vincent Erne as Corporal Ham is a capital comedian and an exceptionally clever dancer; Miss Peggy Primrose is as pleasing as she is pretty in the part of Susan, and her duets with both the Corporal and Stratford are amongst the outstanding features of the piece. Miss Kathleen Ronayne is in every way praiseworthy as Miss Holden. The chorus, a powerful one, is under the conductorship of Mr. Alfred C. Toone. The piece is beautifully dressed and mounted.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—The Borghetti Troupe of acrobats are the attraction here this week. J. K. Reynolds, who is excellently supported by Miss Adele Rhead, in a sensational episode, entitled The Bigamist, is to be congratulated upon a successful performance; Silvo, a soloist on musical glasses, meets with a hearty reception. The other items include Tom Collins, character comedian; Sisters Tinsley, pleasing comediennes and dancers; Lee and Arden, an amusing comedy duo; Beattie Kent, an agreeable comedienne and dancer; and the Palace Bioscope, with several entertaining films.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. Bert Albert Rutley's company is here this week with the musical comedy burlesque An English Belle. Miss Gerty Wasley is a graceful and captivating Alice; and Miss Jessie de Grey has all the necessary dash and go to make the part of Jack interesting. The company includes several good comedians, among whom Mr. Dan Whitley easily holds first place for his eccentric Consul. Mr. Will Redmond is a humorous Sunny Jim; Mr. W. E. Matthews as P.C. Nabim is funny in his burlesque drama; and Mr. Albert Rutley is a capable Squire Hardacre. Miss S. Sanger as Mrs. Oldfield does well; Miss Lena Roseberry is good as Dolly Fairweather; and Miss Gerty Maynard is a satisfactory Tom.

THE EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Empire Palace Co.; Manager, Mr. P. G. Wraith; Secretary, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—Billie Taylor, the electric comedian, tops the bill this week; Ray and Franklin win success in their celebrated scena; Mitz, the juggling Jap, is responsible for an exceedingly clever turn; and the Two Rubies are capable dancers and duettists. A scena, entitled Dick Whittington, introduces Miss Marie Roseberry as principal boy, and includes a highly-trained cat; a charming performance is given by Melita, an exceedingly skilful dancer; the Two Leons please with their duets; and Charles B. Kay's "Beautiful tale of love" is well received.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—An attractive programme is presented here this week, the principal position being allotted to Alec Hurley and Co., in The Costers' Beanfeast. The Gotham Comedy Quartette causes much amusement; and George Fairburn is a mimic of no mean order. Virginia and piccaninnies sing and dance in clever style; and the Carina Sisters do a good musical act; the D'Osta Troupe of ring performers meet with appreciation; and Mr. Henry A. Moore is an accomplished actor-vocalist. Gruber's elephant, horse, and pony give an interesting show; and Frank Cumminger is an expert sand dancer. The animated pictures are entertaining.

EMPIRE.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Marsh. — Fred Karno's Troupe tops the bill here this week, and creates much laughter nightly in the sketch Moses and Son. The Royal Six, lady vocalists and cyclists, receive well-merited applause; and W. H. Clemart is a ventriloquist of more than ordinary merit. The musical turn of Frazer and Mac is highly amusing; and the Sisters St. Julian, duettists and dancers, are warmly received. Charles Lilburn is an up-to-date comedian; and the Empire pictures attain the usual standard.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—A big attraction here this week is the Four Kweeries, in an interesting illusionary act, which is well received; another excellent turn is supplied by Wieland, American comedy juggler; and the vocal items of Gracie Taylor elicit applause. Les Bollingers give an exceedingly smart performance; and Harry Maxam is a successful comedian. The Calcotis are instrumentalists of ability; and Barney Stuart is as big a favourite as ever. Other capital turns are Vincert, acrobatic table expert; Mark Leslie, swell coon vocalist; and Mephisto, contortionist.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company here includes Clarke and Artic, Continental drolls; Percy Anderson, ventriloquist; Leopold Brothers, American musicians; Mme. Hippa, thought reader; Frank Artie, eccentric comedian; and the American giantess.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The artists engaged here are Paul Vincent, sleigh bell performer; the Brothers Bailey, musical grotesques; Hyam Merry, comedian; Harry Osborne, eccentric comedian; and the Two Sunbeams, International dancers; and the Sisters Grenville, vocalists and dancers.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are appearing in Shakespearean plays here this week. On Monday Sheridan Knowles' tragedy Virginius was performed. To say that Mr. Tearle was in the title-rôle is sufficient to vouch for the success of the play. Principal among numerous other characters were Mr. Richard Vane, who as Appius Claudius acted the part admirably; Mr. Spencer Geach as Caius Claudius gave a masterly rendering; and Miss Esther Tearle submitted an excellent portrayal of the difficult and pathetic part of Virginia.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy Acting-Manager, Mr. Rhodes Wells.—Lawrence Barclay, eccentric comedian, is at the top of the bill here, while Rubie and Elsie Redfern, vocalists and dancers, occupy the bottom, both turns being of a first-class order. The Three Seymours give an exceedingly clever original act; Mabel Hind is a very dainty comedienne with good songs and dances; Allen Hanbury, comedian, amuses the audience; Spencer and Marks, the stage-struck waifs, are very good; and Ada Maude, descriptive vocalist, is well received. The Empire Bioscope pictures are much appreciated.

DUMFRIES. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company opened on Monday in The Taming of the Shrew. Mr. Henry Herbert as Petruchio played his part in a very creditable manner; Mr. Gerald Ames as Hortensio acted with much excellence; Mr. James Amand was smart as Tranio; Miss Dorothy Green gave an admirable portrayal of Katharine; Miss Kate Turner was winsome as Bianca. On Tuesday The Merry Wives of Windsor and on Wednesday Macbeth were played.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—A melodrama, entitled A Path of Thorns, is the attraction here this week. Mr. William Fazan gives a powerful portrayal as John Edmunds; Mr. F. Gilbert Fenn as the Rev. Frank Selby is the kind-hearted, outspoken parson to the life; Mr. Gordon Kay Bull as Sam Hallet is most successful with the broad Lancashire dialect; and Mr. Frank Gordon submits a capital study of Jim Price. Miss Muriel Dean is most sympathetic as Bessie Edmunds; Miss Evelyn Shaw as Jane Adelaide is humorous; Miss Marion Ryder does well as Lucy, her song and dance being encored; and Miss Kitty Lofting and Miss Ernie Leslie are effective as the two sisters.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Ben Harris's Nippers, the top-liners here this week, display versatility in their sketch A Promising Pupil; Atroy gives an astonishing juggling display; Mlle. Violi is an instrumentalist of great ability; the Sisters Llewellyn are a charming pair of vocalists; and Mystery Gauze meets with much approval. Bob de Ora gives a clever gymnastic act; and the bill is completed by Harry Zetter, comedian, Rosie Richards, and Vernon's Animated Pictures.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The Elster-Grime Opera company remains for a second week. The operas performed during the week include Faust, Cavalleria Rusticana, Carmen, and Les Cloches de Corneville. On Monday a fine performance of The Lily of Killarney was given. Miss Kathleen Emmet was well suited in the part of Eily O'Connor, possessing a charming appearance and a capital voice; Mr. Michael Kemble's powerful baritone was heard to advantage in the solos assigned to Danny Mann; Miss Edmée de Dreux was very successful as Mrs. Cregan; and Miss Lynham made an excellent Ann Chute. Mr. F. S. Gilbert played Myles-na-Coppaleen in the first house, and Mr. Payne Clark in the second, both gentlemen displaying vocal and histrionic ability. Mr. Gilbert King made a dignified Father Tom; and Mr. Harry Murphy displayed a well-trained voice. Mr. Edward Grime conducted with his customary tact and success.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A powerful drama, entitled The Trail of the Serpent, is being staged here this week. Mr. Wilfred Cheeham as the villain, Ralph Hammond, is a clever actor; Mr. J. F. Asher gives a fine portrayal of Gerald Kingston; Miss Marjorie May is excellent as Mrs. Kingston; and Miss Ethel Stuart also proves herself to be an actress of ability.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Durward Lely and Mr. William Mollison's company is appearing here in Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush. A very large share of praise must be given Mr. William Mollison for his sound, commendable work as Lachlan Campbell, and he holds the interest of the audience in a firm grip. Very happy and effective work is done by Mr. Allen Thomas as Doctor Maclure; Mr. Alec novel "When It Was Dark." Mr. Powell himself appears in the character of Constantine Schawbe, and gives a capital performance. He is well supported by Mr. T. A. Shannon as the Rev. Basile Gortre, who is responsible for a very earnest representation; as Sir Robert Lewellyn Mr. Edward Valentine is forcible, and Mr. H. J. Butler capably represents the part of the Rev. Mr. Byars. Other parts are well played by Mr. Arthur Lenville, Mr. Frank Reece, and Mr. F. Biron. Mrs. Morton Powell gives a fine all-round performance as Helena Byars, and Miss Ethel Rainforth is to be complimented on her impersonation of Gracie Goldeye. The parts of Lodo Lumley and Lady Lewellyn are in the capable hands of Miss Alice Hudspeth and Miss Isabel Taylor respectively.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Eugène C. Stafford is presenting Lucky Miss Dean here this week to good houses. Miss Dora Gray gives a charming rendering of the title-rôle; Miss Estelle Despa is an excellent Lady Ashmole; Mr. William E. Ashcroft ably portrays the character of Frederick Ware; Mr. W. T. Elworthy is successful as Percival Chancy; Mr. Vivian Gilbert is a capital Horace Chancy; and Wilfred Ashmole is capably presented by Mr. Cyril Price-Evans. The comedy is preceded by a farce entitled My American Admirer.

GATESHEAD.—Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. Esmond Bramley's company is drawing good audiences here. On Monday Richard III. was played, Mr. Cyril Este being in the title-part. His exposition was excellent, and won for him hearty applause. Another favourite was Mr. Balliol Holloway, who doubled the parts of the Duke of Clarence and Henry of Richmond. Mr. F. Owen Chambers was a handsome Buckingham, and Mr. Llewellyn Evans filled the part of Catesby with good effect. Messrs. Philip Gordon, Frederick Scarth, and Leonard Cheetham did well in their respective parts. Miss Millie Ford portrayed Lady Anne, and proved herself a capable actress; Miss Maud Garth's impersonation of Elizabeth made a deep impression; Misses May Beatrice and Ruth Nightingale are worthy of special comment for their acting as the Princes Edward and Richard; Mrs. Bernard Parkin was a motherly Duchess of York. On Tuesday Romeo and Juliet was staged, on Wednesday The Merchant of Venice, on Thursday Hamlet, on Friday The Merry Wives of Windsor, and to-night (Saturday) Romeo and Juliet will again occupy the boards.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—This house is invariably well patronised, but its holding capacity is being taxed to the utmost this week, during which Mr. Tom H. Taylor is presenting The Female Swindler. Mr. Henry C. Cooper wins great applause for his spirited portrayal of Jack Coulson, the detective; Mr. Bernard Dunstan gives a good impersonation of the Jew Mikestein, and Mr. Paul Beckitt does well as Harold Travers. Mr. Hugh Mewburn presents a careful study of Geoffrey Warden, the villain, and Mr. A. Kenyon Gray is well placed as James Oliver. The comedy element is thoroughly looked after by Mr. Luke Forster (who also stage-manages) as Billy, Miss Amy Maitland as Mary Ann Mee. Miss Grace E. Leslie presents a very striking picture of Lu Valroy, the swindler, and Miss Florrie Kelsey is a delightful May Andrews. The scenery and effects are excellent.

GILLINGHAM. — The Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. F. Monti and Co.; Lessee, Mr. D. S. Cooper; General-Manager, Mr. Roy Cochrane.—Mr. Fred D'Arcy and Mr. Fred J. Little's company is appearing here in the powerful drama The Executioner's Daughter. The title-rôle is admirably undertaken by Miss Ina Grant, Miss Evelyn Robson makes a striking success as Felice, and Miss Beattie Moore as Christina, the cripple, elicits the sympathy of the audience. Mr. Duncan Bell gives an excellent representation of Roche, the executioner; Mr. Juan de Alberti is creditable as the unscrupulous Felix Marius; Mr. W. S. Stevenson submits a clever rendering of Kretch, Mr. G. Stapleton Roche as Vivian Ormonde makes a typical dude, and Mr. Victor R. C. Moore is highly commendable as Paul Rovel. Mr. Willie Hicks as Tom Holmes and Miss May Rosine as Sally King deserve much praise for their genuine comedy.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The second week of the Moody-Manners Opera company opened with a particularly fine performance of Carmen, to a house crowded in every part. Mlle. De Lussan repeated her well-known rendering of the title-rôle, and was in splendid voice; Mr. Joseph O'Mara was the Don Jose, and vocally and dramatically was worthy of the highest praise; Mr. Lewys James, as Escamillo sang with excellent effect; a charming and sweet-voiced Michaela was found in Miss Kate Anderson; Misses D. Irving and E. Alvord were well placed as Frasquita and Mercedes, and the large chorus and orchestra were kept well in hand by Mr. Cuthbert Hawley. Tuesday was devoted to an elaborate revival of The Flying Dutchman, with Mr. William Ludwig in his famous rôle, and Madame De Vere, Mr. John Child, and Mr. Charles Magrath in the other leading parts. On Wednesday Tschaikowsky's Eugen Onegin, the novelty of this visit, was repeated, and Lucia di Lammermoor, Faust, Bohemian Girl, and a repetition of The Flying Dutchman complete the week.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's Gay Parisienne company is fulfilling a week's engagement at this theatre. The opening performance on Monday evening was a most successful one. Mr. Tom Conway infused plenty of humour into the part of Ebenezer Honeycombe, and was ably supported by Mme. Ilma Norina as Mrs. Honeycombe; the Major Fossdyke of Mr. Charles Adeson was a very amusing performance. Mr. Adeson acted and looked the part extremely well. Miss Nellie Hodson, as Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon, gave a spirited interpretation of the gay Frenchwoman; Miss Lucia Collins as Norah, Miss James as Anna (the servant), and Mr. Lester Carey as Tom Everleigh (the barrister) all did well.

Grand, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—On Monday the Carl Rosa Opera Company entered on the third and last week of a prosperous season at this house. The opera was Beethoven's Fidelio, and again a very complete and masterly performance was given—indeed, the success of this beautiful work has been the most notable feature of the present visit, it having been played four times in all, and twice instead of other operas. The title-rôle was taken by Miss Grace Nicoll, who sang her music with exquisite tenderness and pathos, the other lady of the cast being Miss Ina Hill, whose voice and appearance gave charm to the part of Marcellina. Herr Julius Walther was the tenor, and gave an exceptionally fine portrayal of the touching part of Don Florestan, while the rich, melodious notes of Mr. Arthur Winckworth were heard to advantage in the part of Rocco. The Don Pizarro of Mr. Charles Victor was a strikingly dramatic conception, and the parts of Don Fernando (Mr. Frederick Clendon) and Jaquino (Mr. Arthur Hyde) were equal to the high standard of the performance of which Mr. Walter Van Noorden was conductor. Fidelio was repeated on Friday, and during the week Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, Tristan and Isolda, and Don Giovanni were staged.

King's, Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—The Compton Comedy company is once again attracting large and enthusiastic audiences here. On Monday David Garrick was presented, and the tokens of appreciation were frequent. Mr. Edward Compton, as David Garrick, against displayed his ripe experience and artistic ability, and Miss Mackenzie gave a sympathetic reading of Violet Gresham; Mr. Henry Crocker was excellent as Alderman Gresham, and the Hon. Tom Tallyhant was ably interpreted by Mr. A. B. Imeson. Mr. Herbert Pigot as Rumbelow and Mr. Arnold Lucy as Sowerberry were amusing, as also was Mr. G. Wallace Johnston as Simkins. Miss Marie Hassell was successful as Mrs. Rumbelow. Miss Muriel Meek sustained well the part of Selina. The play was preceded by the one-act comedy. The Desperate Lover. She Stoops to Conquer, Money, The Rivals, New Men and Old Acres, and The School for Scandal were also presented during the week, especial interest centring in the revival of New Men and Old Acres, which had not been seen here for a long time.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The company, superintended by the American-Indian actress, Go-Wen-Go-Mohawk, is here this week with that talented lady playing her usual title-rôle of Wep-Ton-No-Mah, in which she gives a graphic representation of an Indian boy. A fine old soldierly figure is that of Colonel Stockton, as played by Mr. C. W. Charles; Mr. Edward Leroy, as Spanish Joe, is a highly picturesque rascal; while Mr. I. Shawcross, as Capt. Franklin, admirably embodies the wild and impecunious youth. Miss Dora Pass, as a mature spinster, electrifies the audience with her comic acting and singing, while Miss Minnie Goepel makes a vivaciously pleasing Nellie Stockton. Mr. Guy D. Hackney, as Sam White, the negro, is an amusing actor and singer, and so is Mr. Dan Ryan, as the lively Irishman, Garry Cullen.

Metropole.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is again here with the strong drama Honour thy Father. As Gabriel Garth, Mr. J. W. Evelyn, the manly, independent, and sympathetic farmer, makes an ideal exponent of the part, and as his wife Mrs. Clavering Craig shares a well-deserved success in the portrayal of their joint sorrows. In Jack Halyard, Mr. Douglas B. Watson is at his best, and is responsible for several telling scenes. Mr. Clavering Craig as Duncan Bly enacts a very strong and villainous rôle to the life. Mr. W. H. Melrose as Ned and Miss Lizzie Morley as Poppy are capital in some comedy scenes, and greatly relieve the tension of the play. Mr. W. M. Cameron has many touches of infinite comedy in a part bristling with opportunities. He misses none, and scores well. Mr. Claude Merton is powerful as George Bloggs in the asylum scene; his Job Merry is also capital. Miss Mabel Coleman as Lilian and Miss Winnie Donovan as Merry Merry sustain their parts in a striking way.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—This week a special production of East Lynne is given here, in which Miss Lillian Herries contributes a clever study of the part of Lady Isabel. Of special interest to Govan playgoers is the fact that the popular manager of this theatre, Mr. J. H. Oakden, appears as Archibald Carlyle, and Miss Lily Roselle (Mrs. Oakden) as Barbara Hare, both performances being of outstanding merit. Mr. J. Knox Orde as Levison duly emphasises the scheming treachery of that character; Miss Jenny Macintyre as Cornelia Carlyle, Mr. Max Copland as Justice Hare, and Mr. R. Cathcart as Policeman X. Rays infuse considerable comedy into the play.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Limited; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—A first-class company is here this week, the chief attraction being the engagement of the Staleys in their musical transformation speciality; W. F. Frame has had a most flattering reception; an exceptionally clever performance is given on the slack-wire by the Cole De Losse Duo (comedians); and a daring juggling act is introduced by Mlle. Olive; the dancing of Anna Kenwick is much applauded. The other members of the company include Jessie Merrilees (comedienne), Starr and Leslie (Indian club performers), Little Barney Armstrong (comedian), Harding and Ah-sid (American eccentrics), Bob Hutt (comedian), and the series of animated pictures on the American bioscope is well received.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss's Empires, Limited, and E. H. Bostock.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The principal item this week is a thrilling historical sketch representing the murder of David Rizzio in the presence of Mary Queen of Scots. The unfortunate Queen is depicted by Mrs. Brown Potter with intense effect. Fyne and Hurley excite fun in a little sketch called Coster and Dude; the Knick Knacks are a pair of amusing eccentric singers and dancers; Harry Russell and company present a funny sketch called Binks' Blunder. Professor Abdy conducts a canine circus, and imitates the songsters of the grove. Daisy Mayer gives some loud Yankee songs and dances with much animation; Chas. Vincent is amusingly clever, and is well received; Mlle. Marvell shows what can be done in the training of birds, and A. D. Robins performs some astonishing cycle feats. The bioscope concludes a pleasant entertainment.

Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The energetic management here have introduced what is a novelty to Glasgow, a permanent ladies' choir, who, seated in the corners of the stage, give enjoyable vocal selections, and also join in the choruses of the artists' songs when required. The innovation is being much appreciated. Annie Purcell heads a good bill, and her various songs are heartily applauded. George Leyton's military scena, in which he introduces a local Crimean veteran, is again a highly popular item. Farley, Rennie, and Farley give their smart knockabout sketch Fun at a Railway Station; Sid Cotterell and company cause roars of laughter with their lively farce The Substitute; Marguerite Ismay and her coons give a clever turn; Terras Bros. do well in an acrobatic and balancing display; the Passports are smart eccentric dancers; Conan and Doyle score as patterers; and Hughes and Elliott are smart buck and sand dancers.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan.—In place of Dan Rolyat (indisposed) an excellent star turn is found in May Edouin and Fred Edwards, in their clever sketch A Bachelor's Dream, which was most heartily appreciated. The Novellos present their elaborate scena India in Europe, in which trained elephants, ponies, and dogs ably assist the artists in their various feats. Chas. Fisher's operatic trio give an enjoyable turn, including a pretty song from Nanon, and terminating with a selection from Faust. The Sisters Finney contribute some smart swimming and diving feats; Alice Maydue does well in a coster ditty; Rauschle gives several good impersonations of famous men; Cooke and Rothert are a lively American couple, with a lot of new business; Mamie Cannon gives some neat musical imitations, and the Urma Sisters are graceful gymnasts.

Palace.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Rich. Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. M'Kelvie.—The programme provided here this week includes Regan and Ryan, comedians, who occupy the place of honour, and meet with a flattering reception. Ada Fawn, serio, also makes a good appearance. The other members of a capital programme include Sid Banden, comedian; the Lowenwirth Bros., Hebrew comedians; George Barrington, musical expert; the Musical Jees, eccentrics; Keen and Waller, acrobats; Dolly. Agnes, and Maud, factory nightingales; Sibb and Sibb, trapeze artists; Muir and Bartlett, sketch artists; Rowland Hill, eccentric comedian, and the animatograph are also here.

Queen's.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. T. J. Colquhoun and B. M. Armstrong.—Jack Lorimer tops the bill, and adds nightly to his popularity; in Charles Chard, a comedian of much ability, he is strongly opposed, but their business is entirely different. Miss Annie Casey is a comedienne of ability with a pleasing style, while Miss Patti Yole repeats former successes as a singer and dancer. A clever novelty turn is given by Mlle. Ameda, which is particularly pleasing and graceful; as swing dancers the Bros. Deane—the White Boys—score; top-boot dances and singing mark the Lessors as sterling artists; and Edie Emden sings well, and excels as an acrobatic dancer. Ina Lorimer, who gives a series of Scotch songs, is loudly encored; the well-known trio, Ross, Taylor, and Elvio, are extremely funny in their Slavey sketch, which brings a well-patronised programme to a merry close.

Tivoli. — Lessee, Mr. B. M. Armstrong. — Two strong stars in the boxing line are Ben Jordan and Jabez White, who have given excellent displays nightly against all comers. The Tom Davies Trio introduce their sensational "cycling in mid-air" turn, and most of the other items in the programme are included in the bill at the Queen's.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds are presenting here the popular play Passion's Power. Mr. William Clayton as Prince Kandos gives a finished performance; Mr. Frank Radcliffe as General Zuran is well placed; and Mr. Walter Roberts as Rudolph Laski supplies a natural piece of acting. Mr. Stephen Scanlan as Michael Laski gives a good delineation of the villain; Mr. Henry Howard is excellent as Patrice; Mr. Frank Gardner as Jacopo, and Mr. Arthur Loury as Prosper, are seen to advantage; Mr. Ernest Dare as Felix deserves commendation; Mr. Henry Merlin as Ivan is good; Miss Lowe Dare causes much amusement as Lucie; Miss Stella Carmichael as Countess Delaunay acts in a praiseworthy manner; Miss Ruth Shepperd as Zorah Varno submits an artistic portrayal of the arduous part. Preceding the play, and between the acts, animated pictures are shown on the Rayograph.

GLOUCESTER. — Theatre Royal. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea. —The Stowaway is this week presented by a clever all-round company, headed by Miss Winifred Maude and Mr. Victor Du Cane. The latter enacts the title-rôle in a praiseworthy manner; Miss Maude is effective as Althea Dale; Mr. Edward Avinal gives an excellent rendition of Charles Etherington; and Tom Inglis is played in manly style by Mr. Royce Carleton. A realistic impersonation of Job Hickey is given by Mr. Edward Finlay; Miss Marie Lyons as Florence Etherington is especially good in the third act; and Miss Amy Corallie acts with much sprightliness as Chucky.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Jno. E. Tomlinson.—A strong attraction is provided here this week in the return visit of Messrs. A. Northway and W. V. Garrod's company, in The Prodigal Parson. Mr. W. V. Garrod is well fitted for the part of the Rev. Tom Godley, and plays in a natural and convincing manner; Mr. A. Northway gives a powerful impersonation of the unscrupulous schemer, Enoch Jaggins; Mr. F. Dallas plays the part of Ben Jaggins with well-marked effect; Mr. Claremont Gaskell, in the light comedy rôle of Phil Drive, keeps the house highly amused, being ably assisted by Miss May Grayce, a bright and entertaining Gretchen. Mr. W. Vincent is good as Ned Kettlepin; and Mr. Thos. Ashton makes a capital George Markby. Miss Bertha Kingston contributes a delightful piece of acting as Fern Godley; and little Gladys Conover as Myrtle Godley quickly wins the sympathy of her audience. The Radium Girls, acrobatic dancers, add greatly to the success. Songs are successfully introduced by Miss Bertha Kingston in the Biergarten scene.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is paying a return visit with the sensational drama, The Span of Life. Richard Blunt is ably represented by Mr. Sanderson Moffat; Mr. R. S. Trelawney is excellent as Dunstan Leech; Mr. Walter Dale presents Nutty Brown in amusing fashion; and Joshua Gurnet is capitally played by Mr. Edwin T. Kisby. Miss Phyllis Graham is admirable as Cecil Jeff; Cecil Blunt is charmingly acted by Miss May Moffatt; the rôle of Mrs. Jelf is cleverly assumed by Miss Harriet Russell; Miss Kitty Russell contributes an able character-study as Shrove Tuesday; and Miss Phyllis Hamilton gives a natural and sympathetic rendering of Kate Heathcote.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. H. B. and J. J. Wright.—By permission of Mrs. D'Oyly Carte the Greenock Amateur Operatic Society is giving performances of Iolanthe in aid of local charities at the above theatre this week.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—George Leyton's company, in the sketch The Phonograph Girl, tops the bill here, and provides excellent entertainment, being assisted by the Lottie Stone troupe of dancers. Other items of a first-class bill are Coram, a very clever ventriloquist; George Ide, a capable baritone vocalist; the Gibson troupe of dancers; the Bouncing Dillons, somersault experts; and the Glasgow Match Girl, vocalist.

Pavilion Theatre.—Lessees, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The principal turn here this week is by Mr. F. V. St. Clair, song-composer and comedian, and his performance evokes loud applause; Diamond and Beatrice are a clever pair of instrumentalists; Talberto and Douglas, comedians, are amusing; Alex Luke, vocalist, sings well; the George Power company smartly play a piece entitled Matrimonial Bliss; Vesta Fay, male impersonator, does a good turn; and the same can be said of Mark Lane, comedian, and Nancy St. John, comedienne and dancer.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The Earl and the Girl has been very well received upon its first visit here, and has been presented in highly satisfactory fashion by Mr. William Greet's company. Mr. Alfred Donohoe, in the central character of Jim Cheese, accomplishes some capital burlesque acting; whilst Mr. Percy Bronson's impersonation of Downham is an excellent study of American cuteness. Mr. Greville Hayes as A. Bunker Bliss is also successful as a delineator of Yankee character of a different type. Mr. Leslie Gaze as Dick Wargreave and Mr. Thomas Kennard as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, besides giving admirable representations of their parts, score successes as vocalists. Among the ladies Miss Hylda Dugdale acts and sings in most engaging fashion, her dainty style and appearance winning the immediate favour of the audience. Miss Lina Hicks gives a good character-sketch of Liza Shoddam; whilst Miss Winnie Plumpton as Miss Virginia Bliss, Miss Beatrice Anderson as Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Ida Stratham as Daisy Fallowfield all share in the success of the piece.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Animal performances are always popular with Palace audiences, and Zarmah's lions, bears, and boarhounds have proved no exception to the rule. They are remarkably well trained, and obey the commands of the trainer with wonderful alacrity. Some very smart club juggling is presented by the Four Geraldos, who are masters of their art, their combined evolutions being especially effective; Alma Obrey's songs give considerable pleasure; and Walter Adams scores a success as a comedian. Thelma's exhibition of clay-modelling is interesting, and Vernando contributes a ventriloquial performance of a novel kind. Other popular turns are given by Bob Baxter (comedian) and Mabel la Blanche (balladist).

Curry's Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Crowded houses have been attracted by the appearance of Tom McInerney, the champion wrestler of Great Britain. Several local enthusiasts have pitted their skill against him, and capital contests have been witnessed. Tom Cannon, the well-known wrestler, has also visited the theatre and competed with McInerney. There is, in addition, a capital variety programme. Jock Whiteford gives a highly amusing delineation of Scottish humour, and comedy is also provided by Harry Bent, a mimic. Other sporting turns are given by Will Walker, ball puncher, and Lillian and Vera, expert rifle shots; whilst Major Charles gives a clever display of marksmanship. Elton and Edwin prove a couple of skilful banjoists, the Two Jagos contribute smart dances, and charming ballads are given by Carlotta Lunn.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A delightful attraction is provided here this week by Mr. Charles Frohman's talented company in the musical comedy The Catch of the Season. Mr. Frank Lincoln is very quaint as the young Duke of St. Jermyns, while Mr. E. H. Kelly is well placed as Lord Dundreary, and sings the various items alloted to him with much taste. Mr. Augustin Symonds is all that could be desired as Higham Montague; as the page, Bucket, Master Grata evokes much merriment; Miss Maie Ash is a vivacious Angela; Miss Belle Napier gives a meritorious portrayal of Lady Catherham, and sings sweetly. The Gibson Girls have much to do with the success attained.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Mr. John Preston's powerful company is here in the successful sporting drama, Rogues of the Turf. Miss Madge Nelson scores as Nellie Flaxman; Miss Hilda Shirley gives a vigorous interpretation of Marion Lady Heathcote; Mr. Dan F. Roe presents a clever character study of Arthur Somerton; and Mr. John F. Preston is convincing as the old trainer.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—An exceptionally strong vaudeville programme is presented here this week. It includes Barton and Ashley, in Canal Boat Sal; Rita and Roma; Jack Brooks, Handcuff King; the Two Erolls in their comedy leaping act; the San Remo Girls, comediennes and dancers; and Harry Drew, the Welsh bass.

HANLEY.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company opened on Monday in the Heath-Wilson Barrett version of East Lynne. In the parts of Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, Miss Julie Kennard scores a distinct success; she has a good presence, and plays forcefully; Mr. Alfred Beaumont, as Archibald Carlyle, acts with great skill; Mr. George Jervis well sustains the part of Richard Hare. Mr. Justice Hare finds a capable representative in Mr. C. C. Gratton. As policeman Bullock, Mr. Alfred Tate causes much amusement; Mr. Eric Mayne plays Francis Leveson in an artistic manner; Cornelia Carlyle is admirably sustained by Miss Ethel Hardacre. As Joyce, Miss A. Byron is seen to advantage; while the children are nicely interpreted by Miss Dorothy Townrow and Ethel Rae. Miss Violet Thorold as Barbara Hare is successful. Other parts are portrayed by Mr. Spencer Goodwin, Mr. Cyril Hayward, Miss Ethel Russell, and Miss Emilie Frith.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—A capital evening's entertainment is submitted this week. Mark Sheridan heads the bill, and, as usual, convulses his audiences with laughter. The Johnsons contribute a musical treat, their xylophone playing being extraordinary, the Great Northern Troupe are dancers of exceptional ability, and their efforts meet with much appreciation; Martine and Son, in their illustrated songs, prove a most acceptable turn; the Katos are seen in a novel performance, which is interesting; Jessie Barlee and Phil Smith, in their musical sketch, A Rehearsal, are a host in themselves; Will Johnson is a comedian of merit; and Daisy Martell, as a comedienne and dancer, is pleasing. The pictures are capital.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock.—Local playgoers have looked forward with much interest to the visit of Mr. Beerbohm Tree's version of Oliver Twist, which Mr. J. Bannister Howard presented during the early part of the week. As Fagin Mr. Stanley Drewitt proved himself to be an actor of no ordinary merit. In the Prison Scene he excelled himself. In Mr. Wm. H. Kemble was found an admirable Bill Sikes; Miss Edith Anton Laing gave a skilful delineation of the unfortunate Nancy; in the title-rôle Miss Dorothy Marsdin straightway established herself a firm favourite; the part of Mrs. Maylie could not have been in better hands than in those of Miss Alice Maude; and as Rose Maylie Miss Helen Clement was a decided success. Mr. W. H. Rotherham shows his versatility by doubling Mr. Grimwig and Monks, and playing both creditably; as the Artful Dodger Mr. Charlie Clarke presented a careful character-study, embellished with a large amount of humour; in which he was ably assisted by Mr. R. C. Hunter as Charlie Bates. Two excellent portrayals are those of Messrs. Fred Penley and Cyril Cattley as Mr. Brownlow and Harry Maylie respectively. On Thursday evening The Prodigal Parson was the attraction, played by Messrs. Albert Northway and W. V. Garrod's company.

The Kursaal.—Manager and Musical Director, Mr. C. L. Naylor, M.A., Mus.Bac.; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. R. Yeulett.—The Thespians, under the direction of Mr. J. T. Hollins, gave a second entertainment on Saturday evening. The chief feature of the programme was Mr. Douglas Blair's imitations of well-known actors, in which he proved himself a clever mimic; Mr. A. Newman was diverting, particularly in his modernised "Fables," which he recited cleverly; Mr. Fred Carlton sang a couple of coon songs in his inimitable style; and the programme also included a stump speech by Mr. Walt Ogden, dances by Misses Vera Robartes, Ladas, Ismay, and Violet Dixon, songs by Miss Edith Hartley, Messrs. Ted Thomas, and Tom Coleman. The chorus deserves special praise. Messrs. R. P. Oglesby and A. E. Grimshaw's operetta Amaranthus concluded a monster programme.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Verno and Voyce, who head the bill here, are popular in their scena, Comrades in the Cause of Peace, and the humorous interlude, Butcher and Baker; J. W. Hall's parody on Wooden Hut fairly brings down the house; Hanvarr and Anna Lee obtain an excellent reception; the entertainment by Roose is novel and clever; Mollie Wolstenholme's fine voice gains for her flattering marks of approval; Cade Burnett, descriptive vocalist, contributes an acceptable number; and the ball manipulations by Rogers are smartly done. The pictures are more than usually interesting this week.

West Hartlepool Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—The New Sapho Syndicate, Ltd., presents Miss Annie Bell and a specially-selected company in Sapho, in which Miss Bell assumes the titular-rôle in a manner which calls for much praise. Mr. Pringle Roberts portrays the rôle of Jean Gaussin with creditable naturalness. Father Legrand is a distinctly humorous character part as played by Mr. Chas. M. Daly; Cesaire has a capable representative in Mr. G. Antley; and a clever and precocious child, Miss Doris E. Graham, does well in the rôle of Joseph.

Palace. — Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Almost humanlike intelligence is displayed by Ivan Tschernoff's performing ponies and dogs. The reception accorded to the piccolo solos of May Moodie is most flattering; smart acrobatic tumbling is done by the Bros. Huxter; Kit Keen contributes a pleasing selection on the bones; the juggling by Francisco is cleverly done; a delightful musical entertainment is provided by Lidden and Hayward; and the Bio-Tableaux, Adeline Yohle, and a truly side-splitting sketch by the Lyons Trio are other attractive items on the bill.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. William Greet's No. 1 company is here this week in The Sign of the Cross. Mr. William F. Grant plays the rôle of Marcus Superbus with genuine effectiveness, and his appeal to Nero in the last act is a fine elocutionary effort. Mercia is powerfully portrayed by Miss Marie Leonhard; and Miss Ivy Millais is very realistic and emotional as Stephanas. Favius, Titus, and Melos have good representatives respectively in Messrs. Walter Fleet, Geo. Stanton, and R. Chapman; Nero's moral cowardice is ably depicted by Mr. J. Boyd Pearsons; as also are the ferocious instincts of Tigellinus and Licinius by Messrs. Charles Aldred and J. Witherall. Miss Nellie Bonser is stately as Poppœa; and the Misses Alma Bolton (Berenice), and Cissie Carlton (Dacia) play their parts very forcefully. The bibulous Glabrio is well portrayed by Mr. Frank Wood.

Hippodrome.—Resident and General-Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—A good programme is opened here by the Sisters Belmont, excellent dancers; the speciality artists, Avon and Crest, obtain a flattering reception; Percy Maye, lady vocalist, scores a brilliant success; the eccentric comedian and dancer, Dan Filmer, keps the audience in good humour; a refined musical speciality is well illustrated by the juvenile artists, May and Lilly; Gus Hindell, comedian, gives an original turn with his miniature aristocrats; Daisy de Roy, comedienne, may be complimented on her singing. A clever and successful turn is seen in a comedy act given by Burns and Burns. The bioscope, with its up-to-date films, proves very interesting.

Pier Pavilion.—Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company opened here on Monday with Sapho. Miss Ada Abbott, in the title-rôle, acted with great power and feeling; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott gave an earnest rendering of the part of Jean Gausain; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps as Uncle Cesaire was excellent; Mr. C. Douglas showed praiseworthy ability as Flamant; Mr. W. H. Garlois gave a finished portrayal of Henri Dechelette; Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown caused much amusement as the jealous Hettema; and Miss Marjorie Tennant played well as his wife; Mr. W. Ross was effective as Old Legrand; Miss Elsie Jones acted naturally as the child Joseph; and Miss Louise Gilmore was successful as Aunt Divonne. For the second half of the week Trilby was well performed by the same company.

HEBBURN. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. H. Austin; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Graham.—An excellent variety company is here this week. The bill is headed by Mr. Sidney Beacon's combination in The Maniac. The cast includes Mr. George Wybrow as Sammy Garret, Mr. Wm. Brandon as Jasper Woodleigh, Mr. Arthur Proctor as Chawles, Miss Josie Bickford as Sally Jenkins, Miss A. Ermon as Florence Woodleigh, and Mr. Melville Bickford (the renowned character-actor) in the title-rôle. Special scenery and effects for this production are submitted by Messrs. Jourdain and Francotte. Next Marcella gives a marvellous performance in trick cycling; and Professor Hulbert, ventriloquist; Adale Venson, the clever vocalist; Harry Lee, comedian and mimic; De Lil, conjurer; Happy Attwood and Tom Pollich, comedians, and Downey's animated pictures complete the well-arranged programme.

HOYLAND.—The Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Miss Emma Litchfield's A London Actress company, under the able direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland, opened here on Monday. Mr. A. F. Dudley is a manly Lieutenant Kingston; and as Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford Mr. J. C. Carlyle is very good. Mr. G. H. Doyle scores as Captain Mannering; and Mr. Stuart Cleveland is a characteristic Moses Mendoza. The humorous element is well supported by Mr. John Hitchin as Pat Maloney, and Miss Nellie Fern as Biddy Maloney. Miss Maud Steeple is a fascinating Phyllis Crawford, and Miss Tho. Henries is excellent as Mrs. Skinner. As Hilda Mannering Miss Emma Litchfield displays great histrionic ability.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—The return visit of Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Sunday is giving pleasure to local playgoers deeply interested in the joys and troubles of that witching person, "Sunday," most sympathetically impersonated by Miss Emélie Polini. Her quartette of guardians, Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky are four of the most likeable rough diamonds as played by Mr. William Lockhart, Mr. Sydney Rennef, Mr. T. Norman Walter, and Mr. Arthur Vezin. Mr. Leonard Pagden is a fine, manly Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas, as Tom Oxley, has a part in which he is particularly happy; Mr. Cecil Duncan makes Arthur Brinthorpe sufficiently despicable; Miss Rosalind Ross plays with prudent restraint as Mrs. Naresby. The mounting of the play is thoroughly adequate.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Morris Cronin and his troupe of club jugglers—who top the bill—are loudly applauded for their brilliant work. In addition are Corbin's trained dogs, a unique performance in that the animals have the stage to themselves, unattended. The Brothers Ethairien (in their highly-diverting turn Spoofo,) Fred Power (comedian), Ferris and Farnley (comedians and dancers), Miss Georgina Leonard (ballad singer), Ralph Moore (a boy singer with a sweet voice), and the Hippodrome Pictures are other attractions.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Eternal City, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, is here this week. The principle feature of the play is the fine acting of Miss JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. Charles Carey's company opened here on Tuesday night with the new musical comedy After the Ball, which was excellently received. Mr. Walter Ringham is good as Halliwell Meint, and Mr. Victor Widdicombe creates much laughter as Colonel Joseph Meint. As Nancy Miss Florence Smithers, who is a great favourite here, is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. Buckstone Clair and Mr. Norman Bowyer both do well as Martin and Dick Seymour; Miss Nellie Groves is a pretty and fascinating Nellie Mather, and is well supported by Miss May Florence as Ruth Gay. Miss Nellie James is an entertaining Kitty, and the Gibson Girls are also appreciated.

KETTERING.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Mr. J. W. Worley's company is here with A Faithful Friend. Mr. Henry Hatcham is an admirable John Tollerton and Mr. Worley forcibly portrays the evil nature of Harold Sefton. Mr. Robert W. Lynn gives an artistic performance as Antonio, and Mr. John Cullen exhibits considerable humour as Sir Thomas Jones, being well supported by Mr. James Hussey as Augustus. Miss Trisail Humphreys is distinctly successful as Mildred Marsden, and Miss Esther Ohlson is pleasing as Cynthia.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The theatre was closed Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week, but on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday Mr. Geo. Dance's company was billed to appear in The Orchid. The company is a strong one, and a rare treat is provided for the patrons of this place of amusement.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Halls.—On Monday Mr. Charles Macdona's company opened in Are You a Mason? Mr. E. H. Patterson was amusing as Amos Bloodgood, and Mr. H. Langdon Bruce was good as Frank Perry. As George Fisher Mr. Allan Pollock achieved success, and Mr. Percy Bell gave a clever rendering of Hamilton Travers. Miss Adelaide Grace did well as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood, and the Misses Rita Ward and Mabel Jowett were very effective as Annie and Lulu. Miss Mabel Younge contributed greatly to the success of the piece by her graceful rendering of the part of Eva, Mrs. Perry. The farce was preceded by the clever one-act drama A Bad Penny.

KIRKCALDY. — KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company has paid a return visit in Florodora. First honours are due to Mr. Daley Cooper, who, as Anthony Tweedlepunch, was responsible for much of the success of the piece; Mr. Stanley White was a capable Cyrus Gilfain; and Mr. R. Courtier Dutton was well suited as Frank Abercoed, his singing being very pleasing; Mr. Herbert St. John was prominent as Arthur Donegal; and Mr. Edwin Oxlee was an accomplished Leandro. Miss Leonora Grieve was a charming Dolores, and gained much admiration for her spirited acting and fine singing; Miss Lily Sullick achieved success as Angela; and the Lady Holyrood of Miss Edith Housley was all that could be desired.

LANCASTER. — ATHENÆUM. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hy. Wilkinson.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company opened on Monday with The Little Breadwinner, and the drama was followed throughout with keen interest. Mr. Campbell appeared with success as Lord Dorrington, Mr. David Gordon made the most of Richard Lawrence, and the villain Joseph Prior was exceedingly well played by Mr. Scott Leighton. Mr. Allen Charles did well as Charles Prior, and Mr. Walle Spinner scored as Dr. Chadwick. Miss Maud Hastings gave a clever portrayal of Margaret Daventry. Miss Maud Buchanan was decidedly successful as Kate Cherry, and the performances of Miss Lissa Young and little Emmie Thomas as Bobby Trott and Meg respectively are worthy of special notice.

PALACE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. W. J. Ferguson and John Porter.—Another attractive programme is arranged here, at the head of which is Florence and Lillian in a first-rate drawing-room musical entertainment. Sandy and Carl, comedy boxers, have had a good reception, and Wee Mona, child comedienne and dancer, is recalled again and again for her smart turn. Tom Stuart, impersonator, has a capital reception; and Victoria Dagmar is a clever lady gymnast. Jack Hylton, comedian, also does well. Lottie Holland, burlesque actress, and Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the bill.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's Cinderella company is paying a visit this week. Plenty of fun is provided by Mr. Joe English as Buttons, and Messrs. Moon and Morris as the Ugly Sisters. Miss Gerty McQueen made a capital Prince; and Miss Kitty Rafferty was a dainty Cinderella. The performance of Mr. A. Benson as the Baron, and Miss H. Deacon the Baroness, helped the success achieved.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The successful musical play The Spring Chicken arrived on Monday here. Mr. George Gregory in the rôle of Mr. Girdle keeps his audience vastly amused; Miss Gertrude Glyn makes a charming Rosalie; the Mrs. Girdle of Miss Irene Verona is a very clever effort; Mr. L. W. Harris cuts a handsome figure as the wayward advocate; his fascinating client, the Baroness Papouche, is a characteristic study by Miss Gertrude Gilliam; and Miss Rita Everard acts with exceeding grace the rôle of Dulcie, the advocate's wife. Mr. Edgar Ronalds does well as the amorous clerk Boniface, the waiter Felix as personated by Mr. C. D. Cleveland is decidedly amusing, and good work is also done by Mr. Nelson Keys, Mr. Frank Hector, Miss Nellie Lonnen, and Miss Amy Bingham.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The Midnight Mail is presented this week twice nightly by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company, under the direction of Mr. James Willard. Mr. George Harvard acquits himself well as Harry Steyne; Billy Brewer is strikingly interpreted by Mr. Fred G. Evison, who proves himself a versatile actor in this semi-comic, semi-tragic character; Miss Grace Lester wins sympathy as the heroine Mary Steyne; Mr. Austin Mortimer is at home in the part of Leonard Royle; and Mr. C. P. Wentworth proves an able villain as Hassan Padisha. As Jasper Thornleigh Mr. Harry Emmerson gives a very natural performance, and the same may be said regarding the acting of Mr. Dobell Lyle as Donald Craig. Nancy Brewer finds an able exponent in Miss Mildred Carr; and Miss Hilda Merrilese makes a charming Lady Eustace.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—There is a return this week to stirring melodrama, Mr. Millar Anderson's company appearing in the powerful domestic play When Woman Hates. The leading rôle of Cora Daintry is played with intense dramatic power by Miss Mabel Mannering, and she receives excellent support from Mr. Jerrold Heather, who plays Lieutenant Rokeby in powerful style; and Mr. Millar Anderson, whose work as the villainous Godfrey Lawton is also very fine. Mr. Charles Herberte gives a capital study of General Rokeby; his two daughters are played in graceful style by Miss Dorothy Lupone and Miss Gladys Lloyd; and a very charming portrayal of the lieutenant's wife goes to the credit of Miss Maude Townsend.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—In an attractive programme the Uessems claim special recognition for their clever equilibristic and gymnastic act; My Fancy introduces novel sand dances with unmistakable success; Herbert Shelley is a popular actor-vocalist; an intensely amusing item The Cuckoo is submitted by that versatile pair Kitts and Windrum; and another popular comedy duo, Roze and Calvert, experience a gratifying reception. James Stuart scores with amusing business at the piano; David Poole is doing a novel ventriloquial turn with success; James Fawn, the popular comedian, is on a welcome return visit; and Bert Bryne is a second comedian. George Tacius is possessed of remarkable vocal abilities.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Harry Roxbury and company are at the top of a good programme this week in the original musical mélange The Prince of Monte Carlo. As P.C. Longfellow Mr. Roxbury keeps the house in roars; Miss Ethel Bryant as Lady Carr acts, sings, and dances well. Fred Earle scores in his song "Seaweed"; the Brothers Martine, on their "rebounding table," are accomplished acrobats; Lottie Siegenberg is smart in her quick-change sketch; and Chas. R. Whittle pleases with a topical song. Alice Ormonde, Dorothy Gould, the Olive Trio, and Elverton (the spinning marvel) complete an interesting programme.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A dramatic sketch, Did He Deserve It? effectively played by Dottridge and Longden's company, is the leading item here. Bob Selvidge was a favourite at the Royal pantomime, and renews his triumphs here; the Falcons please with an amusing comedy sketch; the Bros. Brooks are also well to the fore with smart eccentric business; Lade Henderson scores in the vocal line; the wonderful dancing girl Viviana gives a fine exhibition of her art; and other creditable turns are done by Harry Thurston (mimic) and the Sisters Brand (comediennes).

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—The musical dream play, Bluebell in Fairyland, presented by Messrs. Murray King and Clark's company, is the attraction here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Gladys Cooper charms all with her talented and artistic impersonation; Mr. Lawrence Emery as Dicky is also well to the front with a clever portrayal; Mr. David Cruickshank is good as Mr. Joplin; and Mr. H. C. Morton as Will and Mr. E. Cossart as Wont create much wholesome fun. Mr. Percy Farrimond as the Singing Collier gets a capital reception; Mr. Shirley Lea as Policeman 1C. is humorous; and as the First Bootblack Mr. Harry Pleon, jun., is also to be complimented on a portrayal of merit. Both Mr. F. Allen as the Sleepy King and Mr. Shirley Lea as the Reigning King are good. The Misses Muriel Juin, Minnie Blanchard, Jessie Blanchard, Connie Emerald, Marie Edmonds, Jessie Douglas, and Ruby Carter are all successful in their parts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A capital attraction is provided here this week in the presentation of the great military drama, One of the Best, by Miss Elsie Roberts's company, under the personal direction of Mr. Frank Fenton, and the general-management of Mr. Leonard Maxwell. Mr. Frank Fenton makes a conspicuous success as Dudley Keppel; and as Mary Penrose Miss Elsie Roberts is also to be complimented on an exceptionally clever embodiment. Mr. George Child is good as the Rev. Dr. Penrose; Miss Ethel Royale is admirable as Esther Coventry; and as Kitty Spencer Miss Dorrie Roberts is popular and humorous. Mr. Harry Ed. Ray makes a good impression as Private Jupp, and Mr. Escott Robson as Phillip Ellsworth. Mr. Cyril Melton as Lieutenant-General Coventry, and Mr. Edward S. Earle as Sir Archibald McGregor play with distinction and histrionic ability.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The leading items in an attractive and diversified programme here this week is Chung Ling Soo, the celebrated magician, whose deftness in performing his various tricks leaves the audience in bewilderment. Terry and Lambert, in melody, wit, and humour, score a success with a thoroughly enjoyable and smart turn; the Dumond Minstrels, Parisian street singers and instrumentalists, are entertaining; the Edgar Forrest sketch combination provide an excellent and exhilarating sketch; the Mariano Sisters give a daring and finished performance on the breakaway trapeze; Robb Gilmore is a mirth-provoking comedian, and a clever and novel dancer; the Paxton Trio of gymnasts are responsible for a neat and high-class display; the O'Learys, Oriental acrobats, are also very clever. The American Bioscope depicts "A Missing Legacy" and other pictures to the delight of all.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The great attraction here this week is the production for the first time out of London by Dinah Morris and her smart combination of versatile artists of the musical comedy The Lost Coon, in which elaborate scenery and effects are used. The principal part is played in a delightfully vivacious manner by Miss Dinah Morris; Sidney Morris dances very cleverly as the Lost Coon; and others in a long cast who distinguish themselves are Cissy Roosvelt, Lall Essex, Bessie Morris, Rasmus, Lily Morris, Doddie Morris, and San Géne. Marie Braham, burlesque actress, is well received; Bessie Knight, the new comedienne and dancer, is making a successful appearance; the Society Quartette of vocalists, comedians, and dancers score; Alfred Cyclo is a capital comedy bicyclist; Walter H. Pallister's American Bioscope projects the usual up-to-date pictures; and Miss Elsie Sinclair, burlesque actress and dancer, and Miss Rosie Gilmer, operatic vocalist, are also entertaining.

LEITH. — NEW GAIETY THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison. — Mr. Charles Harrington's company provides an attractive entertainment with the immortal Uncle Tom's Cabin. The good old-time drama is produced with elaborate effect by this clever combination of players, including a number of real negroes. Mr. J. Carr makes an ideal Uncle Tom; Legree and Dan Haley are done to the life by Mr. J. Henry Rogers and Mr. James Jackson; while Mr St. Clair, Loker, and the slaves Quimbo, Sambo, and Andy are well pictured by Mr. Stanley Howard, Mr. W. Eversleigh, Mr. Jack Black, Mr. Tom Miles, and Mr. J. H. Boehm. George and Eliza find sympathetic representatives in Mr. Leslie Beaufort and Miss Hettie Johnson; Aunt Chloe is carefully played by Mrs. Carr; and the Little Eva of Little Minnie is pathetically contrasted with the Topsy of Miss Mabel Bowman. Miss Ethel Mildmay should be complimented on her Cassy.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—We have this week Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company in a répertoire of plays, including Lady Godiva, Jane Shore, and Nell Gwynne, by Max Goldberg. In the first-named on Monday evening Mr. Woulfe was very effective as Tom of Coventry. Admirable support came from Miss Josephine Colona, a sweet Godiva; Mr. Ernest Lodge, a striking Ceofric; and Mr. James Duncan, a duly treacherous Algar. Mr. Lionel Lingham as Edgar, and Mr. Harry Benson as Robin, won favour; and Mr. Ernest Hamilton was a praiseworthy Unwolf. Miss Gwen Stewart as Lady Aldyth, and Miss Edith Loraine as Elfrida, gave satisfactory support.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—An effective turn of a character quite novel to Lincoln is presented by Mlle. Ghita Corri, in her electrical scene, The Maiden's Prayer, in which she sings with great taste; the Paolias and the Brothers Zampah present the gymnastic element with effect; Will Lytton's songs amuse immensely; and further variety is submitted by the Swift Trio of comedy cyclists; Violet Stockelle, a comedienne of ability; Miles and May, an entertaining pair of comedians; Frances Haskoll, with superb pictorial effects; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Mr. Huntley Wright with The Mountain Climber and The Little Father of the Wilderness has been welcomed here this week, the widely different rôles of Sibsey and Marlotte being witnessed by delighted audiences. The company, that of Mr. Charles Frohman, afforded the able comedian every support. Mr. W. R. Staveley was an excellent Samuel Midgham; the rôle of Mrs. Sibsey in the hands of Miss Kate Mills afforded the utmost satisfaction; the Misses Christine McGill and Dora Barton played sweetly as the step-daughters; as Dr. Charles Midgham Mr. Montague Elphinstone left nothing to be desired; and other principals were Mr. J. Sebastian Smith, Mr. Eric Maturin, Miss Ivy Hertzog, and Mr. Algernon Newark. The mounting of both pieces was excellent.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alexander Greenwood's special company have been here this week with The Price of Her Soul, which has enjoyed much public patronage. Mr. Shinton held his original part of Lord Mandeville, playing with effect; Miss Ada M. Ryder made some capital points as Countess Steinmitz; Mr. Annesley Hely handled the rôle of Major Skoboloff satisfactorily; Miss Mona Gray was an excellent Olga Lanovitz; and little Ida Thompson as Vera showed much juvenile ability. The play was particularly well presented. Last (Friday) evening a new drama, By Whose Hand? was produced, a notice of which will appear next week.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A talented list is billed for this week. The Folkestones are answerable for roars of laughter in their funny sketch; John Grun Marx's exhibition of weight-lifting astonished everyone; King and Benson, who top the bill, delight audiences with their humorous turn; Henri Bekker is applauded for some decidedly clever conjuring; and Chris Masters, character-vocalist, Blake and Grundy in their sketch, Andy Higginson, the Hugo Troupe, Kitty Tims, and the Lyric bioscope's new pictures all add to the evening's enjoyment.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Walter Melville's powerful work, The Worst Woman in London, has been staged here during the week, and to it much public patronage has been accorded. Included in Mr. Tom H. Taylor's able company was Miss Florence Dalton, whose assumption of the title-part was received with great enthusiasm. Mr. Wallace Campbell handled the character of Jack Felton with every discrimination; as Vincent Lyle Mr. Paul Barry-Lewers displayed considerable ability; the part of Ruth Milford was in the good hands of Miss Effie Bartlett; Mr. H. H. Barrington made the most of James Milford; credit is due to Mr. Leonard Booker for his Philip Armstrong, and Mr. H. W. Monte was a good Hugh Drayton.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—Hardie and Von Leer's original company is here this week with Two Little Vagabonds. The waifs were represented by Miss Freda Ettrick and Miss Helen Grenville, whose work was followed with great interest; Mr. Henry Hare made an excellent George Thornton; as Marion, Miss Grace Heywood was most convincing; Mr. Sydney Vautier gave an admirable impersonation of Captain Darville; as Bill Muggins Mr. John F. Traynor left nothing to be desired; and other characters well portrayed were John Scarth by Mr. Dunstan Haye, Barbara Scarth by Miss F. Russell Spiers; Sister Randall by Miss Muriel Clay, and the servant by Miss Constance May.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Lessees, The Shakespeare Theatre Company, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The successful pantomime Babes in the Wood will conclude to-night. On Monday last Master Nipper Lupino Lane and Miss Madie Andrews, the two clever Babes, had a benefit; Miss Winifred Hare (Robin Hood) took one on Wednesday, and Mr. Bransby Williams one on Friday. The dramatic season opens on Monday with Charley's Aunt.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—A well-filled bill has been submitted here this week. At the top are Herbert Darnley's company of comedians with the screamingly-funny sketch Moving In, which has provoked endless laughter. The Dandies, society entertainers, were loudly applauded for their excellent singing; Victor Newman gave a number of admirable impersonations, including that of Irving as "Mathias"; Mezetti and Mora had a clever bar act; Brooks, Dale, and Blitz, with their comical mule, aroused great laughter; Sam Soda, an impromptu reciter, proved acceptable; a funny sketch, Fun on the Golf Links, was provided by the Burnells; Rachael Lowe with her duck and novelty songs was well received; the Three Missouris were as humorous as ever; and others who appeared were G. W. Foster, comedian, and Athas and Collins with their act, Four for a Bob.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Little Stowaway, presented by Ethel Arden and George Abel, Ltd., has proved a strong attraction here this week. A capital vocal and dancing act has come from the Six Æolians; the Tally-Ho Trio contributed a pleasing turn with The Three Buttercups; Carden and Zesch are a couple of smart society entertainers; a deal of amusement resulted from the efforts of Bernard and Weston, comedians; Barton and Franklin submitted a capital musical programme; H. O. Wills is a comedian of no mean order; and others in the bill were Jennie Johns (soubrette) and Tate and Tate (eccentrics).

NEW PARTHENON. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—At the head of the bill here this week are Allis and Cassati with their remarkable amusing trifle, A Funny Few Minutes; Julian Mack, a comedian of ability, makes a first appearance here, and his efforts are much appreciated; as an eccentric character comedian Johnny Walker has several good points; Tom Morton sings some taking songs; Maudie Ford is a dainty comedienne and dancer, and Violet Trevanion renders several numbers in agreeable style.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Royal Stock Company, including Mr. Percy Boucher, are this week presenting A Fiend of a Woman in seven tableaux. Mr. Boucher assumes the rôle of Billy Budge, and is supported by Mr. J. Moore (Dr. Nicola), Mr. Harry Tresham (George Bevan). Mr. E. D. Allen (Jim Burke), Mr. Cecil Ravenswood (Mickey O'Rorke), Miss Beryl Ravenswood (Lady Aldin), and Miss Alice Hinton (Mrs. Dixon). The bioscope pictures are a feature of the evening.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Harry Calden's sketch company are principal in the bill here this week with Shaun, which is in five tableaux; Ernie Leech, the singing ventriloquist, has an excellent turn; Rosie Leslie dances and sings well; and some interesting pictures are shown by the bioscope.

PARK PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—A sketch, entitled Beneath a Mask, presented by J. Wright, Aitken, and Co., heads the programme this week; the Bros. Bellong perform some smart acrobatic work; Clark's Nippers supply a neat turn with their speciality act of boxing, ball punching, and dancing; the Four Andys are clever and agile comedy acrobats and risley performers; the singing of the Sisters Volbeque proves very acceptable; and others on the list are Fred Pollard (comedian), and Emilie Warren (ballad vocalist).

HAYMARKET.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—At the top of the bill here this week is Tom Lloyd, comedian; the Harlem Bros. are smart speciality artists; Hess and Lisbon, the celebrated fancy and comic skaters, are as great as ever, and receive thunders of applause, their "Jumbo" policeman creating great laughter; the Bros. Adderley are clever comedians and mimics; the vocal tableaux of Ralston and Frances are much relished; Theresa Thirsk shows ability as a male impersonator, and Nipper Anthen, comedian and mimic, makes a first appearance.

WESTMINSTER. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Four Hearnes are principal here this week with their capital show as comedy acrobats; a turn which earned much applause was that given by the Jansons, their gymnastic novelty act with a revolving apparatus being something uncommon; Achilles gave an excellent speciality athletic act; Ted Cowan had a deal of humorous patter; as a comedienne May Fallowfield gave satisfaction; and others who appeared were George H. Keith, vocalist, and George Bendon, white coon.

OLYMPIA. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—A return visit of Butterflies in Fairyland has been highly appreciated; the "Human Bullet" remains another week in the programme; Seeley and West, the black and white comedians, are amusing with their musical turn; O'Gust causes great laughter with his mimicry; some clever trick cycling is performed by Bert Woodward; delightful acrobatic work is executed by the Trapnell family; Herr Grais's baboons show a remarkable degree of training; some pleasing singing and dancing comes from the Dorrells, and the New Macs are able comedians.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid is here this week. As Lady Violet Anstruther Miss Constance Hamilton is very charming and clever; Miss Maude Jay as Josephine Zaccary is excellent and most successful; Miss Hilda Vining is good as the amorous Caroline Vokins; whilst as Zelie Rumbert Miss Nancy Taylor does well. As Meakin Mr. Colin Campbell is most amusing; Mr. Ion Maxwell is a good Guy Scrymgeour; Mr. W. Garland as Dr. Fausett, and Mr. R. Corray as Aubrey Chesterton, are both well placed. Mr. T. A. Fisher is a capital Count Raoul.

LONG EATON. — We have a visit at the Lyceum Theatre from Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Sin of Her Childhood. Miss Mary Fulton has a hearty greeting in the principal rôle; the Rev. Alan Grey is admirably played by Mr. Charles Fancourt; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes is an interesting villain; Mr. Frederick Lloyd figures to advantage as Captain Thornton; and Mr. Hugh Brady is a rollicking Barney. Little Dott Moss has a fetching song; and Little Edith plays Eric nicely.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Frank Lindo's company is here this week with Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Frank Lindo does exceedingly well as Stephen Armitage, and receives excellent support from Miss Marion Wakeford, who makes a good Joan. Captain Gerald Gambier is a successful Duke of Ancaster; Mr. J. W. Henson a capable David Armitage; and Mr. Wilson Coleman is clever as Lucas Lyle. Solomon Keary is well played by Mr. T. Lewis; Miss Hetty Webster acts with ability as Sybil Fay; and Miss Mary Denver is a good exponent of Lady Summerton.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we have the third visit of the drama At Duty's Call, well presented by Mr. John Gerant's company. Mr. Gerant repeats his former success as Harold Allison; and Captain Geo. Allison finds a capable exponent in Mr. Frank V. Fenn. Mr. Ernest St. John submits a fine picture as General Gordon; and Mr. Eric V. Rees is equally good as the slave Hassan. Clever and amusing sketches are afforded by Messrs. Harry Ugar (Terry) and Gwyn Richardson (Jack Spencer); and Miss Harlington is well placed as the maid. Miss Marie Menzies presents a charming picture as Dora Drummond; and Miss Georgina Hamilton gives a powerful and well-thought-out study as Salema.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Miss Frances Delaval's company, in Her Lost Self, opened here on Monday. Wilfred Daventry is in the capable hands of Mr. Percy Carne Waram, who sustains the part with the desired effect; Norman Esmond is finely interpreted by Mr. Chas. Kean; Paul Kimberley is well represented by Mr. Adian Lovett; the parts of Abraham and Rachael Cohen are cleverly taken by Mr. L. W. Halfpenny and Mrs. Edmund Lyons respectively, who are well assisted by Mr. Horace Buckley as Tom Flyaway, and Miss Nell Ingram as Bridget Mahone, in the comedy element. Miss Frances Delaval as Philipine Marcel exhibits great power as an actress.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. K. Galtey.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. R. Ayrton's company opened on Mondey with A Gambler's Daughter. Mr. Robert Ayrton as Desmond O. Dare gave a powerful impersonation; Mr. Alfred Sanders scored as Solomon Solomons; Mr. Richard Pitt as John Grant acquitted himself well; as Jack Grant Mr. A. Terris gave a well-portrayed study; Miss Adria Hill in the dual parts of Mildred Grant and Miriam Grant acquitted herself with distinction; Miss Florence Cooke as Mary did well; and the Misses Harriett Loydall and Annie Broughton as Zeb and Mary respectively gave capital portrayals. Miss Sanders as Carita was prominent; Miss Amy Mills was good as Mrs. Long Tom, as was Miss Lottie Sanders as Mrs. Jake; Mr. Frank Wheatcroft as Dick submitted a neat study.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company played A Country Girl to a crowded house on Wednesday. Mr. J. Mansell Stringer was well received as Geoffrey Challoner; Messrs. W.O. Billington and W. Besley Beltran were excellent as Sir Joseph and Douglas Verity; Mr. Bernard Vaughan was good as the Rajah; and Mr. Johnnie Clegg was irrepressibly funny as Barry. Miss Eileen Guilbert sang and acted gracefully as Marjorie; Miss Florence Burdette made many good points as Nan; Miss Vera Vizard as the Princess was both picturesque in appearance, and excellent in her songs; and Miss Madge Campbell was sprightly as Sophie.

MAIDSTONE. — CORN EXCHANGE. — Manager, Mr. J. Beslee.—I Defy the World is drawing crowded Louses here this week, and as played by Mr. Julian Malvern's company proves popular. The play is well mounted, and the company includes Miss Maud Malvern as Blanche Darville, Miss G. Coats as Fauchette, Mr. Lewis Gilbert as Leon Darville, Mr. Chas. M. Julian as Andre, and Mr. Horace Booth as Count Beaulieu.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—A good programme is provided here this week by the management, and includes the Sisters Desmond, duettists, on a popular return visit; William Mackay and company, in an entertaining sketch My Son's Wife; the Musical Schafers, in a clever instrumental act; Harry Phydora, a quaint comedian; J. Fossett and his performing dogs; Fred Alberto, comedian; and Rosie Stuart, vocalist.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—Good old-fashioned historical drama is here this week in the shape of Tom Taylor's 'Twixt Axe and Crown, which is being played by Mrs. Russ Whytal and a capable company. Mrs. Whytal's first visit to Manchester is made remarkable by the unqualified success with which she depicted Elizabeth on Monday night, a more powerful and refined performance could not have been desired. Excellent also was the Bishop Gardiner of Mr. Charles Combe. Considerable merit was in the delineation of Edward Courteney by Mr. F. Lumsden Hare, who was dignified and forcible throughout. Mr. J. J. Bartlett played Simon Renard with skill and care; Mr. Leslie Palmer gave a studied rendering of Sir John Harrington; Mr. C. A. White presented Sir John Parry in finished style; Mr. Ulick Burke made the most of his chances as the Earl of Sussex; and Mr. Alfred Fisher was quite satisfactory as Sir Thomas Wyatt. Prominent among the ladies was Miss Geraldine Olliffe, who gave a careful and telling delineation of Queen Mary; and Miss Mabel Knowles, who was very pleasing as Isabel Markham. Excellent scenery illustrates the play.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The Duffer is here again, in the hands of a company under Mr. Louis Calvert. Mr. E. H. Wynne is excellent in the title-part; and Miss Mabel Taylor is fully equal to the demands of the part of Niobe. Mr. Whitford Kane is very good as Paul Martin; Mr. F. Pennington-Gush is a capable Charles Chester; Miss Margaret Montrose acts with grace and tact as Lady Amelia; Miss Florence Adale does very well as Phyllis Wade; and Miss Nelly Griffen is sufficiently light and amusing as Miss Bide. The remainder of the cast are commendable.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and company are here this week in Death or Glory Boys, a stirring military drama. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson (the author) plays Captain Glynn Ferrers in a suave, pleasing, and yet sinister style, much to the enjoyment of the audience; Miss Violet Carlyle acts charmingly as Nana Furgeson; and Miss Rosabel Dodd does well as the wronged woman Edith Malden. As Jack Malden Mr. Wellesley Draper has a strong part, which he renders in capable fashion; while Mr. Theo Balfour as Colonel Furgeson, and Mr. Edwin Jenner as Lieutenant Duff, give adequate interpretations. Mr. J. Russell Bogue and Miss Hettie Senior are very amusing as Nat Wilks and Jane. The staging and uniforms of the play leave nothing to be desired.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—A very interesting production of Ibsen's An Enemy of the People was staged here on Monday by Mr. Harold Y. Neilson, to whom Manchester playgoers are indebted for frequent enterprises of the kind. As Doctor Stockmann Mr. Neilson acted with characteristic power, quite realising the occasional genius of the character and its naturally sanguine temper; Mr. D. Lewin Mannering displayed fine gifts in a singularly clever rendering of Peter Stockmann, the pompous, stupid, and disagreeable burgomaster. As Asiaksen, the printer, whose policy is "moderation," a truly comic and typical depiction was given by Mr. J. F. Fox, who missed nothing in the way of make-up, deportment, or intonation. Mr. H. Gomer was remarkably natural as Horstad, the editor; and Mr. Ardine Linden played Billing in humorous style. Mr. John Detliv's Moren Kül was an entertaining character-study, successful in every word and movement. As Mrs. Stockmann Miss Katherine M. Romsey played with very nice tact and charm; and Miss Amy Sangster gave a clever and natural portrayal of Petra. A word of praise is due also to Mr. Leonard Atwill as Horster, Mr. Donald Gow as Petersen, and Masters W. Pukwick and L. Taylor as the boys.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Amy Anderson and company, in The Banana Stall, worthily head the bill here this week, and are much applauded. Walter Curtis, the merriment merchant, gives popular samples of his humour; the Mimosa Trio, three charming girls, are clever in song and dance; Sam Jesson's little merry-makers appear successfully in a musical sketch; Lillie Mayfield is a charming comedienne and dancer; the Three Esmonds present an entertaining grotesque absurdity; Marstro and Oretta, eccentric equilibrists, give an excellent show; Violet Thorne, juvenile vocalist, shows distinct promise; Gilroy and Gross, dancing experts, are exceedingly smart; and the Bioscope depicts "The Wedding Morn." The bill includes also Charles Russell, lunatic comedian, who did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company, in The Girl Who Lost Her Character, is transferred here this week from the Royal Osborne Theatre, and is doing excellent business.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Miss Bonwin Carlton and company occupy the stage here this week in the sensational comedy-drama, The Plucky Nipper, by Edward Surrey. Miss Bonwin Carlton plays the title-part with distinction; Mr. Edward Surrey gives a vigorous and pleasing delineation of Bill Burgess, a ne'er-do-well; Mr. William Heilbronn makes an excellently villainous Richard Vanbrugh; Mr. Edward Stream is commendable as the heroic Captain Leslie (with songs); Miss Ethel Whiteley is charming as Ina Fenwick, the heroine; and ample humour is contributed by Mr. Douglas Campbell and Mr. T. Hadlin as Tommy Atkins and Bill Brown, the former being especially smart in song and dance.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Carl Hertz is one of the attractions here this week, by Picett and Lizette; Witty Watty Walton, an old favourite, is as amusing as ever; clever and entertaining are the Two Dixons (Nellie and Lily), in song, dance, and banjo playing; the Zouaves are smart in their lightning drill and wall-scaling exhibition; and Ara, Zebra, and Vora are clever acrobats. Other good turns are Nellie Graham, a neat dancer; Arthur Slater, the whistling man in white; Little Rene, impersonator and mimic; Fred Casburn, comedian; Herbert Betts, comedian; and "A Policeman's Trials," depicted on the Bioscope.

MANSFIELD.—Victoria Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Fox.—On Friday and Saturday last week Miss Inez Howard's company presented the drama The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Mr. Richard Fulton filled the part of Captain Caversham creditably, and Molly Vernon was admirably taken by Miss Gertrude Evans. Mr. Sidney Dean made an amusing Dick Punch.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Morella and Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—Good houses have attended here this week. Charles Coborn tops the bill, and is recalled again and again; Tom Davis and company, in the sketch Theatrical Aspirants, cause much amusement; Prof. Devereux's troupe of dogs give a clever performance; and Harry Dowsett, comedian; Rena and Rex, duologue artists; Belford and Mars, a singing duo; Alf Bishop, comedian; Bert Reeves, eccentric dancer; Gracie Logan, and Cinizelli also receive applause.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—With a change of management, the entire theatre thoroughly cleaned and renovated, a complete outfit of new scenery, specially painted by Mr. Jules Camus, and a stock company of experienced artists, this old house, which of late has undergone so many vicissitudes, was reopened on Monday evening with the new costume play The Duchess of Marlborough. The title-part is admirably played by Mrs. Cullen; Miss Eugenie Vernie sustains the rôle of the Queen capitally, the weakness of her character being well brought out; Miss Emmie O'Reilly is good as Mrs. Masham, and Mr. A. Austin-Leigh is effective as Robert Harley, leader of the Tories. The Duke of Marlborough finds a capable representative in Mr. O. P. Heggie; and other parts satisfactorily sustained are Jonathan Swift (Mr. G. W. Elton), Capt. Richard Steele (Mr. Richard Fielding), Lord Villiers (Mr. J. K. Lord), the Lady Susan Villiers (Miss Juanita Hall), the Lady Teraminta Wood (Miss Lilian Rogers), the Lady Betty Martin (Miss Violet Agnew), Col. Jack Hill (Mr. J. E. Savery), and Sir William Deval (Mr. Farrington-Stuart).

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—This week's programme is headed by Harry Champion, the quick and quaint comedian, whose songs are vociferously redemanded. Mlle. Cordite, assisted by Wild Buffalo (scout and Wild West rough-rider), proves herself a clever manipulator of the lasso, and shows marvellous skill in her lariat and rope-spinning performance. The other contributors to an all-round good programme are Walter Wallis, comedian; Flo Schuberth, burlesque artist; Johnny Johnston, the musical dandy; Grace Merton, the sweet-voiced street singer; and the Hippodrome pictures, including "Father's Holiday" and "A Sardine Factory in Operation."

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Varieties form the attraction at the theatre this week. The company engaged includes Wyndham and Kitty (wire artists), Percy Vere and Edith Royal (patterers, dancers, and vocalists), Collin and Irene (second-sight experts and illusionists), La Bella Rosa (solo instrumentalist), Wheeler and Wilson (acrobatic comedians), Darwin (the man-monkey), Gravetta and Pan (in a pot-pourri act, entitled There's Going to be a Show), the Revelle Troupe (in the amusing absurdity Mischief), and Mr. J. C. Heffron (humorist and dancer).

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Lingford Carson is this week presenting The Power of the Cross. Mr. H. J. Kirby gives a capital portrayal of Baron Woulfe Curzola; Mr. F. W. Goddard plays cleverly as Gerald Fairfax; as does Mr. Horace Denton as Dr. Fairfax. In the respective roles of Benjamin Hawke and David Kingsley Messrs. E. L. Hocking and O. E. Johnson display marked ability; the Timothy O'Dowd of Mr. Rd. E. Nugent is decidedly amusing; Miss Cissie St. Elmo plays with much skill the character of the adventuress Rita Lascelles; Miss Stanley Burt gives sympathetic treatment to the part of Margaret Seaton; Miss Etta Turner is a capital Dolly Gray.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Messrs. Arthur Whittaker and Gifford Stacey's company is presenting the new drama The Hindoo's Revenge here this week. Mr. Cyril W. Mackay as Captain Bruce Glenister and Miss Ethyle Murray in the picturesque rôle of Zephen are exceedingly good. As Count Polshoff Mr. Hamilton Travers gives a fine impersonation, and Mr. Clive Ross as Sir Victor Strong is all that can be desired. The characters of Kumar Nana and Diana Strong are cleverly impersonated by Mr. E. Dobell and Miss Lilyan Lait; whilst Miss Daisy Snowden is a delightful Sylvia Glenister.

Opera House.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's compony in The Silver King is here this week. Mr. Herbert Ford as Wilfred Denver gives a fine portrayal of that part; as Nellie Denver Miss Daisy Scudamore plays the character with a sweetness and pathos which appeal to the hearts of the audience; Mr. Edward George gives a fine impersonation of Daniel Jaikes; as "the spider" Mr. Hicks is well placed; and the part of Elijah Coombe is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Wright; Miss Amy Manfree achieves distinction by her artistic portrayal of Cissy; and Master Jack Evan gives a clever interpretation as Jack Denver. Mr. James Power is a decided success as Henry Corkel, and Mr. Byron Pedley is excellent as Samuel Baxter.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—A capital programme is provided here this week. Edward Sillward and company head the bill with a dramatic sketch, which is heartily appreciated; Herbert La Martine wins hearty applause for his vocal powers and dancing; the De Lomes are exceptionally clever clog-dancers; and the Florodora Girls are smart dancers and singers. Lady Julia, the intelligent ape, and the McKays are favourites. The other turns are provided by Fielding and Hull and Horace Wheatley, the Northern favourite.

Oxford Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf Graham.—Excellent turns are provided here this week. Harry Grey, the eccentric Australian comedian, has made a great hit; the Creo Bros. prove entertaining in their sketch The Gipsies; Fred and Maud Vypond create roars of laughter in their sketch The Honeymoon, as does Frank Coyle with his comic songs. Other interesting turns are provided by Elsie Claire, Famous Henderson, Olive Armidale, and Mabel Higson.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. W. Davies.—Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kimberley's company is this week appearing in Two Little Drummer Boys. As General Kingsley Mr. Edward Bikker contributes an exceedingly strong portrayal, Mr. J. Geddes being equally good as Captain Carsdale. Mr. Andrew Money proves sufficiently villainous as Captain Darrell; Allen Kingsley has a suitable exponent in Mr. Charles Gallier. The humorous business is in the able hands of Messrs. F. C. Imbert and Harry Lyndon as Quincy Quirke and Timothy Trimmer respectively. Miss B. Shirley is seen to advantage as Alma Kingsley. Miss Mildred Eversleigh's rendering of Margret Rivers (Drunken Meg) is decidedly above the average. Miss Edie is a vivacious Molly Meadows, and the two little drammers find capital exponents in Mesdames May Smart and Eva Norman.

NELSON.—New Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—Mr. Geo. Dance's company is here in The Cingalee this week. Mr. Walter Champney, in his impersonation of the part of Chambuddy Ram takes high honours; the Hon. Harry Vereker is a masterly embodiment by Mr. Courtney Comber; Mr. Hugh Webb is an impressive Boobhama; Sir Peter Loftus as presented by Mr. W. Bosco is all that can be desired; Bobby Warren is remarkably well acted by Mr. Arthur Foote; Mr. H. Dore is responsible for the part of Myamgah; the part of Nanoya is successfully played by Miss Cecile Beresford; Lady Patricia is charmingly portrayed by Miss Mona Grey; Miss Kate Yates delights everyone with her rendering of Peggy; and Miss Florence Treseder is a bewitching Angy Loftus.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Tyne Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in the comic opera, The Little Michus, received an enthusiastic welcome here on Monday night from a crowded audience. In the cast are some established favourites among Novocastrians, including Mr. Eric Thorne, who is irresistibly droll as General Des Ifs. Very cleverly are his efforts seconded by Mr. Jack Cannot, whose quaint humour as Bagnolet proved very enjoyable; Mr. Leonard Mackay's opportunities as Aristide Vert are limited; however, to this rôle one of the best songs in the opera is allotted, namely "The Weather Glass," which won an emphatic encore; Mr. Eardley Turner is quietly humorous as Pierre Michu, and Mr. Arthur Royd imparts spirit and gaiety into the rôle of Gaston Rigaud. In a speciality part Mr. Willie Warde, jun., is really funny. As Blanche Marie and Marie Blanche, Miss Iris Hoey and Miss Thelma Ray both enact these parts with exemplary charm, and their singing throughout is excellent; Miss Ray also displays much ability as a violin player. Miss Elsie Cameron gets through a lot of work as Madame Michu, and scores a genuine success. Nor must we forget to compliment Miss Deborah Volar for her sweet rendering of the song, "Tra-la-la"—a very pretty number. The graceful dancing of Miss Ivy Louise is also a conspicuous feature. Messager's pretty music is done full justice to by a strong chorus and augmented orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Harold Vicars.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—This week the farce, What the Butler Saw, has been presented for the first time in Newcastle. Mr. Lionel Rignold as Pink the butler keeps the house in roars of laughter with his original touches and quaint cockney humour; Jack Barrington, in the hands of Mr. Charles Fawcett, is a typical Irishman, bubbling with wit and vivacity; Mr. Reddick Anderson as Sir Charles Foden gives a capital rendering of his part, and is equally good in humour and pathos; Mr. George Ascott as General Dunlop is a thoroughly peppery martinet; the Abraham Weinstein of Mr. Harry H. Rignold is a really good impersonation of a well-to-do and self-satisfied Jew, while Mr. George Beale as Sidney Clifford, an up-to-date journalist, is excellent; Mr. Alec Alves is quite a success as Vere de Bogyns, and Mr. Roy Byford's efforts as Professor Shale are praiseworth. Miss Ada Blanche, as Mrs. Barrington, is responsible to a great extent for the success of the farce, and her good humour is quite contagious; Miss Marie Daltra, as Miss Foden, gives an entertaining representation of a lady with a mission in life. The Norah of Miss Grace Richardson is a very sweet and winsome young lady.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Drama of Life is the attraction here this week. Mr. Geo. M. Newall, as Harry Beech, gives a powerful rendering of a somewhat difficult part; Mr. Edward M. Hamilton, as Walter Beech, interprets the villainies of that gentleman in a realistic manner; the Sir Dobson Wilde of Mr. Harwood Roberts is a capital representation of the present-day aristocrat; Mr. Walter Steele, as Richard Brenton, submits a good portrayal of an up-to-date detective; Mr. Edward Van Biene gives a polished rendering of the part of the Count de Foi; Mr. Maxwell Payne and Mr. Sidney Fiennes, as Jack Lawton and Dave Crane, are smart accomplices in the villainies of Walter Beech. Miss Kate Hallam, as Sylvia Beech, is a pathetic and realistic heroine; Miss Florence French as Lady Jane Wilde plays her part with skill and discretion; while Miss Nellie Birchenough, as Betty Black, gives a true impersonation of the ordinary lodging-house keeper; Miss Marie Pardy, as Master Robert Beech, proves herself an artist of merit.

Grand Theatre.—General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—No Wedding Bells for Her is the somewhat startling title of the drama Mr. Frank Bateman's company is playing here this week. Mr. George C. Doughty carries off chief honours for his manly rendering of Dick Delver; Mr. Stuart Lomath submits a first-rate interpretation of Frank Hatherleigh; the part of Horatio Fane affords Mr. A. Balfour Mackay scope for a clever character study; and Mr. Louis Garton does well with somewhat scanty material as Montagu Blair. Miss Ida Mackay admirably impersonates the rôle of Doris Fane, and Miss Helen Owen is a skilful exponent of Maria Flail. Acceptable comedy is introduced here and there by Mr. Will Skelton as Simkins, and Miss Helen Stewart as Peggy.

Empire Theatre.—Resident Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—The first appearance in Newcastle of the famous Russian wrestler, George Hackenschmidt, has resulted in capital business being done here this week; Mason and Bart, as gymnasts on the deserted isle, execute some remarkable feats; Jake Friedman is a Tyrolean vocalist of exceptional merit, and also scores as a humorist; the Sisters Morgan impart some really funny business into their act, and are deservedly popular; as a mimic of well known music hall celebrities, Nina Gordon does well; and the cornet playing of Ralph and Nellie Howard is duly appreciated; Helene and Emilion perform a series of wonderful gymnastic feats, and the Stuart Quartette display more than average ability as vocalists and dancers; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, remains over from last week, and the animated pictures by the Bioscope are both interesting and amusing.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss Phyllis Dare, the charming Cinderella from the Royal pantomime, makes her debut here this week on the halls, and is as fascinating as ever in song and dance. She has the assistance of Mr. Stephen Adeson, and together they make an entertaining pair. The bottom of the bill consists of a sketch, entitled The Lady in Red, which is done full justice to by Tom Craven, Stephen Adeson and Co. The eccentricities of Dale and O'Malley keep the audience in a continual state of merriment, Lalla Selbini wins loud applause for her clever cycling act, a cordial reception is awarded to Ted Young, a favourite comedian, and a similar remark may be applied to Ada Twibell, burlesque actress; Harry Allister gives some truthful impersonations of well-known people; the Donatos, one-legged clowns, are exceedingly smart; the Great Three Seabornes (equilibristic wonders), Fred Land (comedian), the Four Fumels (musicians), all contribute with success.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Wm. Greet's company are paying a first visit to Newport this week with The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Reginald Switz plays the part of Jim Cheese with real humour; Dick Wargrave is admirably impersonated by Mr. Alex. Frazer, who shows a capacity for restrained burlesque; and Miss Mary Frazer makes a charming penniless American heiress. Mr. Stanley Harrison gives a finished performance as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. H. B. Brandreth shows considerable force as the explosive A. Bunker Bliss; Mr. Frank Cane is humorous as Downham; and Mr. Robt. Rous is genuinely funny in the part of the Jewish solicitor, Mr. Talk; and Mr. Tom Redmond does well as Hazell. Miss Florence Wix gives a clever interpretation of 'Liza Shoddam; Miss Maud Adams shows spirit in the part of Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Maud Aston is charmingly dainty as Daisy Fallowfield; and Miss May Morrison acts admirably as the aunt, Miss Virginia Bliss.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—The leading item on the bill is the Great Hughes, who gives a funny burlesque of hypnotism; the Artois Bros. give a clever performance on the bars; the Rinnards provide a very creditable turn; and Walter Munroe renders a couple of songs that go well; the Delevines, in Flipp and Flopp are humorous. Tragedy, burlesque, and humour come in turn in the comedy incident by Louie Counsell and Oscar Mills; and C. J. Butler and John Josey appear in picturesque costumes of the cavaliers; the Bros. Warshaw, a pair of musical comedians, provide an excellent turn; and the Bioscope shows some interesting pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. George Dance's companies are always welcome here, and the one he has sent us this week with The Little Michus is fully up to his highest standard of excellence. A merrier representative of the old general, Des Ifs, than Mr. Leslie Holland could not be found, and Mr. Cecil Clayton is equally good as Bagnolet. Mr. Gerald Clifford is a handsome and soldier-like Gaston Riguard, and plays and sings well; Mr. D. FitzGibbon makes a good Aristide Vert; Mr. T. E. Conover satisfactorily fills the part of Pierre Michu; the Little Michus, Marie Blanche (Miss Alice Coverick) and Blanche Marie (Miss Gracie Sinclair) are delightful delineations, full of grace and distinctive charm; Miss Florence Hylton is a bright and comical Madame Michu: Mlle. Marjorie is a conspicuous success in her high-class and artistic dancing. The chorus and orchestra are of the best, and reflect credit on the director, Mr. Victor Champion.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—Little Cliff holds the post of honour this week, and is in great favour; Fred Herbert makes a hit as a topical vocalist; Les Henris appear in an elegant equilibristic display; Harry Morris gives a taste of his quality as a character comedian; Arthur and Ashby appear in Phantasies of the Phiz; Maxwell and Francis present an amusing flirtation act; George Formby, "the man from Lancashire," tenders an acceptable turn; Dot Stanley is a nice vocalist and dancer; Baker and Balfe give operatic excerpts on the xylophone; and the Palace pictures provide a pleasant finale to the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A large and delighted audience assembled here on Monday evening, Mr. Walter Melville's company, in A Girl's Cross Roads, being the attraction. As John Meadows, Mr. Charles Franmore gave a highly satisfactory rendering of the character; and Mr. Frank R. Robertson acquitted himself in capital style as Jack Livingstone. Mr. Fred Ingram capably undertook the part of Toby Turvey; Mr. Roy Fortescue made the most of Cuthbert Lumley; Mr. John Brooks was well placed as Luke Ramsden; and Mr. Courtney Bellender as Doctor Westen met with approval. As Barbara Wade Miss Beaumont Collins displayed considerable ability, her excellent acting being greatly appreciated; Miss Nannie Meade was seen to advantage as Nellie Meadows; and Miss Elsie Savile scored as Constance Cornell.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The bill here this week is headed by Valazi, in his juggling, equilibristic, and athletic act; the Seven Sellinas, lady and gentlemen acrobats, also give a smart performance; and the Danbys, knockabout comedians, cause much laughter. The Brothers Levitt, vaulters; Miss Minnie Moran, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Wilton Allan, vocalist; Messrs. Sandes and Vincent, in their comedy act; and the bio-photoscope are also successful.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Lester Wright.—The Guilty Man is being presented at this theatre in a very creditable manner by Mr. Evan Roland's company. Mr. Harold Lewis gives a fine delineation of George Seymour; Mr. Alfred D. Adams proves an actor of talent in the difficult character of James Redman; as Esau Hebron Mr. Henry S. Dacre does well; Mr. Evan Roland is exceedingly humorous as Paddy Crowe, and his efforts to amuse are much appreciated; Mr. George Heaton is good as Captain Hardleigh; Miss Lily Lewis scores with her clever rendering of Audrey Priestly; and as Nell Radford Miss Muriel Inglis gives a fine rendering of the part. The piece is splendidly staged, and good houses are nightly obtained.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Coleman Davies and company are here this week in the comedy drama, Money Makes the Man. Mr. Terry Davies is good as Norman Travers; Mr. E. Thorn capably fills the part of Mat Morley; Mr. Sydney Forth is successful as John Malting; and the same may be said of Mr. George Tempest as Arthur Egerton. Mr. W. Vivian Tullock does well as Joe Moppitt; and Mr. Syd Lyons as Walkins, Mr. C. Martin as Warzel, and Mr. A. Bradley capably fill their respective parts. Mr. Coleman Davies, as Theophilus Podophylin, creates much laughter. Miss Eunice Udall deserves praise as Willie; and the same must be said of Miss Ada Gower, as Ella Gordon; Miss Nellie Navano is good as Sally Malting; and Miss Kitty Marriott makes an excellent Peggy Bouncer.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—An entertaining programme is being presented here this week. Heading the bill are Miss Ethel Arden and Mr. George Abel, and company, in Three of a Kind; George Rapley, comedian, is appreciated; and Richard Taylor, the whistling ventriloquist, is good in his imitations of birds; the Venola Brothers, gymnasts, show much muscle power; Stiddar and Cimbar, in their musical speciality, are excellent; Datas exhibits a wonderful memory; and Johnny Holland and Co. are funny in their laughable sketch, "The Millionaire."

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Charley's Aunt is still a great attraction, and Mr. Brandon Thomas has got together a very good company for his play. Mr. Stanley Cooke as Babs acts the part of the Aunt in a most comical manner, being ably assisted by Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard Mason as Chesney and Wykeham respectively; Mr. C. B. Keston is the Colonel; and as Stephen Spettigue, Mr. Walter Beaumont has ample scope for his admirable acting; Mr. Sydney Compton makes an ideal college servant. Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue, are charmingly impersonated by Misses Marian Ripley and Dorothy Deacon; Miss Gladys Storey makes a winsome Ela Deiahay; and Miss Ruth Suffield completes the cast as Donna Lucia.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The Grip of Iron still retains its fascination for many playgoers, and Fred Powell's long experience in the rôle of Jagon makes his powerful representation of that complex character a great attraction; Mr. Harry Scott plays Paul Blanchard; Miss Mildred Cottell gives a tender and impressive reading of Cora Simmonet; Miss Nellie Fletcher submits a pleasing portrayal of Sophie Blanchard; Mr. Richard Ferriss does well as Lorentz de Ribas; and Mr. George Denham adds a fund of humour as Lonstalot, alias The Smiler. Miss Hilda Baynton makes a vivacious Marie Guerin; and Miss Pope Royal is good as Mlle. Delaney.

King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edgar O. Waller.—There is every indication that the two houses nightly plan commends itself to patrons here. Fred Southern and his company, including May Emery, Gipsy Alexander, Chris Redgrave, Percy Emery, Chas. Ashwell, and Frank Delmere remain another week, and give a successful rendering of the sketch, A Life Between, and an amusing absurdity, His Lordship's Birthday; Bishop and Hanlon earn much applause for their comedy business; Daisy Silcott is well rewarded for her songs; the Guoyons supply the musical episode, His One Great Sin; and the programme is further helped by Fred Harrison, comedian; Jack Heath, comedian; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Kate Carney pays a visit with her new song episode, entitled, "Our Laundry," which brings out peals of hearty laughter. The smartness, neatness, and dexterity of the Kellinos always ensures the highest commendations; Payne's Little Vagabonds sing well; the beautiful Scotch collies, introduced by Duncan, attain the perfection of anima ltraining. A humorous sketch brings Amann and Hartley into prominence; and the Esdaile Bros. add to their reputation; Kyoto gains applause for his comical box; and How and Ardie show themselves clever as comedy acrobats; the singing and big-boot dancing of the Cape Girls find favour; and Miss May Geraldine sings acceptably.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Edward Ranier's vaudeville company is here this week. There is plenty of variety in the programme, which includes two dramatic sketches—The Bank Robbery and The Blinding Light. Miss Violet Moore, comedienne, gives a good turn; the Two Sages, Maynard and France, who appear in a laughing absurdity A Perfect Lady; Preston Holmes, musical expert and sand dancer; and the Two Willons, coon dancers, are all well received. An interesting set of pictures are shown on the bioscope.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hulme.—Mr. Walter Reynolds' company in Mr. Smith occupies the boards this week. As the hero Mr. Smith, Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart is very good; Mrs. Alfred Davies as the old mother has a delightful part and she plays it excellently; as the millionaire brewer Herr Deidrich Anheuser, Mr. Herbert Grahame supplies a neat character study; Miss Mary Relph, Miss Phyllis Relph, and Miss Ethel Hilton play their parts in finished style as the Duchess of Angleland, Lady Mary Hildergate, and Ruth Anheuser respectively. Other rôles are ably filled by Mr. Sydney Price as the Earl of Oxted, Mr. Wm. Dunlop as the Duke of Angleland, Mr. Rupert Stutfield as the Hon. Dudley Dysart, and Mr. Austin Spencer as Jack Berkeley.

Colosseum.—Manager, Mr. J. Ball.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company, in The Love that Women Desire, is the attraction here. Philip Carnaby is well acted by Mr. David G. Noble; the villainous trio, Squire Abingdon and his son and daughter Richard and Madge, are ably played by Mr. J. O. Stewart, Mr. A. Wincote, and Miss Alice N. Livesey. Sybil Thorburn is effectively portrayed by Miss Lalla Stanhope; Mr. G. Carlton Wallace is good as Frank Hardy, as is Mr. H. Wallace as the Rev. Arnold Gathorne; and Miss Maud Stewart sustains the part of Pattie Swift in an able manner. The comedy parts are in safe hands, Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke, ably assisted by Mr. Arthur Rich as P.C. Sowerberry, and Miss Violet Hay as Molly, are responsible for some excellent fun.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Howgate.—Conway and Leyland, "the Merry Monopedes," top the bill here; Belloni's performing cockatoos provide a good turn; Leo Tell, mimic, has a good reception; Fred Cary, an old favourite, does well; the Sisters Terry please the audience with their Irish songs; and Lilian Lowe is a good singer. Harris and Worth, comedians, and Dent and Harris, in a sketch Mary and the Squire, and Great Scott, are also in the programme.

Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—A good entertainment here includes N. T. Kioto, a Japanese equilibrist. The Four Rosaires give a good acrobatic performance; and the Three Boleros score in a comedy triple bar act. Bennett and Martell (Jack and Charlie) cause roars of laughter; and Dot Hardy, comedienne, is well received, as is L. B. Athol, in his vocal scena Dreamland. Charlie Williams, Scotch coon comedian and big-boot dancer, is amusing; and the Dottoscope shows some excellent pictures.

OXFORD.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorril.—This week we are having a delightful return visit from Old Heidelberg, delightfully interpreted by Mr. Mouillot's excellent company, under the management of Mr. Guyton Heath. Mr. Robert Minster gives an effective and natural rendering of Karl Heinrich; Mr. J. Nelson Ramsay makes Dr. Juttner a most lovable and interesting person; Mr. L. Gadsden is wonderfully well suited as the valet Lutz; Mr. A. Moore is a capital Ruder, and Mr. Willis Searle a highly amusing Kellerman. Ruder's wife and aunt find pleasing exponents in the Misses Rose Helene and Nessie Blachford, and Miss Irene Lavington wins all hearts with her delightfully fresh and buoyant performance of Kathie.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—The pantomime burlesques Dainty Dolly Varden and The Sleeping Beauty are prolonging their visit here for another week. Mr. Clarence Ibbotson as Sir Rotter De Rot and Mr. Jack Crows as Dame Varden, as before, acquit themselves admirably; Messrs. Carl and Carr have won favour as Johnny Stout and Billy Green; Miss Flo Melville is as bright as ever as Tom Tucker, and Miss Lilla Kedwards as Marjory Daw dances cleverly. Miss Amy Randolph as Dolly Varden and Miss Edna Cragge as Boy Blue repeat their successful performances. The Four Sydney Girls are better than ever.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Occupying the boards here this week is Mr. T. Edward Ward's company in Her Wedding Day. Mr. Percy Brown acts skilfully as Harold Saxby; as Weedon Kenyon Mr. S. Herbert Humber furnishes a powerful embodiment; Mr. T. Edward Ward submits a capital portraiture of Seth Mayson; very funny and humorous is the depiction of Caccles by Mr. Fred Yarnold, and a good presentment of Jordan P. Jessop is given by Mr. Morris Maud. Miss Ward plays in a sympathetic and realistic manner the part of Madge Conway, Miss Eva Bertram as Dolly Kling is vivacious, an excellent representation of Dora is submitted by Miss Beatrice Sinclair, and Miss Vida Hazelwood is clever and entertaining as Mrs. Caccles. Other parts are creditably filled by Messrs. James Barrett, Charles Fysher, and Julian Phelps.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—A capital programme is contributed to here this week by Bill Fielder (champion boxer), Cosgrove and Burns (Tom and Ethel) (comedy entertainers), Maud Vining (comedienne and dancer), the Bransbys (Harry and Louie) (comedy and duologue artists), Bob Lethard (comedian), Mr. and Mrs. Delno Fritz (in their great fire act), and Bessie Travis (ventriloquist and pianist).

PENTRE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Roberts Jones.—Mr. Harry Starr and company are here this week in Carl the Clockmaker and Otto the Outcast. The former piece was on Monday presented to a large and appreciative audience. Premier honours were earned by Mr. Starr, who had ample scope for his versatility in the titular part. Maurice Helmore was admirably portrayed by Mr. Edwin Firth; the part of Count Ivan was well placed with Mr. Arthur Esdall; Hans Conrad was in the capable hands of Mr. Bernard Mostyn; Mr. Edward Helm sustained the part of Arthur Attwood with humour, and Mr. Tom Rusher in the rôle of Detective Tom Taylor gave an effective interpretation. As Markey Nabbs Mr. Will Hee was irrepressible, and Miss Kate Norris made the most of her opportunities as Lena Harrigail. Miss Lucie Fitzroy adapted herself to the part of Jerusha Jane Picklefinch with much effect, and Miss Madge Blundell showed excellent dramatic gifts as Madge Ryder.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Langdon Lee.—A three-act farce, The Shop Boy, occupies the stage at Mr. Williams's theatre, and creates plenty of fun, in which Mr. Harry Pleon is the central figure. This versatile comedian is the life and soul of the piece, being ably backed up by Mr. Paul Belmore as Frank Counterjumper and Mr. Jack McKenzie as Mrs. Septimus Green. The Alexandra Troupe of Lady Dancers make two or three appearances, and are able exponents of the terpsichorean art. Others contributing to the somewhat boisterous fun are Mr. Claud Aymond (Victor Victorine) and Miss Celia Kent as Blighted Birdie. The piece is preceded by The Club Raid, in which the principal characters are sustained by Messrs. Harry Pleon, Paul Belmore, Jack McKenzie, and C. Gladwell, and the Misses Celia Kent and Bessie Rignold.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—A dramatised version of Fegus Hume's Mystery of a Hansom Cab has been presented to the patrons of the Grand. The piece abounds in exciting incidents, and Mr. Edward Lloyd as Brian Fitzgerald, the hero, makes the most of the opportunities that fall to his lot, receiving material assistance from Mr. A. Marchant as Mr. Carlton and Mr. T. G. Warren as Felix Rolleston; Mr. Chas. Mitchell in the part of Oliver White is smart. Miss Irina Farrington as Mrs. Sampson gives a good rendering of an eccentric personage, and Miss Edith Dene works hard as Rosanna Moore.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—The Major has not paid a visit to the Three Towns since it caused the memorable libel action of McQuire v. The Western Morning News. The title-rôle is sustained by Mr. T. C. McQuire as the hot-headed military gentleman, while the part of Angelina is safely left to Miss Ada Wallis; Mr. Harry Vernon as Jeremiah Stoney and Miss E. Tooney as Mrs. Gampwey are humorous. The company also presents another comedy, Sweet Marie.

Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore; General Manager, Mr. J. Field.—Paradoxical as it sounds, Dusty Rhodes is quite refreshing, his wheezes and patter putting the Palace habitués in a good humour; the McConnell Trio are responsible for plenty of merriment in their sketch A Musical Mistake, and Albert Le Fre comes in for a hearty reception in his melangé entitled "That's what you see on the stage." A most acceptable item is that submitted by Arabella Allen, consisting of character-sketches from the works of Charles Dickens, while Kent and Keith cleverly and humorously impersonate the various patrons at the theatre. F. A. Crisp (vocal comedian), Eily Adair (soubrette and dancer), Jack Channon (vocalist), and Vernon's pictures complete an interesting programme.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company in Old Madrid. Frank Lyndhurst is admirably portrayed by Mr. Fred J. Kirke; Fernando Cassillus has an able exponent in Mr. Harold Wallace; Mendoza is in the able hands of Mr. Mark Practice; Lola Sittagano is sympathetically played by Miss Louie Fountaine; Miss Lily Seymour is highly diverting as Martha Jane; and Miss Annie Brunette dramatically plays Violet Lyndhurst.

PORTH.—Poole's Opera House.—Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The attraction here this week is the pantomime entitled Cinderella, which is being presented by Mr. Cecil Clayton. Miss Eva Rosslyn deserves a compliment for her representation of the Prince; Dandini, his valet, has an able representative in Miss Mabel Beaufort; Mr. Herbert Colley is most entertaining as Baron Loweralotte; Mr. Reginald Kloof as Lily and Mr. Arthur Loman as Gertie score a distinct success. Miss Gertrude Gray is charming as the Fairy. She possesses a capital voice, and is well received. Miss Minnie Burrell deserves credit as the Duke; the title-rôle is successfully played by Miss Norah Waylett. The following specialities are introduced: Stifford, juggler and equilibrist; Reg. Kloof, musical expert; the Sisters Clancy, acrobatic dancers; and Miss Gertrude Gray, ballad vocalist.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. C. St. John Denton's capable company is presenting here this week the popular musical comedy Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guiver's fine presence and excellent soprano voice in the name part create a most favourable impression; Lady Binfield is also a capital impersonation by Miss Marie West. Mrs. Bright has an able exponent in Miss Nellie Lauraine; and Miss Gertrude Page does well as Sadie as Sir Mulberry Flippington, Mr. P. Baverstock as General Baugh, Mr. E. Spalding as the Rev. John Smith, Mr. W. H. Moore as Horatio Binks, and Mr. C. L. Ludlow, as Bingle, are all well up to the mark. Miss Mabel Kerridge as Polly Perkins, Miss Jennie Holmes as Lady Flippington, and Miss Josephine Ellis as Maud sustain their parts well. Miss Josephine Ellis also distinguishes herself as première danseuse.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Cutling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—A good house assembled on Monday evening, when The Orchid made its first appearance here. Miss Dorothy Firmin delighted the audience as Lady Violet Anstruther, her dancing, singing, and clever acting having a charming freshness that won all hearts; Miss Madeline Maude, as Caroline Vokins, made a favourable impression; Miss Elsa Brull, with a good voice, was quite a favourite as Josephine Zaccary; Miss Florence Wakeman enacted the part of Zelie to the life; and Miss Maud Davis made a stately and imposing Countess Anstruther; Mr. Fern Pound was a decided success as Guy Scrymgeour; Mr. W. Griffin admirably portrayed the impecunious Dr. Ronald Faussett; Mr. Arthur Hemsley did some clever acrobatic dancing as Zaccary; Mr. E. Nainby as the excitable Comte de Cassignat was all that could be desired; and Mr. Tommy Neildon was irresistibly funny as Meakin, scoring heavily in the burlesque duel scene.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee.—A capital programme is submitted here this week. The Three Delaires perform many daring feats on the triple trapeze; Jolly Criss Cross both sings and dances with success; Angeline, lady juggler, is exceptionally smart in her feats; Vernon and Voyce Co., in Jack Sheppard submit a most enjoyable vocal turn; and Harry Hayton, comedian; the Two Manzanares, on balancing horseshoes; the Four Mill Lads, vocalists; and Vernon's animated pictures, complete the list.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—An interesting and varied bill of fare is presented to the patrons here this week. Narvow Bros., in their cycling act, perform amazing and amusing tricks; Tiny Arnold is a dainty and winsome artist, whose singing and dancing are thoroughly enjoyed; Ernie Myers, patter comedian, keeps the audience roaring with laughter with his witty patter; Lily Lonsdale is a charming soprano; and other good turns are submitted by Baroni and Kemp, lightning change artists; Phinas and Aida, gymnasts; Robins and Collier, in The Lady and the Porter; and the Empire Bioscope.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holberry Hardy.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here this week, with the interesting social drama, Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. Albert Ward is a manly George Maddison; and Mr. Lionel D'Aragon is seen to advantage as Charles Devereux; Mr. Holland Daw gives a clever portrayal of the part of Geoffrey Broughton; and Mr. Henry Milton scores as John Williams; Miss Eugenie Morgan is smart as Lady Lucretia Lancaster; and Miss Barbara Gott is deserving of mention as the Mother Superior; Little Lucy speaks her lines very prettily; and Miss Isla Garret Vayne gives a pleasing portrayal of the part of Lucy.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Drew Mackintosh.—Mr. James Morton's company appeared the first three nights of the week in The Rajah of Ranjapore, followed on Thursday and Friday by The Sporting Girl. In The Rajah of Ranjapore Miss Maggie Sinclair repeats her success on a previous visit as Eliza a housemaid, singing, acting, and dancing equally well; Miss Nell Ascott as Primrose gives a refined and talented rendering; Miss Minnie Blackmore as Edith does very well; Horatio Chicks, in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Sinclair, is full of life and go; Mr. James Stirling as Captain Hestage is excellent in his exposition; and as the Rajah Mr. P. Peircey Watson more than merits the appreciation shown of his efforts. Mr. Jock McKay as Thistles is versatile and clever; and Mr. Fred Hart as Mr. Stubbs does not miss an opportunity. Mr. M. Drury as Ted Perkins gives every satisfaction.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—A musical treat is afforded this week in the shape of Mr. George Dance's company, in The Cingalee. Mr. A. W. Drewitt, as the Hon. Harry Vereker, is highly entertaining, and possesses a good tenor voice; Mr. H. Webb, as Boobhama, is a pronounced success; Mr. Eric Fenton is a capital Sir Peter Loftus; a striking feature is the laughable eccentricities of Tom Payne, as Chambuddy Ram; Miss Ethel Harmer is captivating as Nanoya; Miss Hilda Field is pleasing as the vivacious Lady Patricia Walker; Miss E. Hughes deserves unstinted praise as Peggy Sabine.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Napoleon the Great is the attraction this week, provided by Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives a fine study of Napoleon; Miss Leslie Warner sustains the part of Marie Walewska with ability; Mr. Bartlett Garth forcibly portrays the Polish fanatic, Paul Laczniski; Mr. Frank M. Thorne as Pierre Pomponnet, Miss Mary Harcourt as Marcelle, and Mr. C. W. Spencer as Sergeant Choupin keep the house highly amused. Colonel Lavarennes and Col. Jules Meuron are in the capable hands of Mr. Henry Earlesmere and Mr. Phil Harper. Miss Maude Russell as Mdlle Leoni Marbœuf, and Miss F. Thorne as Mère Dumont are well placed.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Kiss Your Father; or, the Irish Doctor (in which Mr. Lonnen Meadows, Mr. Lewis Leslie, Miss Ada Tilley, and Miss L. Leslie appear) is a farcical sketch, abounding in laughable situations. The patter of Malcolm Scott, as the woman who knows, keeps the house in roars. The songs of the sea by the Steinway Quartette are well received; Jack Pleasants is a quaint comedian. Other good turns are provided by Fred Villers, comedy artist; Winnie Brooke and Mabel Florence, duettists and dancers; Burley and Burley, acrobatic comedians; Ada Vernon, burlesque actress; Rastus and Banks, smart coloured entertainers; and Ellis Barrieton, double-voiced vocalist.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Harry Tate's Fishing is a very comical act which heads a bill of good things. Gus Harris, Hebrew character delineator, in The Synagogue, gets much applause. Other turns are by Arthur Slater, bird whistler; Les Rupertos, very good equilibrists; the Three Clarions, in the musical absurdity, The Would-be Tenor; Oakdene, in the singing picture scena, The Stowaways; Clifton and Gibson, eccentric comedians; Franko Midgets, conjurers; and J. C. Laurie, in "Walk, Walk, Walk."

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company opened here on Monday in Sergeant Brue. As the Sergeant Mr. J. Harold Carson scored a great success; Mr. Frank Wilson as Michael Brue played well, his songs being deservedly encored; as Crookie Scrubbs Mr. Albert James proved himself highly popular; Mr. Fred Laceby made a capital Mr. Crank; Miss Reydon Dallas in the rôle of Lady Bickenhall gave a graceful impersonation; Miss Gertie Fawcett was winning and interesting as Aurora, and Miss Amy Vivash was good as Daisy.

SCARBOROUGH.—PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Charles Morritt is the "star" turn here this week, and his performance is one of the best. With him is "the blind man," who has a marvellous memory, and is quite a human "encyclopædia." In a smart comedy act, Koe and Koe give a very good show, and are cordially received; Fred Burnaby's fine voice is heard to advantage in capital selections; Blanche Gerard is a smart comedienne, and has a good companion in her dog; Duncan and Morton put on a very taking sketch in Stage Chums; J. C. Morris is a really funny comedian, and earns well-deserved applause; and Vernon's Bioscope is still running with up-to-date pictures.

LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. Carpenter.—Mr. Hayden Coffin, the well-known actor-vocalist, and several other artists of exceptional talent, on Tuesday evening gave a ballad concert, arranged by Mr. Donald Arthur. Mr. Coffin was in fine voice, and in "Total Eclipse" (Samson) and "Melisande in the Wood" (Goetz), he made an excellent impression, which he excelled in "The Village Blacksmith." Mr. Ivor Warren (tenor) is a delightful and polished singer; the Baroness Pasthory was exceptionally clever in her various selections; Miss Florence Dixon sang several songs in a very artistic manner; the performance of that clever violinist, Herr Jan Rudenyi, who played two pieces of his own composition, was one of the successes of the evening; Mr. Frank Mummery made a first-rate accompanist to all the artists, and the concert, altogether, was a great success.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Councillor James Kiernan.—Mr. William A. Armour's company appears this week with What a Woman Did. Mr. Edward Rawlinson gives a powerful interpretation of Conrad de L'Orme; Mr. William A. Armour plays with force the rôle of Raffaelle Duroc. Mr. Jim Woods is satisfactory as Fritz von Hœgitheim; Mr. Fred Rignold supplies the comic element as Peter Pippin; Pitou the Hunchback receives full justice from Mr. Chas. Earle; and Miss Bertha Clifton gives a vivacious interpretation of Nanette. Miss Adelaide Clare effectively sustains the part of Le Papillon, and Miss Dora Price gives a clever and satisfactory delineation of Elsie de L'Orme.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—The visits of Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer to Seaham are always welcome, and she was accorded a hearty reception on her appearance here on Monday, when Mary Queen of Scots was presented. Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer portrays Mary with her well-known ability and with remarkable vigour. As Elizabeth Miss Katherine Herbert won marked approval; the Earl of Leicester of Mr. Montague Lane was a capable piece of acting; Mr. Sydney Bland as Burleigh acquitted himself well; Sir Edward Mortimer was effectively played by Mr. Matthew Boulton. As the Earl of Shrewsbury Mr. George Munroe was very successful; Mr. K. Fenton was a satisfactory Melville. East Lynne, Sapho, School for Scandal, Leah, the Forsaken, and Jane Shore form the week's répertoire. The management have secured a fine bioscope, the property of Messrs. Downey, whose series of pictures are being shown between the acts and for a short time preceding the rise of the curtain.

SHEERNESS.—THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton.—An attractive bill of fare is submitted here for this week. Mr. Chas. Bignell creates considerable amusement with his comedy songs; the Washingtons, in their vocal and dancing act, are favourably received; Miss Flo Luck is a pleasing comedienne; the Arizonas, in their acrobatic potpourri act, are clever; Mr. Will Percival, comedian and dancer, provides an amusing turn; and Miss Belle Harcourt, a refined vocalist, contributes with pleasing effect. Ruffel's Bioscope displays some interesting animated pictures.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. P. Reymond.—Amongst the excellent company appearing here are the Audleys, comedy sketch artists, in the laughable act I Would; Miss Eunice Bell, descriptive vocalist, is also much admired. Other items appearing with equal success are Mr. Alec Thomas, comedian and dancer, and Mr. Fred Anson, comedian. Miss Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, and Mr. Jack Foley, comedian and patterer, are also staying for another week.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Cingalee is again being performed here to large audiences. On Monday there was much enthusiasm, and the members of Mr. George Dance's company were all successful. Miss Nellie Wigley made a graceful and fascinating representative of Nanoya, and her songs were heartily applauded; Miss Emilie Mayhew was an aristocratic Lady Patricia, Miss Cissie Sephton a clever Peggy Sabine, and Miss Violet Holmes in an artistic dance contributed to the general enjoyment. Mr. J. Osborne as Ram kept the audience in a continual ripple of mirth; Mr. G. J. Williams also caused laughter as Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Helier Le Maistre made a dignified Boobhamba, and Mr. Roy Sydney as Bobby Warren and Mr. Kenneth Wynne as the Hon. Harry Vereker both acted smartly and sang with excellent effect. The scenery was much admired, and there was a large and well-dressed chorus.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. T. S. Carter.—After twenty-nine years, Proof, or A Celebrated Case, still retains much of its vitality, and a good audience on Monday followed with keen interest the sad story of the long-suffering Pierre Lorance, a character admirably played by Mr. Gerald Kennedy. The scoundrel Lazare was ably depicted by Mr. William Dexter. Miss Lucy Pryttle-Tydd in the dual rôle of Madeline and Adrienne, acted with emotional ability, and other parts were creditably performed by the talented members of Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Her One Great Sin was presented here on Monday, under the direction of Miss Blanch St. Alban and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson. Miss Blanch St. Alban's Grace was a careful and conscientious piece of work, and she fully realised the character of a lovable, unfortunate woman.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The pièce de résistance here is The Mumming Birds, which was rattled through at breathless speed on Monday, and kept the crowded house in roars of irrepressible mirth. Mr. Tom Costello gave a commendable touch of real sentiment and human feeling to the programme by his impersonation of the poor old clown who finds "his occupation gone." Miss Fanny Robina brought down the house in a pithy and well-declaimed topical song; Booker and Narbis, as usual, were very entertaining in their skit, The Interviewer. Hays and Suits, a talented couple of singers and dancers, made a big success; the novel entertainment given by Spessardy's bears and ponies was greatly enjoyed; a humorous film by the famous Urban firm proved a revelation to local lovers of the bioscope; the Rohda Bros. did a smart athletic act; Miss Amy Russell was heartily applauded, and Miss Ruth Doris was very successful.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Miss Emma Don and her troupe are appearing this week in a musical sketch called The Prodigal; and other attractions are Walker and Lake (comedians), Mr. Joe Humphries (comic singer), Mr. Tony Iveson (the "tramp aristocrat"), Mr. Ted Farrar (vocal comedian), Miss Grace Langley (serio-comic), Mr. Alec Forbes and company, and Professor Pallister's biograph with funny and up-to-date pictures.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The Orchid was admirably played here on the first three nights of this week by Mr. Geo. Dance's company. Miss Marjory Moore made a successful and attractive Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Phil Gumpel as the amorous Caroline acquitted herself creditably; Miss Sissie Brand played with ability the part of Zelie Rumbert; Miss E. Morris made a capable Thisbe; Miss Helen Dunscombe merited praise as the Countess Anstruther; and Miss Trilby Collier was a smart Josephine Zaccary. Mr. Harry Walsh was a thoroughly amusing and clever Meakin; Mr. Sinclair Helden a droll Guy; Mr. Vyvyan Wakeman showed talent as Dr. Ronald Faussett; Mr. Chas. Seymour as Mr. Aubrey Chesterton worked hard and creditably; Mr. J. F. Vale infused plenty of life into the rôle of Zaccary, and the other French character parts were capably filled.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The Branded Woman, by E. Wybert Clive, a melodrama of the approved type, gripped the attention of Monday night's large audience here. The piece is admirably staged by Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon's company, with whom is Miss Renee Glendower, who appears as the "branded woman." Hers is a complex character, and she plays it with marked ability. Mr. James Stillwell is the Philip Maurice, and with this character he doubles that of Zarka, a hunchback hypnotist. In both his representation is admirable. Mr. Edward Fryer, the Baron Hauber, accomplishes his stage-villainy in an interesting manner, being ably assisted by Mr. Paul E. Teulon in the rôle of Louise Duroc. Miss Katherine Barnett plays the part of Marie with singular charm; Miss Hilda Townsend is winsome as little Rudolph; and the humorous parts, in the hands of Mr. Beckett Bould (Dick Brown), and Miss Kitty McPherson (Jacqueline), are well brought out.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Owners, The Southend-on-Sea Theatre Co. (1905), Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Frederick Melville's capable company is presenting here the drama entitled The Beast and the Beauty. Jack Barrymore was cleverly portrayed by Mr. Fred D. Davies. His prehistoric father, the Earl of Loman, was ably presented by Mr. Bernard J. Liell, whilst Mr. Will Corrie as Tom Chicken deserves mention. Henry Denver, otherwise Lord X, found in Mr. Bernard Mervyn a really capable exponent, who played the rôle of the villain with ability. Mr. Ronald Adair as Ned Sampson was decidedly good. The Misses Mamie Rendle and Jessie Danvers score as Clarice and Minnie respectively. Delilah Vane was forcibly and strikingly portrayed by Miss Georgiette Thierry, whilst Miss Alice Bowes was a dignified and graceful Violet.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—The last skating fancy dress carnival at these popular winter gardens and skating rink was held on Wednesday evening, and proved a decided success, the place being full to overflowing. There were numerous entries and keen competition for the valuable prizes offered. The American Bioscope shows interesting pictures, and the celebrated Red Band contribute the music. To-day terminates a very enjoyable season.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—The popular musical comedy Sergeant Brue made its first appearance here on Monday, the company responsible for the representation being that of Mr. E. Lockwood. Miss Lilian Middleton depicted Aurora Brue in a graceful and charming manner; Miss Midge Clark played the part of Lady Bickenhall effectively; Mr. Arthur Reynolds in the title-rôle and Mr. Charles McLagan as Crookie Scrubbs both acquitted themselves creditably; Mr. E. Percy Rogers is a commendable exponent of Michael Brue; Gerald Treherne is capitally represented by Mr. Arthur Stroud; Mr. Clarence Napier submits a praiseworthy portraiture of Inspector Gorringe; and Mr. Henry Chichester humorously impersonates Mr. Crank.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—A programme of more than usual attractiveness is presented here this week, the most prominent feature being supplied by Marie Santoi, in her original scena, The Merry Geisha Girls. Other turns include Craig, Rose, and Craig, athletes; Billy Burns, the singing pit lad; Marie Blythe, popular comedienne; Alf. Levarni, tight wire speciality act; Charles Cardle, white coon vocalist; Ray and Miles, eccentric jugglers; and the Bio-Tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Her Luck in London, a drama of life, written by Mr. Charles Darrell, is being performed to good houses here. Miss Mary Neil appears to great advantage in the part of Nellie Harborne; the Ruth Harborne of Miss Ella Vane is a strong performance; Mr. Chas. A. Leicester creates a good impression as the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor; and Mr. Stephen Crossley is well cast as Richard Lenowen. Miss Florrie Groves makes a capable Chambermaid.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Harry Tate and company, in their funny sketch, entitled Motoring, delight the audience. Some wonderful feats are shown by the Auroras, a troupe of acrobatic cyclists; Chris. Richards, comedian, scores as the "man with the hat." Fred E. Terry (comedian), Wisper (comedy juggler), Beattie Bloom (comedienne and dancer), Katie Butler (comedienne), and the American Bioscope are other attractions.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—The bill here this week is headed by the Gladenbecks in their hand-balancing and ring speciality act; a humorous interlude is provided by Carney and Armstrong, entitled The Pro. and the Baggage Man; Star and Jerome appear, and give a capital display of sand dancing; lovers of operatic singing are given a treat by Belrose and De Velvin; and well-merited applause is evoked by Ida Ross, a Tyrolean vocalist of ability. Fenton (lightning artist and ventriloquist) and Walter Payne's Bioscope (with fresh films) are also attractive items SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—In The Poor Must Live, as presented by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company, local patrons are finding something which suits their tastes. Beautiful scenery and capable acting combine to produce a favourable impression. Miss Olive Fulton represents the designing adventuress Olga D'Eyncourt with much power, and in marked contrast is the exceedingly winsome picture of Dorothy Murdock submitted by Miss Violet Hammersley. Mr. Fulton sustains the rôle of Clifton Manville with success; Mr. Chas. O'Connor as the Earl of Marshwood is well placed; and Mr. Harold Macartney appears as Drummond Tredegar with much success. Mr. Herbert Clifton as Dick Sully exhibits vocal powers of a high order, his rendering of "The Holy City" being greeted with round after round of applause; and Mr. Shaun Glenville as Hooker Holdsnitch is extremely droll. Miss Alice Buckland as Moya, Miss Marguerite Thorne as Sal, and Mr. Arthur Trail as Sam Sully contribute materially to the success.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Crowded and enthusiastic audiences are being drawn here this week to witness Mr. G. Dance's principal company in The Cingalee. As Nanoya Miss Winnie O'Connor, who has a captivating manner and a good voice, submits a finished performance. Mr. Laurie de Frece evokes the laughter of all by his clever and humorous Chambuddy; Mr. Frank Crump, with an excellent voice, is distinctly good as Harry Vereker, and Mr. Bertrand Gates does well as Boobhamba. Miss Marjorie Clarke is particularly charming and lively as Lady Patricia; Miss Gladys Guy gives a capital impersonation of Peggy Sabine; Sir Peter has a first-rate exponent in Mr. Coop Edmunds, and Mr. E. Edwards does well as Warran.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, W. Sley, and F. Willmot; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—At the top of the bill here we have Howard and Harris in a clever and humorous act entitled The Happy Hooligan. Mr. Gerald Mount (an old favourite) scores as of yore as a mimic; Miss Gracie Lawn is a good comedienne, and Donna and Cliff are gifted artists. The Three Romas (smart and neat acrobats), Mlle. Hayden (with her mannikins), and Miss Lily Black (an accomplished burlesque artist) complete the list.

STOCKPORT.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Stockport Garrick Society, a local amateur dramatic organisation with a membership exceeding three hundred, has occupied the boards here throughout the week with representations of The Winter's Tale and King Lear, which have been fairly satisfactorily given under the able direction of Mr. Ryder Boys.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The Waldrons are at the head of a capital array of talent engaged here this week, and appear in The Silly Burglar, which is undoubtedly the most laughable sketch seen here for a long time. Those clever comedians, Ike Scott and Son, are very amusing, and the Itrams in their gymnastic perch speciality and Wallan, boy juggler, display their ability with marked success. Fred Cullane's Comedy Trio give a mirth-provoking comedietta, The Ladies' School, and Wat Tyler (character vocalist), Fannie Iris (comedienne and dancer), and T. E. Hughes (character comedian) meet with satisfactory appreciation.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Capital business continues at the above house, another excellent programme being presented this week. The premier position is held by Miss Hettie King, who is exceedingly successful in her various items, which were artistically rendered; Zaro and Arno in a triple-bar performance are both clever and amusing; the Franch Bros. contribute a finished acrobatic performance; Little Salvino, the boy instrumentalist, has the making of a brilliant turn, his items being cleverly rendered; Miss Janet Howard Reynolds sings her ballads admirably; the Two Travers, duettists, are capitally received; Nellie Chandos dances excellently; Frank Bertram and Co. present The Chaperon, which is most amusing, much of this being due to the gentleman who plays the servant. A beautifully-coloured butterfly scena is shown by the bioscope.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. Gus Levaine is here for the week with the pantomime Aladdin. Miss Mary Harding in the title-rôle plays capably; Miss Florrie Gibson is pleasing as the Princess; Mr. Arthur Collins as the Emperor possesses a capital voice; Miss Florence Burnett is satisfactory as Electra.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. George Dance's company with the Duchess of Dantzic is paying a welcome return visit. Miss May Glenn gives an admirable rendering of the title-rôle; Miss Maggie White is seen to advantage as Renée de Saint Mayard, her vocal efforts being heartily appreciated; Mr. Leonard F. Griffiths, as Maréchal Fefebvre leaves nothing to be desired; and Mr. Gilbert Yorke gives a commendable impersonation of Napoleon. Mr. Arthur Paterson is rather amusing as Papillon, and Miss Buena Bent is a charming Lisette and a vocalist of merit.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd; Managing-director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hemingway.—Mr. Fred Granville's company in For Better or Worse drew a crowded house here on Monday. Mr. George Edwin Clive gave a capital rendering of Captain Frank Hilliard, and Major Gerald Crawshaw found an apt exponent in Mr. Ellis J. Preston. Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh infused considerable power into the rôle of Ned Earnshaw, and Mr. Willie Black caused much mirth by his clever rendering of Horatio P. Ranter. Miss Crissie Dunbar submitted a refined rendering of Olive Heathcote; and the Belle Baverstock of Miss Amy Vennimore was excellent.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. John H. Stringer; Treasurer, Mr. Alfred Browne.—A capital programme is provided here this week. Harry Ford, comedian, is accorded a flattering reception; the Deer Family (North American Indians) in their sensational act, Indians of the Past, provide an interesting turn; and Marcus Boyle, comedian; Carl Howard, conjurer; Sherlock and Van Dalle, in their musical fantasy; Ada Whitton, male impersonator; Susie and Protti, speciality dancers; Hall and Earle, eccentrics; and Vernon's Pictures complete the entertainment

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Captain Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—A Soldier's Revenge, excellently played by Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey and Hardy's company, fills the bill this week. The melodrama was well received on Monday evening, and Mr. Montague Beaudyn's fine performance as Ironhand the Avenger gained loud applause. Mr. Howard Hardy as Matthew Mardyke, Mr. Robertson Foulis as Sir Marsden Mardyke, Mr. Edward Carter as Sir Wilfred Avondale, and Mr. Tom Robertson as the Protector were all most capable. Miss Irene Munroe made a refined and sweet Ruby Avondale, and Miss Floria Hill was good as Mistress Judith.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical-Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—The popular parts of this house were crowded on Monday when that new sensational drama, None but the Brave, effectively staged, was presented in this town for the first time. As the hero Captain Frank Forrester, Mr. Herbert Evelyn acquits himself capitally. Miss Frances Strickland does well as Nellie Whittier. Stage villainy is prominently and cleverly displayed by Mr. Eric Hudson as Emmanuel de Solis and Miss Madge Devereaux as La Tarantula, both being strikingly successful, and Mr. George Herbert is seen to advantage as an American planter, Zeke Whittier. The comedy parts are excellently undertaken by Mr. Stanley Bedwell as Lal Ray and Miss Amy Hermann as April Showers, their joint efforts causing continuous merriment.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. Arthur St. John's company were so much appreciated in The Taming of the Shrew that a prolongation of the visit has been arranged in a répertorie including Jane Shore, Louis XI., and The Three Musketeers. On Monday in Jane Shore Miss Ida St. John gave a powerful impersonation of the title-rôle; Mr. Arthur St. John in his dual character of the Duke of Gloster and Matthew Shore made a great hit; Mr. Douglas Hamilton as Lord Hastings and Mr. Bert Elvin as Catesby were also very successful, while in the characters of Fabert, Grist, Scarsdale, &c., Messrs. V. A. Biscoe, W. J. Mackersey, Walter Clarke and Powell James must be commended. In the queenly rôle of Elizabeth Woodville Miss Kitty Bennett imparted the necessary dignity, and Miss Maud Mackersey made an imperious Lady Effingham. Miss L. Atkinson as Alison Grist and the clever representation of the youthful Prince Edward by Miss C. St. John also deserve mention.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is paying a return visit here this week in the play, His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Hestor gives a fine impersonation as Sergeant Lightning, and is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. Frank Morton sustains, in an able manner, the part of Lord Easem; Mr. Charles Usher is well suited as Mr. Mirfin, and Mr. Fred Rigby makes a lively Bunker; Mr. Dick Kitchen is admirable as Fritz. Miss L. Castelle is successful as Lady Easem, Miss Dora Graham is dainty as Dolly Mirfin, and Miss May Vernon is satisfactory as Miss Manley, the New Woman.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Mlle. Lumiere, serpentine dancer, contributes a clever turn with electrical effects. Andrews and Thompson are a couple of high-class vocalists, the Brooklands dance and sing well, an amusing sketch is produced by Matt Wilkinson and company, entitled The Registry Office; Miss Annie Laurie, comedienne; Miss Violet Beatrice, Irish vocalist; the Lovelaces, vocalists and song illustrators, give a pleasing entertainment; the Bowery Boys appear in a sketch, entitled Mixed, and Miss Mona McDonald, vocalist, and Lillian Rosella, aerial gymnast, complete the bill.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd..; Joint-Managers, Moss Empires' Co., Ltd., and the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A strong array of talent is listed for the current week. The Sleedes provide capital fun with The Haunted House; Hector, the wire-walker and hoop manipulator, is very good; the Rinaldos are comic equilibrists, English and Penley contribute an enjoyable turn in their laughing duologue, Fine Mackerel, and Harry Tomlinson (comedian), Lady Fauntleroy with her ventriloquial chatty chum, Dan, the Bluecoat Boy, and Carrie Laurie's Juvenile Geniuses, with their clever singing and dancing, are other attractions. The American Bioscope remains in favour.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A visit is being paid here by Mr. T. A. Jones and company with Life's Sweetest Sins. Mr. T. A. Jones capitally renders the part of Captain Harold Marston, Mr. Oswald Douglas makes a successful Doctor Colbrooke, Mr. Robert Sawin is well placed as Kimberley Coutts, and Miss Marie Daventry charms everyone by her impersonation of Doreen Rivers.

WALTHAMSTOW.—KING'S THEATRE.—The boards here are occupied this week by Mr. Chas. H. Phelps' No. 1 company in One Woman's Wickedness. The play, written by Mr. Phelps, is neatly constructed and told in forcible dialogue. Mr. Alfred Geo. Fry is a fine Philip Beaufort, Mr. Chas. H. Phelps himself sustains with power the part of Jem Craggs, Lord Algernon Fitznoodle is an amusing personage as presented by Mr. Tommy Byron (with songs), and Mr. Harry Tilbury (also with songs) gives a good account of Limpy Larry. Miss Amy Dalby is a capital exponent of the heroine, Lilian Craggs and her artistic singing is much admired, Miss Frances Jessop is a good Marienne, and Miss Belle Tilbury, a highly satisfactory Janet Raymond, whose mother, Aunt Crazy, is well played by Miss Florence Lloyd; Miss Arline T. George is a bright and vivacious Jenny Jiggles.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is paying a welcome return visit here in A Royal Divorce. Miss Lilian Dundas plays Josephine with much charm; Miss Muriel Thompson scores as Marie Louise; as Stephanus Miss Gertrude Entwistle infuses much humour into her performance; and Miss Alice Metcalf as Manche plays a small part in a pleasant manner. Mr. Frederick Moyes as Napoleon makes the character stand out, and acts with power throughout; Mr. H. Gray Dolby as Talleyrand is well placed; and Mr. Henry Ludlow as the Marquis de Beaumont acts with force and discrimination; Mr. C. Lionel Brocknor is a soldierly General Augeren; and Mr. T. W. Ford as Marshal Murat is good. Mr. Dennis Bujan submits a clever study of the Innkeeper.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—A good turn here this week is Rebia, a clever juggler; Edie Gray's White Coons again score; and Wright and Elton are well received in the sketch Eccentricities. The Royal Bioscope pictures are not a small factor in the success achieved here this week. Other excellent turns are James Lowrey, vocalist; Mollie Doon, comedienne; and Tennyson and Wallis, comedians.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager and Proprietor, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's No. 1 company in In Holy Russia is playing to crowded houses here. Mickey Nolan is perfectly played by Mr. Cassidy, who keeps the audience continually laughing; Mr. Tom G. Warry is good as Count Gregori Petrolski; and the same remark applies to Mr. Robert Crockford as the Tsar. Mr. Arthur Stratton gives a fine representation of Colonel Richard Forrest; the part of Michael Natolski is well portrayed by Mr. Louis Norman; Miss Alice Stratton is all that can be desired in the character of Mrs. Richard Forrest; and Mrs. J. R. Cassidy gives a clever study of Renee Rubinoff.

and charming; Miss Emily Taylor is successful as Nora Chalmers; and Miss Mabel Dent is smart and pleasing as Ellen. There are many other well played parts, and a strong and dashing chorus, while the scenery is effective, and the frocks are particularly pretty.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The great attraction here is R. A. Roberts, the protean artist, who is seen to great advantage, and displays a marvellous skill in his impersonation of a number of parts under the title of Dick Turpin. Other items in the programme include Ernest Montefiore and Co., in The Little Colonel; Playfair and Nikola, the wonderful papergraphists; Tray and Rich, black and white comedians; T. C. Jaques, vocalist; Bertha Winder, step dancer; the Sisters Wingrove, vocalists and dancers; and Connie Flower, vocalist and violinist.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's Toreador company is doing good business here this week. Well dressed and staged the performance goes with a capital swing, and encores are numerous. Mr. Richard Telford, as the ubiquitous Sammy Gigg, is the life and soul of the piece, and keeps the house in roars of laughter with his endless funny antics; as Susan, Miss Leah Howard makes him an excellent partner, singing and dancing in good style; Miss Sadie Neville, as Dora, and Miss Alice Nixon, as Nancy, make a charming couple; and Miss Florence Spurgeon, as Teresa, displays cultivated vocal powers. Mr. F. Hulme Sharp is a very humorous Sir Archibald, and Mr. Tom May makes the most of his opportunities as the eccentric Pettifer. Among other capable members of the numerous company are Mr. J. Colclough Fagan, Mr. Chas. M. Heslop, and Miss Avis Grahame. The bright and tuneful music is well rendered by a numerous chorus and an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Herbert Linwood.

WORKINGTON. — Opera House. — Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—On Monday night there was a large house to witness The Gamester of Metz by Mr. Charles March's company. Mr. March created applause by his representation of Paul and the character aliases, his rapid changes of disguises being clever; Mr. F. Aldworth was good as the General; Mr. J. B. M. Reay as Badaire and Mr. W. G. Paget as Herve. Miss Una Lane was sympathetic as Lucia; Miss Cissy Haigton was satisfactory as Gwendolin; and Miss Eva Lyndhurst in the part of the Countess.

WREXHAM.—Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls. — This week the following are appearing here. Mr. George Barron, a popular eccentric comedian; Brindall and Cooper, refined vocal comedians and dancers; Miss Lily Mason, comedienne and dancer; Miss Bessie Willow, ballad vocalist; Mr. Walter Gurney, refined comedian and vocalist; the animated tableaux are also attractive.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; General-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—A Chinese Honeymoon is being given this week by Mr. George Dance's principal company. Miss Ada Watson is delightfully fresh as Soo Soo, singing and dancing alike with great taste; Miss Minnie Leslie causes roars of laughter as Fi Fi, her impersonation being both grotesque and amusing; Miss Popsy Wilkinson is lively as Mrs. Pineapple; and Miss Edie Ross causes amusement as Mrs. Brown. As Pineapple, Mr. Foster Courtney has a part suited to his rich style of humour; Mr. L. Bullock-Webster as Tom Hatherton is racy and diverting; Mr. Jack Leslie is a lively and amusing Hi Lung; and the Emperor is in the capable hands of Mr. St. John Hammond.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Sinclair and Whiteford have a very clever sketch, entitled Getting Even, which is a big attraction this week, both artists being greatly applauded; Carl Bernar, modestly styled the King of Marionettes, is also a great attraction, and gives a very clever show; Rackett and Hazard are skilled trumpeters; the Sisters Gerondo are skilful dancers; and Rose Harvey's songs are generally admired and much applauded; Les Valdos have a style particularly their own, and good songs are contributed by Reg Bolton and Bert Holmes.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 19,
the Play in Five Acts, entitled
"THE MANXMAN."

This famous play has been heartily welcomed this week at Mr. Ellis Frederick's popular theatre, and the strong interest which each night's audience is taking in Hall Caine's engrossing story testifies to the excellence of the interpretation of the piece by Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company. Mr. Cross plays Pete—a part he has long identified himself with—and contributes a thoroughly sound and consistent performance, handling the part with all the required tenderness in the softer passages and rendering due prominence to the more robust phases of the character. Miss Minnie Watersford plays with much tact, expression, and feeling as Kate Cregeen, and enlists the sympathies of the audience throughout. Mr. A. D. Leyland portrays Cæsar Cregeen on appropriate lines, and Mr. Sydney C. Kearns is responsible for a fluent and easy delineation of Philip Christian. Mr. G. Marriott, jun., does well as Ross Christian, Mr. Wilson Roberts is a natural Dr. Wylchreist, Mr. Edward Cartell fulfills all requirements as Monty Missett, and Professor Mawley is safely entrusted to Mr. Frank J. Pitt. Miss Nancy Mitchell smartly enacts Nancy, Miss Mona Spearing is well placed as Miss Christian, and Miss Kitty Livesay is an agreeable Bella Kelly.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 19,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE TALK OF THE TOWN."

Another of the many attractive and entirely new bookings made by Mr. Fred Fredericks for the Stratford Borough Theatre is the engagement for this week of The Talk of the Town, and Stratfordians are readily endorsing the encomiums gained by the piece elsewhere. The scenic effects and dresses are both lavish and artistic, and Mr. Wm. Greet's company is well balanced and capable. Mr. William Cromwell works unflaggingly and with the utmost success as Jerry Snipe, scoring heavily in this low-comedy rôle. Mr. Arthur Harold looks and acts the part of Reggie Drummond admirably, and his vocal efforts always create applause. Mr. Ernest Arundel very smartly enacts the Duke of Topford, Mr. Leslie Owen makes the most of his opportunities as Captain Richard Hambledon, Mr. Geoffrey Allsopp plays appropriately as 'Arry Biff, Mr. A. T. Hendon is decidedly amusing as Private Belsey, and considerable mirth is provoked by the idiosyncrasies of the Brothers English as impersonated by Mr. Tom Graves and Mr. A. Gambier Melford. Miss Joan Keddie acts and sings delightfully as Ellaline Lewin, and the invitation so coquettishly expressed in her song "How'd you like to spoon with me?" causes many a thrill among the jeunesse dorée occupants of the stalls. A notable success is achieved by Miss Louie Tinsley, who depicts Mrs. Snipe on broadly humorous lines, her droll methods causing roars of laughter. Miss G. Melville charmingly enacts Madame Modiste, and contributes a most acceptable Dutch song and dance; Miss Evelyn D'Alroy plays with daintiness and verve as June, her "Eskimo" song being in high favour; Miss Katherine Harrington is well placed as Lady Nightingale, and the latter's two daughters have capital exponents in Miss Helen Gordon and Miss Jessie Winter. Others parts in an exceptionally long cast all receive most creditable treatment. The augmented orchestra is ably directed by Mr. Percy E. Fletcher.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—With reference to your notice of Claudian at the Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich, this week, the part I played is called Thariogalus, not Charlogalus, and my name is not William Howard, but—Yours truly, Wilson Howard.

BERNARD SHAW'S PERSONALITY.

Mr. James Huneker, in his book of Dramatists called "Iconoclasts" (T. Werner Laurie), makes an attempt to analyse the character of Mr. Bernard Shaw. He says:—

"In the plays we find the old Shaw masquerading, this time behind the footlights. He is still the preacher, Fabian debater, socialist, vegetarian, lycanthrope, and normally abnormal man of the early days—though he prides himself on his abnormal normality. Finding that the essay did not reach a wide enough audience, the wily Celt mounts the rostrum and blarneys his listeners something after this manner:—

"'Here's my hustings; from here will I teach, preach, and curse the conventions of society. Come all ye who are tired of the property fallacy! There is but one Karl Marx, and I am his living prophet. Shakespeare must go—Ibsen is to rule. Wagner was a Fabianite; the Ring proves it. Come all ye who are heaven-laden with the moralities! I am the living witness for Nietzsche. I will teach children to renounce the love of parents; parents to despise their offspring; husbands to hate their wives; wives to loathe their husbands; and brothers and sisters will raise warring hands after my words have entered their souls. Whatever is is wrong—to alter Pope. The prostitute classes—I do not balk at the ugly word—clergymen, doctors, lawyers, statesmen, journalists, are deceiving you. They speak in divers and lying tongues. I alone possess the prophylactic against the evils of life. Here it is: Plays, Pleasant and Unpleasant; and Three Plays for Puritans."

"But Shaw only removed another of his innumerable masks. Beware, says Nietzsche, of the autobiographies of great men. He was thinking of Richard Wagner. His warning applies to Bernard Shaw, who is a great comedian and a versatile. He has spoken through so many different masks that the real Shaw is yet to be seen. Perhaps on his death-bed some stray phrase will illuminate with its witty gleam his true soul's nature. He has played tag with this soul so long that some of it has been lost in the game. Irishman born, he is not genial after the Oliver Goldsmith type; he resembles much more closely Dean Swift, minus that man's devouring genius. When will the last mask be lifted—and, awful to relate, will it, when lifted, reveal the secret? A master hypnotist perhaps he may be, illuding the world with the mask idea. And what a comical thing it would be to find him smiling at the end and remarking, 'I fooled you, Brethren, didn't I?'

"In his many rôles one trait has obstinately remained, the trait of irresistible waggery. Yet we sadly suspect it. What if this declaration of charlatanism were but a mask! What if Shaw were really sincere! What if he really meant to be sincere in his various lectures and comedies! What if his assumption of insincerity were sincere! His sincerity insincere! The thought confuses. In one of his plays—The Philanderer—a certain character has five or six natures. Shaw again, toujours Shaw!

"Joke of all jokes, I really imagine that Shaw is a sentimentalist in private; and that he has been so sentimental, romantic, in his youth, that an inversion has taken place in his feelings. Swift's hatred of mankind was a species of inverted lyricism; so was Flaubert's; so may be Shaw's. Fancy him secretly weeping over Jane Eyre, or holding a baby in his lap, or—richest of all fancies—occasionally eating sausage and drinking beer! I met him, once upon a time, in Bayreuth. He spoke then in unmeasured terms of its beer drinkers, and added, without the ghost of a smile, that breweries should be converted into insane asylums.

"Whether we take him seriously or not, he is a delightful, an entertaining writer. His facile use, with the aid of various mouthpieces he assumes at will, of the ideas of Nietzsche, Wagner, Ibsen, and Strindberg, fairly dazzles. He despises wit at bottom, using its forms as a medium for the communication of his theories. Art for art's sake is a contradiction to this writer. He must have a sense of beauty, but he never boasts of it; rather does he seem to consider it something naked, almost shameful—something to be hidden away. So his men are always deriding art, though working at it like devils on high pay. This puritanical vein has grown with the years, as it has with Tolstoy. Only Shaw never wasted his youth in riotous living, as did Tolstoy.

"He had no money, no opportunities, no taste. A fierce ascetic and a misogynist, he will have no regrets at threescore and ten; no sweet memories of headaches—he is a teetotaller; no heartaches—he is too busy with his books; and no bitter aftertaste for having wronged a fellow-being. Behold, Bernard Shaw is a good man, has led the life of a saint, worked like a hero against terrible odds, and is the kindest-hearted man in London. Now we have reached another mask—the mask of altruism. Nearly all his earnings went to the needy; his was, and is, a practical socialism. He never let his right hand know the extent of his charities, and mark this—no one else knew of it. Yet good deeds, like murder, will out. His associates ceased deriding the queer clothes, the flannel shirt, and the absence of evening dress; his money was spent on others. So, too, his sawdust menu—his carrots, cabbage, and brown bread—it did not cost much, his eating, for his money was needed by poorer folk. So you see what a humbug is this dear old Diogenes, who growls cynically at the human race, abhors sentiment-mongers, and despises conventional government, art, religion, and philosophy. He is an arch-sentimentalist, underneath whose frown are concealed tears of pity. Another mask torn away—Bernard Shaw, philanthropist!"

Presentations.—At the close of the record run of Mr. Laidler's pantomime, Dick Whittington, at the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, on Saturday night, Miss Esmé Gordon, the popular representative of the title-rôle, on behalf of the principal members of the company, presented Mr. Laidler with a silver cigar case, silver card case, and silver matchbox, as tokens of their esteem and high appreciation; Mr. J. W. Hemming, stage manager of the pantomime, was presented by Mr. Gilbert Rodgers, the representative of Fitzwarren (also on behalf of the company), with a gold-mounted walking-stick; and Mr. Walter Scott was the recipient of a handsome writing-case.

Mr. F. S. Gilbert, the well-known operatic artist, on Wednesday was the tenor soloist in a cantata, "The Rose Maiden," given in the Victoria Hall, Mansfield, by the Nonconformist Choral Union.

"Dick Whittington," which for the past twelve and a half weeks has occupied the boards at the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, came to a close on Saturday. This was the first pantomime of which Mr. Francis Laidler, the proprietor, had undertaken the entire production, and the success which the piece has attained culminated on Saturday in a scene of great enthusiasm. Flowers and chocolates were showered upon the stage, and handsome bouquets were handed to the principals. Miss Esme Gordon (Dick Whittington), on behalf of the principals of the company, presented Mr. Laidler with a silver cigar case, card case, and matchbox as a token of appreciation. Mr. J. W. Hemming, the stage manager of the pantomime, was the recipient of a gold-mounted walking-stick, presented on behalf of the company by Mr. Gilbert Rodgers (Fitzwarren) Mr. Walter Scott, the musical director, was also presented with a handsome writing-case.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS.

MR. PHILIP SHERIDAN.

Mr. Philip Sheridan, the electrician at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, is an out-and-out Irishman, and proud of the fact. He is also proud of the fact that he was entrusted with the responsibility of a department when only seventeen years of age, being appointed electrician for one of the principal Irish theatres at that age, a position he has held at various theatres since that time, some twelve years ago.

Mr. Sheridan was born in Finglas, Co. Dublin, in 1876. During his school days he attended science and art classes, and took a special interest in various experiments in chemistry, electricity, and magnetism, which were carried out for the instruction of the classes he attended by the professors and masters attached to the Marlborough-street National Schools and Training College. Mr. Sheridan says, "I remember, too, in those days, when my brother and myself were on our way home from school, we would stand watching the men clean and re-carbon the street arc lamps, which, at that time, were supplied with current by means of mains slung from pole to pole. We were always delighted when one of us were able to secure one of the short ends of the carbon rods—pieces of electricity we called them—that were being replaced.

"I had a little experience of property-making, too, in my school days—that is, as far as plaster work is concerned; for I, with three or four other pupils, assisted Mr. T. W. Conway, B.A., my schoolmaster, to make the large relief of the 'Ould Sod' which is now in the Museum in Dublin, and of which there was a copy sent to the great Exhibition in Chicago in 1899. Mr.

MR. PHILIP SHERIDAN.

Conway did the modelling, and we pupils made the moulds and took the plaster casts of each section. These sections were joined together and mounted on a large table, measuring about 30ft. by 15ft. All the mountains, hills, &c., were raised in relief to correct scale. The map took us about two years to complete. Mr. Conway received many honours for this work, including his F.R.G.S., and I think he richly deserved them all.

"On leaving school in 1890, I was bound apprentice for five years to the Electrical Engineering Company of Ireland, Ltd., where my brother, John T. Sheridan (who is now electrician at the Waldorf), had already been employed for about a year. Some twelve months later, when but fifteen years of age, I was placed in charge of an electric plant, consisting of a large gas engine, dynamo, and a number of arc lamps, of which my employers had undertaken the maintenance in a large drapery establishment in the city. I remained in charge of that contract for about six months, and was then transferred to the Gaiety Theatre, to assist with the fitting up of the electrical installation and plant at that house, which had just been started by my firm for the late Mr. Michael Gunn.

"Little did I think at that time that a few years later I should be placed in charge of the electrical department of that theatre as resident engineer, and thus become attached to the theatrical profession, to which I am proud to belong. In 1894 my employers going into liquidation, I was engaged in succession to my brother, who had secured a large electrical contract in the provinces, by Mr. E. W. Royce, jun., at that time stage-manager and producer to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gunn, as electrical engineer, a position I held for nearly five years. During that time I extended the electrical installation practically over the whole house, fitting the stage with electric battens, lengths, &c., in lieu of gas. I designed and fitted the stage and engine-room switch-boards, and, of course, carried out the different electrical displays in the various productions.

"When Mr. Gunn, through failing health, gave up direct control of the Gaiety, I left and came to London to seek my fortune, and, within a week or so, I secured an engagement from Mr. Isaac Cohen, the managing-director of the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, as electrician for the Crown, then in course of preparation. I am still at the Crown, under Mr. Cecil Paget, who is as good a governor as there can possibly be. We have just got through the eighth pantomime, and I hope I shall be lucky enough to be here to assist with another eight."

Mr. Sheridan, in conjunction with Mr. Wade, the master carpenter, has charge of the annual staff outing, which has been of a most successful and enjoyable kind. He is a member of the Heads of Departments Association, and holds the office of co-auditor, an office of which Mr. Sheridan is also proud. Mr. Sheridan devotes his spare time to his garden and poultry, which he claims are one of the sights of Peckham.

"Susan in Search of a Husband," a four-act farce, by Mr. Jerome K. Jerome, was produced for copyright purposes at the Scala Theatre on the 16th inst.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

THE QUESTION OF CROWDED GANGWAYS.

The following important report was presented by the Theatres and Musical Halls Committee:—

The question of the extent to which persons should be allowed to stand in theatres, music halls, and other places of public entertainment, has always been one of considerable difficulty, and attempts have been made from time to time by the Council to deal with it. Up to the year 1901 the only way in which the Council had endeavoured to deal with the question was by framing the following rule to be observed by all persons to whom a music, music or dancing, or stage plays licence was granted by the Council—

> "All gangways, passages, and staircases, intended for the exit of the audience, must be kept entirely free from chairs or any other obstructions, whether permanent or temporary."

In the year 1901 the Council had under revision the regulations to be observed in the erection of theatres and other places of public entertainment, and complaints as to the non-observance of the rule above referred to having become increasingly frequent, it was thought advisable in the interest of public safety to make a regulation to ensure that in new buildings sufficient exit accommodation should be provided for all the persons who could be admitted thereto. This was done by requiring the width and number of exits to be in proportion to the number of persons to be accommodated, and by providing that "in calculating the number of persons which can be accommodated in any tier or part of a tier of such premises, the standing space from which a view of the performance can be obtained will be considered as well as the seated area." The rule requiring gangways to be kept free from all obstructions was maintained, but the alterations of the structural regulations had to some extent the effect of an official recognition of standing in those places of public entertainment constructed in accordance with the revised regulations. It was, in fact, thought that in spite of the Council's efforts there would be times when places of public entertainment would be crowded much in excess of the seating capacity, and it was felt to be essential that the danger attending such a practice should be minimised as much as possible by the provision of sufficient exit accommodation. It was, however, recognised to be unadvisable to even appear to give official recognition to the practice of persons standing in the intersecting gangways, and the Council accordingly on Feb. 4, 1902, inserted words to exclude the space occupied by the intersecting gangways from consideration for the purposes of calculating the amount of exit accommodation to be provided.

Greater prominence was given to the rule requiring gangways to be kept free from obstructions by decisions of the Coupcil on July 22 and July 29, 1902, that the rule should be printed on the programmes of every performance. On March 1, 1904, the Council made, for the conduct of places of public entertainment, additional rules, including the undermentioned:—

> "Persons must not be permitted to stand or sit in any of the gangways."
> "Overcrowding must not be permitted in any part of the premises."

It should be stated that the Lord Chamberlain has made similar rules for the conduct of the theatres in his jurisdiction.

The alterations made in the structural regulations on July 30, 1901, give the proprietors of some eleven theatres and music halls built since that date some justification for claiming that they are entitled to allow standing to take place except in the intersecting gangways. Even in these cases it is probable that the prohibition of standing in the side gangways will entail little, if any, loss to the proprietors, as, for the purposes of calculating the amount of exit accommodation required, the space allotted to each person at the time the plans were approved was greater than it is proposed to require if the Council adopts our recommendation. We have, however, when recommending the Council, during the last two years, to approve plans of new places of public entertainment, stipulated either that there should be no standing in any of the gangways or that the approval was subject to any decision which might hereafter be arrived at with regard to the question of standing.

We have long felt that the position of affairs is unsatisfactory, and after consulting the Lord Chamberlain, who was in complete accord with us as to the course to be adopted, we gave instructions for the following letter to be sent to all persons holding a music, music and dancing, or stage plays licence from the Council—

County Hall, Spring-gardens, S.W.,
March 4, 1905.

Sir,

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the Council have had under consideration the question of overcrowding and obstruction of gangways in places of public entertainment licensed by the Council. You are of course familiar with the rules made by the Council with regard to such premises, under which all gangways, passages, or corridors are required to be kept free from obstructions whether permanent or temporary; no persons are allowed to stand or sit in any gangway; and no overcrowding is permitted. It appears to the committee that a rigid insistence on strict compliance with these rules might possibly be undesirable and involve unnecessary hardship in some cases.

After careful consideration the committee are of opinion that the most satisfactory way of dealing with the question, both from the point of view of the public and from that of the proprietors of places of public entertainment, will be to determine the number of persons who can with safety be accommodated in each part of the premises, and to cause these particulars to be registered on the plans in the possession of the Council, and to be exhibited in the premises. In determining the number that may be admitted to a particular part of any place of public entertainment, the committee think that not only the exit capacity but the general arrangements of that part of the premises should be carefully considered, and in no case should the number to be admitted be allowed to exceed that for which exits are provided.

In order to enable the committee to fully consider the question from all points of view, I have been directed to ask that you will be good enough to send me, as soon as possible, a statement showing the maximum number of persons whom you desire to admit at any one time to each part of the and the places (if any) in which you consider that persons should be allowed to stand.

I am, &c.,
(Signed) G. L. Gomme,
Clerk of the Council.

With few exceptions the proprietors of the theatres and music halls referred the letter to the London Entertainments Protection Association, who subsequently asked that they might send a deputation, and after considerable delay a deputation representing all the principal London music halls attended before us on October 25, 1905. The deputation did not, however, make any practical suggestion for dealing with the difficulties of the question, and the object of the speakers appeared to be to convince us that any action on the part of the Council was unnecessary and would have a prejudicial effect. The association has since suggested that the Council should make a thorough and impartial inquiry as to whether any justification exists for the action suggested by us, and that a small sub-committee of the Council should be appointed to meet a sub-committee of the association for the purpose of ascertaining the whole of the facts. It appears to us that there can be no question of the necessity for dealing with the matter. The practice of crowding places of public entertainment to such an extent as to fill the gangways at the sides and rear of the seating is one which, although unattended with any bad results in ordinary circumstances, could hardly fail to lead to disaster in the event of a fire or panic occurring. It is true that for many years past no life has been lost through fire or panic in any place of public entertainment in London, but this cannot be accepted as a proof that no danger exists, or as an adequate reason for omitting to take every practicable precaution to prevent or minimise the danger of fire or panic. The point to be considered is how to deal with the question in such a way as will, while safeguarding the public interests, inflict the minimum of inconvenience and loss on the proprietors of places of public entertainment. It has been urged that there might be instances, having in view the general arrangements of the exits, &c., where it would be safe and proper to allow some persons to stand in the side gangways. We are, however, of opinion that the only practical course to adopt is to rigidly prohibit standing in any of the side or intersecting gangways, leaving it to be determined after a careful consideration of all the circumstances of each particular place of public entertainment, whether any, and if so, what, standing may safely be allowed in any other part. We have consulted the present Lord Chamberlain, and his opinion is—

> "That the number of persons admitted to any part of a theatre should not exceed the exit accommodation provided for such part of the theatre; that the number of persons so to be admitted be arrived at and determined by the London County Council; that the audience should not be allowed to stand in the gangways between or at the sides of the seats, but if the seating accommodation is not sufficient for the number of persons admitted, they might be allowed to stand at the back of the seating accommodation, but not in such position as would interfere with the ready access to and egress from the seats."

It will be seen that the Lord Chamberlain's views accord with ours. The Lord Chamberlain has forwarded to us the replies received from proprietors of theatres in his jurisdiction, giving particulars of the number of persons who, in their opinion, might be allowed in the various parts of their theatres, and has requested that the Council will advise him as to whether the numbers suggested may with safety be allowed. We propose to accede to this request, and we recommend—

That it be referred to the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to consider and report as to the number of persons to be admitted to the various parts of the places of public entertainment licensed by the Council with a view to such numbers being registered on the plans in the possession of the Council, and exhibited on the premises in approved positions; that the number of persons to be admitted to any part shall in no case exceed the exit capacity of that part; that in no circumstances shall persons be permitted to stand or sit in any of the side or intersecting gangways, and that if standing be permitted in any other part, it shall not be in such a position or to such an extent as to interfere with the ready egress of the seated audience.

Walter B. Yates,
Chairman.

The report was not reached until after seven o'clock, and to prevent it being passed as unopposed business Mr. William Bailey gave the usual notice of opposition.

Mr. Yates, the chairman of the committee, thereupon agreed to postpone the matter until Tuesday next, to allow of a full discussion.

THE ALDWYCH SITE.

The Improvements Committee presented their report on the scheme for building by a syndicate, with a capital of a million, a theatre, concert hall, restaurant, and shops on the Aldwych-Strand site, the syndicate agreeing to pay £55,000 a year ground rent for a 99 years' lease, and to spend £500,000 in the erection of buildings.

Mr. Hubbard, chairman of the committee, in reply to Sir John McDougall, said that he understood that the Lord Chamberlain's licence for a theatre covered the liquor licence for the restaurant. There would be, he said, certain passages or corridors in which food and drink would be supplied, and there would be arrangements for a concert hall, but no application would be made for a liquor licence for the hall; it would be dealt with as an ordinary music hall, the Council retaining the veto as to where drink should be sold.

Mr. Hubbard further stated that no bar would be erected outside the theatre, and drink and food must be supplied at the tables in the restaurant in the central building and on the verandahs. As the Council knew, they had other offers from interested persons, and the committee had shown no favouritism in coming to the decision. With regard to the previous scheme, that was for the option of a lease without a deposit, but in the present case they had a definite offer for a lease with a deposit of £55,000 upon signing the agreement. There would be only one theatre instead of two, and there would be two-storey shops with one floor above, and no promenades on the roofs of the shops, as was previously proposed.

The recommendation of the committee was agreed to, with one dissentient.

CREATORE AT QUEEN'S HALL.

A second series has been given at Queen's Hall this week of Signor Creatore and his band. It was unfortunate that the weather proved so bad on Monday evening, as an interesting programme was given, which included the "1812" Overture. On Monday the first number heard was a march, "Venezia," by Carlini; followed by Suppé's Overture, "Poet and Peasant," in which Signor Creatore's band have already won golden opinions. A most determined encore was responded to by a charming little work of Brahms played with the utmost delicacy, the band also gave in the first portion of the programme, Batiste's clever "Organ Offertoire" and a lively march for the inevitable encore. Signor Pesce also had to respond to a hearty recall for his well-performed harp solo. After the interval Handel's fine and expressive "Largo" was admirably performed by the Band. An apology was made on the score of illness on behalf of Madame Barili, who was set down for an air from Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment," but the band made amends for this disappointment by playing the Sextet from "Lucia," the soloists being in particularly fine form. It is needless to say that in Tschaikowsky's stirring overture, "1812," Creatore was quite in his element, and simply revelled in the crashing chords and the storm and stress of this remarkable work, and shouts of applause came from all parts of the house on the conclusion of the terrific finale, Signor Creatore responding with "God Save the King."

MISS ADA HATCHWELL'S CONCERT.

Miss Ada D. Hatchwell's Australian concert at Steinway Hall on Thursday evening proved a great success, the hall being crowded. Miss Hatchwell was assisted by Miss Nora Long, Miss Eva Mylott, Mr. Edward McKeown, Mr. Cyril Monk, and Miss Madeline Royle. The concert-giver was first heard in recitations from Henry VIII, Act II., Scene 4 (the trial of Queen Katherine), in which character Miss Hatchwell was eminently successful; indeed, Shakespeare's heroines seem to especially suit the reciter. Rosalind's lively speech was well rendered in a short selection from As You Like It, Act III., Scene 5. Later on in the programme Miss Hatchwell recited "The Old Stage Queen," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with fine dramatic feeling, and also greatly pleased her audience in a short sketch, entitled I Don't Care, and "Her Letter," by Bret Harte; being encored, Miss Hatchwell responded with "Butterflies." The reciter was also set down for a comedy sketch, I and My Father-in-law. Mr. Edward McKeown sang "Wandering Wishes," and later on "When in the early morn," by Gounod, and Miss Eva Mylott, the happy possessor of a really fine contralto voice, was well received in Mallinson's "Danke nicht." Songs were also given by Miss Nora Long, and Mr. Cyril Monk and Miss Medeline Royle gave a duet (violin and piano) of two movements from Grieg's sonata. Miss Royle was warmly greeted in her two piano solos, "Berceuse" and Polonaise in A flat (Chopin), being encored in the latter. Miss Royle accompanied Miss Hatchwell in her recitation, "Aux Italiens," by Owen Meredith. Mr. Monk played two violin solos, one partly of his own composition. The accompanist was Miss Ruby Kettle. The concert was under the patronage of the Agent-General for New South Wales.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, MARCH 22.—A welcome novelty has taken the place of Kadelburg's harmless farce, and a lengthy run may surely be prophesied. The title is a happy one; the Von Hochsattels are one of the many German noble families with a long pedigree and not a penny to bless themselves with. Pater familias, the Baron Adalbert, having ruined himself and those dependent upon him, resides in a tiny flat on the top floor, still proud as Lucifer and riding the high horse. His wife and daughter, through honest labour, support the whole family, including Ulrich, whose fine voice is being trained for the opera. The Baron is sublimely unconscious of the sacrifices made for him, and only expresses contempt for Ulrich, who becomes a famous artist, and marries the daughter of a wealthy Jew, von Rosenstock by name. Rosenstock is a generous man; it was he who paid for Ulrich's studies, while his daughter, Hedwig, is a pearl among women. The proud Baron, nevertheless, is furious at the alliance, and declines to admit the Jew—who has been raised to the nobility—into the select circle of his acquaintances. Of course, this state of things comes to an end, and all concludes happily, otherwise it would not be a farce. The Baron learns that he has been kept all along by the labour of his women-kind, and his pride has a sudden fall. The plot alone, it will be seen, could not make the running, for that is of no account; it is the bright dialogue, the funny "situations," and the pleasant, natural characters to which the piece owes its success. In addition to this, the interpretation was capital all round; authors and artists were heartily applauded, and the audience left the theatre with smiles of satisfaction which testified to the enjoyment of the evening.

THE success of the spectacular farce at the Thalia Theatre, Bis früh um Fünfe, by MM. Jean Kren and Arthur Lippschitz, is so great that the management has given up all idea for the present of producing anything, else. The laughable piece has reached its 200th consecutive performance, an unparalleled event even for the Thalia, where long runs are usual. Herr Thielscher, the famous comedian, who is the most brilliant star of the cast, was overwhelmed with applause on the occasion of the jubilee, but each and all received their due share. Flowers innumerable were handed up, and authors and managers were "called" and heartily applauded.

ERNST VON WILDENBRUCH'S drama, Die Haubenlerche has been produced at the Luisen Theater, meeting with a cordial reception. This is one of the famous dramatist's earliest works; if I mistake not, it was the first he ever wrote, and it bears all the traces of a powerful imagination, combined with the strenuousness of the "sturm und drang" period, and the crudeness of inexperience. The piece has as many enemies as it has admirers, and that it does not interest the average theatregoers of to-day as much as it did those of twenty years ago is a fact that cannot be denied. It was fairly satisfactorily acted, excellent renderings being those of Herren Tucker, Wald, and Merker.

FRAULEIN DESTINN will leave the Royal Opera Company at the end of her contract next year, and it will not be an easy thing to fill her place. She has been with us ten years, and is leaving for a three years' engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House at New York. From a financial point of view Fräulein Destinn will better herself considerably, the salary she is to receive being nearly double the already high one she has here.

THE many friends and admirers of the eminent actor, Herr Josef Kainz, regret to hear that he is seriously ill with bronchial trouble in Munich. Herr Kainz, who had made use of a holiday from the Imperial Burg Theatre, at Vienna, to go on a short tour, was acting in the Bavarian capital at the Schauspielhaus. His family is all the more anxious as the patient was never robust, and not very long ago was dangerously ill with inflammation of the lungs. The hotel where Herr Kainz is staying is besieged with anxious inquirers, and bulletins are posted up daily.

AT the Royal Opera on Sunday Max Schilling's opera, Der Pfeifertag, was revived with—for the greater part—the original cast, including Herren Knüpfer, Grüning, Hoffmann, and Fräulein Ekeblad. Dr. Richard Strauss again conducted, and the reception was a very cordial one, such as the performance fully merited. On Monday a repetition of Die Meistersinger took place, with Herr Herold, from the Court Opera at Copenhagen, in the rôle of Walter Stolzing. The excellent singer achieved another distinct success, which will no doubt lead to a permanent engagement. Herr Hoepfl, from the Dresden Opera, was, in the rôle of Kothner, the second "guest" of the evening, while Fräulein Destinn, Frau Scheele-Müller, Herren Bachmann, Nebe, Lieban, and Knüpfer formed the remainder of the praiseworthy cast.

THE Russian company at the Berliner announced Ibsen's The Enemy of the People for Monday, and the demand for seats was unusually great. Owing, however, to the Kaiser having expressed a wish to witness a performance of Czar Feodor Ivanovitch on that evening the latter piece was—at some inconvenience—put in the bill. Both their Majesties put in an appearance, accompanied by Prince August Wilhelm, and attended by a large suite. The Kaiser was delighted with the acting and with the play, and told the directors, whom he received in the Royal box, that the latter reminded him of Shakespeare and from the former he hoped many German artists would learn.

A PERFORMANCE of Ibsen's Rosmersholm, with Signora Duse, was announced at the Neues for Tuesday last, but owing to the unfortunate illness of that lady it was indefinitely postponed. Signora Duse is still in Dresden, where she has been acting for some weeks.

"DER PRINZGEMAHL" celebrates its 150th performance at the Residenz this week, and is still high in popular favour. Herr Alexander, the esteemed actor-manager, has not been absent once from the cast during the whole time.

OFFENBACH'S charming opera, Hoffmann's Erzählungen, is still running successfully at the Komische Oper. Don Pasquale is given several times in the week, and Figaro's Hochzeit is announced for next Monday, but Offenbach's work is, without doubt, the success of the season.

THE Royal Schauspielhaus gave a performance of the ever-popular comedy Die Journalisten on Sunday evening. This fifty-year-old piece is as fresh as ever, and will live and flourish when many a modern work has passed away. It is one of Freytag's masterpieces, and played as it was on Sunday scores at every point. Herr Christians, who has returned from his highly satisfactory American tour, was in the cast, as were also Herren Vollmer and Kessler, and Fräulein von Mayburg. The house was filled to the last place.

MR. EDOUARD JOSE has arrived safe and well in Johannesburg, where he is at present managing the Wheeler-Edwardes Gaiety Co. at His Majesty's Theatre.

CHAT WITH MISS LILIAN ROSEBERY.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Miss Lilian Rosebery can congratulate herself upon the fact that, as she says, she has never played a small part in her life. It is a bold statement to make, and one which we think few actresses, even the most successful, could venture to set forth. And therein, we should imagine, Miss Rosebery creates a record.

Yet the lady is not satisfied. She indulges in a complaint directed against herself. It is that in the beginning of her stage career she did not take advantage of the undoubted influences that were hers to command. She is the daughter of the late Mr. Robert Routledge, B.S., F.C.S., Assistant Examiner in Chemistry and Natural Philosophy to the University of London, and author of many famous scientific works, including a very useful volume entitled "The Discoveries and Inventions of the Nineteenth Century." Miss Rosebery's father was a nephew of Mr. George Routledge, the well-known publisher, and cousin to the late Mr. Edmund Routledge, whose name at one time was so prominent in theatrical circles. Miss Rosebery could scarcely have had a better sponsor at the inception of a career as an actress than the last-named gentleman. But to her credit be it said, she made no call upon him for assistance, preferring to fight the battle of life unaided except by her inherent talents. She was always an earnest and a strenuous worker. She determined that everything should be dependent upon her own efforts, and she aimed high. Her father was strongly opposed to her following the calling of a player upon the stage, but her first manager, Mr. E. G. Falcon, held other views. He felt assured that the young lady possessed undoubted histrionic gifts, and he backed up his convictions in a most practical manner. He gave her her first engagement, which was an important one for a débutante. It was the part of Lura Lee in The Romany Rye, which Mr. Falcon toured some twelve years ago. So satisfied was he with Miss Rosebery's work in this part that he entered into an arrangement with her to enact the principal rôles in the Drury Lane dramas he then had out on the road.

So under his excellent management she impersonated such characters as Rachel in Held by the Enemy, Lena in Harbour Lights, and Barbara in In the Ranks. Then came a varied experience of parts in stock and music-hall sketches, after which the lady was engaged by Mr. W. E. Langley for lead in Hand in Hand, and created the principal heavy part in The Scarlet Brotherhood. She was next taken up by the late Mr. Lawrence Daly to play heavy lead (Cissy) and title-rôle in The Prime Minister. Her characterisation of the latter was so much admired by Mr. Henry C. Arnold that he requisitioned her services to appear as Violet in The Prodigal Daughter. Then followed a couple of tours with Mr. William Bourne, a run of the halls with Mr. A. C. Lilly, with whom she has had numerous engagements, and in 1900 she was specially re-engaged by Mr. Bourne to create the leading part in the production of The Invasion of Britain at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow. In the autumn of that year she was seen with Mr. Milton Bode's company in The Lights o' London, and in the spring of 1901 took the juvenile lead in Mr. Walter Melville's Great World of London, afterwards returning to Mr. Bode to appear as Hetty in The Lights o' London, and to play heavy lead in Tommy Atkins. Other parts she played subsequently were those of the principal juvenile lady and title-rôle in A Beautiful Fiend (Beaudyn and Livesey's company), Lola Vane in A Traitor Prince, and Madame Sansan in £1000 Reward.

Quite recently she entered into partnership with Mr. Carter to produce the now successful "skit" The Would-be Actors, in which Miss Rosebery gives us a most amusing picture of an absurdly unsophisticated damsel who is learning to play the part of the heroine in a blood-and-thunder melodrama.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 19, the Drama, by George R. Sims, entitled
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The popular drama The Lights o' London is drawing large audiences to the Dalston Theatre this week. Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is responsible for the representation, which is in all senses of the term perfect. Mr. J. Edward Pearce is Harold Armytage, son of Squire Armytage, who during the greater part of the story is under the ban of Cain, being charged for having murdered his old father for the purpose of securing certain deeds and jewellery. Clifford Armytage, the Squire's nephew, who is responsible for much of the trouble experienced by other personages in the story, is played with due effect by Mr. Riddell Robinson, and the old Squire is represented by Mr. Herbert Morgan. Miss Jeanie Burgoyne is Bess, Harold's faithful and long-suffering wife; and the part of Marks, a lodge-keeper, is sympathetically rendered by Mr. F. V. Lloyd. A decidedly strong character, that of Seth Preene, a poacher, is capably dealt with by Mr. Herbert Hollister, and as Preene's daughter Hetty Miss Eily O'Dempsey finds opportunity for some effective acting. The Jarvis family (members of the "Temple of the Legitimate") are very popular, and Mr. W. E. Passmore as Jarvis, sen., Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis, and Miss Gladys Murray as the highly-gifted son "Shakespeare," add much to the success. Mr. F. Dalton as Jim, Mr. H. W. Forster as Mr. Skeffington (a solicitor), Mr. George Wallace as Philosopher Jack, Mr. H. Pettitt as Percy de Vere, Esq., Mr. G. Saunders as Trotters, and Miss W. Eves as Sal, a loafer in the parks, provide interesting character sketches, while Miss Mary Rose and Miss Hilda Wollard make a couple of brisk servant maids.

AN EXPERT ON ELOCUTION.

Mr. Cairns James, Professor of Elocution at the Royal College and the Guildhall Schools of Music, and Principal of the School of Musical and Dramatic Art in New Oxford-street, gave a lecture on Wednesday, "Elocution as Applied to Modern Drama," to the members of the Amateur Players' Association, whose headquarters are at 92, Victoria-street. An object lesson in the art was supplied by Mr. James, who is a fluent speaker, and, despite his rapid utterance, so perfect was his articulation that not a word was lost. His lecture was agreeably discursive, and frequent laughter was aroused by his humorous references as well as by the mimicry with which his lecture was frequently illustrated. Mr. James, who dealt with invaluable aids to elocution rather than its strictly theoretical aspect, began by a reference to the allegations concerning the decadence of the drama, none of which he believed. Coming to the subject in hand, Mr. James said elocution in the first instance meant pure, good, correct, educated English, and the best possible speech. The first object of the speaker should be to make himself or herself heard, and every single word should be audible at the back of the gallery. With modern civilisation that essential seemed entirely to be neglected, and the conversation in the society drawing-room was seldom audible. He generally found people were careless about initial vowels, little words, and consonants. In order to acquire correct speech he would advise them to speak from a musical point of view. There was, too, a general tendency to clip important final consonants, especially in the case of sybillants. For example, the words "This seems silly" were usually rendered "Thiseemsilly." The late Sir Henry Irving, the greatest actor of the century, always insisted on the members of his company paying chief attention to the final consonants. It was remarkable how greatly the acoustics of a hall were affected by the way they spoke. The effect of what they said was greatly affected by the rate at which they spoke, and by the tones they employed. Mr. James also insisted on the value of pause, which not only enabled the speaker to take breath, but gave time for the audience to take thought.

Speech, he maintained, should be studied from a musical point of view. All the trouble about upward inflexions would be avoided if they knew how to sing them. Little children taught them a lesson in that respect, because a child puts so much emotion into his tone that the words are full of meaning. A simple sentence such as "O, Mamma, won't you take me out to-day?" served the lecturer as a typical example, which he skilfully illustrated. Mr. James further advocated the necessity of precision in speech, but never the precision which calls for notice from the audience. To acquire elocutionary perfection it was necessary that they should sing the right tune and speak the right time. It was impossible to reproduce the human voice on any instrument ever devised by man. There was nothing so subtle, so expressive, so charming as the voice, and all its tones should be developed. Every actor and actress should, to a certain extent, study music from the point of view of voice production. It helped the voice to retain its strength and purity through long exertions. His duties in teaching upwards of 250 pupils in a week often involved his working for nine hours a day at a stretch. If the vocal production was not good, no human being could stand the strain, yet his voice was as true and dependable at the end of the day as at the beginning.

Expression in words, continued the lecturer, was not enough. There should be expression by means of gesture, which was a sine qud non of every actor, speaker, and singer. In all gesture there were certain movements which meant certain things. There was the difference between welcome and repulsion, between love and hatred, between meekness and anger. Because gesture did not come easily and naturally to them, many people argued that it should not be studied at all. That was foolish. In ballet work the words were learnt, as well as the actions, and no gesture would be of any good unless accompanied by thought. Mr. James, who in his references suited the actions admirably to the words, gave some examples of the way in which "I love you" would be delivered by the society youth, a rough fellow from Sheffield, and an opera singer. In order to be able to dispose properly of hands and feet, they should go through a course of gesture. Dancing, stage deportment, all should be studied, as without those essentials they could not characterise. A diligent study of gesture and repose of body, therefore, were absolute necessities to the actor. Making a slight divergence from the subject, Mr. James administered a severe rebuke to certain halfpenny papers, who send youthful journalists to the theatre to criticise the efforts of men who had been twenty and twenty-five years in their profession.

After giving a word of warning to those who contemplated going on the stage, Mr. James said, in conclusion, that elocution could be practised in private as well as in public life, and should be studied in ordinary conversation. An educated person would speak without any accent at all. His birthplace was north of the Tweed, but during his long career as a character comedian he had had to play in every kind of dialect. The best way to pick that up was by the exercise of observation, a keen ear, and a keen sense of imitation, but the fact of imitating various accents need not compel them to affect any particular one.

Illustrations of elocution in song and speech formed the second part of the programme, which included a scene from Stephen Phillips's Herod, admirably played by Mr. James and Miss Oppenheimer, pupil at the School of Musical and Dramatic Art. Miss Oppenheimer has an expressive face and a graceful carriage, and her depiction of scorn and suppressed passion in the part of Ariamme was one rarely seen off the professional boards. Miss Kirkbride, also of the Royal College, gave the speech of Constance from Shakespeare's King John, and rendered A Tale of a Stamp with charming ingenuousness. Mr. Aubrey Millward, R.C.M., furnished an admirable example of elocution in song in two well-contrasted selections; Miss Guillaume, a "George Edwardes" scholar at the School of Musical and Dramatic Art, gave a droll rendering of Anstey's clever recitation entitled "Burglar Bill"; Mr. Brook recited "An Incident of the French Camp," from Browning; and Mr. Cairns James and Miss Agnes Thornton appeared in Constance Beerbohm's agreeable little duologue, Charity Begins at Home. A vote of thanks to Mr. James, moved by Miss Mouillot, the general secretary of the Association, for his "splendid lecture and delightful entertainment," was carried by acclamation.

PRESENTATION.—At the conclusion of the performance at the Theatre Royal, Jarrow, on the 16th inst. a hearty send-off was accorded Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson, assistant manager of the theatre, who is leaving the town to aid his father at Glasgow in his recently developed theatrical agency. Mr. Hugh Robertson, on behalf of the "front and back staff," presented Mr. Jefferson with a gold ring and a gold medal, and said he was sorry to lose his services, but his father, Mr. Arthur Jefferson, the well-known actor and playwright, had the prior call. The recipient had performed his duties admirably. Mr. G. Jefferson acknowledged the gifts, and said he appreciated very much the several presentations that had been made him during the week. In addition to the above, Mr. Jefferson was the recipient of a gold watch from "orchestra and friends," and of a silver cigarette case and a silver-mounted, ivory-handled walking-stick respectively from the Jarrow Wednesday Cricket and Football Clubs.

CHAT WITH MR. CARTER LIVESEY.

Mr. E. Carter Livesey, author and actor, is at the present moment delighting audiences with his exquisitely droll impersonation of a Yorkshireman with an imagined predisposition for a theatrical career. The sketch in which he appears bears the title of The Would-be Actors, and owes its authorship to Mr. Livesey. It was produced on July 17 at Manchester with the idea of being run for a week and then withdrawn. However, such was the success attained by this latest and most laughable absurdity that it was immediately booked, with the result that Mr. Livesey has not had a week out since it commenced, and he holds contracts for dates in 1907 and 1908. Mr. Alfred Butt saw the sketch in St. Helens, and formed such a high opinion of it that he arranged for its production at the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, where it created an agreeable impression during the last few weeks. "Some of the papers," remarked Mr. Livesey, laughingly, "seemed divided on the question as to whether I was speaking in the Yorkshire or Lancashire dialect. I admit that it is easy enough for anyone to be in doubt on this point, because there is great similarity between the way in which a Lancashire man pronounces his words and the way a man from the shire of broad acres talks."

The writer undertook to lay the odds on Mr. Livesey being a Yorkshireman, and was somewhat disconcerted to learn that the subject of this sketch hails from neither of the two counties mentioned.

"I was born in Wolverhampton," said Mr. Livesey, "although I have to admit that in the whole course of my life I have not spent more than a couple of weeks in that town. I have always been a rover. Like Poor Jo, I have been a-moving on and a-moving on. At the time of my birth my parents were members of the stock company at the Theatre Royal, Wolverhampton. I have myself played the principal comedy and character parts in the entire round of 'stock.'"

In the autumn of 1893 Mr. Livesey was engaged by Messrs. Hemming and Cooper to play Tom Painter in False Evidence for a tour of four months, and in the following year he took out his own company with The Coroner, finishing at Christmas. Then followed engagements for two tours as David Teacher and stage-manager of In Sight of St. Paul's, and a short season at the Princess's with the same play; Baron Stoney in The Babes in the Wood at the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, under Mr. Fred H. Graham's management; Jenkins and stage-manager in Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's run of Saved from the Sea; four tours as general-manager with Messrs. Rogers and Webb's Ladder of Life company, in which piece he played the parts of Sergeant Donal M'Dougal and Lieut. David Gordon; the title-rôle in Mr. J. H. Darnley's farcical comedy, The Solicitor; Pierre in The Two Orphans; and the character comedy parts in Dr. Nikola at the Princess's, and for a long tour. Then he was for a considerable period with Mr. George Kirk as stage-manager and principal comedian. In conjunction with this gentleman Mr. Livesey on one occasion produced Hamlet at a special performance before Count Hollander. He has also stage-managed and acted comedy rôles for Mr. Clifton Alderson in A Soldier and a Man. His next effort was the production of The Traitor Prince, which he still has out on tour, running it in conjunction with The Beautiful Fiend and The Days of Cromwell. Mr. Livesey is part author with the late Mr. Charles Rogers of The Days of Cromwell, a delightful romantic play, which has been well received wherever it has been presented. He is also the author, among other works, of The Man-o'-War's Man, the well-known nautical drama.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 19,
the Drama, by George R. Sims, entitled
"THE GIPSY EARL."

The talented stock company headed by those two sterling artists, Miss Marion Denvil and Mr. Ashley Page, is giving an excellent rendering this week of the favourite Adelphi drama, The Gipsy Earl, a play of such novel and picturesque setting, and such dramatic strength, that it is somewhat strange it is not more often seen on the boards. Mr. Ashley Page is a striking and handsome figure as Pharaoh Lee, the Gipsy Earl, and endues the part with much earnestness and fidelity. Miss Marion Denvil wins all hearts as the warm-hearted gipsy lass Naomi Lovel. She acts skilfully, and her voice throughout has the true ring of pathos. Mr. Percy Halton is satisfactory as Lord Trevanion. Mr. W. Stevens as the villain, Laban, invests the part with the needful ferocity. That clever low comedian, Mr. Johnny Chippendale, has an easy rôle to play as the village constable, Elijah Blossom. He adopts an appropriate brogue for the part, and obtains, as usual, much laughter. Jeremiah Quarles, the old gardener on the look out for a wife, becomes a very quaint and amusing personage in the skilful hands of Mr. Harry Francis, and his buxom daughter Jennie is adequately represented by Miss Mattie Everett. The two waifs, Dick and Titia, are charmingly played by Miss Francis Green and Miss Florrie Green respectively. Miss Georgie de Lara is a pleasing Alice Vandaleur, and Miss Annie Baldwin is humorous as Mrs. Tibbetts. Mr. S. Major Jones is an aristocratic Sir Jasper Roy, and plays with much feeling, and an admirable and forcible sketch of the blind Anselo Lovel comes from Mr. Richard Norton. Messrs. John Sargent, Tom Taylor, Walter Graham, and Miss Elsie Bonnet also appear to advantage in other characters. Mr. Will T. Taylor, the courteous acting manager, is making himself very popular here.

THE CARLTON, GREENWICH.

On Monday, March 19,
for the First Time in London,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Ridgewood Barrie, entitled
"A QUEEN OF VILLAINY."

Sir John Desborough, Bart...MR. ERN CARLTON
Alec.....MR. ARTHUR BEVERLEY
Kit, a Waif .....MR. LAWRENCE STEVENSON
Stephen Faucit .....MR. EDWARD HEANLEY
Reuben Hawk .....MR. ARTHUR E. MASKEL
Timothy Kodac .....MR. CHARLES ROGERS
Dick Leinster .....MR. CHARLES STIRLING
Matthew Dawes .....MR. WALTER SPEARMAN
P.C. Martell .....MR. CECIL DE-LEE
Warder .....MR. MARTIN BURROWS
Rose Delmayne.....MISS SHIRLEY DALTON
Mollie Maggs .....MISS JESSIE CRAMMONDE
Sally Chimes .....MISS AMY ROSS CLYDE
Cora Granville .....MISS EDITH BLANDE

A king of crime, a prince of rogues, and many other royal dignitaries of stage turpitude having already passed into popularity, the advent of a queen of crime was inevitable, and she has at length arrived in the person of Cora Granville, a lady whose evil deeds equal, and in some respects surpass, those of her predecessors. She was the moving spirit of a gang of gamblers and coiners of which Stephen Faucit, her colleague in crime, was nominally the head, and when the law is eventually set in operation, it is Cora's husband, Dick Leinster, upon whom the guilt is placed. Dick is sent to penal servitude, and Cora takes the opportunity of going through the marriage ceremony with Alec, the reputed son of Sir John Desborough, the real child having been stolen by gipsies when it was an infant. Alec, however, discovers that his marriage was a sham one, and publicly repudiates his wife. Cora is greatly disturbed by his conduct, and resolves to wreak vengeance upon the innocent head of Rose Delmayne, to whom Alec is betrothed. She also intends to secure the fortune of her reputed husband, and to accomplish this contemplates the murder of Sir John himself and of a boy named Kit, an outcast who is really the son of the baronet. Cora stabs the old man to death, and the crime is witnessed by Dick Leinster, her husband, who has just escaped from gaol. The boy Kit is confined in a hut close by, and overhears the exclamation of Cora as she recognises her convict spouse, and when later Kit is brought out and asked who committed the murder, he points to Alec, newly arrived on the scene, whom Cora declares is her husband. The evidence, however, is not strong enough to prove the crime, and Alec is released. Cora, to whom Faucit continues to render adequate support, has Rose Delmayne abducted and taken to a "doss-house" in the lowest quarter of Whitechapel, where she declares that Alec is condemned to death. So far is this from the truth, however, that the young man arrives to the rescue, accompanied by Kit, who receives the bullet fired by Cora at Alec. The fourth act witnesses the union of Alec and Rose and the separation of the queen of villainy and her minion Faucit, who stabs Cora during a quarrel, being himself strangled by Leinster, who is evidently determined to revenge his wrongs on someone.

Some startling situations are reached in the course of the play, which teems with vigorous lines and is embellished with comedy scenes of an unfamiliar kind. The piece, which was originally produced under the title of A She Devil at the Athenæum, Lancaster, on Nov. 25, 1902, is presented on a high plane of excellence by the members of Mr. P. Howard Sturgess's company, whose efforts received marked appreciation from a large audience. Miss Edith Blande, who appears in the title-rôle, invests it with becoming regal dignity, and well matches the handsome costumes which she wears. The ferocity and vindictiveness of the part are powerfully suggested, but there are gleams of sardonic humour, to which Miss Blande gives every significance—indeed, so effective is the actress in this respect that her appearance in modern comedy would be a distinct gain to that form of dramatic art. She is well and ably supported in her career of crime by Mr. Edward Heanley, who gives a buoyant touch to the heavy part of Stephen Faucit, acting with rare discrimination. His delivery, too, is well emphasised, and his rage at the constant baffling of his schemes and his final defeat is vividly expressed. Mr. Lawrence Stevenson gives a neatly varied piece of acting as the outcast Kit, making a picturesque appearance, but if he would raise his voice a little it would ensure the lines of the part being better heard. An intense and virile exposition of the part of Dick Leinster, the escaped convict, is given by Mr. Charles Stirling, who works up the interest of the scenes in which he appears very cleverly. Alec is played by Mr. Arthur Beverley, who gives the part the necessary attributes of manliness and pluck, winning many a cheer for the stirring lines which he has to deliver. Sympathy is won for the part of Rose Delmayne by Miss Shirley Dalton, who manages to make the rôle agreeable even in times of tribulation. Miss Dalton's elocution is particularly to be praised, and her spirited defiance to her persecutors wins great admiration. The essentials of mirth-making are supplied by Timothy Kodac, a tourist whose misadventures are many and various, and are drolly carried out by Mr. Charles Rogers, who is heard also in song. His efforts are admirably seconded by Miss Jessie Crammonde, an animated and refined comedienne, who makes the mirthful Mollie Maggs appear at her prettiest and best. Reuben Hawk, a poacher, has also leanings towards drollery, and the very most of these characteristics are made by Mr. Arthur E. Maskel. A study of female depravity is furnished in the part of his better-half, Sally Chimes, by Miss Amy Ross Clyde, who depicts the old hag with unhesitating realism. Mr. Era Carlton gives a capital representation of Sir John Desborough, Mr. Cecil De-Lee is a typical police-officer, and the other parts are played with care and ability. The production is effectively staged, and is under the general management of Mr. Gordon Carnegie.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH END.

Crouch End music-lovers have every reason to be satisfied with the excellent programme put before them by Mr. J. W. Turner's excellent English Opera company this week. An admirable rendering of The Bohemian Girl was given on Wednesday. All the principals are excellent artists and the chorus, in addition to being well trained, is powerful and thoroughly efficient.

Mr. F. J. Hargrave gave a capital representation of Taddeus, and his rich and powerful voice was heard to great advantage in "When other lips" and "The fair land of Poland." In addition to possessing a fine voice he is a good actor and makes an attractive lover. Count Arnheim was well played by Mr. John Ridding, who appeared to great advantage as the dignified and sorrow-stricken nobleman. His rendering of "The heart bowed down" was received with great applause. Mr. Sidney Clifford was a robust Devilshoof, and his pleasantries were much appreciated, as was also his excellent singing. Mr. Charles Le Sueur as Florestein was all that could be desired, and his representation of the droll fop was very amusing. Miss Kitty Brownlees was a charming Arline, and she not only possesses a fine voice but knows how to use it. She rendered all her songs with excellent effect, and received considerable applause. Miss Marie Burnett was suitably placed as the Gipsy Queen, and Miss Maud Esdale did well as Buda. Faust, Il Trovatore, The Lily of Killarney, and Maritana are among the other attractions for the week.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 19,
The Musical Comedy,
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Musical pieces still continue to win immense favour with Marlborough audiences, and the management is to be congratulated upon the return engagement of Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl, with its catchy music, capital songs, and clever dances. The staging and dressing are upon a lavish scale, the chorus is more than usually well balanced, and the augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr. Evelyn Baker, a very skilful conductor, adds not a little to the all-round success. Mr. William Stephens (Jim Cheese), Mr. Percy Carr (Dick Wargrave), Mr. Will Hindson (Downham), Mr. J. C. Graves (Talk), Miss Aimee Gray (Elphin Haye), Miss Dot Carey (Liza Shoddam), Miss Gladys Fontaine (Mrs. Shimmering Black), Miss Florence Imeson (Daisy Fallowfield), and Miss Helen Langton (Miss Virginia Bliss) repeat their impersonations of twelve months ago with, if possible, an added measure of success. In place of the pas seul, the "Dance L'Entente Cordiale" is gracefully performed by Miss Hilda Davis (England), Miss Enid Beverley (France), Miss Beatrice Ford (America), Miss Edyth Martin (Italy), Miss Nora Manette (Russia), and Miss Geraldine Scott (Japan), and meets with very warm approval. Of the new members of the company Mr. Percy E. Wright pleasingly impersonates the part of the Hon. Crewe Boodle and Mr. G. H. Curzon displays considerable ability as Bunker Bliss. Mr. F. W. Pattrick is a suitable representative of Mr. Hazell, host of the Fallowfield Arms, and Miss Hilda Grey is equal to the requirements of Flora, Lady Rosedale. Mr. Bert Beswick has the management of the stage, and deserves the highest praise.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 19,
the Drama, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

A crowded house assembled at the King's on Monday evening to witness Hall Caine's adaptation of his widely-read story, and judging from the enthusiasm displayed, success was assured. The play was followed with extraordinary interest by the audience, who testified their entire satisfaction at the strikingly dramatic and human story with its exciting and powerful situations and incidents. The stage-setting was one of which Mr. Mulholland might well be proud, as the capacious stage of the King's was fittingly calculated to show to advantage the magnificent scenery and appointments from Drury-lane Theatre. A fine cast has been obtained by Mr. Arthur Collins for the production, every character being satisfactorily filled. Mr. Henry George, a tried and excellent actor, shines in the part of Stephen Magnusson, the Governor-General. As Oscar Neilsen, Mr. Frank Collins acts with marked ability, and Dr. Olsen is capitally played by Mr. Howard Russell. The rendering of Magnus Stephensson by Mr. Henry Renouf is perfect, this earnest young actor deserving the highest praise for his acting of a most difficult rôle. Mr. Norman Partriege scores a conspicuous triumph as the prodigal Oscar, and the loud calls after each act are ample testimony to his brilliant acting. The Sheriff is ably undertaken by Mr. Philips, and Mr. Herbert Hewetson makes the most of his small opportunities as Neils Finsen. Mr. Bryan Daly is very good as the Director of the Casino, and the characteristics of Eric Arnasson are cleverly shown by Mr. P. Gromer. Miss Aime Murray brings her ripe experience to bear in the part of Anna Magnusson, and the pathos of the character is well manifested. As Thora Neilsen, and subsequently Elin, Miss Lilly Hall Caine repeats her Drury-lane success. Miss Cecil Cromwell's impersonation of Helga Neilsen is extremely powerful, and proves her to be an actress of considerable ability, and one who will be heard of again. Miss Mima Renouf is highly amusing as Margaret Neilsen, her quaint sayings relieving the sombreness of the play to a great extent. The scenery by Emden, McCleery, and Bruce Smith, does infinite credit to their respectively excellent reputations.

GREAT QUEEN-STREET THEATRE.

On Friday, March 16, the Farce, in Three Acts, by Oscar Walther and Leo Stein, entitled
"DAS OPFERLAMM."

Bodo von Prochnow ..... Bruno Wiburger
Constantia ..... Charlotte Kelly
Adelheid ..... Johanna Becker
Hans von Prochnow ..... Ottomar Bloss
Erich von Werden ..... Hans Stock
Lehmann ..... Richard Starnburg
Hildegard ..... Grete Hahn
Fräulein von Ingelfingen ..... Ida Weiss
Von Schmettwitz ..... Ernst Reicher
Otto von Griebenow ..... Georg Baselt
Lucie ..... Margarete Russ
Wanda Bilinski ..... Helene Waldau
Franz ..... W. Schmidt

Mr. Hans Andresen is to be congratulated on his decision to continue his season of German plays for a still further period. In April we are promised a cycle of plays by Sudermann, and the enterprise should draw crowded audiences to the cosy little house in Great Queen-street. Das Opferlamm is a farcical comedy of the best type, in which an excellent story and ridiculous situations are agreeably combined. In brief, the story runs thus:—Erich von Werden is on the eve of his marriage with Adelheid, Bodo and Constantia von Prochnow's daughter. He has confessed to his father-in-law most of his love affairs, but one in particular he hopes has not come to his ears. Wanda Bilinski, the heroine of this adventure, a volatile young circus rider, is safe in St. Petersburg, but trouble commences when she appears on the scene, demanding 1,000 marks compensation. She is introduced to the family as the wife of Professor Griebenow, but having no knowledge of that gentleman, her account of him is unmistakably faulty. The professor arrives suddenly, and is induced to acknowledge Wanda as his wife for the space of twenty-four hours. All goes well until the professor's lawful spouse appears, and is taken for a lady help whom Frau von Prochnow is expecting, and the complications that ensue grow very hilarious. The family retire to rest, the professor being paired off with Wanda. He induces the butler by a bribe to reveal the whereabouts of his wife's room. Failing to find the apartment, however, he decides to go to sleep on the sofa, where he is joined by his wife, and afterwards discovered by Frau von Prochnow A general confession is thus inevitable, and the professor explains that he has been the scapegoat for Erich. Profuse apologies are made, and in the end Wanda renounces Erich, and everything ends happily. The piéce de résistance of the evening was undoubtedly the Professor von Griebenow of Herr Georg Baselt—a part which fitted him like a glove. His humour was irresistible, and thoroughly appreciated by the audience, and his hard work richly deserved the success gained. Hans Stock was a manly Erich von Werden, and imbued the character with the right amount of vigour. Bruno Wiburger did all that was necessary as Bodo von Prochnow, Hans von Prochnow (his nephew) was a neat piece of work by Ottomar Bloss, Richard Starnburg gave a droll rendering of Lehmann, and Franz was made the most of by W. Schmidt. Of the ladies, Helene Waldau, a well-known Berliner, gave a sparkling and vivacious rendering of Wanda Bilinski, the circus rider; Lucie von Griebenow was charmingly enacted by Miss Margarete Russ, Constantia was in the able hands of Charlotte Kelly, and the Frau von Ingelfingen of Ida Weiss was commendable. The small part of Hildegard was undertaken with exceeding grace by Grete Hahn, and, as Adelheid, Erich's fiancée, Johanna Becker was all that could be desired, both in manner and delivery. The piece was presented to a full house.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 19,
the Japanese Opera, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

"A thing of beauty is a joy for ever," and surely this must be the reason of the unimpaired vitality and continuous popularity of this pretty play, with perhaps the fact that there is a sustained interest in its slight story, and a complete exclusion of any extraneous matter or unsuitable business. The cordial reception given to Mr. Mouillot's company at the Crystal Palace this week encouraged them to put forth their best efforts, and as a result laughter and encores were frequent. In the hands of Miss Bessie Allayne, O Mimosa San was charming, the little lady being in excellent voice, and the fun and gaminerie of Molly Seymour, as represented by Miss Florrie Saunders, was genuine and infectious. Miss Aubrey Ashton was a stately Lady Constance Wynn, and the other ladies were well adapted to their various parts. Mr. Cyril Thompson was a gallant and tuneful Reggie Fairfax, and his additional verse anent the launch of the Dreadnought in his song "Jack's the Lad" was boisterously received and re-demanded. He was well supported by his brother officers and the irrepressible "middy," played by Miss Blanche Browne. The whimsicalities of Wun Hi, the Chinaman, lost nothing in Mr. Edward Carlton's rendering, his dancing also being specially good and securing undeniable encores. Mr. Lionel Braham as the Marquis Imari was impressive and quaint, and Mr. G. D. Phillips played his factotum, Takemine, carefully. There was an ample chorus of Mousmés, coolies, etc., and the entire production was well and suitably put on. For Friday the same company was announced to appear in A Greek Slave.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 19,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

The success of The Prince of Pilsen, which is on its second visit to the Kennington Theatre this week, is largely due to the excellent work done by Mr. George Musgrove's well-equipped company and to liberality of mounting. The audience showed their appreciation in the orthodox manner, the curtain being raised several times at the conclusion. Mr. Edwin Adeler is still principal fun-maker in his original part of Hans Wagner, the pseudo Prince of Pilson, his best song being undoubtedly "It was the Dutch," which was greatly appreciated. Lieutenant John Wagner, his son, found a manly exponent in Mr. G. Villiers Arnold, the possessor of a good voice, who scored principally in his songs, "The Violets" and "I hear the bugle blow." Mr. Stuart Alexander, an actor of fine physique, did all that could be desired as the Prince of Pilsen, all his songs, notably "Here's to the Land," "The Cigar Song," and "Sea Shells," being successful. Mr. Lawrence Wensley was good as the Englishman with a title, Arthur Rossmoss, Earl of Shrimpton. François, garçon of the Hôtel International, was successfully placed in the hands of Mr. Alfred Selby, and Mr. D. O. Uglas was good as Sergeant Brie, the Gendarme. Miss Ruby Verdi sung charmingly and acted sweetly as Nellie Wagner. Miss Nelly Cozens did good work as Mrs. Madison Crocker, an American widow. Edith Adams, Lieutenant Wagner's fiancée, found a charming exponent in Miss Mildred Baker. Miss Nell Emerald scored a distinct success as Sidonie, her song, "The Thin Ice," being piquant and witty. Miss Meg Hamylton added to her popularity in the part of Jimmie, the bell boy. The chorus, under the control of Mr. J. A. Robertson, worked hard, the glee, "Old Heidelberg," being particularly pleasing.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

Mr. Frank Curzon's principal company in the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, have been appearing with great success at the Alexandra, Stoke Newington. The piece, it should be mentioned, has done extremely well on tour. Mr. Percy Clifton gives full expression to the laughable character of the somewhat easily "taken-in" policeman, who, so long as he can get promoted to an inspectorship, doesn't care by what questionable methods his ambition be attained. Very amusing is his rendering of "The Bobbies' Beano," and the comedy of his acting throughout is excellent. Mr. George Barrett, as Crookie Scrubbs, presents an intensely laughable picture of an ex-gaolbird, his gestures, intonation of voice, and pronunciation being well in keeping with the character of a criminal who sees the humorous side of things. Mr. Barrett's singing of a few verses which end with the line "Put me in my little cell," is alone well worth going to the theatre to hear. Miss Violet Dean, looking tall and stately, and walking with grace and ease, gives us a capital piece of quiet acting in her rôle of Lady Bickenhall. Extremely entertaining she is in the song "Instinct." Mr. Charles Hanbury submits an acceptable interpretation of the part of Michael Brue; and Mr. Harold Montague is distinctly good in the part of Inspector Gorringe. Mr. James J. Gordon is amusingly sanctimonious as the bogus clergyman, and that worthy's confederate, Captain Bay, has an able impersonator in Mr. Hugh Oliver. Miss Constance Lait makes herself highly popular as Sergeant Brue's daughter, and her rendering of a serious ballad, "Never mind the weather," is, perhaps, the most delightful vocal feature in the piece. Mr. A. E. E. Edwards furnishes an admirable study of an aged magistrate in the rôle of Mr. Crank; and the other parts receive adequate treatment from their different representatives. Mr. J. B. Watson, who is the general manager of the company for Mr. Frank Curzon, keeps a careful eye on all matters in connection with the production, and Mr. T. J. Robinson, the acting-manager of the theatre, attends to the comfort of the audience.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, March 19, the play, by Alfred Sutro, entitled
"THE WALLS OF JERICHO."

The popular manager, Mr. Cecil Paget, has provided a great attraction here this week in the great Garrick success of last season, The Walls of Jericho. The play won fame as a powerful attack—more powerful, indeed, than many a sermon—upon some of the vices and follies of fashionable life at the present time. We watch with the utmost interest the manly career of Jack Frobisher, who stands for a long time a living protest and a preacher against the unworthy society by which he is surrounded, and at last, despairing of being able to effect any reformation, he departs with his wife and child for the purer atmosphere of the Australian bush. The company, which is under the direction of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Wm. Leveaux, gives an excellent rendering of the play. Mr. Edward A. Warburton plays the part of Fighting Jack to the life. His vigorous denunciation of the hollowness and sham that encircle him are admirably given, and his vigorous outburst of scorn at the end of the third act is finely delivered. Mr. Alfred S. Barber presents a clever companion portrait of another "man from Queensland," Hankey Bannister, and his laugh is infectious. Mr. Barber must be complimented upon a most artistic portrayal of the easy-going, fatuous gentleman who "has made his pile," and falls an easy victim to the wiles of the extremely artful and self-seeking little ingenue Lady Lucy Devenham, a part demurely and delightfully played by Miss Mona Wynne. Miss Amy Ravenscroft presents a fine portrait of Lady Alethea Frobisher, a woman in whom the better side of her nature finally triumphs. Mr. V. Willox-Cadogan is excellent as the epigram-coining Bertram Hannaford, and Mr. Cecil Brooking is humorous and convincing as the self-seeking pompous old humbug the Marquis of Steventon. The villain, Harry Dallas, is played with admirable restraint by Mr. A. W. Tyrer, and the good-hearted Lady Westoby, as rendered by Miss Helen Haye, soon becomes a popular favourite All the other characters are in good hands.

GRAND THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 19, the Comic Opera
"PEGGY MACHREE."

Woolwich playgoers generally, and in particular those who are fond of good music, have been turning up in goodly numbers to witness the vagaries and vicissitudes of that delightful young Irish hoyden Peggy Machree and her companions, as portrayed by Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company. Miss Claudia Lasell being unfortunately prevented from acting by illness, her place in the cast was undertaken on Monday by Miss Marion Cecil, who, throwing herself heart and soul into her work, gave a most successful rendering of the title-rôle, her bright acting and clever singing soon making her a popular favourite, while several of her songs were loudly encored. Molly Cafferty found a charming representative in Miss Blanche Astley, whose good voice was heard to effect in several numbers, and whose vivacious dancing was one of the features of the performance. Miss Madge Avery was responsible for a good deal of laughter in a humorous rendering of the Widow Cafferty, Miss Doris Kelvey was a stately Madame de la Cour, and Miss Dorothy Garden made the most of the small part of the Hon. Emily Pryor. As Barry Trevor, Mr. Leslie Stiles was the seventeenth century naval officer to the life, acting in a commendably natural, straightforward manner, and singing with considerable feeling and expression. Mr. Milroy Cooper submitted a well thought-out character study of Alexander McDougall, his expressionless features and dry manner of speech adding to the value of his impersonation, while his one song secured undoubtedly the heartiest encore of the evening. Mr. Ralph Lynn was amusingly fatuous as the brainless Sir Lawrence Borthwick, and Mr. Marc Macdermott sufficiently stagey as the villain of the piece, Captain de la Cour. A clever sketch of Michael the Piper came from Mr. Dan Fitzgerald, and Mr. John Morley sang particularly well as Sergeant Bampton.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 19, the Play in Five Acts, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled "DEATH OR GLORY BOYS."

At the Shakespeare Theatre this week an excellent company, under the direction of Mr. John M. East, is holding the boards with Death or Glory Boys, a military play, which should appeal to all supporters of popular drama. The acting all round is worthy of the warmest praise, and the whole performance from start to finish is thoroughly enjoyable. An ideal heroine is found in Miss Katherine Clarke, who makes an attractive appearance as Nena Furgeson, and acts with a brightness and charm that are very pleasing. Miss Lily Hammersley gives a natural representation of the sorely tried Edith Malden, and is accorded sympathetic applause. Mr. Fred Victor is seen to advantage as the much-wronged Jack Malden, and he contributes an energetic and powerful impersonation of which it would be difficult to speak too highly. An earnest and convincing embodiment of the villainous Captain Ferrers is given by Mr. Oscar Adye, and he is well supported by Mr. Alfred Hollis, whose talents are well employed in the rôle of the rascally, but afterwards repentant, servant Carn. Mr. Alfred Harding as Colonel Furgeson submits an excellent portrayal, acting with much feeling and dignity; and Mr. Arthur Eldred as the generous-hearted Lieut. Duff is to be congratulated on a sterling performance, which greatly adds to the success of the play. Mr. Edward Coleman as Nat Wilks keeps the audience well amused, in which direction he is capably assisted by Miss Nellie Sheffield as Janet. Good support is also rendered by Mr. Edward Boddy as Sergeant Brian, Mr. Ashton Winslow as Old George, a farm labourer, and Mr. Paul Peters as Sam, a yokel.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 19,
the Comic Opera, in Three Acts, entitled

Veronique is paying a visit to the riverside town for the first time. Mr. George Dance, whose name is a guarantee of excellence in things theatrical, has sent down a particularly strong combination, and the opera is presented in a manner worthy of its reputation. The title-rôle is played by Miss Rita Leonhardt, who adds the charms of an engaging personality to that of a voice of exceptional excellence, with the result that she has become a great favourite. Miss Florence Lee, who appears as Madame Coquenard, is also a valuable factor in the success of the production, and popular favour is also accorded to Miss Neste Laurel, whose impersonation of Denise is most meritorious. Miss Florence Aylwin acquits herself well as the Countess de Champ d'Azur. A capital Florestan is found in Mr. Roland Bottomley, who makes the most of his opportunities in the musical items allotted to him. Mr. Ivan Berlyn as Loustot and Mr. Ellis Holland as Coquenard succeed admirably in mastering the light comedy of the parts assigned to them. The part of Seraphin portrayed by Mr. Tom Shelford is also admirably played. Even in the smaller rôles the management has been successful in finding good material, and with a particularly good chorus, directed by Mr. Leonard Leslie, the chef d'orchestra, the opera goes with a fine swing. Needless to say, it is received with great favour by all parts of the house.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

John Lawson is making his first appearance here this week in a triple bill, comprising The Monkey's Paw, The King's Minister, and Humanity, supported by an excellent company of first-rate artists. In the first-named piece Mr. Lawson submits an admirable study of Mr. White, and capital aid is contributed by Cissie Lawson as Mrs. White, Mr. E. S. Vincent as an old soldier, Mr. G. Ommanney as Herbert, and Mr. Arthur Royston as Sampson. W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker's play is received with every mark of appreciation.

Mr. Lawson is perhaps seen at his best in Cecil Raleigh's dramatic episode, The King's Minister, in which he impersonates the part of Lord Draconsmere. The actor contributes excellent work in this trying rôle, and upon his strenuous efforts the success of the piece practically depends. Mr. Lawson's work elicits the warmest recognition. Mr. Arthur Royston is well placed as Milano, and Miss Ethel Paull is admirably suited in the part of the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozier. Other parts are played by Mr. G. Ommanney and Cissie Lawson.

The popular sketch Humanity supplies Mr. Lawson with a further opportunity of displaying his powers, and Jacob Silvani is perhaps his most favourably known rôle. He acts the part in a masterly manner, and at the fall of the curtain there was an outburst of applause which necessitated it being raised three or four times. Mr. Lawson is well supported by Mr. H. E. S. Vincent as John Cuthbert, Mr. G. Ommanney (Captain Grey), Mr. Bax Bailey (Moses Silvani), and Leah Bernarto (Mrs. Grey), The staging of the plays is highly creditable.

A variety entertainment by the Sisters Velasco, Harry Harriss, Madame Paull, the Brothers Tarrant, and Louie Belrose complete the bill. Excellent houses are the rule at each performance.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday evening, March 19, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Fredk. Melville, entitled
"BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

This thoroughly interesting drama was presented by Mr. Fredk. Melville's company here on Monday night, and, notwithstanding the fact that it has been on the road for three years, the scenery, dresses, and general effects are quite worthy of any West End theatre. Well staged, and performed by a really strong company, the piece goes with a swing from start to finish. As the Rev. Philip Carton Mr. Hugh Metcalfe gives a refreshingly manly rendering of the part, very different from the usual stage cleric, and scores heavily throughout. Mr. Lewis Hector as James Durwood acts with power and reserve, and together with Miss Winfred Pearson as Carmen de Savereux cleverly depicts the duplicity of their characters. A finished performance is Mr. Arthur B. Murray's representation of Henry, Earl of Millard, while the part of Harry Millard, his son, is capitally acted by Mr. C. W. Standing. In the earlier stages of the piece the powerful acting of Mr. George R. Montford as Major Strangeways thrills the house. The comic relief is indeed safe in the hands of Mr. Dickie Clare and Miss Lillian Earle, who take the characters Jack Pringle and Pollie Popp; full of life and spirit, they fully deserve the laughter and applause with which they are repeatedly greeted. Mr. J. W. Walters thoroughly identifies himself with the part of Jacques Shado, of the Vultures. As Dick Burgess, back from South Africa, Mr. Chas. McCann is effective, while Mr. N. Graham ably fills the rôle of Mr. Jorkins, shop manager. Other male characters are well sustained by Messrs. Geo. Winter, Harry Bowman, Geo. Warne, and Alfred Darton. As Violet Thornton, Miss Marjorie Murray has a thorough grip of her character, and by her tender womanliness accentuates the contrast between herself and her rival. Miss Lulu Bowes realistically carries through the arduous part of the Blind Boy. As a lady customer Miss Sybil Hare does justice to her part. Miss Agnes Winter and Miss Lottie James ably represented Miss Smith and Miss Brown.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 19, the Play, by C. M. S. McLellan, entitled
"LEAH KLESCHNA."

The attraction for this week is of a somewhat heavier order than those we have had here of late, but such a clever play as Leah Kleschna is very welcome, and we are glad to have an opportunity of congratulating Mr. Charles Frohman on the excellent company that is presenting it on tour. The characters are cleverly drawn, and the plot is most absorbing. In the part of Kleschna, Mr. Robert Pateman has a part which suits him admirably, and which he plays with great skill and force. It is a fine impersonation, and is in this favourite actor's best style. Not less successful is Miss Haidée Wright, who appears as Leah, a trying part indeed; but she is quite equal to her task, and plays in a most convincing manner, proving herself to be a dramatic actress of great ability. Another striking impersonation is that of Paul Sylvaine, the deputy, who has such original ideas on the theory of crime, and Mr. J. Graeme Campbell, who undertakes the rôle, is deserving of the greatest praise for his carefully studied and forcible portrayal. The faithful Schram is played by Mr. E. H. Brooke with great success. Mr. Brooke is also responsible for the excellent stage management. As Raoul Berton, Mr. Cyril Harcourt is to be complimented on the tact and skill displayed by him in that impersonation, the drunken scene in particular being well presented. Mr. Kenneth Rivington does well as General Berton, and Miss Ethel Marryat plays Madame Berton with distinction. The amusing pair of lovers, Valentine and Sophie, are capitally delineated by Mr. Roland Daniel and Miss Dorothy Sidney, who are exceedingly bright and natural. Miss Haidée Hemsley makes a pretty and engaging Claire Berton. Minor characters are capably filled by Messrs. Fairburn, Loomis, and Harding, and the Misses Cecile Leith and Alice Davis. The play is handsomely mounted, the scene depicting the lettuce fields being very picturesque. Mr. W. D. Nicoll is the manager for the company.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, March 19,
"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

Mr. Frank Curzon's company is appearing at the Coronet this week in the Criterion comic opera The White Chrysanthemum with great success. A clever company has been gathered together, the members of which do full justice to Messrs. Leedham Bantock and Arthur Anderson's libretto and lyrics, while Mr. Howard Talbot's music is excellently interpreted by the leading artists and all concerned. Mr. Davy Burnaby gives a thoroughly characteristic sketch of the good-natured, well-meaning numbskull, "Chippy" Belmont, and his manner, appearance, gait, and deportment, as well as his droll, crisp originality, suit the part admirably. His ditty "I wonder" is capitally sung. Miss Ruth Lincoln as Sybil Cunningham of the title-rôle is very much in evidence, and her charming appearance and voice gain her great favour with the audience. A number of songs are allotted to her, and they are all most delightfully rendered, Miss Lincoln possessing a powerful, though sweet and melodious voice. Mr. F. Pope Stamper is a manly and alert Reginald Armitage, and his one song, "Taking things as they come," is cleverly rendered. Mr. F. W. Ford is amusing as the arbitrary and angry Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage, with a capital topical song. Miss Maud Harvey makes an agreeable widow Betty Kenyon, with song, "A Hint," and Miss Isabelle Dillon is a sprightly Cornelia Vanderdecken. Mr. O. E. Lennon is the life and soul of the company as Sin Chong, and he keeps the game alive all the time with song and dance and merry jest. His endeavours are ably seconded by Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Private Perks, a very droll Royal Marine. The evolutions of the chorus are admirably conducted, and are quite a feature of the performance.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 19, the Musical Play, entitled
"THE ORCHID."

That The Orchid is still popular not only with statesmen but with the general public was fully exemplified on Monday evening, when a good house accorded Mr. George Dance's talented company a hearty reception on its second visit to the Pavilion. The scenery and mounting are elaborate, and the beautiful dresses varied and harmonious in colour, while the admirably drilled chorus, together with the augmented orchestra under the skilful bâton of Mr. Knight Pearce render the score with a brightness and finish that are most delightful. The quaint and irresistible humour of that excellent comedian Mr. Bertie Wright finds unlimited opportunity for expression in the part of Meakin, in which he is most mirth-provoking, and moves the audience to roars of laughter by his eccentricity of manner. Mr. Alfred Bennett is decidedly amusing as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, his "Lancers" song being encored with acclamation. Mr. C. Stone merits great praise for his portrayal of Dr. Ronald Faussett, and a masterly character sketch of the duellist Comte Basque de Cassignat is presented by Mr. William Benson. Special mention must be given to Mr. Harry T. Butler for his impersonation of the professional orchid-hunter Zaccary, while his smart and clever dancing fairly brings down the house. Mr. Jack V. Fairley portrays Aubrey Chesterton with considerable credit, his "Pushful" song being given with much point. Good work is put in by Mr. Cecil Frere as Frotenbras and Mr. Buchanan Wake as Merignac, and commendation is due to Mr. F. Attree for his comical reading of the Registrar. Lady Violet Anstruther is engagingly played by Miss Chrissie Ralland, whose pleasing presence creates a favourable impression, while her rendering of the various numbers allotted to her are given with charming piquancy and effect. An interesting and entertaining Josephine Zaccary is found in Miss Mamie Stuart, who endows the part with much grace; and an attractive performance of the adventuress Zelie Humbert is presented by Miss Elsa D'Usez. Miss Florence Vie possesses a fund of unctuous humour which is well brought out in her embodiment of Caroline Vokins; and Miss Rubie Garman is satisfactory as Thisbe, scoring a success with the inevitable coon song in the second act. Miss Ida Chichester does all that is necessary as the Countess Anstruther, while capable exponents of a Commissionaire, Master of Ceremonies, and M. Deauville are found in Messrs. E. B. Davies, G. Edwards, and D. Goodban. Mr. Buchanan Wake is stage-manager, and Mr. Jack Parson manager for Mr. George Dance.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 19,
the Comedy Drama, by Richard Ganthony, entitled
"THE MESSAGE FROM MARS."

Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company, in The Message from Mars, is paying a return visit to the Brixton this week, and attracting large audiences. Mr. Austen Lee gives an admirable performance of the selfish and conceited Horace Parker, and creates much laughter by the positions in which his selfishness places him. The Martian Messenger is played with distinction by Mr. W. H. Brougham, his fine physique and sonorous voice assisting him in making this character of great importance. A really fine character-study is that of the Tramp of Mr. Bruce Lindley; every word and action is quite in accord with the part, and is recognised by applause. Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson is good as Mr. Dicey, though the American accent is so frequently absent. An excellent exponent of the Aunt, Mrs. Parker, is found in Mrs. Edward Saker, who makes the most of her opportunities. A charming and graceful interpretation of Minnie Templar is presented by Miss May Saker; Miss Peggy E. Yeoman is a vivacious Bella; Mr. Eustace French is well placed as Sir E. Vivian; Mr. Leslie Tyler is successful as Mr. Fergusson; Mr. Harry Reynolds causes amusement as the policeman. The remaining characters are well sustained. Some excellent selections are played by the orchestra, under the capable direction of Mr. H. Richardson.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 19, the Drama in Five Acts, by Henry Pettitt and Augustus Harris, entitled "HUMAN NATURE."

Mr. Samuel James's excellent stock company at this theatre is presenting the above drama, and a good house mustered on Monday to witness the performance. Of the drama itself nothing new can be said; it has passed into the limited circle of popular classics, and as such will probably always be a favourite. The mounting and scenery were very complete, and in fact everything was done to secure a good performance, this desirable object, with the admirable efforts of the company, being quite realised. Mr. F. Stone was good as Frank Temple, acting in a forcible manner; Mr. J. Monkhouse as Hawkes was excellently placed, and did the part every justice; Mr. J. Morgan as Paul de Vigne was quite satisfactory, as was Mr. Frank Harrison as Mardyke. Mr. J. E. Manning merits commendation as the Rev. A. Lulworth, and Mr. Fred Waller was successful as Lambkin. Mr. A. P. Kaye as Spofkins was a resourceful and clever comedian, who made a good impression. Miss Gray as Mrs. Temple was excellent, acting with feeling and sincerity; Miss East Robertson as Cora Grey acted powerfully and with effect, Miss Eva Williams as the son was satisfactory, and Miss May Seton gave another good performance as the servant. Miss Helena Rigby as Mrs. Lambkin is to be commended, and Miss Irene Ross as Dick was good. The remaining smaller parts were all in good hands.

GRAND THEATRE, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 19,
the Play, by Tom Taylor, entitled
"STILL WATERS RUN DEEP."

The patrons of the Fulham Grand have the pleasure of once again seeing Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their excellent company in several attractive plays. On Monday they presented Still Waters Run Deep. Mr. Kendal, as John Mildmay, the misunderstood husband, was not found wanting in any of the various phases of human nature which he is called upon to portray. The character of Mrs. Mildmay was excellently depicted by Miss Elsie Clarens. Mrs. Kendal, in the rôle of Mrs. Stemhold, the widowed aunt of Mrs. Mildmay, and self-installed head of the Mildmay household, is seen to great advantage, especially in her scene with Captain Hawkesley. The latter part was well embodied by Mr. Bassett Roe. Among the remaining characters the chief one is that of Mr. Potter, Mrs. Mildmay's old and weak-willed father, a part that was admirably played by Mr. E. Hendrie. Dunbilk, the business confederate of Captain Hawkesley, is played by Mr. Metcalfe Wood, Langford and Markham, Mr. Mildmay's friends, by Messrs. R. Burnett and R. Dennison, Gimlet, the detective, by Mr. F. C. Pool; and Jessop, the manservant, by Mr. W. M. Rutherford; all these artists fill the parts entrusted to them with distinction. The audience was large and appreciative. The other plays in the week's programme are A Scrap of Paper, The Housekeeper, The Elder Miss Blossom, and The Ironmaster.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, March 19,
the Farce, in Three Acts, by Messrs. W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

A delightful evening's entertainment is provided by the Broadway management this week with what is billed—with justice—as the funniest play on tour, viz., Beauty and the Barge. It is perfectly acted, perfectly staged, and perfectly managed from start to finish. Mr. Harry Ashford is highly successful as the warm-hearted and youth-loving old barge-master, Captain James Barley, and quickly establishes himself a favourite. Mr. Percival Knight is a brisk and popular representative of the adventurous Lieutenant Seton Boyne, R.M.; Mr. Percy Marmont, a manly and interesting Herbert Manners; Mr. Walter Pemberton is capital as the fiery-tempered Major Smedley; Mr. Charles Goold makes an excellent Tom Codd; and the same may be said of Mr. Forester Harvey as Augustus. Mr. J. Wheatman is responsible for an excellent character sketch as Tom Dibbs, the gardener; and Mr. Charles Caffrey is good as George Porter. Miss May Fairclough is a clever and attractive representative of Ethel Smedley; Miss Mary Pemberton is a charming Lucy Dallas; Miss Ethel Stalman looks and acts well the part of Mrs. Smedley; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite presents a clever portrait of Mrs. Porter, of the Old Ship Inn; and Miss Mary Griffiths must be warmly congratulated on her artistic and amusing rendering of Mrs. Baldwin. The smaller male parts are all well acted. The performances begin with a one-act play, entitled That Brute Simmons, in which Miss Harriet French, Mr. J. Wheatman, and Mr. Fred Lake all appear to great advantage.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"GLATIGNY,"

Play in Five Acts and Six Tableaux,
by M. Catulle Mendès,
Produced at the Odéon on March 17.

PARIS, THURSDAY, March 22.—It is impossible to say whether M. Catulle Mendès's new play, brought out at the Odéon, will prove to the taste of the general public. That terrible creature, the average man, has a mentality of his own which it is not always easy to understand. But artistic and literary Paris owes M. Mendès a debt of gratitude for having shown us some delightful tableaux of Bohemian life towards the end of the Second Empire. The author has even been daring enough to put on the stage not only the well-known figure of Glatigny, but also other personages, like Courbet, Emile de Girardin, and others, with whom many men now living were well acquainted. As to the hero in the piece, those who knew him will remember him as a tall, thin, pale, sickly-looking man, with dreamy eyes and a smile that betokened good nature. Like Cyrano de Bergerac, he was a poet, and, like him, suffered because he knew he was ugly. They also had that in common that their existence was not a struggle for life, but for love. Their ambition was to be loved for themselves by some great lady, an ambition that never was fulfilled. The opening tableau shows us the young poet leaving his native village to follow a company of strolling players, he having fallen in love with Lizane, a little actress, a pretty girl without either heart or brains, the mistress of her comrade Tassin. She is unfaithful and cruel, yet Glatigny will love her till he dies. In Paris he meets the Princesse d'Elfe, the wife of an ambassador. He gives her some pretty verses, in return for which she offers him her pocket-book studded with diamonds and pearls, wherein he scribbled these verses. But the penniless poet refuses this costly gift, and begs the rose the lady wears in her hair. She gives him the flower and, anxious to help him, tells him that he may at any time exchange the faded flower for the pocket-book. Glatigny then becomes secretary to Emile de Girardin, the famous journalist, but having indulged in the joke of writing a political article in verse, he is discharged on the spot, and Lizane, afraid of poverty, at once leaves him. He runs after her, and when he hears she has been engaged in a music hall to sing the songs of "La Gemmeuse," he also secures an engagement there as an improvisator. The scene in the music hall is intensely dramatic. Lizane asks him for 3,000 francs. Why does she want the money? Glatigny is frightened. He has heard that Tassin, the girl's former lover, has just been discharged from prison and was seen outside the hall that evening. Yet he is afraid of losing Lizane, and knowing the Princesse d'Elfe is in a box, he sends her the faded flower, in return for which he receives the valuable pocket-book. Glatigny is ashamed of what he has done, but to please Lizane he would lower himself still further. The girl has finished her song. It is Glatigny's turn to come on, and he improvises a ballad in honour of love. All at once he hears in the wings two persons whisper, and recognises the voice of the wretched Tassin. He would like to rush back, but he must finish his task. He must improvise rhymes, for the public will have its three couplets. At last he can leave the stage, but it is too late. Lizane has gone away with Tassin, and whilst the unfortunate Glatigny falls into the arms of his comrades, the orchestra strikes up the music for the ballet. In the final tableau we are once more in the little Normandy town where he was born. There he finds Emma, the young woman who has never forgotten him, and is content to marry and nurse him, for he is very ill. But one night he thinks he hears voices that promise him glory and fame. He steals out of the house, and the next morning workmen bring back the body of a man they found at the foot of the hill. It is the end of poor Glatigny. The interpretation was first-class. M. Tarride certainly had not the physique of the long, lanky Glatigny, but in every other respect was really superb. Glatigny will rank among the best of that clever artist's creations. The rôle of Lizane suited Mdlle. Brésil to the ground. Cruel and fascinating, she gave us the right impression of the woman for whom the luckless poet sacrificed everything. The other parts also were well sustained, and for once the Odéon has done things well in the way of mounting.

"LA PECHERESSE,"

Comedy in Four Acts, by M. Jean Carol.
Produced at the Renaissance on March 18.

Madame Duchemin ..MDLLE. MARTHE BRANDES
Suzanne .....MDLLE. JULIETTE MARGEL
Mme. Baudreuil .....MDME. JENNY ROSE
Prudence .....MDLLE. CLAUDIA
Justine .....MDLLE. DELYS
L'Abbé Cailletot .....M. LUCIEN GUITRY
La Tours-Villiers .....M. GEMIER
Dangu .....M. ARQUILLIÈRE
Pierre Baudreuil .....M. ROUSSELLE

The new piece offered us by M. Guitry is an amusing skit on the mundane code of morality, a code the precepts of which are not shared by those outside the higher spheres. At curtain-rise we are in a small provincial town in the house of Dangu, a retired merchant, who still owns large plantations in Brazil. Dangu, a bachelor, lives with his sister, Mme. Baudreuil, a widow, and her son Pierre. Mme. Duchemin, a handsome middle-aged woman, and her daughter Suzanne have also settled in the little town of Metteville. Mme. Duchemin is much respected; she is most charitable, and, thanks to her, the priest, the Abbé Cailletot, has had a set of bells for his church. Pierre falls in love with Suzanne; they become engaged, and nothing but an unforseen incident can prevent them from becoming husband and wife. The incident crops up in the person of Baron Hector de la Tours-Villiers, a ruined nobleman, who has come to Motteville to ask his friend Dangu to find him a post. At one time possessed of a large fortune, he has run through it in a short time, and the greater part of it has gone into the pocket of Diane d'Aiguillon, a famous demi-mondaine. He is introduced to Mme. Duchemin, and, to his surprise, recognises in her his former mistress Diane. The baron is placed in almost the same situation as Olivier de Jalin in Le Demi-Monde, and he informs Diane that he cannot allow his friend's nephew to marry the daughter of a cocotte. Mme. Duchemin, afraid that if the engagement is broken off it will break her daughter's heart, consults her friend the old priest, who tells her that the only thing to do is to forestall the baron, and generously offers to tell everything to Dangu and implore him to let bygones be bygones. The priest keeps his word, but when Pierre hears from his uncle what has occurred, he refuses to have anything to do with Suzanne. The next day he regrets having acted so rashly, and, meeting the baron, insults him grossly. A duel ensues, and the baron, dangerously wounded, is carried half-dead to Mme. Duchemin's house, where he is carefully nursed. Suzanne and Pierre, however, are inconsolable; and thanks to the good priest everything is set right. Suzanne will become Pierre's wife, and Mme. Duchemin will marry the baron, who will take her with him to Brazil, where Dangu has secured him a post. Several scenes are spun out too much, so that a little careful pruning will be necessary. The work, however, is well written, and met with such an excellent reception that a long run can be safely predicted. M. Lucien Guitry as the priest was one of the finest pieces of acting we have seen here for a long time. The other parts, too, were excellently played.

On Monday, March 19, the Drama in Four Acts, by J. A. Campbell (presented for the First time in London), entitled

"THE LITTLE BREADWINNER."

Lord William Dorrington ....MR. J. C. AUBREY
Richard Lawrence .....MR. C. KING
Joseph Prior .....MR. BENSLEY EVANS
Charles Prior .....MR. C. A. CHANDLER
Doctor Chadwick .....MR. EDWIN J. COLLINS
Monty .....MR. H. WRIGHT
Detective .....MR. HENRY GOOCH
Margaret Daventry ....MISS KATHLEEN RUSSELL
Bridget O'Flanagan .....MISS OLIVE LANTY
Kate Cherry .....MISS ROSEMARY REES
Ruth Cherry .....MISS MARIE KILDARE
Meg .....LITTLE MAUD HARRIS
Bobby Trott .....MISS TINY ALBERT

Mr. J. A. Campbell's popular and effective drama The Little Breadwinner, which first saw the footlights on December 11 last year at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, has been visiting the popular theatres of the provinces, where the favourable verdict of a first-night audience has been most amply confirmed. The author, who wrote that successful piece The Sin of Her Childhood, in his latest work plays cleverly on the emotions, handles familiar incidents with the skill of a practised dramatist, and produces his theatrical effects without unduly straining after them. The characters are sympathetically drawn, and unblemished virtue and unabashed vice are well contrasted.

The action of the piece commences in the Quaker household of Lord William Dorrington, whose adopted son, Richard Lawrence, to his lordship's sorrow, is given to betting on horse races, being secretly incited thereto by Lord William's hypocritical secretary, Joseph Prior, a smooth-tongued scoundrel, who, as the dispenser of his lordship's philanthropy, betrays his trust, large amounts going to his own pocket. To widen the breach between Richard and the simple-minded and confiding Lord William, Prior fixes upon the former a charge of being the cause of Kate Cherry's moral ruin. The girl becomes Prior's chief assistant in his villainy. Lawrence is banished from home, and Margaret Daventry, his betrothed, accompanies him into exile. We find them after the lapse of eleven years in the direst poverty; for, though they have money regularly remitted to them by Lord William, it is always appropriated by the unspeakable Joseph. It is little Meg, their ten-year-old daughter, who keeps the wolf from the door by singing in the street, and when we see her in the poor lodgings occupied by her father and mother—the latter is blind—she has earned two shillings and threepence by her exertions. His lordship determines on visiting Dick and his poor sightless wife, and to prevent him seeing Lawrence alone Prior plans to drug the unfortunate hero, and to compromise his reputation by placing him in a room with Kate. Lord William still feels convinced of the guilt of Dick as the seducer of Kate, and, sympathising with Margaret and the youngster, takes them to his house, leaving Dick in a worse plight than ever. He is eventually decoyed into an empty house by Prior and Kate, where he is to be forced by starvation into signing lying documents implicating him with Kate, and clearing Prior of the misappropriation of the remittances. He is rescued from this unpleasant position, however, by the little breadwinner, Charles, and the faithful Bridget O'Flanagan. The villain is confounded by the records of his defalcations which are entered into his own pocket-book, and the confession of Kate clears the hero of the foul charge that has been hanging over him.

Mr. J. C. Aubrey, who was for years associated with heavy rôles at the popular Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, is seen to great advantage in the benevolent rôle of Lord William Dorrington. The philanthropic Quaker has excellent heart qualities, but in his business transactions he fails to reveal the most elementary principles of prudence. Mr. Aubrey gives a pathetic touch to the tender, homely scene in the second act, where the old man, brimming over with affection, encounters his daughter-in-law Margaret, who is so sorely afflicted with blindness. Miss Kathleen Russell, who plays the self-sacrificing Margaret, is well equipped for her task by a winning presence and a power of expressing emotion that never fails to reach the hearts of her audience. Mr. C. King imparts the qualities of manliness and chivalry to the hero Richard Lawrence, being especially effective in the second act. Mr. Bensley Evans, as that unconscionable and avaricious rascal Joseph Prior, is quite successful in rousing the antipathy of the lovers of melodrama in Shoreditch, some of whom have been tremendously excited during the week by his reckless persecution of the virtuously inclined. Mr. C. A. Chandler gives a light, mercurial touch to the character of Charles Prior in the first act, but becomes duly serious later on when the exigencies of the part demand it. Miss Olive Lanty as the genial and kind-hearted Bridget O'Flanagan strengthens the forces at the disposal of virtue, and is just sufficiently Irish without being aggressively so. Miss Rosemary Rees submits a powerful performance of the unfortunate Kate Cherry, and a most interesting portrayal of Ruth Cherry comes from Miss Marie Kildare. Miss Maud Harris, a clever little girl, has a very responsible part to play as "the little breadwinner," and is delightfully ingenuous in that very grateful character. She sings "Daddy" very nicely, and adds much strength to the scenes of domesticity which make the drama so attractive. Miss Tiny Albert is duly precocious and "cheeky" as Bobby Trott, Mr. Edwin Collins is an effective Dr. Chadwick, Mr. H. Wright is a satisfactory Monty, and Mr. Henry Gooch is well placed as the detective. The piece is well staged.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 19, the Drama, in Four Acts, by William Bailey, jun., and Charles Berte, entitled

"AT BREAK OF DAY."

This concise and vivid drama is a play well known in Marylebone, and appreciated accordingly. As the Rev. Ernest Brand Mr. Bert Morley was a typical manly parson of the "fighting" school, his efforts being warmly applauded. Mr. Charles Langley enacted the rascally Arnold Fletcher with vivid force; Mr. William Allison played with marked ease as Marmaduke Manners; Mr. George Claremont scored as Detective Saunders; and Mr. Fred Damary did well as Jim Baker. Mr. Herbert Boyle was full of life and go as Jeremiah Stubbs, and kept the audience in good humour; whilst Mr. Roy Cushing as Richard Thornecroft was fairly successful in holding the attention of the house. The trying rôle of Dora Thornecroft was sustained by Miss Florence Creagh with womanly grace and charm. Miss Ella Seton was pleasing and sympathetic as Violet Brand; little Miss Bertha Baker was decidedly intelligent as Phyllis; Miss Adeline Montagu was grotesquely funny as Mrs. Amelia Reck; and Miss Hettie Graham as Henriette Stubbs was very lively and versatile. The remaining characters were all carefully played, the piece being well received.

MR. F. W. PURCELL'S FAREWELL MATINEE.

On Monday afternoon, at the Marlborough Theatre, a special souvenir performance was held in honour of Mr. F. W. Purcell, the occasion being the relinquishing by him of the management of the theatre mentioned, which, by the way, was erected and opened by Mr. Purcell on Oct. 5, 1903.

An enthusiastic house, packed in every part, testified to the popularity in which Mr. Purcell is held locally, and his feeling of regret at parting must have been tinged with a certain degree of pleasantness as he faced the audience to make his valedictory address:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—In coming before you, perhaps for the last time, on the Marlborough stage, nothing I can say can possibly adequately express the satisfaction I feel in looking at this splendid audience of representative playgoers of North London. I venture to say that there are more people in the Marlborough Theatre this afternoon than the house has ever held before. Looking back upon my catering for this neighbourhood for the last few years, I can only thank you for your kindly recognition of my efforts to provide suitable amusement for you. I have always tried to provide the best class of sound amusement, and this afternoon I flatter myself that your appreciation has shown itself by the vast numbers that have come forward at my souvenir matinée. I have also to thank those professional ladies and gentlemen who have so kindly given their services on this occasion; to those young ladies who have sold programmes, to my committee, and the entire staff of the theatre, all of whom have been indefatigable in making the affair a success, and" (addressing the audience) "I have also to thank you most sincerely, and from my heart, for your very great kindness, and in return I can only wish you great happiness and prosperity."

The afternoon's programme, as might be expected, was a very full one. There were, for instance, Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore, supported by Messrs. Edmund Maurice, Yorke Stephens, and A. Vane Tempest, and Misses Marion Terry and Salberg, in the first act of Captain Drew on Leave. In this Sir Charles was seen at his best in the rôle of the courtier who is able to impart a whiff of the briny into his conversation and manners. Miss Mary Moore looked charming and youthful in the rôle of the coquettish Miss Mills. Then we had Mr. H. B. Irving in a recital of the joys and woes and expectations of a schoolboy, and his rendering, to say the least, was amusingly droll. Miss Marie Lloyd delighted the house with a couple of songs, "A thing of the past, old dear," and "She's a real tip-topper"; and Mr. George Mozart was as usual exceedingly comical with his act in which he presents character studies of various types to be met with in the street, such, for instance, as 'bus and cab drivers. His "Beau of the ball" song was also a merry number. Miss Stella Gastelle and Mr. Henry J. Ford appeared in a humorous sketch A Mouse Trap. This seems to be a skit upon that modern absurdity, the "suffragette." Jack Manners is very much in love with Kitty Clavering, and, to tell the truth, Kitty is very much in love with him, though she is trying hard to conceal the outward evidences of her passion. She pretends that she is in favour of female suffrage—whatever that may be—and she will join a woman's liberation society. She and the other members of the society fear neither man nor devil—not they! But when an innocent and harmless mouse darts along the floor, the suffragette jumps upon a chair and screams. However, Jack realises that she has not lost all her womanliness—she confesses she is not even a "new woman"—and she eagerly accepts the overtures of love which he makes. Miss Stella Gastelle was vivacious and entertaining in the rôle of Kitty, and Mr. Henry J. Ford gave a pleasing portraiture of an ardent and teasing lover.

Lieut. Walter Cole excited one's admiration as a vocal trickster, his ventriloquism and imitations of street cries being most realistic and deceiving. Mr. Percy Carr and Miss Amiee Grey appeared in their dainty scena from The Earl and the Girl; and Miss Florence Imeson, in another scena from the same piece, gave an admirable rendering of the "Sammy" song, the Misses Nancy Kirby, Enid Beverley, Winnie Pryce, Gladys Herries, Daisy Morland, Hilda Gray, Nora Manette, and Hilda Davies assisting in chorus and dance. Mr. Fred Terry recited in fine style some verses descriptive of the sentiments of a colonist. Mr. George Brooks, in his most whimsical manner, told us in a song that he was the "catch of the season," and later he created roars of laughter with his ditty, the chorus of which runs, "Turn on the water." Mr. Michael Braham with his wonderful dog—the latter a very "knowing card"—submitted a most pleasing exhibition of canine cleverness, and Mr. Wm. Stephens and Miss Dot Carey made themselves highly agreeable in a duet and dance from The Earl and the Girl.

"ASHES."

A new Sketch, by John T. Stanfield and Miss M. E. Ward, presented on Tuesday, March 20, at the Paisley Theatre, by Mr. T. E. Ward's company.

Harry Stanford .....MR. S. HERBERT HUMBER
Lady Alice .....MISS BEATRICE SINCLAIR
Susie .....MISS M. E. WARD

A new sketch entitled Ashes was presented to Paisley theatre-goers for the first time on Tuesday night by Mr. T. E. Ward's company as a curtain-raiser to Her Wedding Day. The authors are Mr. John T. Stanfield and Miss M. E. Ward, the latter of whom takes the leading part. The story opens in the chambers of Harry Stanford, a medical student who, through improvident living, is up to his eyes in debt. In order to retrieve his fortunes he is about to marry Lady Alice, an heiress, whom he is expecting at his chambers. He leaves to keep an appointment, and during his absence Susie, a young girl whom he has betrayed, calls on him to tell him of the death of their child. Finding him absent she decides to await his return. Hearing voices, she secretes herself behind a screen. Harry enters with his fiancée, who discovers the photo of Susie, and demands to know who she is. Stanford tells her a plausible story, which satisfies her, and to prove how little Susie is to him he burns the photo until it is reduced to "Ashes"—an act which is witnessed by the poor girl from her hiding-place. On the departure of the pair Susie comes from behind the screen, and, in her sorrow and despair at Harry's perfidy and the loss of her child, seizes a bottle of poison from the mantlepiece and decides to end her misery. Harry, on his return, upbraids her for coming to his rooms. She, however, taxes him with his base conduct, and tells him what has happened. His heart turns to her, but only to learn that it is too late, for she dies in his arms.

The sketch, which only occupies about twenty minutes, has many opportunities for powerful acting, and of these full advantage was taken. Miss Ward, in the rôle of Susie, acted with a charm all her own, and fairly captivated the audience. Her delineation of the various phases of her part was instinct with power and pathos. Miss Ward was ably assisted by Mr. S. Herbert Humber in the part of Harry Stanford, a part he played with true artistic skill. Lady Alice was presented in a most vivacious manner by Miss Beatrice Sinclair.

SIR HENRY IRVING.

A Biography, by Percy Fitzgerald.
London:
T. Fisher Unwin, 1, Adelphi-terrace.

Mr. Percy Fitzgerald's biography of Henry Irving is not a new work. There have been two previous issues, but the present is a new and revised account of the life of the great actor who passed away in the autumn of last year. Large additions have been made which cover a period of some ten years, and bring the work down to his much-lamented death. As the earlier portions of the volume were revised and corrected by Irving himself, the correctness of the data can be fully relied upon. Mr. Fitzgerald claims to have written quite independently and freely, and while doing ample justice to the actor's real gifts and merits, has not hesitated to point out their limits. In short, he assumes the character of the candid friend. "Praising indiscriminately," he remarks, "is no praise at all."

It is unnecessary to dwell upon Irving's early and desperate struggles to win a position in the theatrical world, or to refer in detail to the period when the actor was enabled to fulfil his ambition by a brilliant and world-famous series of productions at the Lyceum Theatre. The story has been repeated so often that all who take an interest in such matters are well acquainted with the details. Irving's reign at the Lyceum was comparatively a long one; and though his friends and admirers naturally deeply regretted his departure from the scene of so many histrionic triumphs, it was not a surprising event in this world of constant change. There was, however, one play, concerning the production of which Mr. Fitzgerald possesses the most intimate knowledge, as he was part author. This was Vanderdecken, produced on July 8, 1878. The performance in London of Wagner's weird opera The Flying Dutchman had suggested to many that Irving would make an ideal Vanderdecken. According to Mr. Fitzgerald, Irving "himself much favoured the suggestion, and after a time the 'Colonel' entrusted me and my friend Wills with the task of preparing a piece on the subject. For various reasons the plan was laid aside, and the death of the manager and the adoption of other projects interfered. It was, however, never lost sight of, and after an interval I got ready the first act, which so satisfied Irving that the scheme was once more taken up. After many attempts and shapings and re-shapings, the piece was at last ready—Wills having undertaken the bulk of the work, I myself contributing, as before, the first act. The actor himself furnished some effective situations, notably the strange and original suggestion of the Dutchman's being cast up on the shore and restored to life by the waves.

"I recall all the pleasant incidents of this venture, the journeys to Liverpool and Birmingham to consult on the plot and read the piece; above all, the company of the always agreeable Irving himself, and his placid, unaffected gaiety."

Vanderdecken, though attractive enough to the lover of romantic drama, was of too sombre a character to attract the ordinary playgoing public. But those who witnessed the drama are not likely to forget the picturesque figure of the ghostly Dutchman. Mr. Wills wrote some very poetic lines for this play, as, for instance, Vanderdecken's long soliloquy in the last act, from which the following is a brief extract:—

Ships I have seen go down, their crews
Grasping the shrouds with bony hands,
Or, hanging o'er the bulwarks, nod at me.
In their dead eyes—silent upbraiding.
Strange things move by with noiseless crawl
And lift their goblin heads to look at me.
Around my phantom ship long shadows lie.
The sharks, ghouls of the sea,
Watch me with glassy, hungry eyes, knowing their caterer!
For when the hurricane is loosed above,
Crushing the sea to angry white, and sails
Fly from their bolts, and coward seamen quail,
Then do I rise upon my phantom deck,
Tranced at the helm, fatal decoy to wreck
And to disaster.

Mr. Fitzgerald does justice to Mr. Irving's social gifts, recalling many occasions when the Lyceum "chief" took a leading part either as a distinguished guest or as the generous, kindly host. He says—"At the public meeting or public dinner he (Irving) deported himself with much effect. There are plenty of persons of culture who have been deputed to perform such duties; but we feel there is often something artificial in their methods and speeches. In the case of the actor, we know that there is something genuine; he supplies a life to the dry bones, and we depart knowing that he has added grace to our recollections of the scene. Nor does he add an exaggeration to what he says; there is a happy judicious reserve. This was felt especially on the occasion of one pleasant festival day in the September of 1891, when a memorial by Mr. Onslow Ford was unveiled to Marlowe, the dramatist, in the good old town of Canterbury. It was an enjoyable expedition, with something simple and rustic on the whole, while to anyone of poetical tastes there was something unusually harmonious in the combination offered of the antique town, the memory of 'Dr. Faustus,' the old cathedral, and the beaming presence of the cultured artist, of whom no one thought as manager of a theatre."

As Mr. Fitzgerald points out a little later on, "Many a delightful night have his friends owed to the thoughtful kindness and hospitality of their interesting host. Such was, indeed, one of the privileges of being his friend. The stage brings with it abundance of pleasant associations; but there are a number of specially agreeable memories bound up with the Lyceum." One of the most notable of these was the occasion when Irving invited his friends to meet the Duke of Meiningen's company of players. The actor's characteristic generosity in lending his theatre and actually "getting up" a special performance in aid of an unfortunate fellow artist is also acknowledged, and the most important of these events duly chronicled.

"Irving's vein of pleasantry was as welcome as it was unpretentious," remarks his biographer. "He could tell a story or relish a humorous situation with equal effect. In company with Toole, he often contrived a droll situation or comic adventure."

Reference is made to the fact that Irving was one of the few figures that filled the public eye. "This was owing to a sort of sympathetic attraction and to an absence of affectation. He played many parts in the social scheme, and always did so with judiciousness, contributing to the effect of the situation. His utterances on most subjects were thoughtful and well considered, and contributed to the enlightenment of the case."

Mr. Fitzgerald has something to say concerning the fleeting, evanescent character of an actor's efforts. "If his success be triumphant, it is only a dream for those who have not seen. Description gives but the faintest idea of his gifts. The writer, as it were, continues to write after his death, and is read, as he was in his lifetime. But the player gone, the play is over. The actor, it is true, if he be a personality, has another audience outside his theatre. As I have shown in these pages, he can attract by force of character the interest and sympathies of the general community. . . . There was a sort of indulgent partiality in the case of Irving. He was a dramatic figure, much as was Charles Dickens. Eyes are idly bent on him that enters next. And this high position was never disturbed during his life; and though all popularity is precarious enough, he had the art and tact to adapt his position to the shifty, capricious changes of taste, and in the hackneyed phrase was more 'up to date' than any person of his time."

The volume contains a number of interesting illustrations, including as frontispiece a very fine photograph of Irving as Becket. Portraits of him in his various famous characters are also given, as well as clever drawings by Harry Furniss, Phil May, and other well-known artists.

"UNITED STATES."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your last issue there is a letter from Mr. Charles Hannan referring to my criticism of his play, United States, published in your paper on the 10th inst. Mr. Hannan states that "an impression seems to exist that the Scots marriage law is out of date." I am quite at a loss to understand where this impression is prevalent, and to what "Scots marriage law" Mr. Hannan refers. Now, Sir, I am a Scotsman, and, as far as I am aware, the law of Scotland in regard to marriage is much the same as it has been for centuries, with one noteworthy exception. I refer to the Act of Victoria, 19 and 20, cap. 96. This Statute, passed in 1856, enacts that

No irregular marriage contracted in Scotland by Declaration, Acknowledgment, or Ceremony shall be valid unless one of the parties had at the date thereof his or her usual place of residence there, or had lived in Scotland for twenty-one days next preceding such marriage, any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

This, I think, more than justifies my criticism that Mr. Hannan's plot was based on an anachronism.

The one point which is essential to a marriage in Scotland, in addition to this domiciliary qualification, is the consent of the parties. Writing or the presence of a witness or witnesses are alike unnecessary; and here I might point out that Mr. Hannan's father must have had a very vague idea of his powers as a Justice of the Peace if he believed that he in any way contributed by his presence to the legality of the marriage of the "respectable but impecunious couple" his son refers to.

Again, the consent, to be binding, must be real and fully intended by both parties in order to be effective. This is clearly laid down by Erskine, who states that "a declaration only is necessary, but the knowledge of both parties that they are then and there, by such declaration, contracting a marriage is essential to the validity of the contract, and at the same time the parties must also have seriously contemplated marriage." This alone would have rendered utterly null and void the declaration in the play made by young Rolf Pinkerton and his aunt Clementina that they were man and wife, since, so far from the parties having "seriously contemplated marriage," the declaration was made merely to hoodwink the inquisitive innkeeper.

Mr. Hannan seems to display an even greater incapacity to grasp the subtleties of Scots law when he refers to the little play he produced years ago in Glasgow. He utterly fails to recognise the real reason which led his Scottish audience to accept the possibility of the "case" upon which his play was founded. For myself, I should be glad if Mr. Hannan could give me the reference to any Scots law report or legal text-book in which this truly remarkable case is reported or commented upon.

Now, in Scotland, as in England, the lex loci contractus governs the legality of a marriage. The declaration of marriage made by the lady and gentleman in Venice, referred to by Mr. Hannan, would have been perfectly valid if made in Scotland, they being domiciled inhabitants of the latter country; made in Venice, such a declaration was, I believe, worthless. It seems to have been a tremendous stretching of the privileges of an Ambassador to imagine that a Scotsman merely in Venice "upon Government" service could avail himself of the customs of his country to contract a marriage. But Mr. Hannan's Glasgow audience understood the law better than Mr. Hannan. Upon the couple's return to their native country, and on their living there by habit and repute as man and wife, they would become de facto married, and such a marriage would legitimatise any children who had been antecedently born. This is the actual legal bearing of the case which Mr. Hannan sets forth, and this is the reason why the Glasgow critics swallowed so utterly improbable a story.—Yours faithfully,

THE WRITER OF THE NOTICE.

SIR,—I have read the criticism of the above play which appeared in your issue of the 10th inst., and also the letter of the author in your issue of the 17th inst. I agree with your critis when he refers to the irregular Scots marriage as a "legal anachronism."

It is only necessary to call attention to the Act of Parliament 19 and 20 Vic., c. 96, s. 1, as follows: "After the 31st December, 1856, no irregular marriage contracted in Scotland, by declaration, acknowledgment, or ceremony shall be valid, unless one of the parties had at the date thereof his or her usual place of residence there, or had lived in Scotland for 21 days next preceding such marriage; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding." To show how strictly the twenty-one days are computed, I refer you to the case of Lawford (otherwise Davies) v. Davies [Law Reports 4, Probate and Divorce, p. 61.] In this case two persons domiciled in England arrived in Scotland about 4 a.m., July 1, 1870, remained there until the 21st following, and between 11 and 12 a.m. of that day contracted a marriage by declaration before a Registrar. It was held by the Court that they had not lived in Scotland for twenty-one days (in fact, exactly nineteen days and two half days), and that therefore the marriage was invalid.—Yours faithfully,

E. M. VAUGHAN-RODERICK.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE, in order to give greater distinction to the celebration of Miss Ellen Terry's jubilee, will revive The Merry Wives of Windsor during the Shakespeare festival week at His Majesty's Theatre, in place of Much Ado About Nothing. The revival, which will be given on April 27, will allow of an opportunity of again witnessing the famous actress's exquisite rendering of Mistress Page.

MR. JOHN HARE'S success in A Pair of Spectacles is so pronounced that Mr. Charles Frohman and Mr. Arthur Chudleigh have decided to prolong the run of Sydney Grundy's clever adaptation over the period originally intended, and its stay at the Comedy will therefore extend into next month. A triple-bill, containing two plays by Mr. J. M. Barrie, will subsequently be presented, the more pretentious of which will be in three scenes, and will be sustained by Messrs. Louis Calvert, Mr. Dion Boucicault, Kenneth Douglas, Graham Browne, E. A. Matthews, and Matheson Lang, and Miss Eva Moore, Miss Mabel Hackney, and Miss Grace Lane. Punch is the title of the smaller piece, in which the talents of Mr. Dion Boucicault, Mr. Kenneth Douglas, Mr. Matheson Lang, and Miss Eva Moore will also be employed.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has removed some of the misapprehensions concerning the habits and customs of the actor-manager. "People seem to forget," says Mr. Alexander in an interview appearing in Cassell's Saturday Weekly, "that an actor-manager's functions do not consist merely in appearing on the stage. Why, only the other day, when passing a club in St. James's-street, I encountered a distinguished critic who, although it was 11 o'clock, greeted me with these words: 'Hullo! Are you up?' 'My dear fellow,' I replied, 'I don't only act; I have a shop to carry on.' When one is directing a theatre a multitude of articles have to be bought and looked after in the same manner as a merchant deals with merchandise. Economy has to be practised, for a production which with the exercise of care will show a profit may very probably result in loss when there has been extravagance.

"On the first night of a heavy production," continues Mr. Alexander, "there is a risk of from five to six thousand pounds at least—money spent—and a weekly expenditure of perhaps fourteen hundred pounds staring you in the face; besides which there is the knowledge that, after having given all the strength that is in you to prepare and rehearse and act, the play may not hit the public, and that failure will mean an immediate repetition of your energies, and a further outlay in the mounting of another piece. The actor-manager has not only to study his own part, which is very often the longest in the play, but he has to contend with the troubles incidental to stage-management and general supervision."

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT attended the memorial service held in the Chapel Royal, St. James's, on the occasion of the funeral of Lady Sandhurst on Saturday. Many distinguished people were present, the King being represented by Lord Suffield.

MISS MARIE ILLINGTON, who created the part of Mrs. Doring in the production of Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) at the Apollo, has been out of the cast recently owing to the death of her husband, Mr. Gordon Maddick. She resumed the rôle on Monday, when the piece was transferred to the Shaftesbury, and played in her customary artistic style.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY concludes to-night at the Theatre Royal a most successful week's visit to Birmingham. On Monday he presented the revised version of Freeman Wills and Frederick Langbridge's play After All with complete success, his brilliant performance of Eugene Aram being highly eulogised. On the succeeding evening Mr. Harvey produced his revival of Hamlet for the first time in Birmingham, in the presence of a brilliant audience, and it is pleasant to be able to chronicle that the actor's aims in the expression of the great central figure were speedily perceived and acclaimed. Mr. Harvey has now decided to produce The Rapparee Trooper on April 25 at the Royal, Newcastle. Miss de Silva, as in The Breed of the Treshams, will appear as a boy, and Miss Kate Rooke has been specially engaged to fill the rôle of the heroine, a gay and fascinating Irish widow. Mr. Harvey's part is rich in opportunities, and the play is anticipated as likely to make a most popular addition to the Harveyan répertoire.

THE Ellen Terry Jubilee Fund is gathering force, and many influential names have been added to the committee organised by the Tribune. A shilling subscription has been opened, and among the people eminent in dramatic and musical professions, in addition to those of the Executive given last week, who are willing and anxious to serve on the general committee are Mr. Alfred Austin, Miss Fanny Brough, Sir Francis Burnand, Mr. Alfred C. Calmour, Mrs. Charles Calvert, Mr. Philip Carr, Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Mr. Frank Cooper, Miss Constance Collier, Mr. James Fernandez, Mr. Edward German, Mr. W. S. Gilbert, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Robert Hichens, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. Frederick Kerr, Mr. Henry Kemble, Mr. J. H. Leigh, Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, Bart., Mrs. Madeleine Lucette Ryley, Miss Marie Tempest, Mr. Edward Terry, Mrs. Tree, Mr. Oscar Asche, Mr. Alfred Bishop, Miss de Silva (Mrs. Martin Harvey), Mr. R. C. Carton, Sir Edward Elgar, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Alma Murray, Miss Jessie Millward, Miss Julia Neilson, Miss Kate Rorke, Mr. George Bernard Shaw, Miss Genevieve Ward, Mr. Herbert Waring, Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Dion Boucicault, Lady Bancroft, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, Mr. H. V. Esmond, Mr. Ben Greet, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. Sydney Grundy, Miss Beatrice Harraden, Mr. Anthony Hope Hawkins, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., Mr. Arthur W. Pinero, Sir C. Villiers Stanford, and Mr. Hermann Vezin.

MISS TERRY'S sentiments with regard to the proposal are thus charmingly expressed:—"I am truly grateful, and my heart enjoys the spontaneous movement in my favour. It is a happy inspiration. It is just what I like. It gives me the keenest pleasure to see what all my friends are doing for me, and to read their good, delightful, kind-hearted letters. I do like that shilling subscription, because it enables my most valued friends to join in this charming tribute to me. The whole 'house' has always been my friend. It is, indeed, a very delightful thing to be loved by the 'house,' to find that your audience is your friend. It is needless for me, I think, to say that the whole movement is spontaneous and uninspired by me or anyone connected with me."

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE, it is said, has met with some opposition in Cleveland, U.S.A., where she has been producing Sapho. She was threatened in an anonymous letter that she would be pelted with eggs when she appeared in the play. Miss Nethersole called upon the police for protection, and two dozen officers were distributed through the theatre. Miss Nethersole, however, cut some of the objectionable scenes, and a disturbance was avoided.

MRS. LANGTRY, who has had a most successful tour, both artistically and socially, in South Africa, has returned to England, arriving at Southampton on Saturday.

MR. H. B. IRVING has decided upon Mauricette as the title of his adaptation of M. Andre Picard's play Jeunesse, which he will produce at the Lyric on March 31, by arrangement with Mr. Tom B. Davis. The leading male personage of the play is a French senator, who, with a desire to add to the comfort of his wife, whose eyesight is falling, engages a young companion to read to her. The companion is Mauricette, a pretty and accomplished young girl, with whom the senator falls in love, and a domestic problem thus arises to which Mr. Irving has given a satisfactory solution. In the cast of the play he will be supported by Miss Dorothea Baird, and by Messrs. Leslie Faber, W. T. Lovell, Dan McCarthy, Eric Leslie, and G. A. Seager; and Misses Marion Terry, Ethel Warwick, Gwladys Morris, Eileen Munro, Ada Mellon, Emeline Carder, and Evelyn Martheze.

MISS LENA ASHWELL has practically completed the cast of Miss Clo Graves's comedy The Bond of Ninon, with which the new actress-manager begins her season at the Savoy at Easter. The hero, a young soldier of fortune, will be played by Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. H. V. Esmond will appear as Louis XIV., and Mr. Edward Sass, in addition to producing the piece, will enact the part of an old servitor. Mr. Frank Tyars has been engaged for the rôle of a rough, good-hearted soldier, with a fine sense of family pride; and among the company figure also Miss Helen Ferrers, Miss Beryl Mercer, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, Mr. Eugene Mayeur, and Mr. Harry Welchman. Rehearsals of the piece are now in active progress.

MR. ERNEST E. NORRIS, who for the last two years has done yeoman service as general-manager at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, was on Saturday night the recipient of a well-filled purse of sovereigns and a handsomely-framed testimonial signed by a number of well-known managers and members of the profession, including the Elephant and Castle stock company, and the staff before and behind the curtain. The presentation was made by Mr. Walter Melville amid much enthusiasm. Mr. Norris cordially thanked all present and his good friends for their great kindness. He was much indebted to the staff for the way they had worked under him, especially those behind, many of whom had been employees of the Surrey Theatre. At the death of Mr. Conquest, his dear old chief of former years, he had been able to take them on at the Elephant and Castle, and they had, without one exception, remained with him ever since.

MR. WALTER STEPHENS'S scheme for the establishment of a subsidised theatre was mentioned in the House of Commons on Tuesday, when Mr. W. F. D. Smith asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he had been requested to grant an annual subsidy towards the permanent establishment of a national repertory theatre in connection with the scheme referred to Mr. Asquith's reply was to the same effect as his letter to Mr. Stephens, published in this column last week.

IN the Court of Chancery on Saturday Mr. George Edwardes brought an action against Mr. Henry Dallas. Counsel stated that Mr. Dallas had infringed Mr. Edwardes's right of representation in several musical comedies in various parts of the British dominions, and that he had represented that he was giving those performances with the consent of Mr. Edwardes, which was quite untrue. In default of any appearance by the defendant, he now asked for injunctions with respect to both these matters and for an inquiry of all sums of money received in connection with all performances or representations "made or given" within the twelve months prescribed by the Act. Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady assented.

DRESSES are a specially agreeable feature of Sir Charles Wyndham's revival of The Candidate. A gown of fine cloth in a bright shade of navy blue is worn by Miss Helen Ferrers as Lady Osterly. It is made with a pointed yoke of fine lace, the high collar of which is finished with a piping of dark blue silk; the sleeves being made of the same lace, having a tiny puff at the elbow, fastened with similar piping. Small buttons of blue cloth outline the yoke, and the front of the bodice is trimmed with silk passementerie in a conventional floral design. This passementerie also appears on the long pleated skirt, where it is employed to hold the pleats at intervals. With this gown Miss Ferrers wears a very becoming toque of emerald green velvet and shaded red roses, raised at the back on a high bandeau of emerald chiffon.

MISS LILIAS WALDEGRAVE, who plays the part of Mrs. Martlett, wears a charming dress in the second act. It is of ecru-tinted eolienne, the slightly-gathered skirt, trimmed with three rows of ecru lace, inserted in deep vandykes. The full bodice has a vest of cream lace, fastened with small diamond buttons, and outlined with some handsome embroidery in dull green and ecru shades. This embroidery also forms gauntlet cuffs to the elbow-sleeves, the stiffness of which is relieved by deep frills of cream lace. The accompanying hat is of coarse, dark-brown straw, having a dome-shaped crown, and narrow brim. A soft brown silk ribbon is folded round the crown, and massed in big bows at the back. The front and left side of the brim are hidden under sprays of shaded red roses; and the whole structure is raised and tilted very much forward on a cache-peigne of pale ecru chiffon.

MISS JUNE VAN-BUSKIRK, as Lady Dorothy Osterly, appears in the same act in a pretty young girl's frock of pale pink crêpe, the skirt of which is gathered all round, and quite clears the ground. It is trimmed with three rows of cream silk braid in graduated widths, which are repeated on the bolero bodice. The full sleeves are gathered midway between the elbow and wrist into frills of Valenciennes lace, and the bolero also has tiny cape sleeves, which are outlined with silk braid. A vest of alternate rows of white muslin and Valenciennes insertion completes a very dainty little frock.

MISS SYBIL CARLISLE, the wife of "the Candidate," has an original gown of white chiffon, mounted on white satin. The bodice is shaped like a child's overall, cut round at the neck, and left open under the arms revealing a blouse of heavy guipure lace, with full elbow sleeves. The graceful skirt is of accordion-pleated chiffon, held down by bands of guipure, ending on either side of a narrow panel which is arranged in a double box pleat. There is a sash of soft white silk, fastened at the back with a big paste buckle, from which broad ends fall to the bottom of the skirt.

A NEW musical comedy, entitled The Gold Diggers; or, The Girls from Utah, is to be produced at the Theatre Royal, Bath, on Easter Monday. A strong cast has been secured, including Mr. Fred Eastman, Mr. Harrison Brockbank, Mr. Arthur Stigant, Mr. W. H. Powell, and Miss Godwynne Earl. Mr. Walter MacEwen is responsible for the producing.

MESSRS. VEDRENNE AND BARKER will close the Court Theatre on Friday, April 27, in order to enable Miss Ellen Terry to play in a performance of The Merry Wives of Windsor at His Majesty's Theatre during Shakespeare week. On April 28, the anniversary of the day on which Miss Terry made her first appearance on the stage, the performance of Captain Brassbound's Conversion at the Court Theatre will be treated by the management in a special manner as a commemoration performance.

MISS JULIA NEILSON and Mr. Fred Terry have been unable to secure an extension of their tenancy at the New Theatre beyond July, and are therefore compelled once again to withdraw The Scarlet Pimpernel in the height of its success in order to put into rehearsal the new play Dorothy o' the Hall, by Paul Kester and Charles Major, for production in London before their contract with the authors expires. Under the circumstances, only 20 more performances of The Scarlet Pimpernel will be given, the final representation being fixed for Saturday evening, April 7.

MR. F. R. BENSON'S principal company at Glasgow, where A Midsummer Night's Dream was played for the last three nights, proved a great success, and the present and next weeks at Edinburgh promise equally excellent results. His North company is also playing to large audiences at Dumfries.

MR. A. W. BULL, who has just resigned the managership of the King's Theatre, Nottingham, was the happy recipient on Monday last of a silver cigarette case and a purse of gold from the employees before and behind the curtain, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his uniform kindness during the past two years.

THE Royal Academy of Music Sterndale Bennett Prize has been awarded to Marjorie Middleton Wigley, a native of Simla (India), Myra Hess being highly commended. The adjudicators were Miss Katharine Goodson, Mdme. Isabel Ley, and Mr. F. G H. Moore (chairman).

MR. HENRY TWEEDIE, who is successfully touring Mr. Charles Frohman's Leah Kleschna South Company, recently had a dream in which two letters played a prominent part. The following morning he related the dream to the gentleman breakfasting with him in the ordinary course of conversation. Later on Mr. Tweedie had occasion to send off some money-orders from the Wigan Post Office, and to his utter astonishment the clerk asked him if he was the gentleman living in Decconson-street, as two letters had arrived for him, and had been returned to London owing to the wrong number being put on the address.

THE ILternational Copyright Bureau, Ltd., have acquired the German and Austrian-Hungarian rights in Oscar Wilde's plays, Lady Windermere's Fan and The Importance of Being Earnest Mr. Ernest Mayer, the managing-director of the bureau, is at present at work upon an adaptation of An Intellectual Woman, an unproduced play by Miss Netta Syrett, and of A Maker of Women, the one-act play by Miss Edith Browne, which met with success upon its recent production by the Dramatic Debaters.

MISS HELENA MILLAIS, whose artistic work in Old Heidelberg on tour and in succeeding productions is an agreeable memory, was one of the successes of She Stoops to Conquer, which was the attraction for the latter end of last week at the Crystal Palace Theatre. Her rendering of Miss Neville was charming beyond measure, and quite captivated everyone.

"THE LITTLE STRANGER," the successful farce at the Criterion Theatre, reaches its fiftieth performance on Monday evening. It is interesting to note that this theatre, which was opened on March 21, 1874, celebrated its thirty-second anniversary on Wednesday last.

MR. WALTER REYNOLDS was hastily summoned from London last week to play the title-rôle in his own play of Mr. Smith, owing to the indisposition of Mr. Stephen T Ewart, who is suffering from an acute attack of sciatica and lumbago.

MR. F. WYBERT CLIVE, who begins a tour of The Conscript at Whitsuntide, is making several improvements in the old-time version of this sound success. The raft scene, so well known, will be entirely cut, and in its place a spectacular sensation introduced, reminding many of the recent North Sea fishing-boat episode, and terminating in the rescue of Karl by the British under the fire of the Russian guns New special scenery is in preparation, and Mr. Clive has also effected the purchase of a quantity of Russian equipment. The pictorial display, which numbers twenty-three varieties, has not been overlooked, and coming from Messrs. McCaw, Stevenson, and Orr, D. Allen's, and Hill, Sifken, promises to be the most effective yet turned out by these noted firms.

MR. FRANK CURZON'S company, with The White Chrysanthemum, has been playing to delighted audiences this week at the Coronet Theatre. This charming musical play, produced in such excellent taste, is to be seen at the suburban theatres for some few weeks, Mr. Purcell's patrons at the Marlborough Theatre having the pleasure of witnessing this Criterion success next week. The beautiful white and gold motor-car, travelled by the company, which is used on the stage nightly, has won the admiration of all on its peregrinations along the roads. Southern playgoers should feel themselves fortunate in the fact that the spring tour is given wholly over to the Home Counties, Northern playgoers not having the opportunity of seeing the piece until the long autumn tour commences in July. Altogether, the production is a truly delightful one, and should not on any account be missed.

"THE LONDON FIREMAN," which Messrs. Garside and Knowles are touring, has been played by them over 550 times, over twenty return dates having been fulfilled, and others offered well into May, 1907. The combination of experienced acting, a wholesome story, and the fact that the company is under personal direction is chiefly responsible for such felicitous results; and, since the tour commenced, there has been no occasion to change the bill once.

MR. ANDREW MELVILLE has lost no time since his arrival in Birmingham in making himself popular as actor-manager at his Metropole Theatre. He has already produced and played in two successful stock seasons with gratifying results. Mr. Melville has also taken up motoring, and, although he has up to the present not had a single mishap with his car, he has on eight different occasions taken injured people to hospitals on it. The last occurred on the evening of the 16th inst., when the conductor of one of the cable trams was thrown from the top of the car to the ground, sustaining a fracture of the skull.

"MR. POPPLE, OF IPPLETON," changed his residence on Monday from the Apollo to the Shaftesbury, where he is nightly at home to a large circle of admirers. Mr. G. P. Huntley acts with renewed buoyancy and humour as the large-hearted country gentleman; and Miss Ethel Irving continues to captivate with her wit and vivacity. Miss Marie Illington, Miss Violet Lloyd, and Mr. Kenneth Douglas are also to be mentioned in the category of chief favourites.

THE new Prince's Theatre, Poplar, opened by Mr. Clarence Sounes on Dec. 23 last, is proving a big success, being patronised by largely increasing audiences each week. It is a beautiful house, and Mr. Sounes deserves the best wishes and thanks from the inhabitants of the East End of London for providing them with such an elegant playhouse.

MR. FRANK CURZON will send The Little Stranger, the successful farce now running at the Criterion Theatre, to New York, where it will be produced by Mr. James K. Hackett very shortly. The play has likewise attracted some attention on the Continent, and negotiations are pending for its production in France and Germany.

MR. ST. CLAIR BAYFIELD, who is to play the leading part of Theseus, King of Attica, to Miss Florence Farr's Phaedra, in the Literary Theatre Society's production of Mr. W. Strange Moor's classical play Aphrodite against Artemis, at the National Sporting Club to-morrow (Sunday) night, has been engaged by Miss Lena Ashwell for her forthcoming production of The Bond of Ninon, at the Savoy. Mr. Bayfield is the son of a leading clerical member of the English Church Union, and before he went on the stage he enjoyed unique experience in the rôles successively of sailor before the mast, journalist, dairy-farmer in New Zealand, Government surveyor, hunter of wild horses, and gold-digger. In New Zealand he first appeared on the stage eight years ago. A year later he was engaged by Williamson and Musgrove, with whom he toured Australia for a year. He also toured Australia with Charles Hawtrey. Latterly, for two years, Mr. Bayfield served with Mr. Ben Greet in America, playing in Everyman and old comedies. He is the possessor of a remarkably fine and resonant voice, and of a tall, well-proportioned figure.

MR. EDWIN ADELER, who plays the part of Hans Wagner, the Cincinnati brewer, in Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company so artistically, is, like so many actors, a parson's son. Born at Abingdon, in Berkshire, and educated at the local Grammar School, Mr. Adeler, having unsuccessfully essayed a commercial career, gradually drifted on to the stage after a probationary experience on the concert platform. He has no extensive theatrical record, inasmuch as, with the exception of pantomime, his time hitherto has been fully occupied with the establishment of high-class entertainments at fashionable seaside resorts, with such success that the name of Adeler and Sutton is almost a household word with summer visitors. Mr. Adeler, who is the owner of an old-world battlemented mansion in Cheshire overlooking the sea, to which an extensive laboratory has recently been added, is keenly interested in all matters appertaining to scientific research.

THE Yorick Lodge, No. 2771, held its annual installation at the Trocadero last Tuesday, when Mr. Clarence Sounes was installed as W.M. by Mr. E. Lockwood, I.P.M. His officers for the year were: George Robins, S.W.; Duncan Tovey, J.W.; F. T. Addyman, S.D.; Athelstane Nobbs, J.D.; A. P. Oxley, I.G. Stewards: E. H. Bull, W. Payne Seddon, and W. Bradford Smith. There was a large attendance, and a most enjoyable evening (which included a very fine concert) was spent. Amongst those present representing the dramatic and musical professions were J. Bannister Howard, P.M., W. Payne Seddon, E. H. Bull, A. P. Oxley, J. Gladwin, H. Lyons, Duncan Tovey, George Robins, Alexander Watson, Clifton Alderson, and W. S. Penley.

MR. LAWRENCE WENSLEY, who plays Artie the dude in Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company with a lightness of touch which recalls memories of the late E. A. Sothern, is a grandson of James Russell, the famous Shakespearean clown, who, by the way, was the means of rescuing the late Edmund Kean from the hands of the pressgang at Hull on one occasion. Mr. Hensley, who was the first English exponent of Harry Bronson in The Belle of New York, despite his boyish appearance, has, in addition to playing the jeune premier parts in The Casino Girl and other Shaftesbury Theatre productions, been three times round the world as principal baritone in musical comedy répertoire companies.

MR. JOHN HASTINGS BATSON, who met with an accident on the 8th inst. at Edinburgh, falling down a flight of steps at the end of a dark passage at an hotel where he had gone to see a friend play a game of billiards, is experiencing more serious effects from the mishap than was anticipated. The shock was a terrible one, and the doctor is much troubled about him. Mr. Hastings Batson, indeed, is so weak that he can hardly hold a pen.

THE Academy of Dramatic Art Students will give a special performance at His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, April 3, in aid of the Referee Children's Dinner Fund. The programme will consist of some dances, the Trial Scene from The Merchant of Venice, the first act of Mr. Pinero's comedy The Times, and the wordless play L'Enfant Prodigue. Mr. Charles A. Buchel has offered to design the cover of the programme, which will be distributed by certain lady students of the academy, and Mr. Landon Ronald has kindly consented to play the piano score for L'Enfant Prodigue.

MR. EDWARD MICHAEL, to whom the inauguration of the Répertoire Theatre Association, at the Theatre Royal, Canterbury, was due, reopened the Theatre Royal, Margate, on Monday, and intends producing plays on the stock system in conjunction with his enterprise at Canterbury. An entirely new outfit of scenery has been painted for the theatre, and the accumulation of years has been removed, the whole establishment, before and behind, being cleaned by the Vacuum process.

"SHORE ACRES," the American play, by James Herne, which is to succeed The Heir-at-Law at the palatial Waldorf Theatre, is engaging the attention of Mr. F. G. Aflalo, author of several popular books of travel, who is to make such alterations as the change of locality from America to Cornwall necessitate. The engagement of Miss Mary Rorke for an important and congenial rôle is a popular one, and no less agreeable is that of Miss Alice Crawford, who is to represent the gentle daughter of a gentlewoman. Mr. Cooper Cliffe will also have a leading rôle, and the character which Mr. Cyril Maude has selected for himself is one that will bring into requisition the finest examples of the accomplished actor's art. One of the scenes in the play is a lighthouse, which by an instantaneous change reveals a stricken vessel going rapidly to destruction.

THE Army Council have considered the petition presented to the War Secretary by Mr. Beerbohm Tree on behalf of the Theatrical Managers' Association, of which he is president. The petition, the substance of which has already appeared in our columns, concerned the Royal Artillery Theatre at Woolwich, and pleaded that the theatre, although unlicensed, competed against those under County Council control. The Council have declined to interfere, pointing out that in a garrison town like Woolwich it would be most difficult to discriminate between soldiers and civilians seeking admission, and that on a previous occasion, when the old theatre was closed to civilians, a petition was signed by 40,000 inhabitants, praying that the restriction should be withdrawn. In future, however, the advertisements of performances at the Artillery Theatre will be confined to Government walls and buildings.

MR. PERCIVAL KNIGHT has contracted to collaborate with Norah Begbie, a cousin of the well-known writer, Mr. Harold Begbie, in a new comic opera, entitled The Maiden of Dresden. Mr. Knight has also written a new song for Miss Connie Ediss entitled "I couldn't think of anything to say!" Mr. Knight's new topical song, "On the top of the tree," made a great success at the Tivoli last Saturday. After June Mr. Knight hopes to return to the musical comedy world. He has been engaged by Mr. Cyril Maude since his return from the East in 1904.

MISS JEAN STERLING MACKINLAY has been specially engaged to understudy Miss Irene Vanbrugh's part in His House in Order, which is attracting crowded audiences to the St. James's Theatre.

THE forty-fourth meeting of the committee of the Scenic Artists' Association was held at their offices, Robert-street, Adelphi, on Monday evening. There were present Mr. W. Hann (in the chair), Messrs. W. T. Hemsley, E. I. Hirst, Harry Potts, M. Raphael, Harry Woolls, and H. Lawrence Harriss (hon. secertary). The minutes of the forty-third meeting of the committee held on March 6 were read, and signed by the chairman. The secretary read a letter from Mr. W. Harford thanking the committee for electing him an honorary member. Mr. W. O. Bond, scenic artist, of 13, Lea-road, Egremont, Cheshire, was elected a member of the Association on the nomination of Mr. Stafford Hall, seconded by Mr. Thomas Holmes, both of Liverpool. The secretary presented the cash-book and bankers' pass-book both made up to date, and the same were audited by the committee, and he also presented a statement of the subscriptions owing by members, and reported result of the circular letter he had sent, under the directions of the chairman, to all members in arrears. It was resolved to move the offices of the Association from 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, to the Adelphi Hotel, John-street, Adelphi, the following Saturday, 24th inst. The question of the appointment of trustees of the Benevolent Fund was discussed and adjourned to the next meeting. It was resolved to hold the next committee meeting at 7 o'clock on Tuesday next, March 27, at the Adelphi Hotel, previous to the second monthly social dinner, which will be held at the Adelphi Hotel at 8 o'clock on the same evening.

THE last of the Birmingham pantomimes came to an end on Saturday. At the Theatre Royal the curtain was rung down on Aladdin amidst great enthusiam and a profuse display of floral and other trophies presented to artists and management. The Owl cake won by Miss Fanny Dango was a towering piece of edible architecture. Miss Ada Reeve received numberless bouquets, and a miniature motor-car in flowers came to Mr. Harry Tate, tributes being also presented to the other artists. Mr. Philip Rodway, on behalf of the directorate, and Messrs. Walter McEwen and C. Finch Hatton on behalf of Mr. Robert Arthur, responded. At the Alexandra another enthusiastic audience witnessed the last of Blue Beard, the popular producer of which, Mr. Lester Collingwood, received several valuable presents. Miss Lillian Stanley (Fatima) was presented with a floral offering several feet taller than her fair self, Miss Minnie Jeffs (Selim) came in for many tributes, and the Bodega Bun, presented by Mr. Teddy Farris, was duly cut and distributed.

MR. J. M. CHUTE, the proprietor and manager of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, had the necessity of being in two places at once on Saturday evening last. As president-elect of the Hibernian Society he was due at the annual dinner at the Royal Hotel on St. Patrick's Day; but this coincided with the last night of the pantomime of Mother Goose at the Prince's Theatre. Having spoken at the Theatre, however, he rushed down to the Royal Hotel, and responded to the toast of "The President-elect," and then drove back to the theatre, in time to join the company in the final tableau of the pantomime.

A COMMITTEE meeting of the Actors' Orphanage Fund was held at 18, Russell-street, Covent-garden, on Wednesday last when the following members were present:—Mr. Cyril Maude (in the chair), Miss Carlotta Addison, Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Vane Featherston, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Mrs. Edward Compton, Mrs. E. S. Willard, Miss May Warley, Mrs. Mangles, Mrs. Fred Wright, Mrs. Gay, Rev. A. Brinkman, Mr. C. C. Cruikshanks, and Mr. E. H. Bull (secretary). Important matters were discussed relative to the administration of the Fund, and in connection with the large number of orphans now under its charge.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON and Mr. Percy Hutchison's companies will furnish unsurpassable attractions at Easter. Public Opinion, which has proved such a big financial success, will be represented on Easter Monday by no less than three companies—at Eastbourne, Hastings, and Buxton respectively. The Freedom of Suzanne will be at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, and On the Love Path at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow. The following week, Public Opinion South Company will go to Chatham, and return to the suburbs after having visited Oxford, Cambridge, and Bristol, opening at the fine theatre at Woolwich on May 14.

MISS MONA K. ORAM, who is playing in The School for Husbands at the Scala Theatre, had a trying experience on the "Underground" on the 15th inst. She was proceeding from her home in West Kensington to the Scala when a stoppage took place between Edgware-road and Baker-street stations. Miss Oram was perfectly aware that her understudy was not available that night, and as minute after minute passed her feelings can be better imagined than described. Fortunately, at the end of thirty-five minutes, the train proceeded on its way, and the popular actress eventually reached the theatre, and the curtain was able to go up about ten minutes after the usual time.

"CASTLES IN SPAIN" is the title at present chosen for the new opera written by Mr. Cosmo Hamilton with which the Royalty is to re-open on Wednesday. Mr. Harry Fragson, who is writing some of the music, has a very congenial character, and Miss May de Sousa, who rivalled his success at Drury-lane, will be the daughter of an American millionaire. The story, which is taken from a French play, deals with the amusing adventures of a young millionaire, one scene representing a bachelor's flat in St. James's, and the other a picturesque spot in Spain, to which country all the principals are transported. The dresses are to be of a particularly elaborate character, and in the Spanish scene a performance will be given by a troupe of real Andalusian dancing girls.

BY arrangement with Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Marshall Moore, chief of general staff and producer at the London Coliseum, will terminate his engagement there about the beginning of June. Mr. Moore, whose notable production of Joseph and His Brethren proved so successful, is making arrangements to send on tour a production on a similar subject, in which a novel scheme will embrace the combined attractiveness of concert, oratorio, opera, and dramatic spectacle. Later in the year, in collaboration with a well-known lady journalist, Mr. Moore hopes to produce at a West End house a spectacular play on somewhat pretentious lines.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN will provide the Shakespearean Festival at the Crystal Palace this year, by arrangement with Mr. J. Bannister Howard. A special production of As You Like It will be given, with Miss Beatrice Wilson as Rosalind and Mr. Norman as Jaques.

MR. OSCAR BARRETT applied at Bow-street Police Court on Monday, on behalf of Mr. Seymour Hicks, for licences for six children—four girls and two boys—to appear in the production of The Beauty of Bath at the Aldwych Theatre. In reply to the magistrate, Mr. Barrett said the children attended a school at the theatre. A police inspector reported that there was no objection on the part of the police; and the children having smilingly stated that they liked acting, the licences were granted.

MR. J. H. CLYNDES, with his musical romantic play, A Royal Revenge; or, The Gipsy Dancing Girl, will appear on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, during the last week of the present management.

Some years ago there was a considerable sensation created by the publication of Dante Gabriel Rossetti's poem on a London courtesan, in which Lust was compared to a toad in a hole, and was apostrophised as being eternal. About the same period Holman Hunt painted his wonderful picture of Claudio and Isabella in the condemned cell. For all its "happy ending," Measure for Measure is a sad and solemn play; and into it the author, as he seems often to have done in his later works, probably put a good deal of personal feeling. One cannot believe that Shakespeare, the gay "grass widower," the poet, the wit, and the favourite of aristocracy and royalty, led the life of an ascetic while he was working his way in London, though it is probable that his sensualities and his gallantries were mere toys, and were reduced to a minimum by his intellectual industry. But the great man of heart and mind, when he looked back on what are euphemistically called his "follies"; when, from the haven of his Stratford country house, with Susanna and Judith happily married, and his little grand-daughter at his knee, he recalled with a twinge of disgust the days of the Doll Tearsheets and the Cressidas of the private boxes, must have felt a deep gloom pass over him, and anticipated in his musings those of Rossetti in "Jinny."

In this vein of pessimistic repentance Measure for Measure may have been written. Shakespeare was too fine an artist to follow the "Famous Historye of Promus and Cassandra" and make Isabella buy her brother's pardon by complying with Angelo's vile demand. But the dénouement of Measure for Measure is but a poor pis-aller after all—a pitiful compromise, a conclusion that is no real ending. We may tolerate the easy acceptance by Isabella of the offer of the Duke, of whom she knows only that he is extremely eccentric; but Angelo's "making an honest woman" of Mariana on compulsion, after he has been trapped into cohabitation with her by a trick, scarcely suggests "living happily ever afterwards." Angelo is scarcely the man to spare the woman who was the instrument of his conviction and the witness of his fall.

And it is not only in the main part of the piece that the "dyer's hand" stain is seen. The revulsion from remorseful reminiscence creates a kind of cynical grossness. Shakespeare's mind in Measure for Measure seems to have "gone a-slumming" amidst recollections of his past. The filthily-feeble Pompey, the feebly-filthy Froth, the old procuress, Mistress Overdone—a Dame Quickly without the drollery—and her cause and concomitant in the upper class, the frivolously "fast" Lucio; the dull, insensible Abhorson, and the bestial Barnardine—we are in the evil air of the brothel and the slaughter-house, where vice is a commonplace and a calling, and the intervention of virtue is only an incitement to fresh villainy. And what is the poet's "conclusion of the whole matter"? The helpless outcry of the Publican in the Temple, "God have mercy upon me a sinner!" or the "tag" of the pessimist French playwright, "We are none of us worth much; let us tolerate each other's baseness."

Shakespeare's supreme artistry is shown in the way in which he gets the full value of this dark, dirty background. Upon it he places the character of Isabella, the intellectual, the individual woman, in whom the sex-instinct is subordinate to heart and mind. Isabella, with her uncompromising chastity, her strong will and clear brain, is a terrible rebuke to masculine goatishness, and the creation of the character was perhaps at once a tribute and an atonement.

Although Measure for Measure, with its base realism and stern morality, can never be a popular play, it is surprising how often it has been revived. This is probably due to the fact that it is practically a "one-part piece," and has thus attracted a succession of actresses, among whom may be numbered Mrs. Cibber, Mrs. Pritchard, Peg Woffington, Mrs. Bellamy, Mrs. Siddons, Miss O'Neill, and Miss Adelaide Neilson. Curiously enough, actors like Quin and Phelps have taken a fancy to the part of the Duke, who has a good deal of Macready's "damned walking gentleman" about him. And so Measure for Measure has been tried and neglected at intervals until it was presented, as a Shakespearean "curio," at the Adelphi Theatre last Tuesday evening, chiefly for the benefit of Miss Lily Brayton, who played Isabella with an earnestness and force, and a fervour in the delivery of novice's passionate speeches, which made her performance a magnificent one. Miss Brayton was admirably strong where strength was most required, and her excellent elocution was not the least effective portion of her performance. Mr. Oscar Asche's Angelo was an embodiment of real weight and dignity. The solid merits of the Deputy were well suggested, and his mental struggles when in the throes of temptation were depicted with remarkable power. Miss Frances Dillon contributed a reading of the rôle of Mariana which was full of warm feeling and agreeably expressive; and Mr. Walter Hampden's Duke had all the desirable aristocratic ease and regal predominance, besides which the actor looked the part particularly well. Mr. Alfred Brydone's Escalus had the luscious antiquity of fine old port; and Mr. Harcourt Williams hit off exactly the amiable indefiniteness of Claudio. Mr. R. Ian Penny played Lucio with decided cleverness, with commendable attention to a thankless and difficult task; Mr. H. R. Hignett gave a carefully-composed and well-carried-out portrait of the Provost, Mr. G. Kay Souper being efficient as the Friar, and Mr. J. R. Gillespie good as a Justice. Mr. Henry Kitt's Elbow, "fat and short of breath," was a rendering of real humour; Mr. Edmund Waller was praiseworthy for his natural and unexaggerated acting as Froth; and Mr. Charles Rock contributed a most amusing and ever-alert interpretation of the character of Pompey, the freakish restlessness of the tapster being very comically portrayed. Mr. Caleb Porter's Abhorson was impressively grim and solemn; and Mr. J. Fritz Russell supplied a strenuous and picturesque impersonation of the brutal Barnardine. Miss Katherine Maude was clear and distinct as Francisca, and Miss Blanche Catterson sufficiently ancient and infirm as Mistress Overdone. Messrs. Phil and Joseph Harker's scenery met all requirements, the street, with its fine arch and moyen âge middle-distance, being extremely artistic. The piece was witnessed with great interest by an audience amongst which were many young ladies, who can hardly have understood all the allusions in the carefully-revised text; or, at any rate, if they understood, were not offended by them.

"Description," said Byron—the poet, not the playwright—"is my forte"; and he would have had full scope for his strength had he been commissioned to report upon a musical play like The Beauty of Bath. There is absolutely nothing to analyse in such an entertainment. It is the natural food of the young, the healthy, and the thoughtless; and the measure of their happiness may be estimated by the ease with which they are pleased and amused. There is one point, however, on which the cheerful and the cultured may join in applause, and that is the pictorial quality of the dressing and mounting of the piece. These bevies of beautiful and graceful women, these well-arranged groups and cleverly-contrived effects, appeal to the artist; and there is a scene in The Beauty of Bath which it is very pleasant indeed to remember. It occurs in the second act, when the fancy ball, so frequent in musical plays, is given. At the top of a high flight of stairs is an entrance shaped like a frame, which holds a Gainsborough background; and through this entrance and down these stairs passes a procession of fair damsels in dresses of different periods, tactfully taken from celebrated pictures. This is indeed a "galaxy of beauty," and it is worth a visit to the Aldwych to see it.

The libretto, as might be expected from the names of its writers, is distinctly superior to the average of his class. It has a continuous comedy plot, quite cleverly constructed, and not entirely lost sight of until the final descent of the curtain. The "Beauty of Bath" is a provincial young lady, the Hon. Betty Silverthorne, who, coming up to town with her guardian, Viscount Bellingham, has become infatuated with an actor named Beverley, who is playing a sailor's part at the Mascot Theatre, and whom she has only seen upon the stage. There happens to be a remarkable resemblance between this Beverley and Lieutenant Richard Alington, of the Royal Navy, who has fallen in love with Betty on the strength of her photograph, which has been sent to him while he was at sea by his mother. The Viscount, mistaking Alington in his uniform for Beverley, makes him promise to disgust Betty with actors, and with Beverley in particular, by feigning drunkenness after the manner of David Garrick in the famous play. In the second act the scheme is carried out, and Alington—always in the character of Beverley—imitates intoxication at the fancy dress ball already mentioned. But Betty has been smart enough to see through the trick; and, after enjoying the situation sufficiently, she confesses that she loves Alington, and "so an end."

Mr. Charles Frohman and the contrivers and creators of the entertainment have given to their patrons liberally, lavishly, and with both hands; indeed, so generous has been the giving, that some of the exuberant matter may well be removed, especially towards the conclusion, where the excess retards the climax. Mr. Herbert E. Haines's music is modestly enlivening and agreeable; and Mr. Chas. H. Taylor has written some really neat and pretty lyrics, of the sort beloved of Miss Terriss and Mr. Hicks's patrons. Amongst these may be mentioned "The Beauty of Bath," "When a little girl's in love," and "Looks are no matter if your heart's all right"—all excellent of their class; a mock operatic duet, "Bloomsbury," sung with extravagant action by a cook who is in love with Beverley, and her son, a programme boy; an insinuating ditty, which Miss Terriss renders seated on a stool at centre, with the refrain, "There are lots of things you never learn at school"; and a broadly comic song about a young man named George, who, in order to obtain various delicacies for his tea, made love in succession to the daughters of several tradesmen.

The exterior glitter, glow, and sparkle of the production are remarkable, and the whole "show" is as bright, brilliant, and vivacious as could be desired. Vivacity is, indeed, the keynote of the entertainment. Mr. Seymour Hicks, the very embodiment of the quality, keeps the ball rolling all the time that he is upon the stage by dint of sheer, inexhaustible nervous energy. He is so thoroughly in earnest, he works so hard, and he is such an immense favourite, that his appearance in the principal part goes far to ensure the success of the piece. From his lips the most obvious repartees seem gems of wit, and he endows the simplest jests with a merit which really belongs to his ardent and indomitable personality. As Lieutenant Richard Alington he is always on the alert; and, whether dancing with inexhaustible energy, or pretending to be drunk and disorderly, Mr. Hicks revels in a rôle which is probably of his own invention. Miss Ellaline Terriss, with her delightfully distinct delivery, her winning charm, and her way of getting the very utmost out of the words of her songs, is again the adored of all adorers; and she does an earnest and very expressive bit of acting in the first division of the piece when Betty confesses her infatuation for Beverley. Miss Terriss looks a "perfect picture" in her dainty dresses, and her spell over her patrons has evidently not decreased. Miss Barbara Deane, who had a very hearty reception on Monday, acts very nicely as the Hon. Dorothy Quorn, and sings her song in the first act with delicious simplicity, sweetness, and musical skill. Miss Maudi Darrell puts just the needed amount of Bohemian spirit into her piquant and tactful impersonation of Miss Truly St. Cyr. Mr. William Lugg, with his fine presence and lofty authority, makes a magnificent Viscount Bellingham; and Mr. Stanley Brett sustains with conscientiousness and judgment the unthankful rôle of the real Beverley. Mr. Murray King's brisk energy and unctuous humour are well employed in depicting Sir Timothy Bun; and Master Valchera scores a great success by his stolidly unconscious and intensely funny performance as the programme-boy. Miss Rosina Filippi plays Mrs. Alington with admirable aplomb and ease; and Miss Sydney Fairbrother contributes a capital bit of mock-serious acting as the sentimental cook, Mrs. Goodge. Miss Topsy Sinden makes the most of the small part of Jane Topit, and does a very exciting and picturesque dance; and Mr. Laurence Caird is impeccably aristocratic and dryly humorous as Lord Quorn, with the catch-phrase, "You are—you know you are!" Mr. E. W. Royce's Earl of Orpington is excellent, and all that the rôle permits or requires; and the ladies and gentlemen who sustain the minor parts have personal advantages and marked intelligence. Mr. Walter Hann's foyer and ballroom scenes are splendid examples of the art of "building-up"; and Mr. Edward Royce's arrangement of the dances and choral effects accounts for the excellence of those details. That accomplished artist, Wilhelm, has designed the more important costumes with his usual keen sense of effect; and to Mr. Seymour Hicks's general superintendence is due the marvellous completeness and coherence of the production. The Beauty of Bath is certainly the brightest, the most elaborate, and the prettiest thing of its kind that has been seen in town for a long while.

"CAPTAIN BRASSBOUND'S CONVERSION."

A Romantic Play, in Three Acts, by Bernard Shaw.

Revived at the Court Theatre on Tuesday, March 20.

Lady Cecily Waynflete	MISS ELLEN TERRY
Sir Howard Hallam	MR. J. H. BARNES
Captain Brassbound	MR. FREDERICK KERR
Rankin	MR. F. CREMLIN
Drinkwater	MR. EDMUND GWENN
Redbrook	MR. C. L. DELPH
Johnson	MR. EDMUND GURNEY
Marzo	MR. MICHAEL SHERBROOKE
Sidi el Assif	MR. LEWIS CASSON
The Cadi	MR. TREVOR LOWE
Osman	MR. GORDON BAILEY
Hassan	MR. JULES SHAW
Capt. Hamlin Kearney, U.S.N.	MR. JAS. CAREW
American Blue-jacket	MR. FREDERICK LLOYD

The first public performance of Captain Brassbound's Conversion took place at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on May 12, 1902, when Miss Janet Achurch played the part of Lady Cecily Waynflete; Mr. Harold V. Neilson was the Captain Brassbound, and Mr. Charles Charrington appeared as Sir Howard Hallam. A semi-private performance of Mr. Shaw's play had been given some eighteen months previously under the auspices of the Stage Society, when Mr. Laurence Irving represented the part of the Captain.

The play is interesting, but it is not so sparkling as some of Mr. Shaw's later productions, and it opens rather tamely. The curtain rises upon a garden in Mogador, where a Scotch missionary named Rankin is holding a conversation with his only convert, one Felix Drinkwater, a stray cockney loafer, who is also known as "Brandy-faced Jack." The arrival of Sir Howard Hallam, an English judge, and his sister-in-law, Lady Cecily Waynflete, is discussed; the visitors presently make their appearance, and the initial stages of the story develop into a proposal by Lady Cecily that Sir Howard shall undertake an excursion to the interior, for which Rankin is asked to provide an escort. There is considerable danger in the project, but Lady Cicely will not hear of it. She thinks the natives are amiable, and boasts that she has even associated with cannibal chiefs, and found them very nice people. So Captain Brassbound is communicated with, and speedily appears upon the scene. He is in command of his own vessel, and bears a somewhat doubtful reputation, but he and his crew occasionally act as escorts to parties who wish to explore the country. Captain Brassbound it is evident, knows the party; he is in fact the nephew of Sir Howard Hallam, and, nursing a wrong to his mother inflicted, as he believes, by his uncle, he purposes to have his revenge by leading the Judge into a trap. He sends a message to one of the native chiefs, who forthwiths proceeds with some of his followers to Moskala, a castle on the hills, where Sir Howard and his sister-in-law are staying. It is here that the Captain comes under the gentle influence of Lady Cicely. She is apparently not in the least alarmed at his violence; but, perceiving that the sleeve of the coat he has thrown off requires repairing, she calmly sits down, and plies her needle and thread until the rent has been neatly sewn up. The conversion of the Captain proceeds apace; and so powerful is the lady's influence that he promises that no harm shall come to the Judge, who is a prisoner in the hands of his men. But the arrival at the port of an American man-of-war quickly changes the situation, and the Captain finds himself in an awkward position. Lady Cicely, however, proves equal to the occasion, and at the court-martial which is held by the American naval officers manages to obtain the acquittal of the accused. The Captain departs, and the lady congratulates herself that he has not gone so far as to make her an offer of marriage. At least, that seems to be generally accepted as the meaning of her exclamation, "What an escape!"

That Miss Ellen Terry received the most cordial and kindly of welcomes may be taken for granted; and that the eminent actress betrayed a certain degree of nervousness is also what one might expect. But the charm which has always been one of the distinguishing features of Miss Terry's acting was once again apparent in her embodiment of Lady Cicely Waynflete, whose bright, kind, unsuspicious nature afforded just the medium for the display of Miss Terry's fine qualities as an actress. Vivacity, a keen sense of humour, and a woman's delight in getting the better of a mere man were all expressed with unerring art and unfailing effect. At the final fall of the curtain she again had convincing proof that she had added yet another to her long list of artistic triumphs. Mr. J. H. Barnes as Sir Howard Hallam was the staid, dignified Judge to the life, whose demeanour was unruffled even when in the hands of Brassbound's rough crew. The Captain himself had a capital representative in Mr. Frederick Kerr, who gave a careful and thoroughly sound study of the man who is sullenly satisfied at the thought of the revenge he is about to take, but yields to the subtle influence of a good woman. Mr. F. Cremlin cleverly hit off the shrewd old Scotchman, Mr. Rankin, whose twenty-five years' sojourn abroad has not robbed him in the least of his broad Scottish accent. Mr. Edmund Gwenn gave an intense and sharply defined portrayal of the reformed hooligan, Drinkwater. Mr. Edmund Gurney was excellent as Johnson, a burly member of Brassbound's crew, a capital fellow-picture being the Redbrook of Mr. C. L. Delph. Mr. Michael Sherbrooke played very naturally the part of the wounded Italian Marzo, and praiseworthy representations were the Sidi el Assif of Mr. Lewis Casson and the Cadi of Mr. Trevor Lowe. Mr. James Carew did well as Captain Kearney, Mr. Jules Shaw was impressive as Hassan, other minor parts being safe in the hands of Mr. Gordon Bailey and Mr. Frederick Lloyd.

"THE HEIR-AT-LAW."

The Comedy, originally in Five Acts, by George Colman the Younger, compressed into Three Acts by Cyril Maude, Revived at the Waldorf Theatre, on Tuesday Afternoon, March 20.

Daniel Dowlass	MR. E. W. GARDEN
Dick Dowlass	MR. G. M. GRAHAM
Dr. Pangloss	MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Henry Morland	MR. CHARLES MAUDE
Steadfast	MR. F. PERCIVAL STEVENS
Zekiel Homespun	MR. HARRY NICHOLLS
Kenrick	MR. E. C. MATTHEWS
John	MR. RALPH MCKIE
Waiter	MR. E. COUTTS
Waiter at the Blue Boar	MR. WM. CALVERT
Deborah Dowlass	MISS MARY BROUGH
Caroline Dormer	MISS JANET ALEXANDER
Cicely Homespun	MISS MADGE CRICHTON

We have had no notable performance of George Colman the Younger's best comedy since Mr. John Sleeper Clarke reproduced it at the old Strand Theatre in the eighties; but it was quite in accordance with the fitness of things that Mr. Cyril Maude, now that he is directing a theatre entirely on his own, should endeavour to show the modern playgoer that the art of representing the characters in the genteel comedy of the eighteenth century—an art that reached its zenith in the days of the elder Farren—has not yet been forgotten. Like Mr. John Hare, in the earlier years of his career, Mr. Maude developed a gift for the realisation of character old men on the stage. His Sir Peter Teazle was followed by his Lord Ogleby—an exquisitely finished miniature of the ancient fop of a past age, and now we have a new facet of Mr. Maude's brilliant gifts revealed in his portrait of Dr. Pangloss. He seems to have made the character completely his own, and has so polished every detail that it stands forth as one of the most remarkable examples of which the modern stage can boast. We need not go back to the "palmy" days in search of striking and original comic acting, when we have a performance like Mr. Maude's—so ready, so varied, so full of genuine drollery, and with that remarkable power of facial expression which enables him to make the audience enter into the spirit of the part he plays. To listen to Dr. Pangloss correcting the errors of the vulgar Lord Duberley or yielding to the extravagances of Dick is a comedy in itself. Every action, every look, every tone serves to reveal the completeness of the conception and the remarkable gifts of a fine comedian in the plenitude of his powers. The sentiment of the piece is somewhat artificial, but Mr. Harry Nicholls—who had a deservedly cordial reception on his first appearance on the Waldorf stage on Tuesday afternoon—imparted due earnestness and vigour to the old-fashioned speeches that come from the lips of honest Zekiel Homespun. Mr. G. M. Graham in the love-making of Dick Dowlass and the serious speeches where the young fellow repents of his attempt to play the fine gentleman, acted with considerable spirit and vigour. Mr. E. W. Garden, an admirable comedian, played Daniel Dowlass (otherwise Lord Duberley) with a broad humour that was heartily recognised by a house keenly appreciative and eagerly responsive to the robust nature of Colman's wit. Miss Mary Brough, who always delights us with her admirable realisations of comedy old women, made the very most of her somewhat slender chances as Deborah Dowlass. As Cicely Homespun Miss Madge Crichton was delightfully bucolic and natural, giving excellent effect to the scene in the apartments of Caroline Dormer. Later in the comedy she displayed both earnestness and pathos. Mr. E. C. Matthews managed to put a deal of feeling into his rendering of the part of Kenrick, servant to Caroline Dormer—a part played with considerable tenderness and sensibility by Miss Janet Alexander. Mr. Charles Maude effectively represented Henry Morland, the lost heir; and Mr. Percival Stevens was seen to advantage as Steadfast. Mr. William Calvert neatly played the part of the waiter at the Blue Boar; and other rôles were adequately filled by Mr. Ralph McKie and Mr. E. Coutts.

As a matter of stage history, we may quote from Genest the original cast of The Heir-at-Law when it was produced at the Haymarket on July 15, 1797: Dr. Pangloss, John Fawcett; Daniel Dowlas, Suett; Dick Dowlas, Palmer; Zekiel Homespun, Munden; Henry Moreland, Charles Kemble, Steadfast, J. Aikin; Kenrick, Johnstone; Cecily Homespun, Mrs. Gibbs; Deborah Dowlas, Mrs. Davenport; Caroline Dormer, Miss De Camp. It was acted twenty-eight times, and was accounted a creditable piece of work on the part of the manager, Colman. Dr. Pangloss and the Dowlas family were considered very good characters; but the rest of the dramatis personæ have not much to recommend them.

The Heir-at-Law was preceded by Mr. Edward Knoblauch's sketch The Partik'ler Pet, adapted from Max Maurey's piece L'Asile de Nuit, in which Mr. Maude repeated his droll impersonation of Tut, being well supported by Mr. G. M. Graham as Skilly and Mr. Percival Stevens as Mr. Nicholls.

ROYAL displeasure has fallen upon Herr Max Grube, the popular Berlin actor, who has been dismissed in singular circumstances. The Kaiser was present at a performance of William Tell, in which Herr Grube was suddenly called upon to take the place of an actor who was indisposed, and, dressing in haste, arrived on the stage in the apple scene, with a costume combining the red garb of Mephisto with a uniform resembling that of an Austrian bailiff of the period. The eye of majesty at once discovered that the horseman wore simple buskins instead of the regulation boots, and, addressing the manager, the Kaiser said, "He rides a horse in buskins. What do you think about it? Enough. I do not desire to see more." The actor was condemned without appeal, and had to leave next day.

DRASTIC methods have been taken towards the curtailment of the drama in China. In the treaty port of Swatow, where there is a large native population, great ill-feeling has been aroused by the magistrate compelling plays to cease at midnight under penalty of £1 per every hour after.

MISS ALICE KAUSER, one of America's foremost agents, is in London consulting with her clients, Sir Gilbert Parker, E. R. Benson, Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Maurice Hewlett, Henry A. Jones, A. E. W. Mason, George Paxton, and Gladys Ungar. Miss Kauser leaves for a short visit to Paris to see Maurice Maeterlinck, whose play of Monna Vanna she placed in America. From Paris she goes to Berlin, where she has a branch office, returning to London for a few days prior to sailing.

"THE NEW SPRING CHICKEN."

Newly fledged and cackling gaily, The New Spring Chicken fluttered into the Gaiety Theatre on Thursday, and feasted sumptuously on the applause and laughter of a crowded audience. Fresh scenic embellishments, new numbers, and added drollery have been supplied to the piece, which will assuredly be accepted for a long time to come with the utmost relish. The effervescing comicality of Mr. Edmund Payne in the part of the giddy Girdle has a new outlet in a duet called "Sunday afternoon," the success of which is shared by Mr. Geo. Grossmith, its author, as Babori. The various accessories of the number are inexpressibly droll, and the appearance of Mr. Payne as a fond papa out with the baby-chair and of Mr. Grossmith carrying the jug for the Sunday beer is irresistible. Another droll morsel is his sailor's hornpipe in a capital quartette called "When I grow up," by Percy Greenbank and Constance Tippett, which comes in the second act. Mr. Payne's comic resource is no less abundant than usual, and the laughs which come as a consequence are quite impossible to measure. Miss Gertie Millar, who entrances by the melody of her voice and the witchery of her feet as the servant-maid from Brittany, has been allotted two new numbers, one of which is called "Lucky Little Lucy," a witty lyric by Leslie Mayne and Lionel Monckton, which Miss Millar sings in her most bewitching style. The other is "Rotterdam," a song by Percy Greenbank, Leslie Mayne, and Lionel Monckton, in which a chorus of pretty Dutch boys join with exquisite effect. Mr. Lionel Mackinder plays with his customary buoyancy and graceful agility as Boniface, his song of "Laua's Latest" being sung in a most exhilarating style. Mr. George Grossmith, jun., works wonderfully hard as the advocate Babori, and "Rosalie," a song written by himself, in conjunction with Jerome D. Kern, is full of unctuous humour. Miss Olive Morrell, whose reposeful style as Dulcie is agreeably conspicuous amid so much lively fun, has a fascinating ballad, written by George R. Sims, entitled "The Orange Garden." The music, by Ivan Caryll, is peculiarly pleasing, and the ballad is sung with rare charm by Miss Morrell, whose song, "O, so gently," delivered with pretty piquancy, now has a verse about the recent hire-system case. Miss Connie Ediss fully preserves her matronly aspect as the resourceful Mrs. Girdle, but there is no end to the merriment whenever she opens her mouth, either to sing or to speak, her songs, "I don't know, but I can guess," and "Regent-street," ensuring many recalls. Miss Kate Cutler plays the rôle of Baroness Papouche with delightful charm, her concern in the greenhouse, when the advocate succumbs to the effect of the narcotic, being charmingly assumed. Stephen-Henry and Emmy-Lou are made properly precocious by Mr. William Spray and Miss Olive May, the youthful lady's dancing and singing being admirable. Mr. Robert Nainby is very welcome for the fun which he imparts to the head waiter, and Mr. Harry Grattan gives a comic exposition of the woes and anxieties of Baron Papouche. Mr. Arthur Hatherton makes a valuable contribution to the piece as the proprietor of the Crimson Butterfly; Mr. Leigh Ellis supplies a funny bit of character as a waiter; and the beauteous ladies who take smaller parts, together with the picturesque male members of the cast, combine in an entertainment which admirably reflects Mr. George Edwardes's artistic instinct.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The chamber concert given by the students on Friday evening, March 16, commenced with Grieg's fine quartet for strings in G minor, Op. 27, a clever interpretation of which was performed by Miss Vera Warwick-Evans, Mr. Arthur Beckwith, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Ivor James. A first performance was also heard of four preludes for the pianoforte, composed by Mr. O'Neil Phillips. Without being in any way remarkable for striking originality, the preludes gave ample evidence of careful training on the part of the young composer, who skilfully played his works. A well-executed violin solo, "Havanaise" by Saint-Saëns, was given by Miss Florence Jennings; and Miss Winifred Gardiner was associated with Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans in a duo for violoncello and piano, Introduction and Polonaise in C major, by Chopin, the young artists doing themselves great credit. For the vocal side of the concert Mr. Francis C. S. Carey sang "Between Sleep and Waking" and a song of his own, entitled "The Maids of the North," well written and of unusual brevity. Miss Lucy G. Morris sand "The Worldly Hope," by Liza Lehmann (from In a Persian Garden), and "A Love Song," R. Franz. Hearty applause and many recalls were bestowed on Mr. F. Aubrey Millward for his really remarkable singing of Sullivan's "Tears, Idle Tears" and "O, Swallow." Other good items were a song by Miss Bowness, and an organ solo, Prelude and Fugue in E minor, Bach, played by Miss Alice Ibbetson. The accompanists were Mr. James Friskin and Mr. Harold Samuel.

An orchestral concert was given by the pupils of the College on Tuesday evening, the programme commencing with a spirited performance of Liszt's Rhapsody No. 1 in F, Sir Charles V. Stanford conducting. Miss Vera Warwick-Evans, one of the principal solo violinists of the College, was heard to great advantage in Concerto in A major for violin and orchestra by Saint-Saëns, and Mr. Ivor James was entirely successful in producing a good tone and expression in his violoncello solo "Kol Nidrei," by Max Bruch, accompanied by the orchestra in a most artistic manner, the young musician being, at the close of his solo, honoured with several hearty recalls from the large audience. Mr. Ben Ivor Davies may be commended for his singing of recitative and air "Oh, 'tis a glorious sight," from Weber's "Oberon," although the music was too high for his voice, the orchestra several times quite overpowering the vocalist. The quintet from "Die Meistersingers" was, on the whole, well rendered by Miss Gladys Honey, Miss Frances Ireland, Mr. Frank Webster, Mr. W. Spencer Thomas, and Mr. Charles Keywood. Eva's short solo at the beginning of this fine quintet deserved commendation. The last item in the programme was Symphony No. 4 in F minor, by Tschaikowsky, in which the orchestra in the four movements did credit to their able conductor.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Monday, before Mr. E. S. Grey, Official Receiver, an adjourned first meeting of the creditors of Mr. E. G. Saunders was held. The debtor stated that he was a solicitor by profession, but had been engaged as a theatrical manager and proprietor, and was at present interested in the Waldorf Theatre and Hotel. The former was held by the Waldorf Theatre Syndicate, Ltd., to which he sold his building agreement in October, 1903, for £19,993 in shares. He had vacated his seat on the board of the syndicate, and of his shares 11,000 had been given away, and he had assigned the remainder to trustees under a deed. As regards the Waldorf Hotel, he sold his building agreement for the site in July, 1903, to the Waldorf Hotel Syndicate, Ltd., for £40,000 in fully-paid shares. Of these, 20,000 had been transferred to another person, and the balance had been mortgaged. He attributed his present position to depreciation in the value of his assets, particularly of certain shares, and to losses in connection with the Waldorf syndicates. The accounts had not yet been filed, but the liabilities were estimated at £13,000, and the assets were stated to be of considerable value. A trustee was appointed.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

HOCKEY.

Norman V. Norman's XI. v. Sheffield Banks.

Played at Sheffield on March 7. The game was not a very good one, neither team showing much combination but was well contested, though the theatrical team missed many chances of scoring.

The final score was: Sheffield Banks, 3 goals; Norman V. Norman's XI., 1 goal. The goal was shot by W. H. Ashley.

Norman V. Norman's XI. v. Handsworth Club, Sheffield.

Played on March 9 in very bad weather, and on ground that was quite unfit for hockey, rain falling heavily all through. The game was, however, a very pleasant one, and the theatrical team, showing very fair combination, won by 6 goals to 1 goal. The goals were shot by: N. V. Norman, 3; W. Marshall, 2; and S. Wilkinson, 1.

In the production of Romeo and Juliet at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, Miss Lilian M. Revell, in consequence of the indisposition of Miss Turner, was called upon to play Juliet at a few hours' notice, and has since played the part on several occasions with marked success.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Sigurd.—Though, strictly speaking, there is no copyright in titles, yet we can hardly advise you to take the course you suggest. Consult "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," published at this office, price 3s. 6d.

A. H. B.—The first number of The Era Almanack was published in 1868.

Brak.—We cannot say. A letter addressed to the lady, care of The Era, would possibly find her.

W. F. (Wigan).—We cannot say. Why not make enquiries of the managers of the local music halls?

H. Wickens.—We have never heard of a sketch with the title you mention. There is a musical burglar in a sketch called Hooked by Crook.

S. A. M.—You might submit them to Mr. Edgar Bateman. Address, care of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, 142, Charing Cross-road.

E. W. Angus.—Miss Agnes Fraser.

H. Abrahams.—In February, 1899, Mr. J. B. Howe and company appeared at the Marylebone Music Hall (then under the management of Mr. R. Botting) in a sensational sketch entitled A Lost Game. During the same engagement they also appeared in Mr. Charles Wilmot's sketch, A Sister's Honour.

Arthur Williams.—The cast was as follows:—M. Dariman, Mr. J. Vollaire; Henri Morel, Mr. William Creswick; M. de Boissy, Mr. Shepherd; Horace, Mr. G. Vincent; Matilde Baroche, Miss G. Pauncefort; Amelie, Miss Elizabeth Webster; Suzette, Miss Eliza Johnstone; Little Marie, Miss Hamilton. Minor parts were played by Messrs. Maclean, Wright, and Stratton.

J. E. B.—Sir Henry Irving produced Coriolanus at the Lyceum Theatre on April 15, 1901.

C. J.—The Adelphi stage is 64*ft. wide and* 87*ft. deep. The proscenium opening is* 30*ft. by* 31*ft.*

Ted Jenkins.—"We've both been there before," Mr. Harry Freeman; "Where did you get that hat?" Mr. J. C. Heffron; "Why did I leave my little back room?" Mr Alf Chester. All three songs are published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form, it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following abridged description is specially drawn for THE ERA by Messrs. Hughes and Young, Patent Agents, 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters:—

20,481.—Merry-go-rounds. C. F. Weider, East 49th-street, New York, U.S.A. This invention relates to the horses, animals, &c., of a merry-go-round, which move on approximately circular tracks, crossing each other at regular intervals, half of the total number of horses moving in one direction, and the remaining half in the other. The horses are supported by rods passing through slots in the part of the supporting structure, which is formed with partitions. The rods are supported by a trunk provided with grooved wheels, which run on rails, supported by the partition. The rods pass through chains, so that, as the chains are driven by means of sprocket-wheels carried by shafts, the horses are moved forward. The shafts are driven by means of a pressed outwards by a strong spring, in order to sprocket-chain, which is driven by suitable mechanism from a motor. Alternate pairs of shafts are driven in opposite directions, and, in order to allow for wear of the chain, it is passed round a sprocket-wheel mounted on a crank-arm, take up any slack in the chain. Or the shafts may be connected by suitable gearing to enable them to act regularly should the chain wear.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual appears once more in its familiar binding, a compendium of information and amusement for all who are interested in theatrical affairs. In the calendar will be found an array of anniversary dates, some recent, some recalling memories of old times and actors and actresses long passed away. The summary of new plays produced during the past year is admirably done, its value being increased by the alphabetical list which is appended. Well-known actors and actresses contribute stories in accordance with a custom justified by its success.—Daily Telegraph, Jan. 18, 1906.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanack and Annual ("Era" Office, 1s.), a copy of which lies before me, is an invaluable publication for those who wish to have stage records by them. It contains a dramatic and musical calendar, lists of new plays and important revivals produced at the London and suburban theatres during 1905, and also of plays produced in the provinces. Further, we have lists of the new plays and revivals produced at the principal Paris and Berlin theatres "The Era" Almanack has been regularly issued since 1868, when is was compiled by Edward Laman Blanchard, a comedian whose fascinating life was recorded by Clement Scott. The Almanack closes with an illustrated list of those members of the profession who died during the course of last year, headed, naturally, by Henry Irving. Amongst the other names are those of William Rignold, Frank Celli, Ada Neilson, and Minnie Mario. There is an added pathos in the deaths of those who were so long bodily before the public, and the ringing down of the last curtain seems to have added significance.—T. P.'s Weekly, Jan. 26.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1906.

MR. PHILLIPS'S MASTERPIECE.

One of the many modern additions to and embellishments of the blank-verse drama is the accompaniment which steals up from the orchestra at intervals, and mixes with the delivery of the verses of the play. For some time we were in doubt as to the raison d'être of this accompaniment; but an explanation has been vouchsafed to us. "Incidental music" is, we believe, an attempt to supply the poetry which most of our modern verse-playwrights have left out. The ensemble of the impression left by the delivery of a speech in verse upon the stage may be roughly analysed as follows:

1. The appearance of the actor or actress, and the expression of his or her features.

2. Indistinct apprehension of the accessories—costume, stage setting, &c.

3. The point and meaning of the phrases.

4. The poetic form in which the sense is conveyed.

An ear for poetry is a gift, like an ear for music; and, judging by the number of quite passable minor poets which we have with us, it is not at all rare. What is almost extinct in England is the breed of poet-dramatists—of men in whom a dramatic instinct is united with the poetic ear. SWINBURNE'S plays are melodious but unactable; TENNYSON as a dramatist was not born, but made by Sir HENRY IRVING; and—not to be unpleasantly personal—where the dramatic instinct has been strong, too often the lines, as someone maliciously put it, have resembled, in their matter-of-fact woodenness, the planks in a timber-merchant's yard.

We need go back no further for an illustration of these theories than to the recent publication by Messrs. MACMILLAN and Co. of Mr. STEPHEN PHILLIPS'S Nero. We are sorry to have read the play, for the perusal has destroyed some agreeable illusions. It speaks volumes for the effect of what we may call the "incidental music" of the performance at His Majesty's—for the power of Mr. TREE'S personality and for the musical delivery of his talented supporters—that we should have thought Mr. PHILLIPS'S verse so very much better than we find it to be. It is positively painful to a reader who appreciates the real merits of Nero to perceive how obstinately Mr. PHILLIPS refuses, in spite of all temptations, to "drop into poetry." He conceives an idea and he expresses it; but, as long as he makes his meaning clear, he seems indifferent to poetical beauties. Take, for instance, SENECA'S speech in the first act, which sums up the intent and meaning of the play. Here, for an instant, we find Mr. PHILLIPS on the edge, as it were, of a memorable passage. SENECA says:

> True, the harp, the song,
> The theatre, delight this dreamer; true,
> He lives but in imaginations; yet
> Suppose this æsthete made omnipotent . . .

Here we have a touch of the tragic 'cello in the broad o's and easy alliteration of the last line; but the rest of SENECA'S speech is not equal to the opening. Mr. PHILLIPS'S poetical lines are like GRATIANO'S reasons: you may search all day through Nero ere you find them. Here—to prove that we have searched—is one from the third act of the play:

> The deep, delicious poison of a smile,

And here another from the first act:

> Empurpled in a lone omnipotence.

A curious thing is that Mr. PHILLIPS'S poetic vision is really powerful; what he seems indifferent to is the music and the melody of his verse.

But, admitting this, is there any warrant or justification for the hard measure that has been dealt out to the published work by its literary critics? The root of the matter in a play is not poetic expression, but dramatic power. The object of a drama is the development of character by action, not the delivery of "beautiful passages." Nero is written on exactly the same principles followed by SHAKESPEARE in Julius Cæsar and Antony and Cleopatra. Mr. PHILLIPS has followed his "authorities" as closely as the Bard of Avon followed PLUTARCH. He has discovered—a magnificent trouvaille!—a patch in the historical Rand which had not been worked by previous miners; and has unearthed an "argument" which appeals to moderns much more directly than it would have appealed to mediævals. Admitting, for the sake of argument, that Nero might just as well have been written in prose as in verse, what then? Write out Mr. PHILLIPS'S description of the world on fire without "breaks," and it still presents various and vivid images to the mind. The language and the thoughts are strong, virile, significant, and direct. We all remember Dean RAMSAY'S anecdote of the Scotch minister who, conversing incognito with a sexton who, the minister thought, did not recognise him, spoke of several other preachers as being "sound," meaning true to the doctrines of the Kirk. Fishing for a compliment on his sermons, which were of the "windy" order, the minister asked if Mr. —— (mentioning his own name) was "sound." "Ou, ay," replied the sexton, "Mr. ——, he's just all sound." No one can say this of Mr. STEPHEN PHILLIPS. He has gone to the root of the matter in Nero, and nothing should be done to discourage him.

Nero is not only Mr. PHILLIPS'S masterpiece, but the only historical play of any real value that has been produced in London for a long time. To have seen the possibilities in the character of the Artist-Emperor; to have felt the passions of the personages; to have conceived, on the mere hints of history, the principal characters; and to have developed them with such a vigour of expression, such passionate emphasis, and such descriptive energy, make Mr. PHILLIPS unapproached, if not unapproachable, in his particular line. We only ask him to remember the commonplace of criticism in "The Vicar of Wakefield"—that the picture would have been better if the artist had taken more pains.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Saturday last, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The legal notes suggested by the committee were again considered, and the secretary reported that they would be submitted to the next meeting of the Council. A suggestion was made for the consideration of the Council as to the mode of electing the chairman of the Council, deputy-chairman, and chairmen of committees.

The Special Committee of the association held a meeting on Saturday last, when there were present Messrs. Arthur Holmes-Gore (in the chair), Clarence Blakiston, and C. Hayden Coffin, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Certain matters were discussed in connection with copyright in photographs, and the secretary received instructions.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the association was held on Tuesday last, when the following were present:—Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Blake Adams, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, Wm. Devereux, A. E. George, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Fewlass Llewellyn, Norman McKinnel, Quinton McPherson, and Algernon Syms, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Kate Bishop, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Saba Raleigh. The hon. solicitors reported progress in several matters. The legal notes suggested by the Finance and General Purposes Committee were considered, and finally settled. A case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was under consideration, and the secretary was directed to communicate with the management. The reports of the Finance and General Purposes Committee and Special Committee were received.

The recommendations of the Finance and General Purposes Committee as to the election of chairman of the Council, deputy-chairman, and chairmen of committees were accepted and adopted.

The secretary was directed to call the attention of the members to the fact that no one is covered by the insurance scheme unless his or her subscription for the current year is paid; upon payment of the subscription the member receives a coupon. The agreement between the Insurance Company and the association provides that such coupon shall be issued to members upon payment of subscription.

Eric Longden was nominated as a candidate for election as a member of the association, and a former member was nominated for reinstatement.

MR. W. A. TOTTEN, who has, since its opening fifteen years ago, been musical director at the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly, and for a couple of years the manager, has now resigned his position, in order to devote his whole time to teaching. His place has been taken by that well-known musician, Mr. Omar Dene, who has been for a long time musical director with Mr. Isham Graff, and afterwards with Mr. E. J. Kirke.

REVIVAL OF "THE CANDIDATE."

On Wednesday, March 21,

"THE CANDIDATE."

MR. YORKE STEPHENS
Barnabas Goodeve ..MR. RUTLAND BARRINGTON
Amos Martlett .....MR. EDMUND MAURICE

MISS LILIAS WALDEGRAVE

When The Candidate was produced at the Criterion Theatre in 1884, it was the fashion at the theatre to treat politics as a joke. Now, with Socialism at the door and middle-class incomes flying out of the window in the form of rates, we—that is to say, the well-to-do middle-class persons who keep the stalls filled during a long run—are inclined to laugh on the wrong side of our faces. This made it rather difficult to modernise Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy's adaptation of Le Député de Bombignac. It was hard enough, even in 1884 to accept as possible the trick which Lord Oldacre plays on the constituency of East Hampton; it is still more difficult to "swallow" the improbabilities of the play in 1906. And the topical hits do not tell as they did at the former date. In the early eighties it was safe to poke fun at proposals for the abolition of the House of Lords; but really, what with the influx of Labour Members and their egregious audacity one cannot feel certain what may not happen in the next ten years. When we hear Free Trade and the Tariff Reform mentioned lightly on the stage we feel the same sense of shock as an admirer of the Equator might have felt when Sidney Smith's man spoke of it disrespectfully.

The Candidate belonged to the batch of plays which were produced in what we may call Mr. Charles Wyndham's period of irresponsible frivolity. It was sandwiched between The Great Divorce Case and a revival of Wild Oats. Nothing in Mr. Wyndham's Criterion career became him like the leaving it; for in 1886, shortly before his departure for America, he revealed his more serious and sentimental self to his supporters in his famous creation of the hero of David Garrick. If, like crabs, we could go backwards, we might revive in ourselves the uncritical facility which endeared the Criterion farces and their exponents to the playgoer of the period. Nevertheless, The Candidate is so essentially amusing, and is played so well—if "with a difference"—at Wyndham's, that the revival there on Wednesday gave great pleasure, and will, we imagine, answer the purpose for which it was prepared. Sir Charles Wyndham has moved with the times, and is no longer farcical. His Lord Lancelot Oldacre is a capital piece of light comedy acting, full of fine points and subtle suggestions, natural, easy and altogether unconvincing. Mr. Dennis Eadie takes, perhaps, an unnecessary severe view of the character of Alaric Baffin, but sustains the part on his own lines with admirable care and firmness. Mr. Yorke Stephens, who is perennially bright and spirited, and is always absolutely reliable as an easy-going young aristocrat, represents Captain Hazelfort with just the necessary lightness of touch and polish. Mr. Rutland Barrington as Barnabas Goodeve revives memories of his early triumphs, and his smug self-satisfaction as the sleek and plausible parson is one of the best things in the revival. Mr. Edmund Maurice is satisfactory as the sleepy husband, Martlett; and Mr. Bertram Steer is good as Jacobs. Miss Helen Ferrers is a majestic Lady Osterley, and Miss Sybil Carlisle is sweet and sympathetic as Lady Clarissa Oldacre, Miss June van Buskirk giving a vivacious and very agreeable performance as Lady Dorothy Osterley. Miss Lilias Waldegrave, who plays Mrs. Sophonia Martlett in The Candidate with a vast amount of animation and with all the necessary amusing exuberance, is also seen in the first piece, The American Widow, in which she enacts Mrs. Van Bright very cleverly, Mr. Bertram Steer showing genuine ability as the Earl of Somerville.

THE closing lecture of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution was given in the Queen's Hall on the afternoon of the 16th inst., when Mr. E. F. Benson gave a thoughtful address on "Shakespeare and the Resurrection of the Dead."

IN the report of the directors of Howard and Wyndham, Ltd., to be presented at the eleventh annual general meeting to be held at Edinburgh on Wednesday afternoon, the net revenue from theatres, programmes, rents, &c., is shown to amount to £18,068 5s. 1d., and the net profit to £15,038 16s. 10d. The directors recommend that dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. on the preference and 10 per cent. on the ordinary shares of the company, both less income tax, be declared.

IT is interesting to note that Mr. Arthur Vezin, who is playing with Mr. Louis Calvert's company of Sunday at the Theatre Royal, Huddersfield, this week, made his début on the stage at the same theatre as the Third Apparition in Macbeth, under the management of his father, Mr. Hermann Vezin, in April, 1893. Mr. William Lockhard, who is also playing in Sunday, was then his stage manager.

MR. JOSEPH SAINTON, musical director of the Crystal Palace Theatre, was selected by the Clacton-on-Sea Council out of 105 candidates for the apointment of musical director of the Municipal Orchestra and Pier Concerts for the coming season.

THE new and enterprising management at the Royal Opera House, Leicester, has established a tea room, the first in any place of entertainment in Leicester, thus supplying a want that has been much felt.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your correspondent's notice of Samuels's Exhibition, Dublin, the name of Tessie Vandean is mentioned. As the only lady bearing that name was not there, I shall be glad if you will insert this contradiction.—Yours faithfully, TESSIE VANDEAN.

PRESENTATION.—On Monday at the Gaiety Theatre, Dundee, after the conclusion of the performance, Mr. Charles Phillips, the stage manager, presented Mr. R. A. P. Williams, the lessee, with a handsome travelling-bag on behalf of the staff, orchestra, and friends as a souvenir of the first anniversary of his lesseeship of the Gaiety Theatre. Mrs. Williams was also presented with a handsome gold bracelet, and both recipients suitably returned thanks.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Lawrence Barclay (Ernest Lawrence), the well-known music hall comedian, and brother to the popular Miss Vesta Victoria, was married on Feb. 25 at Trinity Church, Bootle, Liverpool, to Miss Clara Ethel Fisher, eldest daughter of Mr. G. Gregory Fisher, barrister-at-law, London. A large number of friends attended the ceremony, and there was a fine collection of valuable presents. The happy couple returned by the 12.50 train from Exchange, Liverpool, to Glasgow, the bridegroom arriving just in time to play his part of Simple Simon in the pantomime at the Princess's Theatre. Upon making his entrance, he was received with shouts and cheers from the audience, who had by some means got to know of the happy event. His brother and sister artists were continually springing gags upon him.

What delighted Mr. Barclay the most was a wedding present from the public of a handsome silver cigar case, with his own signature inscribed on it. He was called upon to make a speech, but managed to evade that ordeal. The bride, who was an amused and interested spectator of the performance from the stalls, is very wealthy, and intends that her husband shall in time become an actor-manager. As a wedding present from his beloved sister, Vesta Victoria, Mr. Barclay received a cheque of four figures.

Mr. Slade Murray writes from on board the "Himalaya," off Port Said, under date March 12: "I am having a most pleasant voyage in the above vessel on my way to a six months' engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards, and I desire to thank all my brother Terriers and other professional and private friends, to the number of about fifty, who so kindly wished me bon voyage, and also those who sent telegrams, and to whom it was impossible to reply."

Mr. George Lashwood has had to refuse the offer of the principal light comedy part in Leslie Stuart's forthcoming musical play The Belle of Mayfair, at the Vaudeville Theatre, as it was found impossible to postpone his numerous other engagements. Mr. Lashwood is making quite a phenomenal hit at the Coliseum, where he will shortly introduce (in the new French revue) a specially written ditty dealing with a trip to Paris, by Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. This number has been secured for immediate publication by Francis Day and Hunter.

Very interesting changes will take place in Ronacher's and the Coliseum, Vienna, at the end of this season. Mr. Arthur Brill, the manager of the latter house, is going to leave it, and enter upon the management of Ronacher's, where he will work in conjunction with Mr. Waldmann. The manager of the Coliseum will be Mr. Louis Mittler, who for many years has been associated with that house.

Five years ago, when Mr. Arthur Brill took over the management of the Coliseum, business was very bad, and it is due to his zeal, knowledge of business, and good taste that that establishment has become the favourite variety theatre in Vienna. The programme under his management has always been excellent, and has been such as could be seen by any family without hesitation. At the matinées he has always provided amusements especially fitted for the children. During his management Mr. Brill has made long journeys to secure the best variety turns which were to be had, and has gained a high reputation as a first-class expert. Ronacher's under his management should have still further successful developments. With his advent there will be great alterations made in the theatre. The hall which was used as a dancing-room will be pulled down, one part of it going to enlarge the stage. The other part will be turned into a first-class coffee-house in the Parisian style. We should add that all contracts made by Mr. Brill for the Coliseum will stand.

Mr. Marshall Moore will sever his connection with the Coliseum in June, when he will have completed two years as general stage director for Mr. Oswald Stoll. We are given to understand that Mr. Moore purposes sending on tour his own version of Joseph and His Brethren.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee of the London County Council consists of twelve members—viz., Lord Monkswell, Sir William J. Bell, Sir Algernon E. West, Lieutenant-Colonel Rotton, and Messrs. Jocelyn Brandon, T. Davies, H. J. Greenwood, I. H. Mitchell, B. S. Straus, D. S. Waterlow, Howell J. Williams, and W. B. Yates.

A company has been registered to acquire the leasehold property known as the Marlborough Theatre in Holloway-road, N. (built by Mr. F. W. Purcell, and opened by him on Oct. 5, 1903), and to carry on the business of theatre and music hall proprietors, &c., and to adapt two agreements with E. Stevens and others. The first directors are Mr. J. B. Mulholland (King's Theatre, Hammersmith), Fred Fredericks, Fred Karno, E. Stevens, and R. C. Buchanan.

According to present arrangements at the Coliseum, Captain H. Sakamoto, of the Japanese battleship Katori, and Captain Sijichi, of the battleship Kashima, will, together with picked men from those ships, witness the three o'clock performances on both Monday and Tuesday next. A meat tea will be provided each day for the men in the Coliseum Terrace Tea Room. The Japanese sailors will be met at Victoria by special bands, which will play en route to the Coliseum.

The question of "Standing Room in Theatres and Music Halls" was not reached at the weekly meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday until after 7 o'clock. To prevent it being taken as unopposed business Mr. William Bailey, proprietor of the West London Theatre, and one of the L.C.C. members for Paddington, gave notice of opposition. But Mr. Yates, chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, kindly assented to postpone the question until Tuesday next, in order to allow of full discussion.

An effort is being made at Richmond to re-open the Castle Rooms as a theatre. It is somewhat of a reproof that a town which did honour to Edmund Kean cannot support a theatre, for it may be taken for granted that Mr. George Dance's pretty house would never have gone over to the variety stage had support been forthcoming for the other branch of the dramatic art. However, a syndicate has been formed, and there is every prospect of the new scheme going through. That it will be welcomed by a large section of Richmond playgoers is a foregone conclusion.

British sympathy with the hundreds of helpless souls bereaved by the unparalleled mining disaster at Courrières is amply evinced in the splendid first list of artists who have (by permission of their respective managers, including Messrs. Charles Frohman, Arthur Collins, Paul Rubens, and Geo. Adney Payne) volunteered their services in aid of the special matinée to be given at the Alhambra on Thursday, the 29th inst. This has the good fortune to include the names of Miss Violet Vanbrugh and Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry, Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks, Miss May de Sousa and Mr. Harry Fragson, Miss Helen Mar, Miss Violet Lloyd, Miss Isabel Jay, Miss Ethel Irving, Miss Vivian Chartres, and Mr. Harry Lauder, whose distinctive monologue prepared for this occasion will be the more compassionate since it will introduce his own experiences of ten years in a coal mine.

That well-known and much-coveted pitch for seaside entertainers known as the "Happy Valley," has been let by the Southend Corporation to Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, who will present during the coming summer talented companies, with Charles Osborne, the well-known writer, as manager.

The Colchester Hippodrome Company, which was registered on March 10, has been formed to acquire the leasehold theatre and other premises situate in High-street and East Stockwell-street, Colchester, now known as the Grand Theatre, and hereafter to be called the Colchester Hippodrome, and to adapt an agreement with Mr. E. M. Davey. Mr. Walter de Frece and Mr. Fred Mouillot are the first directors.

A music-hall artist, named Allen, who had been appearing with Donaldson Brothers and Ardell in a zoological sketch, was drowned on Monday morning whilst on a passage from Holyhead to Greenore on board the Connemara. The company was on its way to Belfast, where it is playing the sketch this week. No one witnessed the occurrence, but it is supposed that Allen was thrown overboard owing to the lurching of the vessel. No cry was heard from the deceased after the fall, and the theory of the captain was that he had been drawn in by the suction of the ship, and probably killed or stunned by a blow on the head by one of the propeller blades. The deceased was fully dressed and wore a heavy overcoat, so that he had little chance of keeping afloat in a rough sea even though he had been an expert swimmer. The steamer stopped and searched for an hour without finding any trace of the body.

Allen resided with his mother and brother at Doddington-grove, Kennington. He had been connected with the Donaldson company for almost a year, and had previously assisted his brother, Morny Cash, in pantomime, and had already gained a reputation as a clever and versatile performer. The company includes a substitute for Mr. Allen, and, in order not to inconvenience the management of the Palace, they appeared at both performances on Monday night, and have fulfilled their engagement during the week.

Mr. Fred Donaldson undertook the painful task of breaking the sad news to the relatives of the deceased. On Monday he sent the following message to Mr. Morny Cash:—"Poor Harry fell overboard at three o'clock this morning seven miles out from Holyhead. Ship searched for one hour; everything possible done, but body not recovered. Will write. Accept deepest sympathy from all.—Fred Donaldson." Another brother of the deceased, who has been touring in Australia with the Boy Glen company, was expected to arrive at Southampton on Monday, and the brothers had been anticipating a pleasant reunion after a long separation.

Mr. Harry Burns, the manager of the Empress Theatre, Hartlepool, has taken over the Circus in Lynn-street, West Hartlepool. After the necessary alterations and decorations are completed, his intention is to run it as a music-hall with two performances a night.

The management of the Southampton Hippodrome, at the second performance on Tuesday night, had the honour of entertaining the Japanese Ambassador, Viscount Hayashi, his son M. Hayashi, and Mr. R. Neglishi, Mr. R. Nagashima, Mr. J. Matsundaira, Mr. G. Ukita, Mr. G. Nishino, and Mr. J. Okubo (members of the Japanese Embassy). His Excellency and party were received by Mr. Sydney Paxton and Mr. Percy Aldin (acting-manager), who escorted them to the two boxes reserved for their use. On their entry the audience applauded enthusiastically, and the band struck up the Japanese National Anthem, specially arranged by the chef d'orchestre Mr. J. H. Shackleton. During the performance Viscount Hayashi made an inspection of the building, accompanied by Mr. Paxton and Mr. Aldin, and expressed interest and pleasure at what he saw.

Shortly before 10 o'clock the Mayor (Councillor H. Cawte) and Town Clerk (Mr. R. R. Linthorne) visited the Hippodrome, and had a brief interview with his Excellency. At the conclusion of the performance, prior to the Bioscope pictures being shown, a large Japanese national flag was brought on to the stage and stretched out to full extent by two commissionaires, the orchestra meanwhile playing the Japanese National Anthem. Mr. Aldin in a few words expressed the pleasure the management felt at being privileged to welcome so distinguished a guest. He then called upon the audience to give three cheers, which were vigorously accorded. His Excellency repeatedly bowed his acknowledgments.

During the run of the pantomime of Mother Goose at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, the members of the company have been very much taken up with golf, and three rubbers between Mr. Wilkie Bard and Mr. J. M. Chute have created a great deal of interest, on account of the very even play. In the first rubber Mr. Chute won two games out of three, and in the second Mr. Wilkie Bard was successful by two games to one. In the third rubber Mr. Wilkie Bard claimed the first game, and Mr. Chute secured the second. The position, therefore, on Saturday last, which was fixed for the final game, was dead level, each player having a rubber and a game to his credit. In the afternoon Mr. J. M. Chute and Mr. Wilkie Bard played off this game at Failand, when Mr. Chute gained the victory by three up and one to play.

Mr. Georg Hackenschmidt has presented Mr. Julius Simpson with a gold-mounted ebony stick as a souvenir of his recent visit to the Palace, West Hartlepool.

Bessie Knight, the sister of Alma Obrey and sister-in-law of Bob Baxter, the "genial one," made her appearance at the Leicester Pavilion on Monday, and met with an ovation. Miss Knight, who is a good-looking and well-set-up young girl, inherits much of the talent of her sister. She has a capital voice and style, and as a buck-dancer she is very smart. She has evidently a successful career before her.

Mrs. George H. Smythson, upon resuming work at the Palace, Blackpool, on Monday, was the recipient of many letters of congratulation on her recovery from her very dangerous illness, during which the rôles in A Tea-House Flirtation were admirably portrayed by her talented niece, Miss Ciss Smythson, and equally talented daughter, Miss Indiana Smythson.

Miss Fanny Robina has just finished a most gratifying tour with Moss and Stoll, and is now appearing with always the same success on the Messrs. Broadhead's tour.

Miss Alice Hollander shortly produces at the Empress, Brixton, Messrs. Lawrance and Mellor's fine chorus song. "Why don't you paddle your own canoe?" It is published by Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Messrs. O'Malley and Brown, owing to their success in Liverpool last week, were immediately booked to return at an early date to the Parthenon. They have also been secured by Messrs. D. J. Clarke, George Peel, T. P. Duignan, Fred W. Warden, Fred Willmott, and other managers. They are booking very rapidly with their new comedy sketch, The Day I Came Back, by Johnny Danvers. They have also purchased half-rights, from Fred Curran, of Murphy and Lipton's latest original medley, Our Dog.

Miss Peggy Pryde, under the skilful care of Dr. Sanford Arnott, and with the tender nursing that is lavished on her at Miss Ryan's Surgical Home, is rapidly recovering from her severe operation. She is now allowed to see friends, and would welcome a visit from some of them.

Mr. George Scott, of the Alhambra, will entertain three hundred of the Japanese sailors on Monday and three hundred more on Tuesday. In addition to the excellent current programme, the Urbanora pictures of the Russo-Japanese War will be shown on the Bioscope. The gallant tars will also be regaled with creature comforts.

Miss Nellie Wallace, another distinguished invalid, we are pleased to hear, is fast recovering from her recent operation, and anticipates resuming business in a week or two.

Mrs. Jack Camp desires us to state, in answer to numerous enquiries, that her husband is not dead as reported, but owing to nervous breakdown is at present in a private nursing home. We are glad to hear that the doctors give every hope of the popular comedian's recovery, but that may not be immediate.

Miniature Marie, we are glad to hear, has ventured to be up and about again. It is very soon after her illness, but the popular comedienne says she is only happy when working, and talks of starting within a few weeks. She is having special songs written for her by Mr. William Hargreaves, and novel costumes are being designed by Miss Lily Woolf.

Coram, the ventriloquist, who on Saturday last completed a long and successful engagement at the Lyceum, is in the provinces this week. On his return to London he will appear at the Palace Theatre, and later in the year will go to America.

Miss Margaret Ashton was a saloon passenger on the R.M.S. Aragon, which left Southampton on Friday for Lisbon. The charming American soprano is proceeding to Cintra, and it is hoped that with the sea voyage and complete change of climate she will soon regain her accustomed health.

Lent does not lend itself to many changes of programme at the variety theatres, but the release of comedians from pantomime engagements usually strengthens the bill at most music-halls. Mr. Bransby Williams, who made his first appearance in pantomime last Christmas at Liverpool, and was such a success at the Shakespeare Theatre, where the pantomime outlasted many other provincial productions and equalled the run of Cinderella at Drury Lane, will appear at the Empire in Leicester-square on Monday next. This will be his only appearance in London this season, and for the first time he will give at the premier variety theatre his impersonations of Dickens's characters, beginning with Barnaby Rudge.

Mr. Bransby Williams, like many other actors, is extremely superstitious, and a great believer in luck. He has never yet given his impersonation of Barnaby Rudge without carrying on the stage the stick he was presented with—a stick cut from a tree in the garden of the Old King's Head at Chigwell—the Maypole Inn celebrated in Dickens's novel. The other day Mrs. Williams was taking it down to Liverpool, where he was to play Barnaby Rudge at his benefit, and unfortunately left it in the train. It was traced to the Cunarder Umbria, and the captain of the Cedric, following the first vessel to New York, undertook to reclaim the missing property. He did so, and the stick was returned across the Atlantic, and carried as usual by Bransby Williams when he appeared as Barnaby Rudge.

The Secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received a cheque for £25 from Messrs. Nicholson and Pemberton, solicitors of Liverpool, being the amount bequeathed by the will of the late Mr. George James Smith, of that city, to the Fund.

At the last meeting of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund the committee investigated thirty-three applications for relief and granted assistance in twenty-seven instances.

Mme. Alice Esty, during her last engagement at the Coliseum had to sing at both the three o'clock and nine o'clock performances daily. It was impossible, therefore, for her to make the excerpts longer; but now that the Lord Chamberlain's licence has been obtained, and Mme. Esty's work limited to one house only, grand opera excerpts lasting about half an hour will be made a feature of the six o'clock performance, commencing with Cavalleria Rusticana on April 9, with Mme. Esty as Santuzza.

For these six o'clock performances only special prices of admission have been arranged: Fauteuils and orchestra stalls will be 3s. and 2s. 6d. respectively; Royal stalls, 2s.; grand tier stalls, 1s. 6d.; grand tier, 1s.; and balcony, 6d. Any seat can be booked in advance.

The Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empires, Ltd., at the annual meeting recommended the payment of a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, and it was decided to place £3,000 to the reserve fund.

Messrs. Alf. J. Lawrance and Harry Gifford, the well-known song-writers, have this week joined forces with Mr. Tom Mellor, the popular part author-composer of "Little Wooden Hut" and "Bamboo Bungalow." The combination promises to be a very strong one.

The 455th meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association was held at the offices in Wellington-street on Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. Joe O'Gorman (in the chair), J. Alexander, Harry Blake, Frank Gerald, George Gray, Bob Leonard, Jeff Vendome, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, and letters submitted to the executive. A complaint by a member with regard to a transfer ticket was read, and the secretary was instructed to forward the letter to the theatrical agent of one of the railways affected. Another member wrote with regard to a claim for lost luggage, and the secretary was instructed to write to the company. Mr. Stanley Baskerville, of the Hippodrome, Maidstone, was appointed local agent for the Association, and a letter was read from Mr. Wm. Trussell, of the Palace, Southampton, in which he accepted the agency for that town. The secretary reported the addition of forty-four new members, and the financial statement showed that the total receipts for the week amounted to £50 14s. 6d. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.

His Excellency the French Ambassador, accompanied by several members of his suite, occupied the Royal box at the Italian Circus on Thursday, the 15th inst., the occasion of Mr. Edwin Gilley's (the manager) benefit. An immense programme, to which a large number of well-known artists contributed, formed the evening's entertainment. On behalf of the French residents in London, Mr. Gilley was presented with a diploma of honour and a gold medal, while the presentation on behalf of the staff took the form of a beautiful illuminated address, a diamond ring, and a ruby and pearl necklace for Mrs. Gilley. A collection made amongst the audience in aid of the victims of the French mining disaster was handsomely subscribed to.

Mr. Alfred Moul (chairman of the board of the Alhambra Company, Ltd.) has agreed, at the unanimous request of his colleagues, to combine the work of managing direction with his chairmanship. The appointment is in perfect harmony with all existing arrangements, and will but serve to somewhat more prominently identify Mr. Moul's personality with the administrative control of the Alhambra.

Impressed by the qualities of the productions of M. Victor de Cottens, whose revues at the Chatelet Theatre and the Folies-Bergères are attracting crowded audiences to those theatres, Mr. Stoll has brought the talented author to London, where, with the assistance of special artists, he is acquiring the necessary local colouring, and embodying his impressions in the book he is writing for the London Coliseum.

The comic element is perhaps the weakest portion of English revues, and M. Cottens' chief aim will be to evoke genuine laughter, fun of the brightest order being characteristic of all his efforts. But the mounting will be exceptionally beautiful, one of the scenes excelling anything ever seen on the stage.

M. Victor de Cottens is the king of the Paris "revue." His Cinq Cents Coups du Diable, playing now at the Chatelet, brings a thousand people on the stage! At the Coliseum we shall have three hundred. Tom E. Murray is to be the "compère" of the review, and Miss Godwynne Earle will emerge from her retirement to play the "commère." The scenery and "properties" are all being done in Paris.

Helped by special artists, M. de Cottens has for three months been studying the characteristics of London, and writing his book according to the impressions gained. The character of the piece that he is now completing is humorous, but spectacle on a grand scale—opera, ballet, pantomime, and musical comedy all enter into its scheme. He adapted The Country Girl for Paris; but his successes have not been confined merely to revues. At the Palais Royal he produced Cheri, a vaudeville in three acts, and at the Gymnase Le Guet Apene, a little comedy which has become classic. Le Pompier de Service and Le Papa de Francine are also children of M. de Cottens' brain.

In the House of Commons on Wednesday, Mr. C. D. Schwann asked the Home Secretary whether his attention had been drawn to the pictures of coursing for the Waterloo Cup, depicting the death agonies of a hare, which appeared on the Biograph at the Palace Theatre; and whether he proposed to take any steps to stop the continuance of this spectacle. Mr. Herbert Gladstone replied that he had made inquiries, and the pictures to which objection had been raised had been withdrawn.

Last week the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., advertised their song, "Slumber, My Little Babe." In justice, it must be said that this number was first sung by Mr. Arthur Rigby in the Camden Theatre pantomime, in which he made a big hit. It is now being featured with much success by Miss Alice Hollander in all her engagements.

Mr. T. G. Hales, of 40, Wellington-street, Strand, proudly boasts of possessing the largest stock of animals for stage purposes in the United Kingdom. No spectacle of any note has been produced within the last twenty-five years without the assistance of Mr. Hales, who was the originator and producer of the first Derby with real horses in The Run of Luck, presented by the late Sir Augustus Harris at Old Drury. The gallant steeds that drag the chariot of Nero at His Majesty's also belong to him, and the plunging horses in the latest Hippodrome spectacle, The Flood, are his. His stud of ponies numbers over a hundred, and twenty-two of them are working in the Drury Lane pantomime. It will be gathered from our remarks that no contract for providing animals in spectacles is too great for the enterprising Hales, of Wellington-street.

In the House of Commons on Monday Mr. Lea, the member for East St. Pancras, asked the Home Secretary whether his attention had been called to a case tried before Mr. Justice Darling on the 13th inst.; and if he would consider the advisability of issuing regulations prohibiting performances in public that might entail danger to the lives or limbs of the performers. Mr. Thompson, the member for East Somerset, also had a similar question on the paper. Mr. Gladstone, in his reply, said that his attention had been called to the case referred to; but as it appeared that the performer was over eighteen years of age (the present statutory limit for women taking part in such performances) the police could not interfere. He regretted to say that he had no power to issue regulations prohibiting such performances, but he would consider whether it was desirable to extend the provisions of the Dangerous Performances Acts, 1879 and 1897, to dangerous performances by women of any age.

Mr. T. J. Colquhoun, joint lessee and manager with Mr. Barney Armstrong at the Queen's, Glasgow, issued a fine bill for his well-deserved complimentary bespeak at the above house for Friday evening. Many of the leading artists at the various halls in the city were down to appear. "Barney," of course, is in the list, and Ben Jordan and Jabez White assist, as does Mr. W. I. Ashcroft, in addition to the Tivoli and Queen's companies.

Miss Gipsy Woolf and her Piccaninnies are making a hit at the Apollo Theatre, Berlin, where they are appearing every evening this month. Their coon songs, effective dances, and pretty dresses make one of the most delightful numbers in the programme, and the applause is proportionately great. This is Miss Woolf's first visit to Berlin, but there is every reason to believe it will soon be repeated. From here the clever artist and her Picaninnies go to Stettin, returning to London in May. The three months spent on the Continent have been a huge success all round.

The Regal Operatic Party, two ladies and two gentleman, in scenes (costume) from the various operas, will tour the halls and piers during the summer months. The sole responsible manager for the quartet is Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins, the Carl Rosa Company's capable acting-manager for the last three years. Already ten consecutive weeks are booked, and the act will be seen at the Chelsea Palace on May 21.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have received extensive demands from pierrots for their songs, "Mariar" and "I'm not going to say good-bye." These two songs promise to be the successes of the season.

Miss Vesta Tilley, who scored such a triumphant success at the Hippodrome, Southampton, last week, presented Mr. J. Howard Shackleton on Saturday night with a handsome ebony silver-mounted baton as a token of her esteem. Miss Tilley highly complimented Mr. Shackleton on the excellence of his band, adding that it was a pleasure to work to such a fine combination of musicians. During his short stay in Southampton Mr. Shackleton has made hosts of friends, and is naturally very proud of his model band.

The annual ball of that popular fraternity known as the Water Rats attracted a large attendance on Tuesday night to the Balmoral Rooms of the Trocadero. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe O'Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martinetti, Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Frank Travis, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Christian, Mrs. Dan Leno (accompanied by her son), Mr. and Mrs. Phil Ray, Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. Fred Miller, Mr. Charles Pastor, Miss Ray Wallace, Mr. William Cobbett, Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Francis, Mr. Louis de Reeder, Mr. James Fioni, Mr. Frank Cass, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rees, Mr. Frank Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Jordan and Harvey, Mrs. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Bohd Sayres (Miss Dolly Morrell), Miss Daisy James, Mr. and Mrs. Ryder Slone, and many others.

Mr. Harry Rickards writes to us as follows from Sydney, under date Feb. 13:—"You will be pleased to know that business throughout the whole of my circuit is very good. At present I have the following companies entertaining:—Le Roy, Talma and Bosco, Kelly and Agnes, Gibson Girls, Collier Sisters, George Bentley, Nita Leete (touring New Zealand), Hill and Whitaker, A. G. Spry, Tom Dawson, Irving Sayles, Les Warton, Fanning and Elliott, Ella Wellington, Ernest Wiseman, and Bella Perman and Maud Perman at the Palace Gardens, Perth, Western Australia.

"At the Opera House, Melbourne, the company includes:—Raymond and Kurkamp, the Eight English Primroses, the Two Bells, Frederick Barnard's Marionettes, Bert Danson, Crimmins and Gore, Percy Denton, Arthur Albert, Tim Howard, Olive Robinson, Jim Marion, Jessie Lee, and Freda Nelman.

"At the Tivoli Theatre, Sydney:—Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, the Jackson Family, Sisters Warner, the Scottish Meisters, Ada Cerito, Olive Lenton, Florence Challis, Post Mason, Alf Lawton, Hilda Lane, Carlton and Sutton, Rochfort and Hart, Ethel Preston, Baby Watson, Leeds and Le Mar, and also, I am pleased to tell you, I am appearing myself with as much success as ever.

"Artists arriving in the near future are Tambo and Tambo (Feb. 24), the Miles-Stavordale Quintet (March 3), Martinetti and Grossi (March 10), Three Sisters Lee (March 17), Mlle. Omega and the Onatis Troupe (April 7), Slade Murray (April 14), Larolla and Cabani (April 21), Mason, Keeler Co. (April 28), and Lilieth Leyton (May 5). I am pleased to tell you that all the engagements made by me during my recent visit to England have so far proved themselves successes. Le Roy, Talma and Bosco's New Zealand tour terminates on the 17th inst., when they proceed to the Adelaide Tivoli Theatre, then Perth Theatre Royal, where they close their Australian engagement on March 31, and sail for England per Orontes on April 2."

Mr. H. Chance Newton deals in his cheery style with the "barring clause" in this week's issue of the Free Lance. Mr. Newton traverses the question thoroughly, and arrives at the conclusion that the stronger position is held by the managers. "We often protest bitterly (at least many of us do)," he writes, "against the theatrical trusts represented here by certain American managers, but what about these huge variety trusts? I know, from long personal experience, that all the men concerned with these syndicates are honourable men, and that they conscientiously do their best for their fellow members and shareholders. But while enterprises of this variety pith and moment are in the hands of these syndicates and limited companies, what chance is the artist likely to get for having his grievances redressed unless he is what is called in musichallese, 'the biggest of big top-liners'?"

Mr. David Day desires to acknowledge the sum of £6 from Drury Lane Theatre, through Mr. Sidney Smith, and one guinea from Miss Marie Burnand, of Dublin, which have been sent as contributions to the George Le Brunn Fund.

Eight medical students were summoned at Leeds on Tuesday for taking part on the 14th inst. in a disturbance at the Tivoli Music Hall, arising out of a performance conducted by Dr. Walford Bodie. During the disturbance, which at one time was alarming, the police were called in, and the rioters, numbering nearly a hundred, were ejected. Several of the officers received blows from the rioters, most of whom were armed with sticks, which they used freely, and considerable damage was done to the internal arrangements of the building. It was alleged that the police had used their batons, but this was denied, although it was admitted they protected themselves with sticks and other weapons, which they wrested from the rioters. Defendants were dismissed.

Large numbers of popular favourites will appear at next Monday's benefit matinée to Mr. James Howell at the Tivoli. By permission of the Alhambra directors a couple of numbers will be given from the beautiful ballet, Parisiana. Leading turns will also be given by Lily Charlene, Sybil Arundale, Victoria Monks, Ida Rene, Lucy Clarke, Coram, The Follies, Harry Lauder, Arthur Roberts, Eugene Stratton, James Welch, Charles Bertram, Florence St. John and company in My Milliner's Bill, and many others.

Miss Lil Hawthorne has this week secured an entirely new and original song-scena from Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, entitled "My Cosy Caravan," for production shortly at the Coliseum.

Mr. J. F. Lambe, the actor-author, is very superstitious in what he describes as the lucky "No. 7." If the figure 7 should be on his train, 'bus, or railway ticket it generally brings him luck. This week he has the unique experience of having seven of his songs sung by seven different artists at seven different London halls. The artists are Miss Victoria Monks, Jessie Preston, Rose Hamilton, Dolly Harmer, Mr. Ernest Rees, Jack and Geo. Preston; and the halls—the Oxford, London Pavilion, Canterbury, Chelsea, Camberwell, the London, and Cambridge. During the week Mr. Lambe has supplied Miss Preston, Miss Rose Hamilton, Miss Dolly Harmer, and Jack Preston with precisely seven new songs inclusive.

Barney Stuart, the popular Dublin character-actor and vocalist, who, like his brother Tom, is ever a welcome visitor to Belfast, has a great fondness for articles of "virtue and bigotry," and his habit of curio-hunting has led to the discovery of a long-lost Parnell relic. Bournemouth possesses a number of old curiosity shops, and in one of these, whose proprietor is a pawnbroker, Mr. Stuart noticed a beautiful silver casket, studded with emeralds and other gems. Upon it was a bold inscription proving it to be the casket presented to Charles Stewart Parnell by the borough of Drogheda on April 15, 1884, which, together with the famous Kilmainham chair, has never been seen since the sale of the great statesman's effects.

The pawnbroker wanted a thousand guineas to redeem the casket, and Barney hadn't that amount "on him" at the time. But he very thoughtfully wrote to Mr. Henry Campbell, Town Clerk of Dublin, and formerly Parnell's private secretary, acquainting him with the great find. In due course he received the following courteous reply:—"I beg to thank you most sincerely for your communication of the 22nd inst., and also for the trouble you have taken in connection with the silver casket presented by the Drogheda Borough Council to the late Charles Stewart Parnell. I shall be glad if you will let me have the address of the pawnbroker in question, and I shall do my best to find a better 'resting-place' for the casket."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

Parisiana, one of the brightest and most elaborate ballets at the Alhambra, passed into a second edition on Monday, when a very large audience received the beautiful production with all the hearty enthusiasm of a first night. In its original form, Parisiana had a melodramatic scene, which was specially introduced for Mlle. Jane May, in order to give her an opportunity to display her wonderful command of pantomime; but, with the departure of the French artist, the scene referred to has gone by the board, and a more joyous note is sounded in the fine scene on the Grand Boulevard (Evening), in which the brushwork of Mr. Philip Howden again appeals to the artistic sense of the amusement-lover. Herein, the elaborate divertissement, which is a perfect whirl of gaiety and brilliancy, is led by Misses Edith Slack, G. Cormani, Mabel Hunt, L. Bryant, Mme. Cormani, and La Sylphe, assisted by Messrs. Henri Frielli, Santini, Tom Coventry, E. Almonti, G. Almonti, Artelli, and G. Rosi. Outside a noted café we are shown incidents of Parisian life in eloquent dumb-show, the comic element predominating. Other developments in the direction of brightness and fun are to be discovered in the Blanchisserie, wherein the soldiers of Pichegru make love to some pretty laundresses, and the beautiful frocks to be seen in the Grand Magasins du Printemps are the envy of every lady visitor to the Alhambra. In the final scene, La Fête de Neuilly, we are once more impressed by the wonderful example of ingenious initiative and admirable stage-management on the part of Mr. Charles Wilson, and a perfect triumph is secured by the Parisian dance, "La Maxixe," which is performed by Q. Papucci, Nellie Hill, Belle Davis, G. Cormani, Julie Reeves, MM. Santini, G. Rosi, and that supple eccentric American dancer La Sylphe. Mr. James Glover's music is always most catchy and inspiriting; and we may safely say that never has the art of the scene-painter, the ballet-master, the composer, and the costumier been more happily combined than in the Alhambra's delightful production of Parisiana.

The Urbanora pictures form one of the most interesting features of the programme, and Mr. Charles Urban, with the unexampled enterprise that has made his name world famous, puts before us some illustrations of the utility of elephants in a Burma teak forest, where the strength of the enormous pachyderms is employed in clearing the jungle, hauling teak logs, and pushing, rolling, and stacking heavy timber. The scene was viewed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales during his recent Burmese visit.

The variety turns include Charlene and Charlene, in their drawing-room entertainment. The gentleman of the twain is a juggler of remarkable attainments. He starts his show with such ordinary articles as a greatcoat, a hat, an umbrella, and a cigar; he does wonderful tricks with a fiddle and bow, even going so far as to play it while he balances a tall hat on its rim on his forehead; and he finishes his performance with ingenious juggling with illuminated lamps, the effect with a darkened stage being very pretty. Mlle. Charlene plays artistically on the xylophone, and obliges with the overture to Poet and Peasant, which she follows with a selection of Irish and American airs. The four Harveys present a very skilful exhibition of wire-walking, the chief novelty of which is a funambulistic cake-walk by a couple of well-shaped and pretty girls belonging to the quartet. Urbani and Son astonish nightly by the originality of their finely-executed and graceful gymnastic feats, in which they entirely dispense with apparatus. Miss Alice Dianda's educated monkey, which puts a diminutive dog through his paces, is the funniest animal we have seen on the stage for a long time; and the other turns included in the excellent programme are the Flying Zedoras, in a trapeze act; Miss Gladys Witton, a juvenile contralto; and Sam Elton, a humorous and original juggler, whose entertainment nightly elicits the loudest laughter. "A Scene in Holland," a pretty excerpt from the late ballet, My Lady Nicotine, is a much appreciated opening item. Mr. George Scott may be congratulated on the general excellence of the programme, which derives much of its attractiveness from the selection played by the band, under Mr. George Byng.

ROYAL STANDARD.

An inebriated swell and his riotous behaviour in association with a number of music hall performers and others behind the scenes at a variety theatre mainly constitute the fun of the wordless absurdity, Front and Behind, presented by the Cratons' pantomime company on Monday at the Standard, Pimlico, to the evident enjoyment of the audience. The first scene represents the exterior of "an up-to-date music hall," and here a gentleman, in evening dress in an advanced state of intoxication, endeavours to pass through the stage-door—in pursuit of a lady artist. For a time he is kept outside, but after receiving severe treatment at the hands of a shoeblack, policeman, newsboy, &c., he manages to gain admittance. "Behind the scenes" shows the interior of both the ladies' and gentlemen's dressing-rooms. In the former a fair damsel in the scanty attire of a lady of the ballet is just putting the finishing touches to her "make-up," the other occupant of the room being an artist disguised as Miss Nellie Wallace—a very funny impersonation. Representatives of George Robey, Harry Lauder, R. G. Knowles, and other stars are dressing in the opposite room; and the call-boy and manager are other prominent personages in the scene. Much amusement is created by the inebriated gentleman's endeavours to enter the ladies' room, but for a time he has to content himself with gazing through the keyhole. Eventually he flirts with the low comedienne—a most ludicrous proceeding—and when a telegram arrives announcing that La Tortajada is indisposed, and will not be able to appear, he is persuaded to don the costume of the celebrated Spanish dancer, and go on the stage. His reception is anything but flattering, and, after being pelted with vegetables and other missiles, he has to fight the manager, finally being carried off by a policeman. The obvious humour of the trifle and the knockabout business with which it so plentifully abounds pleased the audience immensely, and it was played to almost unceasing laughter. Mr. Harry Royston made a grotesque figure as La Tortajada, and worked hard and successfully throughout as the bibulous individual who plays such an important part in the absurdity; and the numerous other characters were all admirably played, the "fearful and wonderful impersonations" of numerous footlight favourites being admirable portraits in some instances.

Another pleasing novelty in Mr. T. S. Dickie's varied programme was A Day at the Seaside, a musical playlet for which Hicks's Clerks were responsible. In this the head of the combination appears as Major Copum, an elderly swell who is smitten with the charms of a couple of young ladies out for the day, and invites them to dine with him. Much merriment was created by the efforts of the Major to carve the "joint," and the arrival of the cheese, of course, provides food for hilarity. Little Peter makes a very droll personage of the Waiter, and the numerous musical and terpsichorean numbers given by the troupe—especially the rendering of "The Death of Nelson" by one of the ladies and an attractive umbrella dance—were loudly acclaimed. Mr. T. E. Finglass, a coon impersonator with a good voice and style, scored his greatest success with a love song of a jealous darkey, "She's going to wed a white man"; his other number, "The Unlucky Coon," also gaining approval. Mr. Harry Bedford, who appeared in place of Mr. J. E. Coyle, created unmistakable hilarity with his popular number, "The Second-hand Aristocrat," in which he appears as a seedy swell, whose wardrobe is composed of the left-off clothing of various noblemen and other prominent personages. His first contribution, "Walk round, Eliza," was also of a laughable nature. McGovan and McGovan, a pair of exceptionally smart and clever dancers, were accorded some of the heartiest applause heard during the evening for their expert acrobatic dancing and clean high-kicking; and Mr. Tod Lowen, a comedian with a funny style and excellent voice for comic singing, contributed a couple of nonsense ditties that quite had the desired effect.

One of the most attractive items in the programme was the vaudeville act of Roy and Calden entitled Peculiarities. The gentleman, who indulges in much amusing repartee with his fair partner, is a clever dancer, and has a very funny mock death scene, and the concluding dance of the happily associated couple is also greatly appreciated, the smartly worked and entertaining interlude being of such an agreeable nature that an encore was demanded on the night of our visit. Hans and Lux, cross-talk comedians and dancers, submitted some amusing conversation and a well-executed dance, for which they were loudly applauded, and the finished and confident manner in which the Olmars accomplished numberless difficult feats on the triple bars elicited much approval. Miss Violet Francis, the Sainsburys, Mr. Gus Dallon, Sachs and Sachs, and a new series of animated pictures shown by the Edisonograph also contributed to the enjoyment of the audience.

HOUNSLOW HIPPODROME.

Business continues good here, consequent on the attractive fare provided by the enterprising management. On the occasion of our visit we found the cosy hall thronged with an enthusiastic audience. Mr. Ernie Mayne, a comedian of ability, started the fun with some mirth-provoking ditties, a parody on the popular "Wooden Hut" ballad being in its way excellent. Then came a couple of bright duettists—the Sisters Hypatia. Their first contribution, "The Smartest Girl in Town," won immediate recognition; their dances, too, were full of "go," and their energy remarkable. Mr. James Day, who has resigned the Post Office for the variety stage, amazed the audience with his handcuff tricks. Quiet, unassuming, with an absence of bluff, he readily won the confidence of the audience. His letter-box feat was really remarkable. A clever couple, the Lurins, caused endless hilarity in a neat sketch, The Abode of Love. Both artists sung admirably, their business and patter being excellent and winning recognition. Mr. Fred Neiman, a ventriloquist of undoubted ability, brought on his dusky-coloured folk, and developed quite a lot of fun out of them, to say nothing of melody. In quite smart uniforms of Hussar type the five Casino Girls took possession of the stage. They are a band of clever instrumentalists, and their selection from Faust was cleverly interpreted. They evoked quite a hurricane of applause with a post-horn gallop, and proved one of the successes of the evening. The bioscope scene, "Life of an American Policeman," went to prove that Mr. Gilbert's dictum applies equally well on "the other side of the pond" that "a policeman's lot is not a happy one." Mr. Lennox Barry still looks after the front of the house here, and his courtesy is recognised on all sides. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Robert Moss, does well; in fact, the Hounslow Hipprodrome is booming.

DAMAGES FOR ACCIDENT.

Considerable interest was evinced by musicians and those connected with music halls in a case which engaged the attention of his Honour Judge P. Gye for several hours in the Southampton County Court on Tuesday. Sidney George Kendall, tailor and musician, of High-street, Bitterne, sued Fred Karno, pantomime troupe proprietor, of Coldharbour-lane, London, to recover the sum of £100 damages for personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the negligence of the defendant or his servants in overturning a coffee stall on Oct. 3, 1905, on the stage at the Palace of Varieties, Southampton. The particulars of expenses were nine weeks' loss of salary as violoncellist at £1 7s. 6d. per week, £13 7s. 6d.; £5 5s., charges of Dr. Edmund S. Hall for professional services; £1 loss of four concert fees as violoncellist; and £11 14s. payment to tailor's cutter and tailors for work done. Mr. S. H. Emanuel, LL.D. (instructed by Messrs. Hallett and Martin, Southampton), appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. W. B. Campbell (instructed by Messrs. Stanley, Woodhouse, and Hedderwick, London) for the defendant.

In opening the case, Mr. Emanuel stated that the claim was for personal injuries, which were sustained on the evening of Oct. 3, under circumstances which he would shortly detail. The plaintiff was a working tailor, and he also added to his income by playing the violoncello at the Palace Theatre of Varieties. On the night in question he was sitting in that part of the music hall which was reserved for the orchestra. He had his right shoulder towards the stage, but whether he was in the act of playing he (the learned counsel) did not know, and a performance was proceeding on the stage by the defendant's company. He (the learned counsel) did not know whether his Honour knew, but Fred Karno had a number of companies, of which that playing at the Palace Theatre of Varieties was one, playing a turn at the music halls. The particular turn the defendant's company in Southampton was playing in was a piece called The Early Birds, a kind of pantomime. He did not intend to tell his Honour the plot, but one of the necessary things in the performance was that there was brought on in one part a coffee stall. It came from the prompt side of the stage, and was taken over to the other side, called the "O.P. side." He did not know what that meant.

Mr. Campbell: Opposite prompt.

Mr. Emanuel, continuing, said the handle of the coffee stall was towards the wings on the O.P. side, and close to the footlights. Naturally, a piece of this sort would not go properly without a policeman in it. Whether the policeman jumped into the coffee stall he did not know; but someone jumped into it, and one or two performers took hold of the handle, turned the stall round, and ran off the stage with somebody who had jumped into the tail end of it. The performance was very amusing, and Mr. Fred Karno, who was in front witnessing it, took the profits of the turn. There were two performances in the evening, and at the second performance the coffee stall was wheeled round, not in the usual way, but a way that was negligent and improper. It turned over on its side, and the roof became detached. The plaintiff was just able to move his head in time to prevent his skull being smashed by the roof, which fell into the orchestra on the plaintiff's shoulder, breaking the shoulder blade. Plaintiff claimed £100 for the loss he had sustained and the pain and suffering he had been put to. He was laid up for nine weeks. Mr. Karno, when spoken to, never repudiated liability, and had offered £5 to the plaintiff, which was not sufficient to pay the doctor's bill, and there was a denial of negligence on the part of the servants of the defendant.

His Honour said he must regard the action as an undefended one. The accident happened in consequence of the energy of the two "boys" to do the thing smartly which led them to haul the coffee stall away a great deal too fast. The special damages proved was £30 odd, and the plaintiff was undoubtedly seriously injured, and was entitled to a sum for the pain and suffering put upon him. If he gave £30 for that he would not be doing an injustice. He therefore gave judgment for the plaintiff for £60, and costs.

MISS LELIA ROZE

IN BIRMINGHAM.

PRINCE OF WALES'S PANTOMIME.
MISS LELIA ROZE'S BENEFIT.

Miss Lelia Roze, the charming Prince in the popular pantomime of "Cinderella," received a well-deserved benefit last evening. There was a large audience present at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and that they enjoyed themselves was abundantly evident. Many of the artists who are appearing at the other places of amusement in the city kindly gave their services for the occasion, and the special programme was of such a lengthy character that the pantomime had perforce to be curtailed. Amongst those who lent their assistance to the beneficiaire was Miss Ada Reeve, who won warm approval for her singing of the popular song, "Love me just a little, Sue." One of the principal events of the evening was the production of a new musical scena entitled "A Dressing-room Dream," which has been designed and arranged by Miss Roze. It is a charming and dainty musical morsel, which affords her ample opportunity to display her versatility as an actress and as a singer. The scene is the interior of an artist's boudoir, where she has come to snatch a few moments' rest from the bustle and stir of her occupation. She falls asleep and dreams that she is on the stage, and the dream is acted by herself. The stage is darkened and illuminated in turn, and Miss Roze, in suitable costumes, donned during the intervals whilst the stage is in darkness, renders several excellent songs. They are very distinctive in character, and all are good. The sketch met with a hearty reception from last evening's audience, as it doubtless will from other audiences privileged to witness it in the future. During the progress of the pantomime handsome bouquets were presented to the principal lady artists, whilst at the close of her performance Miss Roze herself received some magnificent floral tributes. When the pantomime was concluded, Miss Roze, expressing appreciation of the receptions which had been accorded to her during what she described as the most pleasant engagement in Birmingham, made presentations to Mr. Graham, the manager, and others connected officially with the theatre. Mr. Graham, who received a handsome bouquet of flowers most exquisitely arranged in handsome silver vase, was cordially thanked by Miss Roze for his unfailing courtesy and kindness. Replying, Mr. Graham said he felt sure that Birmingham, with him, would wish that Miss Roze's appearance on this occasion in the city would not be the last. (Applause.) Presentations were afterwards made to Mr. H. Johnston, the acting manager, Mr. T. Barry, stage manager, and Mr. Southwell, the conductor, to whom Miss Roze extended especial thanks for having written music in the scena which she had produced.—Birmingham Daily Post, March 3.

A PRINCELY BENEFIT.

Miss Lelia Roze had a benefit last night at the Prince of Wales's Theatre which outvied even the conquests of "Cinderella." Almost every prominent artist appearing at the Birmingham theatres and halls came to lend their aid to the success of the event, and, although a larger house might have been expected, more enthusiasm and jollity would have been impossible. Miss Lelia Roze herself introduced quite a new scena, which will probably score heavily on the halls. In the sketch the audience catch a glimpse of both dressing-room and stage in an exquisite combination. She introduces several excellent songs, one or two of which are clever studies of types, and perhaps the best was that of the American. Miss Lelia Roze changes her dress for each on the stage. Every artist received bouquets and other presents, and at the close Miss Roze presented souvenirs to most of the theatre staff, amongst them Mr. J. F. Graham, Mr. H. Johnston, Mr. Thomas Barry (stage manager), Mr. W. Southworth (conductor), and even the diminutive call-boy. Among those who ran round to the theatre to help in the merry-making were Miss Ada Reeve, who sang "Sue" in inimitable manner, Miss Minnie Jeffs, Three Sisters Chester, and Mr. Arthur Rigby.—Birmingham Gazette and Express, March 3.

RECIPIENT OF MANY COMPLIMENTS

Miss Lelia Roze, the popular "principal boy" in the Prince of Wales's pantomime, was the recipient of many compliments last night, on the occasion of her benefit. "Cinderella," entertaining enough in itself, was supplemented by the performances of a number of the artists from the other places of amusement, one of the most cordially received being Miss Ada Reeve, who sang her charming coon song, "Love me just a little, Sue." Chief interest, however, centred in the introduction to the public by the beneficiaire of a new musical scena, which she calls "A Dressing-room Dream." This is a charming and original little "turn," and shows how an actress who has come to snatch a few moments' rest in her dressing-room, falls asleep, and dreams of herself in various characters. This gave Miss Roze the opportunity of giving a number of clever impersonations, in which are associated several taking songs. The sketch, which is destined for the music hall stage, was enthusiastically received, and should have a prosperous career. Miss Roze presented several of the managerial staff, including Mr. J. F. Graham, with appropriate souvenirs, and the ladies who appeared received handsome bouquets.—Birmingham Daily Mail, March 3.

A GREAT RECEPTION.

Everyone should see the new and original scena of Miss Lelia Roze, aptly called "A Dressing-room Dream." The talented actress had a great reception last evening, when she appeared fresh from her starring engagement in pantomime. Her fine stage presence, her clever acting and singing, makes her novel turn most acceptable. The scena was produced for the first time at Miss Roze's recent benefit. It is the story of an actress's dream, during which Miss Roze changes into some five different costumes without leaving the stage, and sings as many songs. Then she awakes. The whole incident is cleverly portrayed.—Birmingham Gazette and Express, March 13.

"THE PHANTOM FOOTPAD."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your last Saturday's issue, I read a notice of Mr. Mark Melford's new sketch The Phantom Footpad. I may state that some months ago I purchased from a well-known sketch author a comedy sketch with exactly the same idea and situations as those in Mr. Melford's, viz., the supposed robbery of the watch, &c. I do not wish to claim that idea as my property, for as far back as 1851 the late Maddison Morton wrote a farce entitled The Two Bonnycastles, and used the same idea—the robbery of the watch—upon which the entire plot of the farce was built. (See page 9 The Two Bonnycastles.) In proof of this, I herewith quote Bonnycastle's own words—"I started to run, and came into violent collision with an individual; but no sooner did I recover from the shock, than I found my watch had gone. I rushed after the thief, seized my watch from his fob, and went home. The first thing I saw lying on my dressing-table was my own watch, that I had left behind." My reason for writing this letter is that I may run across Mr. Melford in the music halls, and I have no desire of being accused of stealing Mr. Melford's ideas.—Yours faithfully, HARRY C. YOUNG.

MR. FRED MILLS, with Mr. Lazern and Mlle. Yasiho, was due to arrive at Tilbury on Friday. The popular ventriloquist has returned from his tour of Australia, New Zealand, India, etc., by the Royal Mail steamer "Arabia."

"THE FLOOD."

A Dramatic and realistic Spectacular Episode, written by Arthur Shirley, music by Clarence C. Corri.
Produced at the London Hippodrome on Monday March 19.

Harry Darvill .....MR. HAL FORDE
Wilkins .....MR. BERT GILBERT
Zambarro .....MR. CECIL MORTON YORK
Peter Peel .....MR. J. WINDHAM GUISE
Rosie Tynge .....MISS SIMETA MARSDEN
Lucy Gray .....MISS AIMÉE ROBERTS

The new production at the Hippodrome on Monday is the latest development of what has long been known as the "tank drama." But there are facilities at the big building in the Charing Cross-road for presenting this type of play that are of necessity lacking in the ordinary theatre; and hence Mr. Frank Parker was able to produce the elaborate and wonderfully realistic spectacle which should draw all London to the Hippodrome.

That experienced dramatist, Mr. Arthur Shirley, has done his share of the work by writing a playlet which skilfully leads up to the final catastrophe, the representation of which must have involved much thought and ingenious working out on the part of the producer and those associated with him. The scene is a pretty, picturesque little village. In the background is a stream spanned by a wooden bridge, and still farther away is seen a high cliff, down the face of which water gently drips. On the right stands the rustic old-fashioned inn, close to which a group of villagers are making merry. It is a joyous occasion, for to-day Harry Darvill, a young farmer, has wedded Rosie Tynge, the Belle of Ripplemere. The bridegroom, when he appears with his bonny bride, is called upon to make a speech, and Wilkins, his friend, and best man at the wedding ceremony, is entrusted with the superintendence of the refreshment department. Amid the rejoicings a discordant note is struck by Zambarro, a "strong man," who has himself fallen in love with the bride, and hates his successful rival. Old Peter Peel, the landlord of the village inn, also casts a damper on the proceedings by reminding his neighbours of the great flood that happened when the mountain dam burst fifty years ago. He hints that history may repeat itself at no distant date, but the merry villagers pay only scant attention to his croakings. Zambarro, confident of his ability to prove the victor, offers to wrestle with any man present. There being no response, he calls the yokels cowards, whereupon Harry Darvill accepts the challenge. A strenuous contest follows, but eventually the young farmer gains the victory, much to the delight of the onlookers. Meeting the bride alone, the villain offers her violence, but is quickly flung on one side by her enraged husband. In the meantime a thunderstorm has been gathering, and the gloom is illuminated by brilliant flashes of lightning. Then the storm breaks in earnest, and the rain descends in torrents. A woman on horseback dashes up and warns the villagers that the dam has burst. With shrieks of terror they seek safety by flight. The water now dashes over the rocky height like another Niagara, while horses, dogs, and cattle plunge into the lake that has been formed, and swim across. Men and woman are also seen struggling in the water, and the little inn collapses like a house of cards. But no pen picture can do justice to a scene which is so startling in its realism that it is likely to become the talk of the town.

Mr. Hal Forde as Harry Darvill was a gay and gallant bridegroom, who tackles the villain in right manly fashion; Mr. Bert Gilbert was very amusing in his embodiment of Wilkins, who seeks to avoid a watery grave by climbing a tree that has withstood the flood; Mr. Cecil Morton York was well placed as the morose "strong man," Mr. J. Windham Guise supplied a good sketch of the village innkeeper, Miss Simeta Marsden was an attractive bride, and Miss Aimée Roberts a pleasing bridesmaid. Tiller's Eight Snowdrops introduce a pretty country dance, which is greeted with applause. At the conclusion, Mr. Frank Parker appeared in response to the prolonged applause.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

"Lenten entertainment," as somewhat sneeringly spoken of by Rosencrantz in addressing Hamlet, is unknown to the vocabulary of Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, who, in arranging his programmes for one of the dullest periods of the year, presents his patrons with an exceedingly bright bill of fare. Mr. Barclay's reward comes in the substantial form of crowded and enthusiastic audiences.

The most important item in this week's programme is the appearance of Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians in The Thirsty First, a "new pantomimic absurdity." Practically without any connected story, the three scenes into which the piece is divided resolve themselves into a succession of rough-and-tumble incidents. But, if we are to have clowning, by all means let us have the clowning of Mr. Fred Karno's comedians. The ladies and gentlemen engaged work with unceasing zeal and unflagging energy to secure the laughter of the audience, and, it is but fair to add, succeed in doing so. The scenery is charming, and the military uniforms, albeit of a distinctly "mixed" description to be found in one barracks, are all handsome.

Mr. Brooks immediately renders himself a popular favourite with his inexhaustible humour, first as a daring and amusing fireman, and afterwards with a clever song, "Remedies." A great hit is also made by Boy Glen, who, fresh from his Australian triumphs, pleases everybody with his quaint patter in the broad Lancashire dialect. The Boy is loudly cheered. Miss Lizzie Daniels is a soubrette with considerable attainments, and, if her performance be reminiscent of a distinguished artist now in America, she is no mere imitator. Imitation, however, is well represented by Miss Lillian Elfreda, who accomplishes the unusual task of reproducing to a nicety the characteristics of several male stars of the variety stage, while her imitation of Miss Marie Lloyd is extremely clever. Miss Lily Lena is a charming comedienne, who only requires to possess herself of some better songs to achieve a big success. As it is, the little lady makes a very favourable impression. In place of an entertainment which was promptly removed by Mr. Barclay from the bill after the first night, the Ferrari Duo charm their audiences with their dancing. Both the lady and the gentleman are experts in their line, and combine grace and agility to a remarkable degree. Their performance on Tuesday gave unbounded satisfaction to the crowded house. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope has, as usual, some highly amusing films, and the series representing a local scene, and introducing many well-known personages, receives the warmest applause. The cheers that awaited the appearance of Mr. Barclay and Mr. Geo. F. Slatter at the curtain were eloquent of the esteem in which the management of the Palace are held. Mr. H. Petersen's fine orchestra give a splendid rendering of Beethoven's overture, "The Men of Prometheus." Mr. John Grant, on whom devolves the onerous duties of stage-management, is to be complimented on the smoothness with which the whole programme is carried out.

MISS BILLIE BARLOW writes:—"My attention has been drawn to the fact that photographs are being sent round to the managers, agents, and others in the name of 'Little Billie Barlow.' I wish to point out that the lady in question is no connection of mine, has no right to use my name, is doing so without my consent, and is thereby causing me great annoyance."

THE OXFORD ANNIVERSARY.

Had Mr. Albert Gilmer been called upon for a speech on the night of Friday, the 16th inst., when was celebrated the thirteenth anniversary of the Oxford, he might have given some interesting particulars of the early days of this noteworthy house and its changes and chances and developments under various managements; but the packed and enthusiastic audience towards the end of the evening were like Mrs. Malaprop, they did not wish "to anticipate the past," but rather to rejoice in the present. They were afforded opportunities innumerable of doing this by the efforts of a special company of the principal variety entertainers at present engaged in the metropolis, who were marshalled on to the stage with much celerity by Mr. George Womack, the capable stage-manager. The auditorium was prettily decorated; flowers and flags embellished the fronts of the boxes, and the soft beams of many-hued electric bulbs shed their radiance over the scene. The special floral ornamentation of the stalls saloon was very much admired. It was the work of Mr. Fred Erwood, of Covent Garden, who was responsible for chaste embellishments of a similar character in other parts of the house. One of the successes of the bill was scored by Messrs. Price and Revost, a couple of acrobats—one of them an eccentric of the first rank, who inextricably mixes himself up with the furniture, and keeps the audience laughing all the time. His partner is a wonderful somersaultist. A section of the Oxford audience showed their appreciation of the turn on the anniversary night by shouting in chorus, "We want some more." Mr. George Chirgwin, one of the oldest of the Oxford performers, repeated his famous song, "My fiddle is my sweetheart," and in his patter referred to the celebrated "Jewell case," with a few incidental puns. The superb Miss Alexandra Dagmar sang in her most brilliant style; Miss Violet Elliott gave "The Lost Chord"; Foreman and Fannan amused the audience with their funny song, "The blow killed father"; and Miss Dolly Harmer contributed a cleverly-rendered number. Miss Queenie Leighton, resplendent in the costume of Prince Jasper, came from Drury Lane Theatre with a lady quartet to sing a pretty melody, the success of which was rounded off by an even prettier dance. Miss Victoria Monks repeated her success with "Ain't you going to say good-bye"; Miss May Henderson sang of Joanna; and Kopski chose a classical selection for his pianoforte solo. Mlle. Eugenie Fougère referred in song to the visit of the L.C.C. to Paris, one of the verses in English being written by Mr. Charles Wilmott, and sung by the Gallic comedienne with much success. Mr. Arthur Roberts and company repeated the success of the perversion of His Majesty's play Nero, giving full effect to the funny lines of Mr. Adrian Ross and the excellent music of Augustus Barratt. Excellent work in this production is done by Mr. Stanley Damerell, Miss Frances Kapstowne, Miss Eleanor May, Miss Yates, and Miss Ruby Celeste. Mr. Joe Elvin scored a triumph with his comic concoction Obedient Billy, which was played to an accompaniment of loud laughter. Other turns that were announced on the festival night were Mr. Fred Russell, Mr. Ernest Shand, Ross and Grayson, Mr. Arthur Reece, Kelly and Gillette, Macgovan and Macgovan, Billie Farrell, Mr. Bert Gilbert, Miss Jessie Preston, Mr. Harry Weldon, Miss Daisy James, Mr. V. L. Granville, Mr. Will Evans, and others. Among the people prominent in the variety world that were present we noticed Messrs. Hugh Jay Didcott, Joseph Wilson, George Scott, Harry Lundy, Frank Weeks, Jack Lotto, Marie Lloyd, and Jem Mace.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS

IN GRIMSBY AND PRESTON.

A HOUSE-FILLING BILL.

There will be crowded houses every night at the Palace, Grimsby, for is not Miss Marie Loftus here with her great entertaining capabilities. "Marie," as her delighted admirers like to call her, appears in all her greatest successes, and that is saying a great deal, for she has a very extensive répertoire, one of the most extensive of any artist on the stage. Her burlesque skit on modern dramatic artists is a piece of work which would take any audience by storm, and the Grimsby folk are not slow to grasp its merit. It is absolutely original. Miss Loftus makes up as half-villain and half-heroine, and the effect is tremendous. But even this is not her greatest hit, for her "Singers Past and Present" is quite the most original set of songs it has been our pleasure to listen to for a long period. Scotland, Ireland, and old English fashions are all hit off with the utmost cleverness, and this time the inimitable "Marie" carries everything before her. She is recalled again and again, and yet again. Her work is past all comparison, so far as the local stage is concerned.—Vide Press.

PHENOMENAL SUCCESS AT THE PALACE.

Marie Loftus has appeared before Grimsby audiences before, but, successful as she has been, she is proving even more popular this week at the Palace. For fully half an hour she remains on the platform, and everyone regrets when she leaves at the end of that time. She sings the old favourite, "He kissed me once, how ashamed I was," the story of a country wench's excursion to London, and the very funny song, "Imagination goes a long way." But her principal piece is the sketch, "Singers Past and Present," which explains itself. In cumbrous crinoline she sings an old-time song, in very juvenile costume she impersonates a child. In a smart frock of stars and stripes she gives a Yankee song, and in a staring costume of green and red she sings of Old Ireland. Her burlesque of a music hall nutshell drama is very funny. She comes on as the heroine, but suddenly turns, and appears as the villain, with frock coat and top hat. As the dialogue becomes animated, the rapid changes effected by simply turning towards one side of the stage or the other become very amusing. At the conclusion she fell on the floor, engaged in a fearful struggle to the death with herself. Her Indian song is very picturesque. She comes in from the back of the stage on a canoe, and sings and dances, and her assistant presents a lively Indian dance.—Grimsby Telegraph.

FLATTERING RECEPTION AT PRESTON.

Lively and vivacious as ever, Miss Marie Loftus had a flattering reception last night at the Preston Royal Hippodrome, when she commenced her week's engagement. Very large audiences assembled at both houses, and the popular burlesque actress's efforts were heartily applauded. After an amusing song about a country girl's excursion to London, she gave capital imitations of singers past and present. In cumbrous crinoline she sang an old-time song, and then in very juvenile costume impersonated a child. In a smart frock she rendered an American ditty, and, quickly changing to a costume of green and red, she sang about "Ould Oireland." But she was, perhaps, most successful in her burlesque of the music hall nutshell drama. Coming on to the stage as the heroine, she suddenly turned and appeared as the villain in frock coat and top hat. As the dialogue became animated she took first one part and then the other by quickly changing from side to side, and at the conclusion fell to the floor engaged in a struggle to the death with herself. Her Indian song was also very picturesque.—Vide Press.

THE foundation stone of the Putney Hippodrome will be laid on Saturday week by Sir Henry Kimber, M.P. The building, which is to cost £23,000—or more—has been designed by Mr. F. Hingston. The ceremony will take place at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. F. H. Pedgrift is the hon. treasurer, and he will be pleased to receive filled-up subscription cards addressed to him for publication at 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

MISS MARGARET RADCLIFFE, who will to-night conclude her pantomime engagement at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, of thirteen weeks and one day, playing Allan-a-Dale in The Babes in the Wood, can truly say that the old songs retain their hold on the public. Into the second edition of the pantomime she introduced "Loch Lomond," which has been received with great enthusiasm, and by special request on St. Patrick's night she sang "Dear little shamrock," which was the greatest success of the evening. After one week's rest Miss Radcliffe returns to the halls.

HACKENSCHMIDT and Madrali have at last arranged to meet in a wrestling match at Olympia on April 28, at 9 p.m. Of 60 per cent. of the receipts allotted to them the winner will take 65 and the loser 35 per cent. The men also have a side-bet of £100.

A NEW little dramatic sketch written by Mr. G. Hyde Lees for Miss Davies Webster's and Miss Rose Cazelet's entertainment company is in active preparation. It is being produced under the stage direction of Mr. George P. Hawtrey. Mr. Gordon Bailey, Miss Violet Cecil, Miss Webster, and Miss Cazelet form the cast. The first performance will be on the stage of a private house, but the sketch will probably be seen shortly in public.

LATENT TALENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I read Charles Elton's letter, and now have before me Mr. Fred Baugh's reply. I would like to say, in justice to Mr. Baugh, that two years ago, through the instrumentality of a brother "Pro." I obtained an extra turn at the Foresters on a Thursday afternoon (being unknown in LONDON). There were at least a dozen turns on before me, and I can honestly state they were facilitated and encouraged in every way by Mr. Baugh and his able lieutenants, and as a result of my appearance I obtained several dates.

On the subject of agents and their methods, might I be permitted to say a word? There are one or two of them who take a violent fancy to a "new turn," and book it at establishments where the audiences are totally different, viz., at a first-class hall we get an audience which appreciates a refined "turn." The following week one may be engaged at a hall where a performer in evening dress is like the proverbial red rag to the bull, and is not appreciated. If you do not "catch on" at this particular establishment the agent promptly drops you instead of using a little tact and securing "shops" at suitable places.

I am glad to see that an agency has started in Liverpool whose modus operandi is distinctly "out of the ordinary." Thanking you in anticipation for inserting this letter.—Yours faithfully,

FRED McARTHUR.

Dublin, March 18.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Re the article appearing in your last issue in reference to foreign acts in England by Dave Wallace, does the above gentleman wish to turn the up-to-date English variety theatre back to the year 1706? In all countries I find many artists out of employment through lack of ability, through their acts being too old, or because they have no influence. As is generally the case, the market is over-stocked.

Generally a comic singer, or anyone who talks, depends upon a few crazy words to pull them through; whereas a show number has probably spent all his or her life in completing or perfecting one act, and, of course, must visit different countries in order to get a living. Now, I have devoted the major portion of my life to my one profession, as most all show turns do, and I am sure I am worth a look in before any intelligent public. The world is not large enough for a good novelty to get what it is really worth, nor is it large enough to produce the novelties the public demands. According to my friend's opinion an artist might waste half his or her life to play a few months in their own country. As I said before, a comic singer can buy a few songs that someone else has no doubt written for him, and can always justify a re-engagement with new numbers. It is an impossibility in our line of business to come back even within two years with a new act. So it is, of course, quite natural for a show number to travel (or quit the business to satisfy Mr. Wallace).

Last week, while passing through Paris, I noticed at the Alhambra (Barrasford's Hall) that almost every turn on the bill was English, and, furthermore, a great success. Why? Because the public abroad likes anything that is foreign to it. I can name you lots of halls on the Continent that play six to eight English turns nightly year in, year out. What about the Winter Garten Berlin; Apollo Theater, Berlin; Central Theater and Victoria Salon, Dresden; Millini's, Hannover; Apollo Theater, Düsseldorf; Battenberg's Variety, Leipzig, &c.? Then there are establishments in Vienna, Budapest, Italy, France, Switzerland, Russia, &c., that play nothing else but English turns, and will have nothing else. I don't suppose Mr. Wallace knows of the existence of such places. He ought to take a little trip over to the Continent and see for himself. Then I am sure he would certainly change his mind.

I should like him to name the hall in England where they play as many show numbers as eight on one programme—perhaps he was at a benefit—the majority of halls in England play nothing else but comic singers and serio-comics. If all the English turns were told to get out of it abroad and go home, as Mr. Wallace thinks ought to be done to the foreign acts here, I do not think it would really help the unemployed question one bit. Now, some of the up-to-date managers here in England, when looking for a novelty, have to go abroad to find it. Likewise the foreign manager has to come to England or cross the streak to America to seek his novelty. I can name you dozens and dozens of English turns that are on the Continent, and have been there for years and years, and would not think of ever coming back to their own country, for they are treated too well the other side, where one can go and talk with a first-class director or agent and do business right away. Over here it is "Please call again." Who ever can see the manager from the Palace or the Alhambra, or from Moss and Stolls'? Another thing I must say is that in England there are fewer business men in this business than in any other business done in the world.

Will Mr. Wallace be kind enough to answer me the following question—Should a foreign manager or agent happen to see you work in England, take to your number, talk business with you, and offer you a good salary for twelve months abroad, would you refuse it, and say, "No; engage your own people"? Supposing you were offered one-third of the salary of Little Tich (who is now appearing in Paris with success) to appear in Paris what would your answer be?

I am an English show turn, and have to make my living abroad as there are too many comic and serio-comics on the bills here to give anyone a chance. But, thank God! there is always room for a show turn abroad—English or not.—Yours faithfully,

AN ENGLISHWOMAN
(And one who knows).

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Re the controversy in your esteemed paper on "Latent Talent," I should like to say a few words on the subject. I have been in the business about nine years as a comic singer, but as that line of business seemed overcrowded, and all managers say give us novelty, novelty, novelty, I have thought out an idea which I think you will agree is a novelty in every sense of the word. I am open to back my opinion that the idea as worked by me is absolutely original, and has not been worked on any stage. I have worked this act in London, and have been fairly successful, as the enclosed Press notices will show. But I have been unable to get any agent to come and see the show. Had I been a turn with a name, all the agents would have jumped over each other in their hurry to get the act. What I should like to know is, What is the use of a small turn thinking out new ideas if he cannot get a market for them? As I do not write for a free advertisement, I enclose my card, and sign myself—Yours truly,

ENGLISH NOVELTY.

MR. JOHN D. HUMPHREYS, agent in advance for many years to Lord George Sanger, died suddenly on Wednesday, at Merthyr, Wales, aged 58 years. The deceased was one of the founders of the M.H.A.R.A., his card of membership being No. 8. The funeral is fixed for to-day, the body having been conveyed by train to Paddington Station last night.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, FEB. 13.—Mr. R. G. Knowles, under engagement to Mr. J. C. Williamson, opened a two or, THE HEART OF AN ACTRESS."

"LULU;

A New Dramatic Sketch, by Charles Darrell, Produced at the London Music Hall, Shoreditch, on Monday evening, March 19.

Hector Montcalm .....MR. CLIFFORD PEMBROKE
Marmaduke Fitzaltamont ....MR. HARRY CARR
Tabitha Tappit .....MISS AMY LORRAINE
Edith Montcalm.....MISS MADGE BENNETT
Lulu .....MISS SYLVIA CAVALHO

It would be perfectly easy to imagine that the earlier part of the story which forms Mr. Charles Darrell's latest sketch had not merely been founded on fact, but had occurred in actual life more than once, probably under the author's own observation. Hector Montcalm is a theatrical manager who has made a decent little fortune in the provinces, mainly through the efforts of Lulu, his principal actress. He is about to produce in London the play which has proved so successful in the country, and has engaged a London actress to play the principal part, leaving Lulu with the provincial company at Northampton. Lulu is indignant at the thought that she, who had "made" the play in the provinces, should not be permitted to appear in the London production. She determines to be revenged. She instructs her understudy to play the part for that night in the Northampton theatre, and she departs for the Metropolis. She arranges to place in the gallery some youths armed with carrots and other vegetables to be presented gratis and without formality to the London actress who is to play the part which she herself has made famous. Gaining admittance to the dressing-room of the star at the Crescent Theatre, where the piece is to be produced, Lulu meets Montcalm, and, of course, there is an angry scene. He is furious because she has left her understudy to play the principal character at Northampton, and she is furious because he has ignored her after, as she tells him, she had made a name and a position for him in life. It appears that she has given him something more than the best of her talent—he has had her love, and she had given herself to him in another way. While they are talking, a telegram comes announcing that the London star will be unable to appear owing to illness. The house is already packed from floor to ceiling. What can he do? In despair he turns to Lulu. She at first refuses to act the part, but eventually consents when it is pointed out to her that on the production of the play depends the livelihood of numerous people who are in need of money. At the conclusion of Act I. she returns to the dressing-room. She has triumphed. To the dressing-room, too, there comes the wife of the manager. This is her first visit to the mysterious world known as "behind the scenes." She is anxious to make the acquaintance of the clever young actress who has created such a wonderful impression at her London début. Mrs. Montcalm introduces herself. The knowledge that the manager is a married man is brought so suddenly to Lulu that for the moment she disbelieves the statement of the woman who confronts her, and boldly tells her that she must be lying. Then, when her visitor refers to the child, who draws a stronger union between husband and wife, Lulu realises that it must be Mrs. Montcalm who is speaking to her and that Mrs. Montcalm must be speaking the truth. Upon the reappearance of the manager, Lulu demands to know whether he really loves her or whether he loves another. He replies that there is no other woman that he cares for. Then she informs him that she has seen his wife. In the midst of her bitter condemnation of his cruel conduct, the stage-manager rushes in to tell her that the stage is waiting. She refuses to budge. He reminds her that women and children want food and husbands and fathers are being employed in the theatre. For the sake of her art she assents. She feels that her work is the only thing now worth living for, and just as she has explained the anguish of her soul in an angry explanation, she falls fainting to the ground.

Miss Sylvia Cavalho played with passion and fervour in the rôle of Lulu. Miss Cavalho's tragic powers need no recommendation at this hour, but in her latest characterisation her utmost efforts are called forth to express the fire and feeling of a tormented mind. Her acting was realistic in the deep note of intensity which it struck. Mr. Clifford Pembroke admirably conveyed the author's ideas of the theatrical manager, while as that worthy's wife Miss Madge Bennett gave us a quiet, subdued, ladylike person. Miss Amy Lorraine was distinctly amusing in the low-comedy part of Tabitha Tappit, the dresser, and Mr. Harry Carr suitably fulfilled the requirements of the less significant character of the stage-manager.

THE I.A.L.

AT the London meeting of the International Artists' Lodge at the Hôtel Provence, on March 18, a discussion arose out of the minutes in reference to a case which had not been reported with the name of the manager mentioned. It was decided that the case should be explained again in the report of this week. The case was as follows:—Two members of the I.A.L. made a contract with Manager Lorenz of the Scala, Copenhagen. The agent who made the contract had instructed the artists not to strike out anything in the contracts as the manager was a reasonable man, and would not give the artists any trouble. Last January the artists were offered a South African engagement. They wrote to the manager asking for a postponement of their engagement, and then received a letter from the agent saying that the management would grant a postponement if the artists were willing to take a later date at half the salary, and pay the agent 10 per cent. on the original contract and 10 per cent. on the second. The artists did not accept the proposition, and wrote that they would fill their original dates. They thereupon received a wire that the management had cancelled their engagement (para. 7), the real reason being that a similar act appeared at an opposition house. Thus the artists have lost both the South African and the Copenhagen engagements. All artists should be warned not to accept the cautions of agents, and to scratch out every objectionable clause, especially para. 7.

THE question of arranging all legal matters which might arise between the members of the I.A.L. and Messrs. Anger and Bauer by means of an Arbitration Committee, instead of going to law, was discussed. The London solicitor for the Lodge was also solicitor for Messrs. Anger and Bauer, and therefore could not act in such cases. The solicitor had written to the Lodge informing them that Messrs. Anger and Bauer had expressed themselves perfectly willing to put such cases before an Arbitration Committee, saying that they would infinitely prefer to arbitrate in all their affairs instead of going to law. A committee was then appointed to visit Messrs. Anger and Bauer with regard to the terms of arbitration and the constitution of the committee.

MOTIONS to be brought forward at the general meeting in Berlin on April 13 were discussed. The first of the business at that meeting would be the election of another member of the Executive Committee. Bro. 1211 spoke at some length on the advisability of having a member who was an Englishman and as often in England as possible on the executive. A long discussion took place as to whether it was necessary for this member to know German or not. Finally three names were suggested to be sent to the general meeting as candidates for the vacancy.

THE IVANHOE.

It is not generally known that Sir Edward Moss, the chief of the variety profession, is not only financially interested with Sir Robert Cranston in the Cranston Hotel business, but is related to Sir Robert, inasmuch as Captain Robert Cranston—the eldest son of the Lord Provost—married Miss Nellie Moss, the eldest daughter of Sir Edward Moss.

A new era in the march of the temperance hotel was inaugurated on Monday last, when the Ivanhoe Hotel was formally opened for the reception of the public. Among the many guests at the inaugural luncheon and subsequent reception at the hotel were Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Thomas Dewar, Provost Glover, Mr. J. S. Cranston, Mr. Frank Matcham, Mr. Richard Warner, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, and Mr. Fitzroy Doll, the Duke of Bedford's architect, Captain R. E. Cranston, Mr. T. Duncan Rhind, the architect of the "Ivanhoe," Mr. Cuthbertson, and Mr. Wm. Howard, the contractor. It may interest the profession to know of a cheap, wholesome, and withal really comfortable haven wherein all that is desirable can be obtained for a purely nominal figure. The Ivanhoe Hotel is the third of the gigantic enterprises of Cranston's Waverley Hotels recently erected in London. Sir Robert Cranston (the Lord Provost of Edinburgh), who is responsible for this luxurious and palatial project, was interviewed by an Era representative on Monday last. Sir Robert had been entertaining something like 180 guests at luncheon at the famous Frascati Restaurant to celebrate the opening of the hotel. In the course of a very able public speech he had said that his father, Robert Cranston, one of the magistrates of the city of Edinburgh, started hotel keeping seventy years ago. He selected for his first hotel that beautiful site in Princes-street, Edinburgh, opposite the well-known monument to Sir Walter Scott. Afterwards he erected in its stead the handsome structure which now adorns Princes-street, Edinburgh. In 1850 he opened a "Waverley" Hotel in London. In 1860, a "Waverley" in Glasgow, and, in 1866, he purchased from the Government the old Post Office in Waterloo-place, Edinburgh, and it in turn was transformed into a "New Waverley." On the death of Mr. Cranston these popular establishments became the property of his family. It was, however, left to his eldest son (the present chairman of Cranston's Hotels Company, Ltd.) to make an entirely new development in unlicensed hotels. He acquired from the Duke of Bedford a site in Southampton-row, London, where the first of these up-to-date unlicensed hotels was erected only six years ago, and named the "Waverley." Then was built, in 1903, the now well-known "Kenilworth," and shortly after a third site on the Bedford Estate was secured, upon which has been built the "Ivanhoe" of to-day. The experience gained by the company in connection with the two hotels naturally led them to devise further advances and improvements in hotel life. The "Ivanhoe" accordingly stands to-day as one of the finest hotels in Great Britain, licensed or unlicensed, and as the management will be the same in the "Ivanhoe" as in the other two hotels, the company have every reason to believe that its success wil be even more speedy and marked than that of its two predecessors.

The new "Ivanhoe" Hotel has been erected on a central site covering an area of some 16,000 square feet at the corner of Bloomsbury-street and Great Russell-street, within fifty yards of Oxford-street, and directly opposite the "Kenilworth" Hotel, with the grand entrance to Bloomsbury-street. In design it may be called of the new Renaissance style, the ground floor constructed of Portland stone. The building has a frontage to Bloomsbury-street of 165 feet and to Great Russell-street of 145 feet. The hotel is constructed throughout on the very latest fireproof principles. The interior will be fitted up with 20 suites of rooms, besides 250 bedrooms, making in all about 300 bedrooms and 50 bathrooms. On entering the hotel by the entrance hall, which is 32 feet by 22 feet, panelled to the ceiling, in mahogany, with beautiful marble floor, one finds the reception bureau, central office, passenger and luggage lifts, main staircase to bedroom floors, telephones, and all arrangements conveniently at his hand. Opening in a corridor from the entrance hall are the smoking-rooms, billiard-rooms, and writing-rooms, decorated in the most artistic manner in wood panelling and leathers. At the end of this passage is a hairdresser's shop, especially for the use of patrons of the hotel. On the other side is a large lounge with ingle-neuk fireplace, and opening from that again—a special feature of the hotel—the ladies' lounge. Another corridor leads to the dining-room, a beautiful hall 80 feet long by 40 feet wide, panelled in wainscoting oak with fine plaster ceiling and decorated windows, with the arms of the different cities from which the hotel draws its patronage. The dining-room and its subservient offices, viz.:—the servery, kitchen, &c., have received in this hotel very special attention, and no expense has been spared on fittings and appliances, so that the catering may be of the highest class The hotel is furnished from the latest designs, and, at the same time, in a most sumptuous and comfortable manner.

"A few years ago," said Sir Robert, "it would have seemed a contradiction in terms to speak of a palatial hotel run on temperance principles, but, paradoxical as it may seem, 'the time doth give it proof.' There are hotels to the full as palatial as the largest caravanserais of the ordinary kind, but conducted on strictly temperance lines. To the big buildings in the district of West Central London, where so many novelties in big architecture are daily materialising themselves—hotels, theatres, music-halls, and so forth—there is now to be added the 'Ivanhoe' Hotel, an unlicensed building in Bloomsbury-street, which forms one of the group known thereabouts and out of London as the Cranston Hotels."

On the whole, the opening of the hotel may be taken as distinctly successful, and, judging from the fact that there were very few of the 600 bedrooms vacant on the first evening, it may be taken for granted that it will fill an existing want, especially when it is taken into consideration that you can stay there in supreme comfort in a small castle all to yourself, have a breakfast of as many courses as you like, take a bath, receive every attention and civility, and take advantage of the telephone and other luxuries, for the very moderate sum of five shillings.

"BLUE JAY."

By Peggy Webling. London: William Heinemann.

Miss Peggy Webling takes her readers behind the scenes both at the circus and the music hall. Blue Jay is the curious name of her hero, whose acquaintance we first make when he is quite a little boy. Through the kindness of the proprietor of the show, he, with a little girl companion, is permitted to witness a circus performance inside a big tent pitched in a piece of waste land in the outskirts of Cooling River, a small Canadian town. The part of the entertainment that most interested the boy is thus described:—

"The horsemanship, the performing lions, the clown, and the strong man sunk into insignificance in the eyes of Jay as soon as a juggler stepped into the arena. Even if he had had a programme, the word 'juggling' would have conveyed no meaning to the boy; but the strange appearance of this performer, who possessed the only pair of silk tights in the company and a tinselled doublet, awakened his curiosity, and when he commenced to toss and catch half-a-dozen glittering balls that all seemed to be circling round his head at the same second, Jay lifted his voice in a great shout of approbation.

"'Ang-core!'

"He had no idea of the meaning of encore, but had observed that it evidently expressed the highest approval on the part of the audience.

"The glittering balls dazled and delighted him. He thought they were set with diamonds. He longed and dreaded for the spell to be broken by the juggler dropping one or another of his shining orbs."

After this visit to the circus, Jay, having obtained possession of half-a-dozen rubber balls, began to practice the art of juggling in secret. He lived with his brother and sister-in-law, a hard, unsympathetic woman, who showed him little kindness. "He was a gentle boy, although he could play and shout with the best, a particularly swift runner, as good a skater as any boy in Cooling River, and could drive his toboggan down the most dangerous hills with unfailing skill and courage. Jay preferred solitude to the companionship of others. He only cared for Nessie to share his wanderings. She was barely six, and he often had to carry her, besides lifting her over high fences, and protecting her from dogs and big toads. They were both lonely children, and the affection between them was like the intimacy of twin brother and sister."

Two years passed away, and then it was decided that the boy, who was now eleven, should be apprenticed to a stove and hardware manufacturer. But Jay did not like Mr. Lewis, and so resolved to run away from home. Early one morning he crept out of the house, said good-bye to his little sweetheart, Nessie, who was the only living being that was aware of his intention, and sturdily set out on his journey into an unknown world. For the many curious adventures Blue Jay meets with, we must refer the reader to this clever and interesting novel. We need only add that the hero gradually rises to eminence in the profession of his adoption, and reaches the height of his fame when at a leading London variety theatre he produces a new act, in which "Jay suddenly appeared at the back of the stage, with drooping head and his figure hidden between dark wings that were folded round him. Thunder pealed and flashes of lightning played round his head. His feet dragged to the beating sound of rain, and he shuddered from head to foot.

"As this wild storm of a minute died away, a ray of sunlight fell across his face, he threw up his head and smiled—a radiant smile with parted lips—and very slowly unfolded his wings. They were fastened to his shoulders and hips, and were of some gleaming, deep-blue material, that faded to palest turquoise at the long, feathery tips. As they swept apart, he bent forward and raised his arms over his head, the pale light grew warm with colour, and suddenly the air was filled with the waving red boughs of a maple tree.

"He ran backwards and forwards between the boughs, so swiftly that it was bewildering to see, and then his wings commenced to flutter, and, after some seconds, a few people in the front rows noticed that he had risen several inches above the ground, and was apparently running on air.

"As he gradually rose higher, the words passed from one to another—

"'He's flying!'

"His wings began to beat the air with a long, sweeping stroke, and his limbs became still. His arms were outspread on the inside of the wings, not fastened, but seeming to add to their strength; his chin was thrown up, and his chest inflated like a swimmer on the crest of a wave.

"Long practice and his gift of balance effectually banished, for the minute, all suggestions of mechanical aid, and he dipped towards the earth or shot upwards like a bird on the wing.

"The whole stage was flooded with light that melted from green into pale blue, and glowed from purple into flame. The giant branches swung to a rhythmic beat, and Blue Jay flew among them—now quickly, with his arms above his head, as if he were diving through the sky; now slowly, with his beautiful pinions hardly stirring, as if he were sleeping on the air."

The picture which adorns the cover of the book representing "Blue Jay as he appeared in his famous act is from the pencil of Miss Ethel Webling.

MR. FRANK LYNNE, who has been meeting with very great success in America, has declared, through his publishers, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, his popular comic song, "Father's Box of Tools" "free" for the music-halls. It can be sung by comediennes, only one word requiring alteration.

LITTLE THOMAS'S Bohemian concert at Stanley Hall, Junction-road, N., was inadvertently announced for the 19th inst. It should have been the 26th.

ALI ABDULLA, Ben Hosain, and Me Met, the three Persian merchant princes who are visiting London, recently went to the Empire. Here they sat in a box, their gorgeous raiment admired of all beholders. To them was presented Mr. Hitchens, the manager, who was persuaded to wear the order which the Shah had bestowed upon him. At the sight of it the three Persians immediately judged Mr. Hitchens to be a nobleman of the most distinguished kind. They all bowed low to the order, saying "Salaam, Salaam!" and then, with great humility and murmured expressions of devotion, kissed Mr. Hitchens's hand. Mr. Hitchens was so overcome with emotion that he was compelled to murmur his gratification into the crown of his hat.

MR. HARRY MARVELLO, who achieved a great success at Portobello last season with his company "The Geisha Entertainers," at the Harbour Green Pavilion, has secured a five years' lease of the ground, and intends to make "The Geisha Entertainers" one of the permanent attractions of this, the brightest and most popular of Scotch watering-places. The troupe this season will number ten first-class performers, in addition to speciality acts, which are engaged weekly.

Mr. Horace Wheatley, the well-known comedian, was born in Manchester, but both his parents were natives of the land of the shamrock. While still a boy he won high honours as a dancer, securing the dancing championship of England by defeating Jack Carroll, at the old Cambridge Music Hall, Liverpool. He was then only fifteen years old. At a later period he defeated Williams, the world's champion, at the London Theatre, Bowery, New York. As a youth he became interested in the nigger minstrel business, and joined Sam Hague's Minstrels, at St. James's Hall, Liverpool. Mr. Hague was so pleased with the young comedian's efforts that he presented him with a gold medal. It was while fulfilling this engagement that he first met Mr. Ted Traynor, with whom he went into partnership. They had been so successful with their songs, their dances, and Irish business that, when it became known that they were appearing on their own responsibility, they gained an immediate following. One may say that Wheatley and Traynor were the pioneers of Irish comedy business in the music halls. They travelled a great deal, their tours including one in the United States with the Sam Hague Troupe. They were the originators of the famous Muldoon's Picnic, which went so well as a forty minutes' sketch that it was elaborated into a four-act comedy, which they toured all over England and America with great success for over eight years. The partnership terminated only with the death of Mr. Traynor. Mr. Wheatley felt the loss deeply. They had been together for fifteen years, and during that period had been the closest of friends. Over Traynor's grave in Glasnevin, Dublin, the memorial-stone bears the inscription, "Erected as a tribute of regard by his friend, Horace Wheatley."

Working single-handed, the following years of Mr Wheatley's life were passed in England and America, fulfilling engagements in the music halls and in pantomimes. He crossed and recrossed the Atlantic sixteen times. Some of his character studies were in connection with the pantomimes at the Opera House, Leicester; the Prince of Wales's, Liverpool; the Theatre Royal, Manchester; and the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin. One of his first appearances in pantomime was at the old Theatre Royal, Glasgow, under Miss Marie Litton's management. It was as a female character in Little Bo-Peep, and Traynor was also in the pantomime. Mr. Wheatley likes male and female rôles equally well. One of his biggest successes was as Hassarac in The Forty Thieves, at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin. It was in this pantomime that he first introduced to British audiences the once-popular American ditty, "The Bogey Man," which made a great hit. He was also the first to sing in Britain the other well-known transatlantic song, "After the Ball." Amongst his pantomime engagements, one of the most successful was as Baron Gormano in Cinderella, which ran for twenty-six weeks in Melbourne and Sydney. It was no joke, however, playing in pantomime with the thermometer 100 degrees in the shade. The intense heat made false noses and eccentric make-ups useless, and having much dancing to do he lost several pounds in weight. However, he had a wonderfully warm welcome, and received quite a number of curious presents, including an albatross' head and two beautifully-mounted emus' heads. At Sydney, too, the Lyceum staff had a medal struck in his honour and presented to him. It should also be mentioned that Mr. Wheatley toured for two years in England with his own comedy, Bright Days. The framework was by Mr. Chas. A. Aldin, who arranged it according to the suggestions of Mr. Wheatley, who himself filled in the body of the play.

Mr. Wheatley has always been very fond of various forms of athletics. He has distinguished himself on the running-track, and at the music hall sports some years ago he won a 150 yards race. Forty-eight ran, and the betting was 20 to 1 against him. Mr. Wheatley has also gained prowess as a billiard player, having won many matches, and possessing quite a store of medals, dressing-cases, and other trophies. He is equally interested in cricket, rowing, or swimming, and it is on record that at a pig-hunt once, when the animal took to the water, Mr. Wheatley plunged in fully dressed and rescued the "game."

MR. FRANK GEE, comedian, and Mr. Sam Dalton, comedian, are the latest to swell the ranks of the Terriers' Association.

MR. JOHN BARTON, of Barton and Ashley, has presented Mr. G. H. Chirgwin with a nugget of virgin gold, which he brought with him from South Africa. Chirgwin has placed it in his billiard-room, where it is on view to all his friends (under lock and key).

MISS MARGUERITE BROADFOOTE, after her successful pantomime season at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, is taking a well-earned holiday in Paris, and will open on April 1 at the Winter Gardens, Berlin. Miss Broadfoote is fully booked to the end of 1908.

AT Bow-street on Tuesday Charles Delaney, described as a corn merchant, of Dublin, was charged under singular circumstances. Mr. John Donald, manager of the Coliseum, said that on Monday night he received a complaint that a man sitting at the back of the stalls had thrown a pair of opera glasses on to the stage. The accused admitted having done this, adding that a friend had bet him he would not do so. The accused was about forty yards away from the stage, and the glasses passed over the heads of all the people sitting in the stalls, and struck the flashboard of the footlights. They rebounded, and hit one of the members of the orchestra on the temple. Delaney, who expressed regret for his action, was fined £5.

MR. FRED CURRAN has resigned his position as representative of Mr. Leo Fritz.

GEORGE GREY AND THE M.H.A.R.A.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.)

SIR,—It is with the profoundest regret that I have been forced to receive back the cheque that I offered the Association last October in the deepest spirit of friendliness, actuated only by philanthropic motives to aid in the betterment and amelioration of the financial and social condition of the variety profession generally. For five long months the money has been lying at the disposal of the Association; five long months it has taken the committee to come to a sudden conclusion that the scheme submitted at the October general meeting was impossible and impracticable, and this notwithstanding that the sub-committe appointed to deal with the matter recommended the whole of the scheme, subject to the postponemen of a few items. I am informed that at the October general meeting, when the scheme was read to the meeting, it was received with an enthusiasm tremendous and sincere. It was afterwards printed in part, and sent out all over the kingdom. Members were invited to vote for or against the scheme, and postcards were sent out, but, unfortunately, not individually, or there would undoubtedly have been far more replies. As it was, close on 600 replies came in, and all were in favour of the scheme, with the exception of eight.

And what was the scheme of reform? Was it a scheme of aggression? Was it one of coercion? Was it one necessitating a red flag, a brass band, and an alien army to carry out? I think not. The following were among the suggested items:—

The transference of the Association agencies from public-houses to the various places of entertainment. (N.B.—This, by-the-bye, is now being carried out by the generous sanction and approbation of all managers—Moss, Stoll, Barrasford, Macnaghten, Sylvester, &c., &c.)

The registration of the Association under the Friendly Society Acts.

(The object of this was that, having regard to the scandalous maladministration of the Association in the past, no books, &c., being registered, there would be no reverting to the slipshod management, no matter who sat on the Committee. Books would have to be kept, and properly audited accounts annually submitted.)

The formation of our own Benevolent Fund based upon a system of immediate help, and governed and administered by artists for artists.

The board to be composed of experienced artists all over the country, who could be empowered to deal personally and at once, in all cases of distress.

A sick and burial fund.—On the death of a member there should be a small levy upon all members of, say, 3d. per head, towards the expenses of the interment and the benefit of the widow and children.

The granting of temporary loans.—The formation of club-like branch establishments of the Association in the various provincial centres, such as Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds, Newcastle, Glasgow, &c., offering facilities for social reunion, the issuing of vouchers, telephone, and Sunday evening meetings for discussion of various subjects of variety and other interest.

Annual performances in various towns, subject to permission of managements. Annual sports to be given in support of the general funds of association. A Board of Arbitration to settle disputes of all kinds, to obviate recourse to expensive and embittering litigation.

To endeavour by legitimate and conciliatory means to obtain unambiguous and equable contracts.

The issuing of a weekly variety organ, giving all managers' calls—Moss, Stoll Empires, Barrasford, Payne, Gibbons, MacNaghten, and all others—free of charge. Artists' advertisements from 6d., the paper to carry a free insurance. Full reports of all kindred societies free of charge. The paper to deal with matters of variety interest only, reception of opinions and suggestions of members and all professionals.

All profits derived from this publication to be devoted to the general funds of the Association.

I ask, can anyone with an evenly balanced and unprejudiced mind suggest that the foregoing in any one particular is impracticable and impossible? Is there anything suggestive of a trade union in the scheme? No; emphatically no!

That inane and childish bogie, "the jeopardising of the concession," has been urged. Everybody had, I am sure, hoped that we had heard the last of this mad midsummer sea-serpent.

The railway companies' definite reply was that "the three-quarters concession is granted on the terms and conditions contained on the back of the voucher, and so long as they are carried out no interest is evinced as to the doings or workings of the Association."

It isn't feasible to imagine for a moment that any suggested scheme of beneficial, charitable, and benevolent concessions held out to a number of deserving people would in any way be interfered with by any representative body of honourable gentlemen. Sublimely ridiculous, on the face of it!

But it is pleasing to learn that there are still hopes of the scheme being carried out, as the resolution passed last week foreshadows: "That the committee are of opinion that it will be easier, safer, and better, for financial and administrative reasons, to carry out the majority of the proposals put forward in Mr. Gray's scheme through the medium of an independent society, such as the new Variety Artists' Federation."

The Association had been led to believe that it is, or is to be, affiliated with this new Society. If this is so, then it is commendable; but let it be publicly stated that it is or is not so. I am sure the Association will welcome such affiliation, more especially as this new Society is presided over by the leading lights of the profession, who are banded together for the welfare of their less fortunate brethren, and who have worked so hard upon the committee of the Music Hall Association in helping to put it upon the business and financial basis on which it now stands.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE GRAY.

Savage Club.

MRS. BARRASFORD, with her customary kindness, has generously devoted the entire back page of the Lyceum programme to an appeal to the charitable from that deserving institution, the Royal Waterloo Hospital for Children and Women.

THAT smart performer Little Don has been booked for forty-four weeks, including pantomime with Mr. F. Mouillot, through the agency of J. Brown and Co.

GREAT has been the success of Mr. Tom Leo's clever song, "Too Lazy to Live," at the Metropolitan, where the comedian has been deputising for Mr. J. E. Coyle. It has been secured by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter for publication, and by Mr. Alf Lester already for pantomime. The young artist was the recipient on Tuesday night of congratulations from Mr. Harry Lauder. The ditty is by Edgar Bateman and Maurice Scott, who were jointly responsible for Charles Sloman's "Furniture on Hire," a comic song for which an extraordinary demand has arisen during the past few days, a large edition being exhausted in a few hours.

MR. F. W. THOMPSON, the manager of the New York Hippodrome, is reported to have taken with him to New York an option on a square block of property in Oxford-street within 150 feet of the Oxford Music Hall. His plan, which he described in detail upon his arrival in America, provides for the erection in London of a Hippodrome, fashioned after the manner of the one in New York. The capital is to be provided from American sources. Mr. Thompson does not seem to be affected by the contention of rival London managers that London is already over-supplied with places of variety entertainment.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

It is with the greatest possible satisfaction we make the announcement to our readers that the various matters in dispute between the Showmen's Guild and the Wallasey District Council have been arranged to the satisfaction of both parties. Clause 21 of the Bill proposed to enact as follows:—"The Council may make by-laws for the preservation of order and good conduct among persons resorting to the foreshore and seashore in the district, and to open lands adjoining the same, and for the regulation or prohibition of the placing of stalls or stands or hawking thereon."

This clause did not seriously threaten the interests of showmen, but it is useful to point out that the District Council already possess (if they will only take the necessary steps to exercise their powers) all reasonable regulations as regards stalls, stands, or hawking or the selling of goods. It is a standing grievance of travelling traders, stall-holders, and hawkers that small local authorities in proposed Improvement Bills seek for powers which include a prohibitory clause, and are therefore in excess of powers they already enjoy. Everything that this clause (21) gives the local authorities, except prohibition, they can get for the asking from the Cheshire County Council, which, under the various Municipality Acts, possesses all reasonable powers for the regulation of hawking, stalls, and good government of the visitors.

It will be remembered that some years ago the Corporation of Blackpool obtained similar powers to the above clause, and it is also well known how the Blackpool Corporation has exercised its powers to the ruin of the small traders who hitherto had carried on a most acceptable and profitable business on the sands. We consider that, in the light of the Blackpool experience, the small traders of New Brighton will use every effort to defend their rights and interests as threatened by the twenty-first clause of the Wallasey Bill.

The clause that does affect the show business is 122 of the Bill: "(1) No person shall in any street or public place, or on any land adjoining or near to any street or public place use or play, or cause to be used or played, any steam organ or other musical instrument worked by mechanical or other means to the annoyance or disturbance of residents or passengers; (2) Any person who shall offend against this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5."

It was, of course, around this clause that the controversy raged between the Wallasey authorities and the local showmen, and a petition was duly lodged against the Bill in the name of Mr. and Mrs. P. Collins, Mr. P. Collins, jun., and Messrs. H. J. Wallis and J. Ravenscroft. Considerable negotiations and conferences have taken place between the Parliamentary agents on both sides and the Executive of the Showmen's Guild and the Wallasey District Council. The conclusion of the matter is embodied in the following official letter:—

"Dear Mr. Horne,—Re Wallasey Bill. You will be pleased to hear that the result of my journey to New Brighton is that satisfactory terms have been arranged — namely that the promoters agree to delete Clause 122, provided that the petition is withdrawn. Our Parliamentary agent, Mr. Millar, will therefore complete the arrangement with their agents.—Yours faithfully,

"T. Watson Wright."

Thus it will be seen that the Pontefract Bill and the Wallasey Bill have been amicably settled as far as the petitioning showmen are concerned without recourse to the expensive procedure of appearance by Parliamentary Council and attendance of witnesses before the Private Bills Committee. This is highly satisfactory.

There remains now but one Bill, the one promoted by the Middlesex County Council, and petitioned against by Messrs. Ball, Beach, Taylor, Holloway, and Mrs. Jane Pettigreve. Concerning this Bill, we have information that it is very unlikely to reach the second reading stage, as it is being opposed by nearly all the local authorities in the county of Middlesex. Numerous petitions have been lodged against it, as well as the petition denoted by showmen. This array of opposition and the costly litigation it is likely to provoke will probably cause the withdrawal of the Bill, and thus for this Session of Parliament the threatened troubles and dangers to the travelling showmen will be at an end.

There was a good opening of the Yorkshire Round at Gomersall. The principal show attraction was Harry Ashington's cinematograph and marionette theatre, supported by S. Towers, with dog and pony circus. There was a big array of machine novelties. W. H. Marshall's overhead motors; John Crampton's steam galloping-horses; and Corrigan and Son's steam swings; manual swings by G. Crampton; and rifle saloons and bottle batteries by Messrs. J. Holdsworth and E. Thompson; throwing games and varieties in abundance by Messrs. Burrell, Jameson, Cookshaw, Holdsworth, Hyde, Blackburn, Thompson, and Baynes. The bazaars were by Messrs. Holdsworth and Gledstone, and the refreshment booths by William Hutchinson. The next fair on this Round is Cleckheaton, opening on the 24th inst.

Stockport Spring Fair opened in grand style, supported by Senator J. Leo's coliseum of varieties and up-to-date animated photography; Sedgewick's menagerie; North's giant lady; Messrs. Style and Gold's temple of magic. The local firm, Messrs. Hibbert and Sons, exhibited three of their splendid machines—motor-cars, racing cockerells, and flying gondolas. The other machine novelties were Green's Gordon Bennett motors; B. Mitchell's cockerells and ostriches; and Pedley's whirling the whirl. A splendid array of shooting galleries, ranges, and saloons were provided by Messrs. Booth, Sedgwick, Humphreys, and J. Wild. The stallholders and variety caterers were Messrs. B. Ingham, R. Deeks, E. Clough, J. Beckett, A. Whatmore, J. Branan, E. Booth, C. Black, J. White, J. Smith, T. Geoghegan, J. Whatmore, Birkett, and others. The next fairs on this Round are—Heywood, Gorton-lane, Clitheroe.

We have an interesting note of news from our West of England correspondent. He tells us that showpeople down there are moving out of winter quarters; the Messrs. Hancock leave Plymouth this week with a very fine redecorated show, and their new steam set, motor-boats shaped like motor-cars with driving wheels. Chapman is taking a big wheel on tour; and Jones, of circus fame, begins his tour next week with a fine show, the interior fitted up with stage for variety performances.

We draw our readers attention to the advertisement of the Guild in our columns this week announcing an important gathering of London showmen, to be held at the Star and Garter Hotel, near the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Thursday next.

Arising out of the important movement to obtain the withdrawal of the prohibition regulations of the County Council concerning living vans, a great awakening of interest in the Showmen's Guild has taken place. The Hon. Chaplain and Organiser, the Rev. T. Horn, has been requested to convene a meeting in order that various matters concerning the show business in the Metropolitan district may be considered, and all necessary arrangements made for safeguarding the interests of the show business.

The meeting next Thursday will be open to all London show-people and stallholders, whether they are members of the Guild or not, the desire of the promoters being to draw into closer bonds of union all who travel the fairs.

We have already given in this column the petition against the Middlesex County Council General Powers Bill, and although we have every reason to believe that the Bill may not be proceeded with, it is very necessary that London showmen should realise the danger to their business threatened by the proposed Bill. By Clause 31, it is proposed to enact as follows:—"If and whenever the Council on the application of local authorities of any district shall by resolution so determine, the following provision shall have effect in the district of such local authority (that is to say)—(1) No owner of land shall cause or suffer any such land within 100 yards of any street or of any dwelling-house to be occupied so as to cause annoyance, injury, or disturbance to the residents in the neighbourhood by any tent-dweller, squatter, gipsy, or other person dwelling in a tent or van or any similar structure. (2) No tent-dweller, squatter, gipsy, or other person shall use as a dwelling-place, so as to cause annoyance, injury, or disturbance to residents in the neighbourhood, any tent or van or other similar structure placed on any land situated within 100 yards of any street or of any dwelling-house. (3) Every person who shall offend against either of the foregoing enactments shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not exceeding £5."

We need hardly point out to our London showmen readers that if the Middlesex County Council obtain the above powers they will be used by the local authorities to stop private business. Of course, the justice of the case will be clearly met if the authorities would add a definition clause that these enactments shall not apply to travelling showpeople in the pursuit of their legitimate business as providers of itinerant amusements. Showmen readily recognise that there is a difficulty that local authorities experience in dealing with gipsy squatters living either in tents or covered carts, mis-called vans, but it is surely not outside the wit of man to frame legislation that shall effectively deal with the gipsy squatter, and yet not injure the legitimate business of the travelling showman.

The fairs ahead for next week are—Durham, Henley-in-Arden, Stamford, Bridgnorth, Bridlington, Ottery St. Mary, Wrexham, Stafordham, Hertford, Lindfield, Stourbridge, Worthen, Tredegar, Menai Bridge, Castleton, and Maesycwmmer.

There are cattle fairs at Clitheroe on the 24th, and at Rugby, Stockport, Morpeth, and Durham on the 26th, Market Rasen and Preston on the 27th, Horncastle, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Clones on the 29th, Neward on the 30th, and Huddersfield and Hertford on the 31st.

At Jennings' Alexandra Theatre, Redditch, the following plays have been performed:—Drink, East Lynne, Lady Audley's Secret, The Gipsy Heir, The Octoroon, and the play of local interest, entitled Bordesley Abbey; or, The Days of King Stephen.

There will be a horse sale at Moseley-street, Birmingham, on the 29th inst., and a sale of cart and nag horses will take place at Studley on the 30th.

At the Cricket Field, Banbury, are Mr. A. Tiller's mechanical mannikins, bioscope, and varieties, which are giving excellent performances.

The embarking of Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie for Antwerp on Wednesday morning caused the greatest excitement at Grimsby Royal Docks. All the caravans had to be carried on deck, and these were slung with comparative ease by means of the huge cranes, and safely deposited on deck; but more difficulty was experienced when the large animals were ready to go on board. One of the elephants refused to go over the gangway, and, breaking away, ran along the dock-side, until after a tussle he was persuaded, with the assistance of ropes, &c., to walk on board backwards.

On Sunday last, by kind permission of Mr. H. Studt, a service was held by the Rev. J. Harrison on Pontordawe Fair-ground, South Wales, in memory of the late Mrs. H. Scard. The service was largely attended by the inhabitants of the town and by travellers connected with the fair, also the brothers, sisters, and children of the deceased lady.

Showmen will notice with delight the active part taken by Lord George Sanger in the preservation of showmen's rights. In this work he carried with him the valuable co-operation of The Era, whose energetic manager, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, went with the President and Chaplain of the Guild to the County Council meeting. The president's carriage, drawn by two skewbald ponies, conveyed the leaders of the deputation from The Era offices to the County Council offices in Spring Gardens.

We regret to announce the sudden death at Merthyr Tydfil on Thursday last of Mr. J. D. Humphries, advance agent of Lord John Sanger's Circus. He literally died in harness, being on tour in advance of the circus. The whole showman world will tender its deepest sympathy to the bereaved wife and the Sanger family.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

A successful smoking concert was given at the Canonbury Club, Canonbury Tower, on Saturday evening, under the presidency of Mr. Fred Nichols. Mr. Donald Keir's fine bass voice was heard to advantage in "Off to Philadelphia" and "Drinking"; Mr. Lambert Perry successfully contributed four songs; Mr. Charles Gellett was deservedly applauded for his excellent recitations; the 'cello solos played by Master Leo Crosse, assisted by Master C. E. Crosse, were well received; and Mr. Tom Day obliged with a recitation. The comic element was strongly represented. Mr. Rex Kempton, a young comedian who is likely to come to the front, caused much laughter by his humorous songs. Mr. Will Carney, a son of Mr. Tom Carney, the Irish comedian, met with a good reception, and so, too, did Mr. George Robertson and Mr. Fred King, comedians, who were both in capital form. The energetic Mr. Will Clinch and Mr. Fred Pearson gave valuable assistance as stage managers, and Messrs. E. W. Davis and G. A. Marshall acted as vice-chairmen.

SHOWMEN AND THE LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL.

Quite a mild sensation was caused in the neighbourhood of Spring Gardens on Friday afternoon last week by the assembly of a large body of showmen to welcome their President—Lord George Sanger—on his embassage to the County Council. The veteran showman was accompanied in his open carriage by the Rev. T. Horne, his lordship's chaplain, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer of the Showmen's Guild for London. The purpose of this unusual gathering was the highly pacific one of wishing good luck to the small deputation about to lay the views of the organised showmen concerning the prohibition of living-vans on the open spaces under municipal control before the Parks Committee of the County Council.

We gave full particulars to our showmen readers last week of the nature of the open spaces regulations, and the correspondence between the County Council and the Showmen's Guild, relating to the serious nature of the regulations (if persisted in). Of the very urgent necessity of the prohibition rule excluding living-vans, the following letter sent out to all applicants for licences is quite sufficient indication:—

"London County Council,
"Parks Department,
"11, Regent-street, S.W.

"Notice to Holders of Licences for Sideshows, &c.

"Attention is again drawn to the regulations of the Council that living-vans are not allowed on open spaces in connection with shows at holiday times. Attempts have been made to bring living-vans on to the open spaces on the plea that for bottle-shooting, &c., such vans are necessary as part of the shows. Some other arrangements must be made for these shows, as the Council's constables have strict instructions not to allow living-vans on the open spaces under any circumstances whatever.

John J. Sexby,
"Chief Officer."

The deputation consisted of:—

Lord George Sanger, president;
Rev. T. Horne, hon. chaplain and organiser;
F. H. Pedgrift, Esq., hon. treasurer for London.
Representative showmen (all members of the executive):
Mr. Wm. Beach, Mr. Alf. Ball,
Mr. Wm. Bedford, Mr. Wm. Wilson, Mr. H. Forrest, Mr. George Biddall, Mr. Fred Gray, Mr. Swales Forrest, and Mr. George Knighton.

The Chairman of the Parks and Open Spaces Committee, in welcoming the deputation, said that the County Council had issued the new regulations with the sincere desire of promoting the best interests of the showmen and the interests of the people frequenting the open spaces at Hampstead, Blackheath, and Wormwood Scrubs at holiday times. They had gathered from the letter of the Showmen's Guild that these regulations were regarded as serious and hindering by the showmen. They would be glad to hear the views of the Showmen's Guild through their spokesman, Mr. George Sanger, whom he was glad to welcome.

The President of the Guild, in his opening remarks, said their first duty—and a highly satisfactory and pleasant one—was to thank the London Council for its thoughtful provision of open-air amusement for the people of London at holiday times. He therefore tendered, in the name of the organised showmen, this meed of appreciation before passing on to the real business before them.

First of all, he could not believe that the committee knew how absolutely necessary the living-van was to the show. In most cases it formed the sustaining background to the concern. The van was the back of the booth, and from it the exhibition, or shooting gallery, or novelty was built out. But that is not all. It is essential that the home of the showman should be close at hand—the mother with the family meals ready for the upgrown members busy at work—for the show business is a home industry. He begged the committee to seriously consider and remove the prohibition, which he ventured to hope had been imposed without full knowledge of the necessity the vans were to the showmen and their business.

He had now retired from the active life of the road, but for seventy years he had lived in a van. He was one of a family of ten born in a van, and living all his life in a home on wheels he was able to testify from experience of the absolute necessity of the van—of the home on wheels. (Applause.) He had his living carriage at his place, Park Farm, East Finchley, and he intended this summer to go on tour again, this time at leisured ease, to visit his old friends and acquaintances in the show world.

England's representative showmen of days gone by—men like Wombwell, Richardson, Manders, Batty, and others—and the leading showmen of to-day were van-dwellers; and why? Why, because the home life was to them the sheet anchor and the abiding stay of their enterprise. It was more—it was the source of their inspiration and the training ground of their children. Let these conditions of the showman's life and work be fully realised, and he doubted not that the prohibition would be withdrawn.

The veteran showman, speaking from his heart and from the full volume of his life's experience, manifestly touched and deeply impressed the committee.

Several members of the Parks Committee asked important and informing questions, and these were satisfactorily answered by the President, and Messrs. Ball, S. Forrest, and Bedford.

The Rev. T. Horne, by special permission of the chairman, then spoke, and added point to the discussion by saying that the Showmen's Guild would give the committee every reasonable guarantee and co-operate in every possible way for the maintenance of due order and the keeping of all necessary and reasonable regulations for the betterment of the show business, and the provision of good amusements for the people at holiday times. The nature of this guarantee could be inferred from the fact that the Guild included in its member-roll all the principal showmen of the Metropolitan district.

The Chairman thanked the deputation for the information it had tendered to the committee, and again expressed the pleasure they felt at receiving so important and representative a body, headed by its honoured president, Lord George Sanger. They would communicate their decision to them in due course.

Unless we miss the spirit of the conference, we confidently anticipate that the decision will be a favourable one. The question, of course, cannot possibly be left where it is. Showmen throughout the country will recognise how very serious the example of the London County Council (if it persists in the policy of prohibition) will be. Other public bodies will be tempted to follow the lead of the London County Council, and trouble on this question of living vans will arise throughout the country.

With regard to living-vans on open spaces and in parks in the Metropolitan district, a London showman has supplied us with some valuable information. It was stated at the County Council conference reported above that the Verderers of Epping Forest had prohibited living-vans on the spaces under their control. This was contradicted by tenants of the Verderers, and in further proof of the contradiction our correspondent states that living-vans are permitted at all the large fairs on Wanstead Flats, and also at Chingford. On the old Deer Park, Richmond, five or six times a year, varying from two to six days each visit, living-vans are welcomed.

The following private and public parks at times of local fêtes and demonstrations of friendly societies, permit living-vans:—Hillingdon Park, Bagshot Park, Walton Park, Binfield Park, Taplow Court, and Osterley Park. Our correspondent also informs us that he does not remember any instance of the owners of private parks lending their places to local fête committees who object in any way to living-vans.

George Sanger, who has travelled the wide world over and taken his circus throughout the civilised nations of Europe, testifies that the great municipalities of Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Prague, Budapesth, and Brussels, with other cities on the Continent, not only welcome the travelling-show community in their living-vans, but go out of their way to attract them to their cities, and afford them every facility for carrying on their business. These public bodies recognise that the amusements of the people are a national concern, and that it is better to encourage the travelling showman to give of his best to the entertainment and recreation of the masses of the people than to put hindrances in his way.

Again, in this connection it is noteworthy that the United States of America are taking great pains and showing considerable zeal in developing and encouraging the establishment of fairs. This is a fact the significance of which ought to be realised by the people who consider the show business a dying industry. America, the most progressive and the most democratic of all nations, has discovered that the people must have amusement and recreation, and that the best way to provide it is to establish popular fairs, not only great state exhibitions and fairs, but "street fairs," the American adaptation of our local wake and village fairs. The American railways, in order to encourage showmen to make fairs, offer free rail facilities for conveyance of show goods, and offer great facilities to the Press for the purpose of getting wide publicity for these fairs., and the municipalities give free ground in most instances in order to encourage showmen enterprise, and to establish pleasure fairs for the people.

THE FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. SCARD.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Scard, the wife of Mr. Henry Scard, of Wadbrook's Electograph, and daughter of the founder of the show, took place at Neath on Thursday, February 15, at Llantwit Old Cemetery, and was attended by showmen from all parts of the kingdom and the townspeople. The chief mourners were Mr. Henry Scard, sen., Mr. Harry Scard, jun. (son), Misses Flo, Tilly, and Ruby (daughters), Alfred Wadbrook (brother), and Harry Wadbrook, Nelile Wadbrook (sister), Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnson (sister and brother-in-law), Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson (Victoria Theatre) and staff, Mrs. Pat Collins (Birmingham), Mr. and Mrs. Henry Studt, Mr. John Studt, Mr. James Dooner and family, Mr. James Norman (Lancashire), Mr. Tom Clarke (Redditch), Mr. Edmund Clarke, Mr. Hagger, Mr. James Day, Mr. and Mrs. John North, Mrs. Roberts and family, Mr. Oulson, Mr. Thomas Hill, Mr. David Boswell, Mrs. Ines (Glasgow, representing Wombwell's), Mr. and Mrs. Baker and family (circus), Mr. Lloyd (Barry Dock), Mr. Syd White and Sons, Mrs. Sheen, Mr. Enoch-Stockton, Mr. Daniel Evans, Mrs. Blower, Mrs. Charlotte Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. James Wright, Mr. Jerry Butlin and family, Mr. T. Butlin, and the Neath Town Council was represented by Councillors Hopkin Morgan and Henry Hunkin. Wreaths, &c., were sent by the following:—Mr. Henry Scard and family, heart and dove; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Studt, large harp; Auntie and Uncle, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Knight, wreath; Mabel and Harry, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Jeffreys, harp; employees, anchor; Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Collins and son (Birmingham), wreath; Mr. Sharpe, wreath; Miss Churchill and Mrs. Dale, wreath; Mr. Brimmell and daughter, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Chipperfield, jun., wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. Fossett, wreath; Aunt Polley, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, harp; Dick and Maud Chipperfield, cross; Mr. and Mrs. I. Norman, harp; Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick, harp; Mr. Bibby (Manchester), Welsh harp; Mr. and Mrs. Strickland, harp; and wreaths also came from the following—Messrs. Orton and Spooner, Messrs. Hancock (Plymouth), Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Birchley, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, sen., and family, Mr. and Mrs. Whiting, Messrs. Chiappa Bros. (London), Mr. and Mrs. John North, Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick, Victoria Theatre Company, Sister Tilly and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Booth, senr., Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Mr. Dooner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Bird-in-Hand Hotel, Miss Gussie Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Studt, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wortley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Studt, Mr. and Mrs. T. Butlin, Mr. and Mrs. Page, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson, members of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Elijah Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Baker and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. Roberts, Mr. Shufflebotham, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hutchins, initial "S"; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip, wreath "At Rest"; Mr. and Mrs. Day, anchor; Mr. and Mrs. blower, bunch; lady employees, heart; Sister Nellie, anchor; Sister Flo and husband, harp; Mr. and Mrs. W. Hagger, cross; Mr. and Mrs. E. Danter, harp; Mr. and Mrs. Butlin, anchor; Mrs. Crecraft and sons, heart; Mrs. Crecraft and Miss Skinner, heart; Eliza Hinds, Glasgow, cross; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Caddick, harp; Mr. and Mrs. G. Saunders, "Gates of Heaven"; Mr. and Mrs. C. Hill, harp and crown. All the showmen on the fairground closed their shows as soon as it became known that Mrs. Scard had passed away, and also on the day of the funeral. It is desired that those who have sent wreaths with no address should please forward the same to Mr. H. Scard, Fairground, Aberavon, by April 1.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A well-attended and successful meeting of stage employees was held on Sunday evening in the White Lion Hotel, Bank-street, Leicester, for the purpose of considering the question of forming a local branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees. Mr. Thomas presided. Mr. F. Branson was appointed hon. secretary pro tem. It was decided to ask the National Committee of the Society to send a representative to the next meeting for the purpose of enrolling those willing to become members and to establish the branch.

A meeting of the members of the Stratford branch of the National Society was held on Thursday evening, at 23, Maryland Point, for the purpose of considering the benefits to be provided by the branch and enrolling new members.

The annual dinner and concert of the General Theatrical Operatives' Sick and Benefit Society, which took place on Sunday evening last in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, was a great success. Between sixty and seventy members and friends sat down to the excellent dinner provided. Mr. Lionel Belmore, stage-manager to Mr. H. B. Irving, presided, and stage-managed the proceedings with a geniality which resulted in a successful and enjoyable evening.

After the dinner and the usual toast to "The King," the company adjourned to the concert-room, where a surprisingly good programme was gone through. Among those who contributed were Mr. Will Randall, who highly amused the company with his songs, "9½ an hour," "If the world were ruled by girls," and "The jilted Shoeblack." Mr. A. Batty's fine voice was heard with much effect in "Starlight eyes," "The singer was Irish," and "Music, sweet music." Mr. Bert Welley sang "Boys of the Chelsea School," "Go to sea," and "Nita Gitana," which were much appreciated. Mr. A. E. Wood sang, most appropriately, "Jolly good company." Mr. Lionel Belmore recited "The Little Hero," and deeply impressed his audience. Mr. E. Gray sang "The Irish Lad." Mr. J. Dunlop gave an amusing burlesque of "Sweet Marie," and Mr. Burton delivered a "Laughing song."

Mr. A. E. Wood, secretary to the Society, proposed the toast "The Society," and gave some interesting particulars of its growth and benefits. He stated that the Society had recently been examined by the actuaries, and they reported that the funds show a considerable surplus over the possible liabilities. The gross balance was about £700. Mr. Wood also alluded to the grant received from the Dramatic and Musical Fund, which was much appreciated by the members of the Society; in this connection, Mr. Wood alluded to the services rendered by Mr. H. Kelley and Mr. C. T. Cory. In concluding, Mr. Wood urged those present who were not members to join, and mentioned that the Society was about to create a juvenile branch which would offer special benefits to the younger men in the profession.

Mr. M. Beer, the chairman of the society, proposed the toast, "The Artists and Visitors," and thanked the former on behalf of the members for their kindness in contributing to such an enjoyable evening. Mr. A. E. Wood proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was received with musical honours. In responding, Mr. Belmore thanked those present for the cordial reception they had accorded to the toast, and assured them of the pleasure it had given him to be with them on this occasion; they would, perhaps, forgive him if he said that such a gathering could hardly disperse without some reference being made to one who had done much to establish a better feeling among workers and managers and, indeed, among all branches of the profession. He alluded to the late Sir Henry Irving, the kindest and most generous of men, he might say a king among men; so he asked them to silently raise their glasses and drink to the memory of a man they could never forget, Sir Henry Irving. The toast was worthily received. The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close. Mr. Wood, Mr. P. Thomas, and others responsible for the arrangements, are to be congratulated on the great success attending their efforts.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

A dramatic performance by the pupils of Mr. Allen Beaumont was given in the theatre of the school on Friday evening, March 16, and Mr. Beaumont may be congratulated on the success of the entertainment, mainly due to the careful training the young students had received, and to the admirable choice of works well adapted to the pupils' ability. The programme consisted of three little plays—Which is Which, by S. Theyre Smith; In Honour Bound, by Sydney Grundy; and A Love Knot, by Edith Lemin. In the first play, the scene of which is an artist's studio, of a kind never seen off the stage, Robert Capper, a young artist who is much worried with bills and the inability to pay them, and also by the attentions of his old servant, Mrs. Mills, who has such a craze for dusting that the artist's sketch of Venus is rubbed off the canvas. To add to the artist's troubles his most pressing creditor, Paddles, an oil and colourman (ought it not to be artists' colourman?) refuses to leave until he is paid. When things are at the worst an uncle, with the convivial name of Gargle, appears, and suggests that Capper should propose to a friend of Mr. Gargle, a young lady of ample means. Shortly after the lady, whose name is Pestle, calls at the studio with a friend, and Capper, as the ladies avoid giving their names, is much bothered to find out which is which, and of course falls in love with the lady he thinks is the poor friend. All ends happily, however, as this is really the rich Miss Pestle. Mr. J. L. Dale played the part of Robert Capper with freedom and ability, although in somewhat too lively a style for the unhappy artist. Mr. J. A. Ellerton made the most of the little part of Gargle, and Mr. J. C. Jackson was very amusing as Paddles. The young ladies, Annie and Bertha, were charmingly enacted by Miss Enid Rose and Miss A. Castiglione, while Miss J. C. Huntsman gave a capital study of the old servant Mrs. Mills.

In In Honour Bound Mr. M. A. Rossiter, if not quite realising the character of the cynical lawyer Sir George Carlyon, Q.C., acted with intelligence, and Mr. J. L. Dale, as Philip Graham, improved on his performance in the first play, and gave a dignified rendering of the part, while Miss Ethel Gannon was generally excellent in the character of the unhappy wife Lady Carlyon, and Miss Nellie Lake played Rose Dalrymple in a bright, sparkling manner.

The last piece, a farce, A Love-Knot, reflected credit on all concerned, and caused great merriment. Mr. W. L. Soliague as Ted Thorpe was admirable, and Mr. J. A. Ellerton gave an intensely comic rendering of an elderly widower, Mr. Jay. Miss J. C. Huntsman was again excellent as Miss Charlotte Short, spinster, of uncertain age; and the parts of Nell and Wilson were cleverly acted by Miss Nellie Lake and Master Frank Mackintosh. Between the intervals several piano solos were skilfully played by Mr. Frederick J. Daff, and Mrs. Charles P. Smith carefully superintended the appearance of the young ladies on the stage.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your report of the Royal Albert, Canning Town, last Saturday, you mention Miss Sadie Seymour. As there is a lady of that name in the profession, and the notice was intended for me, would you please correct the mistake?—Yours faithfully, Sadie Simpson. March 20, 1906.

Moving In

AT THE

EMPIRE, LIVERPOOL.

RESULT—

SUCCESS

What Liverpool thinks of "MOVING IN":

"LIVERPOOL DAILY POST."

The high standard of the Empire Theatre entertainments is being well maintained; the current programme will easily hold its own. The place of honour is given to Herbert Darnley's Company in the sketch Moving In, which is well described as a "screaming skit on domestic derangement." Most amusing situations are evolved in the sketch, which runs with remarkable vigour, and last night caused roars of laughter." All who enjoy good, genuine fun should make a point of seeing it.

"LIVERPOOL PROGRAMME."

The magnificence of this week's bill is at once apparent to all who scan it. Herbert Darnley's Company of comedians present a screamingly funny sketch entitled Moving In, a skit on domestic derangement. Mr. Darnley has earned for himself a reputation second to none for humorous sketches, the public being indebted to him for many of Fred Karno's best productions, such as His Majesty's Guests.

"LIVERPOOL COURIER."

The management of the Empire have again been successful in arranging another excellent entertainment this week for the delectation of their numerous patrons. Deservedly placed at the head of the bill is a very amusing sketch, entitled Moving In, by Herbert Darnley's comedians, which last night kept the audience in one continuous roar of laughter.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. H. RAYMOND,

SCHOOLBOY PRANKS.
A really good film of schoolboy life. The cautious housekeeper. The spoilt dinner. The mystery of the silent bell. The cause discovered. The culprit is chased by the Porter through the streets, followed by a crowd of bare-footed boys in their nightshirts. The porter and the policeman. Rough usage. About 260ft.
The Subject, £6 10s. 0d.

TERRIBLE ANGUISH.
Barrister is called to the Law Courts by an urgent telephone message. During his absence burglars enter his house, and while his wife is telephoning to him for help she is murdered by the robbers. Her little boy is also killed. The husband arrives home, and his mind almost gives way when he hears of the deaths of his wife and child. Heartrending scenes. About 245ft. The Subject, £6 2s. 6d.

PIERROT, HARLEQUIN, and COLUMBINE.
A picture story of love, desertion, and revenge. Introduces pretty love scenes and the duel—charming colouring. About 245ft. The Subject, £6 2s. 6d.
Colouring extra, nett, 12s. 6d.

HE'S GOT THEM ON.
Jovial workman takes his week's pay and goes home, puts his money in a bag and places it in a pair of trousers in a drawer. His wife comes in. She wants money, but he informs her he has none to give. He goes out. She wants to raise some money, and tries to sell her lamp to an old clo' man, but he will not buy anything but clothing, and she sells her husband's precious trousers. Her husband arrives home, and she tells him what she has done. He is terribly angry and rushes out to find the old clo' man. It will make you laugh to accompany him in his search for the lost trousers, and to see the way he pursues and examines all the light-coloured garments he comes across. About 360ft. £9 0s. 0d.

ANOTHER'S CRIME.
A poor beggar gets no sympathy from the passers-by. The mysterious stranger. The crime in the cottage. Unseen witnesses. The child will know the truth. The day after the crime. The inquest. Chase of the supposed murderer by the mounted and foot police and crowds of people up and down streets, over roofs, through woods, over fields and rivers. Run down at last. Overwhelming evidence. The trial. Scene in court. The real murderer denounced, and is carried off after terrific struggles. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

ROBBERS ROBBED.
While a shopkeeper is busily occupied a lady is putting into a satchel all the jewels she can purloin. Two other women in the shop notice her actions and, following her, they succeed in snatching the bag from her lap. While they are examining their spoil in a park it is stolen from them. The thief is captured, and the two women are about to claim the jewels when they see the original thief and slink off, leaving her to make her claim good. The shopkeeper appears just too late to reclaim his property. About 230ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 0d.

DEATH PREFERABLE TO DISHONOUR.
A well-to-do family meets with severe misfortune. The father meets with an accident. His wife is broken up by the shock, and the only daughter is left to struggle alone. A beautiful girl, she secures employment at a dressmaking establishment, but will not give in to her employer's dishonorable proposals, so he discharges her. She returns home to find her mother dead, and she then lights a charcoal fire in her room and commits suicide. The neighbours break in too late to save her. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

I'VE LOST MY EYEGLASS.
The morning coffee. Short-sighted gentleman loses his eyeglass. It is not to be found either on the table or the floor or under the carpet. No time to wait. The gentleman rushes off to keep an appointment, and his short-sightedness causes many amusing and somewhat painful collisions. Unable to bear anything farther, he bribes a woman with a truck to give him a lift, and after some hard work she shoots him out at his destination. He arrives home at last, and when drinking his coffee discovers the missing eyeglass, which had fallen into the cup. His great joy at the recovery is laughable to behold. About 275ft.
The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

No. 1009. THE PEASANT-GIRL'S REVENGE.

Along a lonely wind-swept country road in Eastern Russia three Cossacks are riding wearily, searching for some signs of human habitation where a meal may be obtained. Presently they spy a miserable little cottage some distance off the roadway, within which a frugal but sufficient meal is in progress. A peasant, his wife and daughter are sitting around the table eating food, and washing it down with a bottle of wine. Suddenly the tramp of horses in heard, and rushing to the door the peasant breathes the fatal word "Cossacks!" In a moment, fear and consternation put all happiness to flight, the peasant barricades the door, while his wife and daughter hide the remains of the food in a trap in the floor. Meanwhile the Cossacks, having in vain demanded admission, burst the door down and stride into the room demanding food. The peasant refuses to give it to them, and the officer runs him through with his sword and repeats his demands to the horrified wife. Maddened at the brutal murder of her husband, the peasant woman proudly refuses the food until they seize her daughter and threaten to flog her to death. Then she yields, and points to the hole in the ground where the food is hidden. When the Cossacks settle to their meal they find that the wine flagon is empty and they demand its replenishment. This is the peasant woman's opportunity to avenge the death of her husband. She fetches a new bottle and drops a terrible poison into it and carries it back to the intruders, but the officer refuses to drink until the woman has herself taken a cupful. Thirsting for revenge she is ready to take even this step to ensure that the murderers shall drink also, but they have thought of a better plan and they insist instead that the child shall drink the wine as a proof that it is "undoctored." Just at this moment the sentry outside calls the Cossacks' attention, and while their backs are turned the mother flings the poisoned wine out of the cup and presses the empty vessel to her daughter's lips. The Cossacks returning, are satisfied at last that the wine is safe, and all but the officer drink the poisoned liquid. Quickly the poison does its work, and two of the men are seized with their death agonies. Then the officer rises in wrath to slay the mother and child, but the little girl has seized a dagger from one of the men, and she deftly plunges it into the villain's back just in time to save her mother's life. Length 300ft. Price, £7 10s. 0d.

No. 1006. A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.

No. 996. THE TRAGEDY OF THE SAWMILL.

One of the finest melodramatic stories we have produced. The first scene depicts the work going on in large up-to-date saw-mills, machinery in full swing. Lunch whistle goes, and men prepare to depart. There enters the sweetheart of one of the workmen and her young sister. The foreman of the works, however, is also in love with the workman's sweetheart, and talks to the young workman to distract his attention while handing written offer of marriage to the girl. She repulses his attentions and thereby increases his jealousy, and anger for the young workman. Scene 2.—The foreman arranges to meet the girl in the open, and there again proposes marriage. She again refuses, and he endeavours to do her violence. The young lover comes on the scene, and fights the foreman. Foreman swears vengeance, and arranges with an accomplice to do him harm. Scene 3. Back in the workshop. The villain foreman and his accomplice strap the young man on the swiftly moving saw bench near circular saw. His sweetheart rushes in, and the foreman forces her hand on lever to start the machinery, then rushes off with her. Enter young sister, who cuts ropes of prisoner after vainly endeavouring to stop the machinery. Hero thrashes villain. Grand finale. Most exciting, and of fine quality. Length 500ft. Price, £10 12s. 6d.

THE MODERN OLIVER TWIST; or, The Life of a Pickpocket.

Copyright 1906 by the Vitagraph Co., of America.

Nearly everyone is familiar with this great masterpiece of fiction from the pen of Charles Dickens. The dramatic possibilities have been worked out to a high degree of perfection in this production.

SCENE No. 1.

HOMELESS.—Oliver Twist, a poor little orphan, has run away from a charitable institution where he has been ill-treated, and is picked up by the "Artful Dodger," a young scamp, who is a member of a gang of thieves.

SCENE No. 2.

THE THIEVES' DEN.—We see old Fagin, the Jew who teaches boys to become criminals, anxiously awaiting the return of some of his "scholars." Soon some of the boys arrive and hand him watches, handkerchiefs, and other stolen goods. The "Artful Dodger" then arrives and introduces little Oliver. Old Fagin welcomes the newcomer, and teaches him the new game of "Find the Watch," in which Oliver is unconsciously taught to pick pockets. The familiar characters of Bill Sikes and Nancy arrive in Fagin's den, and then Bill Sikes and the boys take little Oliver with them to initiate him into the profession of pocket-picking.

SCENE No. 3.

OLIVER FINDS A HOME.—The well-known figure of Mr. Brownlow is seen walking down the street. He stops at a news-stand, and while buying a paper the "Artful Dodger," with Oliver Twist and another of Fagin's boys, approach, and deftly steal Mr. Brownlow's watch and run swiftly down the street. Mr. Brownlow discovers the theft, and calling a policeman, they start in chase of the pickpockets, down the street, over fences, and around corners. Finally the bigger boys leave Oliver, and he, being exhausted, crouches down behind some barrels, where he is discovered by the pursuing crowd. One of the policemen takes him roughly by the arm, but kind-hearted Mr. Brownlow intervenes, and, picking little Oliver up in his arms, carries him home.

SCENE No. 4.

RE-CAPTURED.—We see Oliver in his new home, well clothed and fed, and looking very happy. Old Mr. Brownlow goes off to business, leaving Oliver to amuse himself. Suddenly the door is cautiously opened, and the hideous face and burly figure of Bill Sikes appears. Poor little Oliver is terrified, and tries to run away, but Sikes, quickly placing a hand over the boy's mouth, starts to drag him from the room. The butler, hearing the noise, rushes in. He is knocked senseless, and Bill Sikes drags the boy back to Fagin's den.

SCENE No. 5.

THE ROBBERY.—In Fagin's den we see the return of Bill Sikes and Oliver. The thieves plan to rob Mr. Brownlow's house by forcing Oliver to climb through a small window and open the door for them. They terrify the poor boy with threats until he consents to aid them. Nancy Sikes overhears the plan, and after the thieves have left, taking Oliver with them, she stealthily follows them, intending to warn Mr. Brownlow. Next we see the burglars breaking into the house, Oliver being put through the window. The butler awakens, rushes hurriedly downstairs, and seeing a figure in the semi-darkness, shoots at it. When the lights are turned up and the rest of the household aroused, they find to their astonishment and grief that poor little Oliver is the "burglar." This entire scene is very effective and dramatic. Nancy Sikes arrives, but finds she is too late. The police follow her when she leaves, and thus track her and the other criminals to Fagin's den.

SCENE No. 6.

RETRIBUTION.—Bill Sikes and Toby Crackit rush into Fagin's den and tell him of their ill-luck. Bill asks where Nancy is, and Fagin describes how she followed them to the scene of the robbery. Bill suspects treachery on her part, and at that moment she enters. He accuses her, and although she denies having betrayed them, Bill disbelieves her, and in a moment of rage brutally chokes her. He drags the inanimate body from the room. Suddenly the doors and windows of the den are battered in, and the police, swarming in, overpower the criminals. The closing scene is very dramatic. While Bill Sikes, Fagin, and the other thieves are held in the grip of the police, poor Nancy painfully drags herself into the room, and, pointing an accusing finger at Fagin, falls dead at their feet. This production is one of the most dramatic stories ever told in pictures, and the photography throughout is most beautiful.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—On Monday evening Mr. Roy Jackson's company in The Hand of Iron opened here to an appreciative audience. Mr. Roy Jackson gives a very powerful interpretation of Manuel Levigne, his various disguises being exceedingly good. Mr. Herbert Deville makes a capital Edmund Singleton; Mr. Everett Lynn as Solomon Isaac is very amusing, and the same may be said of Mr. Frank Haynes as Hiram Lincoln; Mr. S. Howard makes the most of his part of Poverty Jim; Mr. Arthur Beaufort is worthy of special mention as Jos Wellington; Miss Kittie Douglas gives an admirable portrayal of Marie Durouge; Miss Violet Lesborough is a decided success as May Sutherland; Miss Florrie Hayes creates much merriment as Nell Swift, and is ably assisted by Miss Bella Richardson as Mrs. Lincoln. All the minor characters are in capable hands, and the scenery and mounting are really good.

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—This week Mr. Walter Reynolds's company is presenting the attractive drama Mr. Smith, which is thoroughly appreciated by the audiences. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, an actor of great skill and fine appearance, gives an admirable portrait of the hero, and Miss Elsina Gaunt is no less successful in the part of the high-born heroine. Mr. Russell Norrie and Mr. W. E. Holloway play most capably as Lord Oxted and the Duke of Angleland; Miss Dudgeon makes a stately Duchess; and Miss Fyfe Alexander and Miss Daisy England are happily placed as Ruth Anheuser and Mrs. Smith. Mr. Fred Darrell is effective as Herr Anheuser; and the Hon. Dudley Dysart and Jack Berkeley are well represented by Mr. Pilling Baird and Mr. Carter Bligh.

Palace Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Albert and Edmunds' comedy company is appearing with much success in their amusing sketch The First Mrs. Banbury, and the Deer Family give a vivid representation of bygone scenes in the "Wild West." Mlle. Viola plays on a variety of musical instruments with great skill; Atroy makes a decided hit as a juggler; and the turn of Gauze, a Canadian-Indian impersonator and vocalist, is also highly appreciated. Mr. Harry Zetter is an exceptionally clever comedian; Miss Rosie Rickards sings vivaciously; Ora shows marked agility on the aerial trapeze; and a diverting sketch, The Chaperone, is cleverly played by Mr. Frank Bertram and his company; while the comical eccentricities of Hall and Earle evoke much genuine merriment. The dancing competition, which has proved so attractive, is now in its last stage, the final "heat" taking place to-night.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. George Dance's company opened here on Monday with Cingalee; or, Sunny Ceylon. Mr Laurie de Frece should be highly complimented on his clever and humorous portrayal of Chambhuddy Ram; Miss Winnie O'Connor gives a chic and graceful performance; Miss Gladys Guy is a successful and attractive Peggy Sabine; Miss Marjorie Clarke submits a charming performance as Lady Patricia Vane; Mr. Frank Crimp is good as the Hon. Harry Vereker; Boobhamba is well acted by Mr. Bertrand Gates; Sir Peter is portrayed to the life by Mr. Cook Edmunds; Warren is ably depicted by Mr. E. Edwards.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker.—The bill here includes the Three Romas, Lily Black, the Brothers Adderley, Henry Beker (a clever conjurer), Wright and Elton (eccentric dancers), and Les Louberts, in a comedy act.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company is here with The Temptress. Miss Blanche Steele (Mrs. Hallatt)—who is a daughter of the late lessee of the old "Victory" Theatre, which was destroyed by fire in February, 1889—portrays the rôle of Stella in a talented manner, and receives a good reception. Mr. Hallatt's is a capital personation of Pedro; Mr. Fred Ross plays with strong dramatic force as Lucas; and Miss Mabel Scudamore gives a sympathetic enactment of Marion; whilst Miss F. Palmer is seen to advantage as Madge. Capital comic element was introduced by Messrs. Tom E. Sinclair, Allen Carruthers, Oscar Power, and Miss Lillie Chambers. Mr. Forbes Harrison is stage-manager. The scenery of the play is effective, several of the sets being really excellent and well arranged.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Home, Sweet Home, is being played here this week. Mr. Frank Lindo, the author of the piece, acts with great fervour and emotional feeling the part of a young fisherman and captain of a lifeboat crew. Miss Marion Wakeford as the village fisher-girl is comely and sweet; a fine impersonation of an old weather-beaten salt is given by Mr. J. W. Henson; and Mr. Geo. Overs is good as a fisher lad. Messrs. T. Lewis and D. L. Doyle are capable interpreters of the typical seaside boatmen; Captain Gerald Gambier is sufficiently dignified and kindly-natured as the Duke; and his private secretary, Lucas Lyle, is ably represented by Mr. Wilson Coleman. Mr. Sydney Bryant displays humour as the Hon. Percy, the foolish son of the Duke; and Miss Hetty Webster is vivacious and spirited as Sybil Fay. As the child Dora Miss Daisy Rochefort acts very prettily and feelingly. Minor rôles fall into the capable hands of Miss Mary Denver and Messrs. Ernest E. Owens and Danvers.

The Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The programme presented here includes the Rosaires, bar experts; Ernesto, a marvellous juggler as well as musical equilibrist; the Boleros in an acrobatic act; Hinton and Wooton, cyclists, in a clever act; Ventriloquist Oakdene in his ventriloquial scena, The Stowaways; Beattie Foster, comedienne; and the Two Whites, American comedy artists. Wallace Whitney, character comedian; the Mimosa Trio of charming girls; and Gilroy and Gross, refined comedians and dancing experts. "The Poacher's Revenge" is depicted on the bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—This week's attraction is provided by Mr. Andrew Melville's company in the well-known drama Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt gave a thoughtful rendering of Anthony Raybrook; the part of Willie the outcast was played in a masterly manner by Mr. Ernest Outtrim; an excellent character-sketch was given by Mr. J. H. Booth as Dick Saunders; villainy found a capable exponent in Mr. Herbert Cecil as Geoffrey Waring; Mr. Frederick Sandy presented the part of David Wilson with much success; Mr. Morley Carroll was good as Walter Hatherley; Miss Frances Ruttledge, in the dual rôle of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherley the younger, has a difficult task, which she accomplishes with pleasing grace and winning manner; Miss Florence Nelson was well placed as Barbara Ashdown; Miss Evelyn Marrable was commendably good as Margaret Bailey. Other parts were ably undertaken by Messrs. Howard Tracey (George Clissold), George Lawrence (Peter Pettifer), Alick Macmillan (John Anderson), Misses Doris Lorraine (Fanny Jones), Amy Williams (Mrs. McCarthy), Florence Wilson (Peggy), and Ruby Eden (Jane).

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—This week's excellent programme is headed by Miss Marie Santoi and her merry Japs, in a novel musical mélange, entitled The Japanese Tea Garden by Night; Mr. Alf. Lavarni goes through a creditable performance on the tight wire; Miss Beatie Kent is a pleasing comedienne; Mr. Walter Adams a quaint and versatile comedian, is heartily welcomed on his return visit; Silvo gives a very enjoyable musical turn on the musical glasses and other instruments; Mr. E. C. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures are as popular as ever; Miss May Lilian Levey proves herself a capable comedienne; and Mr. Tom Collins is a good character comedian.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—A fairly good house was drawn by Mr. J. B. Howard's No. 1 company in Florodora on Monday. Mr. Daley Cooper as Anthony Tweedlepunch did not spare himself, and his business and make-up are excruciatingly funny; Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus W. Gilfain looked and acted the part perfectly; the Frank Abercoed of Mr. R. Courtier Dutton was appropriately sentimental, his singing being a feature. He had a good partner in Miss Leonora Grieve as Dolores, who acted well up to him, and with her graceful and winning ways made the scenes between the two most delightful. Mr. Herbert St. John as Captain Arthur Donegal was well interpreted, and he likewise had good support from Miss Lily Gullick, who played the part of Angela Gilfain. Miss Edith Housley as Lady Holyrood sang and danced nicely. During the last three nights of the week Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kimberley's No. 1 company occupied the boards with Two Little Drummer Boys.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company, in A Gambler's Daughter, are proving a big attraction here this week. Mr. Robert Ayrton as Desmond O'Dare, an Irish emigrant, gives a clever impersonation; Mr. Alfred Sanders as Soloman Solomons scores heavily; Mr. Harry Rutland is effective as Ralph Gillman; Mr. H. Sidney emphasises the villainy of Stephen Brand; Mr. Richard Pitt as John Grant makes the most of the part; Dick, "The Weasel," is admirably enacted by Mr. Frank Wheatcroft; and as Jack Grant, Mr. Victor Millard is very successful. Miss Adria Hill in the dual rôle of Mildred Grant and Miriam Grant comes out strongly; Miss Harriett Loydall as Auntie Zeb is very amusing; and Miss Sanders is well-placed as Carita.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. William Greet's principal touring company is here in the successful musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl. The humorous part of Jim Cheese has a clever exponent in Mr. Alfred Donohoe; Mr. Leslie Gaze is a decided success as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Percy Bronson as Downham does full justice to his part; as Elphin Haye, Miss Hylda Dugdale plays with charming grace; Miss Beatrice Anderson gives an interesting assumption of Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Lina Hicks submits a capital character sketch as 'Liza Shoddam; whilst others who share in the success of the piece are Mr. Thomas Kennard as Hon. Crewe Boodle, Mr. Greville Hayes as A. Bunker Bliss, and Miss Winnie Plumpton as Miss Virginia Bliss.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's No. 1 company is here with In Holy (!) Russia. Mrs. Cassidy gives a very clever impersonation of the heroine, Renee Rubinoff; and Miss Alice Marsden draws a good picture of Madame Natolski; the Natalie Natolski of Miss Evie Norman is also pleasing. Miss Louis Norman is a capable Michael Natolski; and a forceful Laurice Steragoff is supplied by Mr. Carl Rivinelli. Micky Nolan is made irresistibly humorous by Mr. Cassidy; and Mr. Arthur Stratton, as Col. Richard Forrest, is also an amusing study.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company is occupying the boards this week in the new version of that stirring military drama The Indian Mutiny, the many exciting incidents of the piece arousing enthusiasm from the patrons of the popular parts of the house. The impersonation of the three British officers, Major Ingleby, Capt. Manley, and Lieut. Manley, are undertaken with every success by Mr. John Davidson, Mr. Cyril Harrison (an old Bath favourite), and Mr. George Steel. Mr. G. Scully creates plenty of laughter by his comedy work as Terry O'Brien; Miss Kate Bruce as Mrs. Ingleby and Miss Lillie Grey as her daughter Kate are to be commended for their respective portrayals. The Hindoo parts are presented with careful emphasis by Mr. Villiers Stanley (Nebu Singh), Mr. J. S. Shedden (Abul Khan), and Mr. Ernest Keand (Goonga), and Miss F. Melrose Millett sustains Ghuz-nah with no little power. The make-up and elaborate costumes of the native representatives is highly effective, and the picturesque Indian scenery and appointments are much admired.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—Crowds are attracted nightly to welcome Happy Fanny Fields, who, coming straight from her pantomime triumphs at Bristol, is meeting with an equally enthusiastic reception in the sister city. Her merry manner and agile dancing provide a delightful tonic to all fortunate beholders. Another prime favourite of Bathonians is G. W. Hunter, the droll comedian and dry storyteller, his latest songs and patter creating the usual hilarity. Arthur Aldridge, the popular ballad vocalist, is on a third visit, and his sweet tenor voice appears to be more fully developed than ever. Walker and Lake, cross-talk comedians, are as mirth-provoking as of yore, their efforts securing plenty of applause. Alfred Cyclo is a trick cyclist of great skill, many of his feats being quite uncommon. Jenny Reeve, comedienne, is on a return visit; Violet Stockelle is also billed, but did not appear on the evening of our visit. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux as usual form a pleasing final item.

Assembly Rooms.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Howes, Jun.—Mr. Walter Jeffs' "New Century" pictures are paying a first visit here this week, and this pleasing and instructive entertainment is voted one of the best of its class.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—The Throne of Terror, a play dealing with the "Reign of Terror," gives Mr. W. J. Miller opportunities as Robespierre of showing his undoubted abilities as a sound and forceful actor; Mr. Roy Milton gives a good performance; Miss Katherine Maud Davies essays the part of Marguerite with conspicuous success; Miss Rose Salisbury, in a heavy part, is very successful; and the lesser rôles are played with care.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Leon Wood and Mr. A. F. Allen-Tower's company in The Hindustanee. Mr. Percy Beresford makes a good King Kawfee; and Cing-i-Cing finds a satisfactory interpreter in Mr. Owen Ford. Mr. A. E. Behan as Dr. Theophilus Jones, assisted by Mr. Harry Lawn as Hari Keede, well sustain the humour of the piece; Miss Dorothy Ross makes a pleasing Hindustanee Princess. The Mahranee Troupe of Oriental dancers afford a good entertainment.

BELFAST. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James C. McCann.—On Monday, Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux presented Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company in the successful play The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Herbert Bunston was decidedly successful in the rôle of Jack Frobisher, his powerful impersonation of the man from Queensland contributing in no small degree to the success of the piece. Miss Florence Jackson, a handsome actress, was charming as Lady Alethea Frobisher, deservedly winning high honours; and an exceedingly smart interpretation of Lady Lucy Derenham was furnished by Miss Molly Carton. A clever character sketch of the good-natured Hankey Bannister was furnished by Mr. George A. Brandram; and Mr. Lawrence Hanray was the impecunious Marquis of Steventon to the life. Miss Lydia Busch's impersonation of Lady Westerby was entirely sympathetic; and to the rôle of Harry Dallas full justice was done by Mr. Sydney Hamilton. Mr. George Percy's impersonation of the irrepressible bore Bertram Hannaford reflected much credit on him.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edwin Leslie.—Mr. Morris Cronin and his clever troupe top the bill here, and have delighted the crowds with their marvellous exhibition of club swinging, &c. A pleasing feature of the bill is Canty's Mystic Grotto, a beautiful spectacle, superbly staged, in which is introduced Mlle. de Silva, the mysterious lady. The Celtic Comedy Trio appear to much advantage in their amusing musical comedy; and Keen and Waller, eccentric acrobatic comedians, have taken immensely. Mr. Harry A. Moore, a talented actor-mimic, appears with marked success in a series of imitations; and also appearing are Miss Bertha Stuart, Scotch vocalist; Mr. Geo. Collins, comedian; Mr. Geo. Lipton, in his cable act; and the entertaining Palace pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The chief turn here is provided by the Cole du Losso Duo, two droll comedians on the slack wire, whose unique performance has been successful; Cooke and Rothert are a very entertaining couple, their performance being enthusiastically received; the Knick-Knacks please all with their capital songs and clever dancing; and a hit has been made by Rauschile, the famous Continental impersonator. Goggin and Davis, the droll acrobats, repeat last week's success; and the Sisters St. Julian are accomplished duettists and dancers. Also appearing are Chas. Vincent and Chas. Lilburn, comedians.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Carlton's Four Queeries, who top the bill here, provide much amazement with their extraordinary and startling illusionary act; Werland, a clever comedy juggler, has been very successful, and deservedly so; and Pete and Minnie Lee appear to advantage in their attractive comedy act. The new pictures exhibited by the Alhambra Bioscope remain a feature of the bill; and a pleasing appearance is made by Miss Amy Bellwood, a dashing comedienne and fine dancer. Also here are Mr. Mark Leslie, comedian; the Sivronis, comedy artists; Harry Maxam, comedian; and Henriette, vocal and instrumental entertainer.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—The first three evenings of this week are occupied by Mr. J. Bannister-Howard's company in The Christian. Miss Grace Murielle as Glory Quayle and Mr. F. Rawson-Buckley as John Storm are perfect in their impersonations, their acting being of the highest order; Mrs. Callander lost nothing in the hands of capable Miss Violet Vivian; the gentlemanly speech and carriage of Mr. Percy Twyman fitted him well for the part of Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Duncan Yarrow was very effective as Horatio Drake; and other performers who were prominent were Mr. Jack Hames (Lorrimer), Mr. Percy Johnson (Parson Quayle), and Mr. Anthony Rawles as the "Faro King." Thursday, Friday, and to-day (Saturday) are given up to The Guilty Man.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell. — Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here with the popular comedy The Freedom of Suzanne. It is difficult to speak too highly of the charming and finished performance of Miss Beatrice Lindley as Suzanne; Mr. Herbert J. Bentley gives an effective rendering of Charles Trevor, treating a somewhat exacting rôle with consummate ability; and Mr. F. G. Thurstans is particularly successful as Fitzroy Harding. Mr. William Mallalieu is in every respect an excellent Sir Horace Halton; Mr. R. Harley West contributes a capital character-sketch as Lord Dachet; Mr. Townsend Whitling enacts Captain Cecil with considerable skill; and Mr. Archie Selwyn is a good Tommy Keston. The important part of Lady Charlotte Trevor is irreproachably played by Miss Emily Patterson; Miss Charlotte Meade is amusing as Miss Fanny Minching, and Miss Violet Ley is an admirable Lady Isabel Bury. The interesting one-act episode Two in a Trap, supported by Mr. Townsend Whitling and Miss Violet Ley serves as a curtain-raiser.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke. — Mr. Tom Craven, Mr. Stephen Adeson, and a competent company, in the amusing sketch The Lady in Red, are a leading attraction. Mr. Arthur Lenard, the popular vocalist, with some new songs, is on a return visit, as also is Mr. Jock Whiteford, an exceptionally clever Scotch comedian. Mr. John E. Coyle is a comedian of merit, as also is Mr. Julian Mack, and Erick, a smart ventriloquist, gives a novel turn. Tray and Rich, black and white artists, are favourites, and Mr. Victor Travers (comedian), Miss Lizzie Fletcher (comedienne), the Schallors (comic gymnasts), and an up-to-date display by the bioscope complete the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Spring Chicken made its first appearance here on Monday, when its piquant attraction won hearty applause. Mr. George Edwardes has mounted the play and dressed the characters in a most recherche style, and the company includes Miss Irene Verona, who, as Mrs. Girdle, assumes the assertive mother-in-law to perfection; Miss Gertrude Gillian acts as the Baroness with taste and verve; Miss Rita Everard scores with her refined manner as Dulcie; Miss Gertrude Glynn gives a winning presentment of Rosalie; and Mr. George Gregory is excruciatingly humorous as Girdle. Mr. L. W. Harris also acts and sings with perfect aplomb as Babori; Mr. Edgar Ronald's talent finds goodly expression in the rôle of Boniface; and Mr. C. D. Cleveland as Felix, Mr. Frank Hector as the Baron, and others contribute successfully.

Prince of Wales's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston. — Leah Kleschna, which makes a welcome reappearance here, has again proved of a highly-engrossing nature, and Mr. Pateman as Kleschna is a most potent factor in its success. Mr. J. Graeme Campbell acts gracefully as the lover, Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Cyril Harcourt as Raoul Berton gives due emphasis to the profligate attributes of the character; and Messrs. E. H. Brooke and Kenneth Rivington do exceedingly well in the respective parts of Schram and General Berton. Miss Haidée Wright acts with fine feeling and true dramatic power as Leah Kleschna; and Miss Ethel Marryat as Mme. Berton, Miss Dorothy Sidney as Sophie, Mr. Ronald Daniel as Favre, and Miss Haidée Hemsley as Claire also take honours.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—A Message from Mars is being played here by Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company. Mr. Cyril Austen Lee as Horace Parker is equally successful in depicting both phases of the character, and the Messenger is impressively enacted by Mr. William H. Brougham. Mr. Bruce Lindley is effective as the Tramp, Mrs. Edward Saker lends distinction to the rôle of Miss Parker, and Miss May Saker receives well-merited applause for her graceful acting as Minnie Templar.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—Man's Enemy; or, the Downward Path, is being presented here in convincing style by Messrs. Beardmore, Power, and Bryne's company, by arrangement with Dottridge and Longden. Mr. Augustine Knight as Harry Stanton, a part he has played for over 700 times, is scoring anew; Mr. John Power is well placed as Tom Drake; Miss Daisy Halling contributes much to the success by her Sarah Drake; Miss N. Cowling figures gracefully as Grace Lisle; and other rôles are well placed.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—Her Lost Self, which Miss Frances Del val and company are playing for the first time in Birmingham with much success, is a drama of the woman kind which is sure to score wherever it may appear. Miss Frances Delaval acts with fine emotional power in the rôle of the betrayed Philippine; Mr. Chas. Kean as the betrayer, Norman Esmond, gives an admirable performance; Mr. Aidan Lovett wins much respect for the character of Paule Kimberley; Mr. Percy Carne Waram is highly successful as Wilfred Daventry; and Messrs. Fred Lillywhite, L. W. Halfpenny, Horace Buckley, and R. Devere Lawrence act most satisfactorily. Miss Dora Hammersley plays the dual rôle of mother and daughter most commendably; Miss Nell Ingram shines as Bridget; and tiny Carrie Johnson excels as "the smallest comedienne in the world."

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Luck of Life is reproduced here with all the original effects by Mr. Reginald H. Adair's company, under the direction of Mr. Percy Boucher. Mr. Roland Yorke effectively discharges the heavy responsibilities of the rôle of Bazilovitz, the Nihilist; Mr. Norman A. Overton is popular as the hero, George Stanhope; Mr. H. Hesselgrove attains prominence as Babadur; Miss Isabel Marte gives a winsome portrayal of the heroine's rôle; Miss Gertrude Bonsor is successful as her antithesis, Countess Vlame; and Mr. Edwin Turner, Mr. Albert Cuthbertson, Mr. Ernest Bright, and Miss Violet Cartmell shine in the cast. The humour of the piece is cleverly sustained by Mr. A. Stanley Leedham as Simon Stanley and Miss Dora Huggett as Laura North.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittle.—The Love that Women Desire, which is vividly illustrated by capable acting and beautiful new scenery, holds the stage here in the hands of Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. Mr. Wallace appears successfully as Richard Abingdon; Mr. J. O. Stewart deals cleverly with the rôle of Squire Abingdon; Mr. David G. Noble evokes admiration by his sturdy acting as Philip Carnaby; Mr. Frank Fuller realises the part of the outcast, Frank Hardy, in an exceedingly creditable manner; Miss Lalla Stanhope displays the heroine's qualities in a pleasing manner; Miss Alice N. Livesey does well in the part of Madge Abingdon; and Miss Clarissa Bamford, Miss Maud Stuart, Mr. J. Hignett, and Mr. A. Rich lend good support.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Messrs. Montague Beaudyn and Sydney Crowe's company is presenting The Way of the World here this week. Mr. Herbert Shardon is successful in his portrayal of Cecil Montague; Captain Fred Slade is well played by Mr. Victor Gordon; as Matthew Malyon, Mr. Clarence Temple is all that can be desired; Mr. Fred Mack is well placed as Sir John Slade; and Mr. Patt Quinn is very good as Silas Montague. Kate Montague is effectively acted by Miss Cissy Bellamy; and Miss Violet Ingram is a favourite as Marian Fanshaw. Miss Sidney Crowe enacts with skill the part of Adela de la Roche. The humour of the play is ably sustained by Mr. Louis Scott, Mr. Dick Seddon, and Miss Violet Vivienne as Horatio Bluff, Joe Sparrow, and Polly Bell respectively.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Sir F. C. Burnand's play Proof is being played here by Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company. The story of the wrong suffered by Pierre Lorance has been well told by those responsible for the telling. In the character mentioned, Mr. Gerald Kennedy is excellent, he giving a powerful delineation of the part in all its phases. Miss Lucy Prittie-Tydd fills the rôles of Madeline in the prologue and of Adrienne in the subsequent acts. Her acting has all the charm necessary to the latter part, and well supports Mr. Kennedy. Mr. William Dexter is the Lazare, and acts with much force; while as Chamboran Mr. Wilford Bailey is responsible for much hilarity. Mr. Terence Nerrey makes a dignified Duke d'Aubeterre, and Miss Dorothy White plays the Duchess well. Mention should be made of the clever acting of little Miss Ellina Turner as Adrienne in the prologue.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Fred Granville's company, in the drama For Better or Worse, is appearing here. The various characters are in good hands, and the scenery and dresses all that can be desired. Specialities are given by Mr. Willie Black, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lovell, and Miss Reed.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—That popular comedienne, Miss Marie Kendall, is appearing this week. She has some good new songs, but her greatest success appears to be the old favourite, "Just like the ivy." A singing competition, with this song as a "test piece," has been arranged in connection with Miss Kendall's visit. W. Belloni has a number of performing cockatoos, which give evidence of much careful and patient training. Good turns are also given by Harry Drew, a Welsh basso; Rita and Roma, speciality artists; Lambert and Glover, comedians; Gray and Welford, comedians; Steve McCarthy, comedian; and Raymond's animated pictures.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company is here this week with A Great Sensation. Mr. Sidney N. Hallows appears in the dual rôle of Jack Damer and Stephen Damer, giving ample proof of considerable histrionic ability; Mr. J. H. Firman does well as Bunko Bates; and Mr. Alfred Richards creditably enacts the part of Robin Dale. Miss Isaacson is well suited to the part of Eva Dale; and Messrs. E. C. Clive and William Ames, as Henry Escombe and "Wiley" Jones respectively, likewise merit approbation.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Sign of the Cross, very ably enacted by Mr. William Greet's company, is once again proving its box-office value here this week. Mr. William F. Grant makes a capital Marcus, and Miss Marie Leonhard a charming Mercia; Mr. J. Boyd Pearson as Nero, Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus, Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio, Miss Nellie Bonser as Poppæa, Miss Alma Bolton as Berenice, Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia, Miss Frances Irving as Ancaria, Mr. Walter Fleet as Favius, and Miss Ivy Millais as Stephanus also do good work.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The principal stars here this week are the Waldrons, in a screaming absurdity; Jack Lorimer, Scotch comedian; Lawrence Barclay, comedian; and Theo Hardeen, the handcuff king. Lesser satellites are Charles Bayman, comedian; Marie Blythe, comedienne; Hill and Whittaker, musicians; Edie King, vocalist; Will Souls, comedian; and Mona Deane, burlesque artist.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL (LIMITED).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston.—After more than a year's absence The Girl From Kay's is making a welcome reappearance in Bolton, and is being presented by Mr. George Dance's company. Mr. H. C. Barry, in his ludicrous impersonation of Max Hoggenheimer, proves to be the life and soul of the piece; the Winnie Harborough of Miss Beatrice Poole is graceful and charming; Miss Emily Taylor does well as Nora Chalmers; and a pert and pretty Ellen is that of Miss Mabel Dent. One of the funniest delineations of the piece is that of the hall porter by Mr. Tom Seymour. Mr. Reginald Grey as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle is also responsible for much humour, and Mr. J. S. Durant (Henry Gordon), Mr. Robert Rivers (Theodore Quench, Q.C.), and Mr. Bert Berton (Mr. Chalmers) are all capitally suited.

GRAND THEATRE (LIMITED).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Included in the programme presented here this week are the Marlo and Dunham Trio, on the horizontal bars; Lively Lily Simmons, comedienne; Herbert Rule, quaint comedian; W. H. Downs, coloured Australian ballad vocalist; Robins and Collier, in a musical comedy-scena, The Lady and the Porter; Ben Albert, comedian; Florence and Lilian, in a drawing-room musical act; Harrison Bros., comedians and expert dancers; Wallace, juggler; Fred and Maud Vipond, society entertainers, in their humorous entr'acte The Honeymoon; the Three Sisters Leigh, speciality dancers and singers; Conway and Leland, the Merry Monopedes, and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—A feature in this week's bill is the first appearance here of Wal Pink's workmen in Repairs. They cause roars of laughter. Montague Biggs gives some clever impersonations; an acrobatic hunting absurdity, The Meet, by Keith and Merson, is much appreciated, and their success is undoubted; Lozelle, sensational gymnast, is well received; Agnes Hazel, comedienne, and Gertie Gitana, the favourite young comedienne, in a refined scena, also figure in the programme.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company in that successful play Monsieur Beaucaire opened here on Monady night to an appreciative house. The title-rôle was well handled by Mr. Norman Macowan, who, with the aid of a good voice and fine stage presence, made an admirable Monsieur Beaucaire. Miss Marguerite Cellier was earnest and charming as Lady Mary Carlisle, and Mr. Murray Hathorn gave a clever portrayal of the Duke of Winterset. Mr. Arthur Somers and Mr. Conybeare Gough scored respectively as Major Molyneaux and Mr. Rakell; and Mr. Leonard Laurence as Beau Nash, Mr. Ramsay Forman as Captain Badger, Mr. Hans Schlesinger as François and as the Marquis de Mirepoix, and Miss Annie Windsor as Lucy Rellerton completed a capital cast.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. John Rutherford's fascinating and romantic drama The Breed of the Treshams was presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's excellent company to a large and very appreciative audience here on Monday evening. Mr. Henry Belding, in a convincing performance of the part of the valiant swashbuckler and adventurer Lieut. Reresby, the Rat, never once lost his hold of the audience, who marked their appreciation of his artistic efforts by frequent recalls at the end of each act. Mr. Oswald Lingard's Viscount Dorsington was an able performance. The conventional character of the besmirched Col. Clement Hungerford has a fitting exponent in Mr. Hamilton Deane. Mr. George Traill filled the rôle of Col. Sir Henry Curwen well, and Mr. Wilson Blake made the part of the cowardly Rashleigh effective. As Cornet Tresham Mr. Cecil Klein was earnest in his acting. Miss Celestine Bertram represented the faithful boy Batty in rollicking style, and there was much charm and repose in Miss Florence Tressilian's impersonation of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford, and the representatives of the remaining characters made the most of their opportunities. The thrilling incidents in the drama were depicted with striking realism, the staging being all that could be desired.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—We are this week renewing acquaintance here with Mr. G. R. Sims and the late Wilson Barrett's fine drama The Golden Ladder, and full justice is done to the welcome revival by the fine company Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edwards have organised, and the stage mounting is admirable. There was a large audience present on Monday night, Mr. Harry Cullenford's acting as the Rev. Frank Thornhill being a feature of an excellent performance. The scoundrel Michael Severn is impersonated with telling effect by Mr. J. Milne Taylor. Miss Holly Haslewood earns distinction in the character of Lily. As the Peckabys, Mr. Joseph Rowlands and Miss Nellie Graham afford the welcome comic relief, and the other characters are in the hands of very able exponents.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The main feature of a strong and attractive programme here this week is the sensational and thrilling performance furnished by Richard Sawade's lions, tigers, bears, and dogs, and their intrepid instructor is the recipient of great applause. Seeley and West, the comedy musicians, make a welcome reappearance, and Miss Amy Russell, the talented soprano, is heard again in excellent songs. Sinclair and Parr's vocal duets and medley of songs are well rendered, the New Macs provide a good "patter" and dancing, the Dorrells are a pair of attractive duettists and dancers, and Brooks, Dale, and Blitz, with excellent comedy and a trained mule, are responsible for much laughter. A very clever triple-bar performance is presented by Mezzetti and Mora, and Ivey Roze and Frank Calvert, in their funny Captain Scuttle burlesque, provoke much merriment.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, Jun.—Smann Sing Hpoo, a British Burmah lilliputian, is a distinct novelty here, and is a performer of merit on rings and bars; with vocalism, whistling, imitations, and the piano, Helen Charles provides a good entertainment; the Guyons score successfully in a powerfully dramatic sketch, His One Great Sin; Fred Harrison is very amusing as the Funny Chinaman; May Moodie executes difficult piccolo solos in clever style; the Two Erolls are very good in comedy leaping act; as a juggler and equilibrist, Francisco is distinctly clever; Martin Henderson, the blind concertina soloist, wins approbation; May Moore-Dupree as the Jolly Dutch Girl is volatile and bright; and there are some fine films shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Carter.—The New Century Animated Pictures Company are exhibiting quite a new series here, and a local company of "Bohemians" form an additional attraction.

BRIDGEND.—TOWN HALL.—Manager, Mr. T. D. Schofield.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, in The Toreador, was accorded a warm welcome here on Tuesday night by a crowded audience. Mr. J. Colcough Fagan took the title-rôle in a capable manner; highly amusing was Mr. Richard Telford as Sammy Gigg; he was well supported in the comic element by Mr. Tom May as Pettifer and Mr. F. Hulme Sharp as Sir Archibald; Mr. Chas. M. Heslop as Augustus Trail was distinctly good; Mr. Henry Arthur made an excellent Governor of Villaya; Mrs. Malton Hoppings found an effective interpreter in Miss Avis Grahame; as Dora Selby, Miss Sadie Neville was good; Miss Alice Nixon did well as Nancy Staunton; and the part of Donna Teresa was excellently done by Miss Florence Spurgeon.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. C. E. Parlato and his vaudeville company opened here on Monday, and gave a capital entertainment. One of the best turns was that of Walter Howard, the clever comedian and banjo soloist, whose clever playing was loudly applauded; Miss Jessie Thorne scored well in her coon songs; and Mr. Parlato, with his impersonations of eminent men, showed rare powers of facial expression. Parker's dogs, goat, and donkey are responsible for an amusing turn; Mr. Will Bradford is a clever eccentric comedian; and Miss Ethel Barr's cornet solos are finely played for so young an artist. Mr. J. Macdonald is the musical director.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company is here this week with Peggy Machree. Miss Claudia Lasell makes a charming Peggy, and sings in excellent style; Mr. Leslie Styles brings expressive vocalisation and admirable acting to bear in the part of Barry Trevor; Miss Blanche Astley's singing and dancing are warmly appreciated; Mr. Ralph Lynn affords much amusement as Sir Lawrence Borthwick; Miss Madge Avery is entertaining as Moira Cafferty; Mr. Milroy Cooper is very effective as Alexander McDougall; and praise is also due to Mr. Dan Fitzgerald (Michael) and Mr. John Morley (Sergeant Bampton).

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush occupies the boards here this week, and is attracting large and delighted audiences. Mr. William Mollison gives a masterly and warmly-appreciated impersonation of Lachlan Campbell; and Miss Evelyn McKay is charming and realistic as Flora Campbell. Mr. Allen Thomas as the old doctor, William Maclure, submits an excellent character-study; Mr. F. M. Paget is well suited as the Earl of Kilspindie; Mr. A. Chappell is highly successful as Lord Hay; Mr. Durward Lely's Rev. John Carmichael is admirably played; Miss Alice Francis makes a graceful and handsome Kate Carnegie; Miss Josephine is sympathetic as Marget Howe; Miss Edith Blair-Staples acts brightly as Annie; Mr. Kendal Chalmers imparts much humour to his representation of Tammas Mitchell; Mr. Alec F. Thompson is a very amusing "Wee Posty"; and satisfactory support is given by Miss Martha Stewart as Geordie, and Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald as Jeannie.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is a capital company here this week. Joe Elvin, who appears in his latest success, Obedient Billy, is a prime favourite, and wins very enthusiastic applause. Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford are highly amusing in their duologue, Getting Even; Susie and Prottie are smart dancers; Lillian is a clever trick cyclist; the Musical Johnstons fully justify their reputation as "America's foremost xylophone artists"; Charles Austin's comic songs and patter are very entertaining; Lily Flexmore, "the flexible girl," wins hearty applause for her delightful dancing; Katie Marsh is well received in her potpourri of drama and song, Grave and Gay; Warden Reed and company achieve much success in the farcical duologue, Married or Photographed; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. Mark Melford and company are very humorous and entertaining in Only a Wedding; the Three Amaranths, acrobatic dancers, give an excellent turn; Hanid Alexander is very effective in the scena, Home from School; Doody and Wright are capital Australian comiques; Herbert La Martine as vocalist, eccentric dancer, and bâton manipulator is well received; the Philipia Brothers, in a laughable sketch Shunting, submit clever acrobatic performances; the Sisters Albert (Jennie and Rosie) are very pleasing in their bright and original singing act; Jack Crawley is a capital mimic and raconteur; Lily Laurence is heard to great advantage in her latest successes; and the Alhambrascope pictures add to the attractiveness of the programme.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Henry Austin and company opened here on Monday with The School for Scandal. Mr. Henry Austin gave an excellent impersonation of Sir Peter Teazle; Miss Cicely Wake made a charming Lady Teazle; Mr. W. Allison was completely effective as Sir Oliver Surface; Charles and Joseph found admirable exponents in Mr. J. H. Twyford and Mr. A. Averell respectively; Miss Constance Groves was well placed as Mrs. Candour; and Miss Mary Brougham was a dainty and pleasing Maria. The programme for the week also included The Heir-at-Law.

AQUARIUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. J. Sallmayer.—A variety entertainment furnishes the chief attraction here. Filippo is a clever instrumental mimic and double-voiced vocalist; Anna Phillips, soprano vocalist, sings in artistic style; Len Delmar, lady impersonator and dancer, is cordially received; Will Russell's comic songs win hearty applause; and Dorothy Wilson merits warm praise for her recitations.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Martin Harvey and company appeared here on Monday evening in The Breed of the Treshams. The attendance in all parts of the house was large, and the play was followed with interest. Mr. Martin Harvey's fine dramatic impersonation of Lieut. Reresby received every mark of approval; Miss N. de Silva acted remarkably well as Batty; Miss Coleridge presented an interesting and refined study of Margaret Hungerford; Mr. Charles Glenny was eminently successful in the unpopular part of Colonel Hungerford; Mr. Percy Anstey did well as Francis Tresham; Mr. Albert E. Rayner was appreciated as Colonel Curwen; and Mr. Charles J. Cameron was sufficiently stern and dignified as Viscount Dorsington. A Cigarette-Maker's Romance and After All are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The Wearin' o' the Green is the attraction here, the Irish musical costume play being well staged, and capably played by Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company. Mr. Mackey is amusing as Barney O'Hea, obtaining excellent support from Miss Nana Flensburg as Biddy McGinn, both being successful in song and dance. Mr. Charles Homer acts effectively as Shamus McDermott, obtaining applause for his songs; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey and Mr. St. John Stuart both present careful expositions of their respective parts of Nora McGrath and Gerald Courtney. Other important characters are satisfactorily taken by Miss Adele Lindon, Messrs. David McFarlane, H. Sainsbury, and Haughton Macaulay.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—G. H. Elliott, vocalist, heads the programme, his songs obtaining considerable appreciation. Barton and Ashley present an amusing turn, Canal Boat Sal; W. J. Churchill, comedian, obtains applause for his songs and patter; the Australian Twin Andersons (Lillie and Minnie) are decidedly expert dancers; Selma Braatz is a clever lady juggler; H. O. Wills, comedian, is appreciated; the Athlones are successful in classical poses; and Harry Lawson, comedian, has some good songs. The performance concludes with "What Jones Saw after a Night Out," projected by the Barrascope.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Ethel Arden and company amuse with their smart sketch, Three of a Kind; Kent and Keith are popular as comedy duologue artists; Reg Bolton, comdian, has some good songs; Haigh and Novel do a good comedy acrobatic and dancing act; Adrim and Oram are expert eccentric acrobats; the Sisters Pine are pleasing comediennes; Royal Best is a capable impersonator; and the Leonards (Bob and Jennie) score with their amusing duologues, &c. Some new animated pictures, projected by Vernon's Bioscope, conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Lingford Carson's play The Power of the Cross is the attraction this week. Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby cleverly hits off the author's conception of the weird character of the Baron Cutzola; Mr. Fred W. Goddard as Gerald Fairfax, and Miss Cissie St. Elmo as Rita Lascelles, with Mr. Edward L. Hocking as Benjamin Hawke, well impersonate the villainous personages of the play; while the hero, Dr. Leslie Fairfax, and the heroine, Margaret Seaton, are admirably presented by Mr. Horace Denton and Miss Stanley Burt. Mr. Richard E. Nugent as Timothy O'Dowd, and Miss Etta Turner as Dolly Gray, are successful with the comedy business. Miss Lilian Ross is a charming Blanche Kingsley, and adequate support is given by Mr. Charles E. Johnson as David Kingsley. The staging is good, and the whole is under the general-management of the author, Mr. George A. de Gray.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Excellent business is being done here this week by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds' company in Passion's Power. Mr. William Clayton makes a handsome and capable Prince Kandos; Mr. Walter Roberts plays with care and finish as Rudolph Laski; and Mr. Stephen Scanlan cleverly portrays the rôle of Michael Laski; Mr. Frank Radcliffe is a typical General Zuran; Mr. Henry Howard is good as Patrice; Miss Ruth Shepperd, a clever actress, is seen to advantage as Zora Varno; and Miss Stella Carmichael, as Countess Delanney, is all that can be desired.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; General-Manager, Mr. James E. Culeen.—The attraction at this popular house this week is Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company in the military drama The Two Hussars.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Homer.—A programme of good quality that is submitted here this week includes the Alexandroff Troupe of Russian Singers and Dancers, whose performance is loudly applauded. Another turn is that of the Mohamed Ben Mohamed troupe of eight Sonasa Arabs, who perform some wonderful whirling dances; Cullen and Carthy, with Little Charley, are re-welcomed for their various funniosities, and Cailliers ably performs a series of weight-lifting feats. Anthony, the mysterious "gentleman in white," is an excellent turn. Janet H. Reynolds is a sweet singer; Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne, is very good; and "Urbanora," with several new and excellent pictures, is much appreciated.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is here this week with East Lynne, and on Monday evening had a very warm reception. Miss Julie Kennard in the rôle of Lady Isabel acted with marked ability; Miss Violet Thorold was praiseworthy as Barbara Hare; and Miss Ethel Hardacre was successful as Cornelia Carlyle. Mr. Eric Mayne gave an effective performance as Francis Levison; and Archibald Carlyle was capably represented by Mr. Alfred Beaumont. Mr. Alfred Tate as Bullock caused much amusement; as also did Mr. C. C. Grattan as Justice Hare and Mr. Cyril Hayward as Lawyer Dill. Miss Dorothy Townrow was admirable as Little Willie; and Miss A. Byron as Joyce and Miss Ethel Russell as Lady Mountsevern sustained their parts well; as also did Mr. George Jervis as Richard Hare and Mr. Spencer Goodwin as Lord Mountsevern.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. C. Frohman's company is playing Leah Kleschna here for six nights. Mr. Percy Rhodes is capital as Paul Sylvaine, and Mr. George Ingleton is excellent as Kleschna. Mr. Harold Weston plays well as Raoul Berton, and Mr. Cyril Rawdon looks sufficiently villainous as Sehram. As Leah Kleschna Miss Pearla Gardner wins frequent plaudits. Mr. Gising Walters as Valentine Favre and Miss Ida Vinnall as Sophie Cahbonniere are decidedly good. The play is well staged, and is being thoroughly enjoyed by large audiences.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The bright star here is Paul Cinquevalli, the renowned juggler. His feats are more marvellous than ever. Other turns include a sketch entitled Freddie's Ma-in-law, by Forster, Richardson, and Lonsdale; Minnie Duncan and Arthur Godfrey, in Me and 'Er, the successful coster sketch; Three Rubies, trapeze performers; Teddie Whittle, Lancashire comedian; Mamie Iris, a young comedienne and dancer; and F. G. Hulme, vocalist.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—A good programme includes Mlle. Derose, who possesses a remarkable baritone voice; Mlle. Oretta, and Marstro, in a balancing act; Witty Wattie Walton, humourist; Roby Dahl, with marionettes; Three Esmonds, comedians and dancers; Drum and Major, comedians; Arthur Stacy, step boot dancer; Fred Casburn, comedian; and J. H. Hawtrey, an actor vocalist.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Chas. Harrington has brought down a good company for the vacation, and in The Sailors of the King, the audience has a play eminently suitable. Mr. Harrington, as Admiral Drake, has a part that fits him well; Mr. Harry Douglas plays naturally and skilfully as Dick Drake; while his rascally brother, Will Drake, is well taken by Mr. F. Vernon Travers; Rufford Dent is safe in the hands of Mr. Walter Farnsworth; Captain Cancardine (Mr. Charles Trevlayne) and Harris Wilkinstein (Mr. Fred Owen) are successful. Miss Sylvia Stella plays the heroine, Felicia Phrynne, fairly; Daisy Dent is well sustained by Miss Marian Tremayne; Miss Hero Hathaway makes a pretty and demure Quakeress Penelope Penn; and Miss Marian Digby does the utmost with the part of Rebecca Crosby.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Miss Elaine Verner's company occupies the boards here this week, opening on Monday evening with the well-known drama Saints and Sinners. Mr. Harding Thomas's study of Jacob Fletcher is undoubtedly clever; Miss Elaine Verner is good as Letty Fletcher; Mr. Frank Lyndon as Samuel Hoggard presents a finished interpretation; Mr. John J. Hooker as George Kingsmill is well suited; and Mr. W. Cronie Wilson as Captain Fanshaw makes a conspicuous success of the part. The Middleman was billed for Thursday.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—The Power and the Glory is the drama here this week. It is exceptionally well played by a company of clever artists, and is proving a great attraction to large audiences.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The electrical wonder, Volta, heads the programme here. The popular Burt Shepard, with his quaint songs and stories, and R. H. Douglass, in his funny sketch of the private detective, are two well-established favourites; Marzella's trained cockatoos and parrots prove an entertaining turn; Marie Collins presents a couple of spirited songs; Manning's Entertainers are just as amusing as ever in their farcical sketch, The Hotel Boots; while Frank Dunlop, the diverting comedian; the Reed-Oetzmann Troupe, in their comic pantomime On Tour in the Tyrol; Lady Fauntleroy, with her ventriloquial chum "Dan"; and the bioscope complete a capital programme.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, the Trustees of R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester-Jackson's company opened to a good house on Monday with East Lynne. The part of Lady Isabel is played with great power and pathos by Miss St. Albans; Mr. Saul Arthur is the cool, unemotional Archibald Carlyle to the life; and Mr. J. Leicester-Jackson depicts the villainies of Francis Levison in an accomplished manner. Mr. Charles E. Lambert is excellent as Justice Hare, Richard Hare is in the capable hands of Mr. Harold B. Ford, and a feature of the production is the playing of Cornelia Carlyle by Miss Louie Walton. Miss Nellie Lambert does well as Barbara Hare, Miss Phyllis Damian is fresh and wining as Joyce, and Miss Maudie Lambert scores a success as Willie Carlyle.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Signor Pepi is presenting a programme of much attractiveness. The top of the bill is occupied by the Lavails, who give a performance on a silver arch, chains, and ladders which is as startling as it is novel and interesting. Harry Gray, a quaint comedian, is responsible for a funny female impersonation; Frank Maura is as smart and as nimble as ever; Joad Heteb contributes a smart conjuring act; Ford and Hanson introduce a novel musical turn, in which a burlesque of popular composers is a prominent feature; the Cumberlands' acrobatic cycling act has lost none of its popularity; Maud Clifton is a pleasing vocalist; and the Sisters Terry (duettists), the Newsboys Quintette, and Vernon's bioscope complete the programme.

ALGIE'S HIPPODROME.—Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—General interest centres here round the Bellong Bros., who do some marvellous feats of hand and cycle balancing; the Avolos, on the perpendicular bars, submit a clever and novel act; Mendel, who is here for another week, still retains his popularity; Mr. David Fuller, the eminent baritone, delights his hearers with some well-rendered songs; the Three Seymours, in an equilibristic juggling act, score an emphatic success; Viviana, who dances beautifully, meets with an enthusiastic reception; and other items include George Foyle (vocalist), the Bros. Ralston (comedians), Rabbit (clown), and Payne's Bio-photoscope.

NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Sydney Carter's New Century animated pictures are paying a visit here this week, and so excellent is the series that full houses are drawn.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, is here in E. Hill-Mitchelson's military play Revenge. Mr. Alfred Brandon gives a powerful representation to the scheming Prince Orioff, as does also Miss Emmeline Roselle to Draga Vanessa. Mr. H. Bonhope Wilson as Captain Loris Vanessa is most realistic; Mr Edward Swinton is very good as Count Mussant, the Frenchman; as is also Mr. Guy P. Ellis as Captain David Carr. Mr. H. C. Lanceley as the King, Miss Josie Beltran as Lieut. Maurice, and Miss Nesta Sandford as the Queen. Mr. Walter Kenion impersonates Jim Jennings, A.B., with much success, and the same may be said of Mr. Charles Baker as Stefan. Mr. Ernest W. Parr as Karl, Mr. Fred J. Carson as Franz Wholff, Mr. J. S. Flockton as Corporal Kruse, and Mr. Percy H. Thompson as Stavenor. Miss Nancy Caiston is capable as Olga, and the same may be said of Miss Mara Maltby as Cora Brook.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Mr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Millar Anderson's company, in When Woman Hates, supplies the attraction here during the present week. Miss Mabel Mannering gives a powerful reading of the part of Cora; Mr. Jerrold Heather is greatly appreciated as Lieut. Fred Rokeby; Mr. Millar Anderson plays with much force as the villainous Godfrey Lawton; Miss Maude Townsend gains sympathy as Marie Rokeby; and Colonel Vancutson is well played by Mr. Alfred Grenville. A number of really amusing interludes are given by Messrs. Frank Litchfield as Patrick O'Brien, Chas. H. Hughes as Alphonso Picolet, and Misses Eleonar Papera and Helen Richmond as Mrs. and Miss Sally Potts.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—A capital attraction is supplied this week by Mr. George Dance's company in The Little Michus. Miss Alice Coverick as Marie Blanche and Miss Gracie Sinclair as Blanche Marie both acquit themselves admirably; Mr. Cecil Clayton makes a merry Bagnolet, and Mr. Gerald Clifford a very popular Gaston Rigaud; Pierre Michu and his wife are well represented by Mr. T. E. Conover and Miss Florence Hylton respectively; as Mdlle. St. Cyr Mdlle. Marjorie dances in delightful manner, and a great success is made by Mr. Leslie Holland, whose every entrance is welcomed by unstinted laughter and applause.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have the Gotham Comedy Quartette, whose pleasing vocalism and fun

CHELTENHAM. — Opera House. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—The Girl from Japan pays a visit here this week. Miss Mabel Kerridge is dainty and vivacious in the rôle of Polly Perkins; Mr. Charles Lupton and Miss Jeannie Holmes play neatly as Sir Mulberry and Lady Flippington; Mr. W. H. Moore is good as Horatio Binks; Miss Josephine Ellis dances delightfully as the nimble-footed chambermaid; Mr. Percy Baverstock as the pseudo-military man, Mr. Ernest Spalding as the typical stage parson, and Mr. Edward Kipling as an hotel factotum work indefatigably and keep the fun going.

Victoria Rooms.—Lessee, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—Poole's Myriorama entered on its second week on Monday to an enthusiastic audience, the Carls still topping the bill.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company is here this week with Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Carr gives a finished performance of Uncle Tom; Legree is safe in the hands of Mr. J. Henry Rogers; Mr. James Jackson is good as Dan Haley; Mr. Stanley Howard does excellent work as Mr. St. Clair Loker; Mr. Leslie Beaufort scores as George; Miss Hattie Johnson makes a sympathetic Eliza; Mrs. Carr is well placed as Aunt Chloe; Little Eva is cleverly played by Little Minnie; Miss Mabel Bowman causes much merriment by her fine impersonation of Topsy; Cassy is excellently portrayed by Miss Ethel Mildmay; a trio of slaves are well characterised by Mr. W Eversleigh as Quimbo, Mr. Jack Black as Sambo, and Mr. Tom Miles as Andy. The staging is excellent, and the company also includes a number of real negroes, who add much to the success of this evergreen drama.

COATBRIDGE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—Doing good business here this week is the modernised musical drama The Streets of London, played by Mr. Eade Montefiore's company. Mr. H. Douglas Cottell enacts the part of Mark Livingstone in a masterly manner; Mr. Reginald Palgrave achieves distinction as Captain Fairweather; Mr. Ian Lloyd-Mackenzie is praiseworthy as Paul Fairweather; Mr. William Rokeby shows capability as Badger; and Gideon Bloodgood is cleverly interpreted by Mr. Henry Moxon. Miss Marion Armitage as Dan Puffy is worthy of special commendation; Miss Edyth Goodall is favourably received as Lucy Fairweather; Miss Octavia Noel is eminently satisfactory as Alida Bloodgood; and Miss Helena Rigby is seen to advantage as Mrs. Puffy.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Colcestrians have long looked forward to the visit of Claudian, and the realisation came on Monday, when Mr. William Maclaren and his company opened at the above house for six nights. In the title-rôle Mr. William Maclaren depicted alternately the autocratic overbearance of the wealthy nobleman and the agony of the accursed philanthropist with wonderful accuracy and realism, and was loudly applauded; while the pathetic characteristics of Almida were well portrayed by that accomplished actress, Miss Lily C. Bandmann. Miss Carlotta Anson acted with fire and decision the part of Edessa, and as Belos Mr. C. J. Chaloner showed much drollery. As the Petrarch Mr. Wilson Howard gave a vigorous representation; whilst as Agazill Mr. George R. Austin was undoubtedly well placed Mr. A. G. Carr was a venerable Holy Clement.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Alen.—This week Joe O'Gorman is first favourite, being accorded an ovation each evening. E. J. Wilkes and his dog "Woof" provide a merry entertainment; Dolly Golden dances in unmistakably clever fashion; two wonderfully good musical turns are Eugene, the boy instrumentalist, and a charming musical act by Gold and Sterling. Jessica Grace and Coons score with capital dances, and M. Sauteron gives evidence of being an accomplished close-foot jumper. The Hippodrome pictures complete the bill each evening.

CORK.—Palace Theatre Limited.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—There is a capital bill of fare provided here this week. Will Onda and company introduce The Motor Maniac, in which some bioscope pictures are included; Will McIvor, vocalist, possesses a remarkably good voice; the Bodina Trio sing some capital songs and perform on banjos and zithers admirably; Barney Vox, a witty Irish ventriloquist, is one of the best that ever appeared here; the Brothers Onda are capital horizontal-bar performers; Counsell and Mills create laughter with their burlesque playlet On the State; Evelene Lola, comedienne and dancer, receives applause; and the Brothers Bright are clever acrobats, performing some smart balancing feats.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. William Greet's company presents the musical comedy The Earl and the Girl here. Jim Cheese (the bogus earl) is capably impersonated by Mr. Reginald Switz; Mr. Alec Fraser gives a capital rendering of Dick Wargrave; Mr. Stanley Harrison is responsible for the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and Mr. H. B. Brandreth gives a typical Yankee rendering of A. Bunker Bliss. Miss Mary Fraser is a charming Elphin Haye; Miss Mary Morrison is responsible for an effective interpretation of Miss Virginia Bliss; and Miss Florence Wix gives a clever rendering of the coster girl Liza Shoddam.

The Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—An excellent programme here includes a skit entitled The Would-be Actors, given by Carter Livesay and Lilian Roseberry, which is most amusing throughout. Alf. Gibson, the popular comedian, gives some amusing songs; Princess Pauline makes herself a favourite in some well-chosen numbers; Miss Maude Edwards is a clever ventriloquist; Lorne and Rene give a musical duo, entitled "Capital and Labour"; Dan Conroy is a capable comedian and dancer; Blake and Granley are comedy sketch artists; and a good set of animated pictures concludes the performance, as usual.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—This week we have Mr. Joseph W. Worley's company with A Faithful Friend. Mr. Henry W. Hatchman as John Tollerton acts in an easy and finished manner, Mr. Joseph W. Worley shows histrionic ability as Harold Sefton, as also does Mr. Robert W. Lynn as Antonio Orsini. Miss Trissie Humphreys deserves special mention for her portayal of Mildred Marsden; Miss Hilda Francks as Lady Thomas Jones gives a good presentation of a difficult part. The rôle of Sir Thomas Jones is in the able hands of Mr. John Cullen, and Mr. James Stevenson, junr., is responsible for the character of Squire Somerset, in which he does well. Mr. William Annesley deserves praise for his rendition of Harry Somerset, and Mr. James P. E. Hussey fully justifies his selection as Augustus Silvester. We must not forget to praise Miss Esther Ohlson and Miss Florence Gower, who, as Cynthia and Ruth Mayfield respectively, give pleasure to the audience. Mr. Edward Dennison is very good as Ephraim Dobson, and Mr. Chas. Phillips makes a capable Detective Hanson, and Mr. Albert Leslie is well chosen for Mr. Boddick.

CREWE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Mr. Carr Loates's company occupies the boards here this week with At the World's Mercy, a musical drama. Mr. C. Loates, the author, sustains successfully the character of Captain Frank Manley, Mr. A. E. Read is well suited as Jabez Barber, and Mr. H. Evan Gibbon is good as Morris Goldstein. Mr. Jess Boxer is acceptable as Charlie Smart, and Mr. Leo Rodway is well placed as Slouching Sam. Miss E. Turner Elliott gives a creditable rendering of Alice Lloyd, and Miss Marie D'Alton acquits herself well as Kitty Knott. The characters of Dot and Skittles are satisfactorily played by Little Daisy and Miss Cissie Milford respectively. Songs are introduced at intervals, which brighten up the piece considerably.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. George Dance's company is winning golden opinions here with The Cingalee, the chorus, dresses, and scenery being very good. Mr. Kenneth Wynne is in excellent voice as the Hon. Harry Vereker; Mr. Helier le Maistre is capital in the part of Boobhamba; Mr. G. J. Williams gives a neat sketch of Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. M. Courtney makes the most of Myamgah; Mr. Roy Sydney is quite at his ease as Bobby Warren; and Mr. Johnny Osborne is unflagging in his efforts to amuse as Chambhuddy Ram. Miss Emelie Mayhew is a taking and interesting Lady Patricia Vane; Miss Cissie Sephton is lively and clever as Peggy Sabine; Miss Violet Holmes dances smartly as Angy Loftus; and Miss Nellie Wigley sings her numbers with effect, and is a fascinating Nanoya.

Theatre Royal. — Managing - Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—The Great Awakening is being staged here by Miss Maud Hildyard's company. Mr. Charles Vivian deserves praise as James Selby; Mr. Bernard Copping is seen to advantage as Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton; Mr. William Carriden does well as Guy Royan; Mr. Ernest G. Batley is creditable as Captain Harry Lambert; and Mr. Willie Scott is a droll Billy Brass. Miss Nina Blake Adams gives a faithful rendering of Molly Merton; Miss Isa Bellington is satisfactory as Selina Worts; and Miss Maud Hildyard plays with studied accuracy as Lola Selby.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here this week, in the new drama The Woman Who Gambles. The title-rôle is taken by Miss Ada Roscoe, who gives a powerful personation of Countess Natalie. Mr. Ed. E. Ashby is good as Count Otto Steinbach; Mr. Horatio Sinclair as Baron Cratzlaw is seen to great advantage; Mr. Beresford Lovett as Lieutenant Karl submits a clever study; Mr. Ernest Clark as Chief of the Police plays the character forcibly; Miss Violet Sims as Cora Gouldhart is delightful; great praise is due to Miss Bredna May for her Zannette; and Mr. Walter P. Carr as Paul Slwanovitch well sustains the part.

DARWEN. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—The Gamester of Metz is a drama which is attracting large audiences here this week. Mr. Charles March (the author), who appears in the part of Paul Baldot, displays considerable dramatic ability. In the third act he makes no fewer than fourteen changes in the almost incredible time of fifty seconds. Mr. J. B. Murray is excellent in the heavy rôle of Captain Bedaire, and Mr. Fred Aldworth is good as General de Monparasse. Miss Una Lane gives a charming rendering of the rôle of Lucia; Miss Eva Lyndhurst is capital as Countess Baldot; and Miss Elsa Cole good as Babette. The comedy element is well supplied by Miss Cissy Haighton and Mr. Victor Knight as Gwendolin Pearson and Goliath Grove respectively.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Walter Reynolds' company is here this week with Mr. Smith. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart enacts the title-rôle in a manner that does him the highest credit; as the young Duke of Angleland Mr. Wm. Dunlop is admirable, and Miss Mary Relph submits a clever and effective depiction of the haughty Duchess. Miss Ethel Milton makes a charming Lady Mary Hildergate, and as Mrs. Smith Mrs. Alfred Davis is deserving of every commendation. Mr. Herbert Graham as Herr Deidrich Anheuser, the German brewer millionaire, is highly amusing, and Miss Phyllis Ralph figures agreeably as Ruth Anheuser. The Earl of Oxted is well played by Mr. Sydney Price, and Mr. Rupert Stutfield as the Hon. Dudley Dysart and Mr. Austin Spencer as Jack Berkeley satisfactorily sustain their parts, while Mr. H. J. Morgan capably fills the minor character of Benson.

Palace.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—Martin Conway, comedian, is a great attraction here this week. His songs and patter are vastly amusing. Amy Anderson and company, in their East-End scena, deserve high praise; the Four Hearnes, comedy acrobats, are well worthy of honourable mention; the Lorrisons, grotesques and eccentrics, create hearty laughter; Lilian Rigby, a clever musician and dancer, is entertaining; Violet Morgan is a lady impersonator much above the average; Little Salvano, boy instrumentalist, is successful; and the Palace bioscope, with some interesting films, concludes a good all-round bill of fare.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Messrs. Shinton and Greenwood's company is here in The Price of Her Soul. The heavy character, that of Lord Rolf Mandeville, V.C., was well taken by Mr. John B. Shinton, who had good support in Mr. Landon Goulding as General Demetrius Lanovitz. Mr. Annesley Hely was an excellent Major Ivan Skoboloff and an able confrère, Mr. Murray Yorke, was responsible for Captain Sergius Petruski. An agreeable diversion was furnished by Mr. Edwin Coates in his characterisation of the Hon. Algy Frazer. Mr. Will Percy displayed well-appreciated humour as Pat Murphy. Miss Tina Frank was an amusing Polly Perkins. Vera received a dainty embodiment from Little Ida Thompson; Miss Ina Mervale was powerful as Nadine Marcovitz; Miss Mona Gray gave a good rendering of Olga Lanovitz. The title-rôle was admirably represented by Miss Ada M. Kyder, whose many merits were warmly recognised.

DOVER.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Excellent dramatic fare is provided here by Mr. Julian Malvern's company in I Defy the World. In the part of Leon Darville Mr. Lewis Gilbert contributes capital work, and upon his strenuous efforts the success of the piece practically depends. Mr. Horace Booth renders Count de Beaulieu in a masterly manner; and Mr. Alfred Denning presents a courtly and appropriate portrait of General Delaporte. The powerful acting of Mr. Charles Conway as Laroche thrills the house; while Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Najac, and Mr. Dalton J. Bosher as Bochan portray the parts with skill, introducing humour which is much appreciated. Mr. H. Creagh Hunt merits great praise for his clever and consistent acting as Andra; and Mr. W. Davenport is seen to advantage in the small, but effective, rôle of Father Dumont. Miss Maud Lilian and Mr. Charles M. Julian give a humorous sketch of a honeymoon couple abroad, and are irresistibly funny in their encounters with the gendarme, played well by Mr. E. H. Cartwright. Miss Maud Melvern is suited to the part of Blanche Darville; Miss Trixie St. Albans is a prepossessing Pauline Delaporte; and Miss G. Coates makes a charmingly natural and intelligent little Fanchette.

The Empire Palace, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Wraith.—The Evalos, in their comic juggling and gymnastic act, top a thoroughly attractive bill this week; and are well received. Alf. Shaw, the swell comedian, has good songs, and sings them well; the Woellhafs are smart eccentric patterers and acrobatic wonders, and dance cleverly; Singing Street has a great reception, and is encored nightly; Frederic Austin is most acceptable as a minstrel comedian and dancer; Edie Anderson's tuneful songs and expert dances are greatly appreciated; Mr. E., in his patter, creates roars of laughter; and Silbon's performing cats, at the foot of the bill, cause wonder and amusement.

DUBLIN.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The attraction here this week is Yukio Tani, the famous Japanese wrestler, whose clever performance elicits applause. Owing to illness, Signora Regia, of the Metropolitan Operatic Quartette, was unable to appear, but two of their number sang some good selections, which were duly appreciated. Owing to the action of the Board of Agriculture, Walton and Mlle. Ella were prevented from presenting their dog entertainment; but Captain Max Gruber, with his elephant, horse, and pony, ably filled their place, and was well received. Bromley and Fontein's sketch, A Musical Birthday, is highly amusing; and Shawlene is an expert siffleur and mimic. Donaldson Brothers and Ardell, in a zoological comedy act, excite much laughter; and George Gilbey scores as a comedian. The Musical Schaffers, in an instrumental speciality, make a decided hit; and Eugene and Willie, acrobatic clowns, provide much entertainment, and the animated pictures are portraying the latest events.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Belle and Bijou, society entertainers, have the first place on the programme here this week, and meet with a hearty reception; Flem and Brok, aerial boxers, achieve success, as does also Prince Feelung, magician. The Matweef Hugoston Troupe of singers, dancers, and acrobats are loudly applauded; and George Ridgwell is an accomplished baritone vocalist. Athos and Collins cause much laughter in their comedy act Fun for a Bob, and Harry Clifford is a good vocal comedian. Babs Lloyd, burlesque artist, has a host of admirers; and G. W. Foster is a capital comic. The Empire pictures are entertaining.

Tivoli.—General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Four Emilions, pirouette throwers and comedy acrobats, head the bill here this week, and are encored nightly. J. H. Milburn is an excellent entertainer, and the Sisters Edwards are pleasing vocalists and dancers. Dent and Harris, in their comedy scena, Mary and the Squire, meet with success; and the same may be said of Newco and Sullo, comedians and grotesque dancers. The Paul Hesse Trio of acrobats wins favour, and Diana Hope and Company's sketch Her Good Name, meets with appreciation. Sultan Brothers, speciality performers, Florence Watson, comedienne, and Fred Hallam, comedian, complete the bill.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr C. A. James.—The following artists are appearing here:—Clarke and Artic, Continental drolls; Percy Anderson, ventriloquist; Leopold Brothers, American musicians; Mme. Hippa, thought reader; and the American giantess.

Samuel's Exhibition Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The company engaged here includes Lilly Mansell, comedienne; George Millard, comedian; the Cliffords, comedy artists; Jack Halliley, vocal comedian; Ada Brogden, serio and dancer; and the Two Harveys, acrobatic artists.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company in The Still Alarm is paying another welcome visit. Mr. H. M. Glenville is effective as Jack Manley; Mr. Cecil Du Gué is a gentlemanly John Bird; Mr. Tom Beasley as Willie Manley and Mr. J. S. Pateman as Franklyn Fordham are seen to advantage; fun is infused into the play by Mr. Fred Osmond as Doc Wilber and Mr. L. Gordon as Joe Jones. Miss M. Veriton makes a homely Mrs. Manley; Miss Maude Warburton acts daintily as Elinore Fordham; and Miss Hettie Zillwood is a lively Carrie Wilber.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Deputy Acting-Manager, Mr. Rhodes Wells.—Harriet Vernon, the famous burlesque actress, is attracting packed houses this week. Her songs, rendered in a charming manner, are further strengthened by artistic scenic effects. An amusing and enjoyable turn is that of Mat Wilkinson in The Registry Office. Curtis Leo, described as the Magical Marvel, performs some wonderful feats; Violet Beatrice is a dainty Irish singer; and other good turns are given by May and Etheleda, burlesque artists, Gertie Graham, speciality artist and dancer, and Ted Clifton, eccentric.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Louis Karpe.—When it was Dark, a drama adapted from Mr. Guy Thorne's novel by the Rev. Forbes Phillips, holds sway here this week. Mr. Leslie Carter, in the prologue, spoke the lines assigned to Satan in an impressive manner, and later gave a masterly assumption of Mr. Schwabe. Mr. Rupert Lister made a fine study of the Rev. Basil Gortre, Miss Margaret Damer gave an excellent rendering of Gertrude Hunt; Miss Hope Mayne as Helena Byars was convincing, Mr. H. Athol Forde submitted an excellent rendering of Sir Robert Llewellyn, and Mr. Frank Melrose as the Vicar, Mr. Stanley Lathbury as Lord Caistor, Mr. Humphrey Warden as Mr. Hamilton Hill, Mr. Geoffrey Hill as the Dragoman, and Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips as Miss Katherine Moberley filled their parts with credit.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss.—The top of the bill is assigned to the Tom Davis Trio in a daring teacup-track performance on motor cycles, Harry Wenburn is a comedian with original ideas, Cissie Curlette is justly termed a brilliant mimetic vocalist, Bishop and Vale ar a clever pair of knockabouts, and a smart comedy act is given by the Fordyces. Judge's cockatoos, parrots, and macaws are wonderfully trained; the Sisters Llewellyn, operatic vocalists, remain for another week; and a capital display of pictures completes the programme.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Mr. Charles Majilton's company is here this week with The Trippers. Mr. Jim Bond as the Scotchman is the chief mirth-maker, Mr. Charles Majilton as the Mystery has a part in which he fairly revels, and a smart quartette of dancers give a clever terpischorean exhibition.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A drama, entitled At Twelve Midnight, is being played here by Mr. Charles Clifford's company. A telling rendering of the chief of a gang of forgers is given by Mr. Clifford, Miss Maud Carnfield makes a sweet and sympathetic Hazel Dene, Miss Kate Randolph as Gertrude de Sage is responsible for a clever assumption of the cunning adventuress, and Mr. Randle Wilson and others contribute speciality turns during the course of the drama. On Thursday Mr. Percival celebrated the second anniversary of his lesseeship, when several extra turns appeared.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—The first visit of the Elster-Grime Grand Opera company is a strong attraction this week. On Monday in Maritana Mr. Payne Clarke was an able exponent of Don César; Mr. Michael Kemble made an excellent Don José; Mr. Gilbert King was very good as the King; Mr. Tom Partridge did well as Captain; Mr. H. Murphy was an acceptable Marquis; Miss Marie Elster a successful Maritana; and Miss Edmee De Dreux a delightful Lazarillo. The répertoire for the week includes Carmen, The Lily of Killarney, The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Cavalleria Rusticana, and La Fille de Madame Angot.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Mr George Dance's principal company is appearing here in Veronique. A dainty and bewitching representative of Veronique is Miss Rita Leonhardt, who sings and acts in the most charming manner; Miss Florence Lee as Agatha has a fine flexible voice and attractive appearance; and Miss Florence Aylwyn, who appears as the Countess, sings in admirable style. Miss Neste Laurel as Denise is an agile and graceful dancer, and Miss Winnie Gordon and Miss Pattie O'Hanlon are successful as Sophie and Aunt Benoit. Mr. Roland Bottomley sings very capably, and is an earnest Florestan; Mr. Ellis Holland raises continual laughter as Mons. Coquenard, and he is a pronounced success; Mr. Ivan Berlyn is an amusing Mons. Loustot; and Mr. Tom Shelford ably helps the fun along as Seraphin. A large, tuneful chorus and efficient orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. H. F. Maltby and his capable company are appearing here in the pretty romantic play, The Youngest of Three. Mr. H. F. Maltby as George Wendover gives a strong and characteristic performance, which grips the audience; Mr. H. W. Hargreaves is an attractive and pleasing Gerald; and Mr. A. E. Wyn Weaver is a skilfully easy and natural Philip Radford. Most of the comedy work falls to the share of Mr. Ernest Noble, and as Paul and Pynne he gives us a couple of good character sketches. Mr. Ralph Hutton is a capable actor, and is an excellent Samuel Johns, while the smaller parts are well filled. Much praise is due to Miss Beatrice Marsdene, who as Lucy Dulley is bright, animated, and sympathetic; Miss Mara Maltby, of much personal charm, is a prepossessing romantic Florence, and she sings and accompanies her song in a most artistic manner; Miss Maud Mellor is an efficient Annie; and Miss Nancy York gives good help as Jane. The costumes and staging generally are worthy of particular praise. The Pygmies, under the management of Mr. Jas. Harrison, were billed to appear here on Thursday afternoon.

The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—At the top of the bill we have Messrs. Hulo Hodgson, Harry Lowther, and company, who are all clever artists, in a funny sketch, The Barmaids. The Herald Comedy Four again delight and amuse the audience as a capable harmony quartette; Mr. Gus Hindell is received quite enthusiastically as a singer and patterer; Miss Arabella Allen gives powerful and realistic representations of characters from Dickens; the Sisters Belmont are among the finest step and clog-dancers who have appeared here; Astarte contributes a pretty and perplexing turn; Miss Minnie D'Aubyn is a fine vocalist; Mr. Dan Filmer scores as a comedian and dancer; and the new pictures complete the bill.

EBBW VALE. — King's. — Lessees, Messrs Carlton and Duckworth; Responsible Managers. Messrs. W. Devereux and E. T. Wood.—Mr. Will Ellerslie's pantomime sketch Sinbad the Sailor is attracting special attention here. Sinbad is delightfully played by Miss Florrie Bray; Dolly is admirably suited to Miss Ada Clarke, whose specialities include coon singing and well-executed dances, and Mr. Dan Idle causes considerable mirth as Mrs. Sinbad. The performance is interspersed with variety turns, contributed by the Sisters Ascott, Miss Ada Clarke, the Izons (clever comedy duettists and patterers), Mr. Will Ellerslie (mimic), Mr. Joe Cookson (a ventriloquist of ability), and Leslie and Player (duettists and joke-tellers).

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Whitehead.—Peter Pan continues to fill the house with delighted audiences, who manifest unlimited pleasure at Mr. J. M. Barrie's fantastic production. Miss Cecilia Loftus in the name part and Miss Hilda Trevelyan as Wendy act most charmingly. The young people who make up Peter's Band are excellent in their respective rôles, and Mr. Loring Fernie, with Mr. George Shelton, have some irresistibly funny business in their impersonations of Captain Hook and the boatswain Smee. Mr. Arthur Lupino makes a clever dog Nana, and the crocodile, the ostrich, the wolves, and the mermaids find hosts of admirers. Old playgoers must go back to their early pantomimes and to the fairy extravaganzas of their youthful days for the parallel of this interesting entertainment.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The popularity of Mr. F. R. Benson in Edinburgh was evidenced on Monday evening last when the actor and his company appeared in Henry V., before a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Benson's performance of King Henry is of unmistakable merit. It is a carefully-considered study—admirably carried out—which must afford pleasure to every student of Shakespeare. Mrs. Benson is a charming Katherine, and her acting in the wooing scene is marvellously bright and full of clever touches. Pistol had a vigorous and humorous exponent in Mr. Cyril Keightley; the veteran actor, Mr. G. R. Weir, who loses none of his power and quaintness, is an excellent Fluellen, and Mr. H. O. Nicholson as Nym, Mr. J. P. Wilson as Bardolph, and Miss Leah Hanman as the Boy portray their parts with much drollery. Mr. Clarence Derwent, a promising actor, plays the Constable of France with notable success. Mr. B. A. Pittar is a dignified Archbishop of Canterbury, Mr. Philip Sanders a capital Duke of Exeter, Miss Tita Brand is graceful as Queen Isabel, and Miss Elinor Aickin delightful as the Hostess. King Lear was played on Tuesday, Mr. Benson repeating his pathetic impersonation of the title-rôle, and Mrs. Benson being seen to great advantage in her tender performance of Cordelia. The Merry Wives of Windsor, a picturesque revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, and Julius Cæsar have likewise been presented during the week.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. J. Cawood.—Mr. Herbert Darnley's company of comedians are prominent in this week's bill, and their knockabout pantomime sketch Moving In raises plenty of laughter. The Aurora troupe of cyclists give their unique and graceful display of feats in bicycle riding, which are loudly applauded; the Howards are skilled cornet players, and their turn is a pleasing one; the comedy element is well provided by Mr. Fred E. Terry and Miss Alice Maydue; Miss Venie Clements proves her versatility as a singer and dancer; and La Tostia shows great proficiency on the mandoline. A novel plastic-figure performer appears in Mr. Terley, assisted by a lady; and Mr. Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, contributes a successful and enjoyable selection of whistling solos, songs, and imitations of star artists. The Rinaldos are exceedingly smart comic equilibrists, and the programme is closed by an up-to-date exhibition of bioscope pictures.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. C. St. John Denton's capable company is this week paying a visit with Kitty Grey. Miss Hilda Guiver as Kitty is both clever and pleasing; Miss Marie West as Lady Binfield is creating a favourable impression; Mr. Robert Hyett takes the part of Sir John Binfield in a very able manner; Mr. H. E. Garden as Lord Plantagenet is smart and witty; and Mr. Lauri Lisle is funny as the King of Illyria. Mrs. Bright is typically represented by Miss Nellie Lauraine; and Miss Gertrude Page is very good as Sadie.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company occupied the boards for the first three nights of the week in a selection of Shakespearean plays. On Monday evening the ever-popular Merchant of Venice was produced before a critical and appreciative audience. Shylock was taken by Mr. Henry Herbert, who gave an accomplished interpretation of the mercenary and vindictive Jew; Miss Dorothy Green proved herself a fascinating Portia; Mr. Gerald Amee was a distinct success as Antonio; Miss Kate Turner was a pretty Nerissa; and Miss De Launey did well as Jessica. Miss Ross Shore as Gobbo, a clown, was very humorous. The other pieces played were The Taming of the Shrew, As You Like It, and Macbeth. On Thursday evening Mr. J. Morton Powell's company opened a three nights' engagement with the drama, Honour Thy Father.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, T. Morton Powell.—This week we are having a visit from Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce. Miss Lilian Dundas's performance as Josephine stamps her as an emotional actress of the front rank; Mr. Frederick Moyes as Napoleon contributes a powerful interpretation; the Marie Louise of Miss Muriel Thompson is a fine study; Miss Gertrude Entwistle is a bright and animated Stephanie; Mr. H. Gray Dobby submits a clever representation of Talleyrand; and Mr. Henry Ludlow as Beaumont is all that can be desired. Mr. Dennis Bryan makes a humorous innkeeper.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in Lucky Durham is here this week. Mr. Edmund Kennedy ably represents John Durham; Miss Louisa Gourlay acts with dignity and refinement as Mrs. Durham; Mr. Arthur Leigh makes a capital Hon. Reginald; Mr. A. E. Walker is an efficient Lord Mountfallon; Miss Florence Dulhunty gives an acceptable study of the Hon. Margaret; Miss Gertrude Robins enacts Helen Vallerton in a charming manner; and Miss Frances Wolviston fills the rôle of Lady Mountfallon in distinctly clever style.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, the Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robert Kirk.—Miss Maggie Morton's company opened here on Monday with the romantic drama, entitled The Temptress. In the title-rôle Miss Roma Tremayne appeared with considerable success. She was well supported by Mr. W. Bradford, who gave a good character study of Lucas Denbigh, the hypnotist. Mr. Otto Minster was a manly Philip Welford; and Miss Madge Carrington gave a pathetic rendering of Marion Fordyce The comedy element was safe in the hands of Mr. F. M. Wright, Mr. Chris Bern, and Miss Leyton.

GATESHEAD.—Metropole Theatre, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—The drama, entitled The Rich and Poor of London, is the attraction here this week. Spider Jack, a humorous character, is admirably handled by Mr. Sidney Dench; Mr. Robert Hall gives a powerful impersonation of Dr. Leonard Morton; and the villainies of Mark Stanley are cleverly depicted by Mr. Walter Foster. Mr. Jack Sydney's Bill Binks is a finished piece of work; and Mr. Malcolm Gascoigne makes the most of his opportunities as Lawyer Grabbem. Miss Dora Dench acts with much charm as May Braithwaite; and the Auntie Scrimp of Miss Emily Woodleigh is satisfactory. The part of Ruby Redgrave is well looked after by Miss Lillian Burns; whilst Miss Lilly Artis's Polly Philpot is full of humour. Master Bert Dench does well as Dixie; and Miss Ethel Denville is a winsome Seadrift.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Geoffrey Langdon's Wife (?) is being played here this week. Mr. Somerfield is to be congratulated on a powerful depiction of Will Maynard; Mr. Cyril Grier gives fine representations in the dual parts of Cyril and Geoffrey Langdon; Mr. H. Urquhart is a distinguished-looking Harold Kingston; and Mr. T. G. Vane presents a careful study of the aristocrat, Leonard Vimbart. Mr. Bradford Crosby is an amusing Peter Miles; Miss Marie Dagmar is a great success as Elinor D'Arville; Miss Mollie Monaghan's picture of Janet Miles, a Lancashire woman, is excellent in every detail; Miss Marie Clavering, Miss Maud Grayson, and Miss Laura Brookes, complete an excellent cast.

GILLINGHAM (Kent). — Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. F. Monti and Co.; Lessee, Mr. D. S. Cooper; General-Manager, Mr. Roy Cochrane. —The Charles W. Poole Myriorama provides the attraction here for this week. During the evening some excellent variety turns are given by Daisy Graham, with her collection of trained birds; Little Dorretta, a clever juvenile, in songs and acrobatic dances; Harry Stewart in a protean act, the changes of which are done in full view of the audience; Kitty Woodford, comedienne; the Avondale Quartette, an excellent comedy team, whose numbers are well balanced; Kitty Woodford's Canine Circus and Orchestra; and a series of animated pictures.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and company are here this week with The Adventures of Lady Ursula, in which Mr. Norman gives a satisfactory rendering of Sir George Sylvester. The timidly adventurous Lady Ursula is charmingly played by Miss Beatrice Wilson; Miss Sybil Ruskin as Dorothy Fenton submits a pleasing picture of that lively young lady; and the staid Mrs. Fenton as played by Miss Hilda Gregory is also a pleasing study. Mr. Dennis Cleugh as Earl Hassenden is a fine manly fellow; Mr. Francis Hope as the Rev. Mr. Blimcoe is effective. The Officers of His Majesty's Guards are ably acted by Mr. Norman Leslie, Mr. Alexander Cassy, Mr Chas. Carson Freer, and Mr. Chris Curtis. Mr. Bamber Wills scores as Mr. Dent, and Mr. D. Murray is satisfactory as Quilton. Nell Gwyn formed the programme on Friday, and for to-day David Garrick and Cut Off With a Shilling are announced.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—This week Basil Hood's pleasing comedy, Sweet and Twenty, is being performed in capital style by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood-Ingram's company. The part of the young naval officer, Douglas Floyd, is well taken by Mr. Glenister, who portrays the varying emotions of the character with complete success. Miss Ethel Weyburn possesses all the necessary attractions for filling the part of the heroine Joan Trevelyan, whose talkative mother is amusingly represented by Miss Dorothy Carrington. As the Rev. Mr. Floyd the appearance and manner of Mr. Drelincourt Odlum are excellent, and in the difficult part of Eustace Floyd Mr. Stephen Wentworth ac revival of Lecocq's Pepita, which is being played by the students of the Glasgow College of Music Operatic Society, the proceeds being devoted to the funds of a local hospital.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Hearty and continuous laughter greeted the amusing farce, What the Butler Saw, on Monday. Mr. Lionel Rignold has an excellent part in Pink, the butler. Miss Ada Blanche, who received a hearty welcome on this her first visit since the Grand pantomime, made a most attractive Mrs. Barrington, and thoroughly entered into the spirit of the part. Her scenes with her flirting husband (ably played by Mr. Charles Fawcett) were excellent. Mr. Reddick Anderson was a handsome Sir Charles Foden. The guests at the hydro were cleverly depicted by Mr. George Ascott as General Dunlop, Mr. Harry H. Rignold as Weinstein, Mr. Roy Byford as Professor Shale, Mr. Alec Alves as Vere de Bogyns, and Mr. George Beale as Sydney Clifford. Miss Marie Daltra gave a clever study of the old maid Miss Foden, and another well-acted part was the Mrs. Hake of Miss Annie Goward. The lady guests were cleverly played by Misses Edith Blanche, Phyllis Gibson, Minnie Willett, and a smart young girl, Miss May Hart. Miss Grace Richardson made a handsome Nora, and the part of the servant Maria was acted with much humour by Miss Dorothy Garth. Miss Vio. Gould, Mr Frank Elton, and Mr. J. Turner comp.e a clever cast, and the play is specially well staged.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. Walter Melville's combination is here with the successful play A Girl's Cross Roads. The company includes Miss Beaumont Collins as Barbara Wade, a part in which she is seen to great advantage. Miss Nannie Meade also gives a capital representation of Nellie Meadows, Mr. Chas. Franmore and Mr. Frank R. Robertson are also conspicuously successful.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. Frank Bateman's company is appearing here this week in No Wedding Bells for Her. Mr. Stuart Lomath as Frank Hatherleigh acts excellently; the part of Dick Delver is ably sustained by Mr. George C. Doughty; Mr. Walter T. Clifford's interpretation of Abney Stone is an able piece of acting; Mr. Louis Garton as Montague Blair and Mr Edward E. Louis as Harold Trevelyn also appear with much acceptance. The Lola of Miss Lizzie Montague gives satisfaction, and Miss Ida Mackay as Doris Fane is all that can be desired. Mr. Will Skelton as Simkins and Miss Helen Stewart as Peggy valuably aid the comedy.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—A good attraction is provided for Govan playgoers this week in the visit of Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk, the American-Indian actress, in her well-known production, Wep-ton-no-Mah. The company is the same as was at the Princess's last week.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—Harry Tate, in his new scena, Fishing, is causing roars of laughter here, and his able supporters and the cleverly-devised scene help the effect considerably. Urbani and Son are two of the smartest and most original balancers seen here for a long time, some of their feats being thrilling; Staley's Transformation remains over another week, and is particularly well received; the Courtiers give an enjoyable musical comedy turn; Walter Munroe, nimble as of old, comes provided with several clever new songs; Harry Leybourne's mimicry is smart, and his turn is well received; Herbert Shelley contributes a well-arranged scena with striking dramatic touches in it. The Goltz Trio, Mattie Wilkes, and the bioscope complete a first-rate programme.

ZOO HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Machnow, the Russian giant, is attracting considerable attention here, and when he stands in the stalls and shakes hands with the occupants of a private box upstairs his enormous proportions are easily seen. The Lukushima troupe of Japanese acrobats give a clever and daring display. Charles Fisher's operatic company give an enjoyable selection from Maritana, in which Miss Zella Rosana and Mr. Henry E. Butcher ably assist. Rachael Lowe's clever and eccentric ditties take exceedingly well; Helene and Emilon give a smart acrobatic display; Lieut. Travis contributes an excellent ventriloquist turn; Miss Raffin's monkeys show wonderful training; Chris Richards proves as nimble and volatile as ever; and Franco's Midgets in conjuring feats complete a good bill.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The star turn here this week is that of Clark and Hamilton, in their mirth-provoking sketches. Lily Lenora is a graceful dancer; the Two Arleys contribute grotesque cycling feats; the Musical Jees give an amusing sketch called The Scarecrows; Gus Harris, with his powerful voice, sings with telling effect in his sketch called The Synagogue. Edna is an effective siffleuse; Sibb and Sibb are extremely elegant trapeze performers; and George Leyton is responsible for a powerful scena called Nelson's Name.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. G. MacLachlan.—The great turn here is The Globe of Life, which is mystifying the Glasgow people. The Novellos have an excellent show; the American bioscope gives a fine exposition of "A Nice Carnival"; the bull-fighting Bostons are responsible for a capital performance; the Virto Family charm everyone with their solo and concerted music; Wilson Hallett gives a series of infantile delineations; and O'Gust is a clever mimic. J. C. Kurry is responsible for eccentric dancing; and the Four Avocas and Morton and Elliott, in a varied series of entertainments, evoke applause.

PALACE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Rich. Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Capital attendances prevail at this big house. This week we have a first-class series of turns. In a clever tumbling act Tate and Tate excel; Annie Laurie is a very pleasing comedienne and dancer; and Harry Ford, though late on the programme, holds the audience; Harry Allister's representations of famous men are clever; Nancy St. John is a delightful entertainer; and the Three Seabornes give a wonderful display. In a burlesque racing scene the Felino and Grato duo have a good reception; Alix Luko's Pictures in the Fire is a capital vocal scena; Elverton, the Spinning Marvel, is clever.

QUEEN'S.—Lessees, Messrs. T. J. Colquhoun and B. M. Armstrong.—The company here is almost the same as at the Tivoli, but in place of the boxers we have that clever comedian Tom Lloyd, in some of his latest ditties; and the Two Bees in their new scena, Picture Postcards.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The noble art of self-defence is the chief attraction here this week. The Bouncing Dillons, in their novel aerial stage act, give a most attractive show; Jack Neil, comedian, sings a couple of good songs; Sid Cotterell and company, in The Substitute, are very amusing, and Flo Warner (burlesque actress), Hector and Paulus (strength acrobats), Poole and Poole (comedy artists), Clifton and Gibson (patter merchants), and Syd Herman (Hebrew comedian) all do extremely well. The Tivoli bioscope presents some up-to-date films.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. W. H. Kirby's company, in Somebody's Sweetheart, is paying a successful visit this week. Mr. Percy Maitland is extremely good as Stephen Leverton; Mr. Geo. P. Lester as Lem Lee does useful service; Mr. E. H. Bertram as Stanton Ashleigh acts and sings well; Mr. W. H. Kirby as Martin Blabbs causes endless laughter; Mr. Hyland Shea is prominent as Old Joe, a negro servant; and Mr. W. Hinton as Detective Wilson is well placed. Miss Dora Condor as Freddy Ashleigh is very good; Miss Bella Perriss as Miss Ainslie is most amusing; Miss Cordelia Knight enacts the part of Zora, a gipsy, in a clever manner; Miss Dot Reeve is an ideal heroine as Lulu, giving some pleasing numbers; and the Three Gibson Girls attract attention by their dancing.

GLOUCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Owners. Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company is here this week in Sergeant Brue, Mr. J. Harold Carson plays with excellent effect as Sergeant Brue; and a clever and smart performance of Michael Brue is given by Mr. Frank Wilson. Miss Reydon Dallas is a fascinating representative of Lady Bickenhall; Mr. Albert James causes hilarity as Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. Fred Laceby makes a capital Mr. Crank; Miss Gertie Fawcett proves a decided success as Aurora Brue; and Miss Amy Vivash is good as Daisy. Mr. Harold Godwin is prominent as Inspector Gorringe, as is Mr. Cecil Strickland as Matthew Habisham. Mr. Edward Thornton conducts a well-balanced chorus.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—This week, Miss Grace Warner, supported by Mr. Geo. Gordon, is paying a welcome return visit, in the musical farcical comedy, The Little Widow. Miss Warner in the title-rôle plays with gaiety and effect; Mr. George Gordon keeps the house highly amused by his acting as Mr. William Potter; Mr. V. T. Raymond acts in an easy, buoyant manner as Dr. Arthur Potter, his musical numbers being well received; and Mr. J. E. Tomlinson keeps the house in roars of laughter by his capital portrayal of Auguste Bonsir. He is ably assisted by Miss Kathleen Cranston, a highly-amusing Sophonisba. Mr. Horace Moseley is a capital butler; Miss Ellen Beverley cleverly sustains the rôle of Mrs. Wilkins Potter; and Miss Grace Jones is a delightful Emily. The part of Araminta Potter is charmingly played by little Edith Rutland, whose singing is one of the features of the piece. The piece is well staged, and the dresses lovely. On Tuesday afternoon, Miss Grace Warner and Mr. John E. Tomlinson gave a special matinée. The entire proceeds were to be handed over to the Goole Times Relief Fund, for the benefit of the widows and orphans of the S.S. Colne disaster.

GRAVESEND.—NEW PUBLIC HALL AND THEATRE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—On Monday evening Mr. Charles Macdona's company presented A Country Girl to a full house. Mr. Mansell Stringer as Geoffrey Chaloner was accorded a good reception; Mr. Bernard Vaughan as the Rajah of Bong was highly successful; and Mr. Billington as Sir Joseph Verity, Mr. Besley Beltran as Douglas Verity, and Mr. Metcalfe as Lord Anchester, all did well. As Barry, Mr. Johnnie Clegg was irresistibly funny, and scored a complete triumph; as Marjorie, Miss Eileen Guilbert was a great success; and as the Princess, Miss Vera Vizard sang excellently; Miss Florence Burdette as Nan was extremely happy, her singing being highly appreciated; Miss Madge Campbell as Sophie proved herself decidedly capable; and Miss Cecilia Broughton as Lady Anchester acted in an engaging fashion.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Winifred Maude and company are here this week with The Sins of a City and The Stowaway. In the first-named play, Mr. Royce Carleton gives a manly rendition of the rôle of Sandy McDonald; Mr. Norton Shields cleverly depicts the twin brothers, Joe and Jasper Woodleigh; and Ralph Blackwater is capitally enacted by Mr. E. Pringle. Miss Winifred Maude is charming and sympathetic as Seaweed; and Midge finds a vivacious and amusing exponent in Miss Amy Coralie.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—A welcome visit is being paid here this week by the Compton Comedy Company. On Monday The School for Scandal was presented. Mr. Compton gave a delightful impersonation of Charles Surface. His assumption of the part was indeed a treat, and thoroughly pleased the audience. It would be difficult to find a better exponent of Sir Peter Teazle than Mr. Henry Crocker, and he is to be congratulated on his portrayal. Mr. Arnold Lucy ably sustained the character of Sir Oliver, and Mr. A. B. Imeson scored a decided success as Joseph Surface. Mr. H. Armstrong made an excellent Rowley, and Mr. G. Wallace Johnston a capable Moses, the parts of Crabtree and Backbite being well filled by Messrs. Pigott and Johnston respectively. Miss Mackenzie gave a pleasing and cultured rendering of Lady Teazle, a charming portrayal of Maria was contributed by Mrs. Elbert Orton, Miss Evelyn Hall as Lady Sneerwell was well suited, and the same can be said of Miss Marie Hassell as Mrs. Candour. She Stoops to Conquer, Money, To-morrow, New Men and Old Acres, The Rivals, and Davy Garrick are also in the bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The bill here is headed by Lillian and Vera and Major Charles, crack rifle and revolver shots, who give a very interesting turn. Enjoyable turns are also furnished by Lizzie Lawrie, vocalist; the Brothers Levitt, champion vaulters; Harry Cotton, eccentric comedian; Charles F. Best, in a comedy act entitled MacBunker, the Mountebank; the Sherwood Comedy Four, the Seltina troupe of acrobats, and Muir and Bartlett in the comedy duo, A Clerical Complication.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Lloyd.—Excellent turns are provided here by Howard and Harris, comedians, in a sketch, entitled The Adventures of a Happy Tramp; I. K. McFarlan, Scotch comedian; Les Bollingers, the original rag-painters of Paris; Hughes and Elliot, rag-time vocalists and dancers; Yetta, in a speciality act on the wire; Maudie Ford, comedienne and dancer; and Sammy Shields, Scotch comedian.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The dramatised version of "Ouida's" novel Under Two Flags has again proved popular. Miss Molly Pearson, who now impersonates Cigarette, gives an admirable realisation of this famous character. Mr. Mark Blow is as good as ever as Bertie Cecil Royellieu, and Colonel Chateuroy, or the "Black Hawk," has an excellent exponent in Mr. Arthur Elwyn. A Sailor's Sweetheart was also staged during the week.

THE PALACE.—Managing Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Hetty King has repeated her former triumphs, and as a male impersonator has pleased everyone. The Pichel Troupe have given a novel acrobatic exhibition, and the vocal act of the Three Temples has been well received. Others who contributed to an excellent entertainment are the Three Henres, smart jugglers; Harry Walker, comedian; Dalton and Lever, dancers; Alberto, a clever Australian illusionist; and the Sisters Tinsley, duettists and dancers.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—In a programme of all-round excellence three turns in particular have greatly delighted the audiences. Mr. J. W. Rowley has lost none of his old entertaining powers, capital burlesque is provided by Ike Scott and Son, and the singing of the Tallyho Trio has been highly appreciated. Others appearing are the Gladenbecks, expert equilibrists; Carl Lynn, a clever animal mimic; Merton and Rydon, vocal specialists; Bob Hamilton, an amusing Scottish comedian; and Emily Warren, a pleasing vocalist.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. Charles Carey's company opened here on Saturday with the new musical comedy, After the Ball. Miss Florence Smithers, who is well known here, plays Nancy with her usual success; Miss Nellie James gives a spirited and artistic rendering of Kitty; Miss Nellie Groves is a charming Nellie Mather; and Miss May Florence is a bright and engaging Ruth. Mr. Victor Widdicombe is an amusing Colonel Meint; Mr. Walter Bingham is capitally placed as Halliwell Meint; and Mr. Buckstone Clair as Martin and Mr. N. Bowyer as Dick are both successful.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling—Mr. G. M. Polini and Mr. Lauderdale Maitland's specially selected company opened here on Monday with The Coal King, which met with a most enthusiastic reception from a capital house. Mr. Maitland, who is no stranger here, gave a spirited interpretation of the faithful mine manager, Tom Roberts. A feature of the play, however, was the fine acting of Mr. Joseph Millane, who fairly rose to the occasion as Walter Harford, a gentleman very conspicuous in anything appertaining to crime. Mr. Robin Shiells as the Coal King and Mr. Wilfred Grahame as Dick Shirley enacted their respective rôles with discretion. An adequate fund of humour is incorporated into the play by Mr. Hy. Brayne, who created roars of laughter as Jim Williams. He is well supported by Miss Hetty Cornwallis, and Miss Gertrude Valentine sustained the rôle of Grace Shirley with credit.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Farcical comedy reigns supreme here this week, where Miss Lancashire, Ltd., is doing good business twice nightly. Miss Florence Baines, who is described as "the girl that set London laughing," enhances her reputation as Mary Ellen Thompson, her delightful singing being vociferously applauded. Mr. David Donaldson has a merry style as John Higgins; Mr. Patrick Evans is a distinctive Harry; Mr. Richard C. Hicks is excellent as the Solicitor; Mr. Allen M. Servington embodies the character of Moses Goldberg with skill; a conceited Bertha is found in Miss Mabelle Clinton; while Miss Jennie Hallworth infuses the contrary spirit into pretty Miss Lancashire.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—The star turn here this week is provided by Miss Dolly Elsworthy's company in an episode entitled The Orange Girl, which meets with acclamation from crowded houses. Another capital artist, who requires no introduction to Halifax audiences, is Carlton, card manipulator and comedian, whose tricks and gags evoke much fun. Marie Neilson, a comedienne full of vim; Rumbo Austin and his whimsical troupe of navvies; E. Montefiore and company, in the musical and dramatic scena, The Little Colonel; and Spry and Austin, the popular vaudeville artists, also score heavily.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—The Gay Parisienne is presented this week by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company. Miss Nellie Hodson in the title-rôle is distinctly successful, her singing being most artistic; Ebenezer Honeycomb in the hands of Mr. Tom Conway is a highly-amusing personage; Miss Gwennie Harcourt excels as the Slavey; Norah Honeycomb finds a clever exponent in Miss Lucia Collins; Mr. C. Adeson as Major Fossdyke is all that could be desired; Mr. Lester Carey acts well and sings capably as Everleigh; Miss Ducie Sanderson introduces an interesting skipping-rope dance; Mr. J. FitzJames has a good bass voice, and renders his songs admirably; and the Imperial Glee Singers are well received.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Geo. Robey has again scored a decided success; the Three Urmas, a trio of graceful lady gymnasts, are seen in a most acceptable turn; Mr. and Mrs. Lucas successfully present two scenes from "Martin Chuzzlewit"; the Kings, American comedy artists, are the recipients of much applause; Miss Gracie Taylor is pleasing; Great Scott, in a ladder turn, performs some capital feats; Cribb and Cribb are smart patterers; Fred Carey is decidedly funny, and the Urbanora pictures are, as usual, interesting.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in C. S. MacLellan's comedy On the Love Path was the attraction here during the early part of the week. The audience thoroughly enjoyed the wooing of the changeable and impetuous young Arthur Taunton, and throughout the evening the laughter was loud and long. Mr. Percy Hutchison, a clever actor, was responsible for much merriment as Taunton; as Charity Concannon Miss Lilias Earle was charming; Miss Hilda Honiss was sweet as Norah Concannon; and the "life-saving" Mary Concannon was ably portrayed by Miss Margaret Marshall. Mr. George Mudie as John Gripleigh added another to his already long list of clever character studies; as the bullying Denbigh Frayle Mr. T. W. Rawson could not have been better suited; Mr. Frank Elliot was capital as Gerald Marvel; and Peter Concannon, as played by Mr. Frank Hill, was genuinely funny. The dressing and mounting of the play were in the usual lavish Hutchison style. Mr. George Mudie's laughable curtain-raiser His Landlady preceded the piece. On Thursday Mr. Arnold Bell's répertoire company opened a three night's engagement with Ben-My-Chree, The Shaughraun, and Ticket-of-Leave Man

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—A first-class company is presented this week. Cecile and François in an American novelty dancing act include their "Loop the Loop" dance, and their globe-walking is clever and duly appreciated. The electric illusory novelty, "The Vocal Chameleon," presented with beautiful effect by Frances Haskoll, has an excellent reception; Prof. Hulbert in a ventriloquial entertainment cleverly manipulates some half-dozen figures; Belrose and De Velin, operatic vocalists of high order, are enthusiastically recalled; some illusions are well carried out by De Lil; John Ross, a double-voiced vocalist, possesses a soprano range that astonishes all; McGovan and McGovan are a couple of smart lady acrobatic dancers; George Bendon has a flattering welcome; and the bioscope pictures are exceptionally good.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—A week's engagement was opened on Monday by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company in the comedy Lucky Miss Dean. Miss Dora Gray filled the title-rôle very acceptably, and was thoroughly well supported by Mr. William E. Ashcroft as Frederick Ware, who also stage-managed very efficiently. Miss Estelle Despa was very capable as Lady Ashmole; and the family rivalry was amusingly sustained by Mr. W. T. Elworthy in his able presentment of Percival Chaney. The different characteristics of Acacia Dean's cousins were agreeably presented respectively by Mr. Vivian Gilbert (Horace) and Mr. Cyril Price-Evans (Wilfred). Messrs. Fred Holgate, Charles West, and Claude Merton, in minor rôles, completed the efficient cast. The amusing farce My American Admirer preceded the comedy.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Hunter, supported by his pier company, opened his spring dramatic season here on Monday with a reproduction of The Housebreaker. Mr. J. D. Hunter impersonated Henry Hunter in a well-conceived farcical vein; Mr. Charles Hawker contributed some genuine comedy as the detective, Nicholas Webster; the nervous lover, Felix Carr, was well portrayed by Mr. John Beamish; Mr. Arthur Ricketts revelled in broad Irish brogue as James Fitzgerald; and the Frenchman, Jules Perouche, was distinctly presented by Mr. H. Pemberton. Miss Doris Levis was a good Barbara, and Miss Eva Hamblin well impersonated Marion Burleigh. Jimmy the barber's boy was well played by Master Jack Watson.

THE KURSAAL (ST. LEONARDS PIER).—Musical-Director, Mr. Val Marriott.—At the matinée performance by the orchestra on Saturday last, Master Harold W. Pickett made his initial bow to the public as a violoncello soloist. He has just won the Open Scholarship of the Royal College of Music, and his playing revealed a remarkable facility of execution and command of technique and tone that won him the approval of a critical audience.

HEBBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. H. Austin; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Graham.—The first three nights of the week the Midland Syndicate presented East Lynne. As Archibald Carlyle Mr. Robert Barrs leaves nothing to be desired; Miss Dorothy Oswald fills the part of Lady Isabel with marked ability, carrying with her the sympathy of the audience; Francis Levison is well portrayed by Mr. A. E. Pringle; while Mr. George Beal as Lord Mount Severn is also suitable placed. Barbara Hare is carefully embodied by Miss Agnes Collier; Lawyer Dill is in the capable hands of Mr. Willis Collins; Mr. Alf Selwood excels as Richard Hare; and Mr. Herbert Fuller makes a capital Billy Bulbs. Miss Emma Rainbow gives an exceedingly graceful performance as Cornelia Carlyle; Miss Lillie Lenine scores as Joyce, Miss D. Manners scores as Wilson, Miss Edith Bateman is effective as Susanne, and Little Lily is very promising as Willie. On Thursday and Friday a comedy-drama, Life, was staged by Mr. Herbert Barrs taking the part of Jack Lockhart and Miss Dorothy Oswald that of Ruth Thorpe.

HEYWOOD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—Leo's vaudeville company opened on Monday to a good house; Howitz Dunne is a clever ventriloquist, and artistically manipulates paper; Lang and Beal play various instruments in a capable way; Miss Rosie Dashwood sings with dash and go; George Buffery is an able 'cellist; Harry Mars does astounding tricks on the trapeze; Tom Lake dances nimbly; Mons. Expressio gives impersonations of notabilities. The management have deepened and widened the stage, and this week are running two houses a night.

HORWICH.—NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Bradley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Hawke.—Mr. A. E. Howard's company in The Plunger, an American drama with plenty of exciting incidents, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Howard plays very forcibly as Dexter Digit, the Plunger; Mr. Bert Pearson paints Risque Lincoln very black; Mr. Will Robson as Walter Glyndon and Mr. Wallace Muirhead as Gentleman Jim are excellent; and Simeon is capitally rendered by Mr. Sidney Ernest. Miss Connie Arden gives a sympathetic rendering of Ethel Rexford; Miss Edie Desmond is a vivacious Kitty Clover; and Mattie, a typewriter, is safe in the hands of Miss Doris Gibson. A very strong variety entertainment is introduced in the third act by Mr. Wallace Muirhead, Scotch tenor (loudly encored); Musical Howards, instrumentalists, on the zither, xylophone, and bells; Sidney Ernest, comedian; Sidi Ali, illusionist; Miss Edie Desmond, step dancer; and Connie Arden, soprano.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—On Monday Mr. and Mrs. John Walters' Juvenile Pantomime company's Cinderella opened to a good house. Miss Gertie McQueen as the Prince is excellent; Dandini has an able representative in Miss Marie Hardacre; Dewdrop finds a capable exponent in Miss Kitty Chester; and Mr. Joe Brogan as Demon Discord is good. Miss Kitty Rafferty in the title-rôle is all that can be desired, and her singing was loudly applauded. The humorous element is well supplied. Mr. A. M. Benson and Miss H. Deacon are most entertaining as the Baron and Baroness respectively; Messrs. Moon and Morris as Clothilda and Angelina, the ugly sisters, are a distinct success; Mr. J. English as Buttons, the Baron's page, is excellent, and caused great amusement; Miss May Bishop as the Royal Herald, Miss Annie Davis as Sir Parker Popular Pop, and Miss F. Parkinson as Flighty Flirt are very good; and other minor characters are well taken. The specialities include Mr. A. M. Benson, siffleur; Miss H. Deacon, speciality dancer; and the Emerald Quartette.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—The fine old evergreen The Silver King is being played by the only authorised management of Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford. Specially engaged for the production are Mr. Herbert Ford, a fine virile Wilfred Denver; Miss Daisy Scudamore, a sympathetic Nellie; and Mr. Edward J. George as Jaikes, a character he has made peculiarly his own. The other chief parts are adequately filled by Mr. Algernon J. Hicks as the Spider, Mr. James L. Power as Corkett, Mr. Arthur Wright as Combe, Mr. W. Thompson as Cripps, and Miss Georgina Wynter as Olive.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Norman M. Robinson.—The turns appearing here are the Bob Hanlon Troupe, in their clever gymnastic exhibition, Jinks in the Jungle; Tom Fancourt and Jennie Ruble, sketch artists; Mlle. Rosa's cleverly-trained dogs; Miss Maggie Walsh, ballad singer; Harry Brown, a diverting coloured comedian; Geo. M. Schilling, who relates some of the wonderful experiences he has had on his walk round the world; the Musical Korries, in a humorous medley; the Hartley Wonders, in their daring jumping tricks, and pictures on the bio graph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mrs. Russ Whytal, with a capable company, is here this week in Tom Taylor's historical romance, 'Twixt Axe and Crown. Mrs. Russ Whytal appears as the Lady Elizabeth, and proves herself a gifted actress. Another specially commendable performance is the Edward Courtenay of Mr. F. Lumsden Hare. Mr. Charles Combe as Bishop Gardiner is also well suited, and Mr. J. J. Bartlett ably sustains the rôle of Simon Renard, the Spanish Envoy. Mr. Leslie Palmer is a courtly and efficient Sir John Harrington, and Sir John Parry finds a satisfactory representative in Mr. C. A. White. Mr. Ulick Burke gives an effective rendering of the Earl of Sussex, and Mr. Alfred Fisher as Sir Thomas Wyatt is all that can be desired. Miss Geraldine Olliffe makes a dignified Mary Tudor, and plays with skill and discretion. Miss Mabel Knowles is a sprightly and characteristic Isabel Markham.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's amusing comedy The Duffer is being presented here by Mr. Louis Calvert's excellent company. Mr. E. H. Wynne as the Duffer is humorous in the extreme, and eminently suited to the rôle. Charles Chester in the hands of Mr. F. Pennington-Lush is well conceived and equally well sustained, and Mr. Whitford Kane is a natural and congenial Paul Martin. Mr. Kingsford Pearce handles the part of Richard Stamp with care, and Mr. W. Fordace is good as Mr. Raleigh. Amongst the ladies, Miss Margaret Montrose plays with ease and charm as Lady Amelia; Miss Mabel Taylor is a winning and graceful Niobe; Miss Florence Adale is a pleasing Phyllis Wade; Miss Nelly Griffen contributes an amusing character sketch as Miss Bide; and other rôles have capable representatives.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Morton's, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. George Morton.—The sensational American drama, At Cripple Creek, is the attraction here. Foremost in the public favour is the child actress, Baby Betty, who as Little Tatto gives a clever and charming display. Mr. Hilliard Vox acts the part of Joe Mayfield in a creditable manner; the rôle of Martin Mason is ably portrayed by Mr. Walter Thornton; and as Manuel Alverez Mr. C. Douglas Carlile is equally successful. Mr. Charles D. Pitt faithfully depicts the Indian, Wahketah, whilst Miss Vera Fordyce as Dynamite Ann contributes a striking performance. A pleasing and sympathetic heroine is found in Miss Ella Dixon, and the remaining parts are all in good hands.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. William A. Armour's company is here this week in What a Woman Did. A manly and convincing portrayal of the rôle of Conrad de L'Orme is submitted by Mr. Edward Rawlinson; as the unscrupulous Marquis de Viray Mr. William A. Armour appears to distinct advantage; and Pitou, his accomplice in villainy, finds an able impersonator in Mr. Charles Earle, who also makes an efficient stage-manager. Miss Dora Price gives an effective and touching rendering of Elise de L'Orme, whilst Miss Amy Ellam as the scheming La Papillon displays considerable histrionic ability. Miss Tina Shaw is a pretty and vivacious Franchon, and dances cleverly. Mr. Jim Wood as Fritz, Mr. Fred Rignold as Peter Pippin, and Miss Bertha Clifton as Nanette are responsible for the comedy element, and also give acceptable speciality turns, the latter artist proving herself an expert dancer.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Pantomime in the shape of Aladdin again occupies the stage, the well-chosen company of Mr. Gus Levaine being seen. As Aladdin Miss Marie Harding appears to advantage; Miss Florrie Gibson as Princess Baldroubador leaves little to be desired; Mr. Arthur Collins as Hoki-Poki is a capital representative of the part; Miss Florence Burnett sings well as Electra; Mr. Richard Teesdale is a highly amusing Widow Twankey; and with Messrs. Arthur Burgon, Charlie Arnett, and Cecil Barry respectively as Ske'ming, Han Kuff, and Trum Chum provide a genuine fund of amusement.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Knightall.—The Percys, duettists and speciality performers, have a good reception on their first appearance here. As a singer of patriotic songs Marie Liston scores; Athol and Alton give pleasure with their comedy duologues; Phil Gaylor, comedian, secures marked attention; and Jack M'Kay does well as a Scotch comedian. Lily Anton, comedienne and dancer, is a good turn, and so is J. F. Ellis, facial comedian.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Jennings.—The musical comedy called Dare-Devil Dorothy has paid a visit to Ipswich this week, under the direction of Mr. Henry Swinerd. The title-part of Dorothy Montrose is remarkably well played by Miss Dorothy Desmonde, her singing and acting being equally successful. Mr. Will Brereton does full justice to the rôle of Silas Cramp, while Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith and Miss Nora Caronne as Ruth Montrose contribute to the success of the comedy. Other parts are adequately filled by Messrs. Frank Howard, Cecil W. Parke, Alf Stretton, Henry C. Ward, and Misses Mabel and Lily Blake. The orchestra, augmented for the occasion, was directed by Mr. Herbert Somerville.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Monday evening was the first anniversary of the opening night. The proceeds of the first performance on Monday were given to the East Suffolk and Ipswich Hospital. The greatest attraction of a strong programme was the appearance of the wonderful "memory man," Datas, who received quite an ovation. Another clever and amusing turn was supplied by the Gregson Comedy Trio, who repeated their mirth-provoking sketch called The Dummy amid much applause and merriment. Another striking and pleasing item was the appearance of Mlle. Rosina Casselli and her troop of tiny Mexican dogs. Other contributions included Stidder and Dunbar, skilful musicians; Johnny Holland and company, in an absurdity called My Friend Boots; Venola Bros., gymnasts; Geo. Rapley, comedian; and Richardson Taylor, a clever ventriloquist and mimic.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—This week Mr. George Dance's company is here with The Girl from Kay's. Miss Marie Greenhouse gives a good account of the part of Norah Chalmers; Miss Irene Vere is well placed as Ellen; Mr. J. W. Hooper is an excellent Max Hoggenheimer; Mr. J. Hart makes a capable Frank; Mr. Herbert Franklyn is seen to advantage in the part of Harry Gordon; Miss Lily Edmonds plays the title-rôle with much charm; and Mr. Claude Dampier is an amusing Joseph.

Royal Albert Hall.—Manager, Mr. L. F. Sanderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Wallace.—This week's attraction includes Miss Ada Fawn, burlesque actress; Miss Maggie Rimmer, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Charlie Cranston, comedian; the Brooklands, comediennes and dancers; the Purvis Trio of Athletes; Jack Hylton, eccentric; Steeley and Downton, comedians; and Mr. J. W. Hall.

KEIGHLEY.—Queen's Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; General-Manager, Mr. R. S. Kendall.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, in A Modern Adventuress, is paying a welcome return visit, and a large audience assembled on Monday evening. The popular proprietor of the theatre, Mr. L. Carson, appeared as Pietro Donelli, and received quite an ovation. It is one of his favourite characters, and he gave a finished and well-conceived performance. Harry Delby had an excellent exponent in Mr. Leonard Aardale; Wallace Danton was well played by Mr. Sydney Grant; a typical bluff Yorkshireman was Mr. Leonard Montgomery as John Crompton; Mr. A. S. Polson Turner and Mr. Frank Orchard rendered good support; Miss Ivy Chandos created roars of laughter as Sally Hodges; Miss Alice Defoe was very successful as Vivette; and the part of Violet Meredith was in the capable and experienced hands of Miss Kate Froude.

KETTERING.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Messrs. Murray, King, and Clarke's company are here with Bluebell in Fairyland. Miss Gladys Cooper in the title-rôle presents a charming and graceful performance, and Mr. Lawrence Emery cleverly impersonates the character of Dickey. Mr. Stanley Crip is excellent as Peter, the cat, and Mr. David Cruickshank is a capable Mr. Joplin Messrs. H. C. Morton and E. Cossart in the dual characters of Footmen and Schoolboys cause a lot of genuine fun, and their efforts are fully appreciated. Mr. Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, contributes two songs, which create a furore of applause. The other characters are admirably presented, and the scenery and dresses are pretty.

KIDDERMINSTER. — New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—We have here this week Messrs. E. A'dell and Fred Chabot's company, including Miss Ethel Ashleigh, in The Romany's Revenge. As Zamet, a gipsy boy, Miss Ethel Ashleigh is very clever; John Hope, a farmer, is capably portrayed by Mr. Evelyn A'dell. The piece is well staged.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard's Co., Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—Mr. Charles Carte and company successfully presented A Noble Brother on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Mr. Carte as Jerry the tramp proved himself a powerful character-actor, and he was ably supported by Miss Doris Brookes as a charming Nana Leigh; by Miss Alice Ballard, who made a sympathetic Mrs. Leigh; and by Mr. J. Ansdell Wilson, who capably interpreted the part of Jack Elsworth. The rôle of Henry Travers, the villain of the play, was in the hands of Mr. Arthur Gilroy, who did well, and the part of the Strange Preacher was forcibly enacted by Mr. Ronald Douglas.

KIRKCALDY.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—On Monday Mr. T. Morton Powell's company appeared in Honour Thy Father. The heavy part of Gabriel Garth is in the capable hands of Mr. J. W. Evelyn; his portrayal was most realistic, and especially was he seen to advantage in the last act, when he received much well-deserved applause. Able assistance was given by Mrs. Clavering Craig, who made a capable Mrs. Garth; Mr. Douglas B. Watson was a manly and earnest Jack Halyard; and the villainy of Duncan Bly was effectively interpreted by Mr. Clavering Craig. Mr. W. H. Melrose was an excellent and humorous Ned, as was Mr. W. M. Cameron as Mike. Miss Mabel Coleman was conspicuous as the unfortunate Lillian, and Miss Winnie Donovan impressive as Mercy. Mr. Claude Merton, Mr. Frank Eden, Miss Lizzie Morley, and Miss Maud Grey were all successful.

LANCASTER. — Athenæum.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hy. Wilkinson.—The attraction this week is Mr. Lawrence Brough's company in The Lady of Ostend and The Saucy Sally. The former piece was presented on Monday evening. Mr. Henry Hampson was exceedingly good as Dick Whortles; and as Le Baron Le Longueville Mr. Lawrence Brough was a distinct success. Mr. Percy Marshall did well as Joseph Carbury, as also did Mr. James Skea as Toby Crockitt. Miss Moyra Creegan gave an excellent portrayal of Dorothy Whortles, and Miss Dorcas Corsbie caused much laughter in the rôle of Matilda Carbury. Miss Molly Tremaine as the Maid and Miss Edith Ormonde as Millie Grace also did well; whilst the title-rôle was in the safe hands of Miss Daisy Cook. At the Risin' of the Moon was the curtain-raiser each evening.

Palace.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. W. J. Fergusson and John Porter.—An exceedingly good programme is arranged this week. Coram, ventriloquist, is paying a welcome return visit, and has a most flattering reception. The same remark applies to Miss Jennie Johns, soubrette. Brady, Johnston, and company, in a sketch Turning the Tables, are amusing; and Mabel Hind, in a Japanese act, sings and dances charmingly. Massona, juggler, is smart; Andrews and Thompson, humorists; May Fallowfield, vocalist; and Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the bill.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—A welcome visit from Mr. and Mrs. Kendal with their company is the attraction this week. Tom Taylor's comedy, Still Waters Run Deep, was given on Monday. Mr. Kendal's manly conception of John Mildmay was again forceful and impressive; and Mrs. Kendal gave her usual fascinating portrayal of Mrs. Sternhold, in which subtle comedy and emotional tenderness are the dominant notes. Potter was a clever character-study by Mr. Ernest Hendrie; and the unscrupulous villainy of Captain Hawksley was effectively portrayed by Mr. Bassett Roe; Miss Elsie Clarens was excellent as the imprudent wife; and the remaining parts were well filled by Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd and Mr. F. Charles Pool. The new farcical comedy, The Housekeeper, was played to a full house on Tuesday and Thursday, and The Elder Miss Blossom and The Ironmaster are also in the répertoire.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. John F. Preston's excellent company is here this week in the well-known historical drama, Lady Godiva. The title-rôle is sustained by Miss Josephine Colona, whose fine presence adds greatly to the charm of her acting. The part of Tom of Coventry is played effectively by Mr. F. B. Woulfe. Mr. Ernest Lodge makes an impression as the stern and stubborn Leofric; and Mr. James Duncan shines as the impostor Algar. The lighter parts of Robin Shacklebolt and Elfrida are played respectively by Mr. Harry Benson and Miss Edith Loraine. Miss Gwen Stewart's rendering of Lady Aldyth carries conviction; and Mr. Ernest Hamilton earns the execrations of the "gods" as the villainous Unwolf Unwolfson.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth is doing well at the popular Queen's this week, Mr. Frederick Melville's company giving an admirable presentation. The central part is acted with power by Miss Beatrice Homer; and Jack Merriman is a manly and pleasing impersonation by Mr. Philip Darien. The villain's part is capably handled by Mr. Leyton Chancellor; Miss Nellie Jackson displays ability as Aggie Brown; and the same may be said of Miss Rita Milman in her assumption of the part of Rose Courtenay. Good work is also done by Mr. Charles Barrett, Mr. Allan Devonport, and Miss Margaret Watson.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—It is a tale of crowded houses enthusiastic to a degree at the Empire this week, for Vesta Tilley, aptly termed the "idol of the people," is again entertaining us in that fascinating and inimitable style for which she is so famous. Gwennie Hasto is a clever comedienne and dancer, and her turn this week is much appreciated; another versatile lady artist is Elsie Roby, whose musical and vocal abilities are admired; Rich and Rich enhance a big local reputation as eccentric comedians; Sam Soda is very smart as a humorist and ventriloquist; and Drew and Alders are a very entertaining pair of eccentrics; Colby and May score with a novel speciality; the comedy sketch Tranquillity arouses vast merriment; and the contributions of Ted Cowan, comedian, are acceptable.

Tivoli. — Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—There is a good company at this popular house this week. Joe Peterman's combination in The Belle of the Orient quite captures the house. The part of the Jew, Ike Novinski, as played by Mr. Joe Peterman, and the Belle, by Miss Jessie Wilton, are deserving of special mention. Lalla Selbini charms with her bicycle and juggling act, and is ably assisted by her miniature coon; Dave O'Toole's quaint style pleases, and other names on a long programme are Charles Somers, comedian; Garden and Zerch, Australian entertainers; George Barrow, comedian; Carina Sisters; Mulvey and Miriam; the Passports, with clever dancing; Vay's Juveniles; and the Barrascope.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—An exciting dramatic episode, The Maniac, with Mr. Melville Bickford in the title-rôle, is the leading item here, and is a powerful draw. Those favourite vocalists, Austin and Cowan, appear again with success; a fine instrumental and comedy act by the Bohemians is deservedly applauded; Tom E. Hughes and T. W. Johnson are a pair of good comedians; Monty Walker is smart in a similar line; and Percy Hannan finds favour as a baritone. The Alskarno Trio do clever things in the way of Risley acrobatics; and a good series of pictures completes.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General- and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—On Monday, Mr. George Dance's chief company came here with Lady Madcap. In the name-part Miss Vera Vere gives a delightfully vivacious and popular portrayal; Mr. H. V. Surrey as Oroya Brown is prominent with a clever and humorous performance; Mr. Bay Russell as Bill Stratford, and Mr. Fred Payne as Posh Jenkins, are both a success with admirable delineations; Mr. Alex. Chentrens shines as the Count de St. Hubert; Mr. Vincent Erne is capital as Corporal Ham; Miss Peggy Primrose is an entertaining Susan; and Miss Kathleen Ronayne does well as Gwenny Holden.

Theatre Royal. — Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The attraction is provided here this week by a return visit of Mr. C. Watson Mill's capable company, with the drama, A Wrecker of Men. Miss Rosalind Tate is conspicuous with a clever impersonation of Risca Mallison; Mr. C. Watson Mill is good as Jim Murley; in the dual rôles of Isaacs and Karnaphus Mr. Henry Rutland plays well; Mr. Gilson Brooke is capital as Railton; Miss Cissie Podmore is to be complimented on her success as Dorris Melville; and praise should also be awarded to Miss Kittie Melville as the servant, Vivasole Slopper.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The premier attraction here this week is the Sleedes Troupe, who are presenting the mystical sketch Where's the Ghost? As acrobats, the Kellinos deservedly stand high, their show being one of the smartest that has been seen here; Duncan's Scotch collies are put through a remarkably fine performance; Payne's Little Vagabonds, with their singing and comedy, prove a popular turn; the Cape Girls are well received in their singing and big-boot dancing; Howe and Ardie, in their speciality, Up in a Balloon, introduce comedy and some excellent gymnastic feats; the Esdale Brothers are entertaining patter and singing comedians; Kyoto goes through a clever performance as a contortionist; and May Geraldine entertains with song and dance. The bioscope, always a popular feature here, is depicting "Sherlock Holmes" in seventeen scenes.

Pavilion Theatre. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The chief attraction here is supplied by Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company, in The Battle of the Belles. Kit Keen is a popular coloured comedian and dancer; Grace Langley, a vivacious comedienne and dancer; T. W. Royal shines with his clever dancing; the Sisters Stratton, vocalists and dancers, are good; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is retained. Lydia Alleyne (comedienne) and Leo Fallowfield (comedian) also entertain.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Dewhurst.—Mr. Robert Perris and company are paying a welcome return visit with the American drama, A Fight for Millions. Mr. Robt. Perris gives a vigorous impersonation of the hero, Tom Manley; Hudson Rivers is capably acted by Mr. P. G. Beresford; Mr. Percy Ballard's impersonation of the villain, Richard Dudley, is excellent; and as his accomplice, Mr. Karl H. Edwards figures prominently. Mr. L. F. Tenaur as Willie Neverwork acquits himself creditably; Miss Eva Purcell plays the part of Pearl Rivers with grace and feeling; Miss Elma C. Turner is particularly good as Helen Dudley; Mrs. Hudson Rivers is well acted by Miss Audrey Canning. The comedy is in the hands of Mr. Nicholas Conway and Miss Lottie Pearce, who, as Harold Hobbs and Mag Brady, are favourably received. The illustrated songs introduced during the performance by Mr. R. Perris are greatly appreciated.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—On its second visit to Leith the realistic drama, Her Second Time on Earth, has been cordially received. Miss Hilda Beverley again appears with marked success in her original creation of Dora Grey; and she is strongly supported by Mr. George Gaisford as Jasper Norman, whose son and daughter, Tom and Laura, are ably personated by Mr. Paige Laurence and Miss Dorothy Hildebrande; Jack Carlton finds a manly exponent in Mr. Henry Lonsdale; Mr. Alec Williams is a good Father Gumbril; while Mr. Willie Reid and Miss Dora Hargreaves do some clever comedy work in the lighter rôles of Teddy Butterfly and Kitty Rosebud. Miss Polly Marsh and Miss Agnes Rose are effective as Elizabeth Burke and Jane Terrors; Guy Brand, Beppo, and Dr. Ridley are suitably depicted by Mr. William H. Porter and Mr. A. Fellows Barrett.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Sole Owner, Mr. Frank King.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company with Florodora is supplying a race week attraction of the first order. Miss Gwladys Elvey as Dolores wins the highest favour; Miss Florence Hersee sings and dances with wonderful effect as Angela; and Miss Kate Leicester scores as Lady Holyrood. Mr. Gus Danby is immensely amusing as Tweedlepunch, and Mr. Edward Chester makes Gilfain very funny. Mr. Harold Perry as Donegal and Mr. Edward Crosland as Abercoed are also good.

Palace.—Sole Proprietors, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur. — A strong bill is again presented here. Dinah Morris and party appear with success in a musical sketch The Lost Coon; Alethea is as graceful as she is marvellous in a gymnastic and contortionist act; and a very amusing turn is that of Tennyson and Wallis. Johnny Walter is a mirth-provoking comedian; Adeline Yohle a charming soprano vocalist; and Goodfellow and Gregson are an entertaining pair. To these are to be added Davis and Davis, in a smart comedy act; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux. Messrs. Murray King and Clarke's company opened on Thursday for three nights in Bluebell in Fairyland.

LIVERPOOL. — Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—Rogues of the Turf has proved a strong attraction during Race Week at Liverpool. Mr. John F. Preston, the author, as Joe Flaxman is the mainstay of this excellent play. Miss Madge Nelson, who brings the company, undertakes the rôle of the old trainer's daughter Nellie quite satisfactorily; that powerful actress, Miss Hilda Shirley, as the Duchess brings to bear all her high accomplishments; Mr. Dan F. Roe, a capable actor, efficiently fills the character of Arthur Somerton; Miss Madge Palmer makes a sweet Phillis Wurzel; and Mr. Fred Emery is a manly Captain Clifton. The scenery is excellent, and the stud of racehorses adds greatly to the realism of several scenes.

Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A capital presentation of The Little Michus has been the attraction here this week, the company sent by Mr. George Edwardes being exceptionally strong. Miss Iris Hoey as Blanche Marie and Miss Thelma Ray as Marie Blanche played charmingly, and soon won the affections of their audience, who never failed to mark their warm appreciation of the efforts of those artists. Mr. Eric Thorne as General Dessifs had a character which fitted him like a glove, his make-up being particularly smart, and the laughter that followed his every movement was loud and long. Mr. Jack Cannot scored heavily as the faithful servant Bagnolet; Mr. Arthur Royd was a vivacious soldier lover; M. and Mme. Michus were ably impersonated by Mr. Eardley Turner and Miss Elsie Cameron; an excellent shop assistant was portrayed by Mr. Leonard Mackay; and praise is due to Mr. Willie Warde, jun., for his admirable picture of a market shopper, and to Miss Deborah Volar, who sang songs with taste and sweetness. Miss Ray delighted everyone with her singing. The mounting was particularly fine.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The company this week includes Queenie Leighton, always a prime favourite here, and George Bastow, who, fresh from his success at the Shakespeare, causes roars of laughter. Horace Wheatley has had a hearty reception; Rebla's comic juggling is appreciated; the Arleys are good in their pot-pourri turn; and other artists are Ronald Payne and Evelyn Hope in their sketch, Only a Dream, the Sisters Poole, and Kathleen Gray.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A return visit of the Craggs with their lively musical pantomimical absurdity Laughter Land has proved very welcome, and the piece has been thoroughly enjoyed by good audiences. The work of the six clever acrobats has been a source of much interest, and the applause they received was unstinted. Mr. Cremorne Cragg is the life of the piece as Billy; the Sisters Glynne as the Sisters Belgrave render vocal and instrumental duets in pleasing style; Mr. Henry B. Lewis is very humorous as Professor Wood; and Mr. Harry Rousby is good as Dick Marlow.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—Yet another piece new to Liverpool has been introduced here by the enterprising management in the form of The Branded Woman, the company engaged being that of Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon. The play, which is well mounded and costumed, has been received with much appreciation. Mr. James Stillwell in the dual parts of Philip Maurice and Zarka exhibits a high degree of histrionic power; Miss Renée Glendower acts with distinction as the branded woman; Leon Hauber is well impersonated by Mr. Edward Fryer; an excellent Marie comes from Miss Katherine Barnett; Mr. Becket Bould is well placed as Dick Brown, the ex-pavement artist; and a villainous French Anarchist is vividly portrayed by Mr. Paul E. Teulon.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Lessees, The Shakespeare Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The dramatic season here commenced on Monday with Charley's Aunt, when Mr. Brandon Thomas made his first appearance in Liverpool as Colonel Chesney, a character which he played with distinction. Mr. Stanley Cooke repeated his old-time success as the "Aunt"; Mr. Hastings Lynn and Mr. Richard B. Mason handled the rôles of the undergraduates in capital style; Mr. Walter Beaumont as Spettigue contributed largely to the fun; the Brassett of Mr. Sydney Compton was a capable performance; as Donna Lucia Miss Lena MacNaughtan lent grace and charm to the piece; and the three young ladies were delightfully impersonated by the Misses Marian Ripley, Dorothy Deacon, and Gladys Storey. The curtain-raiser was A Highland Legacy.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Fred Karno's Mumming Birds heads the bill here this week, and provokes endless merriment. Nipper Lupino Lane and Miss Barbara Babbington, the two clever "babes" from the Shakespeare pantomime, have been given cordial receptions; Mlle. Olive proves herself to be a skilful juggler; Harding and Ah-Sid are a pair of smart American eccentrics; the Empire Comedy Four have caused screams of laughter; Amann and Hartley have an exceedingly funny sketch, The Naughty Professor; Lidden and Hayward with their musical absurdity, The Midnight Express, are given a cordial reception; A-Bo-Kou juggles in a marvellous manner with all sorts of articles; an entertaining act is provided by Frazer and Mac; and Fred Lincoln, comedian, also appears.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—At the head of a lengthy bill here this week is Arthur Rigby, with his funny item, The March of the Married Men, which provoked great laughter. Miss Minnie Hunt and Mr. Rhys Thomas present their neat musical duologue, Her Birthday; Lind gives some excellent impersonations which are watched with interest; Lottie Siegenberg has a clever quick-change musical sketch in The Lazy Slavey; the Narrow Bros. put in some expert work as trick cyclists; Regan and Ryan (George and Fred) are excellent comedians with catchy patter; Rowland Hill arouses much laughter with his comic ditties and sayings; Fred Earle, a smart comedian, brings his latest song, "Seaweed"; and others in the list are Ted Young (comedian), Miss Ada Twibell (burlesque artist), Daisy Morrell (serio-comic), Alice Ormonde (comedienne), and Harry Vardon (ventriloquist).

New Parthenon. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—The animated pictures showing the Britt v. Nelson fight have occupied almost the whole of the programme here this week, three times daily. Barney Stuart, a favourite character actor; Frank Whiteley, comedian and dancer; and George Reeves, comedian, also give turns.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The "Royal" Stock Dramatic Company is this week producing The Penalty of Crime, by Lewis Gilbert. Mr. Percy Boucher is a humorous Mickey; Mr. Harry Tresham holds the part of Guy Glendenning; a capital Martin Norris is presented by Mr. E. D. Allen; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood is an efficient Mr. Glendinning; and Miss Beryl Ravenswood plays well as Peggy.

Paddington Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Top of the bill here are Clark's Nippers with their boxing, speciality dancing, &c. W. L. Lee and company present the seven-tableaux sketch, A Sister's Honour, and Whirlo, the cycling monkey, is an interesting feature of the programme.

Park Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—A big attraction here this week is Emma Don and her Black and White Comedy Quartette with the musical melange The Prodigal Son. Barton and Franklyn have an excellent musical turn; Gerald Mount, a popular local mimic and vocalist, appears with distinction; Charlie Williams, the Scotch nigger, is very funny; the Great Vincent gives a smart display as an acrobat; and others are Ernie Myers, eccentric comedian, and Lily Lonsdale, ballad vocalist.

Haymarket.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Principal here this week is Mr. J. Wright Aitken with a company in the sketch, Beneath a Mask. Maxford and O'Neill are a couple of smart patter comedians; Marie Dane has some taking songs, and dances well; Miss Cissie Carter's song-scena, A Lesson in History; or, Gordon Avenged, is well received; J. C. Laurie is a good patter comedian; and Bob Gardner, double-voiced vocalist, also appears.

Westminster.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Heading the programme here this week are Les Henris, with a smart equilibristic and gymnastic act. Jack Pleasants, a comedian with his own peculiar style, has some good business; Will Letters is a capital vocalist and story-teller; Evelyn Oram, a local amateur singer, has some talent; Angeline, a lady juggler, has several new ideas, one being the manipulation of the cannon-ball à la Cinquevalli; Emmie Milsted and Joe Bell present a neat musical comedy scena, The Belle of Arizona; and Fred Erick, quaint comedian, has many good points.

Olympia.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Alan W. Young.—The pretty spectacle, Butterflies in Fairyland, puts in a second week, as does also Miss Kellermann, the lady swimmer; Ferguson and Mack, a couple of really clever comedians, cause much laughter; Mason and Bart, as Captain Kettle and the Tourist on a desert island, are very amusing; Griff, assisted by Alpha and his "pets," supplies a good turn; the Sisters Finney give a charming exhibition of graceful swimming; Fyne and Hurley have a funny coster and dude trifle; the Royal Six present a pleasing performance as cyclists and soldiers, their singing being very sweet; and others in the list are George Westland, Scotch comedian, and W. H. Clemart, ventriloquist.

LONG EATON.—Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Meakin.—A variety company is here this week, including the Frantz Family in their drawing-room entertainment. They are very expert and graceful in their acrobatic performance. Several good musical turns are also included in the list.

LOWESTOFT. — Marina.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—We have this week Mr. Arthur St. John and company in a répertoire of plays, including Jane Shore, Under Two Flags, and Oliver Twist. The first-named was presented on the opening night, Mr. Arthur St. John submitting a capital piece of acting in the dual rôles of Richard Duke of Gloucester and Matthew Shore. Miss Ida St. John was also a fine exponent of the title-rôle.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, with the musical play, The Three Little Maids, opened here on Monday. The three maids are successfully represented by Miss Vera Vallis (Ada), Miss Cora Lingard (Hilda), and Miss Edith Colley (Edna). Lady St. Mallory is admirably portrayed by Miss Kate Graham Beck; as Lord Cheyne Mr. Chas. A. Stevenson is undoubtedly the life of the piece; Bryan Molyneux is well represented by Mr. Garnet Wilson; Mr. Chas. Leverton is to be commended on his impersonation of the Vicar of St. Mallory, the Rev. Mr. Branscombe; Monsieur de L'Orme is in the capable hands of Mr. Wilfred Heath, whose fine voice is heard to advantage.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley. — Mr. Gus Levaine and Miss Clayton's company is appearing here in The Babes in the Wood. Miss Jessie Lindsay is the dashing Robin Hood, and her singing charms everybody; Miss Lizzie Levaine is a winsome Maid Marion; the Misses Lillie Belle and Madge Bingham are effective as the Babes; Mr. Harry Sully is a typical Baron; Messrs. Fosco, Dave Anderson, Will Thorne, and Eddie Clay are all amusing; and the numerous specialities are well received.

MAIDSTONE. — Hippodrome. — Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester. — The good programme provided here this week includes Miss Gladys Mavius, a clever dancer and vocalist; Ara, Zebra, and Vora, in Indian Pastimes; Mr. H. Nation, a good comedian and descriptive vocalist; Karr and Kooney, duettists and cross-talk comedians; Lanten, Harden, and company, in an amusing sketch; and the Sisters Charnley, clever dancers.

MANCHESTER. — Theatre Royal. — Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—An important attraction here this week is the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, which opened the week's répertoire with a fine performance of Carmen, to the great delight of a flatteringly good house of music lovers. Miss Doris Woodall as Carmen was in exceptionally good voice, and gave an ideal rendering of the part, while as José Mr. Edward Davies sang and acted with admirable taste and effect. Miss Elizabeth Burgess presented Micaela in her usual telling style, and the Escamillo of Mr. Frank Arthur was correspondingly vigorous and tuneful. The remaining parts were all as well rendered as could be wished, and the entire performance reflected credit upon the conductorship of Mr. Walter Van Noorden. On Tuesday a powerful performance of Tannhäuser was given before a large audience, with Mr. Eugene Goossens in command of the orchestra. In this Herr Julius Walther made a big success of the exacting title-part, while Miss Hanna Mara gave a fine vocal and sympathetic rendering of Elisabeth. Mr. Charles Victor's resonant baritone was heard to great advantage in the rôle of Wolfram, Miss Grace Nicoll sang with moving effect as Venus, Mr. Frank Arthur was strong and dramatic as the Landgrave, Mr. Edward Wynn gave a distinguished rendering of the smaller part of Walther, and Miss Ma Hill sang nicely and with some character as the shepherd boy. Messrs. Frederick Clendon, C. Brierley, and Albert Felton also moved and sang well in their parts. Don Giovanni, Faust, a revival of Tristan and Isolde, a matinée of Fidelio, and Il Trovatore complete the week's performances.

Prince's Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Manchester's introduction to R. C. Carton's farce Public Opinion on Monday evening was in every way a satisfactory event. It is played by Miss Emma Hutchison's and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, which includes Mr. George Giddens in his original part of Horace Wibsey—a very amusing impersonation—and Miss Emma Hutchison as Lady Diana Coldershaw, which is also a clever and entertaining performance. Besides these, Mr. William Hargreaves gives a quietly funny rendering of Justice Mulley, Mr. George Mallett is humorously consequential as Sir Babington Mulley, Mr. Harold West is comically inane as Viscount Poffley, Mr. Templer Powell has plenty of "go" as Lord Percy, Mr. C. I. Barber is funny as Smeeton (the head clerk), and Miss Mary Mallalieu is dainty and refined as Phyllis; while outstanding performances are given by Miss Lilian Hallows as Pansy Bligh, and Mr. Ernest Ruston as Spencer Traughton, the latter a brisk and entertaining personage. A comedietta, The Stratagem, precedes.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's No. 1 Company presents here this week The Christian, with well-known favourites in the cast. Mr. Frank Tennant's performance as John Storm is powerful and realistic, and Miss Grace Chalmers acts with intelligence and power as Glory Quayle. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe makes a capital Father Lamplugh, Mr. T. Renand Lockwood gives a telling depiction of Lord Robert Ure, Mr. Jackson Wilcox is praiseworthy as Horatio Drake, and Miss Vashti Wellborne is well placed as Polly Love. All the remainder of the cast are commendable, and the play is well staged.

Gaiety Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—The week's attractions here are still provided by Mr. Harold V. Neilson and his company, who continue their highly successful performance of An Enemy of the People for four nights, with an interim production of A Doll's House on Thursday and Friday evenings, and Saturday matinée. The cast of the last-named play includes Mr. Courtenay Thorpe (specially engaged), prominent parts being filled also by Mr. Neilson and Miss Amy Sangster.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Menotti, the Stockholm wonder, in an original novelty act on a wire, described as the twentieth century cycle-track, is the principal attraction here this week, and gives a sensational performance. Hallam and Stanton, in a musical comedy sketch, A Broken Journey, are also prominent and well received. The American Zouaves give a clever drill and wall-scaling exhibition, Nellie Graham is a smart dancer, Jay Laurier appears to advantage as "Silly Billy Brown," McCann (comedian and roller-skate dancer) gives a good show, Little René is a clever impersonator and mimic, Fred S. Peake and Co. successfully present their dramatic incident The Hypocrite. Welda and Wynne give a smart juggling entertainment, and the St. Johns provide an acceptable turn in music and dancing.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here this week in The Death or Glory Boys, after a successful week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Miss Winifred Chalmers company is the attraction here this week in the powerful drama called The Master Criminal. A very able performance is given, Mr. Henry L. Osmond being seen with excellent effect in the title-rôle and Miss Grace Chalmers in the cleverly portrayed character of Cecile. Miss Augusta Tulloch has a good part as Mrs. Manners, Mr. Alexander Haviland does well as Philip Manners, Miss Kate Sumerville acts sympathetically as Philip's wife, Mr. Elmore Frith is brisk and characteristic as Beandy (the detective), and humour is contributed by Mr. Harry Cooke as Tommy Dale and Miss Mabel Tremere as Peggy Perks.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Alec Hurley, the well-known coster comedian, tops the bill here this week, and presents, with decided success, aided by numerous auxiliaries, a capital musical comedietta entitled The Coster's Beanfeast. Another star turn is Florrie Gallimore, a favourite comedienne, who sings three songs in her usual effective style, and is well received. Dan Thomas is a capital comedian with smart patter and songs, the Westwoods go through a daring comedy cycling performance, Imro Fox is an amusing conjurer, Will Van Allen (the tramp musician and raconteur) provides a good item, the Brothers Teviotdale are seen in a refined athletic act, and the Three Delaries show much cleverness in their Demon Grotto act. The Sisters Melba, duettists and dancers, who figure on the programme, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Collins.—The principal attractions here this week are Wills and Rawlins, in their amusing trifle Mashing the Missus; A. D. Robbins, who gives a sensational cycle act; and Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten, a really clever combination of youthful talent. The Paxton Trio are skilled exponents of high-class gymnastics, Max York's dogs show wonderful intelligence, Terry and Lambert are highly amusing in their delineation of comedy characters, Dusty Rhodes proves himself a smart comedian, the Mariano Sisters give a thrilling exhibition on the trapeze, and the Edgar Forrest sketch combination provides a merry turn. The bioscope is entertaining, as usual.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—An extraordinary attraction is here this week in the inclusion of George Hackenschmidt and Ahmed Madrali in the programme. These redoubtable wrestlers of course give separate turns, on the usual conditions (and with the usual results), but their presence in this way gives a remarkable opportunity to the public to contrast their methods and general display, in view of the question of supremacy which is to be decided in London next month. Big houses are therefore the rule. Albert Le Fre exhibits his well-known versatility as a comedian, the O'Learys are remarkably successful in a comic Oriental acrobatic performance, the Dumond Minstrels (Parisian street singers and instrumentalists) give a novel and exceptionally pleasing musical act, Dan Gregory (eccentric) is well received, the Choir supply two choice vocal items, and, in addition to a comic series on the bioscope, Hengler's water novelty, The Village Wedding, remains in the bill, and brings the performance to an elaborate and satisfactory close.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Minnie Palmer, the well-known actress, is here this week in her latest success, Rose Pom-Pom, and meets with a good reception. The Three Sisters Jongman are also well received, and Otto and Olga are entertaining in mirth, music, and mock opera. Others who provide enjoyable items are Correze and Keith, Charles Collette comedian), Bert Harrow (comedian), Les Sprays (Marie and Minnie, Continental dancers), Josie Delaine (in song scena The Mirror and the Maid), Jock Walker (Scotch comedian), and Raymond's Vivagraph.

KING'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead; —A very funny turn here this week is Harry Tate's company in Fishing, which causes no end of amusement, and is greatly enjoyed. Another laughter-making piece is One Night Only, presented in capital style by Henry Carlton, who makes a big hit as Billy Blobbs. Lachie Thompson's Top Weights (Tom and Neil) are seen to advantage in their boxing, wrestling, and club-swinging act; the Three Rolands are fine athletes, and others who contribute entertaining turns are the Cellos, in dainty musical act; Kendrick and Laura, speciality dancers and singers; Pueblo and Cropp, creole artists; and Vera Mayne, Canadian statuesque comedienne. Little Tina, a clever juvenile, figures in the programme, but did not appear on the occasion of our visit. "A Trip to Oxo-land" is depicted on the bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Demon Chef, presented by Picitt and Lizette, is the chief item here this week, and is well received. Arthur Slater whistles operatic selections in a sweet and melodious style, and is a good bird mimic, Violet Whitworth's cycling girls give a smart racing act, Harry Nelson is a quaint comedian, Ida Ross sings serio-comic ditties satisfactorily, Ladi Henderson is a good character vocalist, the Andreassens are excellent acrobats, the Dixon Girls swing the baton, dance, sing, and play the banjo with success, and Starr and Jerome (speciality vocalists and sand dancers) are good. Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Four Charles, in a smart acrobatic and juggling display, are at the top of the bill here this week, and Fanny Robina, the well-known comedienne, is the bottom star, and pleases greatly with her well-rendered songs. The Dagodets are also entertaining with banjo solos, songs, and dances. Others who contribute to the programme are Les Rupertos, equilibrists; Marlow and Manton, in sketch Other People's Babies; Flossie Cooper, vocal comedienne; Harris and Worth, patter comedians; King and Delane, in song and patter; Billy Bint, comedian; and Arthur Aiston, comedian. On the night of our visit Harry Tate's capital Motoring sketch, although not billed, was presented in fine style, and proved a decidedly popular turn.

MANSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Morella and Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—Miss Lena Stanton's company is here in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Miss Stanton is a capital Robinson Crusoe, and charms the audience with her singing; Miss Minnie Melbah is a vivacious Polly Perkins; Captain Taylor is in the capable hands if Miss Millie Maxwell; Mr. Bruce Green in the character of Mrs. Crusoe causes roars of laughter; Mr. Will Terry is most amusing as Atkins; Little Keeno, as Sunny Jim Crusoe, is exceedingly funny; Mr. Bob Beirne is good as Davy Jones; Mr. George Melbah plays Friday in a very creditable manner; Mr. Dennis Lyndon scores as King Kopp-Em; the dancing of the Orient Troupe is much appreciated; the Musical Melbahs give a smart turn; as also does La Bella Esma on the wire.

MARGATE.—THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Dutch Daly heads the programme this week, and as a raconteur and concertinist is particularly good; George Grogie, the Sussex yokel, keeps the house in a roar of laughter with his eccentricities; and Fred Gilbert gives a clever ladder act. Mr. Hamilton Hill is a pleasing baritone vocalist; and the Sisters Oswald, duettists and speciality dancers, are good; Frank Hartley, a smart juggler, and the Hippodrome pictures make up a good programme.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael.—The Répertoire Theatre Association's stock company has been presenting this week the old drama, The Shaughraun. Mr. A. Austin-Leigh, in the title-rôle, has played Conn cleverly; Miss Lilian Rogers has given admirable support as Moya Doolan, a part she plays in a particularly winsome manner; Mr. O. P. Heggie makes a good Father Doolan; and Mr. J. E. Savery does well as Captain Molyneux; Mr. G. W. Elton is much in evidence as Harvey Duff, a part he is quite at home in; and Mr. Richard Fielding is the Corry Kinchela; Mr. Farrington Stuart appears as Robert Ffolliott; Mrs. Culling is good as Clare Ffolliott; Miss Emmie O'Reilly plays well as Arte O'Neal; and Miss Eugenie Vernie is a capable Mrs. O'Kelly. The other characters are, for the most part, satisfactorily filled by Mr. Claude Agnew, as Sergeant Jones, and the remaining members of the company.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid provides a welcome attraction here this week. Miss Constance Hamilton is a dainty Lady Violet; Miss Hilda Vining gives an amusing impersonation of Caroline Vokins; Miss Nancy Taylor as Zelie Humbert, Miss Clara Beck as Thisbe, and Miss Kitty Smythe as the Countess, are particularly good in their respective parts; and a pleasing embodiment of Josephine is submitted by Miss Maud Jay as Meakin; Mr. Colin Campbell keeps the audience in the highest spirits by his drolleries; and the Hon. Guy by Mr. Ion Maxwell, Dr. Ronald Faussett by Mr. W. Garland, Mr. Aubrey Chesterton by Mr. R. Corray, Cassignai by Mr. T. A. Fisher, and Zaccary by Mr. Berwick are altogether most successful.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Hy. Foxwell's company is here this week in An Abandoned Woman.—Mr. Wolston Foster gives a thoughtful rendering of Captain Seaton; as Sir Marmaduke Seaton Mr. Geo. Gormley plays with distinction; Mr. J. Butler is prominent as Phillipe Malvoisin; and Mr. Nelson Ford does well as Robt. Saunders. Mr. Harry Foxwell submits a humorous rendering of Paddy Boyle; Miss Doris Gilham plays skilfully the rôle of Ninian Malvoisin; Mrs. Harry Foxwell is sympathetic and refined as Eleanor Dean; and Miss Lily Addison scores a success as La Céleste; Miss Ruba Zoma is a sprightly Sally Sloper.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson. — Mr. Lingford Carson's company, in The Drama of Life, is here this week. Mr. George Newall as Harry Beech ably depicts the conscience-stricken man, and Miss Kate Hallam as Sylvia Beech is very pathetic. Mr. Harwood Roberts as Sir Dobson Wilde is responsible for much laughter, and Mr. Edward Van Biene gives a capital rendering of Count De Foi. Miss Florence French as Lady Jane Wilde plays her part with skill and discretion, whilst Miss Nellie Birchenough as Betty Black furnishes a true impersonation of a lodging-house keeper. Miss Marie Pardy as Master Robert Beech proves herself an artist of merit; Mr. Henry Miller as Timothy Lane gives a fine impersonation, and Mr. Walter Steele as Richard Brenton submits a good portrayal of a detective.

OPERA HOUSE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto. —Mr. Fred Karno's company, in His Majesty's Guests, is here this week. Mr. G. Hestor, in the rôle of Sergeant Lightning, is largely responsible for the success of the production. Mr. E. C. Lilley as Mr. Minks is exceedingly good, and Mr. Frank Morton as Lord Easem leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Leonora Castille gives a fine impersonation of Lady Maud Easem; Mr. Fred Rigby as Bunker is funny, as is Mr. Jack Melville as Josiah Giles. Other artists of merit are Miss Dolly Ardell as Lady Letty, Mr. Dick Kitchen as Fritz, and Miss May Vernon as Dolly.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles B. Rembges.—An excellent programme is provided here this week. The Kiogoku Family of Japanese tumblers head the bill, and meet with a big reception. Charles Diamond and Miss Beatrice provide much delightful music, the former on the harp and the latter on the soprano saxophone. The Folkestones prove a laughable turn in their comedy act, The Channel Swimmers; Arthur Boyne thoroughly pleases the audience with his comic songs, whilst Mr. and Mrs. Finden are good in their duologue, entitled Two to One. Other interesting turns are provided by Rosie Archer (lady mimic), Dora Lyric (comedienne), and Lytton and Bland (comedy artists).

OXFORD PALACE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf Graham.—An excellent programme is submitted here this week. One of the most enjoyable turns is that of Johnson and Best, quaint acrobatic comedians, in a novel act, entitled A Queer Customer. Fred Curran, who is singing a number of parodies on popular songs, has also had a rousing reception, and the Spanish Goldinis introduce a clever and interesting exhibition of hat-spinning, &c. Elton and Edwin's banjo selections also prove popular. Other contributors are Millie Howell, Blanco White, Minnie Race, and Tom Dunmore.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. W. Davies.—Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company is this week appearing in The Swiss Express. As the eccentric servants, James and John, Messrs. Renad are as amusing as ever; Dr. Gull is ably impersonated by Mr. Herbert Lewis; Mr. George Martin does well as Virginia's lover, Bob; and Virginia herself has a bright and vivacious exponent in Miss Jessica Ford. The minor rôles are ably filled, and the dancing of the Eden Quartette is heartily applauded.

NELSON.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—Mr. Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil and company are this week presenting Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil in the character of Nellie Harborne is clever; Mr. Charles A. Leicester deserves unstinted praise as Gerald O'Connor; Mr. Stephen Crossley as Richard Lenowen acquits himself admirably; Maud Gladys Shovepenny finds an excellent representative in Miss Florrie Groves; Mr. Douglas Tremayne is good as the Rev. Lionel Strong; and Miss Frances Waring makes a capital Lilian Harborne. The piece is well mounted.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — TYNE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Sutcliffe.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is paying a visit here this week. Their répertoire, a varied and popular one, includes Faust, Marriage of Figaro, The Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Eugene Onegin, Lohengrin, and Maritana. Gounod's Faust was presented in admirable style on Monday. Mr. Joseph O'Mara in the title-rôle again fully justified the favourable opinion we have previously expressed on his skilful rendering; the Marguerita of Mme. de Vere won favourable comment; and Mr. Charles Magrath as Mephistopheles, Mr. G. King as Wagner, and Miss Toni Seiter as Siebel, all did themselves justice in their respective parts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham. —Lady Madcap this week pays a return visit, with Miss Marie Studholme in the title-rôle. Miss Studholme has a part which affords her every opportunity of showing that she is one of the brightest stars in musical comedy. Mr. Arthur Longley as Trooper Smith is responsible for very amusing business; and Mr. E. Statham Staples as Trooper Ham introduces a good deal of fun. Mr. Ernest Mahar is excellent as a comic Frenchman, his rendering of English popular songs à la Française being quite a hit. Mr. J. Robert Hale, a most accomplished dancer, and Mr. Oliver J. Raund, are very entertaining as a pair of rascals of widely different types; Miss Nina Sevening, in a part which suits her to perfection, is very sweet and winning; and Miss Mabel Russell, as a smart maid, sings and dances charmingly.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—This week Mr. John Leopold's company, in New Frivolity, pays a return visit. The students are responsible for plenty of merriment; and Miss Amy Hall and Mr. John Leopold, jun., in a coon song and dance, are very effective. The special turns which are submitted meet with a success which is thoroughly deserved.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor is presenting here this week his company, in the exciting drama entitled The Female Swindler. Miss Grace E. Leslie still undertakes the title-rôle with commendable success; and Mr. Henry C. Cooper plays the detective's part in a natural and convincing manner.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—The programme here this week is contributed to by Brown and Le Clerq, whose negro sketch is extremely funny; Dronza, described as the sensation of the twentieth century; Jessie Merrilees, a pleasing vocalist; Daisy Mayer, who gives a good account of herself in song and dance; James Stewart, in his musical speciality "The Tramp at the Piano"; Bert Byrne, a clever comedian; George Tacius, the double-voiced vocalist; David Poole, ventriloquist; and Tina Clementa, with her remarkably clever dogs and ponies.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The Phonograph Girl, a delightful miniature musical comedy, tops the bill here, the principal exponents being Miss Ida Gladstone, Miss Jeannie Christie, Miss Mollie McGuigan, and Mr. Arthur Dandoe. That popular light comedian Mr. Whit Cunliffe is again greatly in evidence with his topical songs, and is deservedly a "Pav." favourite; Verno and Voyce have a new speciality, wherein their fine singing is heard to distinct advantage; Rose Harvey, comedienne, is well received; C. Williams, coon singer and dancer, meets with much approval; Sid Bandon, character vocalist, is entirely successful; George Barrington, trick pianist, is remarkably clever; the Olive Trio are dainty dancers and comediennes; Vandinoff is a lightning artist in oil colours; and Bernard and Weston, comedians, and the Barrascope, complete the bill.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Ruby Ring, a new drama, is being played here this week by Mr. J. D. Hunter's company. Mr. Fredk. Sargent as Cuthbert Vaughan makes an admirable hero; Mr. Geo. Cecil Murray plays Colonel Clethorpe with a sense of humour; and Mr. Chas. Lane as Reginald Clethorpe figures as the evil genius of the piece. Mr. Chas. Langton does well in the disagreeble part of Henry Jordon in the first act; and Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., plays Chas. Lynton admirably; and the John Jenkins of Mr. Geo. Thorne, jun., is humorous. Mr. Walter Selby does well as John Kendall; Mr. Harry Collier displays capital character-acting in the part of Peter Wagg; and Mr. A. B. Topping plays the rôle of Alphonse Silver with credit. Miss Alice Farleigh represents Helen Neville, the heroine, with simple dignity; Miss Clarissa Selwynne is a charming Jane; and Miss Blanche Bayley displays excellent capabilities as Mary Richards.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Mr. T. E. Dunville heads the bill here; Arthur Gill is well received; startling contortionist feats are given by Abel and Welsh; and the Sarnthaler Troupe of ladies, who sing delightfully, are warmly encored. Marie Weston in song and dance is quite a favourite; the Haydas do some comical acrobatic work; and Ian Colquhoun, who has a fine baritone voice, sings selections from grand opera in a taking style. Clown Barker and Miss Rozika, with their trained dogs, complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The military drama, One of the Best, is presented here this week by Miss Elsie Roberts' company, under the direction of Mr. Frank Fenton, who plays the leading part, Dudley Keppel, with great dramatic effect. Miss Elsie Roberts is charming and natural as Mary Penrose; Miss Ethel Royale gives a well-marked delineation of the misguided Esther Coventry; Miss Dorrie Roberts is a merry Kitty Spencer; and Miss Ethel Sarjiant a buxom Mrs. Spencer. Mr. Escott Robson scores as Phillip Ellsworth; Mr. Cyril Melton is good as Lieut.-General Coventry; and Mr. Edward S. Earle excellent as Sir Archibald McGregor. Mr. George Child as the Rev. Dr. Penrose, Mr. Lionel West as M. Jules de Crushy, and Mr. Bertram Zardi as Jason Jupp, are well placed. Mr. Harry Ed. Ray is amusing as Private Jupp.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—The following are here this week: The Mezettis, in their comedy gymnastic act, The Officer and the Recruit; Edney and Wade, two lady society vocalists and dancers; L. B. Athol, characteristic artist; Cecile de Paso, lightning clay-modeller; Zavan, comic equilibrist; Pete and Juno, coloured comedians and dancers; Vernando, the ventriloquial barber; and the popular comedian, Tom Leamore.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, with Her Wedding Day. As Madge Conway, Miss Ward gives a well-studied performance; and Miss Eva Bertram is seen to advantage as Dora. Mr. Percy Brown is an able exponent of Harold Saxby; Mr. S. Herbert Humber does well as Weedon Kenyon; Mr. T. Edward Ward is successful as Seth Mayson; and Mr. Fred Larnold as Caccles, and Miss Ettie Spalding as Mrs. Caccles, evoke much laughter.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould. — This week's attractions include Chevalier Cliquot, who gives a wonderful performance of sword-swallowing; and Captain Devereux, with his trained dogs, introduces a clever act. Miss Ada Cleveland, soprano vocalist, renders her songs in capital style; Mons. Roose, in his chair speciality act, scores a huge success; Messrs. Vowles and Bryan, comedy artists, have made a hit; Messrs. Smart and Smart, comedians and dancers, are heartily greeted; and the bio-photoscope is as much enjoyed as ever.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Lester Wright.—Mr. F. H. Neville's company is here in the historical drama A Queen's Vengeance. Mrs. Walter Bentley in the rôle of Queen Eleanor acts in a dignified manner; Mr. R. Nelme Graswell as Henry II. stamps himself as an actor of merit; as Sir Rupert Warriner Mr. F. H. Neville receives well-earned applause; Mr. Gifforde Reynolds is a manly Gilbert Ormonde; Mr. Alf Russell causes much amusement as Bibeau the Jester; Miss Mildred Monteath is a charming Rosamond Clifford; and Miss Flora Clinton as Janet Jessop and Mr. J. Riley as Father John are good.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—The Grip of Iron is being represented this week by a capable company. Mr. Fred Powell gives a realistic impersonation of Jagon, alias Simmonet; Mr. Harry Scott capably fills the rôle of Paul Blanchard; Mr. Stanley Bedwell is successful as Lorentz; and Mr. Harry Agar Lyons is good as the detective. Mr. John Brittain does well as Dodot; Miss Mildred Cottell deserves praise as Cora; and Miss Nellie Fletcher is effective as Blanchard's sister.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—A capital programme is presented this week. Mr. A. Frederick Barham, a native of Norwich, makes his initial appearance before a Norwich audience as a hypnotist and magnetist; Millie Payne is very good as a comedienne; the well-known Barra Troupe, in their comedy musical turn, have a good reception; the Society Quartette are clever comedians and dancers; Little Dando creates much laughter; Howard and Collinson give an amusing sketch, The Porter and the Parcel; Farley, Rennie, and Farley, are effective in their act Fun at a Railway Station; and Harry Morris as Farmer Johnny creates laughter. The Three De Veres as comedy artists obtain much applause. The Hippo. Bio., with new pictures, completes a pleasant entertainment.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—That the visit of Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott is fully appreciated here was sufficiently evinced on Monday, when a crowded house gave a cordial welcome to the distinguished artists. The Light that Failed was chosen for representation. Mr. Robertson's great dramatic ability was shown in his description of Dick Heldar's affliction and consequent bitterness of heart, and the tenderness and pathos of his troubled love-making completely fascinated his audience; Miss Elliott's conception of the loving, but artistically ambitious, Maisie, was delightful throughout, especially when, at the close, Maisie discovers that love is paramount to art; Miss Auriol Lee gave the fullest expression to the violent emotions of the unhappy Bessie Broke; and Miss Gertrude Bibby was an admirable exponent of the Red-haired Girl, playing with intensity and feeling. Mr. Jan Robertson bore himself in courtly style as Gilbert Torpenhow; and Mr. Charles Weir offered a sturdy performance as Nilghai. Mr. Herbert Dansey cleverly displayed the excitability of Cassavetti; and Mr. J. H. Ryley was a smart Beeton. Miss Minnie Griffin gave a capital study of Mrs. Haines; and good work was shown by Miss Dorothy Paget and Miss Esme Hubbard. Mice and Men was also played on three evenings.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is here in the interesting human drama The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey realises the sturdy, independent son of toil to the life, and his fine physique and brawny appearance well become the part. The villainous Captain St. Leo is portrayed by Mr. Joseph Carter with great strength and power, and withal with a coolness and nonchalance which adds breadth to the representation. The part of Kate Strong, the blacksmith's wife, becomes in the hands of Miss Laura Walker a very sweet characterisation; and she is well supported by Miss Cassie Edwards as Ruth. Mrs. T. C. Livesey and Mr. T. E. Marshall create a good deal of diversion; and the broad comedy relief could not easily be entrusted to a better player than Mr. Geo. V. Campbell. Little Harry is smartly acted by Miss Bertha Hanbury; and Mr. Edwin Maydew is successful as Lucas Marlow; while Mr. George Wilton makes an excellent Harman.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edgar O. Waller.—Brien McCullough and company appear in a humorous sketch, entitled The Tramps, which gives Mr. McCullough ample opportunity of displaying his versatility as a comedian. He is well supported by Muriel Milton, C. F. Collins, Gilbert Vernon, and Stafford Smith. Marie Stoll is roundly applauded for her vivacious rendering of songs; and Edna Latonne, comedienne, fully deserves her reception. Knoto goes through a marvellous exhibition as a contortionist; and items by Joe Humphreys and Charles Jerome are heartily appreciated. Raymond's bio-tableaux supplies some new films; and a melodramatic sketch, called After Balaclava, by Brien McCullough and company, closes a pleasant programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—"Menetekel," whose appropriate appellation is derived from the supernatural writing on the wall at Belshazzar's feast, is a very puzzling exhibition of the mysterious; the Æolians, described as vocal entertainers, occupy the position of second importance on the bill, and present a turn at once refined and clever, evoking the enthusiastic applause of the house; Kate Traill, with songs of her own accompanying, has a very easy style, which meets with immediate approval; and Tom Owen's funny mannerisms are provocative of unbounded mirth. Amongst artists on the triple bars, none may claim to be more clever than Artois Bros., and the value of their turn is much enhanced by highly-appreciated fooling. The Three Renads produce a wonderful aërial swinging act; Flipp and Flopp is the title of the new comedy of the Delevines; and the Bros. Warsaw deserve mention as a clever pair of musical comedians; whilst Chas. Butler and John Josey, as the Two Cavaliers, are acceptable.

NUNEATON. — PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakespearean and Classical Répertoire company opened here on Monday with Hamlet. The title-rôle gives Mr. Maclaren an excellent opportunity, of which he takes full advantage; Miss F. Glossop Harris gives an admirable impersonation of Gertrude Queen of Denmark. The remaining parts are all well played. Included in the programme for the week are The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, Othello, David Garrick, and The Three Musketeers.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hulme.—Mr. George Dance's The Duchess of Dantzic company pays a return visit to this place of amusement, and was welcomed by a good "house" on Monday. In the title-rôle, Miss May Glenn gives a meritorious account of herself, her singing and acting being entirely to the popular taste; Mr. Leonard F. Griffiths, as Sergeant Lefebvre, afterwards the Duke of Dantzic, fills the part in a very able manner; as also does Mr. Gilbert Yorke that of Napoleon; Mr. Arthur Patterson, as Papillon, is very amusing; and Mr. Ralph Forster, as Captain Regnier, acquits himself well; Miss Ella Derwent is a splendid Empress Josephine; Miss Buena Bent's Lisette is also a fine performance; and the Misses Violet and Maisie Blyth, as Napoleon's sisters, do well; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy sings as the Vicomte de Bethune. All the other parts are in good hands, and the chorus is excellent.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. J. Ball; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eastwood.—The boards are occupied this week by a new play, Darkness, founded on Mr. Guy Thorne's book, "When it was Dark." Mr. Morton Powell has organised a strong company, and the play is well performed. As Constantine Schwabe, Mr. H. K. Ayliff proves to be a powerful personality, and he and his confederate, Sir Robert Llewellyn, played by Mr. Edward Valentine, do their work remarkably well. As Rev. Basil Gortire, Mr. T. A. Shannon has a manly part, of which he gives a well-studied representation; Miss V. St. Lawrence, as Gertrude Hunt, acted powerfully; and Mrs. Morton Powell is very sympathetic as Helena Byars. As Harold Spence, Mr. E. H. Allen is very good, as is also the Rev. Mr. Byars of Mr. Henry J. Butler. Other parts are ably filled by Miss Ethel Rainforth, Messrs. Lenville, Birron, Hiller, Stormont, Stanhope, Tucker, Dance, and Gray.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—The top of the bill is occupied by Mr. A. C. Lilly and company in a military episode, entitled Drummed Out, very well acted by Mr. Lilly as Sergt.-Major Usher; N. Watts Phillips as Trooper Roberts; Louise Brandon as Ethel (his wife); and Kitty Kirwan, who, as Mrs. O'Flanagan, introduces some good comedy. They are assisted by a portion of the 6th Manchester Volunteer Band. Wild, Willie, and West, the bounding navvies, cause roars of laughter by their antics; Master Ralph Moore, the boy vocalist, creates a good impression; and Lina Verdi, mimic, is well received; Sydney Lee, magician, gives a good turn; as do also Miss Florence Deighton, Anglo-American soprano; Williams and Brown, comedians; and J. W. Ellison.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Ross and Lewis occupy the premier position, and give a very good turn, being well received; Tiny Arnold, described as the smallest star artist in the world, is a petite comedienne, and does much in song and dance to merit the distinction; Charles Russell, in his monologue, goes well; and Denby and Dent cause much laughter in their sketch. The knock-about business on the bars by Elton and Elma is very funny; Tom Yorke, character comedian, and Frank Coyle, comedian, are capital; and Miss Violet Wilton, soubrette, also appears with success. The Dottoscope shows a fresh series of pictures.

OXFORD.—EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mrs. R. A. Cuthbert's company is appearing here in The Black Bishop. Mr. J. Kingsley Roydon sustains Simeon Strathcoat in a dramatic and convincing style, while Mr. Bradford Crosby appears successfully in the title-rôle, Vaughan Rejainee; Mr. Chas. Coventry as the bluff Captain Keilcrift is very natural, and Mr. Frank Hudspert causes some considerable fun as the deaf Brank Bruttlebut. Miss Jeannie Marquise is excellent in the dual rôle of Marian Strathcoat and Kate Marleigh, and Miss Isabel Norman evokes sympathy as Ruth Oldbury. Miss Maggie White is seen to advantage as Hannah Bruttlebut, and Miss Madge Turner is deserving of praise as Little Ruth.

SANGER'S CIRCUS.—On Friday, March 23, Lord John Sanger and Sons, Ltd., Royal Hippodrome and Menagerie gave two performances on the Botley Road ground, before large and most enthusiastic audiences. Amongst the numerous interesting items may be specially mentioned Zampo, the bounding wonder; the Fondants, musical and eccentric telephone wire equilibrists; Pimpo and his clown dogs; the Airlees, flying dudes; the Maro troupe, acrobatic equestrians. Some clever performances are given by the elephants; and there is also a splendid spectacular exhibition of the sports of ancient Rome, entitled "Nero."

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A return visit is being paid here this week of The New Barmaid, presented by Mr. Charles Edwardes and performed by Mr. Alexander Loftus and company. The characters are all ably impersonated, and the musical comedy is received with warmth and appreciation.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager Mr. Delno Fritz.—Here this week are the Brothers Gardner, champion boxers and wrestlers; Minnie Leverentz, R. C. Note, George Ray, J. H. Harris, Daisy Davenport, and Cosgrove and Burns.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is here this week in the successful drama A Path of Thorns. Mr. William Fagan assumes the arduous rôle of John Edmunds, which he sustains with high credit; Mr. Chris Mason creates a very favourable impression by his successful portrayal of Sam Hallett; Mr. Gordon Kay Bull and Mr. F. Gilbert Fenn are also advantageously placed as Jones Deane and Rev. Frank Selby respectively, while Mr. Frank Gordon and Mr. Harry G. Wright are prominent as Jim Price and Ratty Gabbitt; Misses Kitty Lofting, Emil Leslie, and Muriel Deane make decided hits in their respective onerous parts of Constance Howard, Nellie Hallett, and Bessie Edmunds; little Miss Marion Ryder is deservedly applauded for her clever impersonation of Lucy; Miss Evelyn Shaw is amusing as Fane Adelaide, the future Mrs. Hallett; and Miss Cissie Murdoch makes an excellent maidservant.

PETERBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard presents Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company here this week in Merely Mary Ann. Mr. Harold Standing gives a clever portrayal of Lancelot, and Mr. J. Cranstoun Nevill makes a capital Peter; whilst the Rev. Samuel Smedge finds an exceedingly capable exponent in Mr. Dudley Stewart. Mary Ann is cleverly represented by Mrs. Margaret Fareleigh, and Mrs. Dora Duncan as Lady Glynn, Miss Gladys Craig as Lady Rowena Tottenham, and Mrs. Margaret Hanson as the Countess, are well placed.

PLYMOUTH. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's répertoire company is paying a welcome visit to Plymouth with some high-class drama. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was presented to a full house, and was followed with rapt attention. Mr. Allan Wilkie gave a careful study of the part of Shylock, and Miss Iné Cameron as Portia attained a high level of artistic excellence, notably in the "quality of mercy" speech. Mr. Edward Ling as Antonio had the sympathy of the audience, being well supported by Mr. Clifford Kean as Bassanio. The lighter parts of Gratiano and Nerissa were respectively taken by Mr. G. Lambton and Miss Lizzie Maddocks, who made the most of their opportunities: and Miss Barbara Pigot made a delightfully demure Jessica. The company have also staged The Corsican Brothers, The Sleigh Bells, The Lady of Lyons, and Othello, each of which has had a flattering reception.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grand.—My Sweetheart is doing good business here this week. Miss Lily Beverley sustains the title-rôle in winsome fashion, and with the assistance of Mr. Edward Lloyd as Tony Faust is largely responsible for the success of the production. Mr. Richard Bosco makes a typical stage gambler. Other members of the company are Miss Irma Farington as the adventuress and Mr. Geo. Beverley as the broken-down Spott.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. A. Carlton; Manager, Mr. Mitchell.—A powerful drama, entitled The Executioner's Daughter, is presented this week. The situations are exciting, and Miss Ina Grant as Annette, the executioner's daughter, does full justice to them. Her fiancé, Paul Robel, as played by Mr. Victor Moon, is a noble character, and Mr. Duncan Bell is quite at home in the difficult part of the executioner.

Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—The Selbinis are the principal attraction this week, and perform some truly remarkable feats on bicycles; Moran and Marreece Quartette come in for rousing applause for a smart musical turn, coupled with some pretty quick-change electric light effects; the McConnell Trio remain from last week, and submit a turn in which they blend humour with fine vocal effect; and the Maitland Comedy Trio have a really funny sketch, entitled The Picture. Joe Mack, an Irish comedian, has a rich fund of anecdote, and others contributing are Eva Nelson, Gus Gauntlet, Eily Adair, and Vernon's pictures.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. Jarman's company, in the Anglo-Russian drama Under the Czar, occupies the boards this week. Mr. James Hare's fine presence greatly adds to his manly assumption of Nicholas Jeroslaff; Mr. W. H. Riley admirably acts Zakhar Kovesky; Alexis Petroff could not be in abler hands than those of Mr. Edwin Millins; Mr. Louis Weston is seen to great advantage as Paul Ignat; Mr. Gerald Smythe is a typical English captain; Miss Cathleen Cavanagh displays great dramatic ability as Sonia Gregorovitch; Miss Linda Riley's interpretation of Siomska is admirable; and Miss P. Carewe is a charming Zara Bhura.

PORTH.—Poole's Opera House.—Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—On Monday evening Mr. Frank Ayrton's No. 1 company opened here in the drama The Power of Gold. Mr. Charles Whitlock is responsible for some powerful acting as Hadgi Zambra, the Malay doctor; Mr. Richard Oliver gives a creditable account of Paul Judson; Mark Harley has a capital exponent in Mr. Albert Sefton; Mr. Frank Holyoake is a satisfactory representative of Dr. Stephen Saunders; Miss Georgina V. France gives a pathetic embodiment of Meg. Judson; Miss Hettie Laytise is exceptionally good as Sister Marie; Miss Lilla Wilde deserves a compliment for her effective embodiment of Lady Brandon. The lighter parts are successfully played by Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge and Miss Madge Seymour as Norah Donnelly.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Portsmouth being the birthplace of Charles Dickens, quite naturally a large and critical audience assembled at this house on Monday evening to welcome the presentation by Mr. Tree's well-selected company of Mr. Comyns Carr's adaptation of Oliver Twist. Mr. William Mackintosh's impersonation of Fagin was a most artistic one, the make-up being marvellous; the Bill Sikes of Mr. Cecil A. Collins was another well-sustained part, true to the character; the Artful Dodger and Charlie Bates were well taken by Messrs. Tom Macfarlane and Edgar J. Coyne; Mr. Brownlow had an able exponent in Mr. Ben Lewin; Mr. Clifford Bown was clever and effective as Mr. Grimwig; and Mr. Harvey Braban vigorously played Harry Maylie. Of the Nancy of Miss Hutin Britton it would be difficult to speak too highly, her portrayal of despair being admirable; Rose Maylie was sympathetically taken by Miss Hilda Dick; Miss Elsie Carew was at home in the part of Mrs. Maylie; and Miss Helen Boucher played pleasingly as Mrs. Bedwin.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here this week with Between Two Women. Mr. Arthur Murray, in the part of Henry Earl of Millard, gives a fine presentation; Harry Millard is taken very ably by Mr. C. W. Standing; Mr. Hugh Metcalfe as the Rev. Phillip Carton scores a success; Mr. Louie Hector is quietly and decidedly effective as the villain James Durwood; and Major Strangeways is impersonated by Mr. George R. Montford in a capable manner. Violet Thornton is portrayed by Miss Marjorie Murray with true feeling and tenderness; Carmen de Savereux, her rival, is cleverly played by Miss Winifred Pearson; the Blind Boy is realistically taken by Miss Lulu Bowes; and the lighter side of the piece is well looked after by Mr. Dickie Clare as Jack Pringle, and Miss Lilian Earle as Pollie Popp.

Empire Palace.—Secretary Mr. W. Pratt.—The star turn here, of an exceedingly attractive programme, is Chinko, the juggler, whose astonishing dexterity with all kinds of dissimilar articles evokes hearty applause. Minnie Kaufmann, bicycle artist, is marvellous in the precision and daring of her tricks; and the Katos get a fine reception for their pleasing show. Walter King, vocal comedian, is humorous in his ditties; George Brooks, eccentric comedian, is clever and diverting; the Three Sisters Sprightly give a diversified and amusing turn; and other excellent turns are contributed by Lizzie Daniels, light comedy soubrette; Carson Hicks, expert dancer; Baroux and Bion, eccentric acrobats; and Payne's Bioscope, with "The Deserter."

RADCLIFFE. — Grand Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. George T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company is here again, and is being well received in the comedy-drama, The Plucky Nipper. Mr. William Heilbronn takes the part of the villainous Richard Vanbrugh in masterly style, and the rôle of Colonel Fenwick is in the safe keeping of Mr. George D. Knight. The hero, Captain Frank Leslie, is well depicted by Mr. E. Stream, who also wins favour by some appropriate songs. Considerable merit is infused into the part of Bill Burgess by Mr. Edward Surrey, and Mr. Douglas Campbell, in addition to causing much merriment by his study of Tommy Atkins, secured an encore for one of his comic songs. Miss Bessie Ellis was sweet and ladylike as the heroine, Ina Fenwick, and Miss Bonwin Carlton impersonates the title-rôle with much gusto and abandon.

RAMSGATE. — Amphitheatre. — Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—The Anarchist Terror and The Sorrows of Satan have been staged here during this week by Mr. Edward Neville's company. In the first-named play Mr. Neville makes a capital Mikey Doolan, and Miss Cecile Byrne is good as Zara, as also is Miss Loie Esmond as Kitty Malone. Mr. George Langdon plays a many-sided part in praiseworthy style, and other characters are sustained with skill by Messrs. J. N. Turner, F. Holmes, G. Bowerman, and the Misses Evie Claremont, Flora Leslie, and Kate Parr. The adaptation of Marie Corelli's work was staged on Thursday and Friday nights, with Mr. Neville in the rôle of Lucio.

RAWTENSTALL.—Grand Theatre.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Benton's excellent company opened here on Monday with a fine performance of A Marriage of Vengeance. Miss A. Harrison-Tate as Stella gave a powerful portrayal, her acting being finished and artistic; and Miss Cora Linda as Elsie Dean was sympathetic and womanly in her clever interpretation. Mr. Charles E. Linney as Paul Earnscliffe was thoroughly capable, his impersonation being manly and full of true feeling. As Glynne Earnscliffe, Mr. A. L. Baron made a typical aristocratic banker and elderly lover, and his part was ably sustained; Mr. Max Coutts was a successful Geoffrey Vannock; and Mr. Fred Benton as Max Rheinhardt acted with ability and ease. Miss Ruby Hamilton Belasco was clever as Amelia, her impersonation being received with great laughter. She and Mr. Seymour Perry as Bob Shorner were responsible for much excellent comedy.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Messrs. Arthur Whittaker and Gifford Stacey's company is appearing this week in The Hindoo's Revenge. The leading parts are taken by Mr. Cyril W. Mackay, who gives an able impersonation of Captain Bruce Glenister, Mr. E. H. Dobell as the Hindoo, Kumar Nana, and Miss Ethyle Murray as Zephan, his sister. The other parts are all well filled. On Wednesday afternoon a special matinée was given, when Sir T. N. Talfourd's tragedy Ion was acted by the boys of Reading School, of which the author was an old student.

Town Hall.—Mr. Albert Chevalier, assisted by an excellent company, gave performances here on Wednesday and Thursday.

ROCHDALE.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Company, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Her Forbidden Marriage is the attraction here this week. It is full of exciting situations, and finds much favour in the popular parts of the house. Mr. Albert Ward is forcible in the part of the hero, George Maddison; Mr. L. D'Aragon cleverly portrays the scoundrel Charles Devereux; Mr. Eric Campbell is well placed as Sir George Lancaster; and Mr. Holland Day as Geoffrey Broughton makes a favourable impression. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne is sweet and pathetic as Lucy; Miss Eugenie Magnus skilfully enacts the part of Lady Lancaster; and Miss Barbara Gott is prominent with a well-acted portrayal of the Mother Superior.

Circus and Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee. — The Four Maisanos, eccentric musicians, are accorded a hearty reception on their reappearance here, their novel tricks and genuine mirth being very much enjoyed. The Voldam Bros. contribute a clever turn as eccentric acrobats; Lillian Victoria in a quick-change vocal scena is greatly appreciated; and other enjoyable turns are submitted by Louis Kerno (vocal comedian), Señorita Angelina Fillis (globe performer), Wisper (comedy juggler), Beattie Bloom (comedienne), and Vernon's Animated Pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—F. V. St. Clair makes a hit with his topical allusions in his songs; Carl Howard is a conjurer both comical and clever; Marion Grahame vocalises in pleasing style; and other turns include Tom Moy (comedian), the Solari Duo (vocalists and instrumentalists), Fred Lloyd and company in The Blind Spinster, the McKays in "dry comedy and wet paint," Dante by Miss Anna Lopetigue and Mr. Louis Blanchard, and the Empire Bioscope.

ROTHERHAM.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. John Gerant and company are here this week with At Duty's Call. Mr. Frank V. Fenn is a manly Captain George Alison; Mr. Ernest St. John is seen to advantage as General Gordon; Mr. John Gerant enacts the part of Harold Alison with good effect; and Mr. Ivan Mavis scores as Abdallah. Messrs. Harry Ugar as Terry O'Halloran and Gwyn Richardson as Jack Spencer are responsible for humour. Miss Edith Knight is pleasing and sympathetic as Dora Drummond; Miss Georgina Hamilton gives a clever portrayal of Selema; Miss Hetty Poplin scores as Nurse Slater; and Miss Harlington is smart as Mary.

RUNCORN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—The Heart of London, as presented by Mr. James Stephens, has scored a well-merited success. Mr. Stephens is supported by a company of old favourites. Mr. Taliesyn G. Davies plays the part of Renton Bashford in masterly style; the character of Sherlock Holmes affords Mr. Chas. York opportunities of which he takes advantage. Doctor Watson is undertaken by Mr. James Hart; and Jack Bradford by Mr. Frank Landon. Mr. James Stephens and Miss Lucie Victor divide the comedy element between them; and Miss Mabel Lewis Clewer wins appreciation by her touching representation of the heroine.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Little Bread Winner provides a pleasant entertainment this week. It is presented by Mr. J. A. Campbell, the author, who sustains the character of the Quaker, Lord William Dorrington. Little Emmie Thomas as Megg proves a clever little artist, and her songs are well received. Villainy, in the person of Joseph Prior, is skilfully represented by Mr. Scott Leighton, assisted by Miss Maud Buchanan, who ably sustains the character of Kate Cherry. Mr. A. Charles as Charles Prior, Miss Emmie Litchfield as Ruth Cherry, and Miss Jenny Bostock as Bridget O'Flanaghan fill in the light comedy. Mr. D. Gordon as Richard Lawrence and Miss Maud Hastings as Margaret Daventry are very successful in their work.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Harry Roxbury and company, in the musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo, head this week's bill, and give the audience plenty to laugh at. Some good portraits are quickly painted by Speedwell; Happy Tom Parker, comedian, is very funny. Other turns are given by Dave McNeil, versatile comedian; Margaret Agnes, descriptive vocalist; Fred Keeton, eccentric comedian; Sisters Cora, duettists and dancers; Ida Kathrena, in Jack in the Box, a toy scena; and Olive Marston, burlesque artist.

Royal Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—This week's programme is headed by Casey's Court, in which a street urchin's idea of producing high-class variety entertainment, is presented by the midget mimes, including Bob King as Mrs. Casey. Horace Sade is an expert dancer, who appears to give much satisfaction, having to appear three times. The Kesnors (Madge and Harry) do a novel act, including the flying rings; and other good turns are Harland and Rollison, smart performers on concertinas, saxophone, &c.; Philips and Merritt, American comedy duo, with good songs and patter; Oliver Conroy, a really comical comedian; Jacko, a climbing monkey; Bros. Hampson, comedians; and Walter Curtis, eccentric comedian.

SCARBOROUGH.—People's Palace and Aquarium.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—An admirable entertainment is provided at this popular place of amusement this week, foremost in the bill being Mill May, who is described as the singing protean artist, assisted by Mlle. Theresa in a marvellous change act; the Valdos, Continental eccentrics, submit an up-to-date programme, including some very smart tumbling on their motor-car; Lillie Coleman, comedienne and soprano vocalist, has a fine delivery, and in "The old apple tree" was greatly applauded; Nelson Hardy gives unique and interesting impersonations, his figures including "Joey," the pierrot; Stanert and Yondi, vaudeville artists and instrumentalists, supply a meritorious turn; Miss Louie Lantz dances in finished style; Charles Grantley, with his songs and mimicry, is a good turn. Though small in stature, Barry Gilmore is not deficient in abilities, and he and his brother are always prime favourites here, securing plenty of applause for their comicalities; Vernon's Bioscope is still here with up-to-date pictures.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Sarony and Co.; Lessee, Mr. George Zalva.—The management here are making a speciality of moving pictures, which are most interesting, the Japs landing in England being depicted on Tuesday night. In addition there are several artists of merit, including the Hulmes, in a musical turn of a fresh character; Bessie Travis, who, as a ventriloquist, creates roars of laughter and enthusiasm; A. P. Boswell maintains his reputation as "the Furniture Shifter"; Kitty Marion, comedienne, sings some good songs; and Palmon is a master in the art of trick cycling.

SEACOMBE.—Irving Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Councillor James Kiernan.—Mr. Fred L. Connynghame's company is here this week with A Mother's Love. Mr. Arthur Rose gives an earnest and dignified protrayal of Paul Wingate; Mr. Charles Draycott is responsible for a clever rendering of Geoffrey Mannering; and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame elicits peals of laughter. Miss Violet Macaree sustains the rôle of Winnie Wingate with telling force; Miss Laura Pardy is fully equal to the strong part of Ellaine Mervin; and the other characters are capably enacted.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. W. Reuben Payne's company was heartily received here on Monday with The Orphan Heiress. Mr. Charles Boult is a capital Douglas Kingston; Laurence Gordon is powerfully drawn by Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle; as the scheming Craven Mr. Walter Fergus is effective; Ginger is humorously drawn by Mr. T. H. Solly; Mr. Cecil Morand is an amusing Jenkins; Lord Ainsley is well presented by Mr. Henry Willis; Sardien Loski is capably played by Mr. Albert Brasque; and Mr. Fred Allen is smart as Inspector Murray. Miss Rosalie Heath as Mabel Ainsley merits praise; Edith Mowbray is skilfully drawn by Miss Constance Medwyn; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh is a dignified Lady Ainsley; Olive Kingston is portrayed with success by Miss Edith Halford; and Betsy has a spirited representative in Miss Cora Duncan.

SHEERNESS.—The Hippodrome.—General Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton.—Amongst the principal turns at this premier place of amusement are the Charles Vandyke company in their mirth-provoking burlesque act Nicodemus, which is received with much favour. Miss Daisy De Roy, comedienne, also obtains a flattering reception. Theresa Moore is highly successful as a speciality artist; Will Fredo, eccentric comedian and dancer, gains a hearty welcome; Miss Florence Hill, comedienne, renders her songs in a pleasing manner; and Mr. Harry Banford, eccentric comedian, is also much appreciated. Ruffell's Bioscope provides an abundance of fresh films, which completes a most entertaiinng programme.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. P. Reymond.—An entertaining bill here includes Bromley and West (Harry and Eva), society entertainers, who are capitally received; Miss Sara Yost, lady baritone, proves herself an artist of ability; Mr. Harry Monkhouse, comedian, is also popular; the Audleys, in their laughable act, Recipes, provide an amusing turn; Miss Louie Hurman, burlesque actress, and Mr. Jack Foley, eccentric comedian, are still as popular as ever.

SHEFFIELD. — Lyceum Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Eternal City is again being played here, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, whose company gave a finished performance on Monday. Miss Marie Polini achieved a great and well-merited success in the exacting rôle of Roma; Mr. Henry Deas gave a careful and well-considered reading of the character of David Rossi; as Baron Bonelli, Mr. E. Stanton Sharpe acted with spirit and distinction; and Mr. Geo. Cartwright's Rocco was a commendable performance. The mise-en-scène was artistic.

Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. T. S. Carter.—That old Sheffield favourite and sterling actor, Mr. J. H. Clyndes, opened to a good house on Monday in the picturesque drama, A Royal Revenge. Mr. Clyndes acted with his accustomed power and finish as Alvarez, and in these days of slipshod elocution his perfectly declaimed speeches commanded absorbed attention. Miss Annie Grattan made a graceful representative of Cora Casilda; Miss Enid Edoni was good as Inez; Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon made a humorous Sancha; and Miss Celestine Brandon acted in a vivacious manner as Marcella.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—There was a good house here on Monday, when Mr. Tom Taylor's company opened in Mr. Walter Melville's sensational drama, The Worst Woman in London. Miss Florence Dalton, in the title-rôle, looked handsome in her smart gowns, and acted with power and dramatic intensity; the character of Vincent Lyle was effectively represented by Mr. Paul V. Sewers; Mr. Wallace Campbell was a manly young hero as Jack Felton; and Mr. Leonard Booker was "firm" as Philip Armstrong. Miss Effie Bartlett made a pretty and sympathetic Ruth; and other cleverly played characters were the James Milford of Mr. H. H. Barrington, the Hugh Drayton of Mr. H. W. Moule, the Bob Goldfinch of Mr. Percy Dawsone, and the Matilda Parker of Miss Florence Lovell. The piece was mounted in a realistic manner, and the principal scenes were loudly applauded.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, the Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The favourite comedian, Mr. Wilkie Bard, is again delighting his countless local admirers with his dry humour and whimsical ditties; the pleasing manner of Miss Nelly Stratton makes her vocal essays very acceptable; a smart gymnastic act by the piquant and graceful Lios-Alfa Sisters is loudly applauded; Mr. T. C. Callaghan, an old music hall favourite, is very successful; and handsome Miss Florrie St. Clair sings and dances with refinement and grace. The Burnells, in a funny knockabout burlesque act, cause great mirth; Mr. Edwin Barwick gives a good impersonation of the late Sir Henry Irving; Forest and King do some excellent dancing; the Ados are smart athletes; and the Urban animated pictures are enthusiastically received.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. George Dickenson.—The Boston Twins, Mr. Will Lytton, the Swift Trio, Mr. Jack Brookes, Mr. Bert Brantford, Miss Blanche Marion, and Pallister's bioscope, with local and topical pictures, are appearing to delighted audiences.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. W. C. Dornton, the energetic and courteous manager of this theatre, took his annual benefit on the 23rd inst., when a number of friends, in and out of the profession, provided a most enjoyable evening's amusement. The Misses Dornton gave pianoforte ducts and solos in an artistic manner; Miss Nelly Fulcher contributed a well-executed violin solo; Mr. Harry Lawton gave a capital sketch, People I have Met; and Mr. W. H. Jones, jun., played a cornet solo. Mr. N. Mellor, who sang "For all Eternity," was in excellent voice; Mr. A. Allen introduced some interesting gramophone records; and Mr. F. Brant provided the comic element. A talented little company, consisting of Mr. T. E. Maddox, Mr. J. Dillon, Mr. Blackmore, Mr. Billie, Miss Jessie Carlton, Miss Nellie Turner, and Miss Braddock McDonald, played Bubbles in a very capable manner. The graceful dancing of the Sisters Nina, who appeared in pierrot costume, was appreciated. During the interval, Mr. Dornton, from the stage, cordially thanked the public for their support and those who had so generously and readily contributed to the evening's entertainment. Mr. Herbert Ralland's company was here in the merry comic opera La Poupée on the first four nights of this week. Mr. Wm. Everard sang and acted artistically as Launcelot; Mr. Walter Balfour was in fine voice as Father Maxime; Mr. Fred Seymour was droll and clever as Hilarius; Miss Dot Stephens was successful and attractive as Alesia; Miss Edith Hunter played capably the part of Madame Hilarius; and numerous minor parts were all satisfactorily embodied.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton.—Fred. Melville's company, under the direction of Mr. Wm. Fraser Brunner, is playing here The Beast and the Beauty. We must specially single out for praise Mr. Fred D. Daviss, a talented actor, whose Jack Barrymore is most effective; Miss Alice Bowes is an engaging Beauty; and Mr. Bernard Mervyn a typical villain. The comedy element is well sustained by Mr. Will Corrie (Tom Chicken) and Miss Jennie Danvers (Mimi). The other parts are all capably played.

Palace.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William Trussell.—Mr. Lew Lake and his Bloomsbury Burglars are proving a great attraction here. Will Musgrave, comedian, repeats his former success; and Ruby Bijou dances gracefully. Downes and Langford, cross-talk comedians; Lillie Lassah, a charming comedienne; Ossi Souplessi, a wonderful contortionist; Myles and May, the merry huntsmen; and Les Cabiacs, a couple of smart acrobats, complete a fine bill of fare.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; District-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Aldin.—The Bros. Poluski are first favourites here, and win continuous applause for a droll turn; Frank Harwood is another popular artist; and the Creo Bros. excel in a smart acrobatic show. Others appearing are Grace Merton, a capital singer; Cline and Clark, duettists and dancers; Les Voces, operatic vocalists; and the Marblesque Trio, in a living statuary entertainment.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—A capital attraction for this week is being provided by Mr. Arthur Carlton, whose capable company is appearing in the drama entitled The Span of Life. The cast includes the famous Almo Trio, whose clever acrobatic feats cause quite a sensation, and who also form a human bridge, gaining considerable applause for their endeavours. Mr. Sanderson Moffat is eminently suited as Richard Blunt; Dunstan Leech finds in Mr. R. S. Trelawney a capable exponent; Mr. Walter Dale makes a humorous and pleasing character as Nutty Brown; and Joshua Gurnet is well embodied by Mr. Edwin T. Kisby. Miss May Moffat as Cecil Blunt is a well-spoken child, and Miss Phillis Graham is good as Cecil Jeff. Miss Harriet Russell gives prominence to the rôle of Mrs. Jelf, and is very successful; Miss Kitty Russell causes immense merriment in her portrayal of Shrove Tuesday; Kate Heathcote is entrusted to clever Miss Phyllis Hamilton, and her dignity and gracefulness are well shown.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Licensees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company, Ltd., is here this week, and opened with Donizetti's Daughter of the Regiment. Miss Rosina Beynon, as Marie, was enthusiastically received, her numbers being most artistically rendered. The Tonio of Mr. Albert Bowyer was a decided success, his fine tenor voice being heard to advantage; Father Sulpice was in the experienced hands of Mr. George Neilson, whose "Two Grenadiers" roused enthusiasm; Miss M. Godwin was good as the Countess, and the Babette of Miss L. Coleman was a meritorious performance. The powerful animated and flexible chorus, ably assisted by an excellent orchestra, under the skilful bâton of Mr. Harrison Frewin, all combined in giving a charming portrayal of this delightful opera. The bill for the remainder of the week includes La Traviata, Maritana, The Marriage of Figaro, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—At the head of the bill is Lottie Lennox, who is well received. Local amateur vocalists are invited in competition to copy this artist in any of her favourite songs. Ben Hur, athlete, gives a performance of excellence; Jake Friedman is as funny as ever; Annie Casey is a successful comedienne and dancer; Gracie Graham is loudly applauded for her "Pictures in the fire" song. The remaining items are Charles Chard, comedian; the Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers; the Stuart Quartette; and the Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—An excellent programme here is headed by George French, a comedian of ability. A good exhibition of clog-dancing is contributed by Macintosh and Royal; the Falcons are a pair of excellent comedy acrobats. Well merited applause is awarded Raglus, comedy juggler; the Monktons create a good impression in their sketch, A Woman's Curiosity. Other turns are Nelson and Thomas, Mabel Higson (comedienne and dancer), and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Tompkinson's Royal Gipsy company is affording a welcome change here. As on previous visits, the programme is in two parts, the first being devoted in the main to vocal and instrumental turns, which are all admirably rendered, and the second to variety items, the pick of which is that contributed by the Lizette troupe of lady acrobats, five in number. Elsie Rubina exhibits several smart balancing feats on the tight wire; the Musical Keiths illustrate their versatility on a series of novel instruments; Miss Annie Knowles supplies a capital trombone solo; and Bert Allen, the Liliputian comedian, evokes much laughter.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Conscience and Crime, a drama by Mr. Alfred Stafford, was played on the first three nights of the week, being received with much favour. Mr. J. A. Stimson made an instantaneous success as Nobby Rutter, and a powerful character representation was given by Mr. Chippendale as a miser. Miss Lily Prescott admirably played the leading part. For Friday and Saturday the No. 1 company of La Poupée, under the management of Mr. Herbert Ralland, was billed.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—We have here this week for the first time Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company in A Soldier's Revenge. Mr. M. Beaudyn is excellent as Ironhand; Mr. Robertson Foulis does well as Sir Marsden; Matthew has a capable representative in Mr. Howard Hardy; Messrs. H. G. Momber and T. R. White are effective exponents of the parts of Toby and Shadrach; Miss Irene Munroe wins applause as Ruby; Miss Jane Massey is thoroughly at home as Mrs. Shadwell; and Betsy is capitally played by Miss Annie Glunn.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. T. Barrasford, Sley, and Wilmott; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Another good programme is being presented here. First and foremost are Haley's Prize Juveniles, with their capital singing and clever dancing; Mr. J. Grun Marx astounds all with his feats of strength; James Lowery is a good descriptive vocalist; Reed and Lerne are an amusing couple; the Three Sisters Chester are banjoists, vocalists, and dancers of ability; Ralston and Franche submit some high-class tableaux; Kitty Tims scores well as a comedienne; and Londin Cameron is a clever illusionist.

ST. LEONARDS.—The Kursaal.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The vocalist in connection with Mr. Marriott's orchestra this week is the gifted singer Señor Carlos Ronzevalle. The sacred concerts on Sunday are well patronised.

STOCKPORT. — New Theatre Royal. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The Dandy Doctor, capably presented by Mr. Edward Marris's company, is being presented here this week. Mr. Edmond Russell as Melchisadeck Brown is exceedingly funny; and Mr. James Danvers is humorous as Colonel Pendred. Mr. Leslie Martin evokes laughter as Bertie Bolingbroke; and Mr. Stanley S. Gordon is a smart Arthur Vandyke. Miss May Yates as Ivy Pendred is very pleasing; and Miss Cora England as Miss Vandyke and Miss Mary Elton as Miss Lorraine fill their parts with much ability. Entertaining specialities are introduced by Mr. James Danvers, assisted by Miss Marie Gerrard, in Padrewski Up to Date; the Dandy Belles, dancers; and Mr. Ben Rowe and Miss Holden, who are graceful cake-walkers.

Empire, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—An excellent all-round company is appearing here this week, the chief attraction being the Borghetti Troupe of head acrobats, who perform marvellous feats; Zarmo, the comedy juggler, is an amusing performer; and Caselli and James are entertaining banjoists. Eric Graham is a coster comedian of the front rank; Carr and Rose give a mirth-provoking sketch, A Domestic Episode; and Conan and Doyle, comedians, provide abundant fun. W. H. Morgan, comedian; Millie Harris, comedienne; and Percy Curry, comedian, meet with due appreciation.

STOKE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—At the head of this week's bill are Ford and Barris, who are new to the halls, but whose turn is deserving of the highest praise; Baroni and Kemp, in their quick-change sketch, are capital; Yorkshire Tom as a mimic has few rivals; the Ringling Trio are seen in a sketch, in which a wonderful exhibition of stilt-walking, &c., is introduced; Mark Merry is a good comedian; Sandy and Carl are always welcome, their boxing and fencing being most amusing; Carlo and Maie score as wire-walkers and acrobats; Golden and Grey have a smart sketch in The Missing Will; the bioscope shows some excellent pictures.

STOURBRIDGE. — Alhambra Theatre. —Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey are this week presenting the Anglo-Indian drama A Traitor Prince. In the title-rôle Mr. G. M. Montanini, an able artist, is well supported by Miss Nita Langford as Vashti; Mr. Ernest A. Duval as Lieut. Frank Derrick acquits himself well; Miss Rose Routledge is a winsome Lola Vane; Mr. Edward Fenton as Hon. Dalrymple is very amusing, as is Mr. Edmund O'Grady as Billy Bright. Miss Kitty Thomas makes an admirable Pansy Blossom, and mention should be made of Miss Clara O'Grady as Mrs. Blossom.

SUNDERLAND. — Avenue Theatre.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile pantomime Beauty and the Beast is here this week. Miss Kitty Trewhitt is a dashing principal boy, and Miss Dolly Dodds makes a bright and charming Beauty. Miss Mona Townsend wins favour as Will Scarlett, and Miss Isa Gibson is well placed as Maid Marian. Master Will Kay is highly amusing as Baron Mumps; Messrs. Paddy Mills and Jack Harrison score heavily as Flip and Flop.

Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hem

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Manager, Mr. John H. Stringer; Treasurer, Mr. Alfred Browne.—W. J. Ashcroft heads the bill, and is most amusing in his farcical interlude, entitled I am Ann O'Hoolihan, in which he is capably assisted by Mr. J. W. Morton; Frank Seeley, comedian, receives a hearty reception; the Bransbys, comedy duologue artists; V L. Granville, in his interesting impersonations from various plays; Oakley and James, comedy artists; James de Voye, who presents "Billy," a performing horse; Mme. Maria Gibson, a ballad vocalist of considerable ability; and Ben Harris's Nippers, in a comedy sketch, also appear. The entertainment winds up with the usual show of animated pictures.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—After the Ball, a musical comedy, was the attraction at this house on Monday, being presented by Mr. Charles Carey's company, under the general management of Mr. Guillaume Leone. The company is a competent one, and includes Miss Florence Smithers, who appears most successfully as Nancy. This lady is a great favourite in Swindon, and was accorded a flattering reception. Miss Nellie Groves as Nellie Mather, Miss May Florence as Ruth Gay, and Miss Nellie James as Kitty were bright and pleasing in their respective parts. Mr. V. Widdicombe as Colonel Merrit was exceedingly quaint throughout, while Mr. Walter Ringham did good work as Halliwell Merrit, and Mr. Norman Bowyer worked with excellent judgment as Dick Seymour. Mr. Buckstone Cl[illegible] acquitted himself capitally as the Colonel's serva[illegible].

TODMORDEN. — TOWN HALL. — Proprietors, Todmorden Corporation.—Mr. William Hamilton's Diorama and Variety Company is here for six nights. A feature of the entertainment is the wonderful mystery feats of Gustav Fasola, the Indian Fakir; the clever skating of the Snow Family and the bicycle riding of the French Troupe are worthy of high praise; as are also the patter singing and knockabout business of the Brothers Warlock, Irish comedians. The performance concludes with an amusing sketch, entitled Soothing Syrup.

TON-Y-PANDY. — ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. S. Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barry.—Mr. Cecil Clayton is presenting Cinderella here this week, and with charming scenery, a good company, and plenty of fun, an entertainment of great merit is provided. The title-rôle is admirably filled by Miss N. Waylett, who makes a chic Cinderella; Miss E. Rosslyn infuses into the rôle of Prince Charming just the right amount of enthusiasm, and is eminently successful. The Fairy Sunshine of Miss Gertrude Gray is very favourably received.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company in the play Sunday is paying a return visit this week. Miss Emily Polini gives a clever and artistic portrayal in the title-rôle, her rendition being full of merit and highly effective; Mr. Leonard Pagden fills with marked success the part of Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. Cecil Duncan is admirable as Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas is good as Tom Oxley; the characters of the "boys" at Silver Creek are successfully depicted by Mr. William Lockhart (Towzer), Mr. Sydney Rennef (Davy), Mr. T. Norman Walter (Lively), and Mr. Arthur Vezin as Jacky. Miss Rosalind Ross makes a dignified Mrs. Naresby.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—An interesting sketch entitled When London's Sleeping is ably produced by Scottie's Waifs and Strays. Mr. Charles R. Whittle is a versatile comedian; Miss Maidie Scott is a clever comedienno and dancer; Curtis and Vanity, cake-walkers, contribute a smart speciality turn; Harry Hunter delights with his selections on the guitar; Charles Valdo, ventriloquist, wins applause; and Miss Ida Dorrie, soubrette, gains favour.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A striking turn in this week's programme is the appearance of the Silvas, equilibrists, who proved themselves most popular. Mora and Lola in a musical act are good; Joe Cheevers, comedian, is popular; Arthur Sutcliffe also does well; Alma Abdullah and La Superbe in Electra's Bower, a stage spectacle of unexampled brilliancy, afford much pleasure; the Three Sisters Hayden are charming burlesque artists; Dainez and his Comedy Circus, including Smiler, have a good reception; and the American Bioscope completes a good programme.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company in The 10.30 Down Express is here this week. Mr. Charles Burdon as Jack O'Malley is most successful; James Inderwick is capably taken by Mr. George Arthur; M. Claud Haviland does well as Huntley Mason; Mr. Arthur E. Francis is funny as Bletherley Baggs; Miss Kate Kilpack does full justice to the part of Peggy Potts; and Miss Elsie Capell makes a charming Bessie Leigh.

WALTHAMSTOW.—KING'S THEATRE.—One of the best productions we have had here for a considerable time is the four-act comedy-drama The Blind Foundling, played by Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company. The play itself is an excellent example of the best class of melodrama. The company engaged in its production is of exceptional talent. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps gives a really fine rendering of Gerald Dalton, vivid, powerful, and convincing; Mr. Alfred Geo. Fry is a good exponent of the villain, Mark Redman, carefully avoiding all temptation to overact; Mr. Bernard Webb is satisfactory as Jasper Waterford, and Mr. Frank Harvey an acceptable Parson Ray; Mr. Harry Tilbury as Dick Dobbins has a part in which his comedy powers are brought into full play. A touching and beautiful rendering of the blind foundling, Fairy, is given by Miss Mabel Hall, who wins every heart; Miss Belle Tilbury as the wicked Isabel plays with a thorough grasp of character, Miss Amy Dalby is clever as Viola, and Miss Millie Doris bright and full of spirits as Winnie Dobbins. Sarah, a hag, is well played by Miss Frances Jessop. Other parts are satisfactorily filled by Miss Arline T. George, Messrs. George Cameron, Page Ware, Edward Wilson, Tommy Byron, Alf. Kitson, and Arthur Pinn. Songs, dances, and specialities are agreeably given by Mr. Tilbury, Mr. Byron, and Miss Doris.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Mr. Fred Keeton has established himself in popular favour here with "I know what I'm about" and "What will mother say?"; the Lurins caused mirth in their amusing duo. A hearty welcome is accorded to Mr. Tom Woottwell, who, fresh from his triumphs in Drury-lane pantomime, sings with enormous success "Move on" and "The little shirt my mother made for me," both of which go with roars of laughter. Terry and Bentley appear with great acceptance in the comedy sketch The Hunt, Mr. Harry Champion is an immense favourite, and Miss Madeline Rees sings her two songs, "The Fisherman's Daughter" and "When Love knocks at the door," with great charm. Mr. Fred Karno's company appears in that screamingly funny pantomime sketch, Jail Birds; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope displays, as usual, some excellent pictures.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—The Cingalee, on a first visit here, is played by Mr. George Dance's company. Mr. Walter Champney as Chambhuddy Ram scores a hit; Mr. Courtney Comber is a manly Harry Vereker, and his singing is greatly appreciated; Mr. Hugh Webb as Boobhamba makes the most of it; and Mr. W. Bosco as Sir Peter Loftus is decidedly smart. Mr. Arthur Foote does well in the small part of Bobbie Warren; Miss Cecille Beresford is a charming and picturesque Nanoya; Miss Katie Yates is a sprightly and graceful Peggy Sabine; and Miss Mona Grey's Lady Patricia is an excellent performance.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmott.—Capital business is again being done here this week. The New York Comedy Four score a big success in their humorous, yet harmonious, vocalisation; Rappo and Ella are exceptionally clever equilibrists; and Haydees, with his miniature vaudeville theatre, supplies an interesting turn. Lily Arthur is a dainty little comedienne, and the Brothers Lang are capital knockabouts. Billy Burns has a spice of originality in his business; and the Royal Bioscope pictures are a delightful series.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. Evan Roland's company is here this week for the first time with the sensational drama, The Guilty Man. Mr. Harold Lewis plays admirably the rôle of George Seymour, whilst the part of General Seymour is creditably sustained by Mr. Leonard Anthony. Mr. Alfred D. Adams as James Redman submits a capital impersonation; the part of Esau the Jew is effectively portrayed by Mr Henry S. Dacre; the important rôle of Nell Radford is effectively rendered by Miss Muriel Ingles; Miss Lilly Lewis as Audrey Priestly proves herself a capable artist; and Miss Sybil Haughton evokes oud applause as Sukie. On Thursday evening Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here for three nights in The Christian, with Miss Grace Murielle as Glory Quayle and Mr. F. Rawson-Buckley in the character of the Hon. John Storm.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—CORN EXCHANGE.—The visit of Mr. George Dance's company on Tuesday and Wednesday with The Orchid drew full houses. Miss Margory Moore successfully appeared as Lady Violet, her charming "Little Mary" item being the most noticeable feature of the evening. Mr. Harry Walsh ably brought out the humour of Meakin, and was capitally supported by Miss Phi Gumpel as Caroline. Mr. Charles Seymour must bo complimented on a fine rendering of Aubrey Chesterton; Comte Raoul de Cassignat had a droll exponent in Mr. George Asaf, and Mr. Sinclair Holden cleverly interpreted the Hon. Guy. Miss Sissie Brand was very pleasing as Zelie, and good work was done by Miss Trilby Collier (Josephine), Miss D. West-Collins (Thisbe), and others.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. George Dance's principal company is giving a delightful representation of A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. Foster Courtenay is an exceedingly funny Pineapple; Miss Minnie Leslie carries off chief honours as Fi-Fi; Miss Ada Watson fills with great satisfaction the rôle of Soo-Soo; Miss Edie Ross is a smart and stately Mrs. Brown; Miss Poppy Wilkinson presents a winsome Mrs. Pineapple; and Mr. St. John Hamund is an exceedingly humorous Hang Chow, being cleverly supported by Mr. Percy Russell in the character of Chippi Chop. Mr. L. Bullock-Webster is a capable Tom Hatherton; and Mr. Jack Lisle's impersonation of Hi Lung is effective. The chorus is well balanced.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A Lewis.—The Manxman, as played by Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company, is being well received this week. Mr. Cross himself in the rôle of Pete plays in a style that gains for him the highest eulogiums. Miss Minnie Watersford submits a charming delineation of Kate Cregeen; Cæsar Cregeen has an able exponent in Mr. A. D. Leyland; Mr. Sydney C. Kearns presents a commendable picture of Philip Christian; and others in the cast include Mr. George Marriott, jun., Miss Mona Spearing, and Miss Nancy Mitchell.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The King's College Boys are this week making their first appearance before a West Hartlepool audience, and in selections from opera are being warmly applauded. Will Johnson is an amusing comedian; the exhibition of jumping and equilibrism by the Bros. Zampah is clever and novel; the patter of Nash and Noel is humorous; the Bros. Ashley are going well in a boxing sketch, Next, Please; and Ted Saunders (mimic), the San Remo Girls in speciality dances, Maud Esmond (burlesque artist), Frank Boyce (comedian), and the bioscope all contribute to an attractive programme.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W Payne.—Mr. J. W. Morton's No. 1 company is here this week in The Sporting Girl. Mr. Harry Sinclair as Mr. Penton Hook is a typical American; Mr. Hall Eldon is decidedly good as Marco Castellino; Mr. Jas. H. Stirling makes a villainous George Drewitt; Mr. Jock M'Kay is comical as Stoge; Mr. Fred Hart creates merriment as the Rev. John Bunyan; and Mr. Percy Watson does well as Jack Garling. Miss Maggie Sinclair makes a dashing Kitty Fitzroy, and her rendering of the part is greatly appreciated. Miss Minnie Blackmore acts artistically as Mrs. Owen. Miss Nell Ascott gives a good interpretation of Amy Beddoe; and Miss Gladys St. Ledger is humorous as Martha.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Esmonde Bramley's company, in a repertoire of Shakespeare and standard plays, is the attraction here this week. On Monday night the company produced Romeo and Juliet. Mr. Cyril Este filled the part of Romeo, Miss Millie Ford as Juliet at once found favour, Mr. Balliol Holloway was a pleasing Mercutio, Mr. F. Owen Chambers ably portrayed the part of Friar Lawrence, ably seconded by Mr. E. Fango as Friar John; Mr. Llewellyn Evans was a capital Paris, Capulet and Lady Capulet were shown to advantage by Mr. David Beattie and Miss Maud Garth, Miss Bernard Parkin making a capital nurse. Tybalt, the Prince of Verona, Benvolio, Peter, the Apothecary, and Balhazar were ably portrayed by Mr. F. Scarth, Mr. Chas. Doyle, Mr. L. Cheetham, Mr. P. Gordon, Mr. G. E. Dunstan, and Miss Clare Hatfield respectively. The week's programme includes The Merchant of Venice, Othello, As You Like It, and Ingomar.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Raws; Managing-Director, Mr. D. Williams.—The Cooper and Edison pictures, together with a company of variety artists, are here this week. Sabino gives a fine musical entertainment on various instruments; Louie, with a puzzling performance of mental telegraphy, is a great favourite; Mr. I. Hastings gives a refined impersonation of a lady, while Henry Lee, the Scotch comedian and mimic, is responsible for considerable laughter.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Mr. F. Marriot Watson's company is here in the drama A False Wife. Mr. Howard Barlow acts forcibly as Lieutenant Mansfield; Mr. Frank Strickland is well cast as the adventurer, Jean Berand; the comedy element is well placed in the hands of Mr. Elton Morgan as Ben Rattler, Mr. Owen Edwin as Archibald Tee, and Miss Nita Imeson as Bessie. A pleasing performance is that of Miss Ellen Armor as Agnes Weyland, and the evil genius of the play, Estelle de Lussan, has an excellent exponent in Miss Florence E. Florence.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. James Kiddie.—This week we have here Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Company, under the direction of Mr. James Millard, in The Midnight Mail. Mr. Geo. Harvard is an excellent Harry Steyne, and Mr. Fred G. Ivison reveals fine intelligence in his conception of the part of Billy Brewer. Mr. Austin Mortimer is sound in the part of Leonard Royle, and Mr. C. P. Wentworth is a sufficiently villainous Hassan Padisha. Miss Grace Lester is the charming Mary Steyne, and Miss Mildred Carr is quite at home in the character of Nancy Brewer. Miss Jenny Weston reveals herself as the possessor of talent by her able delineation of Mrs. Mildmay, and Miss Hilda Merrilees sustains her capital reputation by her work as Lady Phyllis Eustace. The staging of The Midnight Mail is on a most elaborate scale, and the railway engine introduced in Act 4 is a most substantial looking piece of machinery.

WIGAN. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick. — The musical comedy Sergeant Brue has been presented by Mr. E. Lockwood's company in the presence of large audiences. The title-rôle is played with rollicking humour by Mr. Arthur Reynolds, and Mr. E. Percy Rogers gives a vivacious representation of Michael Brue. The part of Mr. Crank, the magistrate, is capitally played by Mr. Henry Chichester, and Mr. Charles McLagan gives a refreshingly original interpretation of the character of Crookie Scrubbs. Miss Midge Clark is a stately Lady Bickenhall, and Miss Eva Weigh lends considerable charm to the part of Aurora.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Ryan and Hall, acrobats, eccentric comedians, and comic wrestlers, create much merriment, and Friscari, hat manipulator and juggler, gives a clever performance. Verno and Voyce in a vocal scena provide an admirable turn, and Leo Tell by voice and musical instruments imitates animal sounds exceedingly well. Other acceptable performances are given by Carney Brothers, vocal duettists; Jimson's pet dogs; Donna and Cliff, in song and dance; Burley and Burley, funny acrobats; Cliff Ryland, comedian; Fox and Melville, song illustrators; and Maxwell and Francis in a comedy act of singing, dancing, etc.

WINDSOR. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Eglington. — Mr. Howard Sturgess's company, in A Queen of Villainy, is here this week. Miss Edith Blande as Cora Granville submits a capital portraiture; Mr. Edward Heanley is admirable as Stephen Faucet; Mr. Stevenson as Kit gives a sympathetic rendering; the part of Dick Leinster is admirably played by Mr. Charles Stirling; and the acting of Mr. Arthur Beverley as Alec is earnest. Miss Shirley Dalton wins all hearts by her delightful playing as Rose Dalmayne. The comedy parts are in the excellent hands of Miss Jessie Crammonde and Mr. Chas. Rogers, whose acting created much laughter. Others worthy of mention are Miss Rose Clyde, Mr. E. Maskell, and Mr. Eric Carlton.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is producing Oliver Twist here this week. The part of Fagin is played in characteristic fashion by Mr. Stanley Drewitt; Mr. William H. Kemble, a powerful Bill Sikes, looks the part to perfection; Mr. Charlie Clark is good as the Artful Dodger; and Mr. R. C. Hunter ably fills the part of Charlie Bates. Miss Edith Anton Laing essays the part of Nancy, which she fills admirably; Miss Dorothy Marsden is a pleasing Oliver Twist; Miss Helen Clement does well as Rose Maylie; and the other parts are satisfactorily filled.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Mark Sheridan is the principal attraction here this week. He is a comedian of much merit, and is highly appreciated. Bernar and his marionettes are also very good. The programme includes in addition Selby and Myers, dancers; the Paolias; the English Roses, effective dancers; Gracie Bard, comedienne; Stirling and Cashen, variety artists; and Tyrola, Swiss girl vocalist.

WORCESTER.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Miss Alice Austin's company in The Cotton Spinners is proving a welcome successor to a round of musical comedy. As the cotton spinner's daughter Miss Austin has full scope for her versatility, and she makes the part a highly attractive one. Mr. John S. Haydon is a typical north countryman, and the parts of the impecunious nobleman and his son are well taken by Mr. E. F. Fysher and Mr. E. V. Esmond. Miss Bella Power as an amorous old maid and Mr. E. C. Edwards as an irascible Major are responsible for the humour of the piece; and Miss Enid Ross (Constance) and Mr. C. F. Wilton (Cunningham) are excellently suited.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company opened here on Monday with Sapho. As Jean Gaussin Mr. Ernest Abbott is excellent; Mr. W. H. Garbois deserves special mention as Henri Dechelette; Mr. C. Douglas leaves nothing to be desired as Flamant; Miss Ada Abbott is admirable as Fanny Legrand. The week's programme includes Trilby and A Wife's Triumph.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; General-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Are You a Mason? is capitally played by Mr. C. Macdona's company, and is a big attraction. Mr. H. Langdon-Bruce as Frank Perry acts in a happy, natural style; Mr. Allan Pollock as George Fisher plays in a free, racy style; and the eccentricities of Amos Bloodgood are efficiently accentuated by Mr. E. H. Paterson. Mr. Richard Purdon as John Halton and Mr. Percy Bell as Hamilton Travers have parts suited to their peculiar style of humour. Miss Mabel Younge is charming and interesting as Eva, and Miss Rita Ward and Miss Mabel Jowett, as Annie and Lu Lu respectively, give good accounts of themselves.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooks.—The Bros. Huxter are remarkable acrobats whose efforts never fail to please; Zanfretta and Napio are decidedly original musicians; Fielding and Hull have a clever musical sketch An Officer's Flirtation; and Jimmy Shields is an extraordinary dancer. Marguerite Ismay and her peerless Pics are well to the fore; Miss Bijou Russell is a clever sand dancer; and Miss Maggie Grimshaw does a clever turn.

THE monthly meeting of the Carpenters' Society was held on Sunday last at the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane. There was a fair attendance. Mr. J. Reed presided. Several applications for membership were granted. Additional representatives to the Sports Committee were appointed.

A WELL-ATTENDED meeting of theatrical employees was held in Leicester on Sunday last at the White Lion Hotel, Bank-street. It was decided to hold a general meeting of stage employees on a Sunday evening next month, at which Mr. W. Johnson, the general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, would be present.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE Bill to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act, introduced on behalf of the Government by the Home Secretary on Monday, is of great interest to both stage employees and theatrical managers. As was specially mentioned by the Home Secretary, the great distinction between the amending Bill and the present Act is that, in the Act all classes of workmen were excluded from its benefit except those specially included by name; in the amending Bill all classes of workmen will be included who are not excluded by name. It follows, therefore, that all sections of workmen connected with theatres and music halls will receive the benefits provided by the new Bill, even assuming it passes in its present form, although there is every indication that the Bill will be strengthened from the workman's point of view.

IT would be premature to discuss the provisions of the Bill until its second reading has been passed; but as at least one manager of an important West End theatre is under the impression that the general body of workmen in the employ of the management are not affected by the Bill, it is as well to say, at this juncture, that every one coming under the definition of a workman employed in any capacity in the theatre or music hall will come under the provisions of the new Act. It is a fact, although it may not be generally known to employees, that many managers insure themselves against claims for compensation under the present law arising from accidents to the members of their staff; but, as has been already pointed out by representatives of the insurance companies doing this kind of business, the new Bill, if passed, will necessitate insurance companies increasing their premiums.

A SHORT time ago an action was brought on behalf of a carpenter who met with an accident at the Drury-lane Theatre. It was contended by his legal advisers that the theatre was a factory within the meaning of the present law. This case was tried three times—the first decision was against the plaintiff, the second in his favour, and the third against him. The new Bill will sweep away many anomalies, and its inevitable result will be some form of national insurance as that now existing in France and Germany—a result which will be more just and more equitable than our present system is to either employers or workmen.

A CASE of some interest to heads of departments was heard at the Bloomsbury County Court on Wednesday, when Mr. Elworthy, a scenery contractor, sued Mr. R. Chantrell, a property master, for hire of van used to carry scenery from the Royalty Theatre to the Avenue Theatre in March, 1904. Mr. Chantrell's defence was that he was the agent for Miss Wylford, in whose service he was at the time, and to whom the scenery belonged. The plaintiff alleged that he did not know for whom the van had been hired, and it was customary to hold the head of department who gave the order for a van liable for the cost. This contention was denied by the defendant, and the Judge upheld him in his defence, the verdict being for the defendant, with 7s. 6d. costs. The plaintiff was informed that he had sued the agent instead of the principal. Any other verdict would have given such contractors a serious source of power over heads of departments, as, no doubt, any other verdict would have enabled contractors to threaten and proceed against heads of departments for debts incurred by them on the authority of their managers.

A CASE of interest to night men employed in theatres and music halls was heard at Bow-street on Tuesday. Two night men, who had been informed during the course of a performance that their services would not be required after that evening, claimed a week's wages in lieu of notice, the amount being 19s. for evening performances and matinées. This action raised a point which on several occasions has been submitted to the Courts. The night men alleged that as they are paid weekly they are entitled to a week's notice. On the other hand, it is the usual custom, and the invariable defence of the manager, that night men being paid a fixed sum for each performance are only entitled to a night's notice. In the case under review the men received notice during the performance that their services would no longer be required. The magistrate took the view that the men did not receive a night's notice, and he awarded 2s. 6d. for the show money and 2s. 6d. costs. The result of such cases, and the general practice, are against the assumption that night men are entitled to a week's notice, or engaged for the "run of the piece" as some contend.

A MEETING of the Committee of the Heads of Department Association was held on Tuesday. The further arrangements for the annual dinner were considered. According to the report there is every prospect that the attendance at the dinner will be thoroughly representative. The date, as has already been announced in this column, is Sunday evening, April 8. Those who desire to be present, and have not yet secured tickets, should do so, as the number is limited. Among those who will be present are:—Mr. H. B. Irving in the chair, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, secretary to the Actors' Association, Mr. C. I. Coltson, secretary to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, Mr. Henry Blackmore, secretary to the Theatrical Managers' Association, Mr. Horace Marriott, secretary to the Music Hall Artists' Benevolent Fund, Mr. Lionel Belmore, stage-manager to Mr H. B. Irving, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift.

AT this meeting several applications for members from London and the provinces were considered. A letter was read from Mr. Grame, general-manager to Mr. Edward Terry, relative to the Dramatic and Musical Fund, and the secretary instructed as to the reply to be sent. Two applications for assistance from the legal advisers to the Association were considered and granted.

AT the usual fortnightly meeting of the General Staff branch, N.A.T.E., held on Wednesday evening at 29, Wellington-street, Strand, a letter was read from Mr. Grame, general-manager to Mr. Edward Terry, relative to a complaint made by a Mr. H. Kelly, a late member of the Dramatic and Musical Fund, stating that this branch had refused to accept as members the late members of the Dramatic and Musical Fund, and also refused to assist them. The same charge was also brought by the writer of the complaint to Mr. Terry against other societies which received a share of the funds distributed by the Dramatic and Musical Fund. The secretary reported that he had furnished full particulars of the facts to Mr. Terry. Mr. Kelly attended the meeting, and alleged that he had written the statements in his letter on behalf of the late members of the fund, but admitted that he was not aware that so many members had, in fact, transferred to this branch, or that every working staff member of the Dramatic and Musical Fund had been invited to do so. He was also unable to name any member who had complained. The committee expressed their indignation with the action of Mr. Kelly, and the secretary was instructed to write to every member who had transferred to ask them if they had any grounds of complaint. One member of the late Dramatic and Musical Fund stated that Mr. Kelly had not been authorised to make any complaint on his behalf. It appears that some fourteen members of the late Dramatic and Musical Fund transferred to this branch, and, irrespective of age, were placed in full benefit from the date on which the branch received a share of the funds distributed; some had already received sick pay.

THE representatives of this branch were authorised to propose that the balance derived from the sports should be added to the benevolent fund under the control of the National Committee, and used to meet any claim for assistance from any theatrical employee, male or female, whose application for assistance was recommended by a theatrical manager or a responsible organisation connected with the profession.

IT is to be hoped that this proposal will commend itself to the Sports Committee and the other societies represented thereon, as the need for an open fund, wisely used, is very great. A large number of theatrical employees, attendants, dressers, supers, and others, who have no society to which they can belong, have no one to whom they can turn for help in misfortune. Some of these apply to the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, some to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, some to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and some—many, in fact—to the National Association of Theatrical Employées. The latter society is restricted to those employed in the various stage departments, and the others mentioned are limited in like manner.

AN open fund, under responsible control, available under the conditions indicated, is needed. Precautions should, of course, be taken, that it is not abused by those who can make provision if they wish; as there is no doubt that all the societies named are often asked to help persons who have not availed themselves of their opportunities to help themselves; and while the strict letter of the rules of such a fund could not, in charity, be applied to any one in real need, the moral should be pointed in cases of personal neglect.

IT has been decided that the Theatrical Sports take place on Whit Tuesday, June 5, on the Stamford Bridge Grounds, Fulham. The competitors will be restricted to those employed within a radius of a fixed number of miles from Charing Cross, probably ten miles. As the Music Hall Sports will not take place before July, if it be decided to give them this year, these sports will not clash. The committee will be glad to receive suggestions on any matter connected with the sports. A resolution has been passed that no member of the committee be admitted as a competitor at the sports.

ON Saturday last, after the show at the Hastings Hippodrome, a meeting of the staff and management took place, and Mr. Fred C. Ewing formally handed over his position as chairman and treasurer of the Staff Outing Fund to his successor in office, Mr. Albert Mathan, who cordially agreed to take it up so that the "outing" should not fall through.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 26,
the Musical Comedy,
by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Once more this most amusing of musical comedies pays a return visit to the King's, and again it meets with the success which it gained on the previous visit. The smartness of Mr. Hicks's libretto and the lively music of Mr. Ivan Caryll remain as attractive as ever, and the audiences thoroughly appreciate the good things of the comedy. The principal characters remain practically in the same hands as before, their retention showing much astuteness on the part of Mr. William Greet. Mr. William Stephens realises Jim Cheese, the dog-trainer, in most humorous fashion, and his rendering causes the utmost amusement. A clever and artistic Dick Wargrave is Mr. Percy Carr, who acts and sings very energetically; Mr. Percy E. Wright enacts the Hon. Crewe Boodle most pleasantly, and A. Bunker Bliss is briskly played by Mr. George E. Curzon. An interesting and satisfactory performance is that of the American attorney Downham by Mr. William Hindson, and Mr. J. C. Graves as Mr. Talk is funny. Dudley Cranbourne, George Bellamy, and Hugh Wallender are creditably undertaken by Mr. Fred Hill, Mr. Frank R. Lidington, and Mr. J. Hamilton; Mr. Fred W. Pattrick deserves a word of praise for his performance of Mr. Hazell, the host of the Fallowfield Arms. An altogether delightful Elphin Haye is Miss Aimée Gray, who has a pleasing voice, and acts naturally and with much vivacity. Miss Dot Carey displays decided ability as the coster girl Liza Shoddam, and the strong lady, Mrs. Shimmering Black, finds a splendidly physical representative in Miss Gladys Fontaine. Miss Florence Imeson is deservedly popular as Daisy Fallowfield, and Miss Helen Langton is a successful Miss Virginia Bliss. The Ladies Gussie, Gwendoline, and Muriel are fascinatingly rendered by Miss Mabel Melba, Miss Violet Vaughan, and Miss Elsie Reamer. A "Dance L'Entente Cordiale," introduced in the second act, is received with vociferous applause. The chorus is excellent, and the orchestra is ably directed by Mr. Evelyn Baker. The scenery and dresses are alike exceedingly tasteful.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 26, the Lyrical Comedy, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

Mr. F. W. Purcell is to be congratulated on the excellent programme he has arranged for this week; his numerous patrons turned up on Monday to welcome the first visit of Mr. F. Curzon's principal company in The White Chrysanthemum. The acting and singing throughout call for high praise, and there are several old favourites included in the cast, especially noticeable being Miss Ruth Lincoln, Miss Isabelle Dillon, and Mr. O. E. Lennon, who made such a hit in the recent pantomime. Fine work is done by the chorus, and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey, creditably interpret the musical portion of the programme. Mr. T. Reynolds is responsible for the stage-management, and right well does he perform his duties. For all the artists we have nothing but praise. Miss Ruth Lincoln gives a most exhilarating and charming impersonation of Sybil Cunningham, at once simple, delightful, and most natural. She captures all hearts as a vocalist, charming all with her exquisite rendering of the musical numbers. She is ably supported by Mr. F. Pope-Stamper, who makes an excellent Lieut. Reginald Armitage—a good, sound actor and vocalist, he soon becomes a favourite. Another firm favourite is Mr. Davy Burnaby, who causes roars of laughter in his diverting impersonation of Lieutenant Chippendale Belmont, "Chippy," a part suited to his quiet and unobtrusive humour. He scores well with his song "I wonder." The work devolving on Mr. O. E. Lennon is great, but in the part of Sing Chong, the Chinese cook, nothing comes amiss to him. He evokes tornadoes of applause for his quaint rendering of the songs allotted to him, and also for his capital dancing. He is ably supported by Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., in the amusing part of Private Perks. Miss Gabelle Dillon is a charming Cornelia, her sweet voice being greatly appreciated, while her dainty dancing meets with equal approval. Miss Maud Harvey ably sustains the part of Betty Kenyon, and scores with her song "A Hint." Mr. F. W. Ford capably sustains the part of Admiral Armitage, and succeeds in keeping his audience amused.

GREAT QUEEN-STREET THEATRE.

On Friday, March 23, the Play, in Four Acts, by Henrik Ibsen, entitled
"DIE STUTZEN DER GESELLSCHAFT."

Ibsen's scathing satire on the ruling commercial classes has been given before this season by the German company, but its reproduction was heartily welcomed on the 23rd inst. by a full house. The student of social pathology will find scattered throughout the scenes much that is amusing in a grim sort of way. There is swift action, vigorous dialogue, and mordant wit, and the general atmosphere is of a more breezy character than in many of the plays which have come from the writer of Ghosts. The representation of the play was excellent. Richard Starnburg, to whom was entrusted the portraiture of Consul Bernick, proved himself an actor of great capability. His delivery was admirable, never over-emphasised. Around the Consul there cluster several admirable hypocrites. Hilfsprediger Rohland, who keeps Bernick on his pinnacle of self-righteousness, was excellently portrayed by Ottomar Bloss, and Hilma Tönnesen, who goes about sniffing out other people's social maladies, and carrying with peevish pride the "banner of the ideal," was cleverly embodied by George Baselt. Else Gademann made a great impression as Fräulein Hessel, who eventually compels Bernick to unmask himself. Charlotte Kelly did what was possible with the meek Betty; and Fräulein Bernick, the Consul's sister, was made the most of by Ida Weiss. Hans Stock made a manly Johann Tönnesen; Grete Hahn was very pleasing as the boy Olaf, the Consul's only son; Willy Klein proved himself a worthy exponent of that small but exceedingly difficult part of Auler, the shipbuilder; Margarete Russ made an ideal Dina Dorf, her conception being natural and winning; Karl Berger was good as Krapp, Bernick's manager; and the remaining characters were suitably played by the other members of the Hans Andresen company.

GRAND THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 26,
"THE MONKEY'S PAW," &c.

Mr. Sounes has secured a strong attraction this week in Mr. John Lawson and company, who are appearing in a répertoire consisting of The Monkey's Paw, The King's Minister, Humanity, A Bride for a Living, and Mr. Todd of London. On Monday night the first three of these plays were given, Mr. Lawson thus having plenty of opportunity of displaying his versatility as a character-actor. Mr. Lawson was perhaps at his best as the Prime Minister, a part which seemed peculiarly suited to his style of acting; but, at the same time, his strong, sympathetic rendering of the old man White, in The Monkey's Paw, would take a good deal of beating; while his characterisation of the furniture-smashing Jew in Humanity has been known and admired for too many years to stand in need of comment. Some clever acting was submitted by Miss Cissie Lawson, who, while she had little to do as the Jew's wife, was responsible for a charming little sketch of the Prime Minister's daughter, and gave a feeling representation of Mrs. White, in the Monkey's Paw. In the last-named play Mr. G. Ommanney played in natural, easy style, as Herbert, and was also successful in a manly, straightforward rendering of Lord Arthur Lincoln in The King's Minister. Miss Ethel Paull showed herself possessed of considerable ability as the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozier; and Mr. Arthur Royston made a decided hit as Milano. Mr. E. S. Vincent successfully doubled the parts of the old soldier and John Cuthbert. Much appreciated variety turns were contributed by the Sisters Velasco, Mme. Paul, Miss Louie Belrose, the Brothers Tarrant, and Mr. Harry Harris.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 26, the Farcical Comedy, entitled
"THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBER."

The announcement of Mr. Huntley Wright's appearance here has had the happy result of attracting large audiences to see this favourite comedian in that most amusing comedy, The Mountain Climber. Mr. Huntley Wright, during his long stay at Daly's Theatre, accustomed us to always expect to find him in one type of character, and therefore it is the more welcome to see him in an entirely new rôle, which gives him adequate scope for his talents. This farcical comedy is of the lightest description and screamingly funny, and the various adventures which Mr. Montagu Sibsey meets with during his attempts to live up to the reputation of being a great Alpine climber must be seen to be appreciated. As Montagu Sibsey Mr. Huntley Wright is a host in himself. He throws himself energetically into the character, and works very hard, and keeps the merriment going strong throughout, and whether he is being photographed on the table in Alpine costume or climbing over the roof of a Swiss châlet he is intensely amusing. Mr. Huntley Wright is surrounded by an excellent company, notably by Miss Kate Mills, who is capital as Mrs. Sibsey, acting the part with rare humour. As Sibsey's stepdaughters, Alice and Betty, Miss Christine McGill and Miss Dora Barton acquit themselves admirably; Mr. W. R. Stavely is good as Samuel Midgham; while Charles Midgham is admirably played by Mr. Montague Elphinstone. Mr. Eric Maturin presents a neat sketch of Arthur Lydbrook; the two Swiss guides, Oscar and Sepp, have noteworthy representatives in Messrs. Algernon Newark and Scott Craven. Mr. J. S. Smith presents an extremely laughable sketch of the editor of a journal—a skit, of course, but very amusing. Mr. McCausland Stewart is good as Mr. Kelton; while Messrs. Rich and Paulton do excellent work as the Deputation. Lena, the Swiss maid, is delightfully played by Miss Ivy Hertzhog, who acts so well that one regrets she is only seen in one act; Mary, the Sibseys' maid, is smartly presented by Miss Amy Thomas. The comedy is preceded by a clever one-act play by Messrs. Lloyd Osbourne and Austin Strong, entitled The Little Father of the Wilderness, in which Mr. Huntley Wright appears as Père Marlotte, a Jesuit priest, and gives proof that he can depict tragedy as well as comedy. The good Father is played with great pathos and feeling by Mr. Wright. It is a really touching piece of acting. Both plays are extremely well mounted. The scene on the mountain heights is a delightful example of Mr. Bruce Smith's work. The company is being toured under the direction of Mr. Charles Frohman.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 26,
the Farce, in Three Acts, by R. Carton, entitled
"MR. HOPKINSON."

Laughter holding both it's sides reigns supreme at the Shakespeare Theatre this week, where an excellent company, under the direction of Mr. Frank Curzon, has been delighting large audiences with the adventures of the rich, but vulgar, Mr. Hopkinson—otherwise "Hoppy"—in his efforts to scale the heights of society. The witty dialogue and amusing incidents of the piece caused continuous merriment, and at the final fall of the curtain the audience testified their appreciation by prolonged applause. The acting all round reached the highest plane of excellence; but chief honours are undoubtedly due to Mr. Edward Rigby, who, in the title-rôle, scored a decided success, cleverly depicting the eccentricities of bearing, language, and the mannerisms of the common little parvenu. A clever character-study of the Earl of Addington was given by Mr. Cecil Burt, who contrives to extract the utmost humour out of his part, with the happiest results. Another good performance was that of Mr. Chas. Esdale, whose impersonation of the Duke of Braceborough was in every manner thoroughly satisfactory. Mr. Geo. Desmond, as the lively and agreeable Otho Dursingham, put in some excellent work. Lord Gawthorpe was in the safe hands of Mr. Edward Vaughan; and Mr. Harold Johnson did all that was possible with the part of Mr. Smethurst. A feature of the performance was the clever acting of Miss Blanka Stewart, who acquitted herself with success in the exacting rôle of the Duchess of Braceborough; Miss Helen Russell as Lady Tyra Egglesby won the favour of the house by a pleasing performance; and Miss Frances Davis as Eliza Dibbs caused much amusement in her scenes with "Hoppy." Amongst others giving good support may be mentioned Mr. Oliver Rogers as Parbury, Mr. J. G. Lowther (who is also responsible for the stage-management) as Blisses, and Mr. W. Holland as a footman. A farce in one act, by Austin Hurgon, entitled The Impossible Trio, precedes the above, but calls for little comment. The chief feature is a violin solo, excellently rendered by Miss Evelyn Tyser, and which gains a well-deserved encore. Mr. Ernest F. Bradley is the manager for Mr. Frank Curzon.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, March 26,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Fredk. Melville, entitled
"THE UGLIEST WOMAN ON EARTH."

Mr. F. Melville's company, in this thrilling drama, attracted a packed house here on Monday evening, notwithstanding the fact that this is a second visit. As claimed on the programme, this play is indeed one of great originality, and being full of incident and dramatic situations, it was followed with rapt attention throughout. In the trying character which gives the name to the play Miss Agnes Imlay showed exceptional ability. In spite of the thick veil which is worn throughout the piece, Miss Imlay's enunciation is perfect, and she is most distinctly heard. As the hero Jack Merriman, Mr. Claude King's bearing and appearance are distinctly in his favour, and he portrays the character with sincerity and earnestness. Mr. J. C. Aubrey handles with skill the unpleasant character of Hubert Gold. Mr. Richard Norton is sufficiently foreign in voice and gesture as Antonio Luchessi. A capital piece of character-acting is supplied by Mr. John Sargent as Raggles, a London hooligan, accent and by-play being admirable. Mr. Edwin Collins shows capability in the small part of Tom Redvers; and Mr. H. I. Barrett is impressive as Dr. Carr. The fun is ably supplied by Mr. James Chippendale as Tubby Herrick and Miss Mattie Everitt as Aggie Browne. Mr. Robert Maltby as Griffiths does credit to a good old theatre name. Messrs. Tom Sawyer, F. Leighton, H. Sandhurst, John Halder, and George Potter ably assist in the comical scene, House Painting; and other male characters are well rendered by Messrs. Arnold Winters, J. Lawrence, and Cecil Pope. Miss Nancy Browne as Morita, the revengeful Italian girl, who adopts male attire, is intensely melodramatic, and scores heavily. As the jilted Rose Courtenay, Miss Rosemary Rees, aided by her fine presence, gives a natural rendering of the part.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, March 26,
the Musical Comedy,
by Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders, entitled
"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

Mr. George Musgrove's capital company is paying a return visit to the Coronet Theatre this week, and a very bright and attractive show it is, with plenty of merriment and melody and a galaxy of beauty. The scenery and dresses are pretty and lavish in the extreme, and all in excellent taste as regards fanciful blending of colour. Miss Ruby Verdi makes a very charming and attractive Nellie Wagner, and sings her songs, "A Cup of Tea," &c., delightfully, as well as dancing prettily. Miss Mildred Baker makes a handsome and rich-voiced Vassar Girl, and her duet with Mr. G. Villiers Arnold as Lieut. John Wagner, "True Blue," is one of the prettiest numbers in the piece. Mr. Arnold also acts and sings well throughout. Miss Nellie Emerald is a very smart and chic French maid, and ought to be in great demand for soubrette parts; her songs are rendered with point and meaning, and her dancing is dainty in the extreme. Mr. Stuart Alexander is a fine dashing Carl Otto, the real Prince of Pilsen, and Miss Nelly Cozens is a lively and vivacious widow, Mrs. Madison Crocker, of New York. Mr. Edwin Adeler has grown into the skin of the part of Hans Wagner, the Cincinatti brewer, ever since the production of the piece at the Shaftesbury, and his low-comedy is exceedingly funny, though his song, "It was ze Dutch," might be brought more up to date. Mr. Alfred Selby is an agile and animated concierge, François, and Mr. Lawrence Wensley is mildly amusing as the invertebrate Earl of Shrimpton. Miss Meg Hamilton (late pantomime favourite here) enacts the part of Jimmie, a bell-boy, in lively fashion. A bevy of beauty pose in various costumes as Gibson Girls, bathers, &c., and the show goes with great aplomb. Mr. W. J. Douglas is acting-manager, and Mr. Chas. A. Wenham is the stage-manager, whose duties are no sinecure. Mr. J. A. Robertson wields the bâton.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 26, the Novelty Drama, by Charles Darrell and George Testo Sante, entitled
"THE LIFE OF A SHOWMAN."

The Life of a Showman, by Charles Darrell and George Testo Sante, opened here on Monday a week's engagement, under the favourable auspices of a well-filled house, which cordially welcomed the various incidental turns of a variety nature which are introduced in the second act, particularly noticeable being the feat of endurance with two horses by Mr. George Testo Sante, which was received with great applause. Mr. Logan Darra as Hendrick Marais elicited unmistakable proof of the efficiency with which he represented that villain; Mr. Edward Warden gave an acceptable delineation of the kind-hearted clergyman, Rev. Cyril Arliss; Mr. Charles Osborne acquitted himself admirably as Sir Noel Hartland, afterwards known as Stickers; Mr. Fred Vaughan was thoroughly successful as Ned Chuckers; and Master Harry Warden was well suited as Dickie. Mr. George Testo Sante enacted Brien Leader with unflagging vigour; Mr. Frank Sante as Tommy Allthere, and Mr. Ernest Turner as Ben Tic Tac, provided some clever humour; Mr. J. G. Sante as Laurie Grey was much applauded for his artistic violin solo; and Mr. Arnold Price left nothing to be desired as Andy Chivers. Mr. Gus Porter was capable as John Orderly, and Mr. Charles Sam made an adequate Professor Vole. Miss Amy McNeill played with graphic power, and supplied a forcible sketch of Agatha Winter; and praise is due to Miss May Neilson for her satisfactory impersonation of the fat girl, Angelina Mutton. A charming Lena Hartland was found in Miss Enid Trench, who acted with considerable expression; and Miss May Warden was excellent as Lynette Leader. Good work was put in by Mr. Will Henderson as Mangey Carrots and Mr. R. Lever as Kid Harwood. The piece was well mounted and staged, and the many sensational effects were managed with skill. Mr. Edward Warden is stage-manager; and Mr. Fred Vaughan business-manager for Mr. G. T. Sante.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, March 26,
the Musical Comedy, by Seymour Hicks and Cosmo Hamilton, entitled
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Mr. Charles Frohman's company is here in The Catch of the Season. It is the first visit of this bright and merry piece to Poplar, and its reception is in every respect satisfactory. Miss Maie Ash represents Angela with much vocal skill and personal charm, and is a great favourite. She is heard to especial advantage in the "Molly" song and in the familiar "Teasing." Another capital performance is that of Miss Belle Napier, who, as Lady Caterham, possesses a charm which is irresistible. Miss Ida Mann acts with skill and refinement in the part of Lady Crystal; whilst the characters of Sophie and Honoria have pleasing exponents in Miss Alice Lethbridge and Miss Hettie Muret. Miss Hilda Stewart is well suited as the Duchess of St. Jermyns. Abundant fun is supplied by Mr. Frank Lincoln as the Duke of St. Jermyns; Mr. Lincoln plays with refreshing ease throughout, and keeps the house in the best of humours; Mr. E. H. Kelly is acceptable as the stuttering Lord Dundreary; and Mr. Augustus Symonds hits off the many mannerisms of Higham Montague. Mr. Powis Pinder, in the minor part of Lord Yatton, appears to advantage; whilst Mr. Gibson is well played by Mr. Alfred Lloyd. Master Grata is a satisfactory Bucket. The Ten Gibson Girls have fascinating models in the Misses F. Brandon, G. Fowles, F. Hunter, M. Linden, E. Nash, S. D'Esterre, G. St. Clair, N. Moore, M. Golden, and E. Brownlow. The scenery is in excellent taste.

GRAND THEATRE, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 26,
the Farce, in Three Acts, by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

This week farce fills the bill at Fulham. The excellent company organised by Mr. Cyril Maude is playing in the amusing play adapted from Mr. Jacob's book. The rôle of that astonishing mariner, Captain Barley, is taken by Mr. Harry Ashford, who is a worthy exponent of the amorous captain. It is an admirable study of an eccentric character, and brimful of excellent humour. Mr. Walter Pemberton put plenty of fire into his rendering of the irascible Major Smedley; and Mr. J. Wheatman is equally amusing as Dibbs the gardener, but in a more deliberate manner, as befits a son of the soil. Praise must likewise be given to Mr. Charles Goold as Tom Codd, the mate. His startling contortions when he is feigning violent illness are wonderful to behold, and causes fits of laughter. As the boy Augustus, another amorous mariner, Mr. Frank Harvey is very good, playing the part most effectively, without in the least overdoing it. Mr. Percival Knight as Lieut. Boyne, and Mr. Percy Marmont as Herbert Manners displays the requisite air of youthful dash and gaiety, and make an excellent pair of lovers. Mr. Charles Caffrey is amusing as George Parker, the landlord; whilst the sailormen who appear in the Inn scene fitted well into their places with some effective and natural acting. Miss May Fairclough plays Ethel Smedley in a delightfully light-hearted manner; and Miss Mary Pemberton is really charming as Lucy Dallas. Miss Ethel Stalman does well as Mrs. Smedley. As the landlady, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite is a decided success, and contributes a careful and humorous study of that important personage; while the Mrs. Baldwin of Miss Mary Griffiths is another finished performance. The scenery provided, it should be added, is of the best, especially the set for the third act. Beauty and the Barge is preceded by the well-known sketch by Arthur Morrison and Herbert Sargent, That Brute Simmons. This is a lever de rideau of more than average excellence, and has proved very successful. The parts of the lost husband, Bob Ford, and of the second husband, Simmons, are taken by Messrs. Fred Lake and J. Wheatman, and that of the much-married Mrs. Simmons by Miss Harriet Trench. All played excellently together, and in their capable hands the amusing little play went splendidly, and deserved the applause it obtained.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, March 26, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by W. Gayer Mackay and Robert Ord, entitled

A pleasant change is afforded this week at the Alexandra by the visit of Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Dr. Wake's Patient, a play that found considerable favour when produced at the Adelphi last year. Its simple, human story has proved much to the liking of Stoke Newington playgoers during the present week, and they have shown their appreciation of both play and players in no half-hearted fashion. As Dr. Wake, Mr. Douglas Vigors carries the burden of the production upon his shoulders, and his manly, earnest, and natural portrayal of the love-sick doctor is largely responsible for the success which is achieved. As Duff Wynterden Mr. Herbert Ross provides considerable amusement, and skilfully manipulates the catch-word of the part. Excellent character-sketches of the Earl of St. Olbyn and the Bishop of Selby come from Messrs. Arthur Willoughby and Alfred Phillips respectively; and Mr. Alfred Wellesley as Andrew Wake scores heavily, his treatment of the scene towards the end of the third act earning him well-deserved applause. Miss Olive Terry is a pretty and sympathetic Lady Gerania. Miss Ina Pelly is a sufficiently forbidding Countess St. Olbyn, and Miss Amy Fanchette is a homely and lovable Mrs. Wake. As Harriet Bronson Miss Beatrice Webb does all that is possible, and the remaining parts are adequately filled. The piece is prettily mounted, a particularly charming set being provided for the third act.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 26, Wallace's Opera, entitled "MARITANA."

A most successful engagement has been effected this week, and lovers of music have crowded the theatre to excess to welcome the visit of J. W. Turner's company in a repertoire of operas. The opening performance was Maritana. Miss Kitty Brownlees in the title-rôle was excellent, and her splendid voice was heard to advantage in several numbers, especially in "Scenes that are brightest," which was received with abundant applause; Lazarillo was successfully undertaken by Miss Jessie Dennis, who captivated her audience by her beautiful rendering of "The mansions of the blest," which secured a well-deserved encore; the small part of the Marchioness was well played by Miss Maud Esdaile, who, with the assistance of Mr. R. Cummings in a humorous impersonation of the Marquis de Montefiore, created roars of laughter. A considerable amount of the success of the opera is due to Mr. Turner for his artistic creation of Don Cæsar de Bazan. His splendid tenor voice was advantageously used in his singing of the popular "Let me like a soldier fall," and the audience would not allow him to retire without an encore. Another good performance was that of Don Jose, creditably undertaken by Mr. John Ridding, who rendered the tuneful "In happy moments" with considerable feeling. Minor characters were admirably represented by Mr. Sidney Clifford, Mr. Frank Clark, and Mr. G. Ridding; the choruses were well rendered by a powerful company, greatly assisted by a largely augmented orchestra under the capable baton of Mr. T. Lawton.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 26,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Birket Winning, entitled
"SAPHO."

The Grand this week is occupied by the New Sapho Syndicate, Ltd., which is presenting the above play. Miss Annie Bell, who plays the title-rôle, gives a good performance, particularly so in the third act; Mr. Albert Sember as Gaussin acts with effect, his performance being very good in the later portions of the drama. Mr. Charles W. Daly as Legrand submits one of the best impersonations of the evening; Mr. Francis Serle as Cesaire is amusing; Mr. H. Langford as Flamant is worthy of commendation; and Mr. Pringle Roberts as Caoudal deserves a word for a satisfactory performance. Mr. Lawrence Kingsley as Dechélette is effective. A performance of signal merit is given by little Miss Doris E. Graham as the child. This young lady displays exceptional cleverness. Miss Florence Graham as Machaume is satisfactory.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, the Comedy, in Three Acts,
by H. J. Byron, entitled
"OUR BOYS."

There were good houses on the first three evenings and at a matinée this week at the County Theatre, Kingston, to witness performances of this old and still favourite play, and the manner of its reception left no room for doubt that it has not yet lost its charm for Kingston playgoers. The company, a thoroughly capable one, is captained by Mr. Russell Rosse. Mr. Thomas Thorne plays the part of Perkin Middlewick with his accustomed ability, and that of Sir Geoffrey Champneys is ably filled by Mr. Norman Clark. Mr. Keith Fraser and Mr. J. A. Bentham prove themselves capable exponents of the parts of the "boy"; Miss Ethel Vernie is an engaging Violet Melrose; and a very charming impersonation of Mary Melrose is given by Miss Eva Lonsdale, who acts in a delightfully natural manner. Others deserving of favourable notice are Miss Bessie Harrison as Clarissa Champneys and Miss Edith Hesketh as Belinda. The comedy was preceded each evening by the comedietta A Silent Woman, in which the parts were filled by Miss Ethel Verne, Mr. Keith Fraser, and Mr. A. J. Harding. On Thursday was presented She Stoops to Conquer, Mrs. Peter Davey, the wife of the enterprising manager of the Royal County, appearing in the part of Kate Hardcastle.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, March 26,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE ORCHID."

The above popular musical comedy from the Gaiety is here this week, attracting good audiences on its first visit to Peckham. The company is under the direction of Mr. George Dance, and renders an excellent account of itself. No small part of the success achieved is due to the smoothness with which the whole performance passes off under the able stage-management of Mr. Buchanan Wake. There is a most efficient chorus, and an augmented orchestra under the able direction of Mr. Knight Pearce. Miss Chrissie Ralland is very successful as Lady Violet Anstruther, and renders her "Little Mary" song with much archness. Miss Mamie Stuart looks very charming as Josephine Zaccary, and gives her vocal numbers in a very tuneful manner; Miss Florence Vie is a comely Caroline Vokins, playing with much genuine humour, her topical song, "In my time," being admirably rendered. Mr. Alfred Bennett as the Honourable Guy Scrymgeour achieves a great success, especially in his duet, "The Unemployed," in which he takes part with the little gardener Meakin, a part played with infinite humour and point by Mr. Bertie Wright. Mr. William Benson supplies an excellent character sketch of the fiery Frenchman, Count Raoul de Cassignat, whose two friends are well represented by Mr. Cecil Frere and Mr. Buchanan Wake. Miss Ruby Carman scores well as Thisbe; and Miss Ida Chichester is a stately Countess Anstruther. Miss Elsa D'Usey makes a capital foreign adventuress; Mr. Harry T. Butler sings well and dances admirably as Zaccary; Mr. C. Stone plays neatly as Dr. Ronald Faussett; and Mr. F. Attree as the Registrar and Mr. Jack F. Fairley as Aubrey Chesterton both contribute to the general excellence of the performance. The scenery and effects are admirable.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 26,
the Historical Play, by W. G. Wills, entitled
"A ROYAL DIVORCE."

The historical play, A Royal Divorce, is meeting with a hearty reception this week at the Dalston Theatre. Mr. Frank Lister gives an effective rendering of the part of Napoleon, and Miss Edith Cole still sustains the trying character of Josephine, imparting all due emotional feeling to the representation. Miss Elizabeth Watson is Marie Louise, Napoleon's second wife, and the scenes between her and the former Empress are rendered as effective as ever. Miss Helena Meadows presents a weird sketch as Mother Lomas; and other female characters are represented by the Misses Clara Earle, Irma Foldi, Violet Fernival, Loyale Frere, and Edith Wilsden. Master Herbert Hollom impersonates the Little King of Rome; Talleyrand finds a suitable exponent in Mr. F. Joynsen-Powell; Mr. George W. Cockburn is the Marquis de Beaumont; and Mr. George Howard and Mr. St. George Frere embody General Augereau and Marshal Murat respectively. Mr. Frederick Powell ably enacts Dr. Corvisart, the Emperor's physician; Grimaud, the innkeeper at Genappe, who is one of the very few characters in the piece presenting even a touch of humour, is well played by Mr. T. P. Haynes. Mr. Percy H. Vernon imparts the necessary amount of dignity to the character of Lord Keith, the British admiral; Mr. Edward Langford is Brigadier Antoine, and Mr. Lorton Orme Brigadier Pierre; while Mr. Edwin Sykes as Bob Royal and Mr. C. Watt as a servant complete an excellent cast. Mr. W. W. Kelly is manager of the company representing the piece, and the acting manager is Mr. Walner Gregory.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 26,
the Drama by J. A. Campbell, entitled
"THE LITTLE BREADWINNER."

Mr. J. A. Campbell's new drama The Little Breadwinner is here this week, winning golden opinions from the good folks of Rotherhithe. The play is almost devoid of the usual sensational elements, but it possesses great interest, and is full of homely pathos, not unrelieved by some excellent comedy. The title-rôle is admirably played by little Maud Harris, who makes of Meg, "the little bread winner," a most winsome creation. The young actress displays emotional power and comedy gifts, and her singing of "Daddy" is full of charms. Mr. Ashley Page fully realises the part of the unfortunate Richard Lawrence, and gains the sympathy of the audience from the outset. Mr. C. A. Chandler gives a fine character study of the good-hearted Charles Prior—the dawning of the man's better nature is admirably shown. Miss Marion Denvil presents a touching picture of the young wife, Margaret Lawrence; and Mr. Bensley Evans gives us a study of cold-blooded villainy and hypocrisy which is very effective. Mr. Tom Taylor is an excellent Lord William Dorrington, and secures the sympathy of the house for a somewhat unsympathetic character. Miss Maggie Lindsay is amusing and self-assertive as the worthy Bridget; Miss Georgie Delara well realises the part of the betrayed Kate Cherry; and Miss Marie Kildare is satisfactory as Ruth Cherry. Little Albert is an amusingly precocious Bobby Trott, and Mr. S. Major Jones a manly Dr. Chadwick. The piece is well mounted, and the scene of the fourth act, the garden of a cottage near Dorrington Hall, is decidedly pretty.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 26,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

The ever-popular and extremely tuneful musical comedy The Geisha is again paying a visit to the Standard this week. So much has already been said of the excellence of Mr. Mouillot's company that it is scarcely necessary to state that the production is on a high plane of excellence. Miss Bessie Allayne, a picturesque O Mimosa San, sings the music allotted to her with great taste and skill; Miss Violet Kenyon ably enacts the part of O. Juliette Diamante; as Molly Seymour Miss Florrie Saunders is pretty and fascinating, her impersonation being marked throughout by much charm and grace; Miss Aubrey Ashton cleverly portrays Lady Constance Wynn; Miss Blanche Browne capitally sustains the rôle of Tom Stanley, a midshipman; the Reginald Fairfax of Mr. Cyril Thompson is a highly satisfactory piece of work, his methods being thoroughly artistic, and his singing particularly effective; Mr. Edgar Ward does all that is possible with the part of Captain Katana; and Mr. G. D. Phillips is well placed as Takemine. Mr. Lionel Braham plays with the necessary dignity as the Marquis Imari, and contributes a mirthful delineation. Mr. Edward Carlton deserves great praise for his exceedingly humorous portrayal of Wun Hi. The Greek Slave is announced for Friday evening.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 26,
the Drama, in Five Acts, by George R. Sims, entitled
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

There is pleasing freshness in this ever-green drama of Mr. Sims, and its grip on the audience is always instantaneous. As Harold Armytage Mr. J. Edward Pearce is full of resource and practical ability; Mr. Riddell Robinson enacts Clifford Armytage with a fulness of detail that accentuates the part immensely; and Mr. G. Saunders makes a hit as Trotters. The irrepressible Jarvis Family find capable exponents in Mr. W. E. Passmore as Joe, Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis, and Miss Gladys Murray as Shakespeare. Mr. Herbert Morgan is a stately Squire Armytage; Mr. Reginald Holmes is well to the fore as Detective Cutts; Mr. H. Pettitt hits the mark as Percy de Vere; Mr. George Wallace is decidedly clever as Philosopher Jack; and Mr. Herbert Hollister gives a convincing and forcible rendering of Seth Preene. Little Ida Murray cuts a woe-begone, pathetic figure as Joey; Miss Constance Davey is adequate in the part of Hetty Preene; and Miss Jeanie Burgoyne receives plenty of applause and encouragement for her artistic handling of the long-suffering Bess. The piece is well staged and mounted, and received in a most gratifying manner by Mr. Bailey's staunch adherents.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DIE VIER GROBIANE,"

Opera, in Three Acts, by Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari, Produced at the Theatre des Westens, March 21.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, March 29.—Herr Wolf-Ferrari's new opera has been looked forward to with much eagerness ever since the enormous success of Die Neugierigen Frauen. He has been termed the Mozart of the present day, and, although this is saying too much, Wolf-Ferrari certainly has no rival in the composition of light and graceful comic opera, or musical comedy—as he prefers to call his work. The composer—who lives in Italy—has drawn his book from Goldoni and Pizzolato's I Quattro Rusteghi, the German translation being by Hermann Teibler. The reception accorded to the new work was an exceedingly cordial one (as was also the case at the Court Theatre, Munich, last week); the composer was called before the curtain at the close of each act and heartily applauded. Whether or not it will prove as successful as Die Neugierigen Frauen the future, of course, must decide. The plot is very simple. The action passes in Venice in the early part of last century. Again the conflict between several wedded couples is humorously depicted, the fair sex coming off once more victorious. The four "Grobiane" (churls) are Cancian, Simon, Maurizio, and Lunardo, who tyrannise over their wives, but in the end are forced—so to speak—to kiss their own rod. The antiquary Lunardo has entered into a compact with his friend Maurizio, a merchant, that their children shall wed each other, and not only that, but the young couple shall not see each other before the wedding. This is a state of things that Filipeto Maurizio and Lucieta Lunardo very naturally object to. Filipeto seeks the aid of the married ladies, whose sympathies are on his side, and—disguised as a girl—he contrives to make Lucieta's acquaintance. Had he not been satisfied with her, the young man had made up his mind to run away, but—as may be imagined—the two lose their hearts to each other at first sight. The fathers are horrified at the immodesty of the children, who kiss without asking permission, but all comes to the desired happy termination. Round this scanty plot Wolf-Ferrari has written charmingly melodious music, refined and graceful, if not always original. Chorus there is none, and the soloists acquitted themselves admirably, the renderings of Fräulein Doninger, Fräulein Grünwald, and Herren Hansen, Barck, and Stammer being especially good. Kapellmeister Saenger conducted with judicious skill, and Herr Prasch mounted the opera himself in his customary tasteful manner, the scenery being new for the occasion.

THE Russian company (Moscow Artistic Theatre) left us on Monday for Dresden, and left us sorrowing. It was among the most successful events in our theatrical annals, and the three weeks' season was all too short. The performance of Ibsen's Enemy of the People last week was one of the best-attended and perhaps the most appreciated of all. It was magnificently acted, the Dr. Stockmann of M. Stanislawski being a faultless rendering. The audience received the piece with acclamation, cries of "Stanislawski!" reverberating through the house. The farewell performance took place on Saturday, Tolstoi's Czar Feodor Ivanovitch having been chosen to conclude, as well as commence, the season. There was not a vacant seat in the theatre, the enthusiasm increased from act to act, and as the curtain rose, after the play was over, for the artists to come forward, it rained flowers from all parts of the house. Herr Bonn, the manager of the Berliner, made a speech of grateful acknowledgment to his "dear guests and friends," presenting to the managers of the Russian company—MM. Stanislawski and Dantshenko—a wreath of silver-gilt laurel and one in general for the company, adding that were he a rich man he would present each several artist with a gold wreath. Another handsome floral tribute was presented in the name of the Royal Schauspielhaus company. Altogether, the Moscow guests have gained a series of triumphs all along the line, and richly-merited triumphs too. A crowd of Russian students, as well as some of the members of the Embassy, assembled at the railway station on Monday to speed the parting guests, who had to submit—Russian fashion—to much indiscriminate kissing.

THE Danish tenor at the Royal Opera, Herr Herold, is continuing his triumphs. On Friday he sang the parts of Turiddo in Cavalleria Rusticana and Canio in Die Bajacci, and it would be difficult to say which rôle suited him better or which was heard with greater pleasure by the large audience. Unfortunately, the star was—for the most part—very inadequately supported. Herr Herold achieved a great success, too, in the part of Don José, which he sang the evening before. It would be a matter for gratification were this excellent artist permanently engaged at our Opera House.

AT the New Royal Opera (Krolls) the Schliersee peasant company will commence a season on April 1. These Tyrolian peasants are all born actors, and many town-made artists could learn from them with great advantage. They are great favourites with their Imperial Majesties, and have several times had the honour of playing at the Palace. A number of novelties are this time in the repertory, in addition to the ever-popular dialect Volks-plays. A one-act piece by Ludwig Thoma, entitled Die Medaille, and the comedies Die Chinakrieger and In der Sommerfrischen are announced.

THE Freie Volksbühne of Charlottenburg had an unpleasant experience on Friday evening. The play to be produced was Leopold Kampf's drama Am Vorabend, tickets had gone off capitally, and the Volkshaus was well filled with an expectant audience. On the curtain being rung up, the manager appeared with a long face, and announced that the piece could not be given. It had not been laid before the Censorship, and was, in consequence, prohibited at the last moment. The audience dispersed with openly-expressed indignation at being "sold."

FRAULEIN IRENE SANDEN gave a matinée performance at the Theatre des Westens last Sunday. The young lady has followed, with much success, in the footprints of Miss Isadora Duncan, and dances to Chopin and other classical composers. Her programme was an interesting one, including Terpsichorean illustrations of Mendelssohn's "Songs without Words" and Chopin's "Dead March," while a minuet by Baccherini was particularly appreciated. Herr de Zadora accompanied on the piano with customary skill, and Miss Wickham contributed several songs. Fräulein Sanden is going on a tour through the United States almost immediately.

GERHART HAUPTMANN'S latest play Und Pippa Tänzt, which is still being given at the Lessing several times in the week, has been done recently with eminent success by Herr Bock's German company at St. Petersburg. Preparations are also being made for its production in Italy in the language of that country.

Material which has been used from time to time in dramas of the "powerful" type is present in By Whose Hand? introduced after the old familiar style, and with the always expected result. A little change from the ordinary was effected by the introduction of bloodhounds engaged in the work of tracking a murderer. The drama was fortunate in having several capable artists among the leaders of the company.

The curtain rises on an apartment in Harefield House, the residence of a millionaire named Gordon Rivers, among whose guests is Dr. Newton Craigh, a nerve specialist. In the course of a quarrel between them the medical man stabs Rivers to death, and when the corpse is found by Ned Saunders, Craigh accuses him of the crime. Dora Harleigh, however, has strong suspicions as to the actual murderer, and on repairing to the surgery of Dr. Craigh and stating her opinion, is chloroformed, and subjected to the effects of the "electrical chair," which is capable of destroying a person's recollection. The doctor also places a blood-stained handkerchief in the bosom of Dora's dress, which article leads to her conviction for the death of Rivers; but while in prison her memory returns, and she is enabled to afford sufficient proof of her innocence to obtain her pardon. Ilkey Grugg, a burglar, who witnessed the murder while hidden at Harefield House, also comes forward with the intention of blackmailing Dr. Craigh, but he likewise suffers the penalty of the "chair." A couple of bloodhounds are used by Harry Kennedy, the lover of Dora, in order to trace the murderer, but beyond being twice led across the stage they were practically "out of the picture." Eventually circumstances lead to the detection of the nerve specialist as the criminal, and everybody else is happy. The play suffers from a lack of comedy, and what little attempt is made to supply this necessary feature is somewhat crude.

As before remarked, the company presenting the drama comprised several capable artists, who certainly got everything possible out of the dialogue. Mr. Annesley Hely, as the villainous medical practitioner, played with a dramatic force which entitled him to every praise; there were a coolness and ease in his demeanour when he several times found himself in a tight corner which completely warded off suspicion; while his general bearing was dignified and in keeping with the character. A clever actress is Miss Ada M. Ryder. As the falsely-accused woman, Dora, she held a most difficult part, but handled it with remarkable discretion and care. At the periods when her returning memory supplied evidence against the doctor, and the baying of the hounds fell in imagination on her ear, Miss Ryder displayed a high degree of histrionic ability, her work making a good impression upon her audience. Another excellent player was Mr. John B. Shinton. He certainly had little opportunity to do much with the rôle of Harry Kennedy, the lover, but made the most of it; his manly bearing and capital delivery rendering him a striking figure in the story. Mr. Murray Yorke was worthy of a more important part than that of Ned Saunders. His efforts, however, afforded the utmost satisfaction. As the blackmailing burglar, Grugg, Mr. Will Percy is deserving of much praise, for the character could scarcely be in better hands. His demands for hush money were delivered with due effect, and his after work, when he lost his memory, raised several hearty laughs. Some amusement was also provided by Mr. Edwin Coates as the young honourable afflicted with "nerves"; and Mr. Archie Gear sustained the short part of the millionaire with credit. Miss Ada Arnott made an admirable Mrs. Digweed, her idea of a quarrelsome, bothering old woman being true to life. Most of the comedy came from this accomplished artist, and was much appreciated. Mrs. Jones, a noisy neighbour, though only a small part, found in Miss Maude Richards a worthy exponent; Miss Ida Thompson did excellently as the skylarking "buttons," Tricky Billy; and Miss Tina Frank played neatly as Agnes Digweed. The rest of the characters in the cast had little to do, but each artist worked hard to make the play a success.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, March 26, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled

"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Mr. Douglas Bruce presents this popular drama, which is adequately interpreted by his excellent company. Mr. Henry Herne makes a considerable success by his clever and consistent rendering of the character of the Rev. Robert Everton. Mr. Wingold Lawrence is a manly and pleasant representative of Jack England; Mr. Frank Adair is a polished and incisive Captain Geoffrey Caversham; Mr. Albert H. Clarke is good as James Sutton; Mr. C. Hammond Asquin is an amusing Dick Punch; and Mr. John Wilson as George Purvis, Mr. Fred Withers as the Detective, Mr. Jack Clarke as the Policeman, Mr. John Dixon as Red Cabbage, and Master Willie all do their best with their respective parts. Miss Marie McAulay must be congratulated on a skilful and convincing portrait of Marion Franklyn; Miss Daisy Maynard is an attractive Isabella Jones; Miss Midge Maynard is bright and pleasing as Lucy Vere; Miss Ethel Bracewell is a charming Rose Seymour; and Miss Ada Marius as Molly Vernon, the "girl who lost her character," plays cleverly and sympathetically. The remaining parts are in good hands. A special matinée of the old morality play, Everyman, by the Elizabethan Society was billed for Friday.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—While thanking you for the paragraph in last week's Era devoted to my humble self, I must ask you to allow me to correct the statement that I am the possessor of a "battlemented mansion in Cheshire." The only castle I own is a "château en Espagne!"—Yours faithfully, EDWIN ADELER.—Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill, W., March 26, 1906.

I AM glad to state that Herr Josef Rainz is rapidly recovering from his severe illness, which took a turn for the better last week. The famous actor will not, of course, be able to terminate his season at Munich, but will return to Vienna as soon as he is able to travel.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your notice of St. Helens last week your correspondent fails to mention among the company one who was very much in evidence, namely, Yours faithfully, CLIFF RYLAND.—Hippodrome, Wigan, March 25.

THE CARLTON, GREENWICH.

On Monday, March 26, for the First Time in London, the Domestic Drama, in a Prologue and Four Acts, by H. F. Housden, entitled

"A WOMAN'S PAST."

David Heath ..... MR. STANLEY CARLTON
Frank Dellannoy .... MR. CHARLES V. SANDFORD
Clement Harper .... MR. A. HAMILTON WARDEN
Uriah Craven ..... MR. OSWALD CRAY
Bloater ..... MR. T. EDWARD EVANS
Scrubby ..... MR. FRANK HAYLING
Spriggings ..... MR. WILSON MUNROE
Bob ..... MR. CECIL DAINTON
Jack Crawford ..... MR. ERNEST VICTOR
Mrs. Brown ..... MISS DORIS YORKE
Kate ..... MISS M. RIVINGTON
Dorothy Heath ..... MISS MAY DALLAS
Clara Darrel ..... MISS OLIVE ADAIR
Bessie ..... MISS MAISIE HANBURY

A problem play is not often presented in a melodrama, but theatre-goers at Greenwich are this week confronted with one of the highest importance. Its solution is one in complete accordance with the dictates of humanity and charity rather than with those of convention, and, as a consequence, the piece meets with full acceptance. Though admittedly designed as a "play to reach the heart," there is no lack of humour, and the cheers which greeted the piece on its first appearance in the metropolis on Monday were liberally interspersed by laughter. The story of the drama, which was originally produced at the Metropole Theatre, Devonport, on Jan. 19, 1905, has the merit of clearness, and no doubt can be possible as to the virtue and integrity of Bessie Heath, despite her past career. Her early life had been blighted by Uriah Craven, a scoundrel who lured her to South Africa, and, under promise of marriage, induced her for three years to pass as his wife. Chiefly on the evidence of Bessie and Frank Delannoy, whom he had robbed, Craven is consigned to prison, but at the end of his term turns up in London at the house of David Heath, whom Bessie, burying the memory of her shame, has married. Uriah, thwarted in his efforts to obtain blackmail, heartlessly rakes up Bessie's past, and David bids her leave him for ever. Bessie, clasping her baby in her arms, leaves her husband's house, and takes up her abode in a wretched hovel amid the "slums," where she ekes out a bare existence with her needle. Her child is ill with fever, and she takes her last shilling in the hope of getting medical advice, leaving the boy unguarded. Uriah Craven has allied himself with Clara Darrel, David's housekeeper, who had hoped to have become his wife, and, during Bessie's absence, this precious pair enter the house, where Craven poisons the baby's food; but the doctor, who proves to be an old friend of Bessie's husband, sees that the milk is curdled, and bids her throw it away. Clara, however, subsequently steals the child, and, taking it to David, declares that it has been cruelly neglected by his abandoned wife, who, she alleges, has again given herself over to a life of shame. The child is found to be suffering from diphtheria, and the doctor declares that the only way to save it is for someone to suck the virus from the throat at the risk of his or her own life. Bessie eagerly undertakes to make the sacrifice, and, disguising herself as a nurse, speedily effects the cure. Meanwhile, Craven comes to David to declare that Bessie has resumed her former relations with him, and is at that moment at home awaiting his return; but at the height of his denunciation the curtains are drawn aside, and the devoted young mother, dressed in her nurse's costume, appears at the door to give personal proof of her innocence. The re-establishment of the family circle duly takes place in the last act, when poetic justice is administered all round, and the reconciliation of husband and wife is effected.

Heart-stirring situations are contained in the piece, all of which were strikingly presented by the members of Mr. Hamilton Warden's principal company. Miss Maisie Hanbury gave an appealing impersonation of Bessie. The part has many poignant moments; but Miss Hanbury succeeded in impressing the audience throughout by the exercise of dramatic skill and well-practised delivery. She fully aroused the motherly instincts in the minds of the softer sex among the audience, and many were the expressions of sympathy which were heard. Mr. Stanley Carlton also won the suffrages of the audience as the inexorable David Heath. His action in turning his wife from the door may not have been in complete accord with their views; but so profound was his grief, and so apparent his sense of strict rectitude, that all were on his side. Very different was their attitude towards the unspeakable Uriah Craven, whom they execrated without mercy. To speak the truth, he entirely deserved it, so thoroughly was his evil nature depicted by Mr. Oswald Cray, who assumed the adamant heartlessness of the villain with perfect realism. His coadjutor in crime was played in a properly minor key by Miss Olive Adair, who as Clara Darrel had to bear an outwardly angelic expression, while her thoughts turned unceasingly towards evil. Miss Adair acted and spoke well, and her performance was a marked feature of the success obtained. The comic servants of melodrama are fortunately dispensed with; but in their place are a comedy couple, who furnish many merry moments. They were played by Mr. Charles V. Sandford and Miss May Dallas, as Frank Dellannoy and Dorothy Heath, a pair of lovers whose constant tiffs, and their manner of reconciliation, were a source of continuous mirth. Mr. Sandford acted with exhilarating buoyancy, and in the true spirit of comedy, and Miss Dallas added to a prepossessing appearance a roguish style and piquant expression that were valuable in the part. Another notable performance was that of the doctor, Clement Harper, who was played by Mr. A. Hamilton Warden with rare earnestness and conviction. Mr. T. Edward Evans, who is also the courteous acting-manager of the company, played a low comedy part in that of Bloater; and the rest of the characters were sustained with unquestionable ability. The setting of the piece, one of the scenes of which is a farm in Cape Colony, is carefully planned, and lends complete effectiveness to the production.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 26, the Romantic Drama,

"OLD HEIDELBERG."

Local playgoers are flocking nobly to the standard raised by Mr. J. Bannister Howard at Sydenham, and the enterprise of the experienced manager is being well repaid. Old Heidelberg is this week's attraction, and the strength of the piece, the excellence of the scenery, and the all-round ability of Mr. Mouillot's company have been appreciated to the full. Mr. Robert Minster adapts himself admirably to the part of Karl Heinrich, every phase of the character being artistically delineated. A captivating Kathie is found in Miss Irene Lavington, who is effective alike in comedy and pathos. Dr. Juttner is embellished with clever touches of realism by Mr. J. Nelson Ramsay, who gives a well-studied characterisation which deeply impressed the audience. Messrs. Eric Phillips, P. Wells, and Collyer Leslie are in every way excellent as Vons Haugh, Passage, and Breitenburg; Lutz is thoroughly well played by Mr. Lionel Gadsden; and Mr. Willis Searle does capital work in the part of Ruder. The students, Asterberg and Weddell, are typically embodied by Messrs. Wallace G. Court and Martin Pedler; and Misses Rose Hélène and Nessie Blackford are to be complimented on their renderings respectively of Frauen Ruder and Dorffell.

"A HEART'S DESIRE."

A new and original Romantic Play, in Four Acts and a Prologue, produced at the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, on Monday, March 26.

Lord St. Ives ..... MR. ARTHUR HINTON
Luke Forrest ..... MR. TRAVIS GREEN
Eric May ..... MR. GERALD BYRNE
Bertie Beresford ..... MR. GRAHAM ARTHUR
David McCullock ..... MR. FRANK BRUMELL
Coombs ..... MR. PLEONS GAINS
Oiya ..... MISS LEILA ZILLWOOD
Elsie Beresford ..... MISS FLORENCE ZILLWOOD
Gwendoline Ross ..... MISS LYDIA ANDRE

This new play is characterised by an abundance of stirring action, and the interest is well sustained throughout. The prologue opens in a beach-comber's hut in the South Sea Islands—a very pretty scene. Lord St. Ives, alias James Denman, known as "Beautiful Jim," having had brought against him a false accusation of forging his father's signature, has fled from England and joined a gang of beach-combers. He, however, receives a letter from home informing him that his brother on his death-bed confessed that he committed the forgery, and that his father is seriously ill. He is entreated by his mother to return home at once; but according to the post-mark the letter should have reached him some eight months earlier. The young man and a beautiful half-caste named Oiya have fallen in love with each other, and Jim is induced to remain. Luke Forrest and David McCullock, beach-combers, have a dispute with Jim respecting the ownership of a valuable pearl, and they attack him in order to gain possession of it. McCullock falls, to all appearance mortally wounded, and Luke charges Jim with the murder, but with the aid of Oiya, who admits that she killed McCullock, Jim manages to escape.

The scene of Act I. is the garden of St. Ives Towers. Twenty years have elapsed. Lord St. Ives, the "Jim" of the prologue, has succeeded to his father's title and estates, and has a grown-up daughter named Elsie, who is sought in marriage by Eric May, his lordship's private secretary. Her father, however, is loath to give his consent, as the young man's parentage is veiled in obscurity. Luke Forrest, who has married Oiya and come to England, reappears, and having recognised in Lord St. Ives the James Denman of other days, resolves to blackmail him. Having at length obtained the consent of his lordship, Eric May and Elsie are married, but it appears that the young man is the son of Oiya, and that Lord St. Ives is his father. Luke Forrest publicly declares this to be the fact just after the marriage ceremony has been performed. His blackmailing designs, however, are frustrated by the re-appearance of David McCullock, who, after all, recovered from the wound inflicted by Oiya. In the last act, the scene of which is the beach-comber's hut, we learn that Oiya is dying as the direct result of the ill-treatment she has received from Forrest. With her is her son Eric, who, rendered desperate by his cruel fate, is about to take his own life by means of poison when he is prevented by Lord St. Ives, who also arrives in time to comfort the dying woman by telling her that he still loves her.

Mr. Arthur Hinton as Lord St. Ives played throughout with a force and dramatic power that stamped him as an artist of exceptional merit. Mr. Travis Green as Luke Forrest gave an effective reading of the adventurer, and his embodiment was distinctly successful. Mr. Gerald Byrne, in the rôle of Eric May, had little opportunity of scoring until the fourth act, and then he made the most of it. Mr. Pleons Gains infused some good comedy into the part of Coombs, butler to Lord St. Ives, and Mr. Graham Arthur played in bright style as the Hon. Bertie Beresford, Lord St. Ives' son. The rugged character of David McCullock was capably portrayed by Mr. Frank Brumell; as Oiya, the half-cast, Miss Leila Zillwood admirably represented a picturesque and romantic character, and her acting evoked loud applause, which was well merited. Miss Florence Zillwood submitted a fine artistic study of Elsie Beresford, the scene in Act I. between her father, Lord St. Ives, and herself being specially worthy of mention. Miss Lydia Andre was a gay and sprightly Gwendoline Ross, Lord St. Ives' ward. The scenery, which has been specially painted by Mr. J. Collins, jun., was much admired.

ROYAL ACADEMY OPERATIC STUDENTS.

The operatic students of the Royal Academy of Music gave a performance of Verdi's Falstaff on Thursday afternoon, March 29. Falstaff has often attracted composers, and our own Balfe, who the Germans say never wrote anything but The Bohemian Girl, actually composed an opera on Falstaff, which was performed at Her Majesty's Theatre about 1875, with famous vocalists in the cast. Verdi had Shakespeare's comic hero in his mind for years, but he could not find a satisfactory libretto until Boito wrote one which contained not a little of the drollery of the original. The opera was produced at La Scala on Feb. 9, 1893, and at Covent Garden in the following May. The composer wrote it at eighty years of age "for amusement," and on the night it was first heard the veteran composer was called before the curtain nearly thirty times. At the Academy on Thursday only the first and second acts were given, quite enough to test the abilities of the students. The comic hero was represented with no little skill by Mr. David Evans, whose vocal powers proved fairly equal to the task, while his make-up and talent as an actor may be warmly commended. He was most ably supported by Mr. Cecil Pearson as Pistol, with a most truculent aspect, and Mr. J. Musgrove Wright as Bardolph. We must, however, take some exception to the Bardolphian nose, but histrionically Mr. Wright may be praised. The character also of Ford was well sustained by Mr. J. McNaughton Duncan, who sang the music of the part with marked ability. All the young ladies were particularly good, and entered into the fun in a most praiseworthy manner, Miss Bessie Morris making an excellent Dame Quickly, while Miss Mary Fielding and Miss Aileen Hodgson charmingly impersonated the parts of Alice and Annie, although the former looked a rather youthful mamma. Miss Edith H. Coish cleverly played the part of Mistress Page, and Miss Margery Penley appeared to advantage in the small part of Robin (Falstaff's page). The other parts of Dr. Caius, Fenton, and the Host of the Garter Inn were well sustained by Mr. Dennis Creedon, Mr. John Bardsley, and Mr. Henry S. Sanders. It was a great pity that no orchestra, owing to want of space, could be forthcoming, but Miss Mary Burgess at the pianoforte and Mr. B. J. Dale at the organ rendered all the assistance possible to Verdi's brilliant score, and the scenes from the opera went smoothly under the careful conductorship of Mr. Edgardo Lèvi, while the stage arrangements were generally excellent in the care of Mr. B. Soutten. The costumes and properties were kindly lent by the Royal Opera Syndicate. On Friday there were a few changes in the cast.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In the notice of the Hippodrome, Eastbourne, your correspondent gave the credit of topping the bill to another turn, thus flatly contradicting our advertisement, in which we stated we held that position, as enclosed day-bill will prove.—Yours faithfully, ROSS AND LEWIS.—Gaiety, Oldham, March 26.

NEW MUSIC.

Willcocks and Co. are the publishers of the following songs and pieces. Longfellow's "Flowers of Paradise" is set to music with considerable grace by Leonard Barnes, who, in simple but elegant musical phrases, expresses the sentiments of the poet with no little charm. "The Isle of Love," composed by Russell Phillips, indicates the desire of a lover to be alone on a desolate island with the object of his passion. Nothing is said of butcher or baker, but presumably love is sufficient, and we have no doubt many amateurs will have the same belief, and will welcome the song accordingly. The well-known lyric of Kingsley, "Oh that we two were maying," has had a new setting by Mr. Chilwer Wilson, who has not fulfilled his task badly, although we can hardly credit him with having surpassed the original version. From Hopwood and Crew, New Bond-street, comes "The Story of a Clothes-line," words by Clifford Harris, music by J. W. Tate. The story of "two pairs of stockings on the line" would, we fancy, cause no little amusement in the halls. The melody is simple, and easily remembered. Another whimsical ditty, by Cecil Lidden, is "I've something to say to you." A third song of a similar kind is "If you'd only be my girl," composed by Bennett Scott to words by A. J. Mills. "Stage-struck Sal" tells its own story, that of a girl who fancies herself fitted to appear on the stage. She expects to earn "fifty quid a week," to have her name in letters six feet high, and to call on her old companions in her motor car and "make 'em green with envy." "I'm all right," by Charles Ridgwell, tells of a tourist, who is unfortunate on his seaside trip, but who still maintains he is "all right." "The dear little woman at home," by H. Trotère, describes in a pleasant way the fate of many a good woman tied to a reckless husband. Hopwood and Crew, New Bond-street, have recently published the following:—"Maisie Moon-beam," written by George Dance and composed by E. Bucalossi. This is a very simple ditty. The merest novice will have no difficulty in learning it, and to many this will be its chief recommendation. "My Lady Mary Ann," composed by Frank Leeham, has the never-failing attractiveness of the waltz-tempo and some lively verses. "Aubade Napolitaine," by Von Wilhelm Aletter, carries us away to the sunny South, for we see Vesuvius smoking in the distance, and in the foreground two Neapolitan lovers are enjoying a duet and dance, with a mandolin accompaniment. Mr Arthur L. Brown makes us acquainted with "Pixie Land" (which some believe to be Cornwall) in the form of an easy pianoforte piece useful for youthful students Mr. Arthur Wellesley, whose talent we have frequently eulogised in the concert-room, is also a composer, and his "Dance Caprice" for the piano will find many admirers. "Zenobia," by L. I. Quigley, is an intermezzo, somewhat after the fashion of Mascagni, but not an imitation of the Italian composer. The finale is rather brilliant. "An Evening Love Song" is in the mellow key of D flat, and has words by Clifton Bingham, whose tender lines have inspired the fair musician, Miss Chipman. Composer and poet have produced a very pleasing love song. As a specimen of its "gushing" character, Mr. Clifton Bingham tells us that the lover, with "tears of longing," takes leave of the lady. Readers of "Uncle Remus" will remember a droll anecdote of a nigger who was attracted by a water melon on a railway truck. He called it a water-million, and begged his companion not to tempt him, as the weather was hot, and he could not resist the cool, succulent fruit. Mr. Thomas S. Allen goes further than Uncle Remus. His nigger youth and maiden are sitting on the water melon and "spooning" tremendously. It is worth the price of the piece to see them. The B. F. Wood Music-Publishing Company issues this whimsical song, which has a refrain, "Lindy Lou," and the copyright is in the name of Walter Jacobs, who has published a number of similar compositions. Barnard and Baden, of Streatham, have published "Six First Pieces" for the pianoforte, by Carl Reger, who appears well qualified to write for youthful students, who generally complain of their music being too difficult. This will not be the case with Carl Reger, who not only writes easy pieces, but fingers them so as to aid the teacher. "The Friar's Song," words by Thackeray, music by Frank H. Brackett, is published at 12, Rathbone-place, Oxford-street. The friar is evidently of the Friar Tuck fraternity, for he says "he will sing gladly if they will put a smoking fish or noble haunch on the table." For a basso or baritone who likes a dash of humour in a song here is something that will exactly suit him.

PRESENTATIONS.—At the conclusion of the successful run of The Babes in the Wood at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on Saturday last, Mr. George M. Saker, the musical director, was the recipient of a case of silver-mounted brushes from Miss Winifred Hare and Mr. Bransby Williams, a silver-mounted umbrella from the Bros. Egbert, a gold-mounted walking-stick from Mr. George Bastow, an amber cigarette-holder with silver case from Mr. Harry Lupino and "Nipper," an oxidised box containing a dozen ties from Mr. Bert D'Arcy, and a handsome travelling bag from the members of the orchestra.

AT the Grand Theatre, Islington, on the 23rd inst., Miss Ethel Dove, who performed in the 1906 pantomime at this theatre, was presented with a magnificent diamond ring, being the third prize won by her in the pantomime artists' Popularity Competition, run by Ally Sloper's Half Holiday. Mr. Sloper himself made the presentation.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

To be assured of the continued prosperity of that excellent institution, the Royal General Theatrical Fund, is very gratifying; but it is impossible not to share the surprise which Mr. George Alexander expressed at the meeting at Terry's Theatre on Thursday, that a greater number of the younger members of the profession did not avail themselves of the advantages of the Fund. There is no other calling whose members can obtain "endowments" at premiums between 40 and 50 per cent. less than those of ordinary insurance societies; and one would think that every economical young actor would "jump" at the chance.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, who has given Dickens so noteworthy a stage setting, is about to perform a similar service for the great novelist's equally eminent contemporary, Thackeray. Mr. Tree has obtained from Mr. Michael Morton for production at His Majesty's an adaptation of the celebrated work "The Newcomes," in which the popular actor will identify himself with the part of the large-hearted Colonel Newcome, a rôle in which Thackeray's power for depicting the finest traits of human nature is seen at its best. From the number of picturesque scenes of the novel Mr. Morton has selected for treatment that of the Colonel's house, which will serve for the first of the four acts, the second being laid at Lady Fareham's ball. The third act is also at the Colonel's house, and the last is at Greyfriars, wherein a scene of the most wholesome sentiment is presented.

Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft have left London until after Easter. The eminent actor has engaged industriously in social and philanthropic duties during the past season, and all will hope that after this brief respite he will return to town to add anew to his beneficent work, a recent example of which was his reading of Dickens's "Christmas Carol" in aid of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen's Square. The proceeds of the reading enabled the Board of Management to pay off the deficit on the year, and due acknowledgment was made at the annual meeting of Governors on Tuesday. Sir Squire has promised to preside at the annual Shakespeare festival of the Urban Club, to be held at the Hotel Cecil on Monday evening, April 23.

Mr. H. B. Irving's new play, Mauricette, translated from the French comedy, Jeunesse, will be produced under the direction of Messrs. Nixon and Zimmerman, at the Lyric Theatre, this evening. The new piece will be ushered in by Mr. Sam Sothern, who will give a monologue, by Mr. E. H. Sothern, the American actor, entitled "What shall I say to her?" The little piece might be called a "dialogue with a dog," inasmuch as the performer carries on an affecting conversation with his canine companion.

Miss Lena Ashwell has fixed on Thursday, April 19, for her opening of the Savoy Theatre, with Miss Clothilde Graves's The Bond of Ninon. An important addition to the already strong cast is made by the engagement of Miss Beatrice Terry Master Hollam, and Mr. Vincent Sternroyd.

The Secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund informs us that he is almost hourly in receipt of postal orders from Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, and Mr. George Alexander, which they have received in exchange for their autographs. Mr. Lewis Waller, who sends his receipts from this source in a batch of postal orders, has just forwarded the sum of £4 18s. 6d., and Mr. James Welch 19s. 6d. Messrs. H. and M. Rayne have sent a cheque for £2 from the proceeds of the sale of their little Telephone Date and Call Book.

Mr. Cyril Maude will revive The Second in Command at the Waldorf Theatre on Saturday. Mr. Maude will play Major Bingham, and Mr. Eille Norwood, Mr. G. M. Graham, Mr. Charles Maude, Mr. Laing, Mr. Percival Stevens, Mr. King Fordham, Mr. R. McKie, Mr. Horace Layton, Miss Ada Ferrar, Miss Madge Titheradge, and Miss Sybil Carlisle will also be in the cast.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has contributed £20 to the funds of the Normyl Treatment Association, a society which aims at the cure of drunkenness. It was explained at a meeting in Eaton-square on Tuesday that the Normyl treatment was invented by a Canadian chemist after many years of study, and the Association was formed to apply the treatment in England at a reduced price, the object being to a large extent philanthropic. Mr. Tree said that though he had no personal experience of the remedy, if it was all that was claimed for it, and he had no reason to doubt it, then indeed they had in their hands a marvellous instrument for the greater salvation of mankind. He knew in his own calling the tremendous temptation to which men and women were subjected through the taking of stimulants "to buck one up" as it was termed, and as that habit gradually grew, such a remedy as the Normyl treatment was one to be heartily encouraged.

Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry have decided upon Saturday, April 14, for the production at the New Theatre of Dorothy o' the Hall, the new play by Paul Kester and Charles Major, the music for which has been composed by Mr. Raymond Rôze. Miss Neilson will have a congenial rôle in that of sweet Dorothy Vernon, and Mr. Terry will be equally happily placed as Sir John Manners. The other parts will be played by Messrs. Frederick Groves, J. Carter-Edwards, Jerrold Robertshaw, D. J. Williams, Malcolm Cherry, Horace Hodges, W. A. Haines, Walter Edwin, George Dudley, and Ernest E. Imeson, and Misses Miriam Lewes, Adeline Bourne, Claire Pauncefort, Mary Mackenzie, and Marion Sterling. The first and last acts are laid on the Terrace of Haddon Hall. Act II. passes in Dorothy's Room in the Hall, and the scene of the third is the Watch Tower, Rutland Castle.

Mr. Martin Harvey concludes to-night at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, the southern portion of his spring tour. Last Saturday night, at the Royal, Birmingham, an audience of nearly 3,000 people watched the revival of Hamlet with rapt attention. It was the first occasion on which the popular actor had played Hamlet to a Saturday night audience, and the result was most gratifying. His season at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, begins on Monday, and extends over a fortnight. On that occasion the new title for Freeman Wills and Frederick Langbridge's play After All will be used, and the play will figure as Eugene Aram; or, After All. Mr. Harvey has just engaged Mr. Thalberg Corbett for the part of John Kibblethwaite in The Rapparee Trooper, to be produced at the Royal, Newcastle, on April 25.

Mr. Lewis Waller's company, with Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner, under the direction of Mr. Peter Davey, is being sent on tour, and will begin on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Hull. Miss Cynthia Brooke plays Miss Elizabeth; and to Mr. Frederick Victor is allotted Mr. Lewis Waller's part. Another engagement is that of Mr. A. Carlaw Grand, the only son of Madame Sarah Grand, of The Heavenly Twins fame. Mr. Grand has inherited some of his mother's talent, though in another direction, being joint-author, with Mr. Duncan McRae, of an amusing comedy sketch, produced at the Holborn Empire on the 22nd inst.

"Josephine," a revue in three scenes of yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow, by Mr. J. M. Barrie, will be the principal piece in the triple bill which Mr. Charles Frohman will offer at the Comedy on Thursday. It will be represented by Mr. Louis Calvert, Mr. Graham Browne, Mr. Kenneth Douglas, Mr. A. E. Matthews, Master Wren, Mr. Arthur Eldred, Mr. Matheson Lang, Mr. Frederick Volpe, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Mabel Hackney, Miss Grace Lane, and Mr. Dion Boucicault. Punch, also by Mr. Barrie, will be the centre piece, and will be enacted by Mr. Dion Boucicault, Miss Eva Moore, Mr. Arthur Eldred, and Mr. A. E. Anson. The evening will be begun by The Drums of Oude, a drama, in one act, by Austin Strong, in which Mr. Matheson Lang, Mr. Kenneth Douglas, Mr. Louis Goodrich, Mr Hylton Allen, Mr. Quentin Macpherson, Mr. A. Farrar, and Miss Mabel Hackney will appear.

Mrs. Langtry, who has just returned to England from a highly successful tour in South Africa, has in view the production of a play by Mr. Paul Kester, the author of Sweet Nell of Old Drury. The popular actress lost no time in returning to the pursuit of her favourite sport, and among the runners in the Lincoln Handicap on Monday was her five-year-old Vergia, which, however, failed to secure a place.

The Drury-lane pantomime, having achieved a record run of 131 performances, came to a conclusion on Saturday. Great enthusiasm prevailed in all parts of the house, and as soon as the slipper had been tried and fitted on Miss May de Sousa's foot, the company joined hands across the stage, the audience in stalls, boxes, dress-circle, pit, and gallery stood up and joined hands also, and all present burst forth into "Auld Lang Syne." Floral tokens of esteem were in great profusion, Miss Queenie Leighton's room in particular being heaped up with lovely blooms.

Miss Violet Vanbrugh having been taken ill with influenza, Mr. Bourchier has postponed the revival at the Garrick of Monsieur de Paris, originally intended for Monday, to the following Wednesday, when it will be played as an afterpiece to Brother Officers at both matinée and evening performances, and continued throughout the week. Miss Vanbrugh, who made one of her earliest successes in the tragic rôle of Jacinta, the executioner's daughter, will make a welcome reappearance in the play, and the cast will also include Mr. Charles V. France, Mr. Julian L'Estrange, and Miss Madge Johnstone. During the first four days of Holy Week, Mr. Bourchier, by arrangement with Mr. Robert Arthur, will give two performances a day of the old morality play, Everyman, which will be staged under the direction of Mr. William Poel.

Church and stage will unite at the Garrick on Good Friday evening, when a special service will be held at 8.30, under the auspices of the Bishop of London, at which addresses will be delivered by the Bishop of Kensington and Father Waggett. There will be a full choir of 200 voices, and the boys' orchestra of stringed instruments from St. Anne's, Soho, will play. On Saturday morning, April 14, in deference to very many requests, Mr. Bourchier will begin a series of ten performances—7 evening, and 3 afternoon—of his successful production of Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice, in which he will again appear as Shylock. Mr. Alfred Sutro's new comedy, The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, will be presented by Mr. Bourchier and Mr. Charles Frohman on Thursday, April 26.

Miss Phyllis Broughton will make a welcome reappearance in London on April 14, when she will play the part of Lady Brudenell in the new musical comedy, The Dairymaids, to be produced at the Apollo Theatre on April 14. The cast will also include Miss Florence Smithson, Miss Carrie Moore, Miss Agnes Fraser, Miss Gracie Leigh, Miss Carlotta Zerbini, Mr. Ambrose Manning, Mr. Greene, Mr. Lane, Mr. Walter Passmore, and Mr. Dan Rolyat

The freehold of the Grand Theatre, Islington, was exposed for sale on Wednesday at the Mart, Token-house-yard, under an Order of the Court of Chancery. The sale of the property has been necessitated by actions arising on questions affecting the settlement of the estate of the late Charles Head. The theatre is let on lease for forty-two years from May, 1894, at an annual rental of £2,185. Besides the theatre itself, there were also included in the sale the leaseholds of the White Swan public-house and the adjoining tobacconist's shop at No. 44, High-street, Islington, these two properties being also leased to the late Charles Wilmot for thirty years unexpired at the rental of £560 per annum. In addition to these, there were a right-of-way underleased at an annual rental of £21 5s., and some freehold property, comprising the spacious scenic, cloak, and store rooms adjoining the theatre, let on lease for the same period as the theatre itself at £58 16s. 8d. yearly, the rents obtained from all the properties amounting to £2,825 1s. 8d. per annum. The Court of Chancery had fixed a reserve price, contained in sealed instructions to the auctioneer, Mr. Edwin Fox, of the firm of Fox and Bousfield. No offer was made, and the property was withdrawn.

"Antony and Cleopatra" will be the next dramatic reading by the British Empire Shakespeare Society, to be given on Thursday afternoon, April 19, at Passmore Edwards' Settlement, Tavistock-place. Miss Margaret Halstan as Cleopatra and Mr. Acton Bond as Antony will be supported by a full cast of professional members.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Irving, we may remind our readers, will be entertained to lunch by the New Vagabond Club, at the Hotel Cecil, on Thursday. Mr. W. L. Courtney will preside, and among the guests will be Miss Marion Terry, Miss Constance Collier, Mr. Harry Kemble, Mr. George Alexander, and many other prominent members of the profession.

"Castles in Spain," the new comic opera, is to be produced at the Royalty Theatre on Wednesday, April 18. Mr. Harry Fragson will have the part of a Parisian beau, and Miss May de Sousa will appear as an American belle.

"Forty Shillings," a one-act comedy by Mr. F. A. Besant-Rice, Mr. Pinero's secretary, is to be produced on Monday, April 9, at the Brixton Theatre, where it will be played every evening throughout the week.

Mr. Walter Howard, whose latest effort, The Midnight Wedding, has placed him among the ranks of successful playwrights, is now busily engaged rewriting and transforming his Napoleonic drama, Man and Wife, ready for Mr. T. Edward Ward to revive next Christmas. Every confidence is felt by Mr Ward that the talented author will convert Man and Wife from a good into an excellent property, a confidence which is shared by many influential managers—notably by Mr. Wm. Morton, of Hull, who has secured the revival for his New Year's attraction at the Alexandra Theatre.

Senor Manuel Garcia, the distinguished musician who celebrated his 101st birthday on the anniversary of St. Patrick, had the satisfaction of learning that one of his pupils, Miss May Armstrong, made a successful début at the Irish National Banquet at the Hotel Cecil on that occasion. Miss Armstrong has a beautiful contralto voice, which has been well trained by Señor Garcia and Mme. Marchesi, and her singing created a most favourable impression.

Daily additions have been made to the general committee of the Fund organised by the Tribune to celebrate the jubilee of Miss Ellen Terry. The lists include many theatrical and musical celebrities, and during the week the names of the following ladies and gentlemen, many of whom attest their admiration of the great actress in eulogistic terms, have appeared:—Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mrs. R. C. Batley (Miss Mabel Terry Lewis), Mrs. F. S. Benson, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Lily Brayton, Mr. J. M. Barrie, Mrs. Bernard-Beere, Miss Nina Boucicault, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mrs. Comyns Carr, Miss Compton, Mr. F. H. Cowen, Mr. R. de Cordova, Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Miss Winifred Emery, Mr. Charles Fry, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Gilbert Farquhar, Miss Fortescue, Mr. Charles Groves, Mr. John Hare, Mr. Joseph Hatton, Miss Myra Hamilton, Mr. Laurence Housman, Mrs. Langtry, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Mrs. Arthur W. Pinero, Mr. William Poel, Herr Max Reinhardt (Director of the Deutsches Theater of Berlin), Mr. Landon Ronald, Mr. R. Kennerley Rumford, Mrs. Kennerley Rumford, Mrs. Walter Reynolds, Madame Ella Russell, Mr. E. Lyall Swete, Mr. C. Aubrey Smith, Mr. Alfred Sutro, Mr. Christopher St. John, Mrs. Alfred Sutro, Fräulein Agnes Sorma (Berlin), Mr. Bram Stoker, Mr. J. L. Toole, Mr. Richard Temple, Mrs. Alec Tweedie, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Mr. Charles Warner.

Mr. Frank Grans will send on tour at Easter that funny farce-comedy, The Other Man's Business. The tour will be for eight weeks, visiting Glasgow, Southport, Middlesbro', Preston, The Grand, Fulham, Brighton, and Eastbourne. The comedy was tried about four years ago, and was received with warm favour. It is, however, Mr. Graus's intention to produce the comedy in London shortly.

Mr. Henry Doughty has arranged to tour during the summer The Barrister, by J. H. Darnley. This excellent farcical comedy had a highly successful run at the Comedy Theatre.

The new comic opera, entitled The Gold Diggers; or, The Girls from Utah, written by Walter Wadham-Petre and Claude Aveling, with music by Walter Wadham-Petre, will be presented at the Theatre Royal, Bath, on Easter Monday, and will subsequently visit Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Newcastle, and Leeds under the direction of Mr. Walter McEwen. This gentleman is also responsible for the production of the opera; and the cast will include Messrs. Fred Eastman, W. H. Powell, Arthur Stigant, and Harrison Brockbank; Mesdames Nora Brocklebank, Kate Parfrey, Lilian Pollard, and Miss Kate Vesey. The orchestra will be under the direction of Mr. Geo. M. Seker, and Mr. C. Finch-Hatton is advance business-manager.

The delight of the Japanese officers and seamen with the performance of Old Heidelberg at the Crystal Palace Theatre on Wednesday was great and demonstrative. They were enabled by the forethought and enterprise of Mr. Bannister Howard to understand the story and follow the dialogue, as not only were the programmes of the piece printed in the Japanese language, but a "Jap" translation of Old Heidelberg was presented to each of the visitors, who were thus able to take back with them to their native land a memento of the only theatrical performance that they witnessed in this country.

A "Working Men's Theatre" has been instituted in New York, where it was opened on Tuesday. It is called the Theatre of Labour, the highest price of admission being two shillings. The director is a Socialist, and efforts are being made to procure an endowment for the enterprise.

Miss Marie Daltra (Mrs. Lionel Rignold) was offered an engagement by Mr. Courtneidge to create the part of Miss Pychase in the new musical comedy The Dairymaids at the Apollo; but her success in the part of the maiden aunt Miss Foden in What the Butler Saw is so pronounced that she has decided to remain in the cast of Judge Parry and Frederick Mouillot's clever comedy.

The close of the pantomime Babes in the Wood at the Liverpool Shakespeare Theatre on Saturday night was marked by great enthusiasm and presentations. The popular manager, Mr. John Gaffney, came in for a solid silver inkbottle and a pair of silver candlesticks; Mr. McClelland, the stage-manger, received a walking-stick and umbrella; and Mr. Reginald Weighall, assistant-stage-manager, a dressing-case, travelling-bag, and umbrella—all the gifts of Mr. Bransby Williams and Miss Winifred Hare. Mr. Saker, musical director, received a travelling-bag and travelling-clock from the comedians Bert D'Arcy, Brothers Egbert, and George Bastow; and Miss Roberts, wardrobe mistress, was handed an ebony brush and comb and a hand-glass. There was also an abundance of floral offerings for the artists.

A scheme for the encouragement of budding talent has been formulated by the National School of Acting and Dramatic Companies, of which Mr. Chas. E. Price is the secretary. The school, it is stated, is to be national in its broadest sense, carried on in the interest of tradition, the profession, and the people; and for this reason all appointments are left open, until such time as the lines of the institution have been decided upon. It is intended to run dramatic companies, consisting solely of students in an advanced stage of perfection, and all plays are as far as possible to be original works by rising authors. Classes are to be held as required in the various arts, and masters engaged as may be necessary, with permanent elocutionist, resident stage-manager and staff. Encouragement is to be given to authors by the reading of plays submitted, and supplying short criticisms. The inclusive fee for classes and dramatic companies is to be six guineas per annum, which, with honorary members' subscriptions, it is anticipated will cover expenditure and enable the school to be self-supporting.

At the Birmingham Assizes, on Monday, Mr. John Guy Sidney Jones, musical-director of the Theatre Royal in that town, sought to recover from Mr. Robert Arthur, the producer of the pantomime Aladdin, damages for personal injuries. Counsel for the plaintiff said that the accident for which damages were claimed occurred on the first night of the pantomime. There was a scene called the Eastern Baths, which included a large wheel. On Dec. 26 this particular scene was awaiting its turn up in the "flies"—30ft. or 40ft. above the orchestra, when suddenly a portion of the scenery fell on the plaintiff, striking him on the head and rendering him unconscious. It was shown that the plaintiff had not received his salary since the accident, and the jury returned a verdict in his favour, with £350 damages.

Miss Lydia Donovan, who recently concluded an eight months' tour as Sybil, the part she created in The Love that Women Desire, is, we regret to learn, suffering from a stoppage in the main artery of her right arm, which, for the time being, deprives her of the use of that limb. We wish Miss Donovan a speedy recovery, and hope that theatre-goers will soon have the opportunity of welcoming the reappearance of this talented actress.

Mr. F. R. Benson gave the closing lecture of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution on Friday afternoon, the 23rd inst., in the Queen's Hall, before a crowded audience. Mr. Benson, who was accompanied to the platform by Mrs. Benson, Miss Tita Brand, Mr. Clarence Derwent, and other members of his company, chose as his subject, "Shakespeare and the Resurrection of the Dead," and said that many people had spoken of Shakespeare as an inspired Pagan, and some had called him an Atheist, an Agnostic, a Nihilist in matters of religion. The reverse of this was the truth. Shakespeare's attitude seemed to him a sort of plain, Anglo-Saxon, common-sense attitude towards the Resurrection. With regard to the passages relied upon by those who seemed to find Shakespeare standing in an attitude of listless despair before a blank wall in matters of religion, Mr. Benson said they were spoken by his characters, and were not necessarily the reproduction of Shakespeare's own thought. Shakespeare was speaking as an artist, and not as the cheerful, healthy-minded British Christian that he was. To him, Shakespeare's religion was part of his life and work and of his thought.

Mr. Benson did a fair day's work on the 28th inst. In the afternoon he addressed the members of the Edinburgh branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society on "Shakespeare and the Valley of the Shadow"; in the evening he played his part at the Royal Lyceum Theatre in The Merry Wives of Windsor; and after the performance he and Mrs. Benson were entertained at a complimentary supper in the Balmoral Hotel by the members of the Philosophical Institution.

"Dinner for Two," Mr. R. C. Carton's one-act piece, originally produced in the spring of 1903, will from Monday next precede The Candidate at Wyndham's Theatre. Mr. Edmund Maurice, Mr. Yorke Stephens, and Mr. Herbert Duppa will appear in the little piece.

Mr. Henry Dundas, the general and business manager of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, has started a collection of one penny from free admissions to the Opera House. The proceeds are to be devoted to that deserving institution the Actors' Benevolent Fund.

The committee of the Compton Testimonial Fund, of which Mr. H. B. Fitzgibbon is the hon. sec. and treasurer, have arranged with the well-known artist, Mr. Herman G. Herkomer, a cousin of Professor Hubert Herkomer, to paint Mr. Compton's portrait in the character of David Garrick. It will be a three-quarter length figure, and Mr. Herkomer is delighted with the opportunity it affords him of a great artistic effort, the handsome costume of the period lending itself so much more harmoniously to the brush than the severer type of modern dress.

"The Girl Behind the Counter," the new musical comedy which Mr. Frank Curzon will produce at Wyndham's Theatre in Easter Week, will introduce Mr. Hayden Coffin in the part of a rough miner lately returned from the diggings with gold galore. Miss Isabel Jay will have the rôle of a shop girl, with whom the miner falls in love, and round these two characters a pretty romance has been woven and clothed with music by Mr. Leedham Bantock and Mr. Howard Talbot respectively. Miss Millie Legarde, Miss Marie Dainton, Mr. Horace Mills, Mr. J. F. McArdle, Miss Violet Crossley, Mr. Fred Allandale, Miss Coralie Blythe, Mr Akerman May, Mr. George Barrett, and Mr Lawrence Grossmith will also be in the cast.

Mr. Lingford Carson's mascotte, The Drama of Life, is playing this week to packed houses at the Royal, Middlesbrough. The company is in charge of Mr. Edward van Biene (son of the actor-'cellist of Broken Melody fame), and is composed of a number of well-known artists.

Miss Margaret Halstan has taken up the part of Acte in place of Miss Dorothea Baird, and played the rôle at the matinée of Nero at His Majesty's on Wednesday. Miss Baird, it will be remembered, is appearing in Mauricette, to be produced at the Lyric this evening.

Miss Mabel Sealby, who has just concluded a successful pantomime engagement with Mr. John Hart at the Prince's, Manchester, playing the title-rôle in the Sleeping Beauty, has been secured for a three years' contract by Messrs. Hicks and Frohman, and is at present understudying Miss Ellaline Terris at the Aldwych in the Beauty of Bath. Mr. Hart has taken up the option of her services for pantomime 1906-7.

"The Catch of the Season" is enjoying a most successful first visit to Poplar. Mr. Sounes is finding that his catering for the theatre patrons of this East London district is meeting with great appreciation, and although his beautiful new Prince's Theatre has only been open a few months it is fully established in the esteem of the surrounding inhabitants, who welcome this up-to-date theatre in their midst. Now a motor omnibus service has started one can reach the Prince's, Poplar, from the West End in thirty minutes.

Mr. Percy Burton, who was associated with the late Sir Henry Irving for some years, and up to the time of his death, has been kindly released by Mr. Forbes Robertson from the last few weeks of his tour, in order that he might accept an offer to join the American management (Nixon and Zimmerman) for Mr. H. B. Irving, at the Lyric Theatre.

Owing to slight indisposition Miss Julia Neilson was unable to appear at the New Theatre on Wednesday, and Miss Miriam Lewes played her part at both the matinée and evening performance.

Mr. H. Cooper Cliffe, who was recently playing at the Shaftesbury with Mr. Nat Goodwin, has been engaged by Mr. Cyril Maude for the forthcoming production of Shore Acres.—Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton, after concluding a successful seven months' tour as Sherlock Holmes, has been engaged by Mr. Cyril Maude for the Waldorf Theatre.

Messrs. Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth will make the ball at Covent Garden Theatre on Boat-race eve, Friday next, a mask and domino ball, thus effecting a change from the usual fancy-dress dance. Six special prizes will be awarded for the most handsome dominoes. As the preparations for the opera season, commencing Thursday, May 3, have now begun, this will be the last ball of the season.

The Ladies' Concert of the Playgoers' Club, which took place at the Waldorf Theatre on Sunday, was one of the most successful ever given by the club. The programme contained many of the best artists, and gave the utmost enjoyment. Among those who appeared were Miss Mabel Love, Mr. Henry Neville, and Mr. Charles Warner, all of whom recited; Mlle. Milo and Mr. W. Anning, who appeared in an admirable sketch; Miss Jennie Lee, Miss Gladys Rose-Jones, Miss Margot Lethbridge, Miss Maude Sandemann, Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. Tom Clare, Mr. Maynard Dakin, Mr. Neil Kenyon, Mr. Ambrose Thorne, and Mr. H. Scott Russell, variety being given to the programme by the comic juggling of Vandy and the dancing of Espinosa and Neilson. The Pavilion orchestra, conducted by Mr. A. Bond Sayers, rendered valuable assistance.

Mr. Edward Compton concluded a week's visit, with his company, to the King's Theatre, Glasgow, on Saturday evening, and in the course of a speech said he had often been accused of attaching too much importance to his own particular class of work. But his critics were wrong. He had never contended that legitimate comedy was the only pebble on the theatrical beach. There was room for all; but let managers see to it that the dramatic pebbles they cast before the public were well shaped, well rounded, good to look at, wholesome specimens, and, above all, clean. Let them be bright and sparkling, but let there be no taint of coarseness on them. Let them be large in size, even grand in form if occasion required, but let them be true and consistent in all things; and if, in delicate instances, a certain moisture clung to them—the tear of pity or of love, as he might say—so much the better, for the public would detect in that sign the "one touch of nature that made the whole world kin," and would welcome and applaud them accordingly

Miss Florence Smithers had a trying experience after her journey from Jersey with Mr. Charles Carey's successful musical comedy, After the Ball. The company was billed to appear at Weymouth the same evening, and half-an-hour before the rise of the curtain, Miss Smithers' basket, which contained her costume for the fancy ball, was found to be missing. The adroit little lady immediately secured two flags, which had been used to decorate the hall, and, draped in these, with a sixpenny toy helmet purchased from a neighbouring bazaar on her head, met with so much success in her impromptu costume that she has thrown over the original one, and now appears as Britannia. After a most successful tour in the South, this, the No. 1 company, goes up North for a three months' round, opening at Halifax next week.

Mr. Henry Tweedie, who is representing Mr. Charles Frohman's Leah Kleschna South company on tour, was starting from his hotel at Ashton-under-Lyne, on Sunday, when the driver of the cab turned too sharply, and the vehicle, loaded with luggage, turned over on its side. The cab was speedily righted, and Mr. Tweedie, although much shaken, was enabled to continue his journey.

Miss Wallis (Mrs. Walter Reynolds) wishes to contradict the statement that The Pharisee, in which she collaborated with Mr. Malcolm Watson, has been permitted to be used by amateur clubs. Many applications of the kind have been received, but the authors are agreed that, for the present, no such permission will be given.

A highly-appreciated concert, arranged by Mme. Marian Mackenzie and Mrs. Helen Trust, was given on Sunday afternoon at the Red Cross Hall, Borough, in connection with Miss Octavia Hill's settlement, instituted with a view to brightening the lives of the dwellers in that poverty-stricken district. Well-known artists contributed to the entertainment, which was free to all who cared to go, and encores were in almost every instance exacted. That distinction was won in each of her recitations by Miss Ada Giles, who gave Ingelow's dramatic poem, "High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire," and afterwards rendered the humorous piece, "Mr. Cohen on the Telephone," which had to be supplemented by "Matrimony." Similar honours were gained by Mme. Marian Mackenzie for "Lovely Spring" and "O dry those tears"; and Mrs. Helen Trust had also to oblige again after singing "Spinning" and "The Cuckoo." Mr. Lindsey Squire was set down for "The Sailor's Grave" and "I'll sing thee songs of Araby"; and pianoforte and violoncello selections were rendered by Miss Hope Squire and Mr. Henry T. Trust.

Mr. Harold Entwistle has resigned his position at the Kennington Theatre, to take up the management of Mrs. Patrick Campbell's forthcoming tour. As manager for the past two years, Mr. Entwistle has filled his arduous position to the entire satisfaction of the proprietor.

The Incorporated Stage Society will give the third production of their seventh season on April 8 and two following days, when the Maternité of Brieux, translated by Mrs. Bernard Shaw, will be produced. The place of production does not appear.

Miss Carlotta Zerbini has been specially engaged by Mr. Robert Courtneidge for the rôle of the Schoolmistress, in the new play, The Dairymaids, to be produced at the Apollo Theatre on April 14.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has triumphed over the Trust in South America, if we may credit the report from Texas, the Attorney General of which State threatened to institute anti-trust proceedings against the managers of the syndicate unless they opened their playhouses to the famous actress. Mme. Bernhardt has therefore discontinued her performances in a circus tent, in which she acted for the first time on Monday, when an audience of 7,000 people was present. The stage, erected at one end of the huge tent, was fitted with a curtain, electric footlights, and all accessories, which were carried in the baggage cars attached to the special train.

Magisterial concern for the welfare of children on the stage has been more than usually conspicuous this week. At the Thames Police Court, on Monday, the manager of the Prince's Theatre, Poplar, made an application to Mr. Mead for a licence enabling a boy, aged eleven, to perform in the play The Catch of the Season. In answer to the magistrate, the applicant stated that the boy, who lived in Shaftesbury-avenue, took the part of the page, and he had one song to sing. When the lad was in London he attended a school in connection with the Aldwych Theatre, and when on tour he was instructed by a tutor. The boy would be on the stage from eight o'clock to about half-past ten. A police inspector said Mr. Fordham, at the North London Police-court, would only grant a licence for the boy to appear before ten o'clock at night. Mr. Mead said he should follow out what Mr. Fordham had done, and the licence would only be granted on condition that the boy did not appear after ten o'clock. "That," the applicant ventured to say, "would be very inconvenient." The magistrate, however, was obdurate. "Half-past ten," he returned, "or even ten o'clock, is too late for a lad of eleven to be out. You will have to make it ten o'clock. It won't ruin the piece."

On the same day, at North London Police-court, Mr. Fordham was asked to license a little boy aged ten to appear on the stage. The manager said that the boy could be out of the theatre by 9.45 p.m. "That is late," said Mr. Fordham. "My own children at that age I should like to be in bed by 7.30 or 8." "This boy," urged the applicant, "played with Mr. Forbes Robertson at the Scala Theatre six months ago, and your worship will remember that many of the great actors and actresses, including Miss Ellen Terry, commenced their stage life much younger than this." "I have great admiration for Miss Terry," Mr. Fordham admitted, "but we cannot say how much better some of them might have been physically had they not commenced so young. And now," he added, turning to the boy, "I suppose you will say I am a horrid man in a big chair if I do not grant you the licence. I do it with some reluctance, because of your age; but I will grant the licence until 9.30."

EURIPIDES IN ENGLISH.

On Monday, March 26,
at the Court Theatre,
a Translation by Gilbert Murray, of
"THE HIPPOLYTUS OF EURIPIDES."

The Goddess Aphrodite..MISS MADGE MCINTOSH
The Goddess Artemis ..MISS GWENDOLEN BISHOP
Theseus .....MR. WILLIAM HAVILAND
Hippolytus .....MR. HENRY AINLEY
Henchman .....MR. GRANVILLE BARKER
An Old Huntsman .....MR. STRATTON RODNEY
Phædra .....MISS EDYTH OLIVE
The Nurse .....MISS FLORENCE FARR
Leader of Chorus .....MISS GERTRUDE SCOTT

"Are you the chorus?" enquired, rather rudely, one of the characters in a "classical burlesque" of the last generation. "Sir, you're in-de-corus!" replied the leader of that grave and serious body. Nothing could be more stately and seemly than the behaviour of the chorus during the performance of Mr. Gilbert Murray's translation of the Hippolytus of Euripides, at the Court Theatre on Monday. Indeed, the chorus was the wet blanket of the production. As soon as things were beginning to "wake up" a little, and one really began to feel interest in the action, this bevy of beautiful young ladies came to the front, formed in line, and began an almost monotonous chant. Save for a word or a phrase caught at intervals, it was impossible to understand what they were talking about—but it was obvious from the expression of their faces that it was something excessively solemn. It was annoying to believe, as we certainly did, that one was "missing" some excellent rhymed verse. For Mr. Gilbert Murray has done his task remarkably well; so well that there is nothing in his version of the strain and effort which are so often obvious in translations, especially in the rhymed verse in which Mr. Murray writes. Most of the members of the cast had their moments of indistinctness; but sufficient of Mr. Murray's lines got across the footlights to prove the merit of his version—a really remarkable combination of poetic feeling and sound scholarship.

In connection with the Hippolytus, one naturally thinks most of its modernised versions; of Racine's Phèdre, of Rachel, and Sarah Bernhardt. Sarah was too essentially modern to understand Phèdre; she never got beyond ordinary adulterous infatuation. But the Greek Phædra was something more than this. She was the victim of heredity; she was the innocent means whereby the vengeful Aphrodite punished Hippolytus for his "contempt of court." The conception of a number of "jealous gods," always on the look-out for a "malignant" to make an example of, was purely Greek; and so little could it be understood by a modern Parisian that the opera-bouffe satire of La Belle Hélène, with her cheery excuse of "destiny" for all her peccadilloes, was keenly appreciated in the giddy days of Offenbach. The set scene at the Court on Monday was helpful and explanatory. There, on the one side of the stage, in front of the house of Theseus, were the statues of the rival goddesses—the cold, wise Artemis, and the cruel, sweet Aphrodite. If the performance, taken as a whole, was not grand, it was certainly as Greek as simplicity, reverence, and a sense of beauty would make it. Inspired by their "high argument," actors and actresses displayed unexpected ability. Miss Edyth Olive played Phædra with a picturesque earnestness, a poignant intensity, and a keen expressiveness that deserve very warm praise. Every phase of Phædra's agony was shown with sympathetic skill; and Miss Olive's enunciation and declamation were excellent. Mr. Henry Ainley excelled himself as Hippolytus. This young actor is, we feel certain, destined ultimately to hold a high place on the English stage. His voice and his appearance have always been in his favour; and of late he has improved immensely, not only in technique, but in the acquisition of dramatic force and freedom. He displayed as Hippolytus a passionate energy, which, combined with excellent discretion and distinct and direct delivery, made his performance admirably vigorous and impressive. Miss Florence Farr as the Nurse was rather unequal; but she had a good idea of the part, and was very emphatic and assiduous. Miss Gertrude Scott as the Leader of the Chorus was commendably distinct and superbly serene. Miss Madge McIntosh and Miss Gwendolen Bishop were satisfactory representatives of the rival goddesses; and Mr. William Haviland gave a very able and artistic embodiment of Theseus. Mr. Granville Barker was good as the Henchman, his delivery of the messenger speech being a very fine piece of elocution; and Mr. Stratton Rodney enacted the Old Huntsman quite creditably. We were reminded on the programme that the play was first acted when Epameinon was Archon, in the year B.C. 429. In the competition on this occasion, Euripides was first, Iophon second, Ion third, and the rest, we suppose, "nowhere." The Great Unacted of Athens were doubtless going about in Olympiad 87, with their rolls of parchment under their arms, trying to make people believe that their works were "better than Euripides'."

MISS MARY WINIFRED'S CONCERT.

At Bechstein Hall on Thursday evening, March 29, Miss Mary Winifred gave her first violin recital, assisted by Mr. Percy Grainger. The concert opened with César Franck's Sonata in A, and it was at once apparent that in Miss Winifred we have a lady violinist of unusual power and ability. Miss Winifred was associated with Mr. Percy Grainger, and an excellent performance of this fine sonata was given. The violinist was at her best in the Allegro-Recitativo, and played with a broad, expressive style rare indeed among the host of lady violinists. In Bach's difficult unaccompanied Chacone Miss Winifred proved that in all technical matters such as harmonics, double stopping, &c., she is mistress of her most exacting instrument, and in other examples given by this talented young lady, such as in Ries' graceful "Adagio" and "Gondoliera," and C. Cue's charming "Berceuse," abundant evidence was shown that Miss Winifred will take high rank as a soloist. Mr. Percy Grainger, the pianist, proved of great service in the success of the recital, both in the sonata and in three piano solos of Brahms'—Rhapsody in E flat, Romance, and Hungarian Dance. Mr. Grainger also played three Slatter (Norwegian peasant dances). Miss Winifred's final solo was the Bizet-Sarasate Fantasie Carmen, and the applause with which the lady was greeted throughout the concert was abundant evidence of her magnificent gifts.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:—"Do you think it would be possible to find ten really good football players among actors in or round London? Knowing that we have some good men at cricket, it would be interesting to find out if we have good footballers as well."

ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.

The annual meeting of the members of this fund was held on Thursday in the saloon of Terry's Theatre. Mr. Edward Terry, the hon. treasurer, presided, and there were also present Messrs. George Alexander, Cooper Cliffe, Charles Rock, T. F. Dillon Croker, C. T. Burleigh, A. H. Elliott, Geo. Weathersby, Walter L. Rignold, Henry Doughty, M. R. Morand, Lewis Casson, Ewart Harbin, F. L. Chapuy, Chas. J. Davies (secretary), Mrs. B. Reynolds, Mrs. P. J. Edgar, Miss Reynolds, Miss Ada Dyas, Miss Armine Grace, Miss Caroline Ewell, Miss Nellie Christie, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss Emily Hewett, and Miss Lucy Sibley.

(Signed), M. R. MORAND, HY. DOUGHTY, for F. WEATHERSBY, Auditors appointed by the Members.

CHARLES J. DAVIES, Secretary.
A. G. WARREN, A.C.A., Hon. Accountant.
March 23, 1906.

Mr. CHARLES ROCK, in moving the adoption of the balance-sheet, said it was the most satisfactory that had ever been presented. The fund was, indeed, becoming stronger every year, and he should not be surprised if before the end of the year they would be able to pay the full annuities. However, that was not a certainty.

Mr. M. R. MORAND said he had great pleasure in seconding the motion. He thought they could heartily congratulate themselves upon the figures shown in the balance-sheet.

The CHAIRMAN having given the usual invitation to members to offer any comments on the financial statement, the motion was carried.

The CHAIRMAN said he thought that as members of the Fund they should first express their sense of the irreparable loss sustained by the death of their trustee, Sir Henry Irving, who had always shown a deep interest in all the benefit and provident funds connected with the profession. With the exception of this one discordant note, their business that afternoon was of the most cheering character, and as treasurer of the Fund he felt that he occupied a most enviable position. As they saw by the balance-sheet, they were in the most prosperous condition, and his only regret was that more of those among the younger members of the profession did not appreciate the immense advantages the Fund offered. He would give an instance of the good done by the society. He referred to the case of the late Miss Maria Daly, who was an annuitant for many years. To show her appreciation of the benefits she had derived from the Fund, she left the whole of her property, amounting to about £600, to it. And this was not a singular case. Last year only one death occurred, and it seemed that membership of the Fund happily prolonged the lives of its annuitants. They were giving annuities of £115, to be raised, he hoped, after the next dinner to £120, at premiums between 40 and 50 per cent. less than the ordinary insurance societies. He wished to point out that if any member of the society who had been a subscriber for seven years became blind or deaf, he or she at once was entitled to benefit from the Fund. Some time ago, a young lady member who had just completed her seventh year of membership became afflicted with deafness, and immediately came on the Fund. This was an illustration of what the society was able to do in such cases; and it was a pity that the Fund was not more generally known amongst the rank and file of the profession. Last year six young members of the profession had joined the society. In regard to the annuities, £120 had never yet been reached; but of late years they had been very fortunate in having received benefit from the Henry Betty and Lacy bequests. In fact they could congratulate themselves upon being in an admirable position, and, considering the safe way in which the money had been invested, they were not likely to lose ground. But what they did want was new blood, so that the society might become still more successful.

Mr. HENRY DOUGHTY proposed the re-election of the directors, Mr. Robert Courtneidge and Mr. Tom Craven.

Mr. LEWIS CASSON seconded the proposal, which was carried.

Mr. A. H. ELLIOTT, in proposing the re-election of the hon. medical staff, Dr. W. Allchin and Dr. R. Percy Middlemist, said they were under an obligation to these two gentlemen, who were good enough to give their valuable professional services.

Mr. H. DOUGHTY seconded, and the motion was carried.

Mr. WALTER L. RIGNOLD next proposed the re-election of the standing counsel of the Fund, Mr John Strachan, Q.C., and Mr. Ernest De Witt.

Mr. C. ROCK, who seconded, said their thanks were due to Messrs. Strachan and De Witt for their continued interest in the Fund. If anyone dared to take action and these gentlemen defended the case, he believed they would win hands down.

The proposal was carried, and, on the motion of Mr. CASSON, seconded by Mr. ELLIOTT, Mr. Theodore Lumley was re-elected hon. solicitor to the society.

Mr. MORAND proposed and Mr. RIGNOLD seconded the re-election of the accountant and auditor, Mr. A. G. Warren.—Carried.

Mr. ELLIOTT proposed and Mr. DOUGHTY seconded the re-election of the auditors, Mr. M. R. Morand and Mr. F. Weathersby.—Carried.

Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, in proposing the re-election of Mr. Edward Terry as hon. treasurer, said that no word from him was needed to testify to the admirable manner in which Mr. Terry carried out the duties of the office. They were delighted to know that their funds were in such safe custody. He could but join Mr. Terry in expressing surprise that a greater number of the younger members of the profession did not avail themselves of the advantages of the Fund. The exposures of the insurance companies in America might be expected to have some effect on the decision of those he had mentioned. Their expenses were next to nothing, and their investments were of the very best, and no insurance company was able to offer to actors the advantages which this society offered. Generally, when a concern was prosperous, people rushed to it, but the dramatic profession seemed ever blind to the advantages before them in this Fund.

Mr. ELLIOTT seconded, and the proposition was put to the meeting by Mr. Alexander.

The CHAIRMAN, in reply, said he need scarcely tell them that it gave him the greatest pleasure to do all in his power for the good of the Fund; and if any services he could render tended towards its continued prosperity, he was well pleased.

On the motion of Mr. ROCK, seconded by Mr. CASSON, a vote of thanks was accorded Mr. James Welch for the use of the saloon, and the meeting then separated.

SCENIC ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Richard Douglass took the chair at the forty-fifth meeting of the Committee of the Scenic Artists' Association, held at the Adelphi Hotel on Tuesday. There were also present Messrs. E. G. Banks, Geo. R. Hemsley, C. I. Hirst, Harry Potts, H. Woolls, and H. Laurence Harris, the hon. secretary. Letters were read from Mr. Walter Hann, excusing his absence, and Mr. H. J. Craven. The minutes of the forty-fourth meeting were read and confirmed, and signed by the chairman, and the bankers' pass-book checked by the cash-book, and other formal business transacted.

The second monthly social dinner, held at the Adelphi Hotel on Tuesday, was attended by the following members of the Association:—Messrs. Harry Potts, C. J. Dodson, Richard Douglass, E. G. Banks, H. Warner, C. E. Markham, C. I. Hirst, Geo. R. Hemsley, C. Watson, P. W. Glasee, H. May Hemsley (treasurer), H. Bull (and five friends), Ernest J. Humphries (and friend), H. W. Owen, R. C. McCleery, J. Johnstone, G. Herbert Wallis (and friend), Alfred Ford, C. Bruce Smith, J. C. Holliday, W. Bruce Smith (and four friends), Chas. E. Caney, John England (and friend), Harry Woolls, H. L. Jacoby, G. H. Paterman, C. W. Douglass, and two friends of Mr. Walter Hann and of Mr. Ernest Hann, and H. Laurence Harris (hon. secretary). The dinner was followed by an excellent concert under the direction of Mr. W. Bruce Smith, to which the following members contributed items:—Messrs. H. May Hemsley, C. I. Hirst, Ernest J. Humphries, W. Bruce Smith, and others. Mr. H. W. Owen fulfilled the duties of chairman, and Mr. J. C. Holliday kindly obliged as pianist and accompanist.

The next monthly social dinner will be held at the Adelphi Hotel on Tuesday evening, April 24, at eight o'clock, and applications for tickets should be made (with remittance and stamped addressed envelope) to the hon. secretary, Mr. H. Laurence Harris, at 23, Whittingstall-road, Fulham, S.W., not later than Friday, April 21.

The next committee meeting will be held at the Adelphi Hotel at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 24, and members will kindly accept this (the only) intimation.

MRS. BROWN-POTTER created so favourable an impression by the dramatic episode of the life of Mary Queen of Scots, in which she appeared recently at the Coliseum, that its author, Mr. Reginald Kennedy-Cox, was emboldened to elaborate the scheme, with the result that he has written a four-act play dealing with an entirely new phase of the career of the unfortunate Queen. The piece has been accepted by Mrs. Potter, who contemplates its production at a West End theatre in the autumn.

THE Imperial Theatre will be closed during Holy Week, on the Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of which Mr. Lewis Waller and his company in Brigadier Gerard will pay flying visits on the respective days to Portsmouth, Birmingham, and Manchester, where matinées will be given. The Imperial will re-open with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's piece on Easter Monday.

ARTHUR BOURCHIER ON THE DRAMA.

The Gallery First-Nighters, who held their annual dinner at Frascati's Restaurant on Sunday, numbered some eminent representatives of the drama among their guests, the company including Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Kate Rorke, Miss Mary Rorke, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Oscar Asche, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hentschel.

The toast of "The Drama" was responded to by Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, who began his interesting speech with an amusing illustration of a dream of the theatres of the early forties, when "star" actors were wont to fix tin-tacks in the stage to signify the point beyond which no super should go. "Forty years later," continued Mr. Bourchier, "there was in London-over-the-Water a stage, one corner of which possessed a curious, and, to a nervous young actor, very disconcerting, echo, and the junior member of the company was invariably edged into that corner, so that he might be disturbed by the phonographic repetition of his own voice! Still I slept on, but I turned in my sleep. I was in a tiny theatre off the Tottenham Court Road, once known as the 'Dust-hole,' now as comfortable and as pretty as any drawing-room. I could hardly believe my senses, so great was the change brought about within a few years by a clever pair. From the Bancrofts, the dear Bancrofts, managers all the world over got many a valuable lesson in the art of producing plays, and to them is very largely due the position that the stage occupies to-day. Wigs joined, doors opened and shut as if they were real doors, and not mere strips of canvas, and, above all, the play was clean. All honour to the Bancrofts. 'The stage they loved revived beneath their sway. They made art earnest, and they kept it pure.' A change came o'er the spirit of my dream, and I found myself witnessing a demonstration of morbid psychology by a professor of that art. I thought I had strayed into the dissecting-room of a hospital or the consulting-room of a specialist in mental alienation, for the play which I witnessed dealt with a peculiarly loathsome and repellent subject, and I awoke, shrieking with horror—much to the alarm of the servants.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I maintain that the public do not want to go to the theatre to see a re-hash of the sweepings of the divorce court, offered to them as a picture of English home-life in the nineteenth century; the dramatist of our youth did not endeavour to persuade us that a presentation of the abnormal, individually and collectively, was a presentation of the typical. Many a play, many a book, has succeeded, and rightly succeeded, because it attacked a public abuse, and, in the attack, brought public opinion to bear so powerfully upon that abuse that it was swept away in a flood of righteous indignation. Witness, for instance, Charles Reade's powerful novel and equally powerful play, It's Never Too Late to Mend, which scorched the iniquities of the prison system of that day as with a flame; witness, again, 'Nicholas Nickleby,' which sealed the doom of the pestilential tribe of which 'Squeers' was the prototype.

"In this connection (I mean plays which draw attention to some crying public scandal) may I tell you of a little drama which I saw the other day in one of those petite theatres, so full of exuberant artistry, with which Paris abounds? The scene represented the house-surgeon's sitting-room in a hospital. Four doctors were discovered playing cards. Enter a nurse. She says that a man has just been brought in, seriously injured. One of the doctors says, "All right—presently," and they continue their game. The nurse, returning a few minutes later, says that the case is most urgent, but once more she is driven away—this time with abuse. Again she returns, and one of the doctors, throwing down his cards with a grunt, says he will go to the case. The nurse replies: 'Monsieur, you are too late!' There, ladies and gentlemen, was a play in little containing a moral that is great. But no play has ever made for the good of its author, its producer, the actors engaged in it, or of any one else, which had a breach of the seventh commandment for its pivot, or the display of the seamy side of private life for its raison d'être. To me there is always something nauseous in the presentation of these things, either in books or on the stage; we know they exist, and always will exist as long as human nature is what it is; but we go to the play wishing to forget them, not to see them. 'It was the presence of innocence, and not the absence of clothes, that constituted the charm of the Garden of Eden,' and the man with the muck-rake is not wanted within the walls of the play-house. He certainly will never hold sway in my theatre; and it rests with you, free and independent gallery first-nighters, to make his stay elsewhere both brief and inglorious. As sure as 'the drama's laws the drama's patrons give,' if you will, you can send him back to the obscurity from which he ought never to have been allowed to emerge. There is nothing novel in his methods, for wherever there are two men and a woman, or two women and a man, there is bound to be trouble. To pervert the old proverb, 'Where there's a frill there's a fray!' I admit, however, that I see the point of view of these dramatists, which is, that it is so much easier to devise a plot based upon the old, old theme of Uriah the Hittite, or of Joseph and Potiphar's wife, than to write a clean, wholesome story, which leaves a pleasant taste in one's mouth, such as the evergreen and delightful comedy She Stoops to Conquer. I see this point of view, but I do not for one moment admit its justice, and I know from experience that the reward is great for one who will take the extra pains and exploit the wholesome, which, after all, is the grandest thing in art.

"In this present year of grace, the art of acting is, in my humble opinion, on the up-grade, but the craft of the playwright hangs in the balance. Are our writers for the stage to-day prepared to emulate the example of the hero of Longfellow's poem, whose triumphant cry was 'Excelsior,' to take the hard but only way that ennobles them and leads them towards the uplifting of the true standard of the British drama? or are they satisfied to lay back on the ephemeral rewards of the society for the promulgation of the greatest possible fees with the least possible labour? If I might, in all humility, give a hint to the rising dramatist, it is this: First tell your audience what you are doing, at the same time clearly indicating what you are going to do; and, finally, be certain that you have convinced them with what you have done. Fine actors and pleasing actresses, although perhaps they may not be said to grow on trees, still blossom and flourish in our land—that land in which all that is beautiful in art has always received appreciation and a generous measure of support—be it art that is native or art that is foreign. Ladies and gentlemen, believe me—and I feel as a manager—the drama of to-day has no more zealous devotees than our actors and actresses; they are ever ready to answer to the call of their author, but it is ungenerous, it is monstrous of the authors of to-day to lay to their charge all the shortcomings in an unsuccessful play, while taking to themselves all the credit of their triumphs. Many an indifferent play has been tolerated—nay, has even achieved a satisfactory run—owing to the success of individual pieces of acting. After all, a play to be acted should be an actable play, and not an elaborate literary disquisition, to be taken in small doses after dinner in an easy-chair."

Miss KATE RORKE responded for "The Visitors," and referred in graceful terms to Miss Ellen Terry's exalted position in the hearts of theatre-goers.

The CHAIRMAN proposed, in glowing terms, the health of Miss Ellen Terry, who responded by a simple expression of thanks; and the evening concluded with an excellent concert.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 29.—M. Romain Coolus has given us a clever play, which, however, has the drawback of leaving a decidedly painful impression, inasmuch as it shows us a man old in years and passionately in love. His name is Julien Bourneron. He is a widower, rich; and, when the story begins, has had for the last two years a liaison with Mme. Bérieux, a young widow, with whom he has just returned from a trip through Italy. But Pierre, Julien's son, a man of austere principles, does not approve of this love affair, especially as he knows that Mme. Bérieux is by no means a faithful mistress. Anxious to put a stop to it, he induces his sister, Emilienne Gardan, to take her father with her to her elder sister, Jeanne Grossmuller, in Ribeauvillé. When I say he induces her, I am not using the right expression. The truth is that Emilienne has a lover, Henri Flavigny, and Pierre, having discovered her secret, uses it as the means to coerce her. When father and daughter arrive in Ribeauvillé they are wretched. Emilienne is anxiously waiting for a letter from Henri, and the old man cannot understand why he is without tidings from Mme. Bérieux. At last he receives a short note from his mistress, wherein she informs him that he will never see her again. Mad with grief, he wants to rush back to Paris, but his son Pierre stands before him, and from him he learns that Mme. Bérieux has gone away with a young man she met in Italy. That scene between father and son is harrowing. "It is you who induced her to leave me," cries M. Bourneron. "Yes, it is I," replies Pierre; "she deceived you, and I took the only course possible." But M. Bourneron is inconsolable. "Why did you interfere?" he says. "You should have left me betrayed, but happy." Emilienne is not proof against her father's grief, and promises to help him. With the assistance of Henry Flavigny she discovers Mme. Bérieux's retreat, and implores her not to abandon her father. Yielding to her entreaties, Mme. Bérieux promises to visit him "occasionally." But the old man understands, and we all know that, despite his loving daughter's care, he will die of a broken heart. Unconsciously perhaps, the author has not made his heroine sympathetic. She is a tyrannical little party, who rules her father and her lover with an iron hand. We begin to like her better when she shows compassion for the old man; but she displays this gentleness only towards the end of the piece. The work was well acted, especially by M. Huguenet, whose impersonation of old Julien was masterful. It was no easy rôle, and only an artist of M. Huguenet's temperament could have given us the right impression of the man who forgets that there arrives a moment in our lives when it becomes calamitous to give way to tender feelings. As Emilienne, "l'enfant chérie," Mlle. Marthe Regnier also hit the right note. She gave us the woman such as the author intended her to be, without making the hopeless attempt to render her sympathetic. The other rôles, too, were excellently rendered

"LE JEUNE HOMME D'EN FACE," the new farce by MM. André Sylvane and Alfred Sauvenière, brought out at the Palais-Royal, is not likely to set the Seine on fire. Mme. Dupontois has caught her husband making love to the maid, and to punish him, and also to teach him a lesson, resolves to rouse his jealousy She writes love letters to herself, and the house is filled with bouquets bought by her, but supposed to have been sent by her admirers. Her scheme is in so far successful that her husband really becomes frightened, and applies to one of his friends for assistance. The friend proposes to disguise himself as a Police Commissary, and to pounce upon Mme. Dupontois when she meets her supposed lover. The inevitable imbroglio follows. Everything, of course, comes right in the end. Mme. Dupontois convinces her husband that she has only bluffed him, and the latter promises never to trouble either the maid or the cook.

"APHRODITE."

Musical Play, in Six Tableaux, by Louis de Grammont, Music by Camille Erlanger, Produced at the Opéra Comique on March 27.

Chrysis .....MLLE. MARY GARDEN
Bacchis .....MLLE. CLAIRE FRICHE
Myrto .....MME. MATHIEU-LUTZ
Rhodis .....MME. DEMELLIER
Théano .....MLLE. REGINA BADET
Démétrios .....M. LEON BEYLE
Timon .....M. ALLARD
Philodème .....M. D. DEVRIES
Callidès .....M. GHASNE

All who have read M. Pierre Louys' erotic novel, "Aphrodite," were much surprised when they heard that M. de Grammont intended to use the plot for a lyric drama. It was altogether a mistaken idea, and the result has shown that M. de Grammont was wrong in having attempted it. For obvious reasons the poetically described scenes in the book could not be reproduced on the stage, and the librettist, therefore, had to fall back upon processions, ballets, &c., giving us, so to say, a big repast, consisting chiefly of hors-d'œuvre. The rather commonplace story is very simple. Démétrios, the sculptor, is in love with Chrysis, the beautiful courtesan, who begins by repelling his advances, and finally tells him that the only way to win her favours is to lay at her feet Bacchis's mirror, Touni's comb, and Aphrodite's necklace. The artist achieves these feats; but when the people in Alexandria hear that the priestess has been murdered, and the murderer has laid sacrilegious hands on the statue of the goddess, they are mad with indignation. Démétrios, too, repents the crimes he committed, and he compels Chrysis to show herself in public, adorned with the stolen jewels. She is arrested, sentenced to drink hemlock, and is buried by the two little flute players, Myrto and Rhodis. To this story M. Erlanger has written some cleverly orchestrated music, which, however, would have been more suitable to a sombre melodrama than to the slight plot of Aphrodite. It is altogether too brutal and lacking in charm. The composer has been most successful in his description of the orgy at Bacchis's house, and in the love duet interrupted by the shrieks of the people. The rôle of Chrysis was a dangerous one, and it required all Mlle. Mary Garden's tact to show us M. Pierre Louy's heroine without startling us more than strictly necessary. The other parts were also well sung, and the work was excellently mounted.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

A municipal theatre is about to be tried in the town of Schoeneberg, a flourishing Berlin suburb. A company has been formed with a capital of £20,000 to conduct the theatre, but the building itself will remain the property of the town. The cost of building the theatre is estimated at £60,000, and the corporation advances at once the sum of £50,000, and has agreed to pay the remaining £10,000 when the twenty years' lease which has been granted to the theatre company expires. The rent has been fixed at a sum which will cover 4 per cent. interest on £5,00., the value of the land on which the theatre is built, 4 per cent. interest on the £50,000 advanced by the corporation, the fire insurance premium, and the annual amount required to pay back the invested capital in thirty-five years. The theatre company may charge what price it chooses for the boxes and for half of the seats on the floor of the house; but for the rest of the seats no higher price than 2s. each may be charged, and other amounts are to be in proportion.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee of the Actors' Association held a meeting on Saturday last, Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), William Devereux, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Charles Cruikshank (secretary) being present. Mr. Cecil Bartle's proposition in connection with the publication of a monthly magazine by the Association was discussed, and the financial prospects of success considered. A matter concerning the personnel of the staff was considered, and a resolution on the subject having been passed, the secretary received instructions.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council was held last Tuesday, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mesdames Carlotta Addison and Saba Raleigh, Messrs. Blake Adams, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, William Devereux, A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Fewlass Llewellyn, Norman McKinnel, Quinton McPherson, Walter Russell, Spencer Trevor, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The hon. solicitors were requested to take proceedings to enforce a member's claim, and they reported they had advised several members. Miss Vera Leslie's scheme was again under consideration, and the secretary received instructions as to exhibiting a notice, with particulars, in the rooms of the Association.

A letter from a member containing suggestions was considered, and it was agreed that the same should be referred to the members for discussion at the next bi-monthly meeting. A question of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was under consideration, and the secretary received instructions to place the papers in the hands of the hon. medical officer of health. Messrs. Dolland and Co., 113, Cheapside, E.C., were appointed opticians to the Association. The Finance and General Purposes Committee's report was received and approved. Three former members were reinstated, and Edith Deverell was nominated for election. The secretary was directed to summon a meeting of the Special Committee to be held to-day (Saturday) at 12.30. The Suggestion Book was considered and an entry made.

The National Trades Exhibition, held annually at Bingley Hall, Birmingham, was opened with due pomp and ceremony by the Lord Mayor of the city, Mr. Councillor A. J. Reynolds, on Thursday, when the exhibits, side-shows, manufactures, and general attractions visible showed that its promoter and manager, Mr. George Stanley, had in no wise abated his efforts and success in this hardy and popular annual. The band of H.M. Yorkshire Dragoons is in attendance.

The National Theatre Society, from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, which paid London a visit last November, and made very creditable appearances at the St. George's Hall, will be at Manchester next month, appearing at the Midland Hall there on April 23 and 24, going afterwards to Liverpool and Leeds. The plays to be acted will consist of Kathleen ni Houlihan, by W. B. Yeats; The Pot of Broth; Mr. Synge's two short plays, Riders to the Sea, a tragedy of fishing life in the West, and The Shadow of the Glen, the dramatic form of an old tale which the author heard in the cabins; Mr. William Boyle's Building Fund; and Lady Gregory's Spreading the News, the majority of which have been already seen in the metropolis. By the terms of the patent of the Dublin Theatre, all the plays must be written by Irishmen, or on Irish subjects, or must otherwise be foreign masterpieces. A translation of Molière's "Le Médicin malgré lui," is now in rehearsal for performance in Dublin, and in the autumn the Society will produce one of the great Greek tragedies, as well as Mr. W. B. Yeats' next poetic drama on Irish legend, and new plays by Lady Gregory, J. M. Synge, and others.

A. Walcott.—The licence of Cremorne Gardens "lapsed for ever" on Oct. 5, 1877.

The funeral of Mr. Arthur Rich, a well-known comedian, who had reached the age of sixty-two years, took place at Harton Cemetery, South Shields, on the 23rd inst. The mourners were Mr. Stephen Crossley, Mr. Charles A. Leicester, Mr. Douglas Tremayne, Mr. J. Telly Dilston, Mr. Charles Digby, and Mr. Tyrone Power (members of Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk's company); Messrs. J. and F. Coulson, lessees and managers of the Theatre Royal, South Shields; Mr. J. Hopper, Mr. J. Dennison, Mr. T. Oates, Mr. H. Woodfine, Miss Farrington, Miss Shaw, Miss Hilda Shaw, Mrs. Fuller, Miss Paulton, and Mr. J. J. Dockwray. Beautiful wreaths of flowers were sent by Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson, the lady staff of the Theatre Royal, Mr. G. Carlton and company, of which deceased was a member, and Mr. and Mrs. George Kirk's company.

"The American Heiress," the musical comedy at His Majesty's Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness, this week, is a great success. Mr. Frank Barclay does much credit to the part of Lord Stonyhurst, and Mr. John Wilkinson as Stuart McNab is exceedingly humorous. The part of Captain O'Reilly is full of wit as undertaken by Mr. Paditz Dupres, and Mr. E. O. Freshwater does well as Colonel Hiram Windbag; while Mr. Walter Westwood plays the character of Jack Grey in a clever manner. Miss Margery Gray is excellent in the title-rôle, Miss Minnie Walsh is very pleasing as Cora Brooklyn, and the singing and dancing of Miss Dolly Doyle as the French maid are very taking. Miss Gipsy Touzeau gives a capital character-study as Miss Strongmynde.

In the Colchester Bankruptcy Court on the 23rd inst. Captain John Henry Lang Sims, of the 3rd Battalion Sussex Regiment, appeared for his examination. The statement of affairs showed a deficiency of £593, a solitary asset being a bad book debt for £25. The debtor stated that last August he joined in partnership Mr. Ralph Le Butt, who had theatrical experience, but no capital. He opened the newly built Grand Theatre at Colchester, although he was not solvent at the time. He denied having told Colchester creditors that he was prepared to spend £5,000 on the Grand Theatre; what he said was that there was a lot of money behind the theatre. Asked as to his experience of management, the Captain said he had done a good deal of acting. The examination was adjourned.

At the Theatre Royal, Dewsbury, this week, Mr. George Dance's Orchid company has appeared. As Meakin Mr. Tommy Nelden is the life and soul of the evening; Mr. Arthur Helmsley as Zaccary is a capital dancer, his efforts being greeted with much applause; Mr. Fern Pounds as Scrymgeour and Mr. W. Griffin as Fausset succeed in their respective rôles, as does Mr. E. Nainby as De Cassignat. Miss Dorothy Firmin portrays Lady Violet in fine style, and Miss Elsa Brull as Jo could hardly be improved upon. Miss Madeline Maud makes the most of Caroline Twining, and Mr. Gordon Begg is to be praised for his capital performance as Chesterton.

Princess Ena, accompanied by her mother, visited the Apollo Theatre on Thursday afternoon, when Miss Cowper-Coles gave a matinée on behalf of the Home of Rest, Shanklin.

SORE THROAT OR HOARSENESS
CURED IN A FEW HOURS.
Sir Morell Mackenzie, M.D., the Eminent Throat Specialist, constantly recommended Condy's Remedial Fluid to be diluted and used as a Gargle for speedily curing Sore Throat or Hoarseness.
Dr. Walford Harris, in his book entitled "The Throat and its Treatment," says: "I have found the 'Condy' and cold water gargle excellent, many cases being cured immediately."
The late Mr. Sims Reeves, the world-famed Tenor Vocalist, wrote: "'Condy' used as a Gargle clears the voice and braces up the uvula."
Condy's Remedial Fluid, sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's."

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, 1s. 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. This useful little work, which brings nearly up to date the calendar of dramatic events which is so excellent a feature, is, as usual, full of stories over the signature of prominent stage lights. To those interested in the business of the theatre the work has become a necessity by reason of its valuable record of the progress of the drama.—Financial Times, Jan. 22, '06.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) is, of course, issued by our premier theatrical journal, which, under the literary supervision of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, has recently improved an already strong position. The Annual is better than ever, and includes, besides details of all plays produced in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin, lists of all theatres and music halls in the United Kingdom, &c., many stories and sketches by and portraits of actors and actresses. It is a remarkable shillingsworth; useful and interesting to all playgoers and members of the profession alike.—Sunday Sun, Jan. 21, '06.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual again makes its welcome appearance. I say welcome because, as a work of theatrical reference, it is always handy to have in the house—or office. In this connection I am glad to note that the lists of play-productions for the past year are given in better type and altogether in a much clearer manner. As of yore, there are sundry stories in prose and verse. The best of these include "Stage Superstitions," by Charles Warner; "Boy Bob at Sea," a poem by Louie Freear; "The Last Muster," a weird tragic military story, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, who has been a soldier himself; and "Nellie Bligh's Notices," a capital theatrical story, by Mr. Frank Desprez.—Referee, Jan. 28, 1906.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanac and Annual for 1906, is not only a valuable collection of information and a history of the dramatic and musical year. It is also a very amusing and entertaining shillingsworth It contains contributions from many well-known actors and actresses. Mr. Frank Desprez, the editor, contributes a delightful story about an actress who sold her collection of Press notices in order to help a colleague in distress. There are numerous portraits. The lists of English, French, and German plays produced during the year are very useful. Altogether, "The Era" Almanack is indispensable to all interested in the stage.—The Star, Jan. 24, 1906.

MR. BOURCHIER ON BAD PLAYS.

Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER's interesting speech in response to the toast of the Drama at the Gallery First Nighters' dinner at Frascati's on Sunday last was full of interest and suggestion. It was a protest against the "unpleasant" in dramatic art; against demonstrations of morbid psychology in plays, and against the use of breaches of the Seventh Commandment as material for "entertainments of the stage." "No play," said Mr. BOURCHIER, "has ever made for the good of its author, its producer, the actors engaged in it, or of anyone else, which had a breach of the Seventh Commandment for its pivot, or the display of the seamy side of private life for its raison d'être. We know these things exist, and always will exist as long as human nature is what it is; but we go to the play wishing to forget them, not to see them."

Mr. BOURCHIER's first statement is a somewhat sweeping one. One of the most profitable plays that was ever written—East Lynne—dealt with the subject which he is inclined to entirely taboo; and in The Walls of Jericho we have an "approach," as a golfer would put it, to the Forbidden Theme. What Mr. BOURCHIER means, we imagine, is to attack the modern foreign play in which adultery, in its different forms, is analysed, dissected, and generally examined and discussed; and to deprecate dramas in which, at the expense of decency and optimism, social subjects are discussed generally in a spirit of the darkest gloom.

Englishmen, as a rule, have no sympathy with "that sort of thing." If an Englishman is a rake, he takes his vices as he takes his meals, in a blunt, inartistic, and utilitarian spirit. As he usually marries from inclination and not from interest, he makes no excuses for himself if he goes wrong; and if his wife betrays him he simply appeals to the Divorce Court in order to get rid of her. He does not philosophise; he acts. The French have been philosophising about adultery for centuries; but it is only recently that they have legalised divorce. In England, the drama is primarily an amusement and a diversion. If we discuss social questions we do it in books and newspapers or at public meetings. We ask of our stage a recreation after practical effort, not an assistant in the improvement of society. On the French stage of late years, every social question—even the suckling of babies by their mothers instead of by wet nurses—has been quite seriously treated. In Germany, dramatists like STRINDBERG and HAUPTMANN have dealt with life in a spirit of bitter protest. But that is because people in those countries go to the play in quite a different state of mind to that in which the majority visit the theatre in England.

We admit that there is in this country a small minority of people who, being cultured, are also cosmopolitan. But they do not represent the public. The average Englishman is entirely out of sympathy with the art feeling of the Continental nations. He believes in "specialising" different departments of life. "Let General BOOTH and the Charity Organisation Society," says he, "be in their places; let the British drama be in its place too." Marriage is a contract; if either side break the said contract, and there are injuries; well, the Courts are open—"let them implead one another." But, in the name of goodness, says the Britisher, don't let us mix up art and sentiment with the matter. If the Englishman reads a French novel, it is for its indecency, not for its philosophy. All these stories of the sighings and sorrows of married women who find they have made mistakes, and haven't the honesty to stand by their bad bargains, sicken him. The success of the English nation has been won, not by its Intellect, but by its Character. England has always consisted of millions of stupid people, who are yet shrewd enough to realise their stupidity and let the thinking be done for them by a few hundreds. It is the majority to whom the theatre has to look for its patronage, and not to the hundreds, who are too much occupied, as a rule, with their particular philanthropies to care about the stage, or at any rate do not want to see the subjects they understand so thoroughly travestied so as to satisfy audiences which do not understand them at all. Britons have a horror of discussing questions which they consider are settled; and they are strong believers in the theory that a council of war always ends in a surrender. For instance, Monna Vanna, as Mr. WILLIAM ARCHER explained on one occasion in the witness-box, was written to "discuss" the question whether, if a town were sorely besieged, and the garrison were suffering severely, it would be admirable or reprehensible for a hitherto-virtuous married woman to offer herself up as a naked sacrifice to the chief of the besiegers on the condition that he marched off his troops. The average Briton does not want to "discuss" the question at all. He simply says, speaking as the general of the besieged to the captain of the besiegers, that he will see him damned first. We may be certain that if a parallel case had been put to the vote of the garrison of Ladysmith, even at their utmost extremity, they would have scornfully and profanely rejected the offer of the amorous Boer general. And, to the English reader or playgoer, this "discussion" of adultery seems not so much shocking as unnecessary. In the novels of M. PAUL BOURGET, when the married heroine "goes wrong," we have every phase of her declension described and "discussed." We are told what she felt, what the young man felt, and what—eventually—the husband felt. Every detail of her chute is supplied, even down to mentioning the most intimate articles of feminine attire. All this does not interest an English reader at all. He likes his sensuality "neat," not mixed up with a sentiment which seems to him sickly, and an analysis which appears to him entirely uncalled for. But—and here we arrive at a curious quirk of the English character—the virtuous Englishman is half ashamed of his virtue. He likes to pretend that he is a "dog," and it is an expression of the height of friendliness to poke him in the ribs with your forefinger, and tell him that he is a "devil among the women." This accounts for the liberal patronage that is occasionally bestowed by the middle class—and only by the patronage of the middle class can a long run be obtained—upon such plays as Pink Dominoes and others whose names will immediately occur to the practised playgoer. The Anglo-Saxon, essentially prosaic, and too excellently animal to be Epicurean, snatches a fearful joy as he books seats to see a play which outrages his secretly-cherished convictions and derides his carefully-concealed correctness of conduct. But this is merely the revenge he takes on his self-imposed restrictions; the Saturnalia in which he—strictly pro tem.—casts off the yoke of his submission to the Seventh Commandment.

It is not safe to rely on these periods of reactionary prurience; and, as Mr. BOURCHIER says, the more wholesome and less nauseous the story of a play, the more likely is it to prove profitable to its author, its producer, and the actors engaged in it.

Mr. F. Anstey is a writer who creates extraordinary effects with very simple materials; and this because he is, essentially, a realist. In his novel "Vice Versâ" he showed intimate acquaintance with the manners and customs of schoolboys; in The Man from Blankley's, which was revived with complete success at the Haymarket Theatre on Saturday evening, he satirises the well-to-do middle class, whose chief habitat, according to Mr. Anstey, is Bayswater. A good many inhabitants of that salubrious district will object to the picture which he draws of the pretentious, pinchbeck existence which Mr. Anstey depicts in The Man from Blankley's. They will protest that people in Bayswater do not give their friends bad wine, and very little of it; that their minds are not for ever concerned with base and petty considerations; that they do not worship the aristocracy; and that they are not at all dull. In one particular, we think Mr. Anstey's picture is a little out of drawing. Two of his caricature-people—the old maid and the pseudo scientist's wife—are ostentatiously melancholy. So far as our observation has gone, we think this is an error. The people whom Thackeray called "Snobs" are, as a rule, unconsciously but completely contented. It is the people who study them who, to use a beautiful colloquial euphemism, "get the hump." Indeed, it is an additional sadness to the thinking observer to see the rest of his Bayswater personages Mr. Anstey the "snob" flourishing like a green bay-tree in his smug and cheerful self-satisfaction. In all has suggested this ignorant elation. Mr. Poffley is convinced that he is an irresistible "charmer"; Mrs. Tidmarsh has not the least suspicion that she is not a perfection of "style"; and long-continued tyranny in his "social circle" has imbued Mr. Gabriel Gilwattle with an irremovable idea of his own superiority. Apart from its most amusing action, The Man from Blankley's is a social satire of brisk pungency and keen observation. We have all met in our youth the elderly relative whose lofty patronage inspired in us feelings of revolt, and the old lady who thought young people should be kept in their proper places; and, as for the irrepressible Mr. Poffley, he is too well invented not to be convincing. Mr. Anstey's collection of curiosities is thrown into strong contrast by the opposition of two perfectly bred people — the quietly-wise and sensitive Miss Seaton, and the good-natured, unegotistical Lord Strathpeffer. Strathpeffer's cheery endurance of the situation which he has created by his blunder; his persevering attempts to tolerate his temporary companions, and to humanise them "for this evening only"; his long-sustained suffering of insignificant indignities—until at last he is really annoyed, and turns on Tidmarsh with an authority which completely subdues him—all these touches of Mr. Anstey's pen tell immensely. He is fortunate in having for the revival of his piece such an artist as Mr. Charles Hawtrey to represent the leading personage of the play. Mr. Hawtrey is so essentially and so unconsciously well-bred, well-dressed, and well-groomed that he is an ideal Strathpeffer; and he sustains the amusing part with complete confidence and assured exactness. He is absolutely at his ease in the part, and is quite delightful in it. Miss Dagmar Wiehe plays Miss Marjory Seaton in just the right spirit, looking very pretty in a very smart dress, and acting with all the required repose and refinement. Mr. Weedon Grossmith's Montague Tidmarsh is exquisitely quaint and comical, every touch being intensely artistic, and the make-up being a marvel of ingenuity. Mr. Henry Kemble's Gabriel Gilwattle is a "joy for ever," with his portentous conceit, his curious cranium, his amazing attire, and his organ-like utterances. Mr. Welton Dale supplies a smart little character sketch as Mr. Toomer; and Mr. E. Holman Clark is quietly and naturally droll as Mr. Jeremiah Ditchwater. Mr. H. Laurent, with an excellent exterior, makes the most of Bodfish's few but valuable opportunities, and Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald is so well fitted by nature to impersonate Mr. Poffley that it is indeed difficult to imagine a better exponent of the rôle. Mr. Arthur Playfair's solemn butler is a marvel of serene magnificence, and Miss Fanny Brough's Mrs. Montague Tidmarsh has just the surface gentility and substantial vulgarity required, the hard nature underlying the lady's sham sweetness being admirably suggested. Miss Alice Mansfield's Mrs. Gilwattle is a characteristic reproduction of a familiar type; Miss Lydia Rachel hits off the cheery commonplace of Mrs. Bodfish with neatness and effect; and Miss Gwynne Herbert is duly sentimental and affected as Mrs. Ditchwater, Miss C. Ewell being very quaint and amusing as Miss Bugle. Miss Maud Wynter does excellent work as Miss Cecilia Flinders, and Miss Winifred Winter plays Miss Gwendoline Tidmarsh quite nicely and prettily; Miss Muriel Alston and Miss Mary Leslie being very efficient as servants. Mr. Walter Hann's suburban drawing-room and Mr. Ernest Hann's dining-room in the same genre are neatly realistic. The revival of The Man from Blankley's was often interrupted by outbursts of hearty laughter; and, the applause at the conclusion was sufficient testimony to the delight and amusement of the audience. The comedy was preceded by that capital one-act piece, A Privy Council, in which —Mr. Sydney Valentine having been delayed on his voyage back to England—the part of Samuel Pepys was played with much skill and dry humour by Mr. Cecil Rose. Mr. Louis Goodrich now undertakes the rôle of Sir Christopher Mings, and sustains it quite picturesquely; Mr. E. W. Tarver represents Sir William Killigrew cleverly; and Miss Ruth Maitland is pleasing and natural as Mrs. Pepys, Miss Mona Harrison being bright and brisk as Mercer. Miss Muriel Alston is a smart Chambermaid, and Miss Alice Crawford repeats her previous success in the character of Mrs. Knipp.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

A deputation of the committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund waited upon Mr. J. L. Graydon, the president of the Fund, for the purpose of informing him that it was the unanimous wish of the committee that he should be invited to take the chair at the annual dinner, and they hoped that he would consent to do so. His kind and constant work in furthering the usefulness of the Fund ever since it was started was so well known that the committee thought that, by his accepting the position, he would be doing an act which they felt would meet with the utmost support and gratification from the profession at large.

Mr. Graydon said that he had already devoted much of his time to the work of the Fund, as they were all aware—more sometimes than he could conveniently spare. Still he had aided in the good work for so many years that if the committee thought it would further help the cause of charity, he would be pleased to accept the honour they wished to bestow on him.

The deputation thanked Mr. Graydon for his kindness, and withdrew. We understand that Sunday, April 29, has been suggested for the function.

Mr. Charles Warner has been specially engaged by Mr. Oswald Stoll to appear at the three and six o'clock performances at the Coliseum from Monday next, April 2. He will be seen in his world-renowned character of Coupeau in Drink, in two acts. The cast includes Messrs. Harry A. Gribben, Alfred Phillips, Geo. Elliott, and F. Seville, together with Mesdames Mary Allestree and Helen Graeme.

The Putney Hippodrome is the latest suburban theatre of varieties and music hall. The foundation stone will be laid to-day at three o'clock by Sir Henry Kimber, Bart., M.P. The new place is situated in Felsham-road (late Gardner's-lane), within a few yards of Putney High-street, and near Putney Bridge. The architect is Mr. Frederic W. Hingston, Portland House, Basinghall-street.

Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Beerbohm Tree and two of his daughters, Miss Mary Moore, Mr. Basil Gill, Mr. C. W. Somerset, Miss Constance Collier, Miss Adrienne Augarde, Miss Kate Cutler, Mr. Henry Dana, and other members of the company from His Majesty's Theatre, attended the special matinée, on the 22nd, of Naughty Nero at the Oxford. Mr. Tree was warm in his congratulations as to the excellence of the production, and on the 23rd inst. write the following kindly letter to Mr. Arthur Roberts:—"I must write you a few lines to thank you for yesterday's performance. My little children and I enjoyed it greatly. It was very good-natured, and nothing calculated to hurt. I think I was most pleased with the murdered parts."

Mr. Ben Nathan, the well-known manager of Ashton's Agency, in Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, left England on Wednesday by the s.s. Baltic for the States on business connected with that firm. Mr. Harry Lundy, the former manager of the Oxford, sailed by the same boat to represent the whisky firm of W. Anderson and Co.

As Miss Florence St. John and two ladies were driving on Monday afternoon down that narrow declivity, Durham House-street, leading out of the Strand to the Tivoli stage door, the cab overturned, and the trio were pitched out on to the pavement. The popular artist, who had to be dragged from her perilous position by the legs, was found to have sustained a slight cut on the wrist and a few bruises. In spite of the upset, however, she was able to fulfil her promise to appear at Mr. James Howell's testimonial benefit, and played with her customary piquancy the part of Mrs. Merridew in My Milliner's Bill.

In spite of a blizzard on Monday afternoon, a dense crowd awaited the arrival of the Jap sailors outside the Coliseum, which was packed from floor to ceiling. Togo's men were given the best seats in the stalls, and the officers were in the Royal box. Count Mutsu, who is Chargé d'Affaires at the Court of St. James, in the absence of Viscount Hayashi, was present. In addition to the usual programme, some fine pictures of the Russo-Japanese war, pictures of the two new Japanese battleships on which the sailors are to return home, and one of the Dreadnought, were shown. After the performance, high tea was served in rooms bedecked with chrysanthemums and Japanese flags, the waitresses being dressed like geisha girls.

In the evening they went to the Alhambra, where their vociferous appreciation of the performance filled the house with enthusiasm. It was a great night, recalling the scenes enacted on "Ladysmith" and "Peace" nights. The "Fall of Port Arthur" was shown in Urbanora pictures for the benefit of the visitors, whose hearty roars of laughter and thunderous applause it did everyone good to hear.

Mr. Chris Wordsworth, who resigned his position as acting-manager at the Surrey to enable him to devote all his time to his variety agency, was on Monday evening presented by his former staff with a handsome travelling bag and rug. The gifts were handed to Mr. Wordsworth by Mr. Charles Craig, his successor, in the saloon of the Equestrian, the hosfelry adjoining the theatre. Mr. Wordsworth acknowledged the gift in a few felicitous phrases.

We regret to hear that Mr. Paul Courtney, the well-known sketch artist, is lying seriously ill, and has been unable to appear with his company for eight weeks. Thanks, however, to the kindness of Mr. Sam Barnard and Mr. John Lawson, Mrs. Courtney has been playing the sketch, The New Doctor, successfully, with the able assistance of Mr. Charles Clark. Mrs. Courtney will be pleased to hear from friends at 1, Thornhill-square, Camberwell.

Miss Victoria Monks is again to the fore with a new song, entitled "Is London like it used to be?" which should be a great success. The authors are Messrs. Castling and Murphy, and the fortunate publishers Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.

Roma and Romani are now at the Lyceum, and their refined musical act has been so successful that they have been retained; so that London proprietors have now an opportunity of seeing their turn.

Mlle. De Dio, whose beautiful dances have made quite a sensation in Vienna, where she is now appearing at Ronacher's, has had the honour of performing before Archduke Ferdinand, the Prince of Coburg, and practically the whole of the Royal Austrian Court, except the King. She terminates a most successful six weeks' engagement there to-day, and opens at the Wintergarten, Berlin, on Sunday, for two months. A very pretty compliment was paid to her a few nights ago. With her husband, Mr. P. H. Boggis, and a party of friends, she paid a visit to Maxim's, which is a well-known night café in Vienna. Soon after she had been seated, scores of small bouquets were thrown to her from all parts of the café, and in a short space of time her table was covered with beautiful flowers—so many, indeed, that she had to engage another carriage to take them to her hotel.

Another change of management in the Hastings Hippodrome has to be recorded. Mr. Albert Mathan is the new residential and general manager, and entered upon his duties on Monday, the 19th inst. He announces a reversion to the "two-shows-a-night" system at Easter. On Saturday night last Mr. Mathan, on behalf of the staff, presented a gold watch to Mr. Fred C. Ewing, his predecessor in office.

Nottingham is shortly to be provided with another big music hall similar to the present Empire. A syndicate, of which Mr. Walter de Frece (Vesta Tilley's husband) is the moving spirit, and who already own big variety halls in seven or eight of the principal cities of the country, have purchased the site in Lower Parliament-street on which Messrs. Starey's premises now stand, and they will commence building as soon as their plans have passed the Works and Ways Committee of the City Council. The site has an area of considerably over 1,000 yards, and the position is an admirable one for the purpose.

The plans were placed before the Buildings Committee of the City Council on Friday, the 23rd, and though they were not finally passed, the alterations which the committee recommended were only of a minor character. No difficulty is anticipated in that regard, and another week should see the official sanction to the building given.

The proposed structure will contain three tiers, the same as the Empire—a pit (with stalls near the stage), a dress circle, and above that the gallery. The stage entrance will be in Lincoln-street, so that the building will have a depth of nearly 70 yards. The architects are Messrs. Crewe, Briggs, and Parkes, of London.

At a meeting of the Committee of the Brighton Police-Aided Scheme for Clothing Destitute Children, held in the Brighton Town Hall on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Arthur R. Hollands, the manager of the Brighton Hippodrome, was presented with a massive black marble and bronze timepiece, with two bronze and marble figures to match, in appreciation of his efforts on behalf of the matinées given at the Hippodrome in aid of the scheme.

The Mayor of Brighton (Ald. J. Colbourne, J.P.) said that, with the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barrasford and Mr. Hollands, the scheme had been crowned with great success, the recent matinée performance at the Hippodrome realising £127 13s. 4d. The presentation to Mr. Hollands was made by the Mayoress.

The clock bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the Committee of the Brighton Police-Aided Scheme for Clothing Destitute Children to Mr. Arthur R. Hollands, manager of the Brighton Hippodrome, in recognition of his valuable assistance in arranging a matinée in aid of the funds in 1905 and 1906, which resulted on both occasions in unqualified success. March, 1906."

Mr. Hollands, in responding, acknowledged the great help he had received from the whole of the staff of the Hippodrome, and particularly from Mr. Brown, Mr. Johnson, and Mr. Clark. It was impossible, he said, to overrate the assistance afforded him by Mr. Ayres (hon. secretary to the Scheme Committee), whose energy in disposing of the tickets had contributed largely to the success of the matinées. Should Mr. Thomas Barrasford lend the hall for another matinée, he (Mr. Hollands) would only be too pleased to do all he could to make it even more successful than the previous matinées.

Mr. Tom Carr, viola player, passed away at Hanley last week. He was an old and highly respected member of the profession, having done thirty years' service, the last few being spent in the orchestra of the Grand, Hanley, under Mr. J. H. Cartmell, the musical director, with whom he had played for thirteen consecutive years. During his career Mr. Carr held engagements with Moss and Thornton, Barrasford, &c. The interment took place on Sunday, the body being followed to its last resting-place by many sorrowing friends. The deceased was treasurer of the Hanley and District Orchestral Society, about sixty members of which were at the graveside. On Sunday morning, at their rehearsal, Chopin's Funeral March was played. The deceased was in his fifty-eighth year.

The Secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £2 as a donation from Messrs. H. and M. Rayne, of Waterloo-road, being the part proceeds of the sale of their useful little date and telephone book; also from Mr. Harry Randall, collected by him at the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, the following amounts:—Harry Randall £2 2s., Harry Fragson £1 1s., Arthur Williams £1 1s., Walter Passmore £1 1s., Arthur Conquest £1 1s., and Johnny Danvers 5s.

At the last meeting of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund the committee investigated 31 applications for relief, and granted assistance in 27 instances.

An enormous demand has arisen for the beautiful waltz, "San Sebastian," composed by Bandmaster Samuel Dodwell, of the London Rifle Brigade, and late of the Coldstream Guards, a waltz just published by Messrs. Francis, Day and Hunter. The composer is pardonably proud of the following letter received by him on the 23rd inst:—"El Secretario Particular de S.M. El Rey, Madrid. Count de Andino, Private Secretary to His Majesty the King of Spain, has much pleasure in informing Mr. Samuel Dodwell, in answer to his letter of the 19th inst., that there is no objection to his dedicating his waltz, 'San Sebastian,' to His Majesty.—Mr. Samuel Dodwell."

Lee and Arden, the well-known West of Scotland al fresco entertainers, have again secured the sole permit for Saltcoats. This will make their fourth season there. They have also been granted the Newton Park by the Ayr Town Council.

Sanford and Lyons, in consequence of their success at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, this year, have been re-engaged by Mr. John Hart for next season. They open in town on Monday at the Oxford, Metropolitan, and Granville.

Before Mr. Registrar Giffard, a sitting was held on Wednesday for the public examination of Edward Cleary, who filed his own petition. In September last, with about £2,500 capital, he became lessee of the Olympia Exhibition buildings and grounds, and on Dec. 22 opened the premises as the Winter Palace of Sport, where he organised football and other athletic contests and games, and produced a variety entertainment. In reply to Mr. E. L. Hough, Official Receiver, the debtor said that he was an American by birth, and before coming to this country had some experience in producing operas and plays in the United States. The entertainment known as Savage South Africa was at first a success, but it was not patronised to the same extent after the South African war, with the result that he became involved in difficulties, and arranged with his creditors, whose claims amounted to about £3,000. He did not pay them all in the same proportion; some received more, and others less. In connection with the Winter Palace of Sports at Olympia he estimated that he had lost nearly £10,000. With the exception of the arrangement with creditors of February, 1900, he had not previously failed. The examination was concluded.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lashwood (Lottie Williams) entertained a few friends on Sunday last, the eighth anniversary of their wedding. The happy reunion lasted until the small hours of the morning.

Mr. Lennox Barry, who was for a short time manager of the Battersea Palace, has lately been filling a similar position at the Hounslow Hippodrome. He has now been appointed by Mr. Walter de Frece resident manager of the Wolverhampton Hippodrome, where he commences his duties on Monday next.

The Terriers on Sunday last gave a hearty welcome to their travelled brother Mr. Fred W. Millis on his return from a tour in the East. He was elected to the chair for the ensuing month. The fraternity is arranging its Good Friday Dinner and Social, and will give its sixth social concert (the last of the season) to-morrow at the Dover Castle, Westminster Bridge-road, with Mr. Millis in the chair. The annual general meeting of the Terriers will take place on Thursday, April 26.

Mr. Frank Glenister is much interested in the case of Genevera Alberta Lewis, aged eight years, the eldest daughter of Brother Quartermaster-Sergeant Lewis, who is a candidate for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls at the election in April. Our readers who are subscribers to the noble institution mentioned above will aid a deserving case by forwarding their votes direct to Mr. Glenister at the London Pavilion.

The vast number of fishermen in the profession (Ernest Shand, Gus Elen, and Harry Tate among them) will hail with delight "The Angler's Guide," which Messrs. Hardy Bros., the world-renowned rod-makers and tackle experts of Pall Mall and the London and North British Works, Alnwick, have just issued. The beautifully got-up and well-illustrated volume of 400 pages, which is sent free on application, is not merely a catalogue of the specialities of the great house, but bristles with readable articles by experts on every kind of fishing, both at home and abroad, in fresh and in salt water.

Though Mr. Bransby Williams is afflicted with a bad cold, and has considerable difficulty in keeping faith with the public at the Empire, he is scoring a success there with his Dickens impersonations. He had a grand benefit at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, towards the conclusion of the pantomime, which achieved a record run. The most gratifying testimonial to his popularity was the presentation from the stage staff of a silver sovereign purse and match-box, suitably engraved.

On the last night of the production he was presented with a beautiful wreath of laurel, and addressed the audience a few words of farewell. On behalf of himself and Miss Winifred Hare he made presents to Mr. John Gaffney (the manager), Mr. George Saker (musical-director), and Mr. H. McLelland (stage-manger). Mr. Williams is re-engaged by Mr. F. W. Wyndham to play principal again next year. He has been recently elected a vice-president of the Dickens Fellowship, of which Mr. H. F. Dickens, K.C., is the president.

Mr. E. H. Dobson, the able manager of the Shepherd's Bush Empire, has been extremely busy this week supervising the rehearsals of the new sketch Missing; or, The Light of Day, to be produced on Monday evening at the music-hall mentioned. The playlet has been written by Mr. Preston Hone and some musical numbers have been composed by Mr. Ernest Vousden. Mr. Johnnie Schofield and Mr. J. C. Piddock, who will produce the sketch, will play leading parts in it, and will be supported by a capital company of artists.

At the Stratford Empire on Tuesday, April 3, two grand anniversary performances will be given. It was on April 3 that the Stratford Empire was opened, and, consequently, it has now completed seven years' most successful existence. Two specially augmented programmes will be submitted, among those who have kindly consented to appear being Marie Lloyd, May Henderson, Esta Stella, Bessie Featherstone, Harry Bedford, Morton Comedy Trio, H. Sloane, Cora Caselli, Walter King, Ella Lane, Tom Edwards, Ross and Grayson, Marguerite Broadfoote, Beatrice Willey, Frank Leslie, Robb Harvey, Percy Yorke, Eugene Stratton, American Comedy Four, Jordon and Harvey, and Ella Shields.

Mr. F. Baugh and Mr. Leonard Mortimer were the prime movers in organising the final free dinner of the season for poor children, which took place on Saturday at the Alexandra Trust, City-road, the youthful guests numbering no less than 2,000. Mr. Baugh is Mr. Thomas Barrasford's manager for the Macnaghten London Circuit, and, at his invitation, the children first comfortably assembled in the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, and then marched to the Alexandra Trust.

Mr. Leonard Mortimer, who worked with Mr. Baugh in this matter, is very popular in Hoxton owing to his association with the King's Theatre, Pitfield-street, and both these gentlemen were ably assisted by Mr. J. T. Reader, who is well known in the district, and takes a keen interest in charitable work of this description. During the past season 7,421 youngsters have been provided with free dinners in this way.

"The Players" will appear on Monday in Her Last Chance at the Richmond Theatre. They also have in preparation, and will shortly produce, in the West End, a funny farcical sketch, written expressly for them by Mr. George Unwin.

The Dunedin Troupe have arrived at the end of their journey—Chicago. They had a terribly rough passage from Southampton to New York on board the Philadelphia. In fact, on the night of Friday, March 9, they all thought they were going down. It was a terrible experience. Men and women, crying and praying, ran about the ship with lifebelts on them.

At the Chelsea Palace on Sunday evening next the entire proceeds of the concert organised by the National Sunday League will be given to the funds of the Royal Victoria Hospital for Children. Mr. Angelo Asher's Cadogan orchestra has been specially engaged to provide the music, and a most attractive programme is arranged.

Miss Winifred Hare, who opened at the Tivoli on Monday, was afterwards due at the Paragon, but was too unwell to finish her evening's work, and has since been suffering from influenza. She hopes to reappear next week, when she will sing for the first time in London one of her pantomime successes entitled "One little lonely star," written by John P. Harrington and the late George Le Brunn.

The Metropolitan and City Police Relief Fund will benefit materially by the twenty-second anniversary entertainment, arranged by the E, or Holborn, Division, which was given at the Holborn Empire on Friday, the 23rd. The handsome new hall, with its amplitude of space, its brilliant lighting and warmth, careful ventilation, and the comfort of its appointments, was filled to the limit of its seating capacity. Mr. Walter Gibbons generously placed the hall at the service of the fund.

More than twenty-three hundred shillings have been received by Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, for the Music Hall Home Shilling Fund. Mr. Arthur Lennard has just sent in his card containing subscriptions to the value of £7—the largest amount up to the present. Will holders of cards please forward them as soon as possible?

Miss Mabel Thorne was unable to reach the Bedford on Thursday night for the second house, owing to a brougham mishap, and Mr. A. F. Lovesy was fortunate in securing the services of Miss Katie Lawrence to step into the breach. She appeared in walking costume, and sang "It's 'Daddy' when a baby," with all her customary charm of expression, distinctness of enunciation, and power of voice.

Mr. James Willard, supported by a capable company, presented on Monday evening at the Hammersmith Palace, for the first time in London, the dramatic and humorous sketch, entitled Did He Deserve It? The audience followed the various incidents in the piece with great interest, and it was received with unqualified favour. No doubt Mr. Willard's admirable acting contributed largely to this result; but credit was also due to the clever performance of the champion mastiff "Tiger," and to the other members of an all-round excellent company.

Many of our readers will be interested to learn that Mr. Sidney Lawrence, 14, Stockwell Park-road, S.W., a brother of Miss Vesta Victoria, has become an agent for the celebrated Darracq and Minerva cars. He has already supplied not a few of the leading members of the profession with these well-known automobiles.

In consequence of the success that Mr. Ernest Shand has achieved at the Tivoli and other London engagements with his new comedy satirical song, "Look at the weather we're having," this number has been acquired for publication, and will be put in the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's "Sixpenny Successes." The same enterprising firm also has Mr. Shand's new "Curate" song, "Oh, dearly beloved brethren," in the press. Both songs are written and composed by John P. Harrington and James W. Tate.

Mr. Gus Garrick has introduced into his act a parody of the famous methods of the famous Otero, the pet of the Parisians. He makes a quick change from a kilted Scotchman to a Spanish dancer, bedecked with frills and furbelows, and in quite a "skittish" manner puts considerable grace into his amusing burlesque of a seguedilla.

At the Alhambra on Thursday afternoon, under the patronage of his Excellency M. Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador, and the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of the City of London, a matinée performance was held in aid of the fund for the relief of the distress occasioned by the Courrières Colliery disaster. An admirable programme was arranged. Mr. Charles Warner, appropriately enough, recited in his usual magnificent style "The Mouth of the Pit," and Mr. Harry Lauder evoked great merriment with his songs "She's ma Daisy" and "The Miner." Mr. Fred Terry was down for a recitation and Miss Julia Neilson for a song. Miss Ethel Irving delighted the crowded house with her rendering of "Oh! ha, ha," from Mr. Popple of Ippleton, and Miss Violet Lloyd made herself extremely popular with her singing of "The first post in the morning."

During the afternoon a charming young vocalist made her first appearance on the music hall stage. This was Miss Annie Mars, a girl of sixteen, who enchanted her hearers with her interpretation of a French song, "Quand l'amour meurt" by Crémieux. The young singer possesses a powerful dramatic soprano voice, and the meaning of the words of the songs was accentuated by expressive gestures. In short, Miss Mars acted as well as sang her verses, and at the end received a most gratifying ovation, being called twice before the curtain, and afterwards personally complimented by Mr. Alfred Moul, the managing-director of the Alhambra. We may reasonably expect to hear a good deal of Miss Mars in the future.

Signor Armando Lecomte, an Italian baritone, gave a fine rendering of the "Toreador" song from Carmen, and Master Lionel Ovenden, the twelve-year-old musician-composer, executed in capital style Saint-Saëns' "Introduction et Rondo Capriccioso." Other names on the programme were those of Sam Elton, the juggler; the Yuilians Family of Risley acrobats; the Four Harveys, in their wire act; Mr. Harry Fragson and Miss May de Sousa, with songs; and "Little Jumbo," from the Royal Italian Circus. The orchestral features were the "L'Entente Cordiale" march and "Reminiscences of Gounod," both by the able conductor, Mr. G. W. Byng. The afternoon's entertainment concluded with the three last scenes of the ballet Parisiana, and a series of "Urbanora" pictures.

Miss Marie Warford (Mystic Marie), Dr. Bodie's Real Trilby, celebrated her coming-of-age last week, when Dr. Bodie in her honour gave a grand banquet at the Manor House, Macduff, his beautiful Highland home. A large number of friends and relatives were present, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Miss Marie had over a hundred presents, many of them being of great value. A very large hoop diamond ring was given her by her father, and her mother gave her a handsome dressing-case and travelling bag mounted in silver. A beautiful butterfly brooch set with diamonds, rubies, and pearls came from Miss Bella Skene. Miss Marie, who has been lately indisposed, is now convalescent, and hopes at an early date to rejoin the Doctor, who will on his next appearance in London introduce his sensational act, The Real Trilby, one of the greatest novelties ever submitted to the public.

Daisy Dormer, the coon impersonator, will terminate a most successful engagement at the Palace Theatre to-night. She is compelled to leave London to fulfil two weeks' special engagement in the provinces, but will return on April 16 with her two most successful songs, "I want a girl," by Geo. Collins and Edgar Bateman, and "I'm goin', I'm goin', I'm goin'—I'm gone," by Chas. Collins and Harry Castling, both of which have been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day.

Frederick Maxwell's stirring sketch, The Revolution, has proved an immense draw at the Bedford. Mr. Maxwell, Miss Lois du Cane, and company will be seen at the Foresters' and Royal Albert, Canning Town, next week in Bluejacket and Dick Dare, M.P.

The Monte Carlo Publishing Company, of Berners-street, have this week accepted, for immediate inclusion in their "Sixpenny Successes" series, a new song which Miss Millie Lindon is producing at the Palace Theatre on Monday next, entitled "Mary—she kept a dairy," the words of which are written by Mr. Ballard Macdonald (author of the popular "Tiny firefly"), while the music is from the pen of Mr. James W. Tate (composer of Miss Lindon's successful song "In Barcelona").

"Missing; or, The Light of Day," the new musical comedy sketch, written by Preston Hope, and composed by Ernest Vousden, will be produced at the Shepherd's Bush Empire on Monday, April 2, with Johnnie Schofield and J. C. Piddock in the prominent parts. The costumes are by Harrisons, Leicester-square.

Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. are already installed in their new premises, which, when completed, promise to be the most up-to-date and best-appointed music publishing house in the country.

Miss Millie Lindon has just accepted, with a view to production during her engagement at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, two new songs by Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, which are tentatively entitled "Nisbe" and "Remington."

The Monte Carlo Publishing Company have accepted for immediate publication two new songs, written and composed by Messrs. Fred Murray and Charles Hilbury, entitled "Look out, boys! there's a girl about," and "Send along a wire," with which Miss Lottie Lennox is making quite a furore on the Stoll tour. Both numbers will be issued in the firm's popular "Sixpenny Successes" series.

Lady Mansell, attended by six girls, the youngest said to be just over ten years of age, came before Mr. Cluer at Worship-street Police Court, on Monday, with a representative of the Britannia Theatre, to apply for licences for the children to appear there in a sketch. The magistrate said that some of them were too young, and he would not bring himself to grant licences for such children to take part in music hall work. It was obvious that they earned a living for others. If, because the children were licensed elsewhere, people who were interested felt aggrieved with him, they could go to the High Court, and apply for a mandamus to compel him to grant the licences

At the 456th meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, held at the general offices on Tuesday, Mr. Frank Gerald occupied the chair. There were also present Messrs. John Alexander, George Gray, Charles Pastor, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and passed, the secretary alluded to the recent death of Mr. John Humphreys, one of the founders of the Association, and it was resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow. A question of insurance was taken, and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the company. A letter from a railway theatrical agent giving a satisfactory answer to a complaint was read, and in the case of three members falling out of a party duly arranged, it was decided to reimburse the railway company, and to ask for an explanation from the members concerned. Mr. T. Stead, of the Hippodrome, Ipswich, was appointed agent for that town. An old member, who had fallen out of the Association through misfortune, was reinstated, the committee in this case remitting the fines. The secretary reported that eleven new members had joined during the week, and the financial statement showed that the receipts for the like period amounted to £39 10s. 6d.

Miss Marie Loftus, who "tops the bill" at the Shepherd's Bush Empire next week, was born in Glasgow of Irish parents, and was quite a child when she first went upon the stage. For her first engagement out of her native town at Leeds she drew 25s. a week. Since her début there Miss Loftus has had a varied experience, for not only has she visited all the principal palaces, theatres, and Empires in England and America, but she has taken South Africa by storm, and has completely won the hearts of the Johannesburgians. Miss Marie Loftus has a capital voice, and her songs are chosen judiciously. She is also a mimic of no mean order. Her great difficulty lies in the obtaining of songs suitable for her. She frequently purchases fifty before she comes across one that is of the least use to her.

Mr. Alfred Lester has been recently referred to as the "scene shifter comedian," owing to his success at the Palace Theatre in his "Scene Shifter's Lament." This has given rise to an erroneous statement that he was originally a stage hand. As a matter of fact, he had been for several years a low comedian in the provinces before he appeared at the Palace some few months ago. His father, mother, and grandmother were all members of the profession, his father having made a reputation in English Opera at Covent Garden, and in several of the well-known touring opera companies of a quarter of a century ago. Mr. Lester has recently joined the Madame Lingerie company at the Palace, in the part of the Broker's Man, which has been specially written up for him with lines suitable to his particular style of work. He sails on Wednesday next from Liverpool by the Majestic for a season in New York.

Miss May Henderson is a bright star in the Hackney Empire programme next week. When little Miss May Henderson—then quite a child—lisped her first song, there were not wanting many with a critical appreciation of budding talent who prophesied a big future for the vivacious little comedienne. A queen in her particular line she certainly has become. Miss Henderson undoubtedly owes a great deal of her success to the tuition of her father, the well-known Billy Henderson, who for years enjoyed a big London and provincial reputation as a clog dancer and humorist. Three years later at Liverpool she introduced her big boot dance. In pantomime Miss Henderson is an assured success, having played Topsy at Stoke Newington, Theatre Royal, Sheffield, and the Cannibal Queen at Fulham.

Mr. Will Evans, the favourite comedian, who will appear at the Stratford Empire in his latest success, "I am a soldier," is the son of the famous Drury Lane clown of the same name. His mother was a famous dancer, and he first appeared on the stage in 1881 in a Drury Lane pantomime. He started "double turn" in London in 1890 with Ada Luxmore. He has visited America twice, and when his partner died some years ago he started as a "single turn," and scored a great success. He has played in many pantomimes; is a composer, also a cueist and a cyclist. He is fond of a joke on the stage and off, and is a motorist.

Miss Maude Mortimer, we are pleased to announce, has almost completely recovered from her serious operation, and has been quite a frequent visitor at Messrs. Feldman's during the last few days, busily engaged in rehearsing her new songs, one of which is entitled "Fairies," from the able pens of E. W Rogers and John Neat.

Mr. W. F. Frame starts his spring tour in the North on Monday at Arbroath, with a strong company.—Mr. Ernie Mayne is again in London, scoring with new songs by J. P. Long, Harry Wincott, and Alf. Ellerton.—Poole and Poole finish to-night the Tivoli and Queen's, Glasgow, and start on tour for four weeks with W. F. Frame.

Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, who has finished a very successful and comfortable engagement at the Palace, opens on Monday at the Canterbury and Paragon.—Regan and Ryan are scoring heavily with a new comedy act which is a scream from start to finish.—Woodhouse and Wells, after a successful stay of half a year in town, will leave for a provincial tour of four months.—Mr. Charles Beanland will produce a novel speciality song, "The Topical Cartoonist," at the Westminster, Liverpool, next week. This song, which has been specially written for him, enables him to introduce lightning sketches of great men and accompanying patter.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

LONDON PAVILION.

One of the most interesting turns on Mr. Frank Glenister's list at the popular London Pavilion is Miss José Collins, the daughter of Miss Lottie Collins, the well-known burlesque artist and comedienne, who won fame at the same hall twenty years ago, and later became world-famous as the singer of "Ta-ra-ra Boom-de-ay." Miss José is a strikingly pretty brunette, with all the charm and freshness of a girl in her teens. Her voice is of good quality, and has been well trained, a fact that one may easily gather from the rendering of mezza voce passages in her first song. In her second, "A Bamboo Bungalow," she displays considerable command of expression and much archness. Her final dance puts the finishing touches to a pronounced success. Mr Tom Clare, who is labelled "humorist at the piano," is another find for Mr. Glenister. Mr. Clare, who gives as an introductory piece an excerpt from a pianoforte concerto by Mendelssohn, depicts the state of mind of a musician who is haunted by the melody of "Hiawatha." He may be playing "The Lost Chord," but the solemn rhythm of that fine composition gives way to the more playful melody; and even the jubilant strains of the inspiriting "Wedding March" from Mendelssohn's Midsummer Night's Dream music are apt to resolve themselves into the popular American tune. As a concluding item Mr. Clare sings an original skit of the coon song, and his reception is a sufficient proof that refined turns at the piano are always welcome to London Pavilion audiences.

Mr. Percy Honri, who returns time after time to the popular Piccadilly Circus establishment, is responsible for a finely-played selection on the concertina, accompanied by the band under Mr. Bond Sayers. On the night of our visit he chose the overture to Le Diadème, by Hermann, of which he gave an excellent rendering. By some the concertina is not regarded as a musical instrument. All prejudice against it vanishes when one hears such a virtuoso as Honri. The Motramos, who return to renew the pleasant impression they created on a first visit, hold the stage in a very diverting turn, in which melody and mirth are allied. The mere man of the duo is a capital comedian of the G. P. Huntley type, and the lady, also an excellent actress, is a magnificent specimen of womanhood. She accompanies her partner in a selection on the saxophone, and plays the trombone with considerable ability. Vandy has now become a jester as well as a juggler, and accompanies his numerous clever tricks with a constant flow of amusing patter; Mr. George Mozart, in his entertainment "Hats," and his impersonation of "Bertie, the Dandy M.C.," is one of the strong cards of the programme; and Espirosa and Neilson interest the audience deeply in a ballet divertissement of the days of Taglioni and Lucille Grahn, when harmony of gesture accompanied the poetry of motion.

Miss Ida René, who has just returned from a triumphant tour in the States, has brought with her a special conductor, Mr. Arthur Pell, of the Belasco Theatre, New York, who has charge of the orchestra while Miss René sings a "card" song, in which the four suits become in turn trumps. Miss Marie Dainton, who apparently requires no other conductor than the excellent chef d'orchestre, Mr. Bond Sayers, makes a pronounced hit in her imitations of Miss Evie Greene, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Marie Lloyd, and Miss Connie Ediss. Mr. Edwin Boyde returns with the same songs and business, in which he scores a success; and Mr. Arthur Prince renews agreeable reminiscences by his ventriloquial business with the cabin-boy figure.

We have few humorists so funny as Mr. Neil Kenyon, whose patter as a packman is decidedly quaint and original. Mr. Phil Ray is another droll talker. Miss Pertina as a toe-dancer furnishes a unique speciality; Boyd and Gilfain are clever and laughter-provoking in a diverting operetta; Miss Nell Richardson sings sweetly "Within your heart"; Foreman and Fannan are a whimsical duo; and Mr. Josh Dixon, comedian and the Three Prestons in their absurdity The Liftman's Rise add to the attractions of the bill.

THE MIDDLESEX.

Mr. Frank Coyne, lively and vivacious as ever, is this week singing a number of amusing verses, the chorus of which runs "Wait for loo-ra-lay," and is applied to various experiences described in whimsical fashion by Mr. Coyne. His second appearance is as a Highlander—or, rather, an imitation of one—and he asks the question, "What's the use of a pair of kilts?" The melody which acts as an accompaniment is of the brisk and invigorating order, and the lines are rendered with good effect and expression by the singer. Mr. Leo Dryden in serious recitations and songs can always be relied upon to give a good account of himself. He may be said to be teaching a moral in his first number, "The Prodigal Son." Attired in the fur-lined coat which George Alexander made famous at Drury Lane, he tells the story of the man who, after having led a dissipated life abroad, returns home to ask his father's forgiveness—too late. His other song, "Bachelor Boys," is also rendered with appropriate feeling, and receives great favour. Mr. Phil Ray, with his irresponsible patter, is irresistibly funny. His quaint mannerisms, ridiculous gestures, and movements are in themselves a source of intense merriment, let alone his humorous anecdotes. The New York Quartette are most charming young ladies, who contrive to hold one's attention with their singing and dancing. Particularly smart is their performance of a Parisian quadrille. Mr. Larry Lewis, the successful comedian, keeps the house in a flutter of merriment while he is on the stage, and Miss Ethel Dove, an engaging and chic comedienne, appears in a highly acceptable little act.

A commendably interesting and refined sketch is that entitled His Birthday, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene. An old country couple are awaiting the arrival of their son from Australia after a ten years' absence, and have made special preparations for a homely reception and celebration, for the return will also mark the occasion of a birthday anniversary. But a clergyman, who was in Australia with the young man, enters with the sad news that the youth died three days prior to the sailing of the ship. Mr. Royston-Dene plays the part of the old farmer with a naturalness and reality which makes his study appear something more than a mere simulacrum, and his Yorkshire dialect is correct, and not carried beyond sensible limits. Mrs. Royston-Dene gives us a delightful character in the rôle of the mother, her lines, especially in the pathetic ending, being admirably rendered. Mr. Ernie Mayne appears as a deputy for Mr. Gus Garrick, and his funny remarks and absurd mannerisms evoke roars of laughter. Spry and Monti in their "effective combination of wit and humour" are as sprightly and entertaining as one could wish, while the Lyons Trio prove themselves to be skilful pantomimists and dancers. Both Mr. Tod Lowen, the comedian, and the Kimberley Boys, eccentrics, are seen and heard in exceedingly entertaining acts.

Miss Laura Johnson, who made her début in the halls at the Middlesex on Monday, made an immediate triumph with her delightful costume recitals. Her act is an extremely interesting one. First she appears in the advocate's scarlet robe as Portia, and with fine elocutionary effect renders the lines of that character, as well as of Shylock and Antonio, in the trial scene from The Merchant of Venice. Then, a change of costume, and we are shown Lady Macbeth walking in her sleep; another change, and Poor Jo commands our sympathy. In each of her impersonations Miss Johnson shows consummate skill as an actress, and she possesses wonderful powers of facial expression—in short, she has the dramatic temperament to a really remarkable degree. We have no doubt that her turn will be very welcome on the boards of the variety theatres. Mr. Edward Cranston and his company present the sensational episode, A Story of Exmoor, in which Mr. Cranston acts in admirable style the rôle of a sturdy Coastguardsman, and Miss Hilda Millett charms the house as Phœbe. Miss Sable Fern sings in exquisite taste some enchanting lyrics; the Four Athos astonish everybody with their daring acrobatic and ball-manipulating act; and from the New Bioscope we have all the latest and smartest pictures.

HOLBORN EMPIRE.

The old "Royal," which flourished exceedingly at a period when the variety entertainment held a much less important place in public estimation than it does now, has felt the influence of changed conditions, and, transformed into the Holborn Empire, must now be included in the select list of modern variety theatres that are quite abreast with the times, both in appearance and in regard to the performance which fills the house twice a night. The delights of "'Appy 'Ampstead," as represented in the well-known sketch of that name, continue to be happily and merrily realised by Mr. Joe Elvin and his company. Nothing more humorously realistic has been seen at the "halls" than the scene representing the famous Heath on a Bank Holiday, with its joyous crowd of holiday-makers. All the fun of the fair, indeed! Are we not assured that the roundabouts, the swings, the boats, and, above all, the donkeys, are "the actual ones seen upon Hampstead Heath on Bank Holidays"? And then there is Mr. Joe Elvin with his droll and life-like embodiment of the coster who is taking a leading part in the cockney festival. Of the well-sustained popularity of 'Appy 'Ampstead there can be no question.

American humour is well represented by Stine and Evans in their duologue entitled Wanted—a Divorce. The gentleman gives a highly diverting embodiment of an American lawyer anxious to secure a wealthy client, and the lady is a very spirited representative of the married woman who wants a divorce. The lawyer, desirous of impressing his fair client, pretends to hold friendly conversations through the 'phone with Mr. Chamberlain, Sir Thomas Lipton, and other distinguished personages. The piece is enlivened by the introduction of some duets, in one of which the couple cleverly burlesque grand opera. A capital piece of fun is supplied by the Karno Trio in their sketch The Travellers' Rest. The two hungry men who attempt to make a meal upon a fowl and other viands which suddenly vanish are old stage acquaintances, but it is a piece of business that always excites the merriment of the audience. Another equally effective device is the interruptions which a banjoist meets with while playing by moonlight alone. The trio consist of two male performers and a lady who plays the part of the landlady at the inn.

Miss Daisy James introduces her latest success, "Don't take the trouble to call," which is well received, but we certainly give the preference to her "Gibson Girl" ditty, in which she submits a piquant portrayal of our fair American cousin. Mr. Ernie Mayne is furnished with a most amusing parody on "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you," which is received with roars of laughter. Another capital comedian is Mr. J. W. Rickaby, who gets a good deal of genuine fun out of his policeman impersonation, and is perhaps even more comical as an extremely awkward-looking soldier, whose ditty is ingeniously made up of various popular melodies. Little Cliff is a smart boy who not only sings in good style, but is an exceedingly clever dancer. He is recalled several times, and his success is very marked. As a dancer Miss Cassie Walmer also holds an enviable position, and she makes a big hit with "Mr. Coon, your number's up" and "You never miss the water till the well runs dry." Very successful, too, are the couple known as the Ferraris. Their skill as dancers is generously acknowledged by the audience. The Columbia Trio are excellent vocalists, their voices blending very harmoniously, while the comedy element is a strong point in their pleasing entertainment. Baker and Balfe, a lady and gentleman, take high rank as xylophone experts; and La Belle Americaines are a quartette of attractive lady vocalists and acrobatic dancers. Miss Leah Ardern, comedienne, and Hurley and Cole, society entertainers, also contribute; and the recent glove fight between O'Brien and Fitzsimmons is shown by the Bioscope. Mr. Eustace Jay is the courteous manager at this hall, and the orchestra is under the direction of Mr. James Sale.

THE SURREY.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten evidently believes in giving his patrons an abundance of enjoyment, for throughout the entertainment approbation takes the form of continuous laughter. The pièce de résistance is the episode Did He Deserve It? played by Mr. James Willard and his clever company. In a charming set we are introduced to Nell Forester, a variety artist and the champion lady boxer of the world, who is living in a flat, and has for a page a diminutive lump of mischief named Dicky. Nell has just got her contract signed for a long engagement when she receives an unexpected visit from an old admirer, Archie Beresford, who by his own frank confession is a villainous and heartless roué. He tries to make friends with Nell, but she tells him "if he doesn't clear out of her flat she will give him a good hiding." Before taking his departure he tells Nell that he is much struck with the beauty of a little flower girl at the corner of the street. Nell warns him against doing any harm to the girl, as she is her protégée. Beresford thinks discretion the better part of valour, and leaves. Dicky brings Nell a wire which calls her out, but gives Dicky full instructions that should the little flower girl call to take care of her, and warns him not to enter the bedroom, as her dog Tiger is there. The pretty little flower-seller comes with her flowers, but she and Dicky are interrupted in their tête-à-tête by the return of the unscrupulous Beresford, who soon shows Gertrude Lee what his intentions are. Finding his persuasive powers are powerless to move the girl he attempts force, and in the struggle that ensues she rushes into Nell's bedroom, when a magnificent mastiff springs on the villain and holds him by the wrist. Nell, finding the wire is a bogus one sent by Beresford, happily returns in time to call the dog off, but tells Beresford she means to punish him in the good old English style. Hastily gathering up her skirts, she dons a pair of four-ounce boxing-gloves and sets about the villain in fine style. Nell is fully equal to her task, and puts in some fine work, and eventually leaves the villain vanquished. All the savagery in his brutal nature is now aroused, and he turns on Dicky and threatens to kill him; but Nell and her dog soon place him hors de combat. Miss Lydia Hart as Nell Forester acts as well as she can box, and that is saying a great deal. As Archie, Mr. James Willard invests his villainy with a dry humour that is most acceptable. Miss Violet Carr is sweetly impressive as the flower girl Gertrude Lee. Mr. Willie Atom, as the mischievous Dicky, is conspicuously good in a company of such all-round excellence. The mastiff Tiger gives a rare display of canine intelligence and sagacity.

Another exhilarating novelty is Astley's American Circus. Any member of the audience is invited to ride the mule Sloper twice round the ring for a money prize, a task that looks comparatively easy. The many failures of the competitors provide the audience with an endless fund of amusement and pleasure. Esther Phillips and company, in a romantic episode of the French Revolution, entitled A City of Shadows, hold the rapt attention of the vast audience, and give a vivid picture of those turbulent times. As Elise Miss Esther Phillips has plenty to do, and does it all thoroughly and well. Miss Millie Luckstone as the young and devoted Marchioness makes a charming high-spirited heroine, full of grace and charm. Mr. W. Glenny as the Marquis is manly and earnest; while Miss Esther Carthew as Madame Brenan gives a creditable performance.

Les Rallis give a capital admixture of fun and acrobatism in their comical sketch The Artist and the Monkey. Zeta Gray and company appear in their musical comedy scena The Variety Agent. In this Miss Gray gives charming proof of a carefully-trained voice and in her amusing rendering of operatic selections raises a furore of applause by her vocal efforts. Ethel Loftus, in her comic song "I'm so happy," gives a type of comedienne that is all too scarce. Her embodiment of a hoyden full of high spirits and tricky devices is delightful. The Bros. Redmond are an excellent turn, and create much laughter and applause. Hetty Lee is a bright and pretty soubrette; her song, "None can compare to our English girls," is in the very best taste, and her dancing exceedingly clever and diverting.

Fred Southern's combination are also appearing here this week in their model drama, The Castaway, and the vicissitudes that attend the fortunes of Richard Trevalion are followed with an eager intensity. Mr. Fred Southern as Jacob Dabble is good. Miss May Emery imbues the part of Louise Trevalion with tenderness and feeling. As Beatrice Miss B. Southern acts with a girlish grace and charm that leave a good impression. Miss Jenny Pritchard as buxom Gipsy Alexander gives a humorous portrayal of the character. Mr. Charles Ashwell's Walter Hollingham is manly, natural, and skilful. Mr. Percy Emery as Richard Trevalion invests his character with a breezy freshness. Mr. Chris Redgrave as the miserly money-lender Hugh Denton is a fine character study. Will Farrell, the lightning comedian, rattles off in a style reminiscent of a popular comedian his merry ditty "Making it hot for me." Mr. Charles Craig, the new acting-manager, is evidently the right man in the right place, for he has already gained the esteem of the patrons here, and the sincere loyalty of his staff.

THE METROPOLITAN.

The dull ante-Easter period has brought with it a second instalment of winter, and the blizzardy weather has not assisted business at the halls generally. The genuine attractions that are to be found in Mr. Jack Edgar's bill at the Metropolitan are strong enough, however, to draw crowded houses anywhere, and the dweller in Paddington and the regions beyond have crowded the favourite palace of the people in the Edgware-road, to give encouragement to the passing show. For the first time in her career the name of Miss Florence St. John appears on the Metropolitan bill. Much water has flowed under the bridges since this famous operatic comedienne first captured the town in her delightful impersonation of Mme. Favart at the old Strand. Time has dealt gently with her, and though she no longer plays the heroines of comic opera, she has an admirable gift of comedy, which makes her Mrs. Merridew in My Milliner's Bill an impersonation to be seen and appreciated. The late G. W. Godfrey's comedietta is a capital addition to any variety show, but illuminated by the brilliant ability of Miss St. John it makes an irresistible appeal to lovers of laughter. The fair actress adds to the attractiveness of the whole thing by her rendering of "Sally in our Alley." She is well supported by Mr. Charles B. Bedells. Mr. Harry Lauder is the star of the bill, and anyone listening to the reception accorded to him nightly at the Metropolitan can at once realise that he is regarded by the public as their idol, and that he occupies a position only attained by a comedian of the first rank. His songs, "I love a lassie; or my Scotch bluebell," and "Fou the noo; or, Something in the bottle for the morning," are both written and composed by himself, Gerald Grafton collaborating in the writing of the words, and they completely sustain his reputation as a mirth-provider.

Mr. Leo Dryden, with a fine voice and a style full of cheeriness and bonhomie, sings the song, "Bachelor boys, farewell," with all the requisite heartiness and spirit. Miss Carlotta Levey preaches in song an excellent little lesson on "Thrift," and does so to a tuneful melody that is caught up in all parts of the house. Mr. George Newburn brings to our minds the mannerisms and voices of the principal stars, being especially successful in his impersonation of Mr. Harry Randall.

In the early part of the evening Miss Emmie Ames, in front of a prettily illuminated Christmas tree, gives point to an amusing item, which contains an excellent verse on Buller; Miss Edie Veno is successful in her number, "You can't catch old birds with chaff," and in her dance; and Mr. J. H. Kisbey, whose business is not always in the best taste, gives an amusing burlesque of the coon artist, and indulges in patter that is often laughable. Mr. William Gourlay, in the costume of Hamlet, contributes a laughable skit on melodrama; and Mr. Loveden Plass has an excellent song in "The Young British Soldier." Mr. Harry Rogerson as "The Doctor's Boy" works some agreeable comedy into his wonderful display as a sleepy acrobat—a performance that in its way is unique. A lively and successful interlude is that contributed by Messrs. St. John Denton and George Rowland's company of children, including Little Marjorie Lawrence, a remarkable little girl, who is already a capital dancer, and a roguish little comedienne. The whole crowd enter heart and soul into their work, which is always very attractive, and a veritable triumph is secured.

Miss Daisy James, who has been winning golden opinions in Vienna as the Gibson Girl, has considerably improved her fine impersonation of the female form divine, as seen through Henry Dana Gibson's artistic glasses, and it is now quite admirable. Mr. Vivian Cliff and his fox terrier "Kitty" are welcome contributors to the entertainment, which is increased in its attractiveness by the Three Sisters Silcott, who appear as happy Jap girls.

COLLINS'S.

At this favourite North London place of amusement there is, as usual, no lack of entertaining turns. Excellently played by the clever couple, known as Busie and Hurst, is an amusing little comedy duologue, entitled The Wrong Flat. The plot is by no means novel, but it serves its purpose well enough. The fun arises from a mistake made by a gentleman—a captain in the Army—who, having matrimonial intentions, has arranged to meet a prospective partner for life to talk the matter over. He, however, goes to Flat B instead of Flat A, and interviews a lady who has advertised for a new groom. The humorous possibilities of the situation are at once apparent. While the lady is talking about her horses, the captain is under the impression that she is a widow, and is speaking of her children. When he presumes to address her by her Christian name she naturally waxes indignant, but attributes it all to eccentricity on the part of her visitor. They are at cross purposes just sufficiently long to keep the audience amused without wearying them; and the inevitable explanation comes, together with the suggestion that the captain is likely to very soon assume the position of bridegroom to the lady. The little piece is capitally played.

Another item that has won a favourable reception is the "mimical concoction," entitled In Front and Behind the Scenes. The first scene represents the exterior of a West-End music hall; and amidst the crowd the most conspicuous character is a dissipated-looking gentleman in evening dress, who has evidently been imbibing freely. He carries a huge bouquet, and makes attempts to enter the stage-door, which are frustrated by the man in charge; but, eventually, he manages to slip in when the official Cerberus is out of the way. Then there is a quick-change to behind the scenes. The artists, most of whom represent well-known variety comedians, are seen making up; and the secrets of the dressing-room are revealed to the public gaze. A lady, in the short skirts of the ballet dancer, is a prominent figure; and one recognises a famous American comedian and an equally distinguished Scotch humorist. As their turns come the artists make for the stage, and one hears the shouts of welcome from the audience. Again, we encounter the semi-inebriated gentleman who makes himself a general nuisance; but more particularly to the lady in the short skirts, who slams the door in his face, and declines to accept the big bouquet. Then the announcement is made that a certain artist is absent, and has sent no deputy; the swell is thereupon hurriedly dressed up, and pushed on the stage, the result being that the audience throw things at him. The manager is furious, and a comic fight between him and the swell follows. The company work hard and successfully in the performance of this rollicking pantomime production, which is greeted with considerable applause.

Mr. Tom Woottwell, the loose-legged comedian, was unable to appear on Monday evening, but in his place came Mr. Tom Leo, with his new song by Edgar Bateman and Maurice Scott, entitled "Too lazy to live." An original idea is cleverly worked out by Mr. Leo, who comically represents the lazy man, who finally gets the audience to sing the catchy chorus for him while he placidly slumbers in a chair. Then a couple of attendants appear, and bear him away. Mr. Neil Kenyon, the Scotch comedian, at once gets on good terms with the audience, and his genuine Scotch humour is keenly appreciated. Mr. Arthur Reece scores with his ditty, "When there's not a girl about," and a lively song based on nursery rhymes. Mr. Mike S. Whallen rattles off his funny stories in his merriest style, and the ditty in which he picks out members of the audience for humorous comment is also received with great favour. Mr. Charles Coverdale, comedian, discourses learnedly and otherwise on the subject of eggs; while his ditty, "Oddities," is also deserving of mention. Foreman and Fannen, "Percy" and "Harold," are highly amusing, and their success is beyond question. Miss Alexandra Dagmar continues to retain her place in public esteem as a comedienne; and Miss Jessie Albini's best contribution is "My Diary," with its telling topical allusions. The Pender troupe of pantomimists display much bustling activity in their absurdity, entitled Hands Up; or, the Bold, Bad Highwayman. Mr. Fred Russell is here this week with his famous automaton, "Coster Joe"; and other attractive turns are furnished by Miss Marie Reeves, comedienne; the Continental Stilt Walkers, Mr. Alfred Lester, who, assisted by Miss Hilda Scarisbrick, gives the amusing skit, A Scene Shifter's Lament, and Mr. Nat Clifford, comedian. Mr. F. F. Wade has been recently appointed manager here.

THE CAMBRIDGE.

The principal item here this week is Mr. Percy Honri in his clever musical sketch entitled Concordia. Mr. Honri has long been known as an accomplished player on the concertina, but in the "trifle" referred to he has an opportunity of displaying what are truly described as "protean" abilities. At first we see him resting in his drawing-room after the labours of the day. On the advice of his wife he indulges in forty winks before dinner, and then he dreams. It is the events of this excursion into that fantastic region which are depicted before us. His wife elopes with an actor, so he himself determines to go on the stage. Here we get an exhibition of Mr. Honri's talents as a lightning-change artist, for almost with the rapidity which we are accustomed to associate with the land of dreams he stands before us fully robed as a Shakespearean jester. With the irrelevancy of dreamland Mr. Honri next gives us a coster entertainment. His description of a little social gathering of his friends is really very funny, and his rendering of "Stop yer ticklin', Jock," by a supposed parson to the tune of "The Lost Chord" is a novelty which thoroughly amuses the audience. As a player on the concertina, Mr. Honri has few equals, and he is besides an excellent vocalist. He is supported by a capable party of ladies and gentlemen, and the staging of the sketch is unusually elaborate. One's only regret at its conclusion is that Mr. Honri could not dream a little longer.

Miss Lilian Boanes has a well-modulated mezzo-soprano voice which is heard to great advantage in two songs, "Lulu, be true," and "Fairies, where do you get your wings?" In the latter the vein of pathos is well accentuated by the artist's rendering. Miss Florence Schuberth is a lady whose tall, graceful presence at once commands the attention of her audience, and this she retains during her singing of "Why don't you be a soldier, father?" and "What do you think of the Japanese?" The latter song specially appeals to the audience in view of this week's visit to London of Togo's heroes, and the response is enthusiastically appreciative. The Cratons are very entertaining in an original musical concoction entitled In Front and Behind the Scenes; or, The Unrehearsed Deputy. The little sketch is extremely amusing, but we suggest that it might with advantage be somewhat shortened.

Mr. Tatton Hall is a comedian whose humour contains a vein of instructive sarcasm. What Mr. Beerbohm Tree's opinion of Mr. Hall's impersonation of Nero would be it is hard to say, but Mr. Hall's adaptation of that much-abused Emperor's vagaries to the exigencies of London everyday life is irresistibly funny. In "Saturday's my day off" Mr. Hall humorously preaches a lesson on the evils of sloth. Perhaps such a lesson inculcated in this way is quite as efficacious as the Hebrew Monarch's advice to study the habits of the hymenoptera. The Bartholomew Girls are very graceful dancers, and their singing is characterised by tuneful lightness. Mr. Harry Tomps as a comedian has a manner all his own, while Mr. Robbie Roy certainly works that now fashionable theme—the comic Scot—for all it is worth. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope gives one of the best shows of this kind we have lately seen. The film showing the train-wreckers is certainly a marvel of scientific realism, and it is not too much to say that the audience watches the rescue of the heroine by the engineer from certain death with breathless stillness.

FOOTBALL MATCH.—On Wednesday afternoon the members of Miss Lena Stanton's company, who are appearing at the Hippodrome, Mansfield, played a match with the Mansfield Wednesday team. The ladies of the company took a collection on behalf of the Mansfield and District Hospital, and a good sum was realised.

MR. MARTIN ADESON will shortly produce in the variety theatres an entirely new and original farcette, entitled The Masked Lady, written by that sucessful author, Frank Dix, the music being by Julian Wilson. Mr. Adeson will be well supported. He goes to the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, for a short season at Easter to resume his old part of King Grabbus, in Hickory Wood's Puss in Boots. This pantomime will be taken in its entirety by Mr. Fred Mouillot from the Broadway Theatre.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS.

A HOUSE-FILLING BILL.

There will be crowded houses every night at the Palace, Grimsby, for is not Miss Marie Loftus here with her great entertaining capabilities. "Marie," as her delighted admirers like to call her, appears in all her greatest successes, and that is saying a great deal, for she has a very extensive répertoire, one of the most extensive of any artist on the stage. Her burlesque skit on modern dramatic artists is a piece of work which would take any audience by storm, and the Grimsby folk are not slow to grasp its merit. It is absolutely original. Miss Loftus makes up as half-villain and half-heroine, and the effect is tremendous. But even this is not her greatest hit, for her Singers Past and Present is quite the most original set of songs it has been our pleasure to listen to for a long period. Scotland, Ireland, and old English fashions are all hit off with the utmost cleverness, and this time the inimitable "Marie" carries everything before her. She is recalled again and again, and yet again. Her work is past all comparison, so far as the local stage is concerned.—Vide Press.

PHENOMENAL SUCCESS AT THE PALACE.

Marie Loftus has appeared before Grimsby audiences before, but successful as she has been, she is proving even more popular this week at the Palace. For fully half-an-hour she remains on the platform, and everyone regrets when she leaves at the end of that time. She sings the old favourite, "He kissed me once, how ashamed I was," the story of a country wench's excursion to London, and the very funny song, "Imagination goes a long way." But her principal piece is the sketch Singers Past and Present, which explains itself. In cumbrous crinoline she sings an old-time song, in very juvenile costume she impersonates a child. In a smart frock of stars and stripes she gives a Yankee song, and in a staring costume of green and red she sings of Old Ireland. Her burlesque of a music hall nutshell drama is very funny. She comes on as the heroine, but, suddenly turns, and appears as the villain, with frock coat and top hat. As the dialogue becomes animated, the rapid changes effected by simply turning towards one side of the stage or the other become very amusing. At the conclusion she fell on the floor engaged in a fearful struggle to the death with herself. Her Indian song is very picturesque. She comes in from the back of the stage on a canoe, and sings and dances, and her assistant presents a lively Indian dance.—Grimsby Telegraph.

FLATTERING RECEPTION AT PRESTON.

Lively and vivacious as ever, Miss Marie Loftus had a flattering reception last night at the Preston Royal Hippodrome, when she commenced her week's engagement. Very large audiences assembled at both houses, and the popular burlesque actress's efforts were heartily applauded. After an amusing song about a country girl's excursion to London, she gave capital imitations of singers past and present. In cumbrous crinoline she sang an old-time song, and then in very juvenile costume impersonated a child. In a smart frock she rendered an American ditty, and, quickly changing to a costume of green and red, she sang about "Ould Oireland." But she was, perhaps, most successful in her burlesque of the music hall nutshell drama. Coming on to the stage as the heroine, she suddenly turned and appeared as the villain in frock coat and top hat. As the dialogue became animated she took first one part and then the other by quickly changing from side to side, and at the conclusion fell to the floor engaged in a struggle to the death with herself. Her Indian song was also very picturesque.—Vide Press.

THE PRINCIPAL ATTRACTION.

The principal attraction at the Preston Royal Hippodrome this week is, of course, Miss Marie Loftus, whose first appearance some time ago created such a furore that her return visit has since been eagerly anticipated.

In addition to contributing some of her old favourites, which have won for her the pre-eminent position among burlesque artists she at present occupies, Miss Loftus scores her greatest success in an original sketch entitled Singers Past and Present.

Attired in typical national costumes, Miss Loftus renders in her own inimitable style favourite songs of different countries, all of which are enthusiastically applauded.

But she reserves for the last a novel and side-splitting burlesque of the music hall drama, which could only be performed by such a vivacious and versatile artist as Miss Loftus.

She carries on a dialogue between a heroine and a villain in wonderful fashion, a sudden turn substituting the flowing robes of the former to the dress suit and tall hat of the latter, and concluding with a most realistic struggle to the death with herself.

Miss Loftus's present visit is bound to increase her great popularity in this district, and Messrs. Broadhead may rest assured of the continued patronage of the Preston public so long as they continue to provide the class entertainments which have been characteristic of the Hippodrome ever since it opened.—Preston Herald.

BRILLIANT MARIE LOFTUS.

Was there ever a more versatile artist than Marie Loftus? Certainly not on the local variety stage. She has drawn large houses at the Palace this week, and we believe patrons could do with another week of her truly great work. As the evenings have passed Marie's great talents have been enthusiastically recognised, and the audiences have given of their best in the way of appreciation. It is difficult to say which particular part of her work has given the greatest pleasure. Some hold that her Indian sketch is the best thing that she puts on, while others are inclined to think that Singers Past and Present is one of the finest pieces of burlesque that has been put on to the Palace stage. However we take her, Marie Loftus is a great artist. That song of hers in crinoline attire is worth a visit to the Palace in itself, and it has given unlimited amusement to thousands during the week. She is recalled so many times that she has ample opportunity of showing that she could entertain the house the whole evening, and a splendid entertainment it would be.—Grimsby News.

DELIGHTED AUDIENCES.

MARIE LOFTUS, THE "REAL" ARTIST.

"AN ARTIST EVERY INCH OF HER,"

must have been the ejaculations of the thousands who have packed this beautiful hall at every performance this week. We refer to Miss Marie Loftus, the inimitable. If ever a music-hall star deserves unstinted praise it must be Miss Loftus, for without exaggeration we have never seen a burlesque comedienne to at all compare with this clever lady. She has at her command one of the most extensive repertoires it has been our lot to witness on any stage from any one artist. She keeps the house in a state of appreciation for over half an hour at each performance. Perhaps her greatest hit is Singers Past and Present, in which she represents "The old crinoline" fashion, as well as the Scotch and Irish songs as sung in the old days. A dramatic version of how the modern music-hall sketch is acted evokes roars of laughter, and no wonder the audiences reach the highest state of enthusiasm.—Grimsby Gazette.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

ELECTION OF CHAIRMAN AND VICE-CHAIRMAN.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had elected Mr. Walter B. Yates as their chairman and Mr. H. J. Greenwood as their vice-chairman for the ensuing year. They had also appointed their chairman to represent them on the General Purposes Committee.

THE AUSTRALIAN EXHIBITION.

The Committee reported that they had had before them plans with regard to the proposed arrangements of certain of the side shows in connection with the forthcomng Imperial Royal Australian Exhibition, to be held at Earl's Court. The arrangements shown on the plans appeared to be satisfactory.

NOVELTIES AT EARL'S COURT.

The committee further reported that they had considered plans, submitted by Mr. A. O. Collard, of a proposed "Helter Skelter Lighthouse," to be erected at the London Exhibitions, Earl's Court, in connection with the Austrian Exhibition, and plans showing the construction of a tower and gateway in the portion of the Exhibition grounds known as "Elysia." They had consulted the Building Act Committee, and were informed that the proposed arrangements have been approved under the London Building Act, 1894. They recommended that Mr. Collard be informed that the Council has no objection, so far as its regulations under Section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., cap. 32, are concerned, to the arrangements shown on the six plans, submitted by him with regard to the proposed "Helter Skelter Lighthouse" and the construction of a tower and gateway in the portion of the Exhibition grounds known as "Elysia," provided the following conditions be complied with—

"Helter Skelter Lighthouse"—

(1) That the side of the trough be protected by means of rails to a height of 3ft. 6in.

(2) That no thin wood be used in the construction of the tower, and that all woodwork be thickly coated with a fire-resisting solution.

"Elysia"—

(1) That all woodwork be thickly coated with a fire-resisting solution.

The recommendation was agreed to.

THE ALDWYCH SITE.

It will be remembered that at the previous meeting of the Council the Improvements Committee presented a report on the scheme for building by a syndicate with a capital of a million a theatre, concert hall, &c., on the Aldwych-Strand site, the syndicate agreeing to pay £55,000 a year ground rent for a 99 years' lease, and to spend £500,000 in the erection of buildings.

At Tuesday's meeting several interesting questions relating to the letting of this important site were asked.

MR. ANSTRUTHER inquired of the Chairman of the Improvements Committee whether any action had yet been taken with regard to the letting of the central portion of the crescent site at Aldwych, which would preclude the further deliberate consideration of the prior offer of M. Gérard to rent the site.

LORD MONKSWELL asked whether it was not a fact that M. Gérard had offered £56,000 a year for the site, just £1,000 a year more than the accepted offer.

MR. HUBBARD, in reply, said that all that had yet been done in the matter was that the solicitor had been instructed to prepare the agreement. The draft had not yet been sent out. He was anxious on behalf of his committee that the whole of the negotiations connected with the letting of the site should be brought before the Council, and he would undertake to bring up a full report on the subject next week. The draft agreement would not be sent out before that time.

AGAIN ADJOURNED.

Discussion on the important report of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, which was brought up to the Council on the 20th inst., containing a recommendation with reference to the number of persons to be admitted to the various parts of the places of public entertainment licensed by the Council, was again adjourned.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, FEB. 23.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr J. C. Williamson; Sub Lessee and Manager, Mr William Anderson.—La Fille du Tambour Major was revived by Mr. Anderson on the 17th inst. on an elaborate scale. In the crowded audience were many who well remembered the original production at this theatre in 1881—with Pattie Laverne, Fred Mervin, Nellie Stewart, Maggie Liddell, Albert Brennir, Minnie Hope, H. R. Harwood, J. H. Wallace, F. J. Hallewell, and George Dean in the cast—and the familiar melodies and lines recalled memories of the past. Of the old cast only Nellie Stewart, Minnie Hope, John H. Wallace, and George Dean are now living. The new Stella is Miss Addie Campbell, a dainty, fresh-voiced young Victorian, who now makes her first appearance in Australia's metropolis. More experience will render this singer a valuable addition to the operatic stage. Miss Ivy Scott is a vivacious Claudine, and Miss Maud Thornton scores as Griolet. Miss Madge Hope is a stately and dignified Duchess Della Volta, and Miss Bessie White is well placed as the Abbess. Mr. Edward Farley supplies a delightful representation of Monthabor, the drum major, singing finely and acting well. Mr. Edwin Lester had carefully studied the short-sighted eccentricities of the Duke, and gives a finished portrait of the Italian noble. Signor Achille Rebottaro is an accomplished singer, and his Capitaine Robert is distinctly good. Mr. Harry Quealy makes a dancing part of Bambini. The Clampas of Mr. Walter Rivers and the Gregorio of Mr. Lance Vane are also deserving of mention. The chorus is large, and has been well trained by the conductor, Mr. George Gardner. D'Auban's Minuet is danced by sixteen good dancers and sixteen equally clever juveniles. The costumes were all new, and from first to last Tambour Major is a magnificent spectacle of which all concerned may well be proud. Mr. George Dean, one of the original cast, directed the revival.

AT the Criterion Mr. Robert Brough was indisposed, and so Little Mary was postponed, and The Walls of Jericho revived, with Miss Beatrice Day and Mr. Herbert Flemming in their old rôles. Mr. Norman McKeown made a distinct success in Mr. Brough's part of Hankey Bannister.

MR. R. G. KNOWLES, also directed by Mr. Williamson, is entertaining at the Palace, but next Saturday the Knight Jeffries Company will begin a season with David Garrick and Comedy and Tragedy.

THE Tivoli has added Mr. Leonard Nelson to its already big bill.

MAKES THE SKIN AS SOFT AS VELVET.—Beetham's "LAROLA" preserves the Skin from the effects of frost, cold winds, and hard water. Entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness, irritation, chaps, &c., and KEEPS THE SKIN SOFT, SMOOTH, and WHITE at all Seasons. INVALUABLE for the COMPLEXION, DELIGHTFULLY SOOTHING and REFRESHING after walking, cycling, motoring, dancing, &c. Gentlemen will find it wonderfully soothing if applied after shaving. Bottles 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d. each, of all Chemists and Stores. M. BEETHAM and SON, Cheltenham.—[ADVT.]

"THE WILLOW-PATTERN PLATE."

A Chinese Idyll, written by Mr. Robinson, with Music by Charles Collins and Ernest Irving, Produced for the First Time at the Empress, Brixton, on Thursday, March 29.

Mandarin .....MR. MCLEOD
Fi-Fi .....MISS N. HOLMES
Yo-San .....MISS L. HOLMES
Kissi-Kissi .....MISS HOLLAND
Li-Chi .....MISS MARJORIE CECIL
Chang .....MISS MABEL THORNE

A fantasy of the Flowery Land was imported into the entertainment at the Empress on Thursday, when Mr. Nelson Francis gave a place in the programme to a pretty love story, embellished with music and picturesque scenery. An enlarged realisation of the mystic Chinese design which, from time out of mind, has adorned the homely dinner plate, forms the background to the romance of which the youthful Chang is the hero. He has lost his heart to the charming Li-Chi, and tells her so in a song in which the virtues of "My Chinee Girl" are eulogised. The young lady speedily makes her appearance, and joins in the refrain; but opposition to their union is furnished by the mighty mandarin, the father of the girl, who, with stern countenance, forbids the banns. The lovers decide to elope by the light of the blue moon, and on their departure the three Celestial maidens, who stand meditatively on the rustic bridge, descend, and perform a graceful fan dance, followed later on by an electric pas de trois, in which some peculiar lighting effects are utilised. By this time the young lady has donned her best travelling costume; but, before starting on their journey, Chang and his sweetheart sing duets addressed to a butterfly and to a pair of doves, who perch on the tree close by. The singing is accompanied by a dance, of which the mandarin is an interested spectator. He is so evidently impressed by the performance that he relents, and bestows his blessing, the curtain falling on a fairy-like scene, garlands of roses descending from above, and Chinese lamps adding brilliancy to the spectacle. Miss Mabel Thorne, who made a comely "principal boy," played Chang with buoyancy and unfailing vivacity. Miss Thorne has a tuneful voice, and possesses the faculty of making herself heard, and her love lilt and the song addressed to the "golden doves" were thoroughly well rendered. Miss Marjorie Cecil, becomingly arrayed, was a bewitching Li-Chi, singing and dancing daintily, and earning great admiration. The little piece, which gave evident pleasure to the audience, was produced by Mr. Joseph Pomé, who also arranged the dances; the costumes, which have an important bearing on the piece, being by Miss Lily Woolf. Mr. Albert Burridge, who acted as assistant to the late Mr. Skinner for a number of years, is the new stage-manager at the Empress.

THE I.A.L.

THE most important communication to the I.A.L. at the meeting at the Hotel Provence on Sunday was one received from the agent concerned in the case mentioned last week regarding Manager Lorenzen, of the Scala Theatre, Copenhagen, and two members of the I.A.L. He was sorry to see in the report published that some suspicion rested on him as agent between M. Lorenzen and the artists, as if he had not wished to make a contract for them. He said that for eight years he had worked for the manager in question, who had never made use of the cancellation clause. Therefore, he (the agent) thought he was perfectly safe in advising the artists to strike out nothing. He thought also that all acts once engaged should not be cancelled. As regards the demand for payment of 10 per cent. on the original contract, the agent had a right to his commission on all contracts once concluded. The two artists first applied direct to the manager for a postponement of their contract, and did not succeed in getting it. They thereupon applied to him. He also was unable to obtain it, but got a new engagement for them under new conditions, the manager thinking that later on the act would not be so valuable to him as now.

ONE member in the meeting was of the opinion that both the agent and manager were right. The president agreed that there is always right on both sides. The artists, he considered, were wrong in accepting an open contract, and the manager wrong not to keep a contract he had made. "I can never see," said the president, "that any manager should bind an artist under pains and penalties to keep a contract, and then get out of it himself by saying that the contract is cancelled under such and such a clause." As regards the agent, the president thought it would have been fairer for him to have only asked 5 per cent. for the second contract, or the whole for the first only. A brother proposed that a letter be written to the agent acknowledging the receipt of his letter, and summing up the opinion expressed by the meeting. Seconded and carried.

A BROTHER then gave a brief report of the visit of the deputation to Messrs. Anger and Bauer re the settlement of cases between them and the I.A.L. members by means of arbitration. Messrs. Anger and Bauer met the deputation in a friendly way, and declared themselves quite willing to leave cases which might arise to the lodge meeting as a whole, and trusted to their fairness in giving decisions. It was resolved that a letter be written to Messrs. Anger and Bauer acknowledging their kind reception of the deputation and trust in the lodge members. A brother added that the agents in question seemed to think that they were more likely to get justice from the artists than in the Law Courts. The legal committee for the coming month was then elected. The meeting was informed that Das Programm Company had given £100 from the profits of the enterprise to the Widows' and Orphans' Fund of the I.A.L.

INTERESTING information regarding the custom duties in America was given by several members present. The custom duties in America are rather high on things required in the profession, and will not permit any one to bring in goods for professional purposes, and deposit sums for them, unless they are taken away within six months. The bond, however, can be renewed for six months only; after that they must be taken away. This seems simple, but a man may not have 600 dollars on landing for the deposit. However, the manager or his agent will put the goods in bond. This was originally a pure kindness on the part of the managers; now it is sometimes used as a measure of reducing salaries. A member, on going to America, had a bond put up for him by a manager. After playing Keith's Circuit, the artist wished to remain in America and play elsewhere, and wished to renew the bond. But this must be done by the person who originally put it up, and the manager refused. Of course, he was only intending to hit a competition house, but it struck the artist at the same time.

THE Regal Operatic Quartette (who will appear in excerpts from celebrated lyrical works) will include Mlle. Adele Prescott, soprano; Mr. Edward Wynn, tenor; Mr. Albert German, baritone; and Mme. Marie Burnett, contralto. Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins, who will represent the quartette, is purchasing magnificent and correct costumes for each scena.

MISS ALICE MAY is this week presenting with gratifying success at the Empire, Leeds, her clever quick-change farce Tranquillity, in which she appears in seven distinct characters—a laundress, a slavey, a Salvation lass, an Italian girl, a newsboy, a Punch-and-Judy Show woman, and a Society girl.

CHAT WITH MESSRS. F. AND M. ABRAHAMS AND JACK WOOLF.

Mr. Fred and Mr. Michael Abrahams, the proprietors of the Queen's Palace of Varieties, Poplar, are the oldest music-hall managers in London. They are the sons of Mr. Isaac Abrahams, who half a century ago was proprietor of the Polytechnic Music Hall in Manchester, and it was from that establishment that the two brothers commenced their career in the profession. Mr. Fred Abrahams served an apprenticeship in the orchestra, and, acquiring much knowledge of variety affairs, he became his father's manager in one department, while his brother Michael controlled another department. Mr. Fred Abrahams in the course of things got married, and settled down for a time in Nottingham, where he rebuilt an old music-hall, rechristening it the Polytechnic. He then joined his brother Morris in the management of the old Effingham, when Mr. T. Abrahams, after parting with his brother Morris, he then took the Oriental. At that time Mr. Michael had the Apollo, in Hare-street, Bethnal Green. Later, Mr. Fred Abrahams came to Poplar, and took possession of a small hall known as the Oriental, which has now blossomed forth into a good-sized and responsible place of entertainment under the name of the Queen's Palace of Varieties. It is the oldest place of amusement in the neighbourhood. At one time Poplar was the centre of the shipping business, and the Oriental had a world-wide reputation among seamen. The Brothers Abrahams have held the place for forty years, and it is now their own freehold property, along with the surrounding land. A great number of artists who subsequently became "stars" were given a kindly help up the ladder of success at the Queen's. Mr. Michael Abrahams first brought Macdermott to London, paying him a guinea a week to perform at Poplar. Mr. Abrahams smiles as he recollects that he took George Leybourne from a penny music-hall in Whitechapel, where he was getting twelve shillings a week, and gave him £1 a week to perform at the Oriental. Others who appeared at the same house were Jenny Hill, Annie Adams, Dan Leno, and Little Tich.

Mr. Michael Abrahams—or "Mike," as he is popularly known—made his start as a music-hall proprietor at the Red Cross, afterwards renamed the Apollo, in Hare-street, Bethnal Green. He relinquished that establishment when his brother Frederick went to America with Jem Mace, when Michael took charge of the Queen's. Upon Frederick's return to England, the hall was rebuilt and is now quite a handsome edifice. At the present time it is being thoroughly renovated throughout. The scheme of decoration in the interior is cream and gold, has a most agreeable aspect, and the theatre has been fitted throughout with a costly system of electric light installation. Carpets are being laid down in place of what was formerly linoleum, and a new exit has been constructed leading from the gallery to the High-street. The house will be opened at Easter on the two performances a night system.

Mr. Jack Woolf, of Wonderland, Mile End-road, will act as general manager for the proprietors, who, by the way, are his uncles. Mr. Woolf's association with the East End of London has, as everybody knows, been of life-long duration, and we have no doubt that the experience he has thereby gained will be used to excellent advantage in the control of the Queen's Palace. As there appeared to Mr. Woolf an indication that the public favoured the two houses a night, he has decided to fall into line with that idea. The prices of admission will be such as to be well within the reach of all the working classes of the East End, and as it is the intention of the proprietors to cater on a generous scale for their patrons, there need be little fear as to the success of the undertaking. Mr. Woolf informs us that he intends presenting the best possible talent that can be procured.

Asked as to how the barring clause would affect Poplar, Mr. Woolf remarked: "If the barring clause is to be brought against us—although in spite of that restriction I believe there is enough talent to be found in London and the provinces—I shall go further afield for turns. At the same time I should like you to state that I am very much averse to taking such a course, because I do not believe in introducing foreign talent here when we know that there are enough English artists to supply the requirements, not merely of the Queen's, Poplar, but of as many other halls that could be built. I think that a reasonable barring period would be three months, and, if contracts were drawn up on that principle, a benefit would accrue both to the manager and the artist. Of course, in the event of a proprietor going to a lot of trouble and expense in bringing over an extraordinary 'speciality,' it would be only reasonable to extend the barring period; but for the ordinary singing and dancing turns I do think that the twelve-months' barring is detrimental to the interests of both parties, as it drives away good performers from our own doors and assists in the introduction of the foreigner. It is no wonder that artists cannot get work here when managers will go over to France, Germany, and other countries and pay fabulous prices for foreign acts. In the management of the Queen's, Poplar, I shall strain every effort to give all artists a fair chance."

The refreshment department of the Queen's Palace of Varieties will, when it is opened, be under the direction of Mr. John Abrahams, a son of Mr. Michael Abrahams, while a still younger son, Mr. Maurice Abrahams, will act as secretary. Mr. Michael Abrahams should, indeed, be a happy man. He is the father of seven sons and three daughters, all living. One of his sons is a partner in the well-known firm of naturalists, Willson's, of New Oxford-street.

VARIETY ARTISTS' FEDERATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I encroach upon your valuable space to ask you to give publicity to the following?

I understood that the Variety Artists' Federation was being founded upon the lines of the International Artists' Lodge, for the good of the variety profession.

It seems that Messrs. Moss, Stoll, Payne, and Gros have been running variety theatres all wrong, and several artists who know how want to teach these gentlemen how to make things pleasant for all concerned. Now, no one ever told me that Sir Edward Moss, or Mr. Oswald Stoll, or Mr. G. Adney Payne volunteered to show an artist how to do his business.

I do not question that the barring clause does sometimes operate harshly, but I for one would not care to see it relaxed. Firstly, I believe the manager knows his own business best. Secondly, if the barring clause were modified, other interests than those of the artists would be served. Do the artists imagine that they would benefit in the long run if they were permitted to play, for instance, eight weeks under a certain management in Manchester and ask the Moss-Stoll direction to bill them in large letters at their establishments six months afterwards?

Those who would benefit would be a small circle of managers and the Continental and American artists, who, after wearing off the novelty of their acts by constant repetition, can return home, change their names, and come over once more.

But what of the English artists who depend more upon their popularity than their novelty? Will their popularity and their value to the manager increase with frequent repetition?

The International Artists' Lodge is a German association. The leaders of the Federation number many Americans. I am told also that some leading English turns that command very high salaries are talking fight. Have these latter paused to consider the various causes that have increased salaries since the days when it was go as you please? Loosen the barring clause and we shall revert to the old order and the old salaries. What managers have to consider is what will maintain and increase the popularity of variety entertainments.

What the artist has to consider is whether it is not better to lose a few weeks a year than to bring down about his ears the whole fabric that is holding his salary up. If they foolishly imagine that the public will have them, no matter where they play, they may find that that fickle public that clamours for them to-day may in six months run wild over comic opera, or some other form of entertainment in which the variety artist has no part.

Better form a federation for mutual help and protection, and leave those who are said to rush in where angels fear to tread to draw the chestnuts out of the fire for others to eat.—Yours faithfully,

ADA ALEXANDRA.

Leeds, March 27, 1906.

MISS RUBY BIJOU, in addition to her pretty dances, is now introducing a barefooted dance, which for grace and refinement would be hard to beat.

THE London, Shoreditch, is now under the management of Mr. Herbert Ralph, who succeeds Mr. Charles Hector.

MISS LILIAN ELFRIDA, the mimic, went so strongly at Walthamstow on her opening night that she was requested by the management to include more impersonations on the Tuesday evening. She will be seen immediately at the Canterbury, and has been booked, through Mr. Tom Claxton's agency, for the principal London halls.

THE "Sixpenny Pops." series issued by Mr. David Day has been yet further augmented by the addition of seven new numbers, the last piece being numbered 273 in the catalogue. The titles are "Longing for you," "Seagull!" "Don't go too fast, little girlie," "Two brown eyes," "Ain't yer gwine to say 'How do'?" "Moonlight Serenade," and "The waltz must change to a march, Marie."

MR. F. WARDEN-REED, after fourteen weeks' provincial tour with Married or Photographed? and The Right Road, returns to London next week, giving the former sketch at the London, and the latter at Collins's.

LATENT TALENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I am afraid Dave Wallace and others are a trifle prejudiced as regards foreign acts in England; forgetting that English acts go abroad, thus equalising things a little. Really clever foreign acts no one should object to; but, unfortunately, there are others, and whatever they may be engaged for it is not talent, for they have none.

But, after all, the discussion is "latent," not foreign, talent, and it is talent that should rise to the top, no matter what its nationality may be. It is something much more than foreign acts that keeps English talent latent. Everybody in the profession knows it, and, as Dave Wallace says, "Surely the time has come for English artists to wake up, and endeavour to remedy this state of affairs."

Donald's Agency no doubt mean well by wishing to organise "trial" performances in different towns, and there is no telling what they may discover; but the "trials" will hardly be fair to poor "out-of-collar" pros, who will grasp at a trial show by way of a "last straw," and who will, in many cases, thanks to a period of semi-starvation, have neither the nerve nor the strength to face a critical audience, and do themselves justice. It requires a great deal more nerve and strength to do a "trial show" upon which so much depends than an ordinary performance, when you have a few immediate dates booked; and whether you are well-fed or half-starved makes all the difference in the quality of your show.

I've had some, so I know.—Yours faithfully,

THROUGH THE MILL.

Actors' Association, 10, King-street, W.C.,
March 22, 1906.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—When we commenced the organisation of "trial" performances for latent talent in Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds, Glasgow, Nottingham, Birmingham, Cardiff (or Bristol), Dublin, and London, we little conceived the magnitude of the task we were undertaking. Letters have literally poured in upon us from every corner of the British Isles, and the Continent has contributed its quota to the mass. The result is that we are absolutely unable to answer the applicants all at once. They will have to exercise patience while we reduce chaos to order, and bring a well-thought-out system into play to cope with the task.

The great showers of letters have prevented us from proceeding with the performances as early as we intended. We will be able to make an announcement next week, but we expect, as things go, that the Glasgow event will succeed the Liverpool one, and that Birmingham will follow that. Meanwhile, aspirants should send in their applications, accompanied by a stamped addressed envelope, if they want a chance to appear. The more the merrier, and there is always room for talent.

A cheering feature of the applications is the large number of fairly experienced acts who write in asking a "chance." Some of them would shine on the largest halls, from our present knowledge of them

Numbers of managers have promised to be present, while a great many will undoubtedly be there who cannot now make a definite promise. A general invitation will, of course, be sent to all managers, agents, and selected Pressmen.

Might we again respectfully remind the profession that the proceeds will, after deducting expenses, of course, be given to our professional charities. We hope, on this account at least, they will aid us to get bumper houses.

Thanking you for the courtesy of inserting this letter, we are, yours faithfully,

DONALD'S DRAMATIC AND VARIETY AGENCY.

CONTINENTAL TURNS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I suggest to your correspondent and those who complain of the presence on English programmes of so many foreign turns, the advantage of "taking a leaf from their book" by seeking for themselves engagements on the Continent?

There is plenty of room over here for really good English specialities and singers, and, if a success is made in your first town, you find no difficulty in booking most, if not all, the principal theatres (as indeed has been my own case in a stay of one month here), and on terms equal to, and frequently higher, than the best obtained at home; with the further benefit of only one show nightly, one month in a town, and that courtesy and consideration which is so customary in Continental theatres.

As an indication of a similar presence of foreign talent in native theatres, here, in a programme of ten turns and a ballet, two turns are English, and one each American, French, Italian, Austrian, Russian, and Spanish.—Yours faithfully,

MISS EMMIE AMES leaves London on Sunday next on a provincial tour, visiting Manchester, Liverpool, Belfast, Dublin, Glasgow, York, and Carlisle, returning to town on June 4.

MR. J. W. PARRATT, the Ilkley humorist and author, has just published his first book of humorous recitations, which is meeting with a very good sale. The book has already been supplied to several London humorists, as well as many in Yorkshire, and the stories and recitations therein cannot fail to be highly amusing. They are free from all vulgarity. The price is 1s., post free.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The recent deputation of showmen to the Parks and Open Spaces Committee of the London County Council has led to an interesting, and we trust useful, exchange of views. The letter we now give expresses the latest phase of the matter:—

"5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"March 23, 1906.

"Dear Sir,—In continuance of the guarantees this society is prepared to give the Parks and Open Spaces Committee with reference to the matters under discussion at the recent reception of the Showman Deputation, I am instructed to state firstly, that we are prepared, if the Council so desire, to leave the ground occupied by our people at holiday times clean and tidy to the satisfaction of your officers. Secondly, we are prepared to satisfy your officers with regard to all necessary sanitary arrangements, and to show that the living vans so necessary for our business are, from the sanitary point of view, healthy dwellings. Thirdly, living vans are admitted at times of fêtes and demonstrations in the following parks: The Old Deer Park, Richmond, five or six times a year, and are allowed to stay periods of from two to six days each visit; and they are also admitted on Wanstead Flats on holiday times, Hillingdon Park, Walton Park, Bagshot Park, Binfield Park, Osterley Park, and Taplow Court.

"We also wish to emphasise the fact that no embargo whatever is placed upon living vans by the great municipalities in the provinces.

"Fourthly, this society includes in its membership almost the entire body of London showpeople, and we are therefore in a position to give guarantees that will practically cover all questions of administration arising between the Council and its showmen tenants.

"We are ready to co-operate with the officers of the Council in order to secure the carrying out of all reasonable and practical regulations for the benefit of the vast crowds frequenting the open spaces at holiday times, and for the betterment of the people's open-air amusements.—Yours ever, for God and for good,

"T. Horne (Hon. Chaplain)."

The showmen, above all things, desire to be practical, and to show their anxiety to deal seriously with the question in dispute have undertaken the responsibilities outlined in the above letter. There is, however, a great duty laid upon the County Council—that is, to provide adequately emergency arrangements for the vast crowds frequenting the heaths and open spaces at holiday times.

The showmen very strongly object to being held responsible or blameworthy for lack of adequate latrines or sanitary deficiencies that ought to be provided by the Council. The inevitable litter of waste paper, &c., that follows a vast crowd on holiday-making bent is well within the powers and ability of the Council and its able officers to legislate and provide for. The unreasonableness of holding the show folk blameworthy for this is obvious, and needs no comment.

We sincerely trust that news will soon be forthcoming that the objectionable prohibition regulation of living-vans has been rescinded, and that the showman and family in the home on wheels will now be welcomed, and not placed under ban and suspicion.

We are glad to announce to the members of the Showmen's Guild that A. A. Strong, Esq., LL.B., has accepted the position of hon. solicitor to the Guild for the London district. Mr. Strong's office is 4, Eastcheap, City.

Members of the Guild, on referring to their Guild rules in the "Showmen's Year Book," page 24, will see that rule 19 provides for legal advice; the same conditions apply to Mr. Strong as to the other hon. solicitors of the Association.

Eccles Spring Fair, held on Mr. J. Whiting's ground, has resulted in a good start out. Besides the lessee's electric gondola switchback there were on the ground Mr. T. Hurst's racing poultry farm from Clifton, T. Day's up-to-date show, J. Norman's cinematograph, T. Leyland's marionettes, E. Clough's eldorado of French novelties, J. White's Emmas and shooting saloons, and numerous others. Cheetham Hill Fair is fixed for next week.

LONDON SHOWMEN IN COUNCIL.

A special meeting of London showmen under the auspices of the Showmen's Guild, and convened by its energetic Hon. Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, was held at the Star and Garter Hotel, Islington, on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Alf Ball, of bioscope fame, occupied the chair, and supporting him were Tom Norman, vice-president, and the Rev. T. Horne, hon. chaplain. Prominent showmen present were Wm. Beach, H. Forrest, Fred Gray, J. Hastings, J. W. Chipperfield, Wm. Le Neve, Wm. Taylor (of Taylor's Coliseum of Variety and Cinematograph), T. Irish, H. Taylor, C. Biddall (of Biddall Bros.' Bioscope), T. Knighton, W. Walcot, D. Stevens, T. Manning, C. Hill, Geo. Beach, Fred Gray, W. Bishop, Joseph Wilson, H. Peters, T. Manning, and others.

The Chairman called upon the Rev. T. Horne to open the business of the meeting by recounting the work recently essayed by the Showmen's Guild in defence of the fair ground business in the Metropolitan district.

The Hon. Chaplain then said that since their special meeting held at the close of the World's Fair season at the Agricultural Hall, he had been in correspondence with various Metropolitan governing bodies—notably, the London County Council and the District Council of Mitcham. The Guild Parliamentary Agent had also carried through and lodged a showmen's petition against the General Powers Bill of the Middlesex Council. He had also great pleasure in submitting to them the name of Mr. A. A. Strong, who had consented to become hon. solicitor to their Society for the London district. This, they would readily understand, was a great gain to London showmen—to be able to have legal advice in conformity with their rules, and as ready of access as their brethren of the road in the Midlands and in the North: Mr. Watson Wright for the great Midland circuit, Mr. Charles Howard for Manchester and the Northern Province, and Mr. Shaughnessey for Scotland. The Guild felt honoured in having the active assistance on its honorary executive of so distinguished a legal adviser as Mr. Strong. With regard to the important question of living vans on the open spaces under the control of the London County Council, he could not now say much. When he convened the gathering he had hopes of being in a position to give the official answer to their request for the rescinding of the obnoxious and vexatious rule against living-vans. This, however, he was not able to do; and, as the matter may be said to be still sub judice, he would leave that part of the Guild report with the expression of the confidential hope that the Parks Committee would appreciate the arguments laid before it by the recent deputation, and that the vans so necessary to their work and avocation in life would be permitted as integral and absolutely necessary parts of their business equipment. With regard to Mitcham Fair, he was also in correspondence with the local authority, and, further, he proposed going himself to Mitcham, and to take on the spot all necessary measures to safeguard the showmen's interest in the old Charter fair. This he hoped to be able to do at an early date. Coming to the most important question before them—the additional powers sought by the Middlesex County Council—he dealt with the clauses threatening the show business and the Guild petition against them, and showed how these clauses, if passed into law, would practically kill the show business in the county of Middlesex. He contended that the animus against them was manifest, and that the promoters had all necessary and reasonable powers already, and that further powers could only be meant not to control or regulate, but to utterly destroy the business of travelling showmen.

Mr. Horne was warmly thanked for his address, and a most interesting discussion on various matters of moment to the show business took place. In this Messrs. Tom Norman, Wm. Taylor, Swales Forrest, Wm. Beach, C. Hill, Fred Gray, and others took part.

Several new members were enrolled at the close of the meeting, and it was resolved to hold the next meeting at Wanstead Flats on Easter Sunday afternoon.

At Gorton Spring Fair, held on Mr. J. Collins's ground, Gorton-lane, Manchester, last week, were Trayner's show of art, Pedley's tiny tot show, Cordwell's aerial flyers and midget motors, Messrs. Mercer and J. Humphrey's midget ponies and motor cars, shooting saloons of Messrs. Lever and Humphrey, Emmas and sheets of Messrs Ingham (B. and J.), Seeks, Mercer, Whatmore (M. and A.), Beckett Jones, Cordwell (J. and G.), Johnson, Lever, and Turner; stalls and cup-breakers of Messrs. Sam. Mercer, R. Seeks, B. Ingham, Jack Ingham, Mark Whatmore, Joe Beckett, M. Bettnery, Alf. Whatmore, T. Foster, Jimmy Jones, H. Clayton, T. Lever, W. Turner, and D. Johnson; footballs of C. Lee, D. Johnson, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Poole, of the popular Poole's Myrioramas, celebrated their silver wedding at Gloucester on Tuesday, March 27. The estimable couple were the recipients of many valuable presents, and telegrams and letters of congratulation were received in great numbers throughout the day.

Clitheroe Fair had for its shows and novelties the well-known concerns of Capt. Tom Payne, Sidney Braham, William Wright, J. Lemir, Harrison, Holden, Starker, Taylor, Shorrock, Slater, Gallagher, Ingham, and Stanley.

The "fat woman" and the "living skeleton" in a Chicago show are to be married on May 24. The bride, Miss Leila Romer, weighs 22st., while her fiancé scales only 7st.

Foreign musicians have been dispensed with by the Ramsgate Borough Council, which has engaged for the coming season the band of the British Guards, under Mr. Holmes-Dallimore.

Miss Lil Hawthorne has acquired a striking song from Alf J. Lawrance, Harry Gifford, and Tom Mellor, entitled "My Cosy Caravan." It will be produced at the Coliseum.

Little Cliff, the juvenile comedian and dancer, must not be mistaken for Master Cliff, the son of Cliff Ryland, the well-known comedian, who shares with his sister, Miss Ethel Donna, the success of a clever act. Master Cliff's professional name is the one he is entitled to legally.

The Alhambra's preparations for putting Friday's struggle for the Grand National Steeplechase before its patrons on the night of the race may be said to "cover the whole ground" in the fullest sense. Not only did Mr. Gladstone, the clerk of the course, grant to "Urbanora" exclusive positions at Aintree, but the London and North-Western Railway Co. courteously equipped a coach as a dark and developing room, and in this the films were printed by a large staff of experts during the express run from Liverpool to London, so as to present upon the screen an agreeable and a comprehensive kaleidoscope of the entire contest within five hours of the winner passing the post.

Miss Winifred Hare scored an immediate and emphatic success at the Tivoli on Monday night with Harrington and Tate's new march song "The girl he left behind him," which gives every indication of becoming exceedingly popular. Miss Hare will next week produce another song from the pen of Mr. Harrington, entitled "Gentle Genevieve."

DEATH OF JOHN DEE HUMPHREYS.

The sudden death at Merthyr of the well-known and universally-honoured showman, John Dee Humphreys, has cast a gloom over the circus and show world. The only appropriate word is "calamity," for, uncertain as life is to all, the death of one in the vigour of matured life comes always as a shock. The evidence adduced at the inquest shows that, at the very moment that the calamity occurred, he was engaged in the business of the circus—actually making sure of the ready access of the concern about to pitch its tent at Merthyr.

For over thrity years the deceased has been connected with Sanger's Circus—all through the triumphant career of the world-famous circus of the Brothers Sanger, both at home and abroad, serving under George Sanger's banner for twenty-five years, and for the last five years with the nephews of Lord George Sanger, the Lord John Sanger concern. Over thirty years ago he joined the Sangers as elephant trainer, serving in that capacity for several years previously with the niece of George Wombwell—Mrs. Edmonds, of the Windsor Castle Menagerie (Wombwell's No. 2 concern). Twenty-nine years ago he married Miss Crockett, the daughter of a famous showman, and a niece of George Sanger. Their married life has been blessed with unbroken happiness, and the widow and family have lost one of the best of husbands and fathers. We feel sure that they have the sympathy and sorrow of the whole circus and show-ground community. The saying may be trite, but in his case it is absolutely true and golden, "He was one of the best."

To the sterling worth of his character, the unfailing kindness and ready sympathy of his generous disposition, all alike bear testimony. He was everyone's friend—no man's enemy. No; not even his own, and that, alas! cannot be said of all of us. John Dee Humphreys brought into the life of a showman the rich possession of sincere devotion to high principles—integrity and justice between man and man.

There never left him that nobility of individual character that marks the yeoman stock from which he sprang. Born to be a showman, though not born a showman, neither the farm nor Civil Service could prison him down. His heart was with the Bohemian life of the road, and on the road he found and lived to its sudden end his life's work.

The inquest on Mr. Humphreys was held at the Tiger Hotel, Merthyr Tydvil, on the 22nd inst., before Mr. R. J. Rhys, district coroner. Mrs. Humphreys, wife of the deceased, appeared, to identify the body. She was very much overcome by grief, and the coroner kindly shortened her evidence. Mrs. Humphreys said that her husband had only been in Merthyr a day. He had not been very well for about six months, and complained of his chest. She saw him the previous Monday week, and he was then jolly and hearty.

THE LATE MR. J. D. HUMPHREYS.

Alfred Thomas Sullivan, billposter to the Merthyr Billposting Company, said deceased took a hearty tea about six o'clock.

Mr. Oakey Davies, Star Inn, said he also went out with the deceased, looking for a ground for the show. When near the entrance to Colonel Lewis's residence, the deceased put his arm upon his shoulder, said something had come over him, and implored him not to leave him alone. He then took him to Dr. Lee's house, close by, where he died almost immediately.

Dr. Lee said he saw the deceased was in a desperate condition, and he helped to take him into his surgery. He died a couple of minutes afterwards, the cause of death being heart failure. Mr. Humphreys told him that her husband was always a hearty eater. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence. Much sympathy is felt with Mrs. Humphreys in her sad bereavement. Almost the last words the deceased said were to the effect that he had two important letters to post—one to Mr. Sanger and one to his wife.

The body was brought to London, for interment at Lambeth Cemetery, and rested once again at his home, Falmouth Chambers, New Kent-road. Amid many expressions of local respect and sympathy, the funeral cortège left the home of the deceased at one o'clock on Tuesday, the body being borne on an open hearse, drawn by four horses, three two-horsed coaches and Mr. Reeves' private brougham bearing the members of the family and immediate friends. These were followed by a number of private cabs. Mrs. Humphreys, her three daughters, and her married daughter and son-in-law, and with them, Mrs. Rowlands (sister), Mrs. Wm. Batty (sister), Mrs. Rule (sister), Mr. and Mrs. Reeves (cousins), representing Lord George Sanger; Mr. and Mrs. Austin, Mr. Fred Hall, Mrs. Piccolo, Mr. James Crockett, Mr. Geo. Benham, and Mr. Alf Norton, agent for the Ginnetts; Mr. H. Lester, Mr. C. Cornish, Mr. E. Dalmaine, Mr. H. Cory Woodrow, Mr. Norman, and Spot, representing the Terriers and the Music Hall Home; Professor Burnett, representing Mr. Tom Norman and Messrs. Fred Grey, Wm. Beach and G. Beach, representing the London showmen.

The service, at the request of the family, was taken throughout by the Rev. T. Horne, Hon. Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild. Besides the floral tributes of the widow and family, beautiful "In memoriam" wreaths were sent (amongst others) by George Sanger, John Sanger, Mrs. Batty, Mrs. Rowlands, Mrs. Rule, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. George Sanger, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, Mr. Alf Norton, Mr. A. Morton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Morell, Mr. James Crockett, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Beach, Mr. John Francis, and Mr. and Mrs. Artois.

The excellent funeral arrangements were under the care of Theophilus Dunkley, of Westminster Bridge-road.

VAN HARE.

"Nature makes man a vagabond, Society makes him respectable," is the clever epigram of a modern philosopher; and there is a great deal of truth in the observation. The desire to wander afield, to travel in new and strange lands—"to be a vagabond"—is in our blood. It is the spirit of adventure, the craving of the human heart for new experiences, the wider field of endeavour, a broader outlook on life, and a more intimate grasp of human affairs. This is that spirit of unrest, the driving force that compels many men to seek adventures that otherwise would have sunk into the ordinary every-day life and humdrum routine of things. It is this strong, compelling inspiration that has caused many men to find their true vocation in a showman's life. This was notably true of Van Hare, cosmopolitan and showman, who flourished in the early forties and fifties of the Victorian era. Like scores of other men not born in the business, seeking rest and finding it not, save and only in the wonderland of shows—that Bohemia of adventure, that brotherhood of enterprise and talent whose country is no man's land alone, but is the wide, wide world.

Born at Barlow Hall, near Selby, of an old yeoman family, he received a good education at local schools. Speaking of the days of his childhood, he says, in the interesting biography of his life published in 1888, that nothing could keep him away whenever any show-folk, mountebanks, or anything of that kind came to the village, especially Wombwell's Menagerie. "I would have given the coat off my back to touch the hem of one of their garments. When I used to come back my uncle would say, 'Thou wilt never be nought but a showman.'" His uncle's words were prophetic, for the spirit of adventure took possession of him, and he went to America, and after various business enterprises, true to his love of the show, he accepted an engagement with Titus, the celebrated circus manager, as money-taker. This was followed by promotion to the position of ringmaster and managing-director of the circus. Coming into a small fortune left by a relative, he returned to England, and, persuaded by his friends, accepted a very good position in the Civil Service. Of this work he speedily tired, and then began his first essay in the show business in his own country.

Van Hare, it will be seen, had the tremendous advantage of a considerable reserve of working capital as well as ability and new ideas. In conjunction with various partners, we find him running variety and dioramas entertainments—a very popular form of show in those days. These enterprises brought him into business connection with the leading showmen and theatre and music hall managers of those days—F. B. Chatterton of Drury-lane, Charles Rice of Covent Garden, E. T. Smith, and F. Burgess, of minstrel renown.

Speaking of these early days of his showman apprenticeship, he tells us that "Springthorpe, one of the oldest wax-work showmen, had then his exhibtion at 399, Strand. Not having anything to do, I spent a good deal of time with him, for he was very partial to me, and I was very proud to be schooled by such a successful showman, and by his advice I took a shop in the main street close by Chelsea College, where the body of the great Duke of Wellington was lying in state. This solemn event, of course, drew large crowds to Chelsea, hence the good business move of opening a show there. We went to the fairground, Tower-street, in the Borough—a large yard let out to itinerant showmen,—and I there engaged a wonderful dwarf, the celebrated Miss Paten, an alligator, a boa constrictor, and a conjuror, and opened 'the gaf' at the low charge of one penny. Every day the street was crowded from morning till night—I recollect Bob Hales, the Norfolk giant, walking down; I could see him all the length of the street, half a yard above the rest of the crowd—but they would not come into my show. My doorsman halloed and bawled at the top of his voice, but all to no purpose; they had only one object in view—to see the lying in state—and I was disgusted with the penny-show business. My friend Springthorpe laughed, saying I must not be disheartened; he would show me what could be made out of penny business. We took the doctor, who had been doorsman at Mr. Springthorpe's exhibition for some time—he had really taken the degree of M.D.: we had a suit made for him to order trimmed with gold lace. We attended Birmingham Onion Fair and Nottingham Goose Fair, and did very well; we took as much as £25 a day at a penny admission. The doctor was a wonderfully clever doorsman; he could talk the crowd in as he liked. He was worth £20 a week to any show."

After various interesting adventures in theatrical and circus business in Ireland, his next greatest speculation was a tableau vivants troupe, which owing to the withdrawal of a partner came to grief in London. It then occurred to him to visit Paris, with an eye to introducing his troupe. Finding that business was not possible there, he went on to Belgium, and made arrangements to open at Antwerp with his troupe. But meeting with only moderate success, he brought his Continental tour to an end and returned to London. On the recommendation of Batty, he became the manager of a troupe of North American Indians from Lake Huron. At the end of this engagement he gathered together a troupe of Risley performers, and was the first to introduce the gymnastic turn at a London music hall. This success inspired him to fresh enterprises, and he voyaged to Morocco, and after considerable adventures he secured the best troupe of Bedouin Arab performers in the country.

He had great difficulty in getting them out of Morocco, but eventually made his way from Algiers to France. After triumphant engagements at Marseilles and Lyons, he had a full season at the Hippodrome in Paris, where the Bedouin Arabs were the talk of the town.

As an illustration of the intense conservatism in a business sense then obtained with London managers, he records that E. T. Smith, even when he had seen the Bedouins' splendid show and had heard of their Parisian success, countered Van Hare's demand for £60 a week with the offer of £10. Van Hare gave him no reply, but told his Arabs to put on their "togs." The troupe ultimately were engaged by Conquest, of the Grecian, City-road, at a salary of £35 for three nights in each week, and the engagement proved a great success. Van Hare, like most successful showmen, was a little bit before his time, for we find that one enterprise was not sufficient for his energies, for in addition to his Arabian troupe he had a show of tableau vivants at Savil House, Leicester-square, and other shows open in London and the provinces.

In the summer of 1858 he undertook the management of the largest show combination travelling the country. This included the Siege of Delhi—an immense picture, painted in oil by the celebrated scenic artists, Messrs. Grieve and Telbin, at a cost of £1,000—in which 100 soldiers took part; the fireworks and bombs, for the storming, &c., by Chevalier Mortram; the Garde Nationale Band of Paris, Madame Garcia, the Misses Brougham, and Madame Amedie; also conjuring, vaulting, tight-rope dancing, gymnasts, performing dogs, and the marionette theatre, the stage of which was erected in the grounds of the different gardens he visited, and the theatre for the audience was the open air. Amongst the company were H. Greg Thompson, the celebrated marionette worker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Templeton, and many others. The company numbered 100. The tour commenced at Bristol, from there to Bath, then on to Cheltenham, Liverpool, Chester, Leeds, Hull, Edinburgh, Glasgow, and then right away to the Rotunda Gardens, Dublin, where the successful enterprise came to an end.

This point in his career marked his definite association with circus life and enterprise. In his autobiography he speaks of engagements to produce for Mr. Lane, of the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, Mazeppa and Dick Turpin. A long time before the advent of agents he was in touch with the best talent on the Continent, and engaging them with their original turns for England. He claims to have introduced the great Leotard, and also Beri and Leach, the first trapezeists to introduce that feat in England.

"I wrote to Mr. E. T. Smith," he says, "to apprise him of the extraordinary feat of these two aspirants to fame. He wrote me thus: 'Dear Van,—What do they do? —E. T. Smith.' I wrote him to say that I could not do justice to the performance in writing. He wrote me by return: 'Dear Van,—Meet me at Her Majesty's Theatre to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock.—E. T. Smith.' I waited on the then greatest manager in Europe at the appointed time, and fully explained to him the nature of the performance, to which he listened very attentively. 'What do they want, Van?' I said '£100 per week.' He replied, 'Give them £40.' I said, 'I'll go and see them,' for they had arrived the previous night, and I had them waiting close by. In about ten minutes I returned, and told E. T. that I had settled with them. 'Well, Van, what are we to do with them? Can we bring them out at Drury-lane? The Alhambra is vacant; what can we have to make up an entertainment?' I replied, 'A circus.' 'Can you get a circus together?' 'Yes; in a week we can be ready to open.'"

And in one week the Royal Alhambra Palace Cirque Imperiale opened its doors. The company gathered together by Van Hare included the Brothers Beri, the gymnastic marvels of the world; Madame Clementin; Mdlle. Josephine, equestrienne; Mr. Neville, the American equestrian; Romeo, Luigi, Herr Christopher, the Bedouin Arabs, the Brothers Daniel, and the clowns and jesters—Dan Castello, Tom Matthews, Harry Crouest, E. M. Oriel, and Mr. H. Lupino—with the band of the Coldstream Guards under the direction of Dan Godfrey.

At the end of the season Van Hare's next venture was a partnership with a small travelling circus, and with him went the Bedouin Arabs. In his book, "Fifty Years of a Showman's Life," he gives some amusing experiences tenting at the fairs.

About this time—1862—Van Hare turned his attention to training animals, and introduced to the show world Napoleon, the Wizard Dog, one of his biggest successes. He also introduced to the London variety stage the famous contortionist known as the Persian Prince.

Of Van Hare's business ventures in Norway, Spain, and in South America his well-known book gives full and dramatic details. Through these remarkable years of his life, his greatest draw was Hassan, the trained gorilla, one of the most remarkable simians ever introduced to public notice. This wonderful and almost human creature was his constant and faithful companion.

As might be expected, so clever a showman as Van Hare took full advantage of Professor Darwin's theory with regard to the descent of man from the ape. An amusing evidence of this is given in a letter in The Era, Nov. 25, 1871:—

"MR. BUCKSTONE ON THE DARWINIAN THEORY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

"Sir,—Mr. Buckstone, on the night of his benefit at the Haymarket Theatre, in addressing the audience, said: 'Now I want to know, with so much laughter, what becomes of the Darwinian theory that we are descended from monkeys, because the learned in natural history tell us that animals do not laugh; therefore Dr. Darwin's theory cannot apply to you, as you have been laughing all the evening, and I only wish that the Doctor would have occupied a private box to-night, then I might have shown him that your progenitors were not monkeys.'

"In answer to the above, I beg to inform Mr. Buckstone that Hassan, the gorilla chief, a species of ape (which, by the way, is larger than Mr. Buckstone), laughs as much as any human being when anything pleases him; and I have no doubt that, if he had been present on this particular evening, he would have been amused, and have laughed as much as any of the audience.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, Professor VAN HARE, the African traveller."

With Hassan he travelled the whole of Europe and India.

There is one thing about Van Hare that marks him off from the whole of his contemporaries—he has left behind him the story of his life, and the task of the biographer is not to find material but to condense into reasonable limits the life story of a man who penetrated into almost every known corner of the world, either to find novelties or to exhibit the novelties he had himself discovered and brought before an admiring public.

It is no exaggeration to say that Van Hare was in the very first flight of the successful showmen of his day, and that he illustrates to the full a too often forgotten truth—that the Showman World is constantly being refreshed, invigorated, and inspired by the genius of men attracted from other walks in life by the compelling power of Showland.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

A programme of unusual length and interest was given at the Royal College on Wednesday evening before an immense audience. The concert began and ended with an organ solo, the first being Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D major, ably performed by Mr. Herbert Smith. Miss Blanche Hooper, although at first slightly nervous, gave a clever rendering of Handel's florid music in recit. and air, "Sussurate, onde lucenti" (Amadigi); and an attractive performance was heard of the sonata for violin and piano in A minor by Schumann, the executants being Miss Esther Capel-Cure and Miss Helen Boyd. Miss Mary Owen was entirely successful in three "Zigeunerlieder" songs of Brahms; and Miss Anna L. M. Marsh received great applause and many recalls for her piano solo Scherzo in C sharp minor, by Chopin. One of the most notable items of the concert was the fine violoncello solo given by Miss Maud Scruby, who played "Air in G," by Moskowski, and the charming Scherzo of Van Goens with delightful facility and expression; Miss Maud Wright sang Schumann's "Myrtle and Roses" skilfully; and Mr. Charles Keywood used a fine and well-trained voice with ability in his ambitious song, "O star of eve," from Tannhäuser, and sang with evident appreciation of the matchless beauty of the great master's air. Miss Muriel A. Crawshaw, who also possesses a voice of fine quality, sang remarkably well Dvorak's "Songs my mother taught me" and "Expectancy," by Wagner. The programme included a showy piano solo, "Le Festin d'Esope," by C. V. Alkan, cleverly played by Miss Phyllis Emmanuel, and a violin solo, "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" of Saint-Saëns, performed by Mr. William Armstrong; Miss Doris Simpson and Miss Mabel Gillender received much applause, the first for her clever interpretation of the bright and sparkling French song, "Villanelle" (E. dell'Acqua), and the latter for "Wiegenlied" and "Vergebliches Ständchen," by Brahms. The concert concluded with an organ solo, Fugue—"Ad nos ad salutarem undam" (Liszt), played by Mr. Harold Rhodes. Miss Alice Cotton, Mr. Ivor James, Mr. Harold Samuel, and Miss Clara Smith were the accompanists.

AN OLD ACTOR'S RECOLLECTIONS.

Mr. Edward Terry tells a story of how, when he first went to live at Barnes—a good many years ago now—he had a very odd greeting from, apparently, one of the oldest inhabitants, a decrepit old man whom the comedian encountered in a country lane. "Be you Mr. Terry?" he asked, with a grin. "Yes," said Mr. Terry. "Ha! I buried Drinkwater Meadows"; and with a hideous chuckle the old man hobbled on his way.

Drinkwater Meadows was a well-known actor in his day, and he was also the author of some amusing "Theatrical Recollections." His experiences while "on the road" with travelling companies were very curious, and he relates them in his own quaint, somewhat rambling style:—"One of our company, who fancied he could sing, selected for his benefit night the opera of Love in a Village, with by far the greater portion of the music 'cut out.' The beneficier acted Young Meadows, and I, really then Young Meadows, acted Eustace; but as I had neither voice nor ear, time nor inclination, to study the music, it was omitted, 'by particular desire.' Lucinda sang quite as well as myself, and no better; therefore she, in like manner, declined singing any of the songs, &c., belonging to her part. The beneficier said he had never had a chance of showing what his vocal abilities were since he had joined the company, and would on this occasion open the eyes of the British public, and let them know what singing really was. 'I'll astonish the natives,' said he. 'Talk of Incledon! Why, I don't hesitate to say I can sing "The Storm" full half as quick again as he ever did—ask anyone in Nuncaton if I can't. I was constantly encored in it there, and once the audience wanted it a third time.' This gentleman's wife was the Rosetta of the evening. They sang their duets without any orchestral accompaniments, and after their own fashion.

"The Hawthorn, who had by no means a bad voice, unfortunately lisped pretty strongly, and, in consequence, he no sooner commenced singing,

There was a jolly miller once,
Lived on the river Dee, than the audience evinced their disapprobation in sounds most discordant to an actor's ears—a sound professionally said to proceed from 'the big bird' (the goose); but Hawthorn, 'good, easy man,' continued his song, and the audience their opposition. He bore it 'with a patient shrug.' He sang and they hissed, till at length his patience and forbearance being exhausted, he stepped forward, and addressed the audience thus:—

"'Ladieth and thentlemen, I am very thorry to find you don't approve of my thinging, and that you hith. I athure you I am doing the very beth I can for your amuthement; and all I can thay ith, that hith ath long ath you pleath, we have no one elth in our company to play the part; and I have been very thukthethful in it in platheth of greater magnitude and thith. No dithrethpect intended to you.'"

Another of Mr. Drinkwater Meadows's recollections has reference to a visit to Burnley. He writes, "After breakfast I sallied forth to attend the rehearsal. The appearance of the town was not very promising, the inhabitants hurrying from one place to another, many of them covered with cotton-flue, with much appearance of business, and but little, if any, of pleasure. I stopped a man in the street to inquire where the theatre was situated. He opened his eyes and mouth to their greatest extent, and said:—

"'Ise sure I caunt tell—I niver card o' sich a place ere. What did ye caw (call) it?'

"'I mean the play-house.'

"'Ho! I now naw—ye mean where t'lakers (actors) hacts. You mun gang (go) on upt' street till ye cum to t'—(name forgot)—public-'ouse. It's there they hacts!'

"On my way I met the manager. I repeated to him the information I had just received, expressing my surprise as to the situation of the theatre. 'What,' said he, 'did I not tell you we had no regular house here?'

"'Never. I suppose then it is in the Assembly-room?'

"'Why, not exactly the Assembly-room, but the long room at the —— Inn—very neatly fitted-up, and well attended. I'll show it you.'

"I followed to the scene of action, and to my horror found the theatre in a 'long room' indeed, the audience part no more than a succession of benches, arranged one behind the other, commencing from that portion of the 'long room' set apart for the stage, which was not raised at all, but on a level with every other part of the room, being merely divided from the spectators by a row of candles (not wax), so that the actors were completely a part and parcel of the assembly. I put a good face on the matter, not liking to give my self 'airs,' as any expression of my feelings would have been termed.

"During rehearsal the manager's wife came to me with a face full of woe, and said:—'I am in such a way about you. I really don't know what to do—you are so very particular about such things. The truth is, I cannot tell you where you can dress, we are so dreadfully put to our shifts for rooms even for ourselves. We have but two for all the company, and if you would dress with our gentlemen, you couldn't, their room is so very small and so very full. Where we can put you I can't conceive. We would have a place made up for you behind the scenes, but you may see how difficult it is even now to move about behind the wings.'

"After much cutting and contriving, it was arranged that a dressing-table should be placed for me in a large bedroom, at one end of which there was a window, with a truckle-bed on each side of it, my appointed place being at the opposite end, near the door, and not far from the stage. I was to play Zekiel Homespun and Peter Simpson (poor Elton, whom I first met in this theatre, was the Stedfast and Bromley). There was not much dressing required, and I found my room certainly clean, if not very comfortable. The oddness of the stage, as far as placing the actors on a level with the audience, amused me more than I anticipated. The play was very respectably acted, and went off well. At the conclusion of it, I retired to my double-bedded room to dress for the farce, and had scarcely commenced, when, without any notice or knocking at the door, the loutish ostler of the public-house entered, candle in hand, proceeded to the bedded end of the room, and commenced doffing his clothes.

"'Holla, my friend,' cried I, 'what are you doing?'

"'Why, Ize ganging (going) to bed, to be sure.'

"'But not till I have done acting, I should think?'

"'Well, I shud think I shall. How can I bide up till you've getten dun what you've gotten to do? You need nut mind me; Ize soon be asleep, and you can gang on with yer dressing. I'm nut pertikler at all. I've had my supper, and Ize quite ready for bed.' Off went his jacket, followed by his cravat and shoes. I stayed further proceedings with—

"'Stay, stay, you can't go to bed till I have done Here, here's a shilling for you. Go downstairs and have something to drink, and when I have finished, then you can go to bed. Away with you.'

"Away went the ostler, and I continued my dressing and undressing undisturbed—for that night, at least; but my horse-cleaner was as cunning as myself, for, on each succeeding evening of my performance, he contrived to pop in upon me exactly as I was about to change my dress, and, as on his first appearance, I was, in self-defence, obliged to buy him off, so that my acting in the 'long room' at Burnley was a profitable engagement for this Lancashire ostler."

MRS. CRAIGIE'S CHILDHOOD.

Mr. John Morgan Richards, in his "Reminiscences of Sixty Years of an American's Life in England and in the United States," which, admirably illustrated, has just been published by T. Werner Laurie, gives some interesting particulars of the early days of their daughter Pearl, otherwise "John Oliver Hobbes." Mr. and Mrs. Richards were always interested to note the keenness she possessed in observing occurrences that were in any way unusual. "We allowed her," says Mr. Richards, "to follow out the little plans she formed for amusement. As she was our only child for some time, she invented imaginary companions to whom she told stories by the hour. She was also fond of dressing up, and acting plays of her own improvisation. As she grew older her powers of mimicry were still further developed; and on returning from her daily walk in the park or the streets, she greatly amused her mother by imitating the voices of people she had casually seen, actually quoting snatches of the dialogues she had heard; the upbraiding of one another by poor people, threats used by mothers to their children, or tender words spoken by sweethearts. Strange words were caught up in this way, and repeated innocently in the very tone of voice used, and accompanied with the facial expression of those who had uttered them.

"In this way she passed from age to age in childhood. When the time came for the appearance of a governess she entered upon her lessons with enthusiasm, and her mother never had to say to her: 'Go and study your lessons.' The appetite to learn grew in strength as she advanced in years. She petitioned me and her mother to indulge in fresh studies, and not to reduce the number of those which were set her. She was educated in London, Boston, and Paris—chiefly by tutors.

"Her progress was such as to occasionally cause embarrassment and surprise to her teachers. One lady gravely confided to her mother the fact that the girl knew 'the whole of' Thackeray, and read him in school-hours, and she did not think Thackeray was an author any girl of thirteen ought to be allowed to read. As a matter of fact, no restriction was placed upon her reading, and although she read, no doubt, every work of fiction she could find, she also read a great deal of history, poetry, and philosophy. She had a love of picture galleries and museums, and went constantly to the National Gallery and the British Museum. She became an excellent musician, and developed a sweet voice of great flexibility.

"As soon as she was capable of writing with ease she indulged in the composition of fiction—and this took a singular turn. She wrote for the maid-servants letters to their sweethearts, and the unconventionality of these missives often led to quarrels and misunderstanding between the lovers. It is possible that her ironic humour was scarcely soothing to the vanity of an adored police-sergeant.

"The dramatic instinct was so strong that she entreated me to buy a toy theatre for her, with pasteboard figures representing the characters; and she would invent the story to fit the drama, making little speeches for each character as she pushed them on to the stage. This love of the theatre, I should confess, she may have inherited from me.

"A governess from the school she attended told my wife in great alarm that Pearl was in the habit of sitting on the table, with the girls around her crying with laughter at her imitations of the men and women she had met in the street.

"A curious experience befell my wife, myself, and Pearl on our first visit to Paris in 1869. The novelty of our surroundings was delightful, and we were quite fascinated with the city. Pearl was then a child of three years, and we were assured, before starting, that there was no necessity for our taking a nurse specially to look after her. We, however, were rudely awakened from our confidence at dinner-time. This was at table d'hôte, in the hotel. Walking into the dining-room, we were stopped by the manager, who politely informed us that a child was not allowed to dine with the adults in the public dining-room. I was at first rather indignant, but quickly saw the reasonableness of the prohibition. The manager suggested that we should leave our daughter in the care of the femme de chambre, which we did, and then proceeded to our meal. We felt that this course would be very inconvenient to be separated at each meal, and the difficulty was solved by removing to a private hotel. Here the manageress informed us that there was a Spanish nurse in want of an engagement stopping in the hotel, and we engaged this young woman at once. She had been in the service of the Queen of Spain, who was then living with her son, the Prince of Asturias, in her own mansion near the Arc de Triomphe; and here the nurse on several occasions took Pearl to play with the Prince, who afterwards became King of Spain under the title of Alfonso XII.

"Her taste for describing foreign places and characters is due to the fact that her earliest impressions were formed, no doubt, travelling; and although her life, since she was sixteen, has been mostly spent in England, she has lived a great deal abroad, and in many parts of the world. It is quite certain that she has never drawn any scene, or presented any situation, or analysed any type of temperament, except through the light of absolute personal knowledge and observation. Her first professional literary work was journalism and art criticism, which she began soon after her marriage, at nineteen, with Mr. Reginald Walpole Craigie, in February, 1887.

"Mrs. Craigie devoted herself with great assiduity to the serious composition of literary work, and her first published book was entitled 'Some Emotions and a Moral.' It was published in her twenty-third year. When this was ready for publication she refused all help in obtaining a publisher, and insisted that whatever she wrote should receive no other help towards publication than the merit there was in the composition. The MS. was first offered by her to Messrs. Macmillan, and in returning this with a kind note, they suggested that the title of the book should be altered, and that the last chapter should be revised, when they would be glad to become the publishers. This she declined to do, and the MS. was next offered to Mr. Fisher Unwin, who accepted the work for his Pseudonym Library. At first, Mr. Unwin has since told me, he felt a little nervous as to the result; but a week after the publication he wrote Mrs. Craigie, saying: 'Your book is a success for both author and publisher.' Since that time, with one or two exceptions only, Mr. Fisher Unwin has published all her works.

"The first play she wrote was Journeys End in Lovers Meeting—a proverb, which was performed at Daly's Theatre by Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Forbes Robertson, and the late William Terriss, and was greatly commended. Miss Ellen Terry bought the copyright, and has many times since appeared therein, both at the Lyceum Theatre, London, and when on tour in the United States."

At the Hippodrome and Varieties, Dewsbury, this week, Happy Atwood is making a hit. The Olmars are fine horizontal bar performers, and the Lovelaces, song illustrators, are good. Wirson, a wonderful equilibrist, continues his success, and De Voy, Hurst, and Fredericks are an admirable trio of burlesque artists. Hesketch Meade, baritone, Arthur Page, comedian, and Grapho and Jackson all do well. The Harriscope winds up a strong bill. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Willcox, plays some agreeable selections.

THE CHARM OF HENRY IRVING.

Mr. William Winter, the eminent American dramatic critic and essayist, who has been connected with the New York Tribune for more than forty years, contradicts, in the following article, an assertion made by a contributor to the Atlantic Monthly, concerning the personal appearance of the late Sir Henry Irving:—"Mr. Talcot Williams has been supposed to be an acute and judicious observer, yet, writing in the Atlantic of the late Henry Irving, Mr. Williams says of that great actor that he had 'no physical advantage, personal charm, or outer aspect which bespoke success.' That statement is simply amazing to anyone really acquainted with the subject. Henry Irving possessed, as an actor, physical advantages of the most uncommon kind. His figure was tall, slender, individual, and distinguished. His movements were marked by exquisite grace. In repose, as in certain parts of Wolsey or Becket, for example, his attitudes were those of incarnate dignity. He sometimes moved with a celerity that was electrical—as in one moment of Robert Macaire, and at certain points in Mathias and Mephistopheles. He had a superb head and face. His face was a specially advantageous one for an actor, being large, and exceedingly expressive. The mouth was large (though not so large as he himself wished it were: he considered Ellen Terry's advantage, in that respect, of great value). The nose was finely formed, and significant of power; the chin was delicate, clear-cut, and expressive of great sensibility. In the last years of his life, his indomitable struggle with hardship and the encroachments of weariness, sickness, and advancing age, had caused his lips—from their continual compression, because of unflinching resolution—to become straight and narrow, and his face had assumed a settled look of almost dogged determination, a look which, in repose, was softened by sadness and grief. His eyes were magnificent—dark brown, and of exceeding brilliancy. His eyebrows were of great thickness and of a peculiar shape, somewhat triangular in form (a trait that became more pronounced in his age), and they were extraordinarily mobile and expressive. His luxuriant iron-grey hair contributed to make his appearance remarkably picturesque. His hands were very delicate in form, and, in his use of them, they became indicative and significant to a wonderful degree. No other actor who has been seen on our stage in the last fifty years ever approached him in this particular, except Joseph Jefferson, and Jefferson did not equal him. (Next to Jefferson in this respect came Ellen Terry.) The voice of Irving was loud, penetrating, and flexible; under stress of excitement it sometimes became slightly nasal—as did that of Edwin Booth. Irving had, in his youth, made a careful study of elocution, and, whenever he chose to do so, he could speak blank verse in a perfectly melodious manner and with delicious effect. This he occasionally did, to please a friend, and sometimes to please himself; as, for example, in the delivery of Wolsey's farewell, or in the scene in Becket with John of Salisbury, just before the murder. As a matter of artistic principle, however, he aimed at impersonation, and he often disregarded elocution; sometimes, indeed, he spoke of it with playful indifference. His recital of Hood's "Eugene Aram" was a perfect work of elocutionary art; and so was his recital of Calverly's "Tommy." It is idle to say of such an actor that he had no physical advantages. As to his personal charm, it was so great that all persons who came near to him were more or less fascinated by him. There is hardly an actor on the English stage, within the last twenty-five years, who has not imitated him, and much of this imitation was quite unconscious. At the outset of Irving's career on the London stage he attracted the enthusiastic admiration of one of the most capable, hard-headed, downright judges of acting that ever lived, namely, H. L. ("Chain Lightning," as we used to call him) Bateman. There has not been, in the whole history of the stage, another actor who, by the use of marvellous natural faculties, rose to greatness in such an extensive round of contrasted parts, nor a man—nor a woman, either—who exerted the charm of a lovelier spirit."

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

In the hall of the City of London School on Wednesday evening the students of the Guildhall School of Music gave an orchestral concert, conducted by Dr. Cummings. The orchestra were first heard in Schumann's Symphony Op. 97, the scherzo being particularly well rendered by the young performers. The band also did good work in accompanying Mr. Cecil Montague in Hillier's Concerto Pianoforte in F sharp minor, the soloist being at his best in the second and most attractive movement of the concerto, which at the close received most hearty applause from the large audience. Two vocal items were heard, Mr. H. Blamey singing in an artistic manner the scena "Salve dimora," from Gounod's Faust. Mr. Blamey possesses a voice of agreeable quality, but of hardly sufficient power for such music. He was ably supported by the orchestra. In Wagner's scena "Oh hall of song" (Tannhäuser), Miss Winifred Johnson brought to her task a pure and bright soprano voice of fair power in the upper register, but the scena required more dramatic treatment. The young artist was, however, warmly applauded for her efforts, the orchestra also deserving praise. Included in the programme was Weber's seldom-heard overture "The ruler of the spirits," which concluded the concert.

At the Tivoli, Barrow-in-Furness, the Wally Hoste comedy troupe top the bill this week. They give a clever and novel acrobatic and indiarubber glove juggling entertainment. N. T. Kioto, Japanese equilibrist, gives a clever and daring show; Barrett and Knowles have some exceedingly funny patter; and Madge Daly has a fine voice and a splendid stage presence. The Four Trees give a very pleasing and refined song and dance show. Jack Roe is exceedingly humorous in a comedy gymnastic and juggling act, and Johnny Norman sings some capital comic songs.

An extra fancy dress ball was given at Covent Garden on the night of the 23rd inst., and a large and merry crowd took part in the dancing. There was again an artistic display of costumes, the first prize going to an effective design, entitled "Wait till the clouds roll by." Other notable dresses were "St. George and the Dragon," "As good fish in the sea as ever was caught," "Signals," "Sweet Springtime," "London by the Sea," and "Bill Sikes."

Mr. H. J. Brett, the popular acting-manager of the Crown, Peckham, will give his second annual concert at that house on Good Friday evening. These will be a grand orchestra of thirty performers, under the direction of Mr. W. Devin, L.R.A.M., Mr. Henry Renouf, Miss Suzanne Stokris, Mr. Arthur Grover, Miss Mary Glover, and other artists will appear, and an exhibition of Beard's Imperial Cinematograph will be given.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

A GREAT OTHELLO.

Dr. Westland Marston, in his interesting book "Our Recent Actors," writes the following excellent criticism of Gustavus Vaughan Brooke's Othello, considered by many to be the finest impersonation of the Moor that was given at any time during the nineteenth century:

"Mr. G. V. Brooke made his first appearance in London at the Olympic Theatre, then under the management of Mr. Henry Spicer, in 1848. The fame of the provincial tragedian had preceded him to London, so that his first audience included many of the celebrities of the day. The play was Othello, and the reception of Mr. Brooke in this character was not merely noisy and vehement, but truly enthusiastic. He had moved the passions and sympathies of the house—not only that sort of admiration which is called forth by a fine person, accomplished declamation, and executive skill in general. All these latter advantages, however, he possessed—tall, well-proportioned, with a musical voice of great compass, and a countenance which, although singularly mild in private, could reflect on the stage the most varied passions. On the first night of his Othello, however, one had to look deeper than to external accomplishments for the secret of his success. At the end of the third act the house was in a fever of delight. The acclamations which recalled the actor subsided only into a restless murmur of applause. Knots of impromptu critics gathered together in boxes and lobby. In the pit, looks and gestures and a hum of delight expressed the general verdict; and outside the theatre a crowd, attracted by the rumour of the effect produced, recalled the account given of the scene outside Drury Lane on Edmund Kean's first appearance. So far, indeed, Brooke's triumph had been deserved. His address to the Senate had been full of simple dignity, and of fervent, though restrained, feeling. He showed like dignity in the second act, in his rebuke of Cassio; while his growing wrath—of which one caught a gleam in the words—

If I once stir,
Or do but lift this arm, the best of you
Shall sink in my rebuke, gave a terrible hint of what its explosion might be. The passage in the third act, beginning—

Why, why is this?

was admirably given. The actor's manner was open, clear, warm, and yet temperate; and one saw with what loyalty to Desdemona he fought against his rising doubts. In the concluding lines of the speech, the tone of expostulation with Iago was exchanged for one abrupt and peremptory, and the last line with a sudden and passionate energy that carried all before it; while afterwards the great burst—

If thou dost slander her and torture me, expressed to the height the frenzy of the Moor's mind—his mingled rage and agony. The enthusiasm aroused was immense. With the exception of Salvini, I have seen no actor so powerful at this crisis. It may be briefly said that, to the end of the tragedy, Mr. Brooke maintained the ascendency he had won. The line in the fifth act—recalled what I had read of its utterance by the elder Kean. With Brooke, however, it was so natural and so just, that imitation could hardly have been suspected. The word 'fool' was pronounced in the first instance with blended amazement and remorse, in the second with a musing lingering sense of his own fatuity as Iago's dupe, and in the third with the quiet hopelessness of one who feels the past irrevocable. The press generally welcomed the new tragedian scarcely less warmly than did the public. There were one or two critics, however, who, like John Forster, were such partisans of Macready, that they could not admit, nor, perhaps, even see, tragic excellence out of that great actor.

O, fool! fool! fool!

"Salvini's Othello has been already glanced at. It can hardly be said that Brooke's Othello, even at its best, was equal to Salvini's. The former, for instance, could never have given us that grand piece of psychology which occurs in the third act, where Salvini, having trampled on Iago, stands awhile mute and vacant, then, with a distressed and courteous air, raises the fallen man, and leads him to his seat. What finer illustration could be given of the mental chaos that follows the Moor's fury? For the moment Othello has forgotten his misery and his rage, and wonders at the sight of the prostrate tempter.

"There was, nevertheless, one feature in Brooke's passion which made me prefer it to Salvini's It had more of the irregularity and the sudden contrasts which denote extreme tension of feeling. If excitement ran ever so high, it would at times be driven back, as advancing waves are sometimes by meeting a gale. There would be frequently a momentary lull, a false calm of irony, ere the tide again gathered and leaped on. With all its grandeur and force, Salvini's passion lacked, I thought, at times the contrast and the variety I have indicated. It was somewhat too measured and uniform—a sea that rolled on majestically and irresistibly, but that had no convulsion; it did not turn and eddy with the wind.

"I saw Brooke's Othello on several subsequent occasions, but I never knew it to attain the force shown on the night of his début."

The following curious episode is narrated of Brooke in a "Memoir" of the actor by an anonymous writer:—

"While still a mere youth Brooke became a member of the company performing at the Birmingham Theatre, where he was concerned in an incident which is worth relating. His engagement was prolonged for a considerable period, but after a short time the manager treated him in anything but a handsome manner. He not only allowed the young actor but few opportunities of appearing before the public, but omitted paying him his salary during a period of eight weeks. On the last night of his engagement he was cast for the comparatively trifling part of Tressel in Richard the Third, Mr. Charles Kean being down to play the bloodthirsty and crafty Glo'ster. During the afternoon Master Brooke addressed a note of complaint and remonstrance to the manager on the subject of his financial claims, and intimated that he should expect the payment of arrears. The manager either would not or could not pay; and in the evening the young actor perceived another person dressed for Tressel and every wing guarded by the stage carpenters and friends of the manager. Determined not to be baffled in this manner, Master Brooke, as soon as he heard the cue given for the entrance of Tressel, vaulted over the head of one of the carpenters at the upper entrance, and made his appearance on the stage, greatly to the astonishment of the King and the audience, who each beheld two Tressels in the field.

"Great confusion ensued; and Brooke, advancing to the footlights, explained the circumstances, and threw himself on the indulgence of his audience. The sympathy of the spectators was enlisted on behalf of the lad, and he was greeted with thunders of applause, and with—what was equally acceptable—a little shower of money. To the repeated demands made from the wings that he should instantly leave the stage, young Brooke replied by holding out his hand to the side for his arrears of salary. At length the money was given to him, and he came down to the footlights and leisurely counted it. Finding it was not correct, he again stretched out his hand to the wing, and would not withdraw it until he succeeded in obtaining the full amount due to him. The play then proceeded; but the next night the theatre remained unopened. Master Brooke had ruined the treasury, and the season was closed."

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form, it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.

"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. TOM GALLON.

"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.

"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.

"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.

"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.

"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.

"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.

"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary. Cousin Grace has not been included. This is a little piece from the French, played at a matinée performance at the Gaiety Theatre, Dec. 4, 1884."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.

"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.

"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.

"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago, I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.

"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. H. RAYMOND,
55, Trent-road, Brixton Hill, S.W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

HE'S GOT THEM ON.
Jovial workman takes his week's pay and goes home, puts his money in a bag and places it in a pair of trousers in a drawer. His wife comes in. She wants money, but he informs her he has none to give. He goes out. She wants to raise some money, and tries to sell her lamp to an old clo' man, but he will not buy anything but clothing, and she sells her husband's precious trousers. Her husband arrives home, and she tells him what she has done. He is terribly angry and rushes out to find the old clo' man. It will make you laugh to accompany him in his search for the lost trousers, and to see the way he pursues and examines all the light-coloured garments he comes across. About 360ft.
£9 0s. 0d.

ANOTHER'S CRIME.
A poor beggar gets no sympathy from the passers-by. The mysterious stranger. The crime in the cottage. Unseen witnesses. The child will know the truth. The day after the crime. The inquest. Chase of the supposed murderer by the mounted and foot police and crowds of people up and down streets, over roofs, through woods, over fields and rivers. Run down at last. Overwhelming evidence. The trial. Scene in court. The real murderer denounced, and is carried off after terrific struggles. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

ROBBERS ROBBED.
While a shopkeeper is busily occupied a lady is putting into a satchel all the jewels she can purloin. Two other women in the shop notice her actions and, following her, they succeed in snatching the bag from her lap. While they are examining their spoil in a park it is stolen from them. The thief is captured, and the two women are about to claim the jewels when they see the original thief and slink off, leaving her to make her claim good. The shopkeeper appears just too late to reclaim his property. About 230ft.

LIVING BEYOND YOUR MEANS;
or,
Furniture on the Hire System.

A party at lunch are disturbed by the servant, who enters and whispers a message to the master of the house. They start up in alarm as two men from the furniture dealer come in to remove the goods. The host vainly endeavours to get rid of them by giving them a bottle of wine, but, as the money is not forthcoming, they proceed to remove the furniture. After they have taken away the chairs, the party continue their meals standing, but when the table is removed they have to make the best of the meal in picnic fashion on the floor. Ultimately the men drag away the carpet, upsetting the guests on the remains of the luncheon, at which the host becomes so angry that he throws one of them out of the window; but some of the party seize hold of his trousers, which, to their amazement, come off in their hands. An outside view shows the man falling through the window head first, leaving behind his trousers, and endeavouring to cover himself with a table-cloth. So much disturbance is created in the street, that the men are arrested by the police, and the party proceed to take back the furniture. Code word, Hire. Length, 245ft. Price £6 2s. 6d.

No. 1003. THE PEASANT-GIRL'S REVENGE.

Along a lonely wind-swept country road in Eastern Russia three Cossacks are riding wearily, searching for some signs of human habitation where a meal may be obtained. Presently they spy a miserable little cottage some distance off the roadway, within which a frugal but sufficient meal is in progress. A peasant, his wife and daughter are sitting around the table eating food, and washing it down with a bottle of wine. Suddenly the tramp of horses in heard, and rushing to the door the peasant breathes the fatal word "Cossacks!" In a moment, fear and consternation put all happiness to flight, the peasant barricades the door, while his wife and daughter hide the remains of the food in a trap in the floor. Meanwhile the Cossacks, having in vain demanded admission, burst the door down and stride into the room demanding food. The peasant refuses to give it to them, and the officer runs him through with his sword and repeats his demands to the horrified wife. Maddened at the brutal murder of her husband, the peasant woman proudly refuses the food until they seize her daughter and threaten to flog her to death. Then she yields, and points to the hole in the ground where the food is hidden. When the Cossacks settle to their meal they find that the wine flagon is empty and they demand its replenishment. This is the peasant woman's opportunity to avenge the death of her husband. She fetches a new bottle and drops a terrible poison into it and carries it back to the intruders, but the officer refuses to drink until the woman has herself taken a cupful. Thirsting for revenge she is ready to take even this step to ensure that the murderers shall drink also, but they have thought of a better plan and they insist instead that the child shall drink the wine as a proof that it is "undoctored." Just at this moment the sentry outside calls the Cossacks' attention, and while their backs are turned the mother flings the poisoned wine out of the cup and presses the empty vessel to her daughter's lips. The Cossacks returning, are satisfied at last that the wine is safe, and all but the officer drink the poisoned liquid. Quickly the poison does its work, and two of the men are seized with their death agonies. Then the officer rises in wrath to slay the mother and child, but the little girl has seized a dagger from one of the men, and she deftly plunges it into the villain's back just in time to save her mother's life. Length 300ft. Price, £7 10s. 0d.

No. 1006. A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.

THIS IS A VERY COMICAL FILM. Length 125ft. Price, £3 2s. 6d.

No. 998. THE TRACEDY OF THE SAWMILL.

One of the finest melodramatic stories we have produced. The first scene depicts the work going on in large up-to-date saw-mills, machinery in full swing. Lunch whistle goes, and men prepare to depart. There enters the sweetheart of one of the workmen and her young sister. The foreman of the works, however, is also in love with the workman's sweetheart, and talks to the young workman to distract his attention while handing written offer of marriage to the girl. She repulses his attentions and thereby increases his jealousy, and anger for the young workman. Scene 2.—The foreman arranges to meet the girl in the open, and there again proposes marriage. She again refuses, and he endeavours to do her violence. The young lover comes on the scene, and fights the foreman. Foreman swears vengeance, and arranges with an accomplice to do him harm. Scene 3. Back in the workshop. The villain foreman and his accomplice strap the young man on the swiftly moving saw bench near circular saw. His sweetheart rushes in, and the foreman forces her hand on lever to start the machinery, then rushes off with her. Enter young sister, who cuts ropes of prisoner after vainly endeavouring to stop the machinery. Hero thrashes villain. Grand finale. Most exciting, and of fine quality. Length 500ft. Price, £10 12s. 6d.

A GAMBLER'S NIGHTMARE.

SCENE I. (Tinted Gas Light).—Frank Colbern, a widower, playing his last hand at poker. Luck dead out. Friends depart. Pretty, fair-haired Connie, his only child, comes down in her nightdress, asking daddy to come to bed. Colbern falls asleep, dreams, and falls into—

SCENE II. (Tinted Night Color).—Where he is found lying in the road. He is robbed by two masked men. A policeman appearing is shot by the thieves, who leave the smoking revolver in the senseless hands of Colbern. He is arrested.

SCENE III. (Daylight.)—Colbern still on the floor writhing in his horrible nightmare. Connie creeps down once more seeking daddy. He awakes, and finding his child by his side, realises it is nothing but a terrible dream. Reform is vowed. The cards are scattered right and left. The cursed drink is flung from him, and he lifts his child in his arms, with the tender caress of a father, and carries her from the room.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual appears once more in its familiar binding, a compendium of information and amusement for all who are interested in theatrical affairs. In the calendar will be found an array of anniversary dates, some recent, some recalling memories of old times and actors and actresses long passed away. The summary of new plays produced during the past year is admirably done, its value being increased by the alphabetical list which is appended. Well-known actors and actresses contribute stories in accordance with a custom justified by its success.—Daily Telegraph, Jan. 18, 1906.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Almanack and Annual ("Era" Office, 1s.), a copy of which lies before me, is an invaluable publication for those who wish to have stage records by them. It contains a dramatic and musical calendar, lists of new plays and important revivals produced at the London and suburban theatres during 1905, and also of plays produced in the provinces. Further, we have lists of the new plays and revivals produced at the principal Paris and Berlin theatres. "The Era" Almanack has been regularly issued since 1868, when is was compiled by Edward Laman Blanchard, a comedian whose fascinating life was recorded by Clement Scott. The Almanack closes with an illustrated list of those members of the profession who died during the course of last year, headed, naturally, by Henry Irving. Amongst the other names are those of William Rignold, Frank Celli, Ada Neilson, and Minnie Mario. There is an added pathos in the deaths of those who were so long bodily before the public, and the ringing down of the last curtain seems to have added significance.—T. P.'s Weekly, Jan. 26.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, combines utility and entertainment. Its former aspect is exemplified by the record of the plays produced last year in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin; it also includes an obituary for the year, and lists of the United Kingdom's theatres and music halls. The attractive side of the Annual comprises numerous stories by stage celebrities, whose portraits illustrate the text. It is a delightful budget of good things. Mr. T. P. O'Connor's appreciation of the late Sir Henry Irving is brief, but tender and impressive.—Financier, Jan. 23, '06.
